

News for senior citizens

Hi! We registered for the Valley Train Ride this past Monday and need seven more to fill the bus.

By the way, tomorrow morning the bus for Banner Lodge will be leaving our center around 9:30 and you folks going should start arriving here shortly after 8.

Might as well continue about trips and remind you that the final payment for Brown's is due this week.

Setback
Here at the center, the action started with last Friday afternoon when we had 42 players for our setback games and the winners were: Lillian Ruschik, 131; John Fluetis, 129; Violet Dion, 128; Mike DeSimone, 126; Catherine Cappuchio, 124; Paul Schuetz, 123; Lee Miller, 123; Archie Houghtaling, 123; Sam Schors, 119; Betty Jesanis, 118.

Pinochle
On Monday, even with all the hot and humid weather, we had a decent turnout for our kitchen social games in the morning and in the afternoon we had 60 players for our pinochle games and the winners were: Lee Steinmeyer, 838; Martin Bakstan, 809; Martha LaBate, 785; Marie Hebenstreit, 788; Sue Kerr, 767; Mabel Wilson, 765; Mike Haberen, 763; Bess Moonan, 754; Archie Houghtaling, 749; Esther Anderson, 743; John Fee, 742; Marie Burke, 739; Felix Jesanis, 736; Andrew Noske, 734; Roy Darcy, 733.

Golf
We had 41 players out on the golf course in the morning and the low scores for the day were: Irvin Gartside, 41; Merrill Dickinson, 41; Russ Nettleton, 44; Vince Porter, 44; Parky Parmakian, 45; Raymond Bidwell, 45; Jim Fee, 45; Albert Bolis, 46; Ernie Segerberg, 46; Hector Provost, 46.

The big picnic in Center Park was canceled last Sunday due to threatening thunderstorms. So come Sunday, SAM will try it again, same time, same place. They apologize for any inconvenience caused some who did make the trip however, it was debatable for a while, and when they received the weather forecast, they felt it was best to cancel.

Charges are dismissed

NEW LONDON (UPI) — Disorderly conduct charges have been dismissed against five antinuclear demonstrators dressed in black robes who had refused to tell officials their names.

The five, who had identified themselves only as "Death" and "Last Tango," were arrested over the weekend for blocking the entrance to Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics in Groton. The firm makes nuclear submarines.

The charges were dismissed Tuesday in New London Court of Common Pleas.

About town

Back to trips, and one that many — of you really like in the Penn Dutch trip. It's a three-day deal and will be around the end of October. So start thinking about it and we will have more information for you real soon.

Condolences
Our sincere and heartfelt condolences to our good friend Harold Lehmann on the death of his wife, and also Joseph Grigolet on the death of his brother George. Also Adele Grigolet is a patient in Mt. Sinai Hospital in Hartford and Carl Swanson is in intensive care at the Manchester Memorial Hospital. Let's help cheer them up with cards and, if possible, visits.

We received word that another of our members, Marianne Herdic, is now coming along very nicely as she is recuperating in the Vernon Convalescent Home. She really enjoys receiving cards and can also have visitors. While we are at it, don't forget also that our oldest member, Nellie Moran, is a patient at Manchester Manor and she also wishes to thank everyone for their cards and would love to have a few visitors.

The Manchester Senior Citizens Pinochle Group will sponsor a game Thursday at 8:45 a.m. at the Army and Navy Club. All senior citizens are welcome.

The Prayer Group of Emanuel Lutheran Church will meet Thursday at 10 a.m. in the church library.

South United Methodist Church will have a fair workshop tonight at 7 in the education wing of the church.

NY police arrest suspect in 'Son of Sam' murders

NEW YORK (UPI) — David Berkowitz, a 24-year-old postal worker, was charged today as "Son of Sam," the psychopath who killed six persons in a year-long reign of terror and reportedly planned to go out "in a blaze of glory" with a wholesale slaughter at a discotheque the night of his arrest.

"Okay, you got me," Berkowitz said with an air of resignation as police closed in on him at the end of the largest manhunt in New York history, eclipsing the search for London's 19th Century Jack the Ripper and the Boston Strangler of the 1960s.

In the end, "Son of Sam" was tripped up by a dispute with a neighbor and by a $25-ticket for parking in front of a fire hydrant on the night of his last murder July 31.

"We have him," said First Deputy Police Commissioner James Taylor.

"He made statements of admission" after his arrest, added Chief of Detectives John Keenan. "He seemed to be resigned to what appeared to be his fate."

New Yorkers breathed easy for the first time in 13 months.

The suspect, according to a newspaper columnist, told police he killed on the orders of a dog named Sam and planned to shoot up a Long Island nightspot and kill everybody the night of his arrest.

Berkowitz, a stocky mail sorter who served in Korea with the Army's 2nd Division, was arrested as he sat at the wheel of his car outside his Yonkers, N.Y., home about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, one year and 13 days after his first lovers' lane killing July 29, 1976.

In the car were a fully loaded .44 caliber revolver, the traffic ticket traced to him, and a submachine gun he reportedly planned to use to mow down dancers Wednesday night at a Long Island discotheque.

The revolver, which gave "Son of Sam" his other moniker of "44-caliber killer," was identified by ballistics experts as the weapon used in all of the ambushes.

"Son of Sam" killed five women and one man, and wounded seven others, most of them as couples parked in lovers' lanes in widely scattered areas of the city.

A task force of 75 officers — hundreds more worked on their own time — stalked Sam the last day of the manhunt they received more than 1,800 calls an hour from persons trying to aid in the search.

A widely circulated sketch of the killer — drawn from the recollections of seven of Sam's targets who survived the killer's bullets — was credited with aiding the successful manhunt.

After his arrest, Berkowitz was rushed in a police motorcade to New York where he was interrogated for several hours and then booked on charges of murder, attempted murder and assault stemming from the latest killing July 31.

Newspaper columnist Jimmy Breslin, to whom "Son of Sam" wrote a taunting note in May after his fifth killing, wrote today that Berkowitz told police he killed at the command of a dog named "Sam" owned by a neighbor.

The latest command, according to Breslin, was to enter a dance hall in the Hamptons section of Long Island with a .45-caliber submachine gun and "kill everybody."

"He said he was going out in a blaze of glory," Breslin quoted a policeman who questioned Berkowitz as saying, "Do you know what he would have done? A machine gun in a discotheque?"

Berkowitz, who went to Columbus High School in the Bronx and attended Bronx Community College, was described as a quiet loner by many of his neighbors. But one, Westchester County deputy sheriff Craig Glassman, said he had recently received four threatening notes from Berkowitz and accused the suspect of setting a fire at his apartment door and throwing bullets into the blaze.

Glassman said he contacted police because the threatening notes appeared to be written in the style and hand of "Son of Sam."

A letter also was found among Berkowitz' arsenal in his 1971 cream-colored Ford Galaxie and seemed to have the same handwriting.

"Because Craig is Craig," the letter said, "so most the streets he filled with Craig Deaths and huge drops of lead poured down upon her head until she was dead. Yet, the cats still come out at night to mate and the sparrows still sing in the morning."

In the middle of the letter, which was addressed to Suffolk County police, was a cross straddled by male and female sex symbols and a large letter "S."

Charles Lomino, father of 18-year-old Joanne, who was temporarily paralyzed by one of the gunman's first bullets, was relieved to hear of Berkowitz' arrest.

"Thank God they've caught him," he said. "Now he can't hurt anybody else."

"Son of Sam's latest victims, whom he ambushed on a quiet street in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn, were 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz and her companion, Robert Violante, also 20.

Miss Moskowitz put up a 36-hour struggle for survival but died Aug. 1 of a bullet wound in the head. A .44-caliber slug also smashed into the side of Violante's skull, virtually blinding him.

"She would have been a vegetable if she had lived and she loved life too much for that," said Miss Moskowitz' mother after her daughter died. "An animal like this has to be caught — not to die, but to be tortured for the rest of his life."

Accord reached on treaty over Panama Canal control

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — U.S. and Panamanian negotiators have reached agreement in principle on a new Panama Canal treaty that will give Panama control of the strategic 51-mile waterway in 23 years.

"We are deeply gratified to be able to announce that we and our Panamanian colleagues have today reached an agreement in principle on a new Panama Canal treaty that will give Panama control of the strategic 51-mile waterway in 23 years," chief U.S. negotiator Ellsworth Bunker said Wednesday.

Bunker and fellow U.S. negotiator Sol Linowitz planned to fly to Washington today to talk to President Carter at the White House. The treaty was expected to face a tough ratification fight in the Senate.

