Flood hits Johnstown killing at least two

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Thunderstorms sent torrents of water cascading through the Johnstown area today, killing at least two persons, authorities said. Five persons were confirmed missing in the flash flood which caused some areas with water up to 10 feet deep. There were reports of looting, and police were ordered to shoot the looters. Police said a "lot" of persons were feared missing.

The number of deaths is listed at two, said Bill Dickson, spokesman for the Cambria County Civil Defense Department at nearby Ebensburg. "Five persons are missing," he said. He said the National Guard has been called in and that Johnstown, scene of the famous 1889 flood which killed more than 2,500 persons, was cut off from the outside.

Dickson said property damage caused by flash flooding was tentatively estimated at $50 million. Johnstown is located about 55 miles northeast of Pittsburgh. Dickson said "some looting has been reported" and that the mayor of Johnstown ordered "police to shoot" the looters.

He said Bethlehem Steel Corp., the largest employer at Johnstown about 55 miles northeast of Pittsburgh, was "not functioning and was probably damaged." James Cox, the spokesman for state police at Harrisburg headquarters, said the flooding covers a six-county area.

"This is serious, very serious. But, of course, it is not in the same league as the 1889 Johnstown flood." He said people that lived there have talked with oldtimers who remember the famous 1889 flood which killed more than 2,500 persons. He said water is reportedly higher in parts of the city today.

"The water at present is receding rapidly and it's possible by noontime they can begin clean-up and start sending rescue workers in," Stimmel said. "It's hard to give an accurate run-down on the situation," said Robert Stimmel, director of the Central Area Civil Defense.

"There are just no utilities at all in Johnstown," he said. "I've already heard this is worse than what happened during the '89 flood."

These state emergency centers are functioning at Harrisburg, Indiana, and Selinsgrove. State Route 56 was closed, isolating the nearby Somerset County communities of Windber and Fairview. The National Weather Service characterized the front as "just a steady downpour of rain. The thunderstorm just sat over that area."

In Chicago, 500,000 persons flocked to the city's 31 beaches. In Minneapolis, Northern States Power Co. reported its second straight day of record demand. An energy alert also was in effect for portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, and North and South Dakota.

State and federal officials began providing assistance to Vermont dairy farmers caught up in the second drought to hit the state in three years. Some dairymen moved their cows into barns and began feeding them hay gathered for the coming winter.

One farmer, Gerry Elzinger of Addison, predicted his winter hay supply would run out in seven weeks. Thundershowers brought some relief to parts of the Appalachians late Tuesday, dropping temperatures into the 70s and 80s. Heavy thundershowers also hit parts of northwest Pennsylvania, dumping nearly four inches of rain at Conneautville. Some roads in the area were closed by high water.

Thundershowers also were scattered from the lower Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley and the Middle and Mouth Atlantic Coast states. Tornadoes also were sighted near Balmorhea, Tex., Ashford, Ariz., and Ely, Nev., but no damage was reported.

Seeing in 3 dimensions

With summer here and the family picnic in vogue once more, people automatically record these gatherings with their cameras, which vary from the handy instant-stamper to the more sophisticated single reflex camera. The camera is practically standard equipment for travelers. The pictorial record of unfamiliar scenes later sparks memories and allows the photographer to share the experience with friends left at home.

But photography was not always so simple, nor were communications as effective. During the 1800s, cameramen were the hane of expeditions. Cameras themselves were heavy and cumbersome because of the nature and size of the negatives. The photographer in the nineteenth century also had to carry his chemical plate and holders as well as a portable darkroom which could be anything from a tent to an imitation ludd organ. Imagine a photographer lugging his equipment up the side of a mountain while out for a Sunday stroll!

Stereoscopic equipment became an integral part of a photographer's apparatus. The popularity of stereo photography stems from its reproduction of binocular vision. The three-dimensional scenes were convincingly realistic. The reality is based on depth perception. This visual principle was noted by Euclid when he observed that one eye sees a slightly different view from the other. When the two pictures fuse in the brain, one image in three-dimensional results.

To test this, focus on an object. Cover one eye, notice which objects you can see while still focusing on the object. Now cover the other eye. Notice how the object shifts slightly and how the lens at the limit of your vision change. This variation causes you to see depth.

An attempt at depth simulation was made previous to the use of photography when Charles Wheatstone maintained that two perspective drawings corresponding to the eyes' perceptions would appear in relief. The method proved too exacting to be practical.

With the advent of photography, special stereo cameras were produced which housed two lenses of the same focal length placed 2 1/2 inches apart. The two photographs were taken simultaneously thus avoiding problems caused during the time lapse necessary when only one lens was used. For example, clouds could not be photographed for stereo purposes with only one lens. The cloud's movement before the second exposure would destroy the precise placement required.

Because the focal length of the lenses were shorter than those used in most cameras at the time, the stereo camera could arrest motion so that the image of a moving object was not blurred. Photographers no longer required stationary objects for their lengthy exposures.

The first images rendered frequently with this system were street scenes. People were captured in their natural poses at their occupation. This ability to still motion proved valuable in other fields as well. Oliver Wendell Holmes studied stereo pictures of men walking when he designed artificial limbs for Civil War soldiers. During World War II, color stereo pictures were used for aerial photography because they best revealed the effects of bombing and constantly penetrated enemy camouflage. Geologists still use the 3-D aerial views for topographical purposes.

Most used stereo photography as a living room amusement. From 1845 until 1915, commercial companies actively produced the twin pictures stereos on every subject imaginable. They sent their photographers around the world to capture Arab markets, Indian temples, New Zealand school boys and alpine vistas. At home they recorded monuments, factory interiors and processes and the functions of the country's figureheads.

Humor found its place in anecdotal series, which related short tales through pictorial means. With the use of stereos, the viewer felt as close to being on the spot as was possible at the time.

But what of that contraption with the two peepholes and long rod? The stereoscope is necessary for viewing the double images. It isolates the view so that the left picture is seen with only the left eye, with the same thing being true of the right. The lenses also magnify the image while the focus is adjusted by moving the pictures along the horizontal rod.

If you would like to try making your own stereos, the simplest way would be to take one photograph, then move the camera laterally about 2 1/2 inches and shoot again. The pictures must be parallel with no movement within the picture disrupting the final shot. For further details and other methods, see Julius B.

Patty Lange, left, inserts photo cards into a stereoscope as Michael Brooks peers through the special lens which gives the pictures a third dimensional effect. Patty and Michael, both of Manchester, are youth service workers at the Lutz Junior Museum, where the stereoscope is on display. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Kaiser's book, "Make Your Own Stereo Pictures." For those who become avid fans of the cards, you might consider joining the National Stereoscopic Association. If you would like to view some 3-D scenes, a stereoscope and cards are in our old fashioned store display, which is due to come down Aug. 1 when we close for the month of August.

But if you would rather try your photographic talents, please bring your camera to our Old Fashioned Picnic on July 27, between 2 and 4 p.m. It is free to the public with games for all and refreshments available at a minimum charge. We hope to see you then.

Angels locked up

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Charley's Angels" have a new mystery to work on: Who locked them in the Sports Arena while they filmed an ice-skating episode for the popular TV series?

The production crew was filming Tuesday when someone locked the arena's large double doors, police reported. Although the people could have gotten out, the series' large trucks and camera equipment were trapped.

Actresses Kate Jackson, Jaclyn Smith and newcomer Cheryl Ladd remained on the set while the producers took about 30 minutes to track down a janitor with a key.

About town

Manchester Grange will meet tonight at 8 at the Grange Hall.

Manchester Radio Club will meet tonight at 7:30 in the science room at Howell Cheney Regional Vocational Technical School. All radio amateurs are invited.

News for senior citizens

Hi! Well tomorrow morning our two buses will be leaving our center at 9 to spend the day in Mystic. The way the weather has been, it should be a nice place to be, with at least an ocean breeze to enjoy as well as air-conditioned buses. You folks going on this trip should arrive here at the center by 8:30.

Other trips
Speaking of trips, we registered for a day in Rockport and Gloucester on Monday morning. This trip includes a tour of both Rockport and Gloucester, a boat ride around the Gloucester Harbor, and topped off with a lobster and clam bake with all the trimmings. We have about 15 seats left on bus No. 2 and so you still have a little time left to sign up. Like always, we must fill a bus in order to take it. This trip is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 4.

Next Thursday is the German Alps Festival and our three buses are all set and will leave our center at 8 a.m. Setback results.

Last Friday we had 44 players for our setback games and the winners were: Ada Rojas, 132; Helen Silver, 126; John Gally, 123; Clara Hemmingway, 121; Mabel Loomis, 121; Ann Fisher, 121; Arvid Peterson, 118; Bea McCarthy, 117; Bea Mader, 117; Martha LaBelle, 116; Rose Cora, 116; Katherine Ellsworth, 116.

On Monday, despite the hot and muggy weather, 37 players participated in our Golf League at the East Hartford course. Here are some of the scores: Irvin Gattiside, 64; Russ Nettleton, 65; Raymond Bidwell, 68; Edward Litwin, 69; Tom Halenar, 69; John Gibson, 69; Harvey Laguerre, 69.

Pinochle
We also had a nice turnout here at the center for our kitchen social games in the morning and in the afternoon we had 12 tables for our pinochle games and the lucky winners were: Rene Maire, 807; Ed Scott, 756; Mabel Loomis, 724; Paul Schuetz, 700; John Phelps, 739; Mina Reuther, 73; Gladys Seeler, 730; Josephine Schuetz, 722; John Derby, 721; Martin Bakstan, 719; Helen Silver, 718.

We received a phone call from our dear friend Mary Rhodes, who is recuperating at the Vernon Manor Convalescent Home. She would like to thank all those who have been sending cards, and says hello to everybody here.

This coming Monday, July 25th, we will be signing up for a day at one of our four favorite places, Banner Lodge. More about the trip in Saturday's column.

Baseball game
On Monday, Aug. 1, we sign up for the Boston Red Sox-Cleveland Indians game of Sept. 1. This will be an afternoon game and we have reserved seat tickets in Section 18 which is near home plate on the Red Sox side. Price of the trip will be $9.50 and we will stop on the way home for dinner which is on you.

Tomorrow here at the center will be a quiet day because the buses will have gone to Mystic Seaport. We will serve a meal for those not going on the trip, from noon to 12:30 p.m. Also, we will have the outdoor shuffleboard open for action from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Here's an announcement you may be interested in. From now on when we take a bus trip, we will have with us an Emergency Oxygen Inhalator Kit. This means we now have two such kits, one for the center and the other for our trips.

Opinion

Showing the way

Politicians have failed. Businessmen have failed. But two churches have succeeded.

Faith Lutheran of East Hartford and Union Baptist of Hartford have formed loving bonds which cross the Connecticut River. They also cross racial, economic and social lines.

The Capitol Region Council of Governments is composed of leaders from Hartford and its suburban towns. Their meetings are often reduced to petty squabbles. City leaders can't understand town leaders.

Leaders of big towns can't understand leaders of small towns. Little is accomplished.

But Faith Lutheran and Union Baptist are in their ninth summer of a jointly run vacation Bible school. About 80 children attend the daily sessions. Right now, a bus takes the white Faith Lutheran children to Union Baptist for three hours of morning classes.

Last week a bus took Union Baptist's black children to Faith Lutheran. The Bible school is just one of many expressions of the bond formed between the two churches since the turbulent 1960s. The two also jointly run a corporation which supervises 55 low income housing units in the city. They also have exchanged choirs and held joint workshops through the years.

The bond formed between the two churches reminds one of the church-sponsored visit to Manchester by 40 Irish children. The Catholic and Protestant children relate well to each other here despite the mess in Northern Ireland.

Churches in East Hartford, Hartford, Manchester and Ireland are doing what political leaders have failed to do. They are forming bonds which cross wide divides. We are seeing the proof of their bonding power this summer.

ZBA is in error

The controversy over the alleged violations of town zoning regulations by the Jacksons seems to be getting out of hand.

We are concerned with the rather unusual step taken the other night by the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals. It is seeking a second legal opinion after the Jackson's attorney challenged an opinion by Vernon Town Atty. Martin Burke, upon which a stop-work order was based.

Burke gave his opinion at the request of Manchester Town Counsel Victor Moses, who disqualified himself because of business relations with the Jacksons. The Jackson's attorney has every right to challenge the legal opinion, but the Zoning Board of Appeals erred in asking for another opinion.

