Mott open despite fire, damage to food slight

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

A fire of suspicious origin at Mott's Shop-Rite Supermarket, 587 E. Middle Tpke., late Sunday afternoon destroyed only one papergoods display shelf and its contents and contaminated only about 10 per cent of the food, according to fire and Mott's officials.

The store was open for business today as usual as a result of all-night efforts by more than 50 Mott's employees and the clean-up operations of the Town Fire Department.

The call at 4:50 p.m. brought out two engine companies and 40 on duty, off-duty and volunteer fire fighters. The fire was located in the section of paper napkins and was extinguished quickly, Town Fire Chief John Rivoso said today. The rest of the fire was contained by the store's sprinkler system, he said.

The 24,000 square foot store was engulfed in smoke and a hole had to be cut in the roof to allow ventilation. All firemen who entered the building were equipped with air pacs. Extra equipment was brought to the scene on the department's new rescue truck. Manchester's Eighth District and Bolton's fire departments were on standby.

Fire fighters were on the scene until about 9 p.m. with clean-up operations and town fire officials were at the store until 1 a.m. today.

Representatives from the state Department of Consumer Protection inspected the store Sunday night and today, according to Stanford Cohen, president of Mott's Supermarkets, Inc. Items which were determined unfit for sale were baked goods, dairy items, and any items which had received possible contamination from smoke or ashes, Cohen said. He said he had no idea of the value of the items which had to be thrown out. However, he said about 90 per cent of the store's products, including all the meat, was saved.

The store had closed at 4 p.m. and all the meat had been stored in air-tight coolers.

Carter encouraged over China contact

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter is said to be encouraged by new U.S. contacts with the new generation of Chinese leaders, but he says full recognition of the mainland remains "well into the future."

According to a top White House source, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's trip to China last week reinforced the administration's belief that this is "a very propitious time for contact at the highest level." Vance found China's leadership to be competent, projecting a feeling of security, and showing a more relaxed attitude than other visitors have seen in some time, the source said.

At the same time Vance's visit left the Chinese leaders with "an increased degree of assurance" of the U.S. capacity and will to act decisively around the world, the source said. But he was unwilling to discuss one of the biggest stumbling blocks to U.S.-Chinese relations — the future of Taiwan.

Meanwhile, Carter scheduled a regular weekly Cabinet meeting today after a 3-week vacation break. Carter spent 3 1/2 hours Sunday with Vance, Vice President Walter Mondale, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell and National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Powell reported that the first 75 minutes were spent on China, and the remainder on southern Africa, the Middle East, the Panama Canal, the strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union and a nuclear test ban.

Vance's visit provided the highest level U.S.-Chinese talks for either the new Carter administration or Premier Hua Kuo-feng. The contact between the two giants has been latent since the Nixon administration's 1971 Shanghai Communiqué.

That communiqué was issued at the effort of Richard Nixon's first visit to China in 1972. It indicated agreement on the need for increased contracts between the two countries leading to eventual withdrawal of U.S. troops from Taiwan.

The President told a group of editors over the weekend that the United States was one of only a few nations that does not recognize China.

"But we do not intend to act hastily," he said. "When we do make a decision about China, if we make one of recognition it is undoubtedly going to be well into the future and it will be based on what I consider to be in the best interests of our country."

Carter said he and Vance discussed at length "the terms under which we could normalize relationships with the People's Republic of China on the mainland and also honor our longstanding commitment that the people in Taiwan could live in freedom."

Giles to deny employe grievances

Jay Giles, Manchester's director of public works, said this morning that he will deny a grievance filed in connection with the recent approval of reclassifications in the Water and Sewer Department.

According to town personnel rules, Giles must respond to the grievance today — five days after the complaint was filed.

Three separate, but similar, grievances were filed on the issue last week. One of the grievances was filed by Highway Superintendent Timothy O'Sullivan and sent to Giles.

The others were sent by mid-management personnel in the Engineering Department to Town Engineer Walter Senkow and by mid-management employes in the Highway Department to Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager.

The reclassifications for three positions — two foremen and an office manager — in the Water and Sewer Department were approved Aug. 16 by the Town Board of Directors.

O'Sullivan said that he filed his grievance because the reclassifications have not been advertised.

The town is required to advertise reclassifications, which amount to a step-up in a position. Advertisement of the reclassification permits anyone to apply for the newly created position.

Giles called the grievance action premature.

He said that the reclassifications have been approved by the directors, but the actual reclassifying of the positions has not yet taken place.

When the reclassifications do take place, the town's personnel and affirmative action rules will be followed, he said.

The denial of the grievance may be appealed to Town Manager Robert Weiss.

If Weiss denies an appeal, there is no mechanism for a further appeal to the state, Giles said.

Local unions that file a grievance may appeal the town's decision to a state board. In this case, however, the grievances were filed by non-union personnel.

State

STORRS (UPI) — The membership of the American Federation of Government Employees apparently doesn't want the union to organize the military, according to its executive vice president. Joseph Gleason said Saturday before a University of Connecticut seminar that he believes his members are "heavily against" organizing servicemen. The union has queried its members as to whether they want the AFGE to organize the armed services.

HARTFORD (UPI) — With Bibles in their hands and tears in their eyes, they came to say goodbye to Elvis Presley. More than 2,000 fans of the King of Rock and Roll filled Bushnell Park Saturday for a memorial service honoring Presley, who died Aug. 16 of heart failure.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The First Bank has reached an agreement in principle to buy the Hartford-based Connecticut Bank Federation Inc., a bank holding company. The First Bank, formerly known as First New Haven National Bank, now has assets of more than $350 million and operates 30 offices from New London to Derby.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment proposal raised at least $2,000 by walking through the streets of Hartford in a trek sponsored by the National Organization for Women. The Saturday march was among 100 throughout the country designed to raise $50,000 to fund a final push to assure ratification from just three more states for the controversial amendment.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Residents of a downtown luxury apartment complex were to meet tonight to try to get rid of their new neighbor — a 36-boulder rock sculpture created by artist Carl Andre. A Bushnell Towers resident, who asked not to be named, said tenants are upset with both the work — a free-form arrangement of boulders — and the $87,000 the city of Hartford paid the 42-year-old Andre to complete it.