Arab leaders given briefing Vance ends Midwest tour with three-nation swing

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, ending his Midwest peace mission with a one-day, three-nation swing, briefed Arab leaders today on his talks with Israeli officials. King Hussein of Jordan said he was "very pleased and encouraged" by what he heard.

Vance flew from Israel to Amman for the meeting with Hussein, then on to Damascus, where he met with Syrian Arab leaders today on his brief President Anwar Sadat of Egypt on a marathon, one-day sweep scheduled to end in London.

Part of the talks in Damascus were attended by Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam.

"I briefed President Assad and Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam on what happened since we last met and particularly with respect to the meeting we had in Israel," Vance told reporters before boarding his white-and-blue special jet for the flight to Alexandria.

"We discussed these matters at length and I look forward to meet the (Syrian) foreign minister when he comes to the (U.N.) General Assembly in New York," Vance said. Khaddam and other Arab foreign ministers will be attending the next general assembly meeting and American officials said Vance hoped he would pursue his peace efforts in bilateral talks with them in New York.

In Tel Aviv, an official spokesman said after Vance's departure today that Israel is ready to go to the Geneva peace talks at any time and its refusal to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization is not a delaying tactic.

In his stop at Amman, official Jordanian sources said, agreement was reached to continue peace efforts during the U.N. General Assembly session in New York.

He will arrive in London tonight after a 7 1/2-hour workday. The five countries visited marked the most ever visited by a U.S. secretary of state.

Nearing the end of his 11-day trip, Vance said "wide, sharp differences" remained on some key issues between the Arabs and Israel, but he said there was general agreement the Geneva Middle East peace conference should be resumed.

U.S. and Israeli officials agreed after the talks that Vance's trip had not produced any specific agreement

'They'd just as soon forget it'

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Mr. Henry Ford II regrets he is unable to attend.

The celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Edsel, the ill-fated car named after his father, is one party the chairman of the Ford Motor Co. will skip.

"I guess there's still a bad taste in his mouth when the Edsel is mentioned," said Milton Carle, a member of the International Edsel Club.

Some 200 members of the group and more than 100 Edsel cars gathered today in the shadow of the Ford Motor Co. headquarters to commemorate the birth of the car. They are dedicated to preserving the memory of the auto that has become the all-time American flop.

"We tried to get some people from Ford to attend our three-day event, but they all said they were too busy," Carle said. "We picked Dearborn because... where else would we go?"

Ford built 110,847 Edsels from 1957 through 1959 until the company was forced to kill the car. Surprisingly enough, 109,534 of them were sold—

FOI delays PUCA decision

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Freedom of Information Commission has put off deciding whether the Public Utilities Control Authority should meet in public to discuss rate increase applications from major utility companies.

The commission Wednesday heard testimony from the PUCA member who said the meetings should be open to the public. But another member and an assistant attorney general said they should be private.

FOC members said they would withhold a decision until Aug. 24.

The commission last month issued a preliminary decision ordering the PUCA to open to the public certain of its hearings. The FOIC is now hearing more testimony before issuing its final decision.

PUCA member Thomas K. Standish Wednesday questioned whether PUCA members have the right to meet privately to consider major cases, such as those establishing new rates for the state's major power suppliers.

But PUCA member David Harrigan and Assistant Attorney General Marshall Collins told the commission executive sessions are sometimes necessary.

Standish, who has in the past been critical of PUCA policies, said "The entire spirit of the Freedom of Information Act will be undermined" if public agencies such as the PUCA are allowed broad discretion in calling private sessions.

"If an agency has an ulterior motive to go behind closed doors, and I'm not saying any agency does, it leads to abuse of the Freedom of In-

Hartford school board member arrested for stealing funds

HARTFORD (UPI) — State police officials today said they have arrested a member of the Hartford Board of Education and accused her of failing to turn over to the state $12,192 worth of receipts from sales of daily lottery tickets.

Maria Sanchez, operator of Maria's Newsstand in Hartford, was released on a written promise to appear by Common Pleas Court Judge William S. Ewing.

She was charged with first degree larceny.

Mrs. Sanchez, a leader in Hartford's Puerto Rican community, was licensed by the state gaming commission to operate a daily numbers game last spring. She was unavailable for comment.

Since getting a license, her store, in one of the city's poorest neighborhoods, has brought in a weekly average of $9,700, state records show. The volume makes her store the second busiest outlet for daily lottery tickets in the state.

Records show Mrs. Sanchez' commission as a state agent has averaged about $400 a week.

Morton Dinerstein, chief of security for the state Commission on Special Revenue, said Mrs. Sanchez failed on three occasions to turn over the gaming receipts since July 22.

Dinerstein said the commission went to her on several occasions

Police seek source of bogus bucks

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — Police today began a hunt for the producer of more than $100,000 in poorly printed counterfeit $10 bills fished from the city's harbor Wednesday.

The bills produced on white bond paper didn't even fool 11-year-old Gabriel Homer of Bridgeport.

The boy gave police 36 of the phony bills early Wednesday afternoon while detectives combed rocks above Long Island Sound for more of the funny money.

Police said some were printed only on one side and all had the same serial number.

Richard Thornton, a University Bridgeport professor, called police about 7 a.m. to report money was floating in the harbor. At the time of his call, his son Jeffrey, 20, was wading in the water retrieving bills.

Young Thornton, a sophomore at the University of Bridgeport, said he was driving his father to the railroad station when his father spotted bills floating in the water.

"I didn't think they were real," he said. "You just don't find money floating around in the water like that."

Thornton said he was "awed" when he saw the bills.

"Even if they were real we were going to take them to the police," he said, adding that he crossed his mind at first that the money might have come from a bank robbery and there would be a reward.

James McCully, special agent for the Secret Service, said part of the money was found in cardboard boxes floating in the harbor.

He said federal authorities began an investigation last week when 10 phony $10 bills were reported in the Bridgeport area.

McCully speculated that those responsible for the phony bills dumped them in Long Island Sound because "we put the heat on them very strongly."

He said authorities had 10 suspects in the case, but no arrests had been made.

Police knew of only one case where an attempt was made Wednesday to pass one of the bad bills.

"A drunk tried to cash a bill in a liquor store Wednesday morning," a detective said. "The drunk was not arrested, because he truly believed the bill was genuine."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

By Will Bernard

Unmarried and pregnant, Charlotte asked her doctor to arrange for an adoption. After the baby was born she completed all the legal formalities. Then, months later, she decided she had made a mistake. In a court hearing, Charlotte tried to have the adoption cancelled. Grounds: duress. "I was weak and depressed at the time I signed those papers," she explained. "Giving your consent in that mood should not count."

However, the court ruled that the adoption was valid. Calling Charlotte's mood normal under the circumstances, the court said people would become leery of adopting children if the procedure was too easy to revoke.

Social Security

Q. I haven't worked since I retired a year ago at 65. My Social Security check is $22 a month, which adds up to $2,700 a year. But if I return to work, how much do I earn before losing all my benefits?

A. If you work and earn over $3,000 a year for 1977, you will lose $1 of benefits for each $3 in earnings over $3,000. Assuming you would earn about the same each month, you could earn over $8,000 for the year before no benefits would be payable to you for that year. But no matter how much you earn for the year, you can get your full Social Security check for any month you neither earn as much as $250 nor do substantial work in your own business.

Q. I've worked very little since becoming blind in 1968. I thought of applying for Social Security disability benefits but heard I must have worked recently to be eligible. Is that true?

A. It's true for most disabled people, but blind people need only to have credit for a certain amount of work at any time in jobs covered by Social Security. The amount of work currently needed ranges from 1 1/2 to 6 1/2 years. Contact any Social Security office for more information.

Q. I applied for benefits on my wife's Social Security record a few years ago but was turned down because she didn't provide at least half of my support. Wasn't there a recent change in the law on this?

A. Earlier this year, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that husbands and widowers do not have to prove dependency in order to collect Social Security benefits on their wife's record. You should contact any Social Security office to see if you now qualify.

It is true that an adoption may be cancelled because of duress. But, out of concern for the adopting parents, courts are cautious about recognizing such a plea.

In another adoption case the mother claimed duress on the ground that her doctor, her clergyman, and her own mother had all urged her to give the baby up.

But again, the court said this was not enough to constitute duress in the eyes of the law. The court pointed out that at the time of the adoption, in juvenile court, the mother had been clearly informed that the decision was hers alone to make.