The orderly way to have handled the matter would have been to make a decision on the basis of the Burke ruling. The board should not decide which opinion is valid. That is a job for the courts — an avenue open to the Jacksons if they wish to pursue it.

We think the board should reconsider its decision and let it go on to the courts if there is a desire if necessary. Hopefully, once this matter is resolved, the board will review its regulations in this disputed area and clarify them so that in the future they are more explicit and the roles of all involved better defined.

In the meantime, the question remains: What will the board do if the second opinion disagrees with the first? Will it go for two out of three, or three out of five?

An owlsh editor's notebook

By FLOYD LARSON

There comes a time in every married man's life when he has to "batch" it.

It can be a horror or a rewarding experience depending on a man's adaptiveness to domestic duties and his willingness to ignore outside advice — of which there is usually plenty.

There are three definite stages to a successful stint of "batching" which are necessary for survival — during the "batching" period and more important when the better half returns. Phase One is preparation: This is where you must learn to listen and take copious notes. For example, Monday evening is wash day and Tuesday is the day to make sure you get the garbage out before 5:30 a.m. because if you wait for a garbage truck to wake you, you will miss it. Wednesday, of course, is water-the-plants day. Thursday is changing the sheets day. Friday is shopping day and Saturday is eat-up- leftovers day. Sunday, of course, is the day of rest — unless you missed any or all of the Monday through Saturday assignments.

The only problem with "batching" by the better half's voluminous instructions is that it takes all the adventure out of it and is not too unlike living when the better half is around.

Therefore, Phase Two involves beating the system and yet not ending the "batching" period with mountains of unwashed laundry, nasty notes from the health inspector about your garbage, dried out plants, tattle-tale gray and worse sheets, bankruptcy by eating out too much and a refrigerator full of leftovers of dubious edibility.

This requires a grand strategy. To keep laundry at a minimum, you have to change your habits more often than you change your bedsheets. There is the old day-and-a-half shirt trick, for example. Sunday you take out a new shirt for church. After you take it off and wear it Monday, Tuesday's shirt is removed immediately after work and worn Wednesday morning and a fresh shirt at noon will carry you through Thursday night. Thus three shirts have carried you through four full days and Friday's, with a little care, will get you through Saturday, unless you work Saturdays.

The plant watering bit is an engineering challenge which, depending on the extent of your better half's greenhouse, can be a time-consuming task each Wednesday. We knew a friend who liked the bath-tub method — he had two bathtubs — which enabled him to mass irrigate the plants in about 30 seconds flat. Time-motion studies, however, indicate the energy he saved watering was offset by the energy used scrubbing the tub at the end of his "batching."

Suffice it to say, the best time savers are ways to combine the assigned tasks like laundry and shopping. Remember, it is a geometric fact of bachelorhood that the amount of leftovers in a refrigerator is in direct reverse ratio to the amount of beer stored for those hot July days.

So the days or weeks go by as you religiously read the better half's directions for maintaining an orderly domicile while she is gone. And you find you are enjoying the adventure of "batching" because you are

Springboard for discussion

A Herald feature devoted to reader views on timely topics. Should the South United Methodist Church use its property for a church-sponsored, federally funded, retirement center?

This week's topic is:

Opposition states its case

To the editor,

The South Methodist Property Interest is composed of concerned church members and concerned residents. Our purpose is to oppose the sale of the land south of Hartford Rd. to an East Providence operated Wesley Retirement Corporation.

Twenty-eight of the thirty-one trustees are from out of state. Many church members are concerned for the warrantee deed states "that said premises shall be used, kept, and maintained as a place of divine worship of the Methodist ministry and members of the Methodist Church." This retirement center is a public project operated under HUD rules — this is not a home for Methodists!

Many taxpayers have shown concern about the conflict of church and state. An annual government subsidy of $414,000 has been approved, or an average of $345 a month for a one bedroom apartment. The total cost to the American taxpayers will be 18.5 million dollars if a 40-year mortgage is assumed, should every Catholic, Protestant, Jew and non-believer pay a major portion for a Methodist Retirement Center? This is a taxpayer's ripoff!

Recently this local newspaper reported that the Cheney complex has received nomination to the National Registry. Many Manchester residents are concerned that this three story, 100-unit retirement center, with almost 2 1/2 mile of corridors, will be a neighbor of the Cheney Homestead. Residents feel that this may deface a historical district of such significance.

This is just not the right place for a massive elderly retirement and an 80 bed convalescent center, which will interfere with the life and future of the church, seriously alter a historical district and conflict with church and state.

Robert Van Deck

The Christian thing to do

To the editor,

Unquestionably yes! There is no better use for this church property than to use it for Christian ministry to the elderly and handicapped.

I vote for low-income housing where a Christian atmosphere of joy, peace and contentment exists. A place for senior citizens to reside in comfort, with security in knowing that they are near to shopping facilities, transportation services, community activities and religious houses of worship is needed.

The Wesley Retirement Center will meet these needs as well as provide nutritious meals, recreation and health care. Most importantly it will allow residents to remain independent as long as possible.

Our seniors have given us so many years of productivity. Isn't it about time to give them back something in return and meet more of their needs? I call upon all who are concerned with the plight of our senior citizens to support this important proposal and see that it becomes a reality.

In an era when we Manchester residents are so concerned with preserving our history let us not forget our most valuable heritage.

John Burr
52 Cooper Hill St.
Manchester

Statistics show the need

To the editor,

Yes indeed, the town should cooperate in making it possible for the South United Methodist Church to build a "retirement center" on its Hartford Road property.

Statistics show that already the need for appropriate senior citizen housing far exceeds the amount available, and the demand is growing. People of retirement age have contributed much to the town during their more active years, and have helped to make Manchester the honored community that it is. It seems only right to provide appropriate housing opportunities here so that these people can retire within the community if desired and continue their interest and loyalty.

Robert Samuelson
108 Hemlock St.
Manchester

Home needed

Dear sir,

I am 70 years old and love living my life but — I'm afraid sometimes. I'm afraid of loneliness — of poverty — and most of all, of having my children consider me a burden. Hard words for a proud old lady to admit.

My daughter says I don't have to be afraid and describes to me the Wesley Retirement Center. For the first time in ages I feel excited and hopeful about the future. My daughter put my name on the list of applicants and I'm waiting.

But there is opposition now and maybe there'll be no retirement center. To whoever is in charge of voting for it — please build the center. It matters to me — very much.

It'll make a difference to hundreds of others just like me. Thank you. Sincerely,
Edith Gibb
255 Vernon St.
Manchester

Statistics show the need

The site is conveniently on the bus line, and within walking distance of banks and stores. Since it involves no children, this project is more desirable taxwise to the town than many others. The sponsoring group can easily keep an eye on any possible maintenance problems, and would surely welcome the opportunity to respond to personal needs of the residents. There are church-sponsored retirement centers in other communities from whose experience Manchester can benefit.

Congratulations to the South United Methodist Church for facing up to a vital community need and coming forth with a concrete plan. They deserve our support.

Louise C. Taylor
50 Gardner St.
Manchester

Ideal plan for site use

Dear sir:

Certain facts need to be understood in regard to the proposed retirement center:

1. South Church, at an open meeting of the Charge Conference, voted overwhelmingly to sell the land for this project.

2. Nothing in any church document or deed prevents the use of this land for this kind of building.

3. Dozens of applications were made for the money for retirement centers, and Manchester was one of six finally to be chosen, largely because the site is so ideal. If we don't use the money set aside for this project, some other church will be delighted to do so, and we will have lost a golden opportunity to help our older citizens.

I have visited the Retirement Center in East Providence and was greatly impressed with its many facilities, and the obvious happiness and contentment of the residents. Let us hope that those that do not understand the situation will cease muddying the waters, and that we can work together for this great idea.

Very truly yours,
Shirley Paugica
255 Vernon St.
Manchester

Oppose center

To the Manchester Herald,

We, the undersigned, are very much against an apartment being built on the beautiful property located on Hartford Road, owned by the South United Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Morrison
258 High St. W.
Manchester

Thought

"You arrive at the truth through the friction of friendly but independent minds."

This quotation could hopefully apply to the Christian Church as it seeks to develop the faith in each new age. In the early centuries if the Church, there was much to discuss and decide; unfortunately there was often friction with little friendship, and of course that led to dispute and division.

The Christian faith is a dynamic and developing faith. What may have been an appropriate attitude for one age may not necessarily be appropriate for this. In the light of new knowledge or new events, an approach may need to be adapted or newly created. Given facts, people will interpret them differently; man was created with a brain capable of making judgments. It is right that the Christian, like any other person, should think differently from others on any given issue; that is his independence. Then in friendly debate, the truth can be discerned.

It is the responsibility of the Christian to speak out, but to speak out only after he has made his best effort to arrive at the truth.

Rev. Alan J. Broadhead
St. Mary's Episcopal Church

Haloburdo heads school board

Bolton

Joseph Haloburdo was unanimously elected chairman of the Board of Education for 1977-1978 at its meeting July 14.

Michael O'Connor and Louis Cloutier were nominated for the position of vice-chairman. O'Connor defeated Cloutier by a 4 to 3 vote. Barbara Smith was unanimously re-elected secretary.

Bolton High School Principal Joseph Fleming gave a report on high school offerings with a tentative enrollment of less than 100 students. The school board had requested the information to gain insight into the size of classes at the high school based on declining enrollment and what type of courses had a limited number of students.

The school administration and board feel the courses should be offered even though a limited number of students are taking them.

At this time, based on student request figures only, the following courses will have an enrollment of less than 10 students: French I through IV, Latin IV, accounting, stenography, home economics II and advanced clothing. Fleming said the final run in scheduling will not be made until August at which time certain variables will have been introduced including student withdrawal, new student registration, and course request changes.

Fleming said no true or accurate figures will be available until the first of October.

Fleming was asked by the school board if there have been any inquiries from out-of-town students concerning their enrollment at Bolton High.

He said, "I have received many inquiries but the big problem seems to be transportation." School Supt. Raymond Allen said, "I suspect and hope we will get some action once the double sessions at Rham High School get under way in September."

The board, at length, discussed a recommendation from the Committee to Study Town and School Intramural and Interscholastic Sports pertaining to the hiring of coaches for school sports.

Basically, the committee recommended more input from the community, and outside professionals in the hiring of coaches.

The board directed Allen to report to it in August his plan to get community and/or professional input in the selection of coaches.

Allen said he will come back to the board with a simple procedure because he "cannot carry the extra workload."

A final report by the sports committee will be submitted to the board next month.

Board members discussed budget encumbrances and a final report from the 1977-1978 budget and several policies.

Help from the Handicapped

Handicapped persons not only must live with their impairments, whether physical or mental, but all too often they face added futility and frustration in their efforts to make their own way in society.

Much as they may want to earn a living, it's hard for them to get work. Yet the fact is that handicapped persons can be and are excellent workers. Assigned work fitting their capabilities, given proper training, they've proved to be valuable employees for our company.

Only since the early 1970s has the government required its contractors to carry out affirmative action programs on hiring the handicapped. But United Technologies has had such programs in effect since the 1940s when handicapped persons helped us with wartime production.

What a person cannot do doesn't interest us. Instead, we want to know what he or she can do.

This approach lets impaired persons make full use of their capabilities in filling regular jobs in our plants, labs, and offices without any special accommodations, although reasonable provisions will be made if necessary.

More than just hiring the handicapped in our own plants, we're also giving them outside work under contract, just as we do with other vendors and suppliers.

Our largest operating unit in Connecticut — the Manufacturing Division of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group — has found organizations for the handicapped a specially productive source for needed contract services. The contracts are awarded through competitive bidding.

Members of the Sheltered Workshop of the Hartford Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center are welding and assembling devices for measuring the heat output of our furnaces. They are also sorting small-diameter drill bits at the rate of 600 a week so we can sharpen and reuse them.

At the Sheltered Workshop of the Manchester Association for Retarded Citizens, hundreds of handcars are being repaired for Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's five Connecticut plants. We've also awarded contracts to the Constructive Workshop of New Britain, the Farmington Valley Association of Retarded and Handicapped, and the Hartford Association of Retarded Citizens.

The New Britain group sorted 125,000 cutting tool inserts. We were then able to regrind them and put them back into use.

