All they need is a packet of seed or a few plants started by a commercial grower. Mr. Gollmitzer began with plants, given to him by his son, Richard, who had seen them in South Windsor. That was four, or perhaps five, years ago. Since then, Mr Gollmitzer has saved seed from his own plants each year

He sows seed in flats in April or even in March, setting the flats on a table in a sunny window upstairs in the house. When the small plants are well started and the weather is warmer, the seedlings go into a cold frame outdoors in a sunny spot, and into the garden when there is no danger of frost

In August, the plants are more than knee-high, each topped by feathery scarlet plumes. They will keep their glistening green foliage and the strong color of their blossoms until the growing season ends with the first fall frost

This is the plume type of celosia, and there is another type, called crested, with tight blossoms looking like a rooster's red comb. Cockscomb is another name for all of the celosias but it best fits the Colorful names

A catalog from one of the big seed companies lists some colorful variety names for celosia. In the plume ype, for example, there are Red Fox, Forest Fire and Fiery Feather. In the crested type, there are Jewel Box, Prairie Fire and Toreador. The seed company says celosia is "easily grown, thrives on heat, tolerates frought." There are yellow celosias as well as red ones. Mr. Gollmitzer has been a gardener since he was a boy and helped his father at the famihome next door on Tolland Tpke. His present garden is 30 by 50 feet with flowers and vegetables ogether, both planted in rows spaced widely enough so plants can be cultivated with a rotary tiller.

He has used the tiller to prepare the soil for planting a number of times but this year had a neighbor bring his farm tractor and plow the soil more deeply. "My carrots were getting stubby, he explains, and with tillage he expects the carrots to grow longer.

With their two children now grown and living in their own homes, Mr. ing Mrs. Gollmitzer have more gar den vegetables than needed by a family of two and Mr. Gollmitzer gives away more than they eat.

This is especially true of cabbage, and Mr. Gollmitzer thinks he has found the finest cabbage in the world, Early Copenhagen. It has good flavor. The solid heads do not split His sister-in-law comes every year from Hazardville to get cabbages for petitioners have uncovered many complaints citing dirty water and persons with intestinal problems. He said he has not drunk the town required to drink a large quantity of water daily because of a respiratory problem. Mrs. Reynolds said it is great inconvenience to have to boil and buy water. She said many residents have told her that they do not use Manchester water and get it from other towns.

The petition indicts the Town of Manchester government especially the Water and Sewer Department for · Failure to supply adequate clean and sanitary water. · Breach of its contractual obligations for pure water supply. · Failure to adequately, individually notify each of us of potential health hazards, except for notification in the newspapers. The petitioners are demanding three actions: · Immediate individual personal notification from the town that hygienic and sanitary water is now being supplied to their homes.

 Prompt, independent redress and restitution of damages suffered for breach of contract and rights. Provision of perpetual, adequate, pure and sanitary water supply to the West Side of the town to prevent further dirty, algae laden water "which we have been receiving for years." The damages the residents are seeking might include payment for several months of bad water, electricity for boiling water and for buying imported or bottled water. Reynolds said the petition will be filed Friday at the town clerk's office and the petitioners will expect an answer to the charges within seven

DEAR MODEST: Our attitudes about nudity are based on our early training, acquired inhibitions and the accepted social customs of society. Some people go in for unconventional behavior, but that doesn't necessarily make them "evil-minded. I believe everything has its place -including the fig leaf.

DEAR ABBY: I didn't sleep a wink last night. Yesterday while driving a well-traveled street, I felt a sudden thump, and I knew I hit something. I stopped abruptly, nearly causing an accident, and discovered that I had struck a beautiful golden cocker spaniel puppy. He had no tags, but I didn't want to waste precious time trying to find his owner, so I put him in my car and rushed

ABBY: My husband has been interested in nudism for some time, and has tried to get me to go to a nudist camp with him. I have nothing against nudist camps, but I'm just not the type who could strip down naked in front of

We've had many arguments about this, and have even come close to getting a divorce over it. I don't see how normal people can go to a place like that without getting a few "evil" thoughts. Am I wrong to think this way, or am I Do you think a man who really loved his wife would want her to go naked in front of other men? MODEST

DEAR MODEST: Our attitudes about nudity are based on our early training, acquired inhibitions and the accepted social customs of society. Some people go in for unconventional behavior, but that doesn't necessarily make them "evil-minded." I believe everything has its place-including the fig leaf. DEAR ABBY: I didn't sleep a wink last night. Yesterday while driving a well-traveled street. I felt a sudden thump, and I knew I hit something. I stopped abruptly, nearly causing an accident, and discovered that I had struck a beautiful golden cocker spaniel puppy.