On the other hand the court did find duress in another case involving a young married couple. Here, a few days after the birth of their baby, the father told the mother that he had lost his job and was walking out on her.

In desperation, she decided on an immediate adoption. But this time a court decided later that these pressures — along with technical irregularities — were too serious to disregard. Revoking the adoption, the court said:

"The circumstances prevented her from exercising her own free will." A public service feature of the American Bar Association and the Connecticut Bar Association. ©1977 American Bar Association

Alert system needed

We all expect our public water supplies to be safe for us to use. We all are aware there can be times when the water can become contaminated, and when this happens we want to know about it and know about it fast.
The town is aware of this and has named a group to devise a warning system. The study comes in the wake of this week's water contamination in the southwest section of town and criticism by some area residents that the town relied too heavily on the news media to alert them to the possible danger.
Obviously, there is a need for a system that insures prompt and complete notification of the public in the area affected by water contamination.
The news media cannot do it alone, however, nor can any other system without exorbitant costs.
It would appear the problem might be solved by continuing to use the media, bringing in off duty firemen and policemen to start making door-to-door contact with residents and enlisting residents to do the same until everyone has been notified. A sticker could be used to inform persons not at home.
The overtime costs for a few firemen or policemen would be a small price to pay if it prevents the illness of just one water user who may not take a newspaper or listen to the news.

Blackmail insurance

Almost four years after the start of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, the federal government finally has begun to fill its strategic oil reserve, designed to insure the nation against any future embargo.
While the move should have been made long ago, it is still good news. Every barrel of oil that this country places in its storage program makes it that much better prepared to resist economic or political blackmail by the oil exporters.
The program got under way with 42,000 barrels of crude pumped into a salt mine near Lake Charles, La. More salt domes, which do not allow oil to seep out, will be filled along the Gulf Coast and elsewhere in the country.
Current plans call for 250 million barrels in storage by the end of 1978, 500 million in 1980 and one billion by 1985. The latter figure equals about one-half a year's supply of oil imports and would permit the U.S. economy to withstand a quite lengthy embargo.
And because the country soon will be in position to cope with an embargo or supply interruption, this makes such an occurrence less likely. In short, Washington is on the way to regaining control over its own diplomacy and will not have to be so deferential to the oil cartels in the Mideast and elsewhere.
Because the country is in the process of defusing the embargo threat, doesn't mean, however, that it is solving its energy crisis. It still is sending abroad more than $40 billion a year to pay for carter-priced imported crude.
This hemorrhage, which weakens the economy, will be slowed only when domestic oil production is increased. Unfortunately, the Carter administration insists on keeping crude oil under a complicated system of price controls and refuses to offer adequate incentives to expand supplies.

Mother wears army boots

One reason the volunteer Army may be resisting advice that it enlist more women to ah, round out its ranks is their high casualty rate - on the field of love, that is.
In 1975, about 5.4 per cent of women in the U.S. Army were pregnant, a study by the Army found, and of these 40 per cent left the service after giving birth.
On the average, every pregnancy carried to term causes at least 105 days of lost time from the job, says the report. This impairs military efficiency and causes "personal turbulence."
Pending results of a new study, however, the Army has decided to continue its policy of allowing pregnant GIs to remain in the service if they wish.

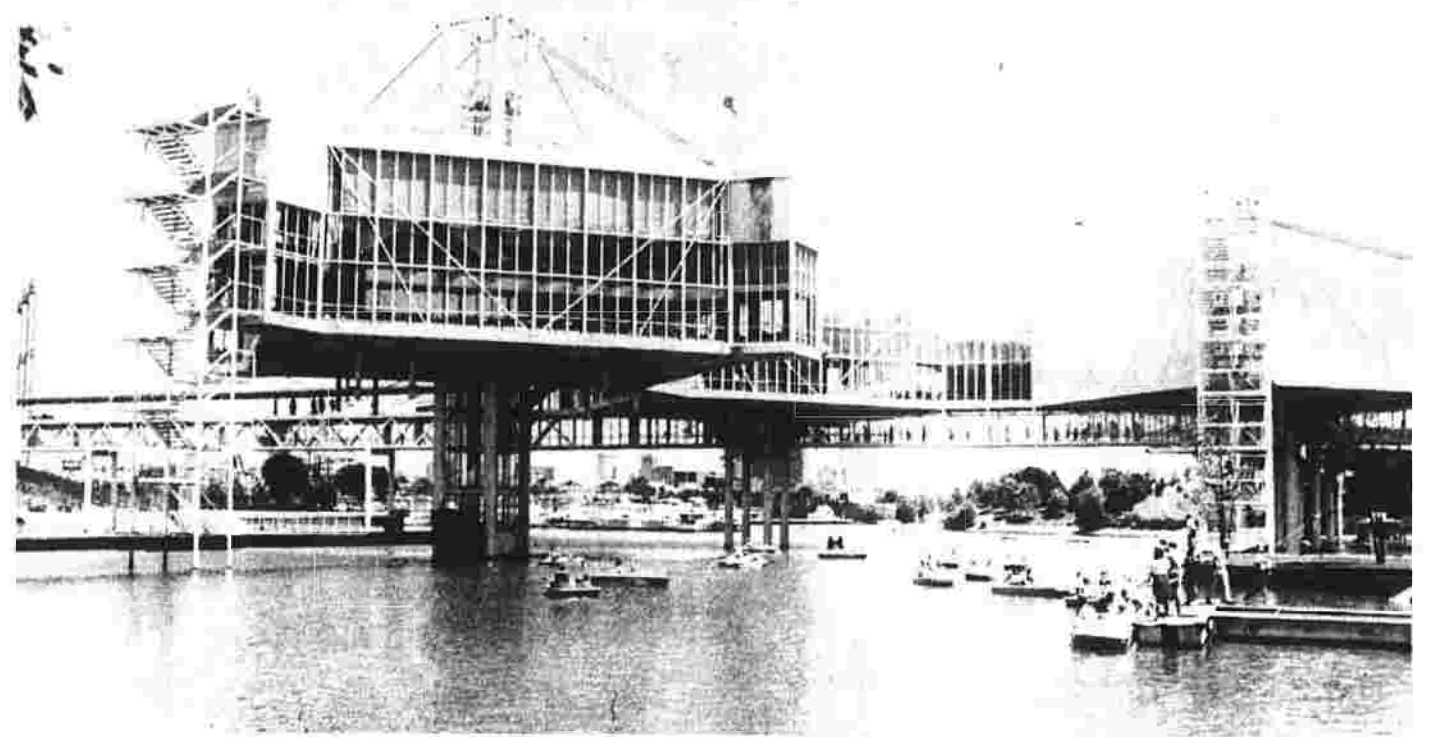

Thought

The world "salvation" is a Biblical term meaning "the saving of a man from the spiritual consequences of sin."
Acts 16:30 records the question put forth by the jailer at Philippi: "What must I do to be saved?" The Apostle Paul replied, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." This sincere man experienced personal salvation. He rejected, believing in God with all his house.
God's remedy today is the same.
"God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8)
The burden of sin and guilt resting upon any man, woman or child, can be lifted by the grace of God. The Lord Jesus Christ paid the price on Calvary's "old rugged cross." Salvation is of the Lord!

Private charities should fund abortions

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON - Using assorted phraseology, wordsmiths from Shakespeare to Hemingway have concluded that nothing is as cold as charity. The premise is central to the national debate over the use of government money to buy abortions for poor women.
In terms of dollars and cents, public funding of abortions is a bargain. A statistician at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the average Medicaid abortion costs only $150, whereas a welfare child costs the taxpayers some $2,000 a year.
Let pass for a moment the morality factor involved. After all, no President or Congress can legislate morality. Man is his brother's keeper only passively. He was never authorized to order the private lives of his brethren.
Statistics are chilling
So although the statistics are chilling, it is proper that they should be cited. Women who seek abortions do so because they want them; indeed in many cases an abortion is their choice.
Therefore, it is difficult to understand those who criticize President Carter for his stand on the issue. He said merely that the federal government should not be obliged to finance abortions except when woman's life is threatened or when the pregnancy was one-third of all pregnancies among black women. Almost one-third of all black pregnancies in '75 ended in abortion. These Americans don't need moralizing, they need compassion and help.
Time for private charity
Accordingly, the time seems to have come for private charity - cold or otherwise - to step in. Perhaps the big privately financed foundations like Ford and Rockefeller could cut back on their studies of Shakespeare and the giant snail and earmark some of their funds for abortions for the poor. Citizens around the country could establish abortion funds provided by those who wish to do more than debate the issue.
Whatever government does, the country will remain divided and angry. It's that kind of a problem.