Performing useful work under contract provides handicapped persons with earned income, often equips them with skills and experience so they can move into jobs in industry. It builds their sense of self-worth and individual dignity.

For our part, workshops for the handicapped are helping us get needed work done, and done well.

Hearing set for Monday on elderly housing permit

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) will conduct a public hearing Monday on a regulation that would permit housing for the elderly and handicapped as a special exception in most zones.

Present zoning regulations permit municipal housing projects in Rural Residence Zones and high-rise apartments in the Central Business District (CBD) and the Comprehensive Urban Development Zone (CUD).

An elderly housing project proposed for the Hartford Rd. campus of South United Methodist Church has stirred up interest in increasing the number of areas where such housing is permitted.

The Wesley Retirement Center Inc., the group that has proposed the 100-unit Hartford Rd. project, sought a zone change that would have permitted elderly housing projects in Residence M Zones. The PZC rejected the proposal at a meeting in late March.

After rejecting the proposal, some of the commission members said that they would like to change the zoning regulations to expand the areas where elderly/handicapped housing is permitted.

The proposed elderly/handicapped housing regulation, prepared by Town Planner Alan Lamson, would accomplish such an increase. It would permit the housing as a special

Band Shell fund tops $50,000 mark

Two recent activities have helped put the Bicentennial Band Shell Fund over the $50,000 mark.

Contributing to a total of $50,000 were proceeds from a spring carnival at Manchester Community College which netted $28,800 and $50 donated by Gerardo Parente and Wascally Don Anjos Simoes, Brazilian musical artists who performed here in the area last winter.

There is still about $11,000 available for spending, said Ted LaBonne, chairman of the Manchester Bicentennial Band Shell Committee Inc., which possibly bonding material on the cement blocks. The band shell committee will meet Aug. 1.

Two named liquor probe committee

HARTFORD (UPI) — Two members of the House Democratic leadership have been named to a special panel that will investigate the Connecticut liquor industry.

House Speaker James J. Kennedy, D-Hartford, Tuesday appointed Deputy House Speaker Robert Vicino, D-Bristol, and Assistant Majority Leader Raymond J. Dzialo, D-Middletown, to the panel.

The legislature decided on an eight-member committee to probe the industry following a controversy over eliminating legislation that forces all package store owners to charge a minimum price for liquor.

The Rev. Dr. David D. Mellon, executive director of the Capitol River Conference of Churches, has written a letter to Alfred Siefert, chairman of PZC, and said that he and the organization support the change that would permit construction of the Hartford Rd. project.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please, please print this for me and all the other mothers who have this problem: It happened to the good old days when the boys chased the girls? I am the mother of a 15-year-old boy, and I am bothered day and night as late as midnight by girls calling my son on the phone. When I say he's not home, they keep calling. Sometimes when I answer they even hang up in my face.

Abby, boys don't like to be called by girls. I know that the girl my son likes best is the one who never calls him.

I have a 14-year-old daughter, and if I ever catch her calling a boy I'll tan her hide.

I hope every girl in St. Louis who knows my son reads this!

ST. LOUIS MOM

DEAR MOM: There's no excuse for rudeness on the phone, or calling at unreasonable hours, but please don't spoil it for all the boys in St. Louis. Some boys LIKE girls to call them.

DEAR ABBY: I publish the Towers Club newsletter in which I feature a monthly quote. In searching for a quote I came upon your interesting article in Marquis' WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Following your bio-graphic were these classic Dear Abby words:

"I have learned the art of enlightened selfishness. If one wants to get ahead in this life, he must be willing to permit others to work under pressure. When I learned how to say 'no' graciously, life became immeasurably more productive."

After using that quote in my newsletter it occurred to me that you should share that advice with your readers. I'm a faithful reader and I've never seen it in your column.

Thank you, Abby.

JERRY BUCHANAN

DEAR JERRY: Well, now you've seen it. You're welcome, Jerry.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 11 years and have one child, age 9. My husband seems to think all he has to do is pay the bills, go to work, and his obligation as a husband and father is paid in full. He goes off every weekend and we have no idea where he is. When I ask him, he says it's none of my business. It sounds like he has a woman somewhere.

I went to a marriage counselor and he said, "If you had the trouble most married women have, you'd think you were a husband. As long as he supports you and your child, doesn't drink, use drugs or hit you, disappearing every weekend is a minor fault. Get yourself a boyfriend, and don't complain."

Abby, I don't want a boyfriend. I want my husband home weekends. Am I overreacting too much? I'm 29 and he is 33, and this weekend disappearing act has begun again for nearly three years.

Can you help me?

SICK OF IT

DEAR SICK: First, find yourself another counselor. I am not talking wrong with putting a "full-time husband" high on your list of priorities. Your husband's weekends ARE your business.

Win at Bridge

Count falls short of game

He considers a pass at two notrump, but with four very good spades he goes to three spades.

Now the buck has been passed right back to South. If South had two more points he would have just about as good a king more than a minimum and would go on to game. As it is, he has a minimum to bid game, but makes a wise decision and passes.

Now that four spades would be a really bad contract. With spades breaking 3-2 all South needs is a 5-3 diamond break to lose 10 tricks. As it is, diamonds don't break and South is mighty glad that he stopped below game.

Ask the Jacobovics

A Carolinian wants to know if you should open one notrump with:

A ♠ A K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
S ♠ A K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
H ♠ A K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
C ♠ A K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

The answer is a resounding no. The good six-card suit combines with the 16 high-card points makes the hand too strong. Open one diamond and make a strong rebid such as to notrump if partner responds.

DEAR ABBY: I publish the Towers Club newsletter in which I feature a monthly quote. In searching for a quote I came upon your interesting article in Marquis' WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Following your bio-graphic were these classic Dear Abby words:

"I have learned the art of enlightened selfishness. If one wants to get ahead in this life, he must be willing to permit others to work under pressure. When I learned how to say 'no' graciously, life became immeasurably more productive."

After using that quote in my newsletter it occurred to me that you should share that advice with your readers. I'm a faithful reader and I've never seen it in your column.

Thank you, Abby.

JERRY BUCHANAN

DEAR JERRY: Well, now you've seen it. You're welcome, Jerry.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 11 years and have one child, age 9. My husband seems to think all he has to do is pay the bills, go to work, and his obligation as a husband and father is paid in full. He goes off every weekend and we have no idea where he is. When I ask him, he says it's none of my business. It sounds like he has a woman somewhere.

I went to a marriage counselor and he said, "If you had the trouble most married women have, you'd think you were a husband. As long as he supports you and your child, doesn't drink, use drugs or hit you, disappearing every weekend is a minor fault. Get yourself a boyfriend, and don't complain."

Abby, I don't want a boyfriend. I want my husband home weekends. Am I overreacting too much? I'm 29 and he is 33, and this weekend disappearing act has begun again for nearly three years.

Can you help me?

SICK OF IT

DEAR SICK: First, find yourself another counselor. I am not talking wrong with putting a "full-time husband" high on your list of priorities. Your husband's weekends ARE your business.

Legion tops Locktowners

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

You take them anyway you can. Three runs tied the plate without benefit of a RBI blow as Manchester upended stubborn Windsor Locks, 3-1, in Zone Eight play last night in Windsor Locks.

The locals are now 14-3 in the zone and remain 2½ games behind leading 17-1 East Hartford, which got back on the winning trail Monday night with a 7-0 blanking of Bloomfield. Manchester's next test is tonight at at Eagle Field against Ellington in a zone clash. Pete Kiro, 5-0, draws the ace assignment. Manchester got its first run in the second inning. Bruce Ballard singled with Frank Livingston replacing him as the runner on a fielder's choice. Livingston then stole second. Kiro lofted a fly to rightfield with Livingston advancing to third and when the shortstop's relay went wild, Livingston was awarded home.

In the fifth, Kiro singled up the middle, took second on a wild pitch by losing hurler Matt Wenowicz and scored on two passed balls. With two outs in the visitor's seventh, Kevin Hanlon and Howie Purging stroked back-to-back singles and Dave Botaro reached on an error to load the bases. Hanlon toed the five-sided disk on a wild pitch for a 3-0 edge. Ballard, 8-1, breezed through the first six innings on 75 pitches but ran into trouble in the final inning. Two walks sandwiched around two pinch-hits singles forced in Locks' only marker with Ballard whiffing Skip Edmonds for the third time to end it. Ballard finished with 10 pitches, 15 strikeouts, three free passes and a four-bitter.

Manchester had six hits off Wenowicz, 3-3, who walked two and fanned three. Locks is now 7-9 in zone play.

MB's hold on, win

Slaving off a comeback effort, Moriarty Bros. nipped the West Hartford Merchants, 5-4, in Two League action last night at Moriarty Field.

The MBs, 8-7, are back in action tonight at 6 at McAuliffe Park in East Hartford against the Hartford Flyers.

Moriarty's grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning and made it 3-0 in the third on singles by Mike Johnson. Ray Sullivan and Rich Rordan ran West Hartford came back with a run in the top of the fourth but Jim Balesano's RBI double in the bottom of the frame restored the three-run lead.

The Merchants closed to within one in the fifth but Ron Kroger's sacrifice fly drove in what proved to be the winning run in the home sixth. Jack Taylor went the route for the MB's, scattering 12 hits. He walked one and struck out four. Sullivan collected two of the MB's nine safeties.

Luts in lead

QUECHEE, Vt. (UPI) — Norman Latz of Fayetteville, R.I., Tuesday scored a course record of 70 to take the first lead over in the 48th New England Amateur Golf Tournament at Quechee Club.

Latz, who won the 1970 Rhode Island Amateur Championship and the 1975 Rhode Island Open Championship, was one of five players to better the former course record of 70 on the par 72, two-year-old course.

Lobsters score over Sea-Ports

BOSTON (UPI) — Mike Estep celebrated his 28th birthday Tuesday by defeating Sea-Port Cascades player-coach Tom Gorman, 6-2.

Stone and Russell defeated Russell in the home sixth. Stone and Steve Docherty took mixed doubles from Roy Emerson and Wikstedt, 6-4. In the final set, Emerson and Tony Roche teamed to defeat Docherty and Brian Parrot, 6-3.

Soccer

MIDGET SOUTH Tom Finnegan's over-logs for the Stars and time goal gave the Mark Cichowski scored twice for the Tigers in a 2-2 tie. Manchester High Mark Pagioli and Dan Guachione also scored for the winners while Jeff Santoro and Tim Chevillion tallied for the Apollons.

Jim Haslett tallied both Tom Finnegan's over-logs for the Stars and time goal gave the Mark Cichowski scored twice for the Tigers in a 2-2 tie. Manchester High Mark Pagioli and Dan Guachione also scored for the winners while Jeff Santoro and Tim Chevillion tallied for the Apollons.

Hearing postponed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Former Tennessee All-American Bernard King's preliminary hearing on burglary charges was postponed Tuesday until Aug. 1, when other charges against him also will be aired.

King, who gave up his final year of college eligibility and was drafted by the New York Nets, was arrested July 10 and charged with stealing a color television set valued at $1,500 from the university's Stokely Athletic Center.

Program resumes

The weightlifting program at Manchester High resumes Thursday night at 6 for anyone interested. The program, which was interrupted as work was being done on a floor, will go to its original schedule of Tuesday and Thursday nights at 6 and Saturday mornings at 9.

Fornino's jumped to an early 9-0 lead and never looked back in gaining a 9-0 JC-Courant League victory over the Manchester Junior Legion team at Mill Pond Park in Newington. Fornino's is now 11-0 in the league, Manchester 7-3.

Moriarty's place third in state softball play

Third place was garnered by Moriarty's of the Peline Softball League in the State Area Women's Slow Pitch Tournament last weekend in Greenwich.

Kathy McConnell's single in the eighth inning drove in the winning run in a 3-2 decision over Banksville. McConnell and Joan Dougan each collected three hits and Chickie Balesano hurled a seven-hitter.

The first loss was suffered in game No. 3 against Southington, 9-6. Dale Dychowski hit safely three times and Perotti, Linda Chapman and Groman each had a pair of hits.

Coach Joe Brooks' squad was ousted by Dick's of Greenwich, the eventual winner, 7-3, despite four hits by Derench and three by Perotti.

Family/Travel Editor

When Dave Hutchinson receives his mail each day, stamp collectors arrive intermittently at his home at 88 Goodwin St. from such faraway places as Ethiopia, Iceland, Hong Kong, Australia, and elsewhere.