Regional

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The Justice Department, after hearing two days of grand jury testimony, has decided no further probe is warranted into allegations the administration of Gov. Meldrim Thomson mishandled federal funds. In a carefully worded public statement released Saturday, U.S. Attorney William Shabean said "no additional investigation will be conducted at this time into allegations of misuse of federal funds by the State of New Hampshire."

CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI) — The officer in charge of the maximum security section of the Adult Correctional Institutions says his bosses overreacted when they called state police in riot gear to the prison and then ordered inmates locked up for the weekend. The prison's top officials — Corrections Director Bradford E. Southworth and Assistant Corrections Director William Laurie — called in troopers Friday night when some prisoners apparently rebelled over the transfer of two fellow inmates to the disciplinary unit. Three guards and one inmate needed hospital treatment.

National

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UPI) — A prison farm trusty who kidnaped the wife of a retired university official has dropped out of sight, increasing concern for the safety of the hostage, police report. Officials speculated Sunday that Douglas Henry, 22, of Lansing, Mich. probably was holed-up somewhere in Michigan's vast Upper Peninsula with Evelyn Vantassel, the wife of a retired Northern Michigan University vice president.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The election of Bob Livingston as Louisiana's 1st District congressman gives the Republican party three seats in the state's once solidly Democratic eight-member delegation.

Livingston, 34, a former assistant U.S. attorney and assistant state attorney general, put the 1st District office under the Republican banner for the first time in 102 years Saturday by taking 50 per cent of the vote in a three-man race.

International

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — The owner of the South Australian Reptile Park in Adelaide Sunday used mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to revive a taipan, Australia's largest and deadliest snake. Park officials said Joe Bredel, of Renmark, South Australia, blew into the unconscious snake's throat with a straw and the treatment saved the reptile.

One salmonellosis case reported in Manchester

One case of salmonellosis was reported in Manchester early this month.

The flu-like disease has been reported in four Northeastern states including Connecticut and is traced to precooked beef, says the National Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta.

Ronald Kraatz, assistant town health director, said he doesn't know for sure if the Manchester case was caused by contaminated roast beef.

Described as Newport surotype, the salmonellosis sometimes causes a severe intestinal infection potentially fatal to infants and the chronically ill.

The CDC said the illness was traced to precooked beef served in delicatessens and sold in supermarkets. Doctors at the center Sunday suggested that consumers refrain from purchasing precooked beef for the next several weeks.

A Stop & Shop plant in the Boston area is among three roast beef processors in the Northeast formally asked by the U.S. Department of Agriculture today to recall suspect beef.

A spokesman from the delicatessen department of Stop & Shop in Manchester said the store had received a notice about two weeks ago to remove any precooked beef processed up to a certain date. However, the spokesman said the local store had none to remove as their dated supply didn't come in that category and was "all okay."

The CDC said that precooked roasts may continue to pose a risk as long as they are cooked to internal temperatures of less than 130 degrees Fahrenheit. Such temperatures are usual for precooked roast beef but are not high enough to destroy salmonellae.

Kraatz said that any kind of precooked products including meat, fish and poultry present the possibility of promoting bacteria because of a low pre-cooking temperature.

He said that the Department of Preventable Diseases of the State Health Department is preparing a press release concerning the incidents of salmonellosis because of the number of telephone calls the department has received recently.

Camera boom of voyager almost fully extended

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — An analysis of pictures taken more than 44 million miles from earth by Voyager II shows an almost fully extended camera boom and scientists today planned to issue a second — and hopefully more successful — computer command to fully extend the boom arm.

Officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said they would "blow off" a two-pound dust cover at the same time the Voyager is making a pitch turn maneuver.

They said timing the "blow off" to the maneuver would snap the 7 1/2-foot boom arm the one degree it needed to be fully extended. The boom arm holds camera equipment.

"The pictures weren't blurred, showing us the boom is remaining stationary," said Frank Bristow of the JPL. "There is a chance it's locked and we just didn't get the signal."

The extension was first tried Friday, but an onboard computer with a mind of its own countermanded JPL's instructions. However, scientists said they now know why the order was rejected.

The rejection delayed for another two days the flight of the craft's sister ship, Voyager I, which has now been reset for Sept. 5 so technicians at Cape Canaveral, Fla., can install five more coiled springs to prevent similar boom extension problems. Bristow said the first command was rejected because as the main computer was issuing instructions, a secondary computer switched memory banks.

The main computer is programmed to stop any maneuver when it appears something is amiss, such as the switching. However, scientists did not know why the second computer "acted up."

"It closed the sequence down," Bristow said. "Because it saw the attitude control shifting back and forth from the main system to the backup."

Opinion

Inflated unemployment

Of all the statistics cranked out by the federal government, one of the most closely watched is the unemployment rate.

Together with the consumer price index, the national unemployment rate is taken as an overall report of how the economy is doing. Thus it forms the basis for some of government's most important decisions.

Among these are whether to stimulate the economy, the proper level of federal spending and deficit, the raising or lowering of taxes and what to do about job-creation programs and public service hiring.

Along with its role as a gaugepost, the jobless rate recently has been a puzzle and a discouragement. It has dropped far more slowly from its peak during the 1974-75 recession than it did in past recoveries.

Now come two senior economists at the University of Miami, Kenneth W. Clarkson and Roger E. Meiners, with a potentially important explanation for the jobless rate's poor performance.

They note that the Bureau of Labor Statistics defines the unemployment rate as the percentage of the civilian work force that is actively seeking a job but cannot find one.

However, they point out that in 1972 Congress required that recipients of food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) register for work with the unemployment service. Before that, many recipients of food stamps and welfare were not actively seeking jobs, did not register for work and were not counted on the unemployment rolls. Now they stand to lose benefits by not registering.