Hot air inflates air bag conflict

WASHINGTON - There's an old saw to the effect that when you have a weak argument, just shout louder. If Ralph Nader wasn't originally the focus of his leading, he undoubtedly is one of its today's latter-day examples.
Take the current controversy over auto air bags, for example. Once you dismiss the arguments of such self-interested parties as car manufacturers and insurance companies, you still are left with very substantial arguments for and against this "passive restraint" safety system.
Single-minded champion
Entered the fray Mr. Nader, a single-minded champion of the air bag. In an article published in a local newspaper the other day, he attacks Pennsylvania Rep. Bud Shuster, a leading congressional opponent of air bags.
The GOP congressman, says Nader, is "straining these days to preserve the right of Americans to be killed on the highways."
Warning to his subject, Nader notes that 150 members of the House have gone on record with Shuster in opposition to a recent order by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams that all U.S. cars built after 1984 be equipped with passive restraint systems.
Confirmed opponents
"Most of Shuster's co-sponsors are confirmed opponents of the (1966) auto safety law," charges Nader. "Their metallic ideology applied to drugs would have taught laws preventing corporate enterprise from selling thalidomide to pregnant women." Ironically, Nader adds that auto companies are shying away from Shuster's because of his "extremism."
Secretary Adams' order, which becomes law unless disapproved by Congress by Oct. 10, theoretically could apply to some system other than air bags. But the other quite clearly has air bags in mind and, furthermore, was drafted by DOT's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, headed, not incidentally, by Joan Claybrook - a long-time Nader associate appointed by President Carter.
Explains opposition
Shuster, in an interview with Scripps League Newspapers, explained his opposition to air bags. First, in answer to the charge by Nader that he's a patsy for big business, Shuster flatly denied that such considerations in his district bear on his position. to proceed with the original plan to market some 400,000 air bag-equipped cars over the next several years to see if the safety systems work as hoped. Meantime, he would push the government to encourage wider use of safety belts.
Although it's a tough one to call, this writer tends to agree with Shuster that a stronger case for air bags is needed before Uncle Sam shoves them down our steering columns.

Earnings increase

CBT Corp., the holding company whose major subsidiary is the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., reports that income before securities gains and losses for the second quarter of 1977 was $2,407,000, or $1.28 per share, 9.4 per cent above the second quarter of 1976, when earnings reached $2,199,000, or $1.17 per share. For the first six months of 1977, earnings totaled $2.40 per share, an advance of 2.6 per cent over the $2.34 per share earned in first half of 1976. This encouraging improvement is due primarily to stronger loan demand and an improved loan-loss provision, a CBT spokesman said.

Potato seed balls, looking like green tomatoes, shown in the hand of Mrs. Cecile Jacques in her home garden at 348 Charter Oak St. They grew on vines of potatoes she planted. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

Until she came to Manchester three years ago, Mrs. Cecile Jacques had lived on a farm in the Canadian province of Quebec and had seen potatoes growing every summer of her life. She had never seen anything like the green "tomatoes," as they appeared to be, that grew on the potato vines in her Charter Oak St. garden. She told me about them.
They were not tomatoes, of course, and presently I recalled that I had heard of the same strange circumstance before. It was during World War II days when thousands of Connecticut families grew Victory Gardens. Some of the gardens included potatoes and some of the potatoes produced seed balls, which most of the gardeners had never seen.
My job then with the University of Connecticut Extension Service was to pass along information from the specialists, who knew about potato seed balls, to the home gardeners, who were likely to think that their potato vines were bearing small green tomatoes. The information went to newspapers and radio stations and I hope it was helpful.
We said then, and the information is unchanged today, that potato plants frequently produce seed, first noticed as hard, green balls the size of marbles, packed with unripe seeds. Given enough time on the vine, they would ripen and, if kept until spring, the seeds could be planted and produce seedling potato plants.
Varieties not known
Edmond Marrotte, who supplies information for home gardeners now for the Extension Service, said it is all true today but "the trouble is you wouldn't have any idea what kind of potatoes you might grow." An experimenter who hoped to find a new and improved variety of potatoes could start with seed, grow the seedlings to maturity and see how they turned out, then perhaps cross two of the best ones and keep on in this way, probably for years. He might get a better potato and he might not.
Mrs. Jacques planted potatoes the ordinary way by cutting some potatoes grown last year into pieces and planting the pieces in the garden. She did not have "seed potatoes," grown for the purpose. She planted potatoes purchased at a supermarket for the table and doesn't know what variety they were.
The clerk at the store probably would not know, either, although he might say they came from Maine, or Idaho or Florida. We do not ordinarily know what variety of potatoes we are buying.
The resemblance of the seed balls to green tomatoes is explained by a quick reference to the garden encyclopedia which says that the potato plant is a member of the Nightshade family and that the same family includes tomatoes. It is only confusing to read further that the family also includes pepper, eggplant, tobacco and petunia.
Garden on hillside
Mrs. Jacques lives on the second floor of a two-family house, the lower floor occupied by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamoureux, and their children. The garden is a joint venture for Mrs. Jacques and Mr. Lamoureux and it is on a rather steep slope since that is the way the land lies in their backyard. Mr. Lamoureux said it was hard digging by hand through wild raspberry brambles and roots. He means to get a rotary tiller for the job next year.
It is nice to be able to report that, for their efforts, they have had some strawberries from their own patch, lettuce and green beans and that they will have carrots, cucumbers, tomatillos, peppers, broccoli and cabbage. Danny Lamoureux, 5, planted pumpkins and three plants grew, but on the sloping ground two of them were washed away in a rainstorm. He has one pumpkin vine.

State reports 380,000 motorists drive uninsured vehicles in state

HARTFORD (UPI) — State officials say up to 380,000 Connecticut motorists — one out of every five — are illegally driving uninsured vehicles and they concede such violations are virtually impossible to stop.
A major reason for the large number of uninsured cars appears to be skyrocketing rates, officials say.
A number of other states have similar problems, including California where the number of uninsured motorists is estimated at three million.
When registering a vehicle in Connecticut, a motorist must state, on penalty of making a false statement, that he will keep insurance on it.
But John F. Mulcahy Jr., deputy state's attorney, said in a recent interview it is "virtually impossible" to prosecute such persons under the law.
"As a technical matter of criminal law it is impossible to convict a person just on the basis of an admission," said Mulcahy. He said independent proof is also needed.
To provide that evidence, officials would have to call each insurance company doing business in Connecticut and have it testify the motorist was not carrying coverage.
State police say that reason they will not normally arrest a motorist for driving without insurance unless they are asked to do so by the Department of Motor Vehicles.
The Department of Motor Vehicles estimates as many as 380,000 vehicles, or 20 per cent of the 1.9 million registered in the state, are not insured. The state Insurance Department is more conservative, saying only about 9 per cent of the vehicles are being operated without insurance.
But Carl Strauss, assistant director of the DMV, said only about 2,000 persons had their licenses suspended last year for driving without insurance. They were discovered through checks on accident reports, he said.
A solution to the problem would be to require drivers to submit proof they have insurance, but that idea has been previously cost of administering the rejected because of the program.

Obituaries Cemetery workers strike continues

Mrs. Jane Duncan
Mrs. Jane McCourt Duncan, 76, of West Hartford, formerly of Manchester, died Wednesday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, Hartford.

Mrs. Duncan was born in Manchester and had lived in West Hartford for more than 18 years. Before retiring in 1956, she was employed in the state auditor's office for 28 years. She was a communicant of St. Bridgid's Church, West Hartford.

She is survived by a daughter, Joan Auster, of West Hartford; and a sister, Edna McCourt of Hartford. The funeral is Friday at 9:30 a.m. from the Richard W. Sheehan Funeral Home, 1084 New Britain Ave., West Hartford, with a Mass at St. Bridgid's Church at 9. Burial will be in Rose Hill Memorial Park, Rocky Hill.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9.

Manchester funeral directors who are holding bodies in their facilities awaiting burial in Catholic cemeteries are wondering when the gravediggers strike will be settled. The strike started July 15 when 85 cemetery workers including gravediggers represented by Local 14323, United Steelworkers of America, walked off their jobs in the Catholic Cemeteries Association (CCA) cemeteries.

Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., is having vaults delivered today for the three bodies it is now holding. Arthur Holmes said the vaults will be sealed and held for burial. The John F. Tierney Funeral Home at 219 W. Center St. also is holding three bodies, but does not believe that such measures are necessary, Tierney said.