Dave, who has a short-wave receiver at his home, started the collecting of verifications of worldwide short-wave stations back in 1958 and continued it for many years until after World War II.

During that time he listened to many amateur broadcasts with about 50 countries verifying. Now, he has picked up the hobby of listening to the voices of unseen people emanating from a used vacuum tube radio.

Back on Saturday, Aug. 16, 1958, The Herald ran a story of Dave's success in receiving station VR6AY, which is located on Ethiopia, Hong Kong or Iceland.

Your neighbor's kitchen

By BETTY RYDER

When the Home Economics Department of Iling Junior High School conducted its bake-off recently, it compiled all the recipes submitted by students into a cookbook. Among the tempting recipes is this one for Greek Yogurt Cake submitted by Scott Reading.

Greek Yogurt Cake
 1 container of yogurt
 2 cups sugar
 1/2 lb. margarine
 Grated lemon rind
 3 1/2 cups flour
 4 eggs
 4 tsp. baking powder
 Powdered sugar
 Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Cream the margarine and sugar. Add and beat in yogurt. Add eggs and lemon rind. Beat 5 minutes. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add a little at a time to the other mixture, mixing constantly and well. Grease and flour a deep baking pan. Bake 45 minutes at 325 degrees then turn to 375 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes. Cool. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Cathy Drew and Maryann Johnson gave a team effort to preparing this Beef Roll.

Beef Roll
 1 beaten egg
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup finely crushed saltine crumbs (14 crackers)
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/4 tsp. salt
 Dash pepper
 1 lb. ground beef
 1 cup cooked rice
 2 oz. process Swiss cheese (1/2 cup shredded)
 Combine first 6 ingredients. Add beef, mix well. Pat mixture into a 10x8-inch rectangle on waxed paper. Combine cooked rice and cheese. Spread on beef mixture leaving one-inch margin. Roll in jellyroll fashion beginning with narrow side. Seal. Place roll seam side down in 11x7x1 1/2-inch baking pan.

Michael Lerch of 38 Benton St. finds making pretzels can be a sticky business. Mike, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Lerch, participated in the Home Economics course at Iling Junior High School.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25-35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Yield 4-5 servings.

In the snack category, Cheryl Coniam received honorable mention for her Cinnamon Puffs.

Cinnamon Puffs
 1 lemon cake mix
 Margarine
 Cinnamon
 Sugar
 Make cake mix into cupcakes in small cupcake tins. Bake at 375 degrees till done. Melt margarine. Dip cupcakes in margarine and then into a combination of sugar and cinnamon.

Another recipe that sounds good is Oh Henry Bars as prepared by Laurie Bergeron and Liz Campion.

Oh Henry Bars
 4 cups oats
 2/3 cup margarine
 3 tsp. vanilla
 1/2 cup Karo syrup
 1 cup brown sugar
 Cream butter and sugar. Add oats, syrup and vanilla. Press into greased 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.
 Topping:
 2/3 cup chunky peanut butter
 1 cup chocolate bits
 Melt chocolate bits and peanut butter in a double boiler, cool. Spread over bars as soon as you take them from the oven. Allow to cool, then cut into bars.
 Addendum: Mike's recipe for Soft Pretzels was unavailable at column time, but will pass it along soon.

On second thought

By Jan Warren

The key issue

Last month my husband bought me a key rack. It's bright pink, shaped like an elephant and bears the motto, "An Elephant Never Forgets!" He hammered the rack in place on the kitchen door and proclaimed, "There! How's that for a solution to your car key problem?"

Now my husband has come up with solutions before: A magnetic key chain, a key chain bracelet, and once, a key chain with an enormous pompon on the end of it. But this is the first time that he's come up with a key rack and I think it's terrific.

Nine times out of 10 when I come in from the car I hang the key on the new rack. The tenth time (no system's perfect), the phone is ringing or something is burning on the stove and I shoot through the door at Olympic speed dropping the keys en route.

My husband doesn't understand. "If you'd use the key rack EVERY time," he admonishes, "this wouldn't happen."

I'm quick to explain that the keys aren't lost, merely mislaid, and that my record for finding missing car keys is phenomenal.

I have a terrific system. When I realize my keys are missing, I stop, close my eyes, and concentrate.

"If I were a car key where would I be?" I ask myself. Instantly a picture comes to mind. If the last time I had the keys the phone was ringing...flash...I see them under the telephone book. If there was something burning on the stove...flash...I see them in the potholder drawer.

It's a system that requires keen logic and accurate recall, but my husband isn't impressed. "You'll never find your car keys with your eyes closed," he says.

The other day the unheard of happened. While I was sorting the laundry, I found my husband's car keys in the pocket of his gardening pants. For safe keeping I put them on top of the soap powder box.

Minutes later he came into the kitchen all upset. "I can't understand it! I always put my keys on the dresser. Always."

"Don't get in a tizzy," I said. "Close your eyes and concentrate. When did you have them last?"

"This is silly," he protested.

"Come on. Close your eyes and cooperate!"

"Well, I mowed the lawn last night. Maybe I put them in my pants pocket."

"Okay. Then what?"

"I threw my pants in the laundry."

"You're getting warm. What next?"

"Good Lord," cried my husband as he ran toward the laundry room. "You've washed my car keys!"

Seconds later he returned, swinging the keys nonchalantly around his finger. "Do you know why I forgot to put my car keys away? I was thinking about those darn fire ants that are all over our lawn and..."

"You don't have to explain anything to me," I interrupted. "I agree with the motto on the key rack...only an elephant never forgets."

Diploma courses offered

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (U) — Administrators at the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Group are offering their employees a free chance to prove their position in the firm by getting a high school diploma.

Pratt & Whitney, with the help of the Connecticut Adult Education Department, is offering instruction to any worker who wants to go back to school to get his high school diploma.

The back to school program has already produced results at three Pratt & Whitney's plants. Officials say 269 workers, from the firm's Southington, North Haven and Middletown plants, have passed their high school exams and will be awarded diplomas in the coming week.

"This is a brand new program and we've never really done anything this extensive," said John Ryan, a state official who is working with Pratt & Whitney.

Under the program, employees are tested to see what skills they lack. Then they are given the opportunity to take two-hour high school courses at the plant, either before or after work.

The company will pay for the courses in English, mathematics and American history taught by teachers from the Adult Education Program.

"We felt there was an untapped resource right here in the plants and that it would be a service and benefit to the employees as well as the company," said Robert Barnes, an official in Pratt & Whitney's supervisor-management education division.

"Many of our technical classes are long-term training programs requiring a high school diploma and the employees just couldn't get into the programs," he added.

Officials at the plant, which produces aircraft engines, say they expect as many as 1,000 employees to sign up for the high school courses.

They say the program was to start this week, but has been temporarily postponed "because of the heat wave."

State court considering B&W hearing request

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—A state appeals court has reserved decision on a request by Babcock & Wilcox for a hearing before the state Bureau of Securities in an attempt to prevent a takeover by United Technologies Corp.

Attorneys for B&W said the firm, which makes nuclear steam systems for generating power, should have had a public hearing before the bureau. B&W wants to argue against letting the takeover move proceed.

The court Tuesday decided to reserve decision on B&W's request.

UTC is the world's largest builder of gas turbines for generating electricity and, like B & W, reported record second quarter profits on Monday.

Because B&W is incorporated in New Jersey, the acquisition attempt requires the approval of the Bureau of Securities. B & W has its headquarters in New York.

The federal government has filed an antitrust suit against UTC.

He said he is not related to anyone who could have gotten him the jobs. (Herald photo by Barlow)

Bicen unit dissolved

"We are fortunate in East Hartford," wrote Raymond Johnson, member of the Bicentennial Commission, to the Town Council.

"We have an abnormally large number of concerned citizens who support their town and dispel the worldwide opinion that Americans are apathetic concerning their heritage."

The council voted to put Johnson's letter into the minutes of their Tuesday night meeting along with their vote to dissolve the commission.

The council created the commission Feb. 5, 1974. It helped the town celebrate the nation's 200th birthday with many events.

The council passed a resolution Tuesday night. It noted "a new spirit of community pride."

Mrs. Terrye Blackstone chaired the commission and won praise from the council and Johnson.

Heat, poor air threatens many

Paramedic Frank Schroll of the East Hartford Fire Department said this morning the continued heat and poor air quality threatens many.

"You've got to keep calm and cool," he warned.

People with bronchial troubles are especially prone to this weather, he said. They should stay inside air-conditioned places.

The heavy rate of calls for the services of the town's paramedics in recent days is only partly related to the weather, he said.

"This has surprised us. We expected a lot more heart attacks and breathing problems."

There have been many minor accidents at the hottest times of the day. He suggested these may be due to people trying to do too much. They get fatigued and easily frustrated. Then they make mistakes.

Everyone should take it easy, he warned.

Area police report

Vernon
Linda Austin, 18, of 73 Wetherly Ter., East Hartford, was arrested Tuesday on a Common Pleas Court warrant charging her with third-degree burglary and second-degree larceny.

Vernon Police said the arrest stemmed from the investigation of an incident at Man's World, 78 Windsor Ave., Rockville, last September.

Ms. Austin was then an employee of the business. The investigation was into the theft of $720. Ms. Austin was released on a $1,000 bond for appearance Aug. 24 in court in Rockville.

Dale Prince, 18, and James Cortez, 21, both of 12 Ward St., Rockville, were arrested Tuesday on Common Pleas Court warrants charging them with first-degree larceny and third-degree burglary.

They were charged in connection with a break into a Ward St. home on July 18 during which items valued at some $2,900 were reported missing. Both were held at the police station in lieu of posting $2,000 cash bonds. They were to be presented in court today.

Christian Luginbuhl, 30, of 39 Ludwig Rd., Ellington, was charged Tuesday with driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs. State Police said the arrest was made on I-86 in Vernon.

Gary Aldous of 152 Terrace Dr., Vernon, was charged today with criminal impersonation and disorderly conduct. Police said he reportedly flashed a badge at two females and the badge turned out to be a fireman's badge. He was released on a $250 non-surety bond for court appearance Aug. 10.

Mayor releases names of summer workers

Mayor Richard Blackstone has released details on the town's hiring of 159 summer workers in town departments.

In the summer of 1976, Mrs. Esther Clarke, GOP minority leader on the Town Council, had accused the mayor of favoritism in hiring the workers. She said up to half were related to town employees or political leaders, including Republicans.

She sought and won an order from the state Freedom of Information Commission (FOI) forcing the mayor to give her the names and addresses of the workers.

This summer the mayor did not wait for Mrs. Clarke. As soon as the department heads had given him the final figures and names, he printed them and released them.

He denied playing favorites. "We try to do an objective job," he said this week. "We do permit people to return from past summers if they did a satisfactory job then."

To his knowledge, none of the departments changed their hiring practices in any major way. Mrs. Clarke had demanded a more fair method. She suggested a lottery.

Of the 159 jobs, 98 are workers rehired from past summers, 61 of the workers are new.

A total of 528 applied for the jobs. The town advertised the summer jobs sometime in the spring. The usual flood of applicants filled out forms, the mayor said.

Most of the young people offered the jobs took them. A few had found work elsewhere, he said.

The job breakdown is as follows: Park and recreation, 126 jobs with 78 rehires and 48 new people; public works, 32 jobs with 19 rehires and 13 new people; and the library, one job and one rehire.

There were 374 applicants for the park and recreation jobs, 134 for public works, and 20 for the library job.

The mayor said the list may have a few names of children of town figures. But he said the proportion is not unfair and offered all their names.

The names by department and division are:

Porn called moral pollution

"It's moral pollution," said Mrs. Mary Ann Pressamarita of 46 Long Hill St. Tuesday night at the Town Council meeting.

She led a delegation of about two dozen women to the meeting. All were dressed for church despite the heat. One said they had, in fact, come directly from church to the Town Hall to face the council.

"We want to do something about pornography. We need action now," Mrs. Pressamarita told the council members.

She cited the two pornographic book stores on Main St. in the south end of town and the two massage parlors, one on Main St. near the Town Hall and one in the Powder Mill Shopping Plaza on Burnside Ave. She also noted pornographic magazines are being openly sold on racks in drug stores and supermarkets.