"Hence," Clarkson and Meiners contend, "individuals are required to claim that they are seeking employment even though they have no more intention of actively seeking employment than they did before the work registration requirement...."

"Although this (registration) policy may be desirable, it has had the unfortunate impact of artificially inflating the official unemployment statistics since 1972."

Since 1975, they continue, the official jobless rates have been about two percentage points higher than they would have been without the work registration rule.

Thus, the current 6.9 per cent reported unemployment, which appears uncomfortably high, may actually be "real" joblessness of 4.9 per cent, which is close to what economists view as full employment.

The federal government would do well to review Clarkson and Meiners' findings (which support work done earlier by economists at MIT). Some of the major programs being advocated in Washington might actually do little to reduce illusory unemployment, but could heat up inflation which is all too real.

A tax dilemma: Homes

The American taxpayer's favorite "loophole" — deductions for home mortgage interest and real estate taxes — is under the scrutiny of tax reformers.

A person's home is not only his castle but in most cases the only tax shelter he has. And few people seriously suggest abolishing that advantage.

But there is strong sentiment in both the White House and in Capitol Hill for at least reducing the tax advantages for home ownership.

Critics say the advantages go mostly to the affluent, because they can afford more expensive homes with higher mortgages and property taxes. Every home owner benefits, of course, but because the deductions come right off the top of one's income, they are of more value to those in the higher brackets.

Thus one reform being talked about is to change the deductions from income to a credit against income taxes.

The credit would be limited to some specified ceiling which would be the same for everybody.

The trouble with this, however, is the wide variation in housing costs around the country. A tax credit that might be liberal for a home owner in a small town where homes are relatively inexpensive and property taxes low could work a hardship in a high priced area.

Another tax provision that would be chancy to tamper with is the one that allows a person to defer the capital gains tax on the profit from the sale of his residence if he buys a new one at the same or higher cost.

This particular shelter has enabled millions of people to upgrade their standard of living and keep a jump ahead of inflation.

Making the tax advantages of home ownership more equal for people of all incomes is a worthwhile goal. There is also the question of the present system's inherent unfairness to renters, who enjoy no such advantages.

But reform in any of these areas should be approached with the utmost caution, lest a very large monkey wrench be unwittingly thrown into one of this country's most basic and vital industries.

Kosak offers rebuttal on airline deregulation

To the editor,

In reply to Mr. Rennie's Forum letter of Aug. 20, 1977 on airline deregulation, I would like to make clear that by using the term "Brand-X" Airline in my earlier letter, I am not intending to dissuade to air carriers such as Allegheny, Piedmont, Air New England, Pilgrim etc., and I do not label them as unsafe or unreliable. I also do not subscribe to the theory that every new small air carrier that might be born out of the "deregulation" bills will necessarily be unsafe or unreliable, however, chances are high that some will fit that description.

Airline deregulation is a very complex issue and any legislation dealing with it must be carefully evaluated before it is made into law. The S292 and S689 bills as they now stand are grossly deceptive. They cannot deregulate an industry by offering taxpayer subsidies to one group (new smaller air carriers) and at the same time severely limit the rights of the major carriers to serve new routes.

To label this as deregulation is lunacy. A long-time champion of free enterprise, a pilot who knows well the aviation industry and a senator who is interested enough to attend the "deregulation" hearings, is Barry Goldwater.

In his letter to me, referring to S292 and S689 he states, "I can't support a bill that fails to stress safety as well as the need for fuel conservation." He further states: "It would be against the public interest, and perhaps safety, to have fly-by-night operators enter a deregulated industry and stay in business as long as the equipment will run."

Mr. Rennie stated that, "Senators Weicker and Ribicoff will insure that the competitive goal is achieved without a relaxation of safety requirements." If they vote for passage of S292 and S689 as they are now worded, nothing could be further from the truth.

Lance is no commoner

(First of two related columns)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If there is a bottom line to the whole Bert Lance affair, it is that F. Scott Fitzgerald was right: The rich are different from you and me.

That may not qualify as the century's most shocking disclosure, but it's not exactly the message which Jimmy Carter has tried so hard to convey about his administration.

And in embracing Lance so fervently, Carter may have jeopardized his own carefully cultivated political image as a man who shares the average American's anger at the special privilege of the wealthy.

Hijinks
It is a safe bet that precious few of the voters who cast their ballots for Jimmy Carter last year ever got away with the kind of financial hijinks that Budget Director Lance indulged in as a Georgia bank owner.

Most people who make a habit of kiting checks find themselves in hot water rather quickly. But not Bert Lance, whose campaign accounts while he was running for governor of Georgia were overdrawn as much as $152,000 between January and June of 1974 — without a nickel's penalty.

Relatives too
Just being related to Lance was good enough, in fact. His wife's account at one of his banks was overdrawn by $110,000 at one point, and nine of his relatives accumulated overdrafts "in the $200,000 to $450,000 range" during one seven-month period.

Borrowing huge sums of money was also a snap for banker Lance, who managed to wheedle millions of dollars in loans out of a whole slew of banks without putting up anything like full collateral.

Owned the bank
There's something to it, apparently, if you own a bank yourself and can toss a little business in the direction of those lending you the money. Or if you are widely known to be a very close friend of the next president of the U.S.

The comptroller of the Currency, after scrutinizing the record of Lance's conduct as a banker, concluded that none of the information uncovered "to date" warrants a criminal prosecution, although he carefully added that some allegations have yet to be thoroughly investigated.

Plane trips
There are, for instance, still questions about Lance's personal and political uses of airplanes owned or leased by his old bank, the National Bank of Georgia. And questions about the purpose of, and payment for, at least five trips which Carter himself took in bank aircraft. But never mind the fine print. Lance, Carter and the White House cheerleaders have chosen to view the comptroller's report as a vindication of the budget director. The president himself rushed to Lance's side, crying, "Bert, I'm proud of you!"

There will be further developments, no doubt, when Congress returns from its August recess and at least three House and Senate committees start raking over any glowing coals in the comptroller's report.