Manchester police report

Hilling Junior High School was entered Wednesday, but nothing is missing, according to Manchester Police.

A window at the school was broken and entrance was made, but no further damage or theft has been found, police said.

Police are investigating two separate incidents of missing money reported at Gasland, 391 Main St. A total of $582 was taken from a safe in the building. The entrance to the office was gained by use of a key, police said.

Also, the business reported that a bank deposit of $486.75 was never made, police said.

A theft of a motor from a piece of equipment was reported from in front of the Agway Store, 540 New State St.

The funeral is Saturday at 10:15 a.m. from Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester, with a Mass at St. Bridgid Church, Manchester, at 11. Burial will be in St. Bridgid Cemetery, Manchester. Friends may call at the funeral home Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The family suggests that any memorial gifts may be made to the Leukemia Society of America, 44 State St., Hartford.

Driver killed

NEW CANAAN (UPI) — Police say Herman Zuckerman, 53, of Westport was killed Wednesday afternoon when his car went out of control during a rainstorm and struck a tree on the Merritt Parkway.

Poll doesn't impress three GOP hopefuls

HARTFORD (UPI) — A poll putting two potential Republican gubernatorial candidates almost even with Democratic Gov. Ella T. Grasso doesn't impress three other GOP hopefuls who have made clear their intention to enter the race.

Senate Minority Leader Lewis B. Rome of Bloomfield, House Minority Leader Gerald F. Stevens of Milford and Sen. George Gunther of Stratford said in recent interviews the poll did not discourage them.

The poll was recently leaked to the press and reported by former state Environmental Commissioner Dan Lufkin and Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn., who almost even with Mrs. Grasso, who has said she will seek re-election.

However, no figures were released. The poll, done by a professional firm, was apparently financed by Lufkin. Gunther, a maverick who is given almost no chance of winning the nomination, is the only declared candidate.

However, Stevens and Rome have set up campaign committees and make no secret their formal announcements are on the way.

Neither Lufkin nor Sarasin have been definitive on their plans, but both concede they are considering making the run.

Rome had no formal comment on the poll, but indicated he was not impressed by the results. Stevens, who is already campaigning six nights a week for the nomination, said he is not at all worried.

The only poll that counts is the one taken on election day, he said.

Gunther brushed off the poll and said if Lufkin and Sarasin are interested they should get into the race instead of sitting on the sidelines.

Stevens, Rome and Gunther were reportedly ignored for the purposes of the poll, while Sarasin and Lufkin were each matched against Grasso in a head-to-head race.

Federal grant to fund nutrition workshop

A federal grant is providing for a special nutrition program at Manchester Community College.

Three workshops for Title VII (nutrition program) staff and advisory council members began today as a cooperative venture of the Community Services Division of the college, the Connecticut Department on Aging and the New England Dairy Council.

The cost of the workshops will be paid by a federal grant which the college received through the Department on Aging.

Local persons attending the sessions are VISTA volunteers, representatives of the Manchester Human Services Department, Diane Wick, who is the outreach worker for the elderly in Manchester, and nutritionists on the Community Renewal Team who work with the meals served at Manchester's elderly housing units. There are about 25 persons enrolled in the workshops.

Subjects to be covered are issues on aging, ways of communicating effectively with elderly people and teaching nutrition with a focus on values.

The Connecticut Funeral Directors Association, counting 275 bodies unburied because of the strike, today will ask state Health Commissioner Douglas S. Lloyd to consider ordering the bodies buried.

Today representatives of the CCA, representing 25 cemeteries owned by the Archdiocese of Hartford, and Local 14323 are meeting at the Holiday Inn in Windsor in an effort to settle the strike.

Donald Kania of Windsor Locks, president of the funeral directors' group, said the 275 bodies are not a health hazard because they are all embalmed and in sealed caskets.

"But we could have a health problem, especially if a body had been damaged, before being brought to a funeral home," Kania said. The body of a drowning victim would be damaged if it was in the water a long time," he said. "This is one of the items I will point out in my letter to the health commissioner," he said.

Richard Meagher, executive director of the cemeteries association, said if a family insisted, management employees of a cemetery would prepare a grave for burial. He said he knew of no funeral cortege being blocked from entering a cemetery by pickets.

Even though management employees will prepare the graves, the employees of vault firms will not cross the picket lines to deliver vaults. The CCA management is now offering concrete burial vaults for use in their cemeteries, but "they are of exceeding low quality and many are literally falling apart," Paul Ford of Manchester, vice-president of the Local 14323, told The Herald Wednesday.

Holmes and Tierney agree that the concrete vaults being offered by the association are of poor quality and are not weather sealed, offering no protection against such environmental considerations as water damage to the coffins.

Some funeral directors in various towns in the Hartford area believe that the association is using the strike to further its own vault business.

Local families who are reluctant to use these vaults are either having contact comes up for negotiation," Ford said.

Ferguson is awarded arts grant

James Ferguson, associate professor of English at Quinnipiac College, has been awarded a $1,000 grant from the Connecticut Commission on the Arts.

Ferguson, a Yale University graduate and a native of Manchester, earned a master's degree from the University of Connecticut and a master of fine arts degree from the University of Massachusetts. He joined the Quinnipiac faculty in 1966 and also teaches a course at Quinnipiac's Madison Extension.

The grant, one of several made by the commission and designed to assist Connecticut artists and writers, will assist Ferguson with a philosophical novel set in France during World War II. The work centers on a young man in the French resistance and investigates his attitudes towards acts of terrorism.

Ferguson presently resides in Killingworth.

Rec agency to handle band shell use requests
The town Recreation Department will serve as a clearing house for all requests to use Manchester's Bicentennial Band Shell.

Mel Siebold, director of the Recreation Department, and Dr. Herbert Handley, dean of administration at Manchester Community College, were named to coordinate the applications for use of the shell. Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the band shell should be a facility for everyone to use as easily as possible and at a minimal cost.

Kennedy prepares list of school budget cuts

Dr. James Kennedy, superintendent of schools, has prepared a list of steps that the Board of Education might take to obtain the 2 1/2 per cent contingency budget cut that Town Manager Robert Weiss has recommended for all departments.

The recommended steps, which will be reviewed by the board, are:

• Freeze textbook, supply and equipment budgets for all departments and schools at the presently authorized 80 per cent level.

• Postpone hiring for vacancies, except for classroom positions, pending position-by-position approval from the Board of Education. He also recommends postponing the hiring of some CETA positions that will require expensive supply or material purchases.

• Postpone all capital expenditure projects that have not been started or approved by an emergency nature. This includes exterior work at Bowers School, lighting work at Verplanck School and plumbing and heating work at Bennet.

Kennedy said that these steps might not generate all of the $267,687 cut that would represent 2 1/2 per cent.

"Our options are very few. There isn't much in the budget that isn't obligated," he said.

He also requested that the town administration keep the school officials accurately informed of developments concerning a possible deficit.

Rockville factory could become housing

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The U.S. Envelope property on W. Main St., Rockville, is being eyed by the Barkan Development Corp. of Chestnut Hill, Mass., for conversion to housing for the elderly.

Mayor Benoit said, "Ideally an industrial firm with 200-plus jobs replacing the envelope operation could be found."

He added, however, that from a practical standpoint, "All the economic experts indicated that industrial uses for a four-story mill building were very limited."

Benoit said town officials see the proposed project as meeting the need for elderly housing. He said there are 300 names on the town's waiting list.

The envelope factory started business in Rockville in 1800s. Mayor Benoit said town officials believe the Barkan Corporation, "with its proven track record in this type of project," can produce a product which will be of benefit to the town and especially its elderly residents.

Development. He said they will also explore the possibility of improving the remainder of W. Main St. Cooperation of the Planning, Zoning and Conservation Commissions will be needed to insure that the project will be designed in the best possible manner for future tenants as well as the impact on the Rockville section and the entire town, he said.

Health unit OKs hospital's plans

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The proposed $2.1 million expansion plan for Rockville General Hospital received the backing of the Subarea E Council Wednesday night with a recommendation to the review panel of the North Central Regional Health Systems Agency (HSA) that it be approved.

This would be housed in a portion of the emergency department and would be initiated after the opening of the new wing and after the volume increases to 27,000 visits per year.

The purpose will be to handle physical conditions which require the care of a doctor or other trained medical personnel but not emergency services. Hospital officials said the service would provide care for non-crisis patients for less than the cost of emergency room visits.