Council Chairman George Dagon assured Mrs. Pressamarita none of the council members favors the bookstores or parlors. He reminded her the council and the mayor put together a tough massage parlor ordinance several years ago. The town law has become a model for other towns wishing to control the parlors.

"We had three massage parlors then," Dagon said. "And there were two more planning to open. Now there are only two."

HMO hearing set Monday

A public hearing on a proposed new group health insurance plan called Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the East Hartford Town Hall, 740 Main St., East Hartford.

Hosting the hearing will be representatives of the eight towns which make up Subarea F of the North Central Connecticut Health Systems Agency (HSA) which is sponsoring the hearing. The member towns are Manchester, East Hartford, South Windsor, Bolton, Andover, Hebron, Glastonbury and Marlborough.

Before the hearing begins, the purpose of a HMO will be explained. Then there will be a detailed description of how the Health Maintenance Organization would apply to the area around East Hartford where the operation would be based. Afterward, the public will have an opportunity to comment and ask questions.

"The town's ordinance controls the parlors within legal limits." Dagon said the council's ordinance committee is considering a substantial increase in the annual license fee charged the parlors.

"It should make East Hartford a heck of a lot less appealing than other towns for massage parlors," he said.

About book stores, Dagon said, "I don't know how much we can legally do."

He urged Mrs. Pressamarita and her group to outline their concerns. The council will try to follow them in making new ordinances.

She asked him if it would make a difference to the council if the town's churches and church pastors mounted a drive against pornography. He said yes.

She said, "The majority of people in our town do not want them here."

Henry Genga, council majority leader, said, "You have a right to stay out (of the bookstores)."

Mrs. Pressamarita's husband, Alex, said pornography is not just in the two special stores on Main St. It is in drug stores and supermarkets where children see them.

Harry Egazarian, council member and owner of Pat's Medical Pharmacy on Main St., asked Mrs. Pressamarita if her group had tried economic pressure on such drug stores.

She said they had boycotted Burnside Drug but the store had not changed its policies about the magazines.

When the council moved on to other business, the whole delegation led by Mrs. Pressamarita left the council chambers. At the end of the meeting, councilman Dick Torpey brought up pornography again.

"We sometimes get carried away with the things that bother us," he said.

"I was in the barber shop the other day when I picked up this newspaper (which he did not name). It was just amazing what was in it," he said.

"There is moral pollution. But I don't know what the answer to it is."

East Hartford briefs

The Sunshine Special

The Exchange Club of East Hartford will hold its 30th annual Sunshine Special on Tuesday, Aug. 2, from 9 a.m. at Martin Park. The 100 guests expected are underprivileged youngsters. Meals will be served at noon.

Bill Dunn is chairman this year. Helping him are Bill Manierre, Paul Maynard and Dick Corso.

Children scarce

Recent figures released by the Board of Education show a tremendous drop in the number of children in the past 17 years. As of April 1, there were 1,111 17-year-olds in East Hartford. But there were only 229 children under age one.

Such figures have caused the board to take drastic steps such as ending elementary classes at the Woodland School. There are only two babies living now in the Woodland district.

Overall, the town has 513 fewer people age 20 or under in the town than it did in 1976.

Sewer system alternatives offered by Van Kruiningen

Coventry
Herbert Van Kruiningen, chairman of the Coventry Conservation Commission, has sent a letter to the Town Council and to the Sewer Authority on behalf of the commission proposing alternatives to the regional sewer system recommended by the authority. While praising the efforts of the authority, Van Kruiningen says he disputes its conclusions and would prefer a less costly method of solving the lake community problems. Specifically he would like to see the construction of one or two neighborhood treatment plants and the strict enforcement of health code regulations. Furthermore, the chairman advocates incentives for waterless systems through town subsidies, and a long range plan to reduce housing density in the lake area. Finally, state and federal aid could be sought to improve neighborhoods. Van Kruiningen charges that

Sewer Authority conceded at a recent public hearing that an engineering study failed to demonstrate pollution. He said that wells in the lake area show no contamination by coliform or detergents. He said that the state Department of Environmental Protection served Coventry with a pollution abatement order in 1971. Now that new data is available, the chairman feels the council should ask for recision of that order. The conservationists state the real cost of a regional sewer system to be $15 million, including a treatment plant, four interceptors, laterals, connecting canals, and drilled wells. While Coventry's share of the cost is estimated at $695,000 after state and federal funding and Mansfield's share, "the potential for hidden and unanticipated costs is enormous," the letter says. Van Kruiningen believes lake dwellings could increase by 12 percent if sewers are installed, and charges that the town has added to the density problem by allowing the conversion of seasonal homes to year-round use. In other business, the Conservation Commission voted to reconsider its approval of the 18-lot subdivision application on Carpenter Rd. and Broadway that is pending before the Planning and Zoning Commission. Commissioners were concerned about drainage problems raised in a letter by adjacent landowner James Shea. Commissioner Joanne Corrigan reported that the community gardens on Root Rd. had been planted and were being well cared for. The town made 25- by 25-foot plots available to residents for $6 each. The conservationists began work on recommendations for the planning commission on an open space plan for Coventry. Van Kruiningen suggested enumerating proposed areas on a town map, stating which area should be preserved, and according priority to the listed items.

Ronson may sue for $4,751

Bolton
The Bolton Board of Selectmen received both good and bad news at its meeting Tuesday. A meeting that had to have part of its agenda adjourned to another meeting because of the lateness of the hour. It earned a $4,751 lawsuit against the town is being considered, the insurance budget was underestimated by $2,815, and the Town Aid Fund would probably get $55,970 in excess of $43,000 budgeted. Atty. Michael Peck, representing local resident Bruce Ronson, said suit problem stems from when Ronson prepared a book for the town's 250th anniversary in 1970. He said Ronson underwrote the cost of printing the book, expecting to be reimbursed by the university committee, an agent of the town. Atty. Peck said some, but not all, of the printing costs were paid and the printer brought Ronson to court. He said Ronson is seeking his legal expenses and lost interest because of the court case, a total of $4,715.70. He said Ronson would like to settle and confused at seeing $38,000 worth of bills in just 12 days in office and decided to review all bills and the bill paying procedure. Peck said he can document all facts showing Ronson should not have incurred any out-of-pocket expenses. He included an Oct. 23, 1972 Manchester Evening Herald clipping which said in part, "At an Oct. 1972 meeting of the Board of Selectmen, the board agreed none of the individuals named in the suit would have to bear individual losses. The board voted to have any expenses arising from it paid from the committee fund and the town treasurer." Peck said he would talk to Jerome Walsh, town attorney, about the matter. The selectmen said it should be referred to town counsel, but took no action on the matter. The board will have a special meeting July 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall to discuss town insurance and bill paying. At its last meeting, the board was surprised

School board returns $60,847 surplus funds

Vernon
The Vernon Board of Education has turned back to the town surplus funds of $60,847 which is $4,897 less than requested by Stanley Roessler, director of administration. Roessler said this morning that the general government budget surplus has not been determined yet. But he did say he expected it would be less than $10,000. Charles Brissson, the school board's business manager, said the board agreed to use some of its surplus to do several maintenance projects. The board had to cut its budget request by $250,000 before it went to the annual town meeting. This cut was asked for by the Town Council. Some of the surplus funds the board had before turning them back to the town was used for renovations in the school administration building, a fence at Rockville High School, locker room improvements and storage sheds at the high school, repairs to the Vernon Elementary School playground and reding the gym floor at the Middle School, plus buying maintenance materials. Roessler said he is working on the general government surplus report and hopes to have it ready soon.

Goal eluded Jim Palmer
NEW YORK (UPI) — For the American League, who had dropped five straight and 13 of the last 14 mid-summer gatherings, a smooth start in the 1977 All-Star game was essential. The goal eluded starting pitcher Jim Palmer. "I'm disappointed because I didn't keep us close," he said after allowing the Red Sox veteran over and said, "I want you to know how much I appreciate you coming." As we chatted, Carl Yastrzemski hobbled up from the clubhouse runway. MacPhail excused himself, called the Red Sox veteran over and said, "I'm glad I did, the game means a lot to me and our league," he answered. Yaz was injured in the last series in Chicago but instead of begging off from the three-day vacation like several other American League players, came to New York and was in the starting outfield. Defense weak The American League outfield at game time was almost a laugh, at least defensively, with slow-footed Richie Zisk in left, Yastrzemski in center and Reggie Jackson in right. The latter was the only one of the trio in his regular spot and his defensive talents are suspect and Yaz was hobbling around. Quip of night The best quip of the night came from the lips of Jim Palmer, starting and losing pitcher for the Americans. Rocked for four runs in the 14th minute part of the first inning, including two homers, one a leadoff shot by Joe Morgan, Palmer was asked what he said when Manager Billy Martin came out to remove him. "What took you so long," the ace Baltimore Oriole right-hander said.

Sutton well prepared for stadium debut

NEW YORK (UPI) — Getting ready to make his first pitch in the All-Star game Tuesday night, Don Sutton stood on the pitcher's mound at Yankee Stadium and took a good, long look toward the outfield. Greg Luzinski, George Foster and Dave Parker were standing out there, but Sutton did not see them. He saw Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, instead. No one else among more than 56,000 persons at Yankee Stadium saw Mantle and Maris, but then probably no one else had been preparing for this moment all his life, as Sutton had been doing. "I can't even remember who I pitched to," Don Sutton was saying after the game was over, the National League was a winner again, 7-5, and he had been chosen as the Most Valuable Player for his three innings of scoreless, one-hit, four-strikeout pitching.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National League's All-Star supremacy over the American League goes on like the New York City heat wave with no end in sight. Manager Sparky Anderson avoided the opportunity to gloat Tuesday night after the Nationals defeated the Americans, 7-5, for their sixth straight victory and 14th in the last 15 games, but he stated flatly that his league is stronger. "I don't think there is the gap people think," he said. "But I do believe the National League is superior because it was more outstanding young players." A crowd of 56,683 in sweltering Yankee Stadium saw the Nationals threaten to make a runaway of the 48th classic by scoring four runs off Jim Palmer in the first inning and taking a 5-0 lead before they had one out in the third inning. They did it with a rash of homers — a leadoff drive by Joe Morgan and a two-run shot by Greg Luzinski in the first inning and another by Steve Garvey leading off the third. Morgan, the National League's Most Valuable Player during the last two seasons, insisted "a fast start is a key factor in All-Star games." Most of the Nationals took the victory with professional calm but Don Sutton, who started, pitched three shutout innings and was selected as the game's MVP, said "I would take a 5-0 lead before they had one out in the third inning. They did it with the nice things that have happened to me this week." "It was nice to be picked in the first place," he said. "Then it was nice to be selected as the starting pitcher. Then to receive the MVP Award, which took me completely by surprise, was really hard to comprehend." Sutton and Gary Lavelle pitched a two-hit shutout through five innings but the Americans hopped on Tom Seaver for a total of three runs in the sixth and seventh innings. It was Seaver's first appearance in New York since he was traded to the Reds on June 15 and the crowd gave him a two-minute ovation during the pre-game introductions of the players. A single by Rod Carew, the 39th-hitter's one hit in three appearances, and a walk to Fred Lynn set the stage for Ken Singleton's two-run double and the Americans cut the lead to 5-3 when Willie Randolph singled home an unearned run in the seventh. "What was wrong with the way I pitched?" quipped Seaver after the game. "Nobody got hurt." Then, turning serious, he added: "Yes, I would have liked to have pitched better. But All-Star games are a lot of fun. The best players are all here and it is an honor to be among them. It is really fun." George Scott, whose two-run homer cut the Nationals' margin to 7-5 in the ninth, and George Brett, who had one hit in three appearances, didn't see it quite that way, of course. "I don't like to be embarrassed," said Scott. "I don't care if it's an exhibition... I come to play. I want people to respect me." "The loss isn't a calamity," said Brett. "Maybe we just did a little too early."

Sign rookie
The Boston Celtics, in an attempt to strengthen their backcourt, Tuesday signed 6-foot-4 rookie guard Ray Pace of Rutgers and Tommy Harris, captain of last year's Bowling Green Falcons. Pace and Harris are the second and third draftees to sign with Boston. First-round choice Cedric Maxwell signed Monday. Swann speaks

Heavy rains blanket most of region

Manchester commuters who sloshed through wet and windy weather to work this morning will find slick roads and more puddles to dodge on their way home.