No fireworks expected
But don't count on major fireworks from Capitol Hill. The principal investigation panel, is the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, whose members last month tripped all over themselves in their haste to exonerate Lance of any wrongdoing ways, and in a printed accounting of the $5,000, this is how it was raised: Selling cards, candy and cookies, $50; catering suppers (especially spaghetti suppers), $50; baby-sitting (a troop project), $600; dish washing and house cleaning, $100; selling Air Fresh and other items, $100; picking apples and working on tobacco, $300; waste paper and scrap, $100; and making wreaths, corsages, and other Christmas decorations, $100.

That totals $2,800; the troop received contributions of $300 and the individual troop members also raised $1,900 themselves.

Troop members also corresponded with pen pals, learned about the countries they were to visit, reviewed knowledge of Girl Scout programs, perfected their primitive camping skills, learned songs, and discussed their own country.

Emily Smith said every group that visited in Europe did a lot of camping out with Rangers, their European counterparts.

"Many people in Europe commented they had a better opinion of American teen-agers after hearing our scouts sing on trains, boats and buses," Emily said.

Those members of Troop 1 in 1949 who made the first European visit were Emily Smith, leader; Claire Olds, assistant leader; Ann Bush, assistant leader; Marion Schledge, Marilyn Moore, Virginia Green, Joan Schuetz, Arte Pazianos, Betty Jean Lewis, Barbara Kloppenburg, Jean Schuetz and Carolyn Scott.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You once printed a letter of advice to my woman who is in love with a married man. In it you stated what she should and should not expect from her married lover.

As I sit alone on my patio recalling the wonderful stolen hours I shared with my married lover, I ache with loneliness, and I think I could derive some comfort from that letter. It certainly rang a bell with me.

I know he loves me, but I can't compete with a wife and four children, a lovely home and a respectable name in the community. I know I'll never have him. I never meant for this to get so serious, but it's too late now. Maybe I deserve the pain. I know better. Please try to find that letter and run it again. He calls me...

DEAR STARSHINE: Here's the letter. I hope it helps:

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is in love with a married man.

DEAR MANNY: Grow a beard. DEAR MANNY: My daughter goes around with a girl who brags about all the stuff she has shopped from stores.

DEAR MRS. X: Of course you should tell her mother. If she were your daughter, wouldn't YOU want to know?

DEAR MRS. X: Of course you should tell her mother. If she were your daughter, wouldn't YOU want to know?

About town

The ways and means committee of the Manchester Emblem Club will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Jean Gaboury, 27 Proctor Rd.

Carter friends seeking to block Canal rebuke Legislature of a similar resolution and has asked other state legislatures to take such stands. "Not only do our commerce and security lie in the balance, but the security of other nations depends on our use of the canal," Edwards said.

Opponents of the treaty lost some strength Sunday when Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who was to have been a member of the resolutions committee, announced he would not attend the conference.

The conference's resolutions committee was expected today to consider a proposal by Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards to support the Panama Canal pact. Carter's supporters, including Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, chairman of the resolution's committee, were expected to try to kill the resolution or weaken it drastically. Edwards won approval by the Louisiana

Cohen praised the more than 50 Shop-Rite employees who worked throughout the night to return the store to what Cohen termed immaculate condition. He said men and women employees from stores all over the area came to the store to offer their help after they heard about the fire over the radio and television last night. They worked all through the night and were still at work this morning.

Cohen also had high praise for the Town Fire Department which he said, "did a magnificent job of putting out the fire and, in addition, in assisting with clean-up and reducing the damage. They are obviously experts. They were careful not to cause unnecessary damage."

The Manchester Fire Department also inspected the store this morning and declared it fit for use, Cohen said, as did the Consumer Protection Department.

Rivosa termed the fire a minor fire today since it was confined to only one small area of the store. Only the one shelf section where the fire apparently started had to be thrown out.

Rivosa said the fire definitely started in the paper goods and spread to charcoal which was at the end of the shelf. The Manchester Police Department is assisting with the investigation.

Police Chief Robert D. Lannan said several suspects are being interviewed in connection with the fire.

Police said they were on the grounds of Boulder Ridge Park. They are to appear in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, Sept. 28.

Barbara Bellefleur, 46, of 45 Talcott Ave., Rockville, was charged Saturday with fourth-degree larceny on complaint of the Shopping Bag Market, Rockville. Court date is Sept. 28.

Giles explains funding of sewer, road work

Jay Giles, director of public works, talked about upcoming referendum questions at last week's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Manchester.

Earlier this month, the Town Board of Directors voted to place two referendum questions on the November ballot. The questions concern funding for road and sewer improvements.

The referendum question concerning the sewer project will ask voters to approve borrowing of $1,286,000 in anticipation of state and federal funding, Giles said.

The project — installation of a trunk line from Union Pond to Tolland Tpke. and street sewers in the Baldwin-Concord Rd. area — will be funded primarily with a federal grant that the town has applied for through the state.

The directors have already approved $315,000 in town funds for the project. This money will come from sewer assessments paid by property owners in the area.

The town cannot borrow in anticipation of state and federal funds without the approval of the voters. Thus, the referendum question will seek the approval. The borrowing will result in no additional cost to the town because the money will be reimbursed by the federal grant, if it is approved. If the grant is not approved, the project probably would be discontinued.

The second referendum question will seek approval of borrowing $1,500,000 to pay the town's share of five road improvement projects.

The projects have been approved for 70 per cent federal funding through highway turn-back funds. Giles said that the projects are long-range ones that may not be completed for three to four years.

The top priority items of the five will be improvements on Main St. and reconstruction of the Main and Center Sts. intersection.

Manchester police report

Craig H. Wolfram, 18, of 165 Thompson Rd., was arrested Saturday on a warrant and held in lieu of $20,000 bond on charges of first-degree robbery and first-degree larceny. The arrest was in connection with an armed robbery at Westway Pharmacy, 456 Hartford Rd. on Nov. 19, 1976 from which about $3,000 was stolen. One other arrest is expected in the case, police detectives said. Wolfram was presented in court today on the charges. Donna M. Gaston, 21, of Hartford was arrested on charges of fourth-degree larceny and second-degree failure to appear in court. She was released on $500 surety bond for court today.