A $3.1 million expansion plan, the first to be presented, was turned down by the commission, as was the $1.8 million plan. The commission, asked for a study to see if it would be more feasible to merge Rockville Hospital's pediatrics department with that of Manchester Memorial Hospital. This met with strong opposition.

It was feared that pediatricians would move away and it would be difficult to attract more and difficult to attract general family practitioners. Although, the hospital hasn't been ordered to move pediatrics out of the wooden building, officials expect this order soon.

Boardman said hospital statistics show that while there is a steady increase in admissions in pediatrics, there is a slight decrease in patient days. Because of this, the hospital is proposing that the pediatrics unit be reduced from 15 to 9 beds.

Plans also call for expansion of the emergency outpatient department. Boardman said pediatrics is the last remaining inpatient service that is housed in the Maxwell Building, which had been a private estate until donated for use as a hospital. It was built in the early 1900s.

Boardman said there are no plans to tear down the Maxwell Building, but it may have to be replaced sometime. He said it can be used for such things as doctor's offices.

Financing for the proposed new wing. He said the major portion of the cost will be covered by a capital gifts campaign which will start in the fall. It is expected that $300,000 will be raised. This will be the hospital's first fund drive.

Gifts totaling $175,000 have already been received and like amount has been pledged. The hospital has available income from endowment funds totaling $200,000 and $300,000 from a funded depreciation account. A long-term loan of $300,000 will be taken from a local bank and this will be reduced if the fund drive raises more than expected.

The proposed plan to add the new wing for pediatrics has already received informal approval from F. Bernard Forand, executive director of the state commission. He said the volume of the emergency department makes it feasible.

Nothing to it! Look at me - there's nothing to mastering a skateboard. Well, nothing until you start to move. Patrick Finn, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finn of Foster St. Ext., South Windsor, believes that if at first you don't succeed, try again. Maybe he'll have the board mastered by the time school reopens. (Herald photos by Kuehn)

City water could solve problems

South Windsor
The Town of South Windsor is considering installing city water in the Rosemary Lane area to alleviate ground water contamination.

The project could cost $40,000 to $70,000. Town Manager Paul Talbot said lines would be installed from Lake St. to Deria Lane, through an easement to Rosemary Lane.

The estimated cost of the project is $20 per foot. The city water consideration was precipitated by a petition presented to Talbot after two area residents had discovered pollution in their wells.

A well owned by Leon Bloom, 72 Town Hall. CETA funding is for one year and is based in part on the town's unemployment rate. South Windsor's jobs rate was seven per cent from January through March.

HRC leader says Blackstone lies

East Hartford
"The people he's lying to are those people who will not get the money," said Mrs. Marcella Fahey of the East Hartford Human Relations Commission (HRC) Wednesday night.

She was referring to Mayor Richard Blackstone's stand on the Community Development Act applications. East Hartford has applied for the CDA funds of $440,000 earmarked for the town in the last three years.

Every town has to use the same formula to get the figure," said Hans DePold, HRC chairman. "HUD (federal Department of Housing and Urban Development) can't allow one town to make up its own figures."

The figure in question is called "expected to reside." It means the number of low income families expected to reside in town in the next year. In the last rejected application, Mayor Blackstone found a figure of 374. By HUD's formula, it should have been 928.

Budding star

For now, it won't be recognized as a recruiting coup. In the long run, however, it might appear Eastern Connecticut State College baseball coach Bill Holway landed a prize catch in recruit Manchester High graduate Ray Gliha.

The muscularly built outfielder showed tons of promise as a sophomore. But the natural tools didn't mature and the year was all but wasted. The 1976 season saw the over-rimmed bespectacled Gliha close with a rush, signs of what was to come in the future.

This past year Gliha led the Indians in batting with a .32 average on 26 hits. The campaign included a 14-game batting tear. Not only was he feared offensively but defensively opponents didn't run on him from his centerfield post. His rifle-like throws earned the respect of all on the opposite side.

To further enhance his credentials, Gliha just completed a five year stint with the Manchester American Legion club. He slugged eight homers to pace the Post 102 entry and you could see worried expressions by many a third baseman when he stepped to the plate. Gliha constantly hit the ball hard.

Once a drive ricocheted off the pitcher's leg setting in medium deep leftfield. Another liner was socked so hard it literally tore the second baseman's mitt off his hand. That ball, incidentally, was scored as an error.

Gliha's defensive prowess also became exemplary. In the next-to-last game of the summer season he turned in what Legion Coach Jack Holik calls, "The best catch I have ever seen."

"With no outs and runners on first and second, Jack Merrick (of Stafford) hit a shot to centerfield," Holik's story begins. "Gliha turned his back to the plate and took off. He ran about 40 yards, looked back to find the ball, and then looked down and took off putting it in fourth gear."

"He caught the ball on a dead run over his head with his back to the plate, some 45 feet from home. He took one additional step, stopped and fired a strike to (outfield man) Jeff Backen hitting him right in the chest. Backen relayed to (Howie) Furlong at second for the second out who relayed to (first baseman his surprise, they were found to be illegal.

"I was surprised, really I was," said the 26-year-old former Stanford star who has won six titles this year.

"Obviously, I couldn't play with the clubs even though they are the same ones I won my two majors with this year."

Watson, Ray Floyd, Gary Player, Gene Lister and George Burns all use clubs made by the same manufacturer. Burns found out last week in the Hartford Op - his were illegal and Watson, Player and Floyd learned the same thing on Wednesday.

Littler's clubs, though, were declared legal by Clyde Mangrum, assistant tournament director for the PGA.

Club controversy replaced the weather as the main topic of concern in the 14-man field, going off at 7 a.m. today, prepared for the fourth and final major of the year.

"Not since Ben Hogan took the Masters, British Open and U.S. Open in 1953 has any player, including Jack Nicklaus, won three majors in the same year."

"I'm going to play the course and not any one individual," said Watson. "I think any time you get a chance to play Pebble Beach you should enjoy it.

'Series' fever in Beantown

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "spirit of '75" has been rekindled in Boston by a Bernie Carbo pinch-hit home run. Carbo delivered Wednesday night to help the American League East-leading Red Sox score their 11th straight victory, a wild 11-10 decision over the California Angels.

Trailing, 10-8, in the eighth inning, Dwight Evans singled for Red Sox and Carbo, pinch hitting for Steve Dillard, hit an opposite-field homer over the left-field wall to tie the score.

Tanner wins, may be loser also

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manager Chuck Tanner didn't know whether to laugh or cry over the Pittsburgh Pirates' marathon 18-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

He was happy the Pirates outlasted the Cubs in Wednesday night's four-hour and 56-minute, 2-1 triumph, but fearful slugger Al Oliver could be suspended for an incident involving umpire Bruce Froemming.

Oliver was ejected in the second inning when Froemming upheld a protest that he had failed to touch first base while running out an apparent double. Oliver charged Froemming so hard that he knocked Coach Al Monahan into the umpire.

The Pirates finally won the game when pinch hitter Ed Ott delivered a sacrifice fly with the bases filled in the bottom of the 18th, and Tanner could joke about that.

"I wanted to put Ott in with one out and the bases filled in the 18th inning because I understand the concessions needed the money," he said. "I didn't have a spot to use him before that."

Bolton corps wins in state

The Quarryville Junior Ancient Fife and Drum Corps of Bolton took three top prizes in state competition for members of the Connecticut Fifers and Drummers Association in Newington last weekend.

The Bolton corps won the state championship for appearance in the junior ancient class. It competed against 12 other groups.

The color guard of the corps won the state championship in the junior ancient class. It competed against 12 other color guards.

During Saturday's competition, the color guard carried a regulation flag made by Beth Campbell. Staying with the colors of the corps, it had a large gold "Q" (for Quarryville) against a black background.

Mrs. Campbell also made a regimental flag for her son, Sean. He acts as mascot for the corps during parades and practices.

Making up of the life line are Lisa Spotto, Laura Spotto, Shelly Charboneau, Mike Greenleaf, Jennifer Warner, Carmelle Bolduc, Sue Hiller, Marilyn Levine and Patty Sobol.

Suare drummers for the corps are Scott Duchesneau, Cindy Charboneau and Jed Higgins. The base drummer is Dennis McKenna.

The corps now has 36 members. They practice each Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the United Methodist Church. Beginning in September, the corps will practice at Bolton Elementary School from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The corps is directed by William Smith of Vernon. He is assisted by Kenneth Carey, also of Vernon.

Instructors for the corps are Frank Spotto, color guard; MaryEllen Greenleaf, fife; Henry O'Connell, beginner fife; Mark O'Connell, snare drum; and Sebastian Garcia, base drum.

