

Prison won't punish black female guard

HARTFORD (UPI)—The Connecticut chapter of the NAACP says federal authorities have agreed not to punish a black female prison guard who went against regulations and released inmates from a burning cellblock during the Danbury federal prison fire.

The agreement not to reprimand Deborah Richardson was contained in a preliminary report of the civil rights organization released Monday of its continuing independent investigation into the July 7 fire. Five inmates were killed and scores more injured in the blaze.

The U.S. Bureau of Prisons termed it the worst disaster in its history.

Norvel Goff, who is heading the NAACP investigation, indicated there was an agreement that there would be no reprimand for the black female guard who went against some procedures to save lives by letting some prisoners flee from the fire area," the report said.

The organization said its members met with officials of the Bureau of Prisons in Philadelphia to "review the preliminary findings of the government's investigation" into the fire.

Goff said prison officials have made "11 specific" safety precautions, but added "there were at least three key issues that remain unresolved that could in some way affect the final decision regarding criminal negligence."

He said the unresolved areas were: Why did prison officials wait about 20 minutes before allowing Danbury city firemen to enter the prison?

What is the relative importance of safety as compared to security in letting inmates out of cells to escape the blaze?

Is there any "significance to the fact" 90 per cent of the inmates in the burning area were black as were all five persons killed?

Among the safety precautions cited by Goff was removal of fiberglass reinforced plastic panels used in the institution. The burning fiberglass reportedly emitted toxic fumes which overpowered many of the inmates.

Goff said federal prison officials will meet with the NAACP task force investigating the fire in Hartford on Friday to "provide additional information" before the task force visits the prison itself.

"The NAACP Task Force felt it premature to release any information that may be contrary to the government's findings since neither are finalized," the report released Monday said.

B&W board accepts new offer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The directors of Babcock Wilcox Co. have decided to accept the $55 a share offer for 4.3 million of its shares from J.Ray McDermott Co. of New Orleans.

"That could fend off the takeover bid for B&W by United Technologies Corp. of Hartford, Conn."

B&W said Monday it would recommend the offer to its shareholders. McDermott said that if its proposed purchase goes through, it will as soon as practical thereafter propose a combination of the companies that would be tax-free to B&W shareholders.

United Technologies had first offered $42 a share for the stock of B&W, one of the world's largest makers of nuclear and conventional steam generating equipment, and then raised its bid to $48.

Man accused of hiding war criminal past

MIAMI (UPI)—The Justice Department filed a civil suit in federal court Monday, seeking to revoke the U.S. citizenship of a 70-year-old Ukrainian immigrant who allegedly helped the Nazis kill 60,000 Jews at the World War II Treblinka concentration camp.

The suit charged that in his 1949 application for a U.S. immigration visa, Fedor Fedorenko, 70, lied about his place of birth, pre-war residence, concentration camp background, and service in the Wehrmacht from 1941 through 1943.

Fedorenko came to the U.S. in 1949 and settled at Waterbury, Conn., where he worked in a brass tubing mill. His wife, who he married at Waterbury, died in 1961, and Fedorenko died in 1970.

Fedorenko moved from his job five years ago and retired to Miami Beach. There, he was allegedly recognized by survivors of the Treblinka and Maidanek concentration camps.

Fedorenko told a reporter last week, "I've forgotten everything. I don't want to talk about Treblinka. I don't know what everyone else did. I only know that I didn't do anything. I didn't do anything wrong. It wasn't my business what anyone else did."

The Russians take me to the army. The Germans take me prisoner. They make me work. I normal man. I swear on my life... I got people in trouble," he said.

Revocation of his citizenship might clear the way for deportation of Fedorenko to one of several European countries and possible prosecution as a war criminal.

ARC issues appeal for blood donors

BOSTON (UPI)—Saying education "must always be at the top of our agenda," U.S. Education Commissioner Ernest Boyer called on the nation's teachers Monday to fight cuts in school spending at the local, state and federal levels.

Boyer also told a convention of the American Federation of Teachers that education should be a lifelong pursuit for Americans, not merely preparation for the adult working years.

"It's time to reaffirm the centrality of education in this nation," Boyer told a convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

"It's time to counter critics who seem more intent on cutting budgets than on educating children, and it's time to declare that education has not and must always be at the top of our agenda."

Despite the end of the World War II "baby boom," Boyer said more teachers are needed to serve schools of all ages.

The Manchester Red Cross is appealing to local residents to support with their donations the visit of the Bloodmobile when the unit is in Manchester on Thursday. The unit will be at South United Methodist Church, corner Main St. and Hartford Rd., from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. Donors are reminded also that parking is available in the lot across Hartford Rd. from the church. Baby-sitting service will be available between 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. for mothers who bring their small children with them.

Probe delay charged

LISBON (UPI)—First Selectman James J. Brown Jr. has charged that New London County State's Attorney Robert Satti is "dragging his feet" in an investigation of an estimated $10,000 worth of tax receipts reported missing in May.

The money was reported missing three days after Tax Collector Edward Galoway, Sr. said he experienced a "blackout" on his way to a Norwich bank.

Brown said in the three months since the tax collector reported "this strange tale," he has been able to contact Satti only once.

"He acknowledges that I exist, and the matter is under investigation, that's all," Brown said.

Report on Lance finances expected within a week

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The comptroller of currency's report on the financial activities of Budget Director Bert Lance next week will be a long summary of facts without conclusions, according to sources familiar with the inquiry.

It will leave it to President Carter to decide whether to refer the findings to the Justice Department for criminal prosecution, the sources said.

The comptroller's office is the federal agency that regulates national banks. Responsibilities include ensuring the integrity of financial assets and administration.

It has used more than 30 investigators to gather information about Lance's activities at two banks he headed before joining the Carter administration in January.

The report by Comptroller John Heitman will make "no recommendation for prosecution, nor a finding of guilt or innocence," UPI was told Monday.

Heitman said he would have "no further comment on the inquiry relating to Mr. Lance until this report is finished, which should be soon."

Treasury sources expect the report by Aug. 25.

Lance played tennis with Carter on Sunday, and on Monday, when White House Press Secretary Jody Powell was asked whether the two discussed the inquiry, he quipped.

"I imagine the President brought it up whenever Bert was getting ready to serve."

He added: "I am sure that Bert's—the matter of the comptroller's inquiry and so forth—was mentioned during the tennis thing, but there was no detailed discussion of it at all." Powell said.

Young indictment

HARTFORD (UPI)—A Hartford grand jury has indicted Freddie Lee Bradley, 18, of Hartford, for murder in the May 30 death of a 69-year-old man.

He was charged Monday in the death of Walter Laskevich, a city park greenskeeper for 16 years who was found with his skull fractured and larynx crushed, police said.

Police said Bradley and a 15-year-old youth mugged Laskevich early in the morning of May 30, robbing him of $2 to $7, keys and a watch.

King of Rock 'n' roll dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Grief-stricken fans today maintained a vigil outside the gates of Graceland Mansion where Elvis Presley, the King of rock 'n' roll, lived as a virtual recluse and collapsed and died Tuesday of heart failure.

The body of the 42-year-old singer was found on a bathroom floor of the ornate 18-room mansion where he apparently collapsed and died after a vigorous game of racquet ball earlier in the day.

His body was moved from a funeral home late this morning to Graceland where his fans were to be permitted to view it from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Private family services will be held Thursday afternoon with burial at Forest Hills Cemetery where Presley's mother is buried.

Police guarded the gates to the mansion and two officers patrolled the grounds in a golf cart. But police said there had not been any reports of fans trying to crash the gates or sneak onto the mansion grounds.

Joe Esposito, his road manager, found Presley's body on the bathroom floor of Graceland at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, but doctors later said the singer could have been dead since 9 a.m.

Dr. Jerry Francisco, the Shelby County medical examiner, said an autopsy indicated Presley died of "cardiac arrhythmia," which he described as a "severely irregular heartbeat."

"The precise cause of death may never be discovered," said Francisco, who also performed the autopsy on Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. after the civil rights leader was assassinated in Memphis in 1968.

Francisco said Presley suffered from high blood pressure and "some coronary artery disease," and the two diseases could have caused the cardiac arrhythmia.

Both Francisco and Dr. George Nichopoulos, the singer's personal physician, said there were no traces of drugs other than the medicine Presley was taking for hypertension and a colon problem.

Fans began flocking to Graceland soon after the announcement of Presley's death. Many maintained an all-night vigil.

Death sparks sales of Presley records

The sale of Elvis Presley records is nearly breaking records today in the wake of the famous star's death Tuesday afternoon.

Fans of the "king of rock" are flocking to record stores and departments to buy anything available by the rock idol of many. Lines were waiting outside Beller's Music Shop when the store opened this morning, Ray Beller, shop owner, said. At noon today, his stock was almost sold out.

The Presley records at Caldor's record department began going last night and continued until all were gone this forenoon.

There were still a few Presley records left by noon today at K-Mart.

At the Belmont Record Shop in Vernon Circle, collectors had bought all the 150 records in stock by noon.

Orders have been placed for more records, but shop owners don't know when or if their orders will be filled.

Jerry Satriano, proprietor of the Music Shop on Main St., who has been selling tickets to the Elvis Presley concert scheduled Sunday at the Hartford Civic Center, said his phone rang continuously all this morning with buyers who were asking for refunds. Many, he said, begged to keep part of the ticket before turning them in, but this was not possible.

Hearings under way on Panama treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Bolstered by support from Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger, the Carter administration now confronts head-on the angry criticism from opponents of the new Panama Canal accord.

Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz, who negotiated the treaties, are in the highest U.S. national interest because they will insure that the waterway stays open and neutral and will elicit Panamanian cooperation.

They also were expected to stress the treaties are in the highest U.S. national interest because they will insure that the waterway stays open and neutral and will elicit Panamanian cooperation.

"The timing of the signing and the announcement appears to be a deliberate move to bypass the Congress during the August watch week," said committee chairman John Murphy, D-N.Y., Tuesday.

"The... committee is not prepared to watch the American canal in Panama go down the drain or allow its constitutional rights to be violated," he said.

The hearing was scheduled to start in open session, but to close if sensitive issues arise.

Street acceptance protested by subdivision residents

A group of residents from the Manchester West subdivision off Kenney St. crowded into the Board of Selectmen's meeting Tuesday night to protest a scheduled agenda item calling for the town's acceptance of five streets in the subdivision.

However, only one resident, Thomas Lodge of 116 Strawberry Lane, was allowed to speak in behalf of the residents while the directors suspended the agenda item because it was the second meeting of the month, public comment was not scheduled until the end of the meeting.

Lodge said the objections of the property owners and an inspection of the streets after a month ago showed that they are "substantially complete."

He said all sewer and water lines, streets, curbs, sidewalks and aprons have been inspected and approved by the engineering department. The town has been corrected by a minor cleaning, he said.

Ennis said the complaints received by residents over the past few months have been corrected by the developer, which is First Hartford Realty. The owner of the tract is Society for Savings.

The property has changed hands seven times in four years. The original developers were L&M Associates, which had originally tried to have an area zoned under the Comprehensive Urban Development (CUD) zone, which was rejected.

Water boiling order continues in effect

The boiling advisory for water users in the southwest section of town, which has been in effect for more than a week, will still be in effect at least one more day, despite a positive report from Frank Jodanis Tuesday night "What procedures do you have in the department for preventing a problem such as this occurring again?"

Jodanis said the department has tried to improve its records, listing the location of valves, use more laboratory testing techniques, check water flow, and take representative samples of water throughout the system.

However, Jodanis noted that there are many problems in the system, noting, for example, that some of the original pipes installed as early as 1880 in both the South and North End water systems still exist.

Penny commented, "It seems we are dealing with a very antiquated system and have to wait until we have a crane to locate a problem."

Director Vivian Ferguson also requested that the water department notify the town's health officer whenever a problem arises. She said, "I think the public would feel better if a doctor were involved." She said a few residents in the southwest area had called her about children who had developed rashes, although the causes had not been pinpointed to the water.

The present water problem involved 42 streets. Jodanis said he does not think the area of contamination has expanded, as a result of the current tests.

If trends continue Air pollution could set record

HARTFORD (UPI) — State environmental officials say if current trends continue, this year will go down as the worst for air pollution in Connecticut since record-keeping began in 1974.

The state closely measures ozone levels from April 1 to Sept. 30 and although final figures are not in yet, Anderson said it appeared 1977 would set a record.

Last year, the statewide average was 63 days during which the ozone level exceeded the unhealthy mark of 80 parts per billion.

Anderson said when there is unhealthy air persons with respiratory problems suffer "mild aggravation."

Ozone is caused by car exhaust reacting with high temperatures and sunshine. The higher levels this year are due to the hot, muggy weather.

So far this year, New Haven has had the best air, with only 44 days rated as unhealthy.

Much of the state's air pollution problem is actually produced in New York and carried into Connecticut by winds, officials say.

Connecticut has the dirtiest air east of the Mississippi and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has warned it will institute a motor vehicle inspection program if the state does not.

Lawmakers have so far balked at creating such a program, but opposition is thought to be softening because of the prospect of federal interference.

Boston's mobile store is 'heaven sent'

By D'VERA COHN

BOSTON (UPI) — This corner store offers all the services of the most expensive market, and the clientele is quite select. You can't shop there if you're under 60. The breadwinner and handicapped are given special treatment. It's Boston's two-year-old Mobile Market — a converted bookmobile which makes 30 stops a week at area housing projects and serves 500 customers. "We carry some 300 grocery items, canned goods and so forth," Manager Al Legros said. "We do a gross business of about $1,000 a week." The market also carries frozen foods, small cuts of meat and basic cleaning supplies but no candy or cigarettes, since that requires a special license. It has a staff of three — Legros, a cashier and a driver-maintenance man — paid for by federal funds. It is accompanied by a Boston Housing Authority guard, since most stops are at BHA projects.

Because of its special clientele, the market offers services such as telephone ordering and free delivery, particularly to the handicapped and bedridden. "They really depend on it," Legros said. Customers tell him, "If I were to do this shopping down the street, I'd have to do it in two or three trips, where I come here once." The Mobile Market was shut down for several months this year because the 15-year-old vehicle needed repairs. It was reroadited during a recent City Hall nutrition seminar attended by about 100 elderly persons, some of them in wheel chairs who said they were grateful for the van. "This is heaven sent. I hadn't anybody to market for me, and now I don't have to worry if I need a few items. You can't depend on your family if you just need a carton of milk or something," said Karen Anatora, 62, of Boston's South End. Michael Dogmas, 60, of Boston's Dorchester section, said: "My sister, who's blind and lives in an apartment in New York, when I tell her about the van, she prays someday they will have something there like it so she won't have to bother anyone to go to the store for her." Legros said the market's customers tell him they like the market because they can shop for themselves, rather than imposing on relatives, and don't worry about being mugged on the way home. The big supermarkets in Boston don't mind the market, Legros said, because they have no branches in the area it serves. The market buys supplies from one local chain at retail prices but is investigating buying goods wholesale. Legros says stocking the market provided a few surprises about eating habits of the elderly. "Contrary to what many people think, they do not buy canned goods in smaller sizes. They will go for the larger. They're price conscious." Despite that, he said, his customers prefer national brands to local or store brand goods. "They won't buy the store brand coffee even if it's 40 or 50 cents less," he said.

MIA status review ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has decided to review the status of 712 Americans currently listed as missing in action or prisoners of war in Southeast Asia, Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., said Tuesday. The review, on a case-by-case basis, would be to determine whether they should be changed to a "killed in action" status. Some have been missing for 10 years. Montgomery said families of the 681 MIAs and 31 POWs have been notified by the Defense Department. Montgomery, chairman of the House Select Committee on MIAs, applauded the President's decision to review the status of MIAs and POWs to determine if they should be classified as MIAs. "It is neither fair, nor realistic, to the families of the MIAs and POWs to continue to hold out false hopes that these Americans are still alive," Montgomery said. Some have been missing for more than 10 years. Montgomery, who was part of a group that went to Hanoi to seek information on the missing, said the decision "is right and proper and represents a humanitarian approach to a very sad situation." The committee, in its final report last December, recommended such reviews. Montgomery said most of the servicemen classified as MIAs or POWs have been missing for more than 10 years and said his committee's investigation found no evidence to support a belief that they were being held captive by the Vietnamese. Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-N.Y., a member of the House Select Committee on the MIAs, criticized the decision. "Wholesale status reviews... will send the final blow to this nation's internationally acknowledged right to obtain all available information on its missing in action," Gilman said. Gilman said there are some who feel "this nation should bow to Vietnamese recalcitrance, and by changing the status of MIAs to KIA (killed in action) extinguish what they refer to as the last troublesome trace of this nation's painful Vietnam experience."

Miller's creditors haled him into court on a charge of financial fraud. To prove it, they summoned one of his friends to the witness stand. But the witness declined to testify. "Miller did talk to me about his problems," he conceded, "but I promised to keep it confidential. He and I belong to the same lodge, and I can't break my promise to a lodge brother." But the court ordered him to speak out. The court said: "However binding an obligation may be between members of the same society, such an obligation (is) subject to the laws of the country." And the laws of the country do indeed insist that giving testimony is a matter of choice but of civic duty. The doctrine was imported from England, where a Prince of Wales once had to testify about cheating in a card game and a Prime Minister had to testify about a scuffle at a political meeting. May a witness refuse to testify on the ground that he considers his information to be irrelevant? No, say the courts, because that is not for him to decide. As one judge explained, in overruling a witness who offered that excuse: "Very often information is not susceptible of intelligent (evaluation) until it is placed in its setting, a tile in the mosaic."

Of course there are exceptions to the duty-to-testify. What a patient tells a doctor or what a client tells a lawyer is usually protected against disclosure. And, in most states, so is a private confession to a clergyman. Thus, a minister was held not obliged to reveal what a woman accused of wrongdoing had confessed to him. Said the court: "The benefit of preserving these confidences overbalances the possible benefit of permitting litigation to prosper at the expense of the spiritual rehabilitation of a penitent."

VA news

Q — I am an 80 per cent service-connected disabled veteran. Am I entitled to obtain a hospital bed and life from the VA?
A — You may receive any prosthetics or appliances you require. Have your physician contact the nearest VA clinic or hospital.

Q — I have been overpaid approximately $300 in educational benefits. Can I repay the overpayment by having it withheld from my compensation?
A — Yes. The overpayment should be paid over a period not to exceed one year.

Q — My husband died recently and I was designated as principal beneficiary on his NSLI insurance policy. He specified that I should receive the money in 36 monthly installments. May I elect to have the proceeds paid to me in a lump sum?
A — No. Unless the insured specified that payment be made in a lump sum you may not receive the proceeds in that manner.

Q — How soon after military discharge may I file a disability claim?
A — Your claim can be filed at anytime. However, it is to your advantage to file as soon as possible, preferably within one year.

Q — My father was killed in service. My mother does not intend to use his VA guaranteed loan entitlement. May I use it?
A — The law does not provide this benefit for a child of the veteran.