Seven housemistresses were reported over the weekend. One home on Crestwood Dr. was totally ransacked, police said, but it had not been determined that was missing. Another home on Crestwood Dr. was also entered at about the same time, either late Saturday night or early Sunday, and it had also not been determined what was missing.

Two rooms in a home on Green Manor Rd. were also ransacked, but nothing was reported missing. Nothing was reported missing from a burglary at a home on Armore Rd. Less than $50 cash was taken from a home on Tanner St. A burglary was also reported at a Vernon St. home. All the house burglaries were reported Sunday. An attempted burglary was reported at an East St. home early today.

A break was reported at Anderson's Amoco Station on Main St. Sunday morning, but it was not known if anything was missing. A motorcycle and a boat motor were stolen from a Hilliard St. yard. The motorcycle was recovered Sunday afternoon on Eighth Utilities District property.

A 1974 Opel was reported stolen from the parking lot of a Hartford Rd. apartment early today. The car had been missing since Sunday night.

related charges involving juveniles and had been released on $1,000 bond. Police declined to discuss the charges. The body of Mrs. Graves was found inside her East St. apartment about 7:30 p.m. and O'Keefe was picked up when he showed up at the death scene. He was ordered held in $100,000 bond. An autopsy was ordered to determine how the woman died.

John Tripp, 24, of Maskell Rd., South Windsor, was charged Saturday with failure to grant the right of way at a private drive. Police said he made a left turn into the path of a car driven by Richard Lanagan of Stafford Springs. Court date is Sept. 9.

John Tripp, 24, of Maskell Rd., South Windsor, was charged Saturday with failure to obey a traffic control signal. Police said he struck a barricade on a dead-end street. No court date was given.

South Windsor Police are investigating a break reported Sunday night in a home on Diane Dr. Police said the window returned home and found three storm windows had been pushed in.

The owner of a home on Benedict Dr. reported the home had been entered and two diamond rings were missing. Police said no sign of forced entry was found.

Bolton State Police are investigating an accident Saturday night on Rt. 6 in Bolton. Police said Mary Matulis of Broad Brook was stopped for a red light at the intersection of Bolton Center Rd. and Rt. 6 and when the light turned green she started to proceed onto Rt. 6. Police said a car driven by William Bermudez Jr., 17, of 7 Highview Rd., South Windsor, went through a red light, collided with the Matulis car, and then left the scene.

State building code lagging in standards

The State of Connecticut's building codes have fallen behind existing national standards. Although the matter presents no serious problems, the state code should be updated on a more regular basis, according to the Town of Manchester's chief and deputy building inspectors.

The matter was brought to light locally earlier this year when J.C. Penney Co. had to obtain several variances from the Town Building Code Board of Appeals.

The firm, which plans a large distribution center for the proposed industrial park, was denied a building permit by Francis Conti, Manchester's chief building inspector.

Conti said that he had to deny the permit because Penney proposed installation of several items, mostly for fire protection, that were not included in the state building codes. The items proposed by Penney were more modern than those included in the state codes.

At Hayber, deputy building inspector, mentioned the state's electrical code as a good example of the problem. A national code that would go into effect in 1978 is presently being considered, but the state is still working under the 1971 national code.

"We should be up-to-date with any changes," Hayber said. There are new products and methods that have been created since 1971 and, thus, are not included in the state electrical code.

"That's the reason that the national codes are constantly updated," he said. The state's plumbing code was adopted in 1956, Hayber said. There are steps, however, that permit use of some products, such as plastic piping, that are not mentioned in the 1956 code, he said.

The major problem with the state codes for the Town Building Department is "the constant research to make sure we have met present codes," Hayber said. Conti said that although there are no serious problems caused by the state's lag behind national standards, he also supports a speed-up in the state's adoption of national standards.

"They (the state) should adopt immediately the new regulations," he said. Conti also said, however, that the problem of a state code being behind national standards is not unique to Connecticut. He said that in other states, as in Connecticut, the government is not too concerned with immediately updating such codes if the present state standards are considered adequate.

"The wheels of legislation — they grind very slowly," Conti said. There are new products and move in Mayor John Mandanici's program to cut the welfare caseload and is thought to be the first of its kind in the country. Photo identification cards and a requirement that recipients pick up their checks in person also have been ordered to cut fraud.

Mandanici's program is reaping benefits. The result of a recent study shows the welfare caseload in Hartford is 50 per cent higher although Hartford and Bridgeport have the same population.

Meanwhile, Sen. Robert Houley, D-Somers, co-chairman of the Appropriations Committee which oversees all state spending, said he wants to insure local welfare officials can make attending such classes a requirement for collecting benefits.

However, the state Legislature doesn't convene until February and changes in the law could not be made before then.

Language requirement questioned by state

HARTFORD (UPI) — State officials have scheduled a meeting this week with Bridgeport welfare officials to resolve the question of whether the city can require Spanish-speaking recipients to take English classes.

Bridgeport, which announced the new requirement for 150 persons who do not speak English, claims the requirement is valid because without language skills the welfare recipients can't look for a job.

However, Connecticut Social Services Commissioner Edward Maher said last week he doesn't think the class requirement is legal. Since state funds pay 90 percent of the program's cost and the state controls the eligibility standards, his decision could scuttle the program. The city pays the remaining 10 percent.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso backed up Maher and suggested the meeting, which is scheduled for Wednesday. The class requirement is the latest

More study sought Vernon businessmen want changes in I-86

Vernon businessmen and officials have convinced the state Department of Transportation (DOT) that plans for highway expansion at Vernon Circle will do economic harm to the area or the DOT will go ahead with its design.

Stephan A. Lamont, president of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce, urges a coordinated effort in this direction.

The businessmen have organized and hired a Farmington firm to do an independent study on the effect the DOT plans would have on shopping centers in the circle area.