Barbara Spotto, secretary-treasurer of the corps, said it costs about $3,000 per year to "keep the kids on the road."

She said the corps earned money by parading, bake and plant sales and an annual booster drive. Donors of this year's drive, which will be held in October, will receive a booster button.

Anyone seeking information about the corps should contact Mrs. Spotto, 643-2823.

"New members are always welcome," she said.

This Saturday, the corps will participate in a firemen's parade in Broad Brook.

On Aug. 21, the corps will compete against members of the Massachusetts Fifers, Drummers and Bugle Association at Mt. Holyoke College.

Poison ivy is invading

Secretary Roberta Wilmut reported that commercial sprays to kill the ivy were available for $13 a gallon and up. However, she noted that 40 to 80 gallons per acre were needed and that annual spraying had to be done.

Mrs. Wilmut said the rocks at Laticke Beach cannot be removed now because of the high level of the lake. She promised to keep after Town Manager Frank Connolly about the problem.

Roberto said the ballfield at Laidlaw needed work and that the Jaycees would undertake the project.

Commissioner Anthony Roberto added that the Jaycees had been unable to develop a parking lot at Laidlaw because of the heavy ivy infestation.

"Grass is needed," he said, "and a drain, and we have to develop a nature trail."

Ayer said he did not think many people would apply for the position of part-time recreation director. The commission had asked for $12,000 for a full-time person, but the Town Council authorized only $3,000 for a part-time position.

Mrs. Wilmut said she asked Connolly to draw up a job description for the post, which must provide equal opportunity. Ayer hoped that someone could be hired by the fall to run a soccer program for boys and girls aged 8 to 14.

School signups set

Coventry Arnold Elman, Coventry school superintendent, has set Aug. 25 and 26 as the dates for registration of pupils not previously in the town's schools.

Elman asked parents to call the school their child will attend to make arrangements for an appointment. They must bring with them all health and scholastic records and a copy of the child's birth certificate.

The phone numbers for the schools are Robertson School, 742-7346; Grammar School, 742-7311; Capt. Nathan Hale School, 742-7334, and Coventry High School, 742-6383.

Residents want foot patrolman

By SHEILA TULLER
Herald Correspondent

"We want the foot patrolman back," was the banner cry of most of the 30 residents, mostly old-time homeowners, who gathered Wednesday night at Wickham Library to organize the Burnside Center Citizens Action Group.

To get the feet of the group, acting chairman Patricia Pelletier of Daniel St. asked each person to air their complaints.

Traffic, noise, loitering youths and littering were the main gripes of those present.

Dot Bardin of Larrabee St. told the group they could solve many of the problems as individuals.

"Just call the proper authority," she said. "I'm a chronic complainer but if you speak nicely you'll get services."

Mrs. Bardin asked the group's opinion on alternating one-way streets in the area, except School St. Most agreed it would be one method to alleviate traffic problems.

Set Yergatan of Daniel St. said, "I'm not one to sit back. I went to the authorities. The Health Department was the one that helped me out."

Yergatan's complaints concerned littering in the rear of apartments on Burnside Ave. at Daniel St.

Other residents echoed Yergatan's complaint. Mrs. Ann Cataldi of Moore Ave. said, "Our street was always a clean street and we want to keep it that way."

In answer to a School St. resident who complained about round-the-clock noise and mess at the recycling bins at the Police Department, Hugh Clancy of Wind Rd. suggested moving the glass bins to Ecology Dr. (the town dump).

Clancy also said many of the area problems started when the foot patrolman was taken off the beat three years ago. Clancy remembers a policeman on the Burnside Ave. beat for 45 years.

"When a patrolman walked the beat, he knew the people. He saw

Hugh Clancy, retired policeman, signs in at Wednesday night meeting of Burnside Center residents.

"They will go house-to-house throughout town to do a survey of all dogs which are over six months old but have not yet been licensed. Owners of unlicensed dogs are subject to arrest and fine, Prandini said. State statute requires all dogs to be licensed. Owners can get the licenses at the Town Clerk's office in the Town Hall.

Officials split over ambulance choice

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

"I don't want to get into the politics of East Hartford," said Roger Talbot, president of Ambulance Service of Manchester Inc.

"All I want to do is run a good ambulance service," he said Wednesday.

Talbot's firm is designated the prime ambulance service for East Hartford by the state Health Department. The state so notified the town and Talbot at the end of July.

The designation means when the town police or fire department calls an ambulance, it must be Talbot's. Right now the town is still using a rotation system which includes the services of Talbot, Professional Ambulance Service owned by Harvey

Kagan, and Trinity Ambulance of Hartford which has an office at 1561 Main St., East Hartford.

Mayor Richard Blackstone has said he wants to continue using the rotation system. He has said it protects the town from being "sold short" by a single service.

The mayor said this week he is reviewing the services of the three firms. Also, he is reviewing the possibility of splitting the town into three zones, one firm to cover each.

Joshiah Lessner, the attorney for Talbot's firm, said Wednesday, "The state regulations say the town must use the designated ambulance. No other town has rotation."

"We don't want to get caught in the middle of a political battle in East Hartford," Lessner said.

Both Talbot and Lessner referred to the history of the designation. Last summer, the North Central Emergency Medical Services Council told the mayor he had to designate one ambulance service.

Mayor Blackstone argued for the rotation system. He refused then to consider the zone system. Finally, and with stated reluctance, he chose Talbot's firm.

Due to internal problems and changes in leadership at the state levels of emergency medical service, nothing was done about the designation until this July. Besides the notice from the state Health Department, nothing has been done yet.

Talbot said he and Lessner have been studying land in East Hartford for purchase or lease. If the disputes over designation are settled, he plans to set up an ambulance center in town and buy a new ambulance at a total cost of about $30,000.

"We are ready to do it," said Lessner. "But we must know we got it."

"I find this incredible."

The mayor has said his main motivation has been the best ambulance service for East Hartford. Mrs. Esther Clarke, leader of the Republican minority on the Town Council and a founder of East Hartford's paramedics program, said today it is not a political issue despite the fall elections.

"My opinion is that the mayor is being asked to comply with a law he doesn't agree with. He just can't take being regulated," she said.

"I find this ironic because he is always trying to regulate everything and everyone else in town."

She noted all concerned people in town agreed with the mayor's choice of Talbot's firm last year. Each did so after their own reviews. The Emergency Medical Services Commission was among those approving. "The other services are operating here illegally," Mrs. Clarke said. "If something goes wrong, Roger Talbot will bear the brunt of the responsibility."

"This has never happened before. No mayor has refused the designation. It doesn't make any sense."

"Roger has legal recourse against the town," she said.

Talbot said one of his competitors has been calling him about the East Hartford service. The man told him he is working to prevent Talbot from getting the contract.

The man told Talbot, "Now that Odessa Terry is out of the way, you won't get it," said Talbot.

Mrs. Terry was a Democrat and a leader with Mrs. Clarke and others behind the paramedics program. She also strongly favored Talbot's service for East Hartford. She died last winter.

Three wet 'brothers' Friends so close they call themselves brothers are these three young men of East Hartford who just climbed out of the pool (separately) at McAuliffe Park. They are, left to right, Fred Seeley, 19, of 140 Michael Ave., Larry Komarenko, 18, and Alberto Rivero, 18, both of 101 Plain Dr. The three played on the East Hartford High School football team, the Hornets, which was the state's Class L champs in 1976. The pool was open late due to the day's heat—a policy of the town. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Worker hurts thumb

Giuseppe Russo, 35, of 11 Bay Path Dr., East Hartford is this morning in Hartford Hospital with a badly mangled thumb.

Russo was working on a payloader Wednesday about 1:11 p.m. at the Board of Education maintenance garage at 14 George St. Suddenly he caught his thumb in the machine's universal joint. At the same time the loader was descending on his head, said Deputy Chief Francis Dagon of the fire department.

The loader was kept off him as Rescue 1 and Engine 1 both rushed to the scene.

Fire fighters used the department's new Hurst tool to pry the metal apart around Russo's thumb.

Once freed, he was taken to the hospital. A hospital spokesman said today Russo still has his thumb and is in good condition.

Howard allegedly tried with a car to drive another car, containing an ex-girlfriend, off the road, police said.

Rockville factory could become housing

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The U.S. Envelop property on W. Main St., Rockville, is being eyed by the Barkan Development Corp. of Chestnut Hill, Mass., for conversion to housing for the elderly.