The heavy rain accompanied by gusty winds which hit the Manchester area early this morning is expected to continue through tonight with an occasional drizzle or rain forecast for Wednesday.

More than two inches of rain fell on Manchester within four and a half hours, from 4 to 8:30 a.m., and the town is fortunate that "it all didn't come within a one hour period," Jay Giles, Public Works director, said shortly before noon today.

Giles said he had received only two calls concerning the amount of water on the streets and had not yet been contacted by the town Highway Department. However, he said he expected that the Highway Department may have had some problems to solve.

A spokesman for Hartford Electric Light Co. said that only one power outage had been reported in Manchester this morning. There were 72 customers without power from 5:45 to about 7:30 a.m. in the Pearl, Foster, Ford, Hawley, Hazel and Madison Sts. area, the spokesman said.

The Southern New England Telephone Co. reported that it had received about 50 trouble calls from Manchester and that conditions were worse in surrounding towns.

Hearings under way on welfare reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first round of hearings on President Carter's welfare reform plan have begun on the House side while the Senate moves closer to finishing work on another major administration package — the energy plan.

The welfare plan was greeted with skepticism and outright criticism Monday, despite a plea from HEW Secretary Joseph Califano for bipartisan support of the reform proposals. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called the plan "totally unworkable."

Carter's welfare reform plan involves a $31.1 billion package of jobs and supplemental income for the poor to replace the current system of family welfare payments, food stamps and aid to the disabled. Critics of the plan say it would be too costly and would greatly expand the welfare program.

Portions of the administration's energy program were running into trouble in the Senate.

Carter had wanted to revise the utility rate system to eliminate bargain prices for customers that use large amounts of electricity or natural gas, but the Energy Committee voted only to allow the federal government to intervene in state utility cases to advocate energy conservation.

Debate on the administration's proposal to extend natural gas price regulation began on the Senate floor and a close vote is expected on the issue, probably late this week.

The House voted approval of a bill to provide government benefits for coal miners who are stricken with black lung, a disease caused by the inhalation of coal dust. A similar measure already has been approved by the Senate.

The legislation is expected to benefit an estimated 50,000 miners, and their survivors, at a cost of $238 million in fiscal year 1978.

The House and Senate appeared to be as far apart as ever on the issue of federal funding for abortions. Differences on the issue are holding up final approval of the $60 billion appropriation needed to run the departments of Labor, and Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The probe of alleged South Korean influence-buying moved along slowly as House Ethics Committee investigators questioned former Rep. Richard Hanna, an associate of South Korean businessman Tongsun Park.

The review of Bert Lance's status continued as the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee heard testimony on the steps that led to Lance's original confirmation as budget director.

The Senate Intelligence Committee held a closed session to consider reports that electronic surveillance of Panamanian President Omar Torrijos may have had an effect on negotiations on the new Panama Canal treaties.

Future of J. C. Penney complex involved

Trial affecting park postponed until Friday

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The start of a trial that affects the proposed industrial park in Manchester has been postponed and probably will not begin until at least Friday, according to attorneys involved in the case.

Attorneys and persons who had been subpoenaed for the case gathered in Hartford's Superior Court this morning, the scheduled date for beginning the trial.

Judge Thomas O'Sullivan, however, told the group that Judge Leo Parskey, who will handle the case, is involved in another case that is expected to last through Wednesday. O'Sullivan said that those involved in the case will be on call.

Thursday is Yom Kippur, a Jewish holiday, so if Parskey is not available through Wednesday, the earliest the trial could begin would be Friday.

The case—the Manchester Environmental Coalition vs. Edward Stockton et al—involves a claim by the plaintiffs that Stockton, the state commerce commissioner, granted approval of the J.C. Penney's proposed catalog distribution center without properly weighing its environmental effects.

The Penney facility would be the major occupant in the town's proposed industrial park, planned for a 393-acre site in Buckland.

The case originally was placed on the trial list for Sept. 5, at which time O'Sullivan set a date of Sept. 15 for beginning the trial.

That date, however, was postponed until today because of the change to Parskey as the presiding judge. Now, Parskey's schedule has led to another postponement.

Town officials have expressed concern that Penney might not locate in Manchester if the conclusion of the case is delayed for too long a period.

"We're very concerned about any delay because of the tenuous situation of Penney," Town Manager Robert Weiss said this morning.

Stockton, whose department has worked closely with Penney, said, "It appears that this case will move ahead within a week. I don't think that's any real problem." He said that other work connected with the Penney matter will continue.

Attorneys involved in the case offered different reactions to the delay.

Atty. Bruce Beck, who represents the plaintiffs, said of the delay, "It gives us a little more time to prepare. Our position is that we really haven't had the time that we expected to have."

Atty. Rolland Castleman, representing the Manchester Economic Development Commission, the park's planning agency, said, "There's nothing we can do. We'll just have to wait for the call."

Castleman and other defense attorneys have said that they have been ready to proceed for several weeks.

Carter keeps mum on Lance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is playing his cards close to the chest on whether budget director Bert Lance stays or goes.

He has not tipped his hand so far on which way he is leaning, and White House press secretary Jody Powell told reporters it is "my impression" that Carter has not made up his mind.

Powell also said the decision is a "peculiarly personal one" between Carter and Lance.

Meantime, Carter apparently is holding off — at least until Wednesday — on a news conference where he will be quizzed about Lance.

The chief executive scheduled a breakfast meeting with Democratic congressional leaders today where the fate of Lance in the administration may be discussed.

Carter also was meeting with congressional opponents of continuing flights of the supersonic Concorde to the United States. The President will meet supporters of the plane Wednesday. Carter has until Saturday — the deadline concluding the 16-month test period — to make a decision on the Concorde.

The President met Monday with Lance after strategy talks the night before with his two key advisers, Powell and Hamilton Jordan.

The feeling among White House aides was that Lance had done himself some good in his appearances at Senate Government Operations Committee hearings on his banking practices.

Powell said most people at the White House feel Lance's three days of testimony "looks even better from the vantage of a couple of days than it did at the time."

Carter, he said, still feels Lance did nothing illegal.

However, both committee chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., ranking minority member of the panel, still believe Lance should resign. Percy said he has written the President a "personal note summarizing my conclusions."

Jackston appeal denied by ZBA

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) Monday night voted to deny an appeal of a stop-work order issued for construction being done at 72 Maple St. by Nicholas and Phyllis Jackston.

The board's 4-1 vote supports the stop-work order, issued June 13 by Chief Building Inspector Francis Conti, and an opinion issued by Martin Burke, Vernon's town attorney, who said that the Maple St. work does not conform with Manchester zoning regulations.

The Jackstons, if they wish to continue work on the $80,000 addition at Maple St., now would have to apply for a variance from the ZBA.

Their lawyer, Atty. Leon Podrove, said after Monday night's meeting that no final decision has been made about whether to apply for such a variance. But, Podrove's remarks to the ZBA indicated that a variance application will be submitted.

He asked that the board consider scheduling its next meeting for an earlier date than the present Oct. 17 date. The board members, however, agreed not to reschedule the meeting.

At a July hearing before the ZBA, Podrove argued that the Maple St. addition, which would include five dwelling units and an office, is legal and required no variance. Thus, the Jackstons submitted the appeal to the stop-work order.

Burke's opinion and that of the ZBA, however, is that a variance is required for work to continue at the site.

Harriet Haslett, a board member, said that she felt the proper channel would be for the Jackstons to apply for a variance.

"To reverse the stop-work order is setting a precedent that this board shouldn't do," she said.

Mistakes made

Chairman Bernard Johnson said that there have been a number of mistakes made in connection with the Maple St. work. The Building Department had issued a permit for the addition, which was found to be in violation after the work started.

He said that he understood the financial problems that the delay could cause the Jackstons, but he said it would be "a great mistake" to overrule the stop-work order.

Board members Paul Rossetto and James Cunningham also voted against the appeal of the stop-work order. John Caglianella cast the lone vote in favor of the appeal.

Clarence "Bud" Brown, the ZBA member who originally questioned the Maple St. work, withdrew from voting on the issue. He said that he did not want to vote because such a step might "cast a shadow" on the board's decision.

Caglianella supported the appeal because he said that one of the ZBA's purposes is to grant relief in such cases.

"The circumstances here are circumstances not produced by the applicant," he said, apparently referring to the issuing of a building permit in the case.

The board also approved four requests for variances and special exceptions.

Two of the approvals were granted for motor vehicle dealers who are planning to expand.

The board approved a special exception for Chorches Motors, Inc.

that will permit it to build on the lots at 56 and 80 Oakland St.

Samuel Chorches said that the new building will be used primarily as a repair garage. There will also be some renovations to the existing building, he said.

The board approved a special exception to permit construction of a new building for Manchester Sports Center Inc. at 24 Adams St. The board also approved a variance to reduce a side yard to 20 feet for the building.

Other ZBA actions included:

- Approval of a variance to permit

Gerald Dumond to maintain stock used for retail sales. Dumond of 95 Strawberry Lane runs a part-time golf-club repair business from his home.

- Approval of a variance for Alfred Rossetto to permit construction of a single-family dwelling on a parcel that has no street frontage at 93 Lake St. The 25-acre parcel already includes a two-family home.

The Capital Region Education Council withdrew its request for a variance for a group home on Pearl St. The organization is expected to reapply for the October meeting.

Gov. Grasso wants permanent means for winter fuel aid

HARTFORD (UPI) — Congress should create a permanent program to help needy families get the financial aid necessary to heat their homes during times of severe weather and high fuel costs, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today.

Mrs. Grasso said an emergency program passed by Congress last spring was helpful, but was flawed because funds were not sent to the needy quick enough, there was not enough money available and the program was snarled in red tape.

Red Cross makes appeal for blood

The local officials of the Red Cross have issued an urgent plea for blood donors to visit the Bloodmobile at the Southern New England Telephone Co. office at 52 E. Center St. until 4:30 p.m.

About town

The executive board of Community Baptist Church will meet tonight at 7:30 at the church.

The nominating committee of North United Methodist Church will meet tonight at 7 at the church.

However, there have not been enough appointments made to fill the half-unit Bloodmobile and, because of the critical blood supply throughout the state, Red Cross officials have asked that walk-in donors respond to the plea for blood.

Parker wants apology for Lance comparison

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Treasurer Henry E. Parker wants state Auditor Henry Becker to apologize for comparing him to the federal budget director Bert Lance, but Becker won't back down.

Parker, a Democrat, Monday called Becker's comments on his department "cheap political demagoguery."

Becker, a Republican, refused and said Parker should pay more attention to successive audits that have criticized his department's "loose handling of $1 billion in state investment funds."

Becker and Democratic Auditor Leo Donohue last week charged Parker's operation in the strongest report they have issued in almost two years, but said they found nothing illegal.

Becker was reported to have compared the department's practices to those of the embattled federal budget director.

Parker, in a sharply worded letter to Becker, said such comparisons were "the height of unprofessionalism" and part of a

Massage parlor owners cite economic costs of ordinances

Owners of massage parlors in Manchester and Hartford testified Monday in court that ordinances in those towns would harm, and possibly close, their businesses.

Several massage parlor owners have taken legal action against the two communities. The plaintiffs say that the ordinances governing the parlors are unconstitutional and have sought the injunction until the constitutional question is answered.

The hearing for the requested injunction was held Monday in Hartford and Judge Joseph Goldberg established a tight timetable for his decision on the requested injunction.

Others named to the election campaign committee are: Principal treasurer, Victor Moses; deputy treasurer and publicity, James McAuley; secretary, Marion LeBel; fund raising, Dr. Pierre Archambault, John Kozak, Al Reale and James Watt; coordinating, James Frazer and John Thompson.

"John FitzPatrick has the rare ability to clarify difficult problems and the determination to work long and hard hours toward their solution. He has served his country and his community well in the past, and I am certain he will be an outstanding director," Cole said.

Jackie to get $26 million

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis will receive $26 million from the estate of her late husband Aristotle Onassis under the terms of an out-of-court settlement, a member of the Onassis Foundation board said today.

The board member said the $26 million will be in addition to the $2 million of $100,000 originally bequeathed to her by her second husband, Onassis, the Greek shipping tycoon.

The source, who declined to be identified further, said the final out-of-court settlement was reached in June, 1976. It followed lengthy negotiations between lawyers representing Onassis' only surviving child, his daughter Christina, Jacqueline's legal representative, and the executors of the Onassis estate.