Lamont referred to the present DOT plans to change original I-86 designs by omitting an eastbound entrance ramp at the circle, thus forcing eastbound traffic to travel Rte. 30 to Dobson Rd. to gain entrance to I-86.

The businessmen feel this will discourage shopping at the circle because of the inconvenience it will cause.

Lamont said, "At this stage it is apparent that knowledgeable, objective observers disagree regarding what this radical change in traffic patterns will produce."

He said more study is needed to evaluate how changes in traffic movement will affect shopping habits, safety and environment.

The original request that while the design reconsidered was made by Max Javit, developer of the Tri-City Shopping Plaza. He called for the survey to analyze the extent of harm to Vernon's economy resulting from losses of commercial tax revenues and individual incomes, if present state plans are adhered to.

Lamont said the chamber, representing about 300 businesses and professions, strongly endorses Javit's proposal.

Lamont said he sent letters to remind concerned persons of the urgency of the problem and to urge a fully coordinated effort by all concerned, especially town and state officials.

The highway work in the Bolton Rd. area has already been started. The Vernon Circle area will not be started for some time so businessmen feel there is still time to make changes.

Bolton tax collections good despite economy

Tax collections are good this year in Bolton with about 91 per cent of taxes on the 1976 Grand List paid so far, said Elaine Potterton, tax collector.

Taxes due total $1,443,081. Taxes paid to date total $1,317,150. Outstanding taxes total $125,931.

Mrs. Potterton said that while the total tax collection is down slightly, it is very good in view of the economy. She said the tax collection at this point is better than last year.

Taxes due on the 1976 Grand List was $1,394,744. Taxes collected were $1,351,265, with $43,479 outstanding.

Mrs. Potterton said during the 1975-76 fiscal year 35 tax liens were filed and 46 were released. During 1974-75, 34 tax liens were issued and 43 were released.

During the last fiscal year, she collected $21,400 in back taxes and $15,725 in interest.

The tax collector reminded residents who have not paid their motor vehicle taxes that their names have been put on a delinquent list with the Motor Vehicle Department. They will not be able to renew their registrations until the taxes are paid.

The tax collector's office is open Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. Anyone having questions should call 646-0784.

A backyard carnival to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Fund will be held Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. at 33 Watrous Rd. There will be a variety of games, trampoline jumping and pony rides. Refreshments will be sold.

The carnival will be run by Marcia and Louise, 74, 61, at Robertson Park Wednesday afternoon.

Pats' Grogan off mark in defeat over Steelers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Grogan completed the most crucial pass in the game, but there was little else to praise about the New England quarterback Sunday in the Patriots' 13-10 pre-season overtime victory against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

In fact, if New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks had not watched his young quarterback in disbelief in the first half, Grogan wouldn't have gotten his chance at a measure of redemption. He tossed a six-yard game-tying touchdown pass to Russ Francis with 14 seconds left in regulation time that sent the game into overtime.

"If he hadn't played so badly in the first half, I wouldn't have played him in the second half," said Fairbanks.

John Smith kicked a 32-yard field goal 4:38 into the extra period after a 34-yard drive to give New England its third victory in four exhibition games.

Grogan finished with seven completions in 25 attempts for a paltry 48 yards. Four of his passes were intercepted. That the Patriots, who rank the AFC championship this year, rallied

McDonald Rec singles champ; Custer-Lombardo cop doubles

By EARL YOST

Two young men who shuffled down from Buffalo, N.Y., and settled in Manchester were on opposite sides of the net in the 1977 Rec Men's Singles Tennis Tournament finals Saturday morning at Charter Oak Park.

Second-seeded Tom McDonald, surprised top-seeded 23-year-old Mike White in the best of three finals by winning in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6.

McDonald broke White's service in the first three games, and it wasn't a moving, appeared to upset White, but it was the consistency of McDonald that turned the tide. White was forced into errors and when he played for winners, the balls hit outside the lines.

The two native New Yorkers split the first three games, and it wasn't until the eighth game that McDonald broke service and moved to a 5-3 edge. The score was tied five times before the point was won which was featured by long rallies, a duplicate of the seventh game with McDonald serving. In this game, six times the two were deadlocked.

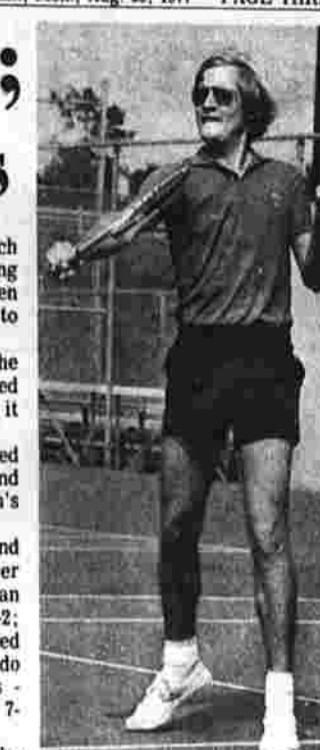

McDonald broke White's service in the first game of the second set and rolled to a 3-0 advantage before White came back to cut the margin to 3-2, a pair of double faults on serve giving White the first point.

With a hard serve, McDonald went up 4-2 before White rallied to square matters, 4-4, when McDonald double faulted again in the eighth game.

The best game of the set marked McDonald breaking White's serve once again before he blasted a winner down the line against a charging foe for a 5-4 lead.

White who exhibited several displays of temper, failed to return three of McDonald's serves in the 10th game and the Prudential Insurancemen walked off the court a winner.

The Custer-Lombardo team had to go to a nine-point tie-breaker to win

Stockton heads Dibbs' fan club

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — If tennis buffs ever formed an Eddie Dibbs fan club, they'd be advised to make Dick Stockton a charter member.

"It's not one of 10 people don't know Dibbs is the No. 2 ranked player in the United States," Stockton said Sunday after Dibbs beat him, 6-4, 6-2, in a quarterfinal in the U.S. Professional Tennis Championship match.