Lutz Junior Museum

Tlingit culture

At the Lutz Junior Museum, August is a time for renovating exhibits as well as reorganizing programs and classes in preparation for the fall. Ideally, we wish each child to leave the museum with a curiosity which he can apply to the world around him. It is as though each subject has a tiny core of spirit which is as important to understand as the facts surrounding it. There is also the basic belief that one can enjoy himself and absorb knowledge simultaneously.

Very often it is hard to communicate the subtleties which give a topic life. Each field of endeavor holds a depth not often perceptible at first scrutiny.

In September the museum will present an exhibit on Alaska, one part of which will concern the Tlingit Indians. The Tlingits are a people of depth where a study of their lifestyles does not necessarily explain their attitudes.

First of all, when most people think of Alaska, they think of the Eskimo and ignore the Northwest and Indian culture. The Tlingits themselves are as racially different from the Eskimo as is the Caucasian. Even thinking processes differ. Having an abundant and reasonably accessible wealth from the sea, Tlingits developed as successful merchants. They had time to extend their trade routes far north on the Yukon, and as far south as Washington State. Not only did the Tlingits act as middlemen for interior Indian tribes, but they charged anyone using their fishing grounds or trade routes.

Their leisure and sophistication allowed them time to develop art forms in both the practical and spiritual aspects of their lives. Their intricate carvings are found on everything from a Shaman's rattle to a halibut head.

One cannot help but notice the raw, powerful force of an almost crude beauty which pervades all phases of their culture. Everything they touched seems filled with the spirit of their emotions — anger, fear, humor, and pride.

The unique environment they inhabit greatly influenced their outlook. Never numerous, they lived in the few places allowed by the mountains dropping steeply into the sea. Man's place was small, especially compared to the miles of coast created by the innumerable islands. The constant "weather" full of wild rain, wind, and snow was one more contention. Despite their close association with nature, their perception and knowledge was concentrated on the necessities of life — on the harmful as well as the beneficial aspects. They classed into generalizations those things not directly related to their survival.

There could be no self-deception of man "conquering" nature in such an environment. Through their Shamans the Indians tried to understand the nature of their physical world along with its spiritual aspects. The Shamans or priests gained sight and understanding by communicating with different animal spirits. The Shaman often acquired traits similar to the animal he contacted. All Tlingits ally themselves with animals by identifying their family's clan with a particular mammal, fish, or bird which typifies themselves. Animal myths also formulated most of their folklore and were a means of teaching youth moral lessons.

Tlingit life centers on a delicate balance. All 13 tribes divide themselves into two basic groups: the ravens and the eagles. Each division is further broken into the clans identified with animals previously mentioned. The hierarchy within clans is not based on birth but upon wealth — at one time measured by slaves and ceremonial blankets. The worth of these blankets was increased by the frequency of their exchange between the two groups. Honor and

'Tastes like a grapefruit'

By WILLIAM P. MOORE
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The maxim, "There is no disputing taste," is being challenged by a University of Pittsburgh wine expert who says lack of vocabulary trips up the taster as frequently as anything else.

Dr. Peter Machamer, a history and philosophy of science professor, has been testing people's ability to distinguish between tastes and finds most of them can't do it very well. In the first of two experiments Machamer currently is conducting, subjects are given two glasses of wine and asked to tell if they are from the same bottle or if one is of a better quality than the other.

Most people can't tell the difference. In a second experiment, Machamer tests the average person's ability to describe tastes, and pick tastes which fit the description.

"I'm very interested in the semantics of descriptive terms,"

Machamer explained. "This is an area nobody has ever looked into. Just think about asking someone how a grapefruit tastes. They might say it tastes sour, but usually they just say: 'It tastes like a grapefruit.'"

To test a person's descriptive regularity, Machamer asks him to rank his preference in wines — dry, sweet, or fragrant. He then is given wines to taste, and asked to match their flavors with the descriptive words. Finally, he is asked to name

Zirconium spray banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warning that millions of consumers could be exposed to an unnecessary risk, the Food and Drug Administration Tuesday issued a final order banning the use of zirconium in aerosol deodorant sprays.

The metal, once highly touted for its antiperspirant qualities in such products as "Sant" and "Secret," has been subject to nearly three years of controversy over its possible role as a cause of lung disease. The FDA noted that the manufacturers have voluntarily stopped using the ingredient although some products containing it may still be in the distribution chain. It said the amount involved is not large enough nor the problem serious enough to warrant a recall.

Music pays off

Proceeds from benefit performances of the Connecticut Big Band Society and the Connecticut Ballroom Dance Association amounted to $6,265 and will help defray the cost of the cassette module for the teletype lung analyzer computer pictured here in the pulmonary lab of the Newington Children's Hospital. Accepting a check from Big Band Society President Lewis Reid of North Branford is children's hospital medical director Dr. Burr H. Curtis. Looking on, from left, are Al Gentile, executive director of the Big Band Society; Dr. John A. Pierce, director of anesthesiology for the children's hospital; and Mary Richards of Wallingford, secretary for the Connecticut Ballroom Association. Benefit performances were held in cities throughout the state including Bristol, Cheshire, Hartford, Manchester, Newington, North Haven and Waterbury.

Public financing is down, but far from being dead

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Public financing of congressional elections has gone down in flames for the second time, but look for this Phoenix to rise before the ashes are cool.

When Senate support for the proposal collapsed, it may have looked as if the idea of substituting tax dollars for private contributions in financing congressional campaigns was dead for good. Such a conclusion could seem plausible because it was the Senate where public financing supposedly had the best chance of passage. In a situation which calls for an institution to reform itself, the Senate was supposed to be at least grudgingly amenable and the House all but intractable.

Several factors But there are several factors that make public financing of campaigns a hard proposition to kill.

First, the system already is in place for presidential elections. In 1976, the first application of public financing, the method was experimental. From all indications, it worked relatively well and got good public acceptance. But it is a radical idea and its supporters may have been unrealistic to expect the Congress to embrace public financing for themselves just because it did well a year ago. It may take another three years or longer for public opinion to build up sufficiently to move the Senate and House toward reform of their own election system.

Second, the conditions are present for pro-public financing agitation. Citizen action groups like Common Cause and the Nader organizations remain keen on the idea and can be expected to make strong campaigns in favor of it. Reform is in the air. In addition, the news industry is in a reform frame of mind — the legacy of the Watergate period. Investigative reporting is the vogue and, with strict campaign financing reporting already required, the tools are there for news people to probe deeply into the sources of political contributions.

Third, the nature of private political contributing is changing. Individual businessmen are increasingly reluctant to donate in their own names (another Watergate era reaction) and the so-called "political action committees" — which represent whole industries or professions — are getting more and more private funds. That means incumbent members of Congress who get campaign contributions from PACs will find themselves under increasing pressure to vote right on longer lists of issues and more clearly identified as the friend of this or that special interest.

House members given some heavy reading

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All 43 House members have received for the summer reading pleasure a 35-page proposal that would — among other things — help guard against putting mistresses on committee payrolls.

The Commission on Administrative Review, created by the House as a result of last summer's revelations of sex scandals, has put together its second major proposal carrying 43 specific recommendations for better accounting of how the taxpayer's money is being spent along with other suggestions to streamline housekeeping procedures.

You may recall the most publicized case, in which Elizabeth Ray alleged that Wayne Hays, as chairman of the House Administration Committee, put her on the panel's payroll purely in return for sexual favors. Hays resigned because of the allegation.

Overseer proposed The Okey Commission, named after its chairman, Rep. David Okey, D-Wis., would try to prevent that kind of abuse by hiring an administrator with jurisdiction over all the "support services" that keeps the House operating.

He would be the most powerful employee in Congress, which in itself is enough to ruffle the feathers of empire builders who have ruled over small armies of doorknockers, folding room workers and elevator operators.

But there are a couple of other more provocative proposals in the massive report, like "reallocation" of space currently held in the Capitol and office buildings and a procedure for legislative employees to file grievances like sex, age, or color discrimination against their boss.

Gates rattling "The gates are already rattling," said one commission staffer a few days after the recommendations were made.

Okey conceded that the grievance issue would be "the toughest item to sell" in the entire package, which should go to the floor of the House by late September.

The space recommendation calls for a re-examination of items like whether the architect's office should not be relocated to "lower priority space," which means that the score or more of offices the architect now uses in the Capitol building might be banished to a distant House office building.

Media is spared It was rumored the commission might throw the press out of the Capitol building, taking over the galleries now allotted on the third floor of the structure. The media, however, was spared, although the commission did say press rooms in two of the three office buildings might be put to better use by congressional or committee staffs.

There are at least a few commendable proposals among the mostly technical, bookkeeping type recommendations. One would limit witnesses before committee hearings to a maximum of 10 minutes to give an opening statement. Another would designate matter in the Congressional Record as having been inserted but not really spoken on the House floor.

Still another would require itemized and centralized quarterly reporting in the Congressional Record of all government-paid study trips by members. Such reporting is now done annually and in a manner that expenses are spread over several categories making it difficult to determine one member's total spending on travel.

One sleeper One sleeper in the report would permit members to travel at government expense anywhere for any reason despite the fact the trip does not pertain to the jurisdiction of a committee on which the member serves.

At present, study or inspection trips have to relate to a member's committee work. As the commission rightfully noted, a member of Education and Labor, for instance, would put in for a trip to Israel to study vocational education when what the member really wanted was a firsthand look at the Middle East situation which is restricted to members of the International Relations committee.

But the sleeper is that travel could double or even triple under the commission proposal, with members going out one month on committee business and the next month on just general business.