The announcement was made at a press conference by Vernon Mayor Thomas Benoit this morning.

The envelope company closed its operations in Rockville last summer and since then the building has been for sale.

Mayor Benoit said, "Ideally an industrial firm with 200-plus jobs replacing the envelope operation could have been found."

He added, however, that from a practical standpoint, "All the economic experts indicated that industrial uses for a four-story mill building were very limited."

He said of more than a dozen potential buyers who showed an interest in the property, all were interested in residential conversion.

The envelope factory started business in Rockville in 1906.

Mayor Benoit said town officials believe the Barkan Corporation, "with its proven track record in this type of project," can produce a product which will be of benefit to the town and especially its elderly residents.

Benoit said town officials see the proposed project as meeting the need for elderly housing. He said there are 300 names on the town's waiting list. The Housing Authority is adding 30 units to the Grove St. project and a privately developed project is to start soon in Talcoville. He said with these and the proposed renovation of the envelope factory, the town should be able to meet the needs with a wide range of housing choices.

He said many elderly persons now live in housing which they find too large for their needs or too difficult to maintain. He said if these people move into one of the housing projects, then other housing will become available for another group needing housing, the young families just getting started in buying their first home or renting an apartment.

The mayor said the proposed project could serve as a catalyst for continued revitalization of the Rockville section of Vernon. He also said the renovation would mean a sizable increase in the Grand List.

The mayor admitted that the idea will not be easy to implement. He cited as the largest hurdle the financing for construction and rent subsidies for future tenants.

He said Congressman Christopher Dodd and state senators and representatives have been asked to assist in any way possible.

Funding will be sought from either or both the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority or the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

He said they will also explore the possibility of improving the remainder of W. Main St. Cooperation of the Planning, Zoning and Conservation Commissions will be needed to insure that the project will be designed in the best possible manner for future tenants as well as the impact on the Rockville section and the entire town, he said.

He said elderly-oriented groups will be contacted soon to get their suggestions and support for the project.

Health unit OKs hospital's plans

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The proposed $2.1 million expansion plan for Rockville General Hospital received the backing of the Subarea E Council Wednesday night with a recommendation to the review panel of the North Central Regional Health Systems Agency (HSA) that it be approved.

The latest plans were outlined by Robert Boardman, hospital administrator, at a public hearing of the HSA and the council.

Unlike plans presented last May which would have cost $1.8 million, this plan calls for a new pediatrics department to move the existing one out of the old Maxwell Building.

The cost of including the pediatrics will be about $300,000 which is figured in the $2.1 million.

Plans also call for expansion of the emergency/outpatient department. Boardman said pediatrics is the last remaining inpatient service that is housed in the Maxwell Building, which had been a private estate until donated for use as a hospital. It was built in the early 1900s.

Boardman said hospital statistics show that while there is a steady increase in admissions in pediatrics, there is a slight decrease in patient days. Because of this, the hospital is proposing that the pediatrics unit be reduced from 15 to 9 beds.

Most of the emergency and outpatient department is also in the Maxwell Building, along with the renal dialysis unit, inhalation therapy and related departments. They are on the third floor.

The HSA now has to turn the plans over to the Connecticut Commission on Hospitals and Health Care for its review and approval. The commission probably won't act until October, which would mean construction would start next April at the earliest and be completed in fall of 1979 at best.

The review panel asked several questions of hospital officials but didn't voice any objections to the proposal Wednesday night.

In the application to the state commission, hospital officials said they propose to provide a primary care service when the volume of the emergency department makes it feasible.

This would be housed in a portion of the emergency department and would be initiated after the opening of the new wing and after the volume increases to 27,000 visits per year.

The purpose will be to handle physical conditions which require the care of a doctor or other trained medical personnel but not emergency services. Hospital officials said the service would provide care for non-crisis patients for less than the cost of emergency room visits.

A $3.1 million expansion plan, the first to be presented, was turned down by the commission, as was the $1.8 million plan. The commission asked for a study to see if it would be more feasible to merge Rockville Hospital's pediatrics department with that of Manchester Memorial Hospital. This met with strong opposition.

It was feared that pediatricians would move away and it would be difficult to attract more and difficult to attract general family practitioners. Although, the hospital hasn't been ordered to move pediatrics out of the wooden building, officials expect this order soon.

Boardman said there are no plans to tear down the Maxwell Building, but it may have to be replaced sometime. He said it can be used for such uses as doctor's offices.

Boardman listed several sources of financing for the proposed new wing. He said the major portion of the cost will be covered by a capital gifts campaign which will start in the fall. It is expected that $900,000 will be raised. This will be the hospital's first fund drive.

Gifts totaling $175,000 have already been received and like amount has been pledged.

The hospital has available income from endowment funds totaling $200,000 and $300,000 from a funded depreciation account. A long-term loan of $300,000 will be taken from a local bank and this will be repaid if the fund drive raises more than expected.

The proposed plan to add the new wing for pediatrics has already received informal approval from P. Bernard Forand, executive director of the state commission.

The architect hasn't finalized plans but will after approval is received.

City water could solve problems

South Windsor

The Town of South Windsor is considering installing city water in the Rosemary Lane area to alleviate ground water contamination.

The project could cost $400,000 to $76,000. Town Manager Paul Talbot said lines would be installed from Lake St. to Doria Lane, through an extension to Rosemary Lane.

The estimated cost of the project is $20 per foot.

The city water consideration was precipitated by a petition presented to Talbot after two area residents had discovered pollution in their wells.

A well owned by Leon Bloom, 72

Rosemary Lane, has had some sewer contamination. Town officials believe the sewage is the result of a leaking pipe which leads from the street sewer line to the house.

The sewer lateral must be thoroughly examined before the problem can be identified for sure.

The Bloom family has been unable to use its well water since the beginning of July.

Public Works Director Allan Young said residents could petition the Connecticut Water Co. about the sewage problem. The company would then make a decision on the water line installation and residents would be assessed for the cost of the project.

CETA application

Town Manager Paul Talbot has announced he is preparing applications for 32 more federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) positions.

South Windsor now has five CETA employees.

Under one phase of the program, Talbot is applying for eight positions to include maintenance workers.

The remaining 24 positions will come under a second CETA phase dealing with specific projects.

The project will include painting and maintenance work on public buildings, including schools and the

Motorcycle safety

The course, open to all South Windsor students who have a driver's license, consists of classroom and road instruction. The course fee is $10.

Interested students should contact the high school office, 644-1955, by Aug. 29.

HRC leader says Blackstone lies

East Hartford

"The people he's lying to are those people who will not get the money," said Mrs. Marcella Fahey of the East Hartford Human Relations Commission (HRC) Wednesday night.

She was referring to Mayor Richard Blackstone's stand on the Community Development Act applications. East Hartford has applied for the CDA funds of $400,000 earmarked for the town in the last three years. Each year the town has been denied the funds on the basis of one figure on the applications.

"Every town has to use the same formula (to get the figure)," said Hans DePold, HRC chairman. "HUD (federal department of Housing and Urban Development) can't allow one town to make up its own figures."

The figure in question is called "expected to reside." It means the number of low income families expected to reside in town in the next year.

In the last rejected application, Mayor Blackstone found a figure of 374. By HUD's formula, it should have been 928.

HRC members have discussed with the town. The HRC would seek a writ of mandamus ordering the mayor to use the HUD formula.

DePold said he spoke to Timothy McNamara, the town's corporation counsel. McNamara said his office could not handle such a suit. In fact, his office has taken the opposite tack and is appealing HUD's decision claiming the town figure is correct, not HUD's.

"The next move for the HRC is to consider a class action suit by angry taxpayers," DePold said.

The HRC did not have a quorum

Wednesday night. Atty. Michael Whelton, the HRC member who suggested the suit last month, was not present. DePold said he is afraid it may be too late to file the suit by the HRC's next meeting in September. Also, how to pay for the suit concerned him.

Mayor Blackstone has said he refuses to use the HUD formula because it makes the town lie. The HUD figure is wrong and the town's is right," he said. He would not lie to get the money.

DePold said Wednesday, "Expected to reside figures do not bind our community to anything. They are just useful though inaccurate statistics for HUD. They are the technical tie that has already cost us close to $1.5 million in federal funds."

"It is not honesty or integrity that is costing us those funds. It is administrative stubbornness," he said.

Mrs. Fahey said she believes the mayor is not really unhappy not to get the CDA funds due to its helping poor people more than higher income people in town. The town recently was told it can have $3.6 million in public works funds.