The board member, who took part in the negotiations, said that in May, 1976, it was agreed that Mrs. Onassis would receive $26 million. But Mrs. Onassis pressed through her lawyers for more and at a further meeting in Zurich in June, 1976, she was granted an additional $4 million for a total of $30 million, which she accepted.

Utility rate reform defeated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's plan to reform utility rates has been defeated in committee and his proposed crude oil tax increases opposition from senators in both parties.

The Senate today was holding a second day of debate on Carter's natural gas pricing plan, preparatory to considering amendments starting Wednesday.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who sponsored the anti-oil tax resolution in the Energy Committee, said the tax will hurt the economy and the poor by raising the price of everything made from oil without doing much for conservation.

In opening Senate debate on natural gas price controls Monday, Jackson said, "rampant inflation would be triggered by deregulation."

Some senators have said they would vote for it only if it had provisions relating some of the tax to oil companies that explore for new supplies.

Mother's mending

Do you ever use quick remedies which, at the time, you think are so clever? Well, I do, and sometimes they're not.

Well, I immediately thought, "Gee, the flies will come swarming in." So, thinking quickly, I got out an adhesive bandage and stuck it over the hole which, thank heavens, was located close to the bottom frame of the screen and not too noticeable.

Of course, I always intended to get a fine piece of screening and repair it properly, but the adhesive was working fine, so there it remained.

Well, the young lady of the house spotted it and said, "For heavens sake, mom, why did you put that on the screen to keep the flies out?"

To which, I innocently replied, "It wasn't just to keep the flies out, I didn't want the little darlings to scratch themselves when they flew in."

Can you imagine, a handsome young man waving at me and I was too engrossed in my interview to notice. Must be old age.

Also had a visit from Mrs. Walter J. Verrier of Fort Pierce, Fla. She is 81, looks years younger, and is a real delight.

Opinion

The energy evangelist

James R. Schlesinger, our first energy secretary, went to Denver on his first big outing and spoke to the National Convention of the American Legion.

By the time he spoke, the graying conservative Legionnaires had passed five resolutions generally supporting President Carter's energy program.

So his task was not to rally their support. It was to sell a message few wanted to hear: We have a crisis without a shortage, a profound national challenge without a Pearl Harbor to mark it off.

The energy crisis is like some Biblical tragedy. Everyone knows that disaster lurks just outside the city walls but they do not want to hear the words of the prophets for they are caught up in the pleasures of the moment, swept by the music they want to hear.

And thus, the hardest job in American government today has fallen on the shoulders of James Schlesinger. He must change our habits of living.

The love of physical gratification, materialism, effortless living — these are not new to America or to democracies. Alexis de Tocqueville wrote about them more than 130 years ago in "Democracy in America."

In this classic book, he wrote of the special taste that men of democratic times entertain for physical enjoyments "and listed their wants: "...to add a few yards of land to your field, to plant an orchard, to enlarge a dwelling, to be always making life more comfortable and convenient, to avoid trouble, and to satisfy the smallest wants without effort and almost without cost. These are small objects, but the soul clings to them."

Our careless use of energy has served the end Tocqueville described. Schlesinger's job is to ease us into substitutes in a world running short of gas and oil.

Perhaps he is the right man for this evangelism. He is a stern-looking, religious, very private man — old for his mere 48 years, often blunt, deeply serious. Some think him the ultimate symbol of status quo in Washington. But he is not that at all.

Schlesinger instead is perhaps the best of the bureaucratic world. He moves with skill, force and detailed knowledge within the framework for action given him by the politicians in charge.

Listen to his tense, short, commanding sentences in his speech to the Legion convention in Denver:

"Legionnaires: "Today our nation faces a troublesome passage — requiring dramatic changes in our sources of energy. It is a passage both difficult and potentially perilous. Nonetheless, it is one through which — with foresight and with dedication — we can triumphantly come. The President of the United States has sounded a clarion call — of warning and challenge. To that summons Legionnaires along with other Americans will respond..."

"The President has called for sacrifice, but the sacrifice for which he calls is less of a material nature than of a change in attitudes and assumptions — of all sacrifices the hardest for men to make. We shall have to give up our careless, spendthrift ways in energy use."

Horace Kowles, a veteran of Washington's ghost army of speechwriters, once said a speech should be an act of leadership. That seems to have been what Schlesinger had in mind.

It will take the best he has to offer. It's the hardest battle in government.

New burst of pocketbook pendering

The ghouls move to cash in on Elvis

By Michael Grehl

Not surprisingly, the opportunists and the sharpies have moved quickly to cash in on the death of Elvis Presley. Unfortunately, the worst is yet to come. Even more unfortunately, the victims are decent people, not those seeking to get rich quick from schemes that appeal to greed.

It is a ghoul's streak that drives the artful to seize upon the popularity — or idolatry if you prefer — of Presley as a way to riches through exploitation of the popularity and grief. Already there has been an unconscionable drive to make capital of Presley, but the biggies are in the future, and in sight.

Princely living
 Presley's style of living went from poverty to princely in but a few years. That alone endeared him to millions who wished the same kind of lightning would strike them but who, like most of us, knew it was never to happen.

Even the least interested know that Elvis Presley gave voice to a generation unable to articulate its aspirations and frustrations. The grateful generation, now middle aged, rewarded him with what may be the most enduring adulation enjoyed by any entertainer. His appeal was to the relatively unsophisticated, and regrettably they now are easiest prey of the unprincipled and the fast buck artists.

Charities forming
 On a somewhat higher plane, there is a line of charities and institutions forming, all seeking to get money or holy relics through the posthumous blessing of the singer. Worthy causes, to be sure, but the scramble is unseemly.

Before Presley was in the tomb there were plans afoot to take over his Graceland home for various museum and tourist purposes. Incredibly bad taste and callous, inasmuch as Graceland still is the family home. Suggestions for disposition, it seems to me, should come from the family when and if it chooses.

Trinket hucksters
 Retail merchants here already have been badgered by souvenir and trinket hucksters who lost no time coming out with T-shirts, blue suede shoes, jewelry and other phony memorabilia. Since little Caroline Kennedy, daughter of the late president, lost no little time inveigling her name.

Horace Kowles, a veteran of Washington's ghost army of speechwriters, once said a speech should be an act of leadership. That seems to have been what Schlesinger had in mind. It will take the best he has to offer. It's the hardest battle in government.

herself into the Presley home so that she could cast her well-bred eye over the decor in an account to be carried by Rolling Stone, we can look for a flourishing trade in goods of the style she found at Graceland. The painting on black velvet seen business should boom.

We can expect a surfeit of chumlike bedspreads depicting Presley on stage on one side and in repose on the other.

Instant book publishers are at fever pitch. Before the flowers were gone from Forest Hill Cemetery I personally turned away two persons who wished to collaborate with our newspaper in this newest form of "history." They were quite astonished that we saw no purpose in helping them cash in.

An embarrassment
 All of us on the newspaper staff are embarrassed at the scalping of last week's editions and the fact that we have no control over it.

But, as I said, you haven't seen anything yet.

When the Hollywood and TV paragon get their hooks into The Presley Story, we may see a new record for profit. Even now the headlines must be echoing with arguments about whether to portray the entertainer as a pathetic but sympathetic victim of too much fast living or as a real bum in the mold of "The Great Man." The plot lines are limitless and we undoubtedly shall see too many versions to sort out.

The mentality that unabashedly can offer Dirty Harry and douche commercialism as family fare must literally be frenzied over the possibilities of the Presley life and death.

'Inside stories' for sale
 How many people who enjoyed some contact with Presley will find it fun and profitable to sell their "inside story" with suitable embellishments that cannot now be refuted? How long before the stores and fan magazines will be able to offer plastic models of the mansion, the man and the mausoleum, thanks to West Coast enterprise and Asiatic industry?

My own meeting with Presley were few and brief. He seemed a nice enough young man but I never could share the enthusiasm for him as a singer that so overwhelmed millions. Still, that enthusiasm is easy to understand.

I am sorry that it is too well understood by so many with a Fagin-like instinct for the pocketbook.

Primer on the Panama Canal

Lee Roderick
 The Herald's Washington Correspondent

Fulfilled motto
 On Aug. 15, 1914, the S.S. Ancon, a passenger-cargo ship by the Panama Railroad Co., sailed through the canal and into history as the first vessel to traverse the channel. It fulfilled the motto on the official seal of the Canal Zone which surrounds the waterway: "The land divided, the world united."

While the land remained divided, the world in recent years has become increasingly less united on the canal. Egged on by Communist and third-world countries, Panamanian resentment of the American presence in the 10-mile-wide Canal Zone and American control of the canal itself has blossomed during the past two decades. Panama's leftist military ruler Omar Torrijos has helped fan hatred of the United States, many believe as a smoke screen to hide his bungling of the economy.

Resentment flared
 Resentment flared into rioting in 1959, leading President Eisenhower the following year to allow some Panamanian students attending one school in the Zone to fly their country's flag beside the American flag. That was the proverbial camel's nose under the tent of U.S. sovereignty in the Zone. After more violence in 1962, the full head appeared as the U.S. opened the entire Zone to both flags.

The worst rioting came nearly two years later when, in January 1964, another flag dispute erupted into extensive violence that left four U.S. soldiers and 18 Panamanians dead and $200 million in property destroyed. President Johnson declared that "...violence is never justified and is never a basis for talks." Nonetheless, in September he announced the negotiations that culminated the other day in the treaties signed in Washington by President Carter and Torrijos.

Twice-amended treaty
 The Hay-Bunau-Varilla Treaty of 1903, although amended twice, still gives the United States perpetual sovereignty over the canal and Zone. The two treaties signed the other day would replace that agreement, transferring most of the Canal Zone to Panama almost immediately and the rest within three years. The canal itself would be operated jointly until the end of 1999, at which time it would belong exclusively to Panama.

Finally, the treaties provide generous compensation to Panama: The U.S. would give Panama $50 million to $60 million annually from canal revenue, and an additional $10 million in U.S. military assistance over the next 10 years.

Contrary to much of the rhetoric in favor of giving the canal to Panama, the waterway has been a great boon to that country and its people. Its construction was warmly welcomed by newly independent Panama at the turn of the century. The canal resulted in the eradication of diseases that had plagued residents for centuries. And it is the most important ingredient in an economy that nets Panamanians the highest per capita income in Central America.

If the Yankees now go home, it will be with the knowledge that the Panama Canal remains behind as an enduring legacy of which this nation has every right to be proud.

Censorship no answer to porn

WASHINGTON — The mail in recent weeks has brought scores of letters from readers supporting denunciations in this space of dirty magazines and movies. For which, thanks.

But most of these correspondents propose establishment of a national censor and to those I say no thanks. It is a Hobson's Choice, perhaps, but despite the peril posed by pornography, I cling to one of the few freedoms left me by the tax collectors and other meddlers with the fragile fabric of the Republic.

Little minds can't do it. This is not to say that parents should forthwith repair to the nearest newsstand and stock up on smut for their offspring. Nor do I give my imprimatur to the official libelery that passes for "sex education" in some of our schools. No, I merely speak as an adult in rejecting the proposition that little minds in Washington assume the role of an intellectual police force.

Given the moral state of the nation, I do not blame some people for demanding that we endow a political or professor with divinity and authorize him to decide what the citizenry should read or look at. I find smut both tasteless and dull. But I cannot think of a man or woman I would entrust with the power to decide which books Americans should read and which should be confined by some Storm-trooper in buttoned-down collar to the flames.

Court on right track
 Instead, I applaud the Supreme Court's ruling of four years ago which decreed that a jury's determination of what is obscene can be based on local standards. It rejected a single nationwide standard as a potential vehicle of abuse of constitutional rights. Let people in San Francisco set their standards, said the court, and let the people of Oklahoma do likewise.

That makes sense, because it acknowledges the difference in tastes and moral standards in communities across the country.

Some moralists have preached that if we don't talk about sex it will go away. They ignore the nature of the beast. No law, as a wise politician once remarked, would succeed in making sex unpopular with the masses. Even Adam succumbed.

Sex vs. home runs

In some quarters, it has always been held that the way to teach children from thinking about sex is to fill their waking moments with workouts on the playing field. Support.