All that the member needs for non-committee business travel abroad is conformance with regulations that his friends on the International Relations Committee would set and approval of the Clerk of the House.

Sewer swap approved for industrial park

Honoring an agreement made with Manchester several years ago, the South Windsor Sewer Commission has agreed to handle the sewage from the massive Manchester Industrial Park proposed for the Buckland area near the town line. South Windsor officials say the present treatment plant can handle the waste, but Manchester has been asked to foot the bill for an increase in the sewer pipe capacity in the Chapel Rd. area. Sewer Commission Chairman James Throwe said he believed the only problem in handling the sewage from the industrial area would be if dewatering mechanisms at the treatment plant fail. If this happens, the commission would have to seek funds for an additional dewatering device in the next fiscal year, according to Throwe. The agreement with Manchester—that each town accept and process sewage from the other if the contours of the land make it more feasible—was written before any proposals to develop the land industrially, according to Throwe. Commission member Lincoln Streeter suggested that an agreement between South Windsor and Manchester be rewritten to protect each town in cases of massive development. South Windsor will receive about $46,000 each year in sewer use charges, as well as $140,000 outlet charge before the industrial area connects with local sewer lines. South Windsor will also put restrictions on the type of sewage into the final agreement with Manchester.

Vernon educators study meaning of law

Last month, supervisors and administrators in the Vernon school system will participate in an in-service program to make them aware of the requirements of Public Act 94-142. This act is new federal legislation dealing with education of the handicapped. It guarantees all handicapped students a free, public education. Albert Kerkin, assistant school superintendent in charge of special education, said the paperwork for the program will be massive. He said a set of lengthy forms will have to be submitted, to the state, for every student in the special education program. He said he fears school personnel will have to spend more time on paperwork than they will with students. "We have to be careful of the impact this may have," Kerkin said. The federal legislation, however, will almost require that each school have its own Planning and Placement Team. Vernon has had such a team for the entire school system. He said individual educational programs will have to be written for each student and the programs must be carried out whether or not the town receives outside funding. He said the funds should be coming through in 1978, but to start it will only be at the rate of $35 a year for each child identified as handicapped.

The reimbursement is supposed to be based on the excess cost type of formula. That is payment for the costs in excess of what is spent for a student not classified as handicapped. Dr. Les Horvath of the state Department of Education will provide the in-service program in Vernon to acquaint Vernon school officials with what they have to do.

Lake residents can see bottom

The bottom of Middle Bolton Lake in Vernon and Lower Bolton Lake in Bolton can be seen for the first time in a long time, residents of both areas have reported. Bolton Selectman Aloysius Ahearn, a lake resident, said Tuesday night that the algae control program carried out last week killed about 95 per cent of the plant growth in the lake. Under the guidance of Richard Haymes, staff fish biologist with the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), volunteers spread copper sulphate in the lakes to help alleviate the serious problem of algae. Ahearn said the process killed thousands of small fish but not the larger ones. Haymes said today that small fish get trapped near shore but larger ones can swim to deeper water and wouldn't be affected by the chemicals. Ahearn said the results of the control program were apparent in one day. "People in the lake area are pleased. They can see the bottom of the lake for the first time in years," Ahearn said. Vernon health officials said they hadn't been up to check the lake yet but Donald Berger, recreation director who conducted the day camp at Camp Newhoca on the Middle Lake, said he thought the water looked clearer. You can see deeper "but it still has a long way to go," Berger said. Berger was concerned last week about children swimming in the lake. He said although the total amount of copper sulphate spread was below the safe level as determined for drinking water by the state, he was afraid there might be a concentration near the camp. He said he borrowed testing equipment from the Rockville Water and Aqueduct Co. and the area in front of the camp was determined safe. The camp ended its season last Friday.

Bolton endorses rail restoration

The Bolton Board of Selectmen has endorsed an effort by Gov. Ella Grasso to use $4.5 million in unspent federal highway money to rebuild the Willimantic-to-Manchester railroad line. Selectman Aloysius Ahearn, who as a state representative fought removal of the rails in 1975, won the Board of Selectmen's approval of his position Tuesday night. "This railroad should not have been lost in the first place," Ahearn told other members of the board. "It was a tragedy." Replacing the 23 miles of rail, which ran through Bolton Notch, will provide an east-west freight line for Connecticut and will provide the potential for future passenger service, Ahearn said. The right-of-way is now owned by the state. The tracks were torn up and sold in 1975 because the line hadn't been used for several years, state transportation officials said. Ahearn, who drafted a letter to Gov. Grasso from the Bolton selectmen, said he was concerned with statements made by regional leaders—particularly Richard Sausan of Hartford—about the rebuilding proposal. "The Towns of Bolton, Vernon, Andover and Manchester are members of the Capitol Region as much as Hartford or East Hartford or Bloomfield," Ahearn's letter said. "The potential for freight service and eventual passenger service which could be provided by restoring rail service along this right-of-way is enormous and of critical importance in this era of energy shortages," the letter said. Connecticut has a total of $260 million in federal Interstate highway "trade-in" funds which may be used for transportation projects in the region. Gov. Grasso has met with federal officials about the railroad rebuilding. The Providence & Worcester Railroad, the Central Vermont Railroad and Conrail have expressed interest in using the Manchester-to-Willimantic line if it can be restored.

Bolton may break law on disposal of sewage

The Town of Bolton may be violating state law because it doesn't provide a place for dumping sewage from septic tanks in town, three septic disposal men told the Board of Selectmen Tuesday night.

First Selectman Henry Ryba agreed there is a problem and it will be investigated. One possibility is to contract with another nearby town for disposal of the pumped sewage, he said.

William McKinley of McKinley Brothers Sewage Disposal Co., Manchester, told the selectmen that the septic tank problem will come to a head in Bolton in two to three years.

McKinley said state law requires that a town provide a dumping site either within the town or within a reasonable distance.

John Fay, owner of Honey Wagon Septic Tank Service, Manchester, agreed that every town should have its own place or designate one elsewhere.

Loren Fracchia, owner of his own septic cleaning firm in Hebron, said Bolton sewage used to go to Vernon for disposal, but Vernon won't accept it while a new sewage treatment plant is being built.

Therefore, the owners said, the Bolton sewage has to be taken anywhere another town may accept it. Most of the time, it goes to the Metropolitan District Commission plant in Hartford.

Bolton appointments

Cheney keeps PBC seat

Douglas Cheney, a Republican, just barely held onto his seat on the Public Building Commission (PBC) when the Bolton Board of Selectmen made appointments this week.

Cheney, a PBC member for 18 years and its chairman for 14 years, was reappointed by a 3-2 vote of the Democratic-controlled Board of Selectmen. First Selectman Henry Ryba and Selectman John Carry, both Democrats, opposed the reappointment, while Republican Ernest Shepherd and Democrats Aloysius Ahearn and Joanne Neath favored it.

An earlier motion to appoint Alphonse Julian to the PBC failed when Ryba voted "yes," Shepherd and Mrs. Neath voted "no" and Carey and Ahearn abstained.

Cheney was an unsuccessful candidate for selectman in the May town election. He received the fewest number of votes in the eight-way contest for four seats.

A native of Manchester, Cheney has lived in Bolton for 20 years. Besides his PBC activity, he has also served as a justice of the peace and as treasurer of the Republican Town Committee.

Cheney's reappointment was one of several made in a special executive session of the Board of Selectmen Monday night. Two other appointments also involved contests.

Gorton heads library board

Robert Gorton has been appointed chairman of Bolton's Board of Library Directors. Other officers are Nancy Silverstein, vice-chairman, Elene Deligmore, secretary and John Gleason, treasurer.

At a recent meeting, Mrs. Silverstein spoke of the poor appearance of landscaping around the library. Board members suggested a group of volunteers be formed to refurbish the area. Mrs. Silverstein was authorized to buy the necessary supplies.

An East Hartford resident who is also a Hartford city official dropped in on the August meeting of the East Hartford Human Relations Commission (HRC) and sparked a lengthy talk on the woes of town and city people.

The HRC did not raise a quorum. Scheduled business was discussed but nothing could be done by those present. They were Chairman Hans DePold, Mack Hawkins, Marcella Fahey and Helen Quinn.

"We're in hot water in Hartford," said Woodrow Gator of 51 Brook St., a guest of Hawkins and Hartford's assistant to the city manager.

The city has hired many workers through many federal programs. In fact, it hasn't hired but a handful of workers to be paid out of the general fund in recent years.

Many of the programs were meant to run a short time. But the city needs the workers. It can't afford to pay them through general budget funds, Gator said.

Regionalism
"Things are going to go regional whether or not we like it," said Gator, changing the subject.

"I'd like to see East Hartford or West Hartford or some other town begin to at least talk to each other about mutual problems without fighting over funds. Nobody really wants to carry the ball."

DePold noted a 1969 town charter amendment forbids East Hartford from joining anything that would allow an outside agency to regulate anything in town.

I mean just talk," Gator said. "I mean just talk. I don't feel we ask enough questions."

He noted the district meetings of Democrats in East Hartford never deal with the big issues. Hotter topics at the meetings are corned beef suppers, he said.

"We're going to be in some pretty rough situations soon," Gator said. He noted that Hartford has hired its own Washington, D.C., consulting firm at $70,000 to keep the city informed. The city can keep on top of new programs, he said.

Mrs. Quinn said most people are apathetic about such big problems. They all have their own private ones. Mrs. Fahey said there has been a recent change. Neighborhood groups have formed in recent weeks. Gator questioned how long those groups will last. "As soon as their particular problem is solved, forget them," he said.