"I think Eddie's game is so underrated, and you people (reporters) don't do anything to make it any better," he said.

Stockton noted the attention paid when Jimmy Connors hurt his back Saturday and was forced to withdraw from the $125,000 tournament.

"That's all anyone ever writes about," said Stockton. "Connors hurts his back, and you people run around with the place, and I know his going on out there on the court."

And Stockton says Dibbs isn't boring, either.

"I don't know why anyone thinks he is," Stockton said. "He has a good serve for a little guy, and he has a great overhead. Sure, he'll stay back and volley all day if you let him, but he can't do other things too."

"I watched the news last night, and I saw some guy knocking the tournament because (Bjorn) Borg and (Guillermo) Vilas aren't here." He talked as if Dibbs and (Manuel) Orantes are nothing. I'll tell you, it is the toughest tournament in a first of 64 there. You don't see people coming up here to have a good time."

In other matches Sunday, Spain's Orantes bested Colombia's Ivan Molina, 5-4, 6-2; and Chile's Jaime Fillol defeated fellow countryman Patricio Cornejo, 6-2, 6-1.

Pele exits, new star enters limelight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A legendary hero exited, and a new star moved into the limelight as the Cosmos won the North American Soccer League championship Sunday with a 1-0 victory over Seattle in Soccer Bowl 77.

Pele finished his NASL career and headed toward the denouement of a brilliant 22-year career in Hunt, who scored the game's first goal, assisted on a heady piece of retirement for a lot of cash to give the struggling NASL credibility.

His teammates, forward Steve Hunt and high-scoring striker Giorgio Chinaglia, did the scoring that spelled championship before 35,548 in Portland Civic Stadium.

"We're No. 1," chanted the Cosmos over and over in their dressing room, followed by a chorus of "Pele, Pele, Pele."

Hunt and Chinaglia set more playoff records. Chinaglia's nine goals in six playoff games and 20 playoff points were new NASL records, and so were Hunt's seven assists. Hunt joined the Cosmos from England, where he played for Aston Villa of the first division, after the season already had started and he along with West Germany's Franz Beckenbauer, and new Coach Eddie Fermani, were behind the late-season drive that propelled the Cosmos to the championship.

Coventry gets grants for work at schools

Board of Education Chairman Joan Lewis and School Supt. Arnold Elman have announced that Coventry will receive $25,961 as partial reimbursement of major renovation projects authorized in June 1975.

Reimbursement for these projects was jeopardized when, after they were undertaken, the state legislature revised the funding of school building projects.

Mrs. Lewis and Dr. Elman said the breakdown of funds to be received for renovations at the four schools is $5,263 for Coventry High School; $2,593 for Nathan Hale School; $14,755 for Robertson School; and $3,448 for Coventry Grammar School.

Mrs. Lewis and Dr. Elman also said $12,076 had been received as partial reimbursement last year on the Robertson School hearing plant modernization. This money was deposited in the town Reserve Fund for Capital and Non-Recurring Expenditures.

Coventry will receive $124,569 under the state's Guarantee Tax Base grants. Mrs. Lewis and Dr. Elman said. This amount is $12,572 more than had been estimated when the 1977-78 budget was adopted in June.

The Town Meeting had indicated that the total amount of new education grants through the Guaranteed Tax Base for 1977-78 would be $127,000. However, the new

EVER IF YOU CAN'T SEW A STITCH NOW, YOU CAN SEW A DRESS AFTER SIX WEEKS AT SINGER

Walk into a Singer sewing class knowing nothing and six classes later you can walk out wearing the first dress you made yourself. Even if you've never sewn before.

We'll teach you all the basics. And we'll make it so easy, you'll be sewing like an old hand in no time at all. We'll teach you to cut, measure and pin a pattern. Then to sew and finish your garment.

You'll sew in a friendly class under the trained eye of a skilled professional.

Enroll today. Classes limited to 8-10 students. Only $29.50 for 18 hours of instruction.

126 Year's Experience Is The Best Teacher.

Many help student overcome problems

STORRS (UPI) — Peter Thweeey has spent every day of his 27 years trying not to "become a cabbage" in an institution. The Englishman has cerebral palsy, but his sense of adventure and independence makes most physically fit people look feeble.

On Aug. 17, after a plane flight from England, Thweeey arrived at the University of Connecticut with $500 in his pocket and no student visa.

He didn't know a soul in Connecticut, but he wanted more than anything else to study in the United States.

The university's special services office arranged temporary lodging for Thweeey, but the student had no idea where he would get the money he needed to pursue a masters' degree in political science.

Shortly after his arrival, a Hartford television station, WFSB, ran a story on Thweeey's plight and public response has been considerable.

As of Friday, UConn had received $646 toward Thweeey's education. Another $500 was expected to come from South Windsor, where 12 youngsters held a 24-hour relay marathon to raise money for the Englishman.

Despite the deluge of money, Thweeey will need additional funds to meet a $1,500 tuition payment by Tuesday. In addition, Thweeey figures he will need about $5,000 to live at the school this year.

If the Englishman can't meet the financial deadlines, he will fly back across the Atlantic to Dublin Sept. 1.

In his early years, school was difficult for Thweeey. When he was 16, he was put in a hospital for the chronically ill.

"Every day was a day of mere existence and vegetation," he said. "Everyone assured me that my life would be the same, a total failure, and that like everyone else, I too would leave (the hospital) in my coffin."

It was then that Thweeey decided he would not be like the others.

"Without my faith in Jesus Christ," he said, "I am sure that I would have submitted to the institutionalization, and become a cabbage like everyone else at the hospital."

After years of struggling, Thweeey received his B.A. in politics at the University of Newcastle-Lyne last spring. He was accepted at UConn for graduate school, but received no financial aid.

Before he could get a student visa, he had to demonstrate he could finance most of his education.

Thweeey knew there would be obstacles when he came to this country, but he hasn't let them get him down. "I like the adventure," he said.