Welfare woes
Mrs. Quinn said she is pleased to see a new approach in Washington towards welfare and work. She said a town system for local welfare has bothered her for years.

"If a man needs help and he is able to work, we give him a form," she said. "Every week he must go out and get three signatures from potential employers saying they can't hire him."

"There is no confidentiality. The form says 'welfare' at the top of it," DePold said some people get caught in an environmental rut. They are stuck in poverty. A friend suggested the only way to break a child out of the rut is to put him in a special day care center most of the day.

Family woes
Statistics on rising crime and family problems were played down by the group.

"I think these things have always taken place," said Hawkins. "We just see them more today."

"You're right," said Mrs. Fahey. "When I went to school in Hartford, we had our troublemakers. In those days they were all Italians."

Someone said many of those Italians have since moved to East Hartford and are concerned about peace and order in local schools.

Mrs. Quinn said, "The best thing to do to change things is to give all the kids good parents."

DePold said, "The parents have to care."

Mrs. Fahey said, "Even then, there's always one child in a family that goes bad, at least by that family's standards."
DePold said the young poor of today are not as lucky as children of poor immigrants years ago.
"There were no federal programs then which said, for example, no father in the home if you want welfare," Mrs. Quinn warned. "If we don't help each other as relatives, nor as neighbors, then we're going to do it as taxpayers."
Gator said, "There are all kinds of programs for losers. Good kids don't fit into any of these (government program) slots."
"In the Depression, people were more family oriented. Values were taught. There are no values today." "Last year for the first time in 14 years of living in East Hartford I locked my door. A neighborhood boy had walked in and stolen my money." He told how he had informed the boy's parents but nothing was done.
Mrs. Quinn said, "The only value today is the buck."
Mrs. Fahey said, "What has happened? Why is it parents can't stand to be with their kids all day?"
DePold said, "If the parent is self-centered, the child will be too."
He said his wife, a school social worker in Hartford, suspects part of the problem stems from doing away with breast feeding. The mother does not hold the child today.
Mrs. Fahey said, "When I had my children, my doctor told me to definitely not breastfeed."
"The training for parents is so poor. And being a parent is so complex."
"We've lost something," she said. "How do we get it back?"
The meeting without a quorum went on more than two hours.

Mrs. Quinn said, "The parents have to care."

Summer students work on variety of programs

Only one month shy of a year old, the Regional Occupational Training Center (ROTC) in Manchester has come a long way.

The ROTC, reported to be the first of its kind in the country, offers educational opportunities to mentally retarded and multiple handicapped adolescents from Manchester and 15 surrounding towns.

Programs include psychological, social, educational and vocational services. The major aims of the project are to provide specialized training for students' needs in order to develop personal, social and vocational competence for employment and community living.

There is a variety of winter programs, but summer takes no holiday at the ROTC.

Mrs. Shirley Wirtz, supervisor of the special education component for the third year, has a program of summertime activities for students.

"Students have been doing domestic work for the senior citizens, working on the care and maintenance of the garden which includes the use of fruits and vegetables in the hot lunch program for the Senior Citizens Center and the selling of the produce to the elderly at a nominal price."

"Christmas decorations, handbags, quilts, pillows, hats and mittens are being completed for the ROTC November craft and tag sale and some will also be sold at the ROTC store," she said.
The summer ROTC program is part of the Comprehensive Youth Work Experience Program (CYWEP) which is a Capital Region Education Council Program.
About 10 special education students are working in the program, funded by CYWEP. They are among 120 Manchester youths working at a total of 26 job sites in town this summer under the federally funded CYWEP.

On second thought

By Jan Warren

Ever since Jimmy Carter spent the night with that family in Yazoo City, Miss., I've been thinking about what would happen if he made a return trip to Mississippi and stayed with us.

According to the press release from the White House, the President is making these home visits to keep in touch with his fellow Americans. He doesn't want his hostesses to fuss and he wants to be treated just like one of the family.

Well, that sounds great, but it's not very practical. If Jimmy Carter comes to stay with us, I'm going to cater a little, as I would for my father-in-law or my rich uncle George from New York City.

Actually we'd have to do a little juggling to accommodate Mr. Carter.

First of all, we don't have a guest room. And since the President refuses to uproot his host and hostess from the master bedroom, he will either have to share a room with 14-year-old John or sleep on the convertible sofa in the living room. If Rosalyn comes too, we can always stick John in a sleeping bag in his sister's room and put Rosalyn and the President in the bunk beds in John's room. Of course, I will insist that Ebony, our big black Labrador, give up his spot at the foot of John's bed and sleep outdoors.

The bathroom schedule will certainly need some revision, particularly in the early morning. I think I'll ask Sara and Kate to take their showers at night, so there will be plenty of hot water for the President. And the girls will have to blow-dry their hair in the bedroom so he can have the bathroom mirror for shaving.

Our breakfast routine is going to need some shaping up, too. This morning, for example, Kate ate her toast while she did her leg limbering exercises, John arrived at the table without a shirt (this was in the dryer), and Sara strolled in wearing her father's bathrobe with a towel wrapped around her head. While the President is here I'm going to insist that everyone appear at the table fully dressed at 7 a.m. so we can sit down together.

Our table conversation is another thing that should be upgraded. After all, the purpose of the President's visit is to learn about the hopes and goals of the American people and not to learn that Becky-Lu has just given Melvin back his high school ring or that Susie has just bought a glamorous long dress that's covered with pink rose buds.

When the President comes I'm not going to do anything drastic like redecorate the whole house, but I must get the blue chair in the living room recovered. I must get some new sheets and towels and a replacement for bedspread that Ebony chewed 'a hole in. And I certainly must get some matching kitchen glasses.

It would never do to have the president drink his orange juice from a McDonald's mug.

Dombrowski-Estrella

Cheryl K. Estrella of Coventry and Thomas S. Dombrowski of East Hartford were married July 16 in an evening ceremony in Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald F. Knapp of Dunn Rd., Coventry. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dombrowski of William St., East Hartford.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of crystal and Venice lace designed with fitted lace bodice, long full sheer sleeves with lace cuffs and shoulder overlay, V-neckline, mandarin collar and full skirt with wide hemline flounce outlined in lace and extending to a chapel-length train. She wore a finger tip veil of silk illusion edged with seed pearls and attached to a matching lace Camello cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of white sweethearts roses, pink miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Pamela Knapp of Milford was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Andrea Estrella, the bride's daughter, was flower girl.

Robert Dombrowski of East Hartford was his brother's best man.

Following a reception at the Garden Grove in Manchester, the couple left on a wedding trip to Canada. They are residing in Ellington.

Sally Cappon of Santa Barbara, Calif., is a newspaper reporter. So when she was selected as a finalist in the well-known Bake-Off contest five years ago, she was determined to use her journalistic skills to develop winning recipes.

Trained to organize information and pick out pertinent facts, Sally set to work and has been a finalist three more times.

She doesn't work at creating recipes until entry blanks are available and she knows just what eligible products and categories are to be used.

Sally confesses she has two strategies. One method is to look at ingredients she commonly keeps on hand and to think of new ways to use them with the eligible products. Her other method is to take the best parts of several favorite recipes and come up with a new recipe. Both strategies have brought her to the national baking contest.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Not an inflammatory disease but a degeneration of bone and cartilage simple osteoarthritis is not helped with cortisone injections. This means your husband

Helmet fasteners recalled

The U.S. Department of Transportation has advised the Department of Motor Vehicles in Wethersfield that it has issued a warning to motorcycleists about the safety of 57,000 Sa-T-Release helmet fasteners manufactured by F.P., Inc. of Pasadena, Calif.

These fasteners have been recalled by the manufacturer because a potentially defective coil spring may allow them to open under impact, permitting the helmets to come off.

DOT said the warning to motorcycleists is being issued because the manufacturer does not have a record of the names and addresses of purchasers to notify individually by mail.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) opened an investigation in 1976 after receiving an allegation that a cyclist had been killed when his helmet strap—employing a Sa-T-Release fastener—failed.

NHTSA testing found that helmets fitted with the Sa-T-Release fastener failed to pass retention tests designed to measure the holding strength of the chin strap. The recalled fasteners were manufactured between 1969 and 1975.

Hartung to head Adcom
A.E. Hartung, vice chairman of LaPoint Industries and president of ASC Corp., LaPoint's largest subsidiary, has resigned to form Adcom Sales Corp.

Hartung advises that the parting has been amicable, and that his initial enterprise involves a joint venture with LaPoint. Hartung and five other officer level employees filed for the incorporation of Adcom Sales Corp. to market telecommunications administrative data systems which will be assembled by the Agard Electronics subsidiary of LaPoint.

The Adcom product represents a breakthrough in communications cost, control and efficiency long needed by both medium size and large companies, Hartung said. The "Sentinel" equipment now in use has proven to be lower in cost and highly efficient in use. It is also compatible with but does not require computer link, and installs in just one day. Savings of 15 to 20 per cent on telephone bills have been realized by current users.

The equipment can also be tailored to meet customer needs and does not require a change in telephone service supplier, he said.

Adcom plans a national marketing effort for "Sentinel" and its telecommunications services which include consulting, installation and product maintenance. The Adcom Sales Corp. officers will be located at 435 Backland Rd., South Windsor.

Social Security

Q. My wife has been working almost as long as I have, and we will be retiring at about the same time. Can she get both her own benefit and a benefit as my wife?

A. No. She can't get both benefits. When she applies, she will get an amount equal to the highest benefit.

Q. I rent about 25 acres of my farm to a family and share in the proceeds. Do I have to count the rental income as part of my earnings from my farm?

A. The cash or crop share you receive from your tenant must be included when figuring gross farm earnings only if you materially participate in the production or management of the crop or livestock. If you take an important part in the management or in actual production of the crops or livestock, you will be considered materially participating and the rental income will then count for Social Security.

Q. I'm going to spend some time during the next year just traveling from city to city visiting relatives across the country. What is the best way of handling my Social Security check?

A. Since you will be moving about frequently, it may be to your advantage to have your check sent directly to your account at a financial organization. If you want to arrange for direct deposit of your checks, contact the financial organization of your choice and ask for direct deposit form SF-119. This way you'll know your Social Security check has been deposited into your account on the third of each month.

Q. I plan to stay abroad for several years, but I haven't decided just where, yet. Will my Social Security benefits be taxed in a foreign country?

A. Some countries do. You can find out by calling the country's embassy in Washington, D.C.

Q. I hire two men now and then to help out on my farm. Do I have to report their wages for Social Security purposes?

A. Yes, if you pay a farm worker $150 or more in cash wages during the year, or if the person works 20 or more days during the year for cash wages figured on a time basis rather than a piece-rate basis. Check with your Social Security office for more details.

Board maintains schedule

Bolton
The Bolton Board of Education, considering reorganization of its work, has decided to continue meeting just once a month. Board members recently discussed the possibility of two meetings a month, but concluded that there would be a second meeting only when necessary. The board discussed the format of the meetings and adherence to a time schedule. Last year, the school board set a policy to adjourn meetings at 11 p.m. However, at most meetings the policy is waived and the meeting continues to the wee hours of the morning. Board members felt that adherence to a time schedule was largely the responsibility of the chairman. The board's policy committee was instructed to revise the policy about citizens addressing the board. The revised policy should be presented in September. Board members discussed whether to have executive sessions on a separate night, but decided not to. At the recent meeting, the board appointed the following committees:

- Andover: Donna Holland, 646-0375
- Bolton: Donna Holland, 646-0375
- Coventry: Claire Connelly, 742-8202
- Ellington: Barbara Richmond, 643-2711
- Hebron: Karen Biskupiak, 228-0496
- South Windsor: Judy Kuebel, 644-1364
- Tolland: Barbara Richmond, 643-2711
- Vernon: Barbara Richmond, 643-2711

Charter unit eyes manager

Coventry
At its last meeting, the Coventry Charter Revision Commission discussed the duties of the town manager, now listed in Section 8-5. In rewording the charter for the sake of clarity, the commission offered the following: "It shall be the duty of the town manager to prepare a proposed annual budget for the Town of Coventry, which shall include the Board of Education budget request as received from the chairman of the Board of Education." The suggested revision also stated,

"Not later than 90 days before the end of the fiscal year, the town manager shall present to the Town Council his proposed budget which shall include: An itemized statement of revenues showing in parallel columns: Actual revenues collected in the last completed fiscal year; actual revenues collected in the first eight months of the current fiscal year; estimate of revenues to be collected in the entire fiscal year; and estimates of the revenues, other than from the property tax to be collected in the ensuing fiscal year." The proposed revision went on to ask for an itemized statement of expenditures for each department, office or agency, except the Board of Education. The final suggested rewording of Section 8-5 asked for an "Itemized Board of Education budget request submitted by that Board." In Section 8-7 of the present charter, it is directed that after the budget is adopted by the Town Council, the town manager shall set the tax rate in mills. In its suggested revision, the Charter Revision Commission indicates that the mill rate should be in line with the approved budget.

FOI Act revisions explained

Coventry
Coventry Town Manager Frank H. Connolly has reminded all boards and commissions about changes in the state Freedom of Information (FOI) Act that affect the operations of town agencies. The changes include a section which states that an agency can charge 25 cents per page for copying material, with special provision for printouts and repayments for large orders. The town manager also said the FOI Act requires that minutes must be filed within seven days of the meeting, and that the agenda itself must be filed not less than 24 hours before the meeting. Connolly said two-thirds of the members of the agency present and voting must act to put any new business on the agenda. Included in the FOI Act is the provision that written notice of special meetings must be delivered to the member's residence unless a waiver of this is obtained.

Ambulance firms feud for power

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

"We're feuding for power," said Harvey Kagan, owner of Professional Ambulance Service, talking about Roger Talbot, president of Ambulance Service of Manchester Inc. "We're thinking of opening an office in Manchester," he said over the weekend. The "feud" stems from the state Health Department's designation of Talbot's firm as the primary ambulance service for the Town of East Hartford. In recent years, the town has had a rotation system using the services of Talbot, Kagan and Trinity Ambulance which has an office at 1561 Main St., East Hartford. Talbot does not yet have an office in the town. He has said he will open one and buy an ambulance to keep it. But first he must make sure the town will accept the state's designation of his firm. He said he could not afford an East Hartford ambulance service center if he could not have most of the calls. "He seems to think he's got a lock on East Hartford," said Kagan. "I know for a fact he can't do it. He's mighty greedy." Kagan said he runs the largest ambulance firm in the state, with 21 vehicles ready to roll in many communities. Talbot's firm has about a half dozen vehicles serving a half dozen towns surrounding Manchester from one center at 134 E. Center St., Manchester. "He pays his men by the call," said Kagan. "They're good men, but they're a bunch of suckers. They're definitely underpaid." "I know Roger real well. He needs a union in his organization." Kagan said he pays his ambulance crews hourly. He said he paid out $10,000 in profit sharing last year. "We think a lot of our employees. Many have been with us for many years. We don't have much turnover." He said Talbot will not be able to handle the heavy demand for ambulance service in East Hartford. "Who's he trying to kid he can han-

Voters will decide waste center plan

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

East Hartford voters will be asked Nov. 8 to allow the town to join a regional agency to handle waste. The town council voted unanimously Tuesday to put the question to voters on the day of local elections. The Town Charter forbids the council to allow the town to join any such regional agency. "Are we going to be the first town in this?" asked Esther Clarke, GOP minority leader on the council, of Mayor Richard Blackstone. "We are the only community (in the Hartford region) that has this provision in its town charter," he answered. She asked how soon a waste treatment center could be set up. "It will move quickly if Hartford and East Hartford enter it," he said. The city and town together have enough volume of solid waste each day to insure a center enough volume to be economical. The agency set up would make contracts with each member town to receive its waste. The price per ton of East Hartford waste depends on where the center will be, and how much volume it will have, he said. The cost of waste in a Bridgeport center is $450 per ton. This is $1 less than East Hartford must pay to run its own town incinerator off Ecology Dr. If the regional center creates steam, the cost per ton goes down, he said. "It looks like we'll have one steam plant in Hartford and one in New Haven," he predicted. The agency which will run the center is called Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority (CRRRA) and is a state agency. It can bond up to $50 million to build a center. East Hartford disposes of 50,000 tons of its own waste each year in the town incinerator. The burnt residue is buried in the town's landfill area. The mayor said the landfill has an effective life of only another 5 to 10 years. "The vote as it will read on voting machines is: 'Shall the Regional Resource Recovery Authority Resolution authorizing the Town Council to commit the Town to participate in and to contract with a regional resource recovery authority to dispose of and to recycle the town's solid waste, and to recover usable products from such solid waste, adopted by the Town Council Aug. 16, 1977, be approved?'"

Costello, director of finance.

Sewer swap approved for industrial park

Honoring an agreement made with Manchester several years ago, the South Windsor Sewer Commission has agreed to handle the sewage from the massive Manchester Industrial Park proposed for the Buckland area near the town line. South Windsor officials say the present treatment plant can handle the waste, but Manchester has been asked to foot the bill for an increase in the sewer pipe capacity in the Chapel Rd. area. Sewer Commission Chairman

James Throwe said he believed the only problem in handling the sewage from the industrial area would be if dewatering mechanisms at the treatment plant fail. If this happens, the commission would have to seek funds for an additional dewatering device in the next fiscal year, according to Throwe. The agreement with Manchester — that each town accept and process sewage from the other if the contours of the land make it more feasible — was written before any proposals to develop the land industrially, according to Throwe. Commission member Lincoln Streeter suggested that an agreement between South Windsor and Manchester be rewritten to protect each town in cases of massive development. South Windsor will receive about $46,000 each year in sewer charges, as well as $140,000 outlet charge before the industrial area connects with local sewer lines. South Windsor will also put restrictions on the type of sewage into the final agreement with Manchester. Road race sign-up Applications are now being accepted for the fourth annual Wapping Fair Five-Mile Road Race — an AAU-sanctioned race held in conjunction with the South Windsor fair. The race, which will be held Sunday, Sept. 11, at 1 p.m., will begin and end on Eye St. at the fairgrounds. Prizes of running shoes will be awarded to the winner of each of six divisions. Divisions for the race will be as follows: Men's Junior (17 years old and younger), Men's Open (18-39 years), Men's Masters (40-49 years), Men's Senior (50 and up), Women's Junior (20 and younger), and Women's Open (21 and up).

All runners and their families receive free entry to the fair. Requests for applications should be mailed to Wapping Fair Inc., P.O. Box 446, South Windsor, 06074. Additional information may be obtained by calling Donald Wojnyta.