Area women outstanding

Rosemarie Papa of 63 Tanner St., Manchester and Cyrilla Willis of 677 Gleed St., Hebron, have been chosen to be included in the 1977 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America.

The program is designed to honor and encourage exceptional women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, in their professions, and in their communities.

Ms. Papa and Ms. Willis, along with about 10,000 fellow women from across the United States, will be presented for the annual awards volume.

They are also being considered for one of the 51 state awards to be presented to those who have made the most noteworthy contributions in their individual states.

From the 51 winners the 10 outstanding young women will be chosen. The 10 national winners will be honored at the annual awards luncheon in Washington, D.C., this fall.

Corps take prize
The American Fife and Drum Corps of East Hartford took first prize for best appearance in the Warehouse Point firemen's parade Saturday.

After the parade, the corps, led by Bruce Gaudette, its director, went to the CB coffee being held at Howard Johnson's Restaurant on Main St. Proceeds from the coffee will help the corps pay for new uniforms, equipment and busing to parades.

The corps gave a short performance in the parking lot to thank the CBers.

Final days
Thursday is the last day for students who have moved into the Penney High School district to register for the opening of school Sept. 7. Call 568-8090, extension 212, for an appointment.

Thursday is also the last day for students to pick up their schedules at the high school. Wednesday, Sept. 7, Penney will open at 7:30 a.m. for a four-hour day for freshmen orientation.

Sophomores, juniors and seniors will join them Thursday, Sept. 8 for a full day of classes. Homeroom lists will be posted through the school halls.

Man held in murder of his mother-in-law

HARTFORD (UPI) — Edmond P. O'Keefe, 45, of East Hartford, faced a hearing today on a murder charge in the death of his elderly mother-in-law.

O'Keefe was arrested Sunday night a short time after police found the body of Mrs. Jennie Graves, 84, in her Hartford apartment.

The suspect was arrested earlier in the day by East Hartford Police on sex-related charges involving juveniles and had been released on $1,000 bond. Police declined to discuss the charges.

The body of Mrs. Graves was found inside her Broad St. apartment about 7:30 p.m. and O'Keefe was picked up when he showed up at the death scene. He was ordered held in $100 bond.

An autopsy was ordered to determine how the woman died.

Area police report

Vernon
Lynn M. Billings, of 9 Cliffwood St., South Windsor, and Charles Morris, 30, of Christopher Dr., Vernon, were charged Sunday with third-degree criminal trespassing.

Police said they were on the grounds of Boulder Ridge Park. They are to appear in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, Sept. 28.

Barbara Bellefleur, 40, of 45 Talcott Ave., Rockville, was charged Saturday with fourth-degree larceny on complaint of the Shopping Bag Market, Rockville. Court date is Sept. 28.

David Halloway, 16, of Springfield, Mass., was charged Sunday with reckless driving. Police said he was driving erratically in the parking lot at the Tri-City Shopping Plaza. Court date is Sept. 28.

Iris D. Cotto, 24, of 133 W. Main St., Rockville, was charged Saturday with disorderly conduct. She was involved in a disturbance at her home. Court date is Sept. 28.

South Windsor
Melissa J. Lawrence, 18, of Brookfield Dr., East Hartford, was charged Saturday with evading responsibility and failure to drive in proper lane.

Police said she was involved in a one-car accident on Pleasant Valley Rd. when she apparently lost control of her car and struck some bushes. Police said she left without reporting the incident. She is to appear in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford, Aug. 30.

Stanley Majewski, 48, of Windsor Locks, was charged Saturday with failure to drive in the proper lane. He was involved in a one-car accident on Rt. 6 and struck several guard posts. Court date is Sept. 9.

Edward Golas, 44, of Sullivan Ave., South Windsor, was charged Saturday with failure to grant the right of way at a private drive. Police said he made a left turn into the path of a car driven by Richard Lanagan of Stafford Springs. Court date is Sept. 9.

John Tripp, 24, of Maskell Rd., South Windsor, was charged Saturday with failure to obey a traffic control signal. Police said he struck a barricade on a dead-end street. No court date was given.

South Windsor Police are investigating a break reported Sunday night in a home on Diane Dr. Police said the owner returned home and found three storm windows had been pushed in.

The owner of a home on Benedict Dr. reported the home had been entered and two diamond rings were missing. Police said no sign of forced entry was found.

Bolton
State Police are investigating an accident Saturday night on Rt. 6 in Bolton.

Police said Mary Matulis of Broad Brook was stopped for a red light at the intersection of Bolton Center Rd. and Rt. 6 and when the light turned green she started to proceed onto Rt. 6.

Police said a car driven by William Bernudez Jr., 17, of 7 Highview Rd., South Windsor, went through a red light, collided with the Matulis car, and then left the scene.

Police report another rape

A second weekend rape was reported to police today at 2:22 a.m. A young woman told police she had been hitchhiking and was picked up by a man. He drove her to the Freight Depot Restaurant lot at 478 Roberts St. where he raped her, she said.

Police are investigating.

Friday between 9 and 11 p.m. in a parking lot at 330 Main St., a woman was pulled into a vehicle by a white male and raped, police said. The car was dark red.

Police arrested three teenagers today at 3:39 a.m. at 509 Burnside Ave. after a citizen reported they were siphoning gas from a car.

Mark J. Charbonneau, 16, of 60 Alps Dr., and Ralph K. Johnson, 17, of 73 Andover Rd., were both charged with third-degree criminal mischief and fourth-degree larceny. Both were held on $700 bonds for appearance today in Common Pleas Court 12.

Jeanne Amiot, 17, of 509 Burnside Ave. was also charged with fourth-degree larceny in the incident. He was held on $200 bond and was to appear in court today.

Gary Schmidt, 24, of Wetherfield, was arrested Sunday on a court warrant charging him with first-degree criminal trespassing and escape from custody.

Schmidt allegedly broke into his mother's home in East Hartford Aug. 21 and was caught by police. He was placed in a cruiser but got out and fled, police said.

He was being held on $5,000 surety bond for court appearance today.