Vernon educators study meaning of law

Next month, supervisors and administrators in the Vernon school system will participate in an in-service program to make them aware of the requirements of Public Act 94-142. This act is new federal legislation dealing with education of the handicapped. It guarantees all handicapped students a free, public education. Albert Kerkin, assistant school superintendent in charge of special education, said the paperwork for the program will be massive. He said a set of lengthy forms will have to be submitted, to the state, for every student in the special education program. He said he fears school personnel will have to spend more time on paperwork than they will with students. "We have to be careful of the importance of this legislation, however, will make sure that each school has its own Planning and Placement Team. Vernon has had such a team for the entire school system. He said individual educational programs will have to be written for each student and the programs must be carried out whether or not the town receives outside funding. He said the funds should be coming through in 1978, but to start it will only be at the rate of $5 a year for each child identified as handicapped.

The reimbursement is supposed to be based on the excess cost type of formula. That is payment for the costs in excess of what is spent for a student not classified as handicapped. Dr. Les Horvath of the state Department of Education will provide the in-service program in Vernon to acquaint Vernon school officials with what they have to do.

Lake residents can see bottom

The bottom of Middle Bolton Lake in Vernon and Lower Bolton Lake in Bolton can be seen for the first time in a long time, residents of both areas have reported.

Bolton Selectman Aloysius Ahearn, a lake resident, said Tuesday night that the algae control program carried out last week killed about 95 per cent of the plant growth in the lake.

Under the guidance of Richard Haynes, staff fish biologist with the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), volunteers spread copper sulphate in the lakes to help alleviate the serious problem of algae. Ahearn said the process killed thousands of small fish but not the larger ones. Haynes said today that small fish get trapped near shore but larger ones can swim to deeper water and wouldn't be affected by the chemicals. Ahearn said the results of the control program were apparent in one day. "People in the lake area are pleased they can see the bottom of the lake for the first time in years," Ahearn said. Vernon health officials said they hadn't been up to check the lake yet but Donald Berger, recreation director who conducted the day camp at Camp Newhoo on the Middle Lake, said he thought the water looked clearer. "You can see deeper," but it still has a long way to go," Berger said. Berger was concerned last week

The Bolton Board of Selectmen has endorsed an effort by Gov. Ella Grasso to use $4.5 million in unspent federal highway money to rebuild the Willimantic-to-Manchester railroad line.

Selectman Aloysius Ahearn, who as a state representative fought removal of the rails in 1975, won the Board of Selectmen's approval of his position Tuesday night. "This railroad should not have been lost in the first place," Ahearn told other members of the board. "It was a tragedy.

Replacing the 23 miles of rail, which ran through Bolton Notch, will provide an east-west freight line for Connecticut and will provide the potential for future passenger service, Ahearn said.

The right-of-way is now owned by the state. The tracks were torn up and sold in 1975 because the line hadn't been used for several years, state transportation officials said. Ahearn, who drafted a letter to Gov. Grasso from the Bolton selectmen, said he was concerned with statements made by regional leaders — particularly Richard Sussman of Hartford — about the rebuilding proposal.

The potential for freight service and eventual passenger service which could be provided by restoring rail service along this right-of-way is enormous and of critical importance in this era of energy shortages," the letter said.

Connecticut has a total of about $260 million in federal interstate highway "trade-in" funds which may be used for transportation projects in the region. Gov. Grasso has met with federal officials about the railroad rebuilding.

Phillies' margin mounts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Johnson, who signed a modest contract with the Philadelphia Phillies his spring after playing two years in Japan, Tuesday night highlighted a five-run eighth inning with a pinch-hit, two-run triple that carried the Phillies to a 7-5 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

"The victory was the 13th in a row for the Phillies as they looked to stretch their NL East Division lead to 4 1/2 games over Pittsburgh.

"I'm probably the lowest paid guy on this team," said Johnson, "but I'm very happy I'm with the Phillies. I think we have a championship team."

In 1972 Johnson established a major league record for second basemen by hitting 43 homers with 101 runs scored.

National League

edged San Francisco, 3-2, and Houston downed Atlanta, 4-1.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5
A throwing error by second baseman Rennie Stennett enabled Bobby Murcer to score the winning run in the 15th inning as the Cubs snapped a five-game losing streak and ended the Pirates' six-game winning streak. Murcer singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice then scored when Stennett, after fielding Gene Clines' slow grounder, threw wildly past third base attempting to nail Murcer. Bill Robinson hit a two-run homer for the Pirates.

Mets 5, Cardinals 1
"We'll start with the six teams that played prominent roles in the Mets' victory. Steve Henderson and Doug Flynn each had three hits while Pat Zachry turned in a seven-hit complete game. Flynn also stole home in the eighth inning.

Reds 5, Padres 1
Seaver didn't do so badly himself as he spun a five-hitter in posting his sixth victory in eight decisions since joining the Reds on June 15. Dan Driessen and Pete Rose supported Seaver, 13-5, with home runs.

Dodgers 3, Giants 2
Dusty Baker's two-out, run-scoring single capped a two-run ninth inning that won it for the Dodgers. A two-base error by third baseman Bill Madlock allowed the tying run to score, followed by Baker's game-winning hit off reliever Randy Moffitt. Derrel Thomas homered for the Giants.

Astros 4, Braves 1
Rob Sperring had three hits, including a pair of doubles, to lead the Astros. Sperring singled to set up Houston's first run and doubled home the final run in the eighth. Losing pitcher Dick Ruthven hit his first major league homer for Atlanta.

WHA pledges eight clubs

MONTREAL (UPI) — The World Hockey Association doesn't know what teams will play where next season, but it does promise at least eight clubs will play an 80-game regular season schedule with possibly 60 international matches. "Although I really don't have anything firm on which teams will operate where, I know the WHA will continue to exist," WHA Board Chairman Ben Haskin said, at the opening of the league's two-day annual meeting Tuesday.

Dandridge sold

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks said Tuesday they have agreed to transfer to cash their rights to disgruntled forward Bob Dandridge to the Washington Bullets, who are now free to negotiate a contract with the former National Basketball Association all-star forward.

A Bullets spokesman refused to confirm or deny the Bucks' announcement, but scheduled a "major" news conference for Wednesday immediately. Dandridge was not available for comment.

Acquire rights

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers Tuesday announced they have acquired the rights to retired tight end Bob Klein, a veteran of eight National Football League seasons with the Los Angeles Rams.

The rights to negotiate with Klein, recognized as an outstanding blocker, were obtained for an undisclosed fee draft selection, a Chargers spokesman said.

Returns home

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The 30-year-old former manager of the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs is back at his home in the suburb of Tonawanda today after a hospital stay of nearly three weeks for a broken hip.

Joseph "Marse Joe" McCarthy was discharged Tuesday from the Millard Fillmore Hospital where he had been admitted July 27, following a fall at his home.

The hospital said McCarthy, a manager of baseball's Hall of Fame, had undergone a 2 1/2 hour operation to repair damage to the hip.

Yacht Australia moves one step closer to Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A decision that France I was at fault in a yacht-crunching collision has assured Australia of a berth in final trials to pick a foreign challenger for the America's Cup.

An international committee ruled Tuesday the French's shouts failed to give Australia enough warning before a jibe, an abrupt maneuver when the rear of the yacht cut across the direction of the wind.

Earlier, Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner skipped Courageous to two wins over Enterprise in the opening of final trials to pick the American defender for sailing's most coveted prize.

American trials continue today as Courageous battles Independence. Baron Marcel Bich, at France's helm during the accident, said the move was suggested by George Twist, a Californian tactician.

Baseball free agents. Since the start of the major league season, these novel entities have been on peoples' minds. The immediate question is after this year's results, what will happen to the next crop of those who played out their option.

To Boston fans, the free agent market and the price was well worth it. Super reliever Bill Campbell, who almost got booted out of town the first month, has been sensational. He's been a big reason for the Bostonians success.

On a more low level plateau, Texas must be extremely pleased with pitcher Pete Alexander, who left the Yankees after they wouldn't promise him a permanent spot in the starting rotation. Eric Soderholm has been a pleasant find for the Chicago White Sox while Billy Smith at Baltimore and Paul Dade in Cleveland have each made contributions.

Rollie Fingers has proved he can be an effective reliever in any league, being a most pleasant addition to the San Diego bullpen crew. But for the most part, it appears the free agents haven't been everything envisioned. Gary Matthews caused a big stir for the Atlanta Braves even before one game in his new uniform.

Francis I's wooden bow looked as if one-foot bite had been chopped out of it and Australia suffered damage to six aluminum panels and a support beam in her hull.

Both boats limped around the course and Australia trounced France by nine minutes, 46 seconds in one of the most lopsided defeats in 12-meter racing history.

Royals fail to cool red-hot Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Mark Littell pitched a complete game in the eyes of his manager, but fortunately for the Boston Red Sox it didn't add up to nine innings.

Littell, a Kansas City relief specialist making his first start of the season, cooled off the red-hot Red Sox for six innings Tuesday, allowing just three hits, including a three-run homer by Butch Hoban.

When Royals Manager Whitey Herzog went to star reliever Doug Bird in the seventh, Boston quickly jumped on Bird for two runs and a 5-3 victory over Kansas City.

The win was the fifth straight for Boston, their 16th in their last 17 games, and kept the American League East leaders 3 1/2 games in front of second-place Baltimore.

"I didn't want him to go any further," explained Herzog about his yanking Littell. "He threw 84 pitches in six innings and that was enough."

"I think everybody in our dugout was relieved when Littell didn't come out for the seventh," said Rick Burleson, who drove in the winning run in the seventh inning rally. "We didn't figure on him going nine because he hadn't started all year."

The 6-foot-3 fireballing right-hander struck out eight and allowed only four balls out of the infield including three hits. Only a fine job by Boston starter Don Anse and Hoban's clutch homer kept Boston in the game.

"It wasn't a bad pitch either," said Littell in the seventh on a Cookie Rojas single and a White double. Boston Manager Don Zimmer went to his bullpen ace Bill Campbell, now 12-7, who struck out the final two batters in that inning and then easily mowed down the final six Royals' batters.

"You just gotta go over the green monster," Boston's leftfielder wall.

The homer, coming in the fourth inning following a double by Jim Rice and a single by George Scott, gave Boston a 3-2 lead. Kansas City had gone ahead in the third inning on a single by Frank White, an RBI double by Tom Poquette, and a run-scoring single by Amos Otis.

The Royals had tied the score, 3-3, in the seventh on a Cookie Rojas single and a White double. Boston Manager Don Zimmer went to his bullpen ace Bill Campbell, now 12-7, who struck out the final two batters in that inning and then easily mowed down the final six Royals' batters.

"You just gotta go over the green monster," Boston's leftfielder wall.

Chambliss ends hairy contest

NEW YORK (UPI) — That smooth, classic swing of Chris Chambliss put an instant end to perhaps this year's hairiest baseball game.

Entering the ninth with a 9-4 lead Tuesday night, Ron Guidry and the Yankees fell apart. The Chicago White Sox, possibly the most explosive hitting team in the majors, scored six times and were robbed of three more runs when Lou Piniella jumped over the right field fence to catch Richie Zisk's apparent home run with two men on.

Not expecting to even bat in their half of the ninth, the Sox found themselves down 10-9. Thurman Munson led off with a walk and was quickly sacrificed to second by Piniella. Chambliss then stroked a Randy White offering deep into the right field seats to finish it.

"I wasn't swinging for two runs," said Chambliss. "I was swinging for a hit. I've been hot and the guys ahead of me have been hitting well, too."

The guy fields his position, hits lefties and never complains," said Manager Billy Martin of his first baseman. "He's a gentleman on and off the field. You can hit him in any spot in the lineup — he never complains."

Chambliss has been deadly for the Yanks with runners on base. The last 14 times he's batted with a runner on, he's batted out 10 hits.

"We knew the Red Sox were winning," said Chambliss. "They flash back scores up on the board. But we're all mature enough to just look at the scoreboard and not react to it. There is a team on the field who have to beat and you can't be preoccupied about another game's line."

"It's never easy to lose but this one's got to grab you a little bit more," said White Sox Manager Bob Lemon. "We've got to get a pitcher who can get somebody out."

Despite the threat of rain, a crowd of 700 turned out for the 14th annual Jimmy Fund promotion last night at Fitzgerald Field.

In the softball doubleheader, the Felice League All-Stars upset State ASA champs Manchester Softball Club, 8-6, and in the nightcap Chantal 30 whipped the WTC Titans, 17-9.

Claire Fazzino's three-run homer capped the big explosion.

Worth the dough?

Baseball free agents. Since the start of the major league season, these novel entities have been on peoples' minds. The immediate question is after this year's results, what will happen to the next crop of those who played out their option.

To Boston fans, the free agent market and the price was well worth it. Super reliever Bill Campbell, who almost got booted out of town the first month, has been sensational. He's been a big reason for the Bostonians success.

On a more low level plateau, Texas must be extremely pleased with pitcher Pete Alexander, who left the Yankees after they wouldn't promise him a permanent spot in the starting rotation. Eric Soderholm has been a pleasant find for the Chicago White Sox while Billy Smith at Baltimore and Paul Dade in Cleveland have each made contributions.

Rollie Fingers has proved he can be an effective reliever in any league, being a most pleasant addition to the San Diego bullpen crew. But for the most part, it appears the free agents haven't been everything envisioned. Gary Matthews caused a big stir for the Atlanta Braves even before one game in his new uniform.

Francis I's wooden bow looked as if one-foot bite had been chopped out of it and Australia suffered damage to six aluminum panels and a support beam in her hull.

Both boats limped around the course and Australia trounced France by nine minutes, 46 seconds in one of the most lopsided defeats in 12-meter racing history.

Both sides formally protested, the Incredible record

Jack Nicklaus has an incredible 16 major tournament championships to his credit. But does anyone know the Golden Bear also has placed second another 14 times in these prestigious events. Nicklaus had the championships in the Masters and British Open slip away to Tom Watson, placing second, and was third in the recent PGA Championship.

For a mere mortal, that would be a fantastic record. But for Nicklaus it was less than expected. It's been two years since the Old State guard has won a major title but isn't it marvelous the way the crowds have responded. When he first started out, Nicklaus was the enemy — the one who was ruining Arnold Palmer's fame and fortune.

Over the years, however, golf crowds have mellowed and grown to love Nicklaus. And he, after a rough beginning, has responded most favorably to the fans and media with tons of cash. He had every reason to turn grumpy and reclusive but instead took the opposite tact.

That's why Nicklaus is a champion. Needs coaches
Mike Landolph, director of athletics at Bolton High, is in need of a varsity boys' basketball coach for the 1977-78 season and a varsity golf coach for the '78 campaign.

Applicants for the basketball position should have a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university and have some coaching experience at either the scholastic or college level. They should also have a good knowledge of basketball and a good understanding of the rules.

Applicants for the golf position should have a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university and have some coaching experience at either the scholastic or college level. They should also have a good knowledge of golf and a good understanding of the rules.

Interested persons should send their resumes and letters of reference to him at Bolton High, 72 Brandy St., Bolton.

Bits and pieces

1977 Greater Hartford Open winner Wayne Garland, who has lost more than he's won. The addition of Don Gullett and Reggie Jackson to the Wayne roster has not put a "lock" on the AL East pennant as many predicted. Jack Nicklaus, in fact, may be heading out of the Big Apple after a most tumultuous season in which he was in the middle of just about every controversy possible.

Are these instant rich performers worth the dough? Several clubs are having second thoughts. The general impression is that a Rawley Estwick, and a Dave Kingman will go on the market but the takers will be few and far between.

Maybe the owners are wising up.

Fifth place tie for Nancy Narkon

Tied with four others in fifth place strokes off the pace after the first round of the Connecticut State Women's Amateur Golf Championship is Nancy Narkon.

Narkon, playing out of Manchester Country Club, finished an 82 at Lyman Meadow Golf Club in Middletown and trail first round leader Gail Appell, 1975 champ, who carded a four-over-par 77.

Laura Vautrain of Wallingford Country Club was one stroke behind with a 78 with Barbara Young and Lois Dagle tied for third with rounds of 79.

Play in the 54-hole event continues today and runs through Thursday.

Briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Renee Richards has won the latest round in a court battle to participate in the upcoming United States Open Tennis Tournament.

State Supreme Court Justice Alfred Ascione Tuesday issued a temporary injunction barring the U.S. Tennis Association, the U.S. Open Tournament Committee and the Women's Tennis Association from excluding the 42-year-old transsexual from the competition because of her inability to pass a sex chromosome test.

The U.S. Open, held at Forest Hills, starts Aug. 31. Dr. Richards, an ophthalmologist who underwent a sex change operation in August 1975, has played in several women's tennis tournaments, and claimed the refusal by U.S. Open officials to let her compete was discriminatory.

In a 13-page decision handed down in Manhattan, Ascione

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: My 24-year-old daughter has made a decision that is breaking my heart. I honestly wonder if she's in her right mind.
A: At 16 she married because she was pregnant, and now she has seven children. The last two are identical twin girls born only five days ago. She and her husband have decided to keep one of the twins, and give the other up for adoption. Abby, can you believe that? Their reason is so horrible, that I'm almost ashamed to tell you.
One of the twins was born with a club foot and a cleft palate. The other twin is perfect. Both are beautiful and otherwise healthy. They want to keep the perfect one and give the other one away. The thought of separating those twin babies makes me sick.
I tried to tell my daughter that the club foot and cleft palate can be corrected with surgery, but she says that four children are all they can afford.
I offered to take the defective baby, but she says it would create problems to have her in the family. She's already contacted an adoption agency, and a childless couple is waiting to adopt the twin.
Can you help me? Please hurry.

DEAR GRANNY: Urge your daughter to see a psychiatrist. She could be disturbed, or suffering from a temporary depression from which she would recover. Should she through with the adoption, she will be final for a year. Perhaps she'll regain her senses by that time, but if so, what a cruel ordeal for the adoptive parent!
DEAR ABBY: My sister has developed an allergy to dining dishes. The minute she starts eating on the dishes, she's not just sneezing, but a long string of them. Mama says she can't help it, so I have to do the dishes alone. What should I do? I think my sister is just trying to get out of doing the dishes.

DEAR DISH: Your sister could be allergic to the soap powder or liquid detergent you use for dishwashing. A doctor could determine this. If that's the case, it's time for a change. (What a spot for a commercial!)
DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to HATES HUNTING. If he doesn't want to go hunting, he doesn't have to, but is he willing to help foot the bill to save wildlife? Hunters contribute about $20 million annually to preserve wildlife. Abby, sport hunting has never endangered a species!
Sadly, there are slot hunters who drink while hunting, and shoot everything that moves. Fortunately, there are a small minority, which is growing smaller because in many states there are mandatory safety courses for hunters under age 18 or 24.
As for hunters killing others (or themselves) by mistake, in 1976 there were nearly 100,000 deer hunters in New Mexico, but only six hunting accidents involving gun fatalities.

DEAR L.L.: In the interest of fairness, TV gives hunters equal time. But I still feel that until hunted animals can shoot back, they don't have an equal chance.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're having something special done for you today, give explicit instructions. Otherwise you could be disappointed by your artistic taste.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be a success story. If you're feeling discouraged today, but don't get away the store if you can't see the bear, but also be sensible.