Definition a problem

Byron and Burns, of course, wrote of the verity that love is beautiful, a far cry from the scatalogical trash peddled by today's smut merchants. But I fear the national census, because although he might admit that sex exists, he would be tempted to rule that it is discussed only in terms that suit his own literary tastes.

Moreover, a censor would be an obstacle to the public's natural curiosity, and it is no good saying that three sets of tennis will dispel that singularity of the human animal. No Shakespearean character was more athletic than Antony, but it is not recorded that he stood up Cleopatra to hustle off to his club for a game of squash.

Gil Lagase (right) of 91 Florence St. points to the spot on the map where a card from a balloon he sent up in June had the longest reported flight to Falmouth, Mass., in the third annual "Balloons to the Moon" contest sponsored by Top Notch Foods and the Manchester Recreation Department. ## Boy wins balloon contest

Ten-year-old Gil Lagase of 91 Florence St. is bringing home the groceries today. He has been designated the winner in the Third Annual Top Notch Foods and Manchester Recreation Department co-sponsored "Balloons to the Moon" contest. Gil and about 300 other Manchester youths participated in the contest at Charter Oak Park on June 30. Every participant sent up a helium filled balloon with a reply card attached. Gil's balloon card was returned from Falmouth, Mass. and was found about three weeks after the balloon was released. Last year's longest flight was about 400 miles to New Brunswick. Most of the balloons flew northeast this year with many return cards being returned from coastal towns in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, according to Michael Crispino, summer recreation supervisor.

Manchester police report

Charles E. Bousquet, 39, of 97 Hackmatack St., was charged with three motor vehicle violations in connection with two automobile accidents on Hackmatack St. Monday night. The charges included evading responsibility, reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without a license. Police said the first collision occurred about 9:50 p.m. when a vehicle struck a parked car, owned by Frank Conway, 55, of 267 Hackmatack St. The second accident occurred less than a minute later at the intersection of Hackmatack and Keeney Sts. Police said a car proceeded through the intersection without stopping and struck a car driven by Karris L. Ellis, 21, of 26 Dartmouth Rd. The driver did not stop at the scene of either accident but continued traveling at a high rate of speed, police said. Ms. Ellis received minor injuries. Bousquet was arrested a short time later and held overnight in lieu of bond for presentation in court today. In another accident Monday night a car driven by George J. Chomic Jr., 24, of Mansfield Court, struck a guard rail on New Bolton Rd. after being cut off by another vehicle, according to the police report. Chomic was charged with operating a motor vehicle while license is under suspension. His court date is Oct. 4. Daniel R. Chilson, 23, of 82 Richard Rd., was arrested Monday night on charges of resisting arrest and operating a motor vehicle without a license is under suspension. He was held in lieu of $500 bond for court presentation today. Burglaries reported Monday included:

Director clarifies statement

Democratic Director Stephen Penny feels that the report of remarks he made at last Tuesday's directors meeting might have been misleading as it appeared in The Herald. The remarks concerned the water contamination problem. Penny said that his comments were not made in opposition to a proposal to publish results of the water tests. The remarks were made as a reaction to find out whether Manchester's water is safe. As both Penny and Director Robert Price said at the meeting, there is no simple answer to be obtained about whether water is actually safe to drink. Continued probing for such statements may on further upset residents, they said.

School water reported safe

The water in Manchester's public schools has been declared safe according to results of recent sampling. Robert Young, manager of the town's water treatment, said today that partial test results show that water at all the schools is safe for drinking. Although the water at the Keeney School is rated borderline according to the accepted health safety standard, Young said it is safe. The water at the Keeney School is piped from a dead-end main on Hackmatack St. This arrangement, Young said, does not provide for a through circulatory system of the water coming into the school. He said this might be remedied by a pipe loop installed at the end of the main. The water testing in the schools was prompted by a parent's complaint after he discovered muddy water in a bubbler at Bentley School a week ago. He notified the principal, spoke with the health department, and the school administration. Dissatisfied with the outcome, he spoke with Director Vivian Ferguson. Neither W.F. Dion, school superintendent of buildings and grounds, nor his foreman were available today for comment. Commenting on the suggestion to flush the school water systems, School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said today, "We'll certainly act on any suggestions made by the town water experts if it's for the good of the community. With the increased concern in the community for water safety standards, we'll do everything we can to make it safe."

Board given school test evaluations

Some of the reasons why fail, Tyehsen said, may be learning disabilities or emotional or social disabilities. One fairly consistent result of the testing over the past three years shows that Grade 8 students scored an average that was higher than Grade 3 students. Manchester is the only system in the state which does not evaluate the results of the tests in terms of grade level, however, he noted that the Manchester students scored consistently above the national average in terms of grade level. Here is a summary of the results: GRADE 3: A total of 642 Grade 3 pupils took the Stanford Test last May. The subjects and the percentage of students who reached their level of expectancy were: Vocabulary, 84 per cent; Reading Comprehension, 84 per cent; Word Study Skills, 86 per cent; Math Concepts, 87 per cent; Math Computation, 86 per cent; Math Applications, 86 per cent; Spelling, 84 per cent; Language, 91 per cent and Listening Comprehension, 83 per cent. Tyehsen noted that the results in spelling and math computation, two areas of concern last year, improved from the 1976 results, which he attributed to a concerted effort in those areas by teachers. GRADE 4: A total of 688 Grade 4 students in two junior high schools took the Stanford Test last May. The subjects and the percentage of students who reached their level of expectancy were: Vocabulary, 84 per cent; Reading Comprehension, 84 per cent; Word Study Skills, 86 per cent; Math Concepts, 87 per cent; Math Computation, 86 per cent; Math Applications, 87 per cent; Spelling, 74 per cent; Language, 84 per cent and Listening Comprehension, 81 per cent. GRADE 6: A total of 702 sixth-graders in 12 elementary school took the Grade 6 test, however, he noted that the expectancy is given to the principals of each school. The principals then discuss the results with the teachers in the schools and try to determine why children failed in certain areas, Tyehsen said.

Area police report

Steven Mallon, 18, of Pucker St., Coventry, was treated at Windham Community Memorial Hospital Sunday for minor injuries suffered in a one-car accident on Main St. Police said he had been called to a domestic dispute at a local home and Mallon left the scene in his car at a high rate of speed. Police said they chased Mallon until he reached speeds of 85 miles an hour and then stopped. Police said a few minutes later Mallon crashed into a utility pole on Main St. and demolished the car. Police said that during the investigation of the accident, Mallon scuffed with police and had to be forcibly restrained. He was charged with speeding, reckless driving, disorderly conduct, and interfering with a police officer. He was released on a $500 nonreturnable bond and is to appear in Common Pleas Court 19, Rockville, Oct. 11. Robert J. Kirby, 26, of 169 E. Main St., Rockville, was arrested Monday on a warrant and a rearrest warrant charging him with failure to obey a traffic control signal, driving while his license is under suspension, and non-support. Police said Kirby failed to appear in court when scheduled to in June. He was released on a $750 surety bond for court appearance Oct. 12. David W. Harley, of Lydall St., Manchester, was charged Monday with reckless driving, disobeying an officer's signal and unsafe backseat. ## RHS principal resigns

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter A surprised Vernon Board of Education Monday night accepted with regret the resignation of Martin Fagan, principal of Rockville High School. Fagan broke the news to Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and asked him to convey it to the board. Dr. Ramsdell, who will be retiring himself at the end of this school year, said he tried to persuade Fagan to stay on for the rest of the year. Fagan declined, saying that he felt it was for his best welfare that he leave. Fagan has been in the Vernon school system for 33 years. He was made assistant principal of the high school in 1958 and principal in 1964. Fagan graduated from Rockville High in 1940, received his B.A. degree from the University of Connecticut in 1944, his M.A. degree in 1946, and his sixth-year certificate in 1962. Dr. Ramsdell said Fagan doesn't have any special plans for his retirement. William Houle, chairman of the school board, said on hearing the announcement, "We are going to have some pretty big shoes to fill." Houle said the board should take immediate steps to appoint a screening committee to find a replacement for Fagan. He said it should be made up of representatives from the teaching staff, high school students, parents, administration and board members. Board member Harold Cummings questioned the logic of appointing a new principal before appointing a superintendent. He said the superintendent who will replace Ramsdell should have some say about hiring a principal. He said someone in the system could take over until a superintendent is hired. The high school, with its recent addition of two assistant principals, is in his long career in the system, has always been a strong advocate for the good of the students. He has attended hundreds of school board meetings to speak on their behalf, pushing for better curriculum and such. In connection with the hiring of a superintendent to replace Dr. Ramsdell when he retires after more than 40 years in the system, Miriam Bouley, president of the Vernon Education Association (VEA), called for teacher involvement on the selection committee for a new superintendent. "The teachers are concerned about this issue," she said. Planning bazaar The Rockville United Methodist Church Women have set Nov. 12 as the date for the annual Christmas Bazaar. Diantha Dorman, Carol Ross and Judy Wilke are chairmen. A Christmas workshop will be conducted at Wednesday's regular meeting, which starts with a potluck supper at 6:30. Workshops are also held each Monday at 9:30 a.m. at the church.

Bolton teacher talks start soon

Contract negotiations between the Bolton Board of Education and the Bolton Education Association, which represents teachers, will begin soon. The secretaries, custodians and administrators have multi-year contracts that do not require negotiations this year. In a recent message to teachers, Joseph Haloburo, school board chairman, reviewed some of the board's major tasks for the 1977-78 school year. The tasks include an evaluation program, contract negotiations, budgeting, a report by the athletic committee and the formation of a committee to study the schools. Football results Bolton defeated Newton, 36-6, in weekend junior pony football action. Bolton's record is now 1-1. Michael Ouellette scored three touchdowns for Bolton, on a 35-yard run, 15-yard run and eight-yard pass. He also had one interception. Mark Hopper tallied two TDs for Bolton, one on a 70-yard pass interception and the other on a 10-yard run. He also had two fumble recoveries and scored two points on a conversion. Vin Morrone was credited for a two-point safety. Chris Hopper completed three of five passes for 100 yards. The scores of the Bolton Tigers-East Windsor Rams grid football game Sunday was reported incorrectly in Monday's Herald. Bolton won 40-6. For senior citizens The Bolton Senior Citizens will begin their year with a potluck lunch Wednesday at noon at the Community Hall. All members are asked to bring either a hot dish or a salad. The luncheon will be followed by a business meeting to discuss an October foliage trip. Card playing will follow the meeting. The visiting nurse will be present for consultations. Beginning in October, the senior citizens' regular meeting will be the fourth Wednesday of each month. Each Wednesday the group will meet at the town hall for card playing. Every Friday, senior citizens can have lunch at Bolton Elementary

Library planning proceeds

Construction of South Windsor's new 15,000-square-foot library will be under way before December, now that the final steps have been taken by the Town Council. The council authorized Town Manager Paul Talbot to sign the final agreement with the Connecticut State Library for a federal grant of $390,000. The grant is the base which will be used to finance the new library. The remainder of the funds for the $831,250 library will come from the Capital Reserve Fund ($196,000), General Government Fund ($107,000) and the Library Trust Fund ($137,700). The new library, which will be a two-story structure of brick, will be built in front of the Town Hall. The building will triple the present space in the storefront library in the Sullivan Ave. Shopping Plaza. The Town Council also authorized the Public Building Commission to hire an architect for the library. The basic plans are expected to be a scaled-down version of the elaborate library turned down in referendum five years ago. According to the stipulations of the grant, the building project must be under way by the middle of December. Hearings tonight The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission will conduct public hearings tonight at 8 at the Town Hall on three applications. Caleb Vinton Benjamin seeks a zone change from RR to A-20 for a fence around the half-acre at Laidlaw Park. Home-baked doughnuts, hot dogs on sticks, corn on the cob and baked cakes will be some of the items featured, bringing the Harvest Festival-goer back to the days when Dr. Warren E. Howland and Raymond S. Holcombe Jr. seek rezoning of 1.2 acres of land from A-20 to R.C. The property is near the intersection of Sullivan Ave., Graham Rd. and Ayers Rd. Joyce Wright is asking for a special exception to allow boarders at 382 Oakland Rd., in an RR zone.

Historical festival planned

South Windsor was primarily an agricultural community and people attended such fairs on horseback. Games and contests will take place throughout the day and night, with rope pulling, ball pounding, greased pig contests, corn husking and taffy pulling featured for those who would like to try the skills of yesteryear. Many craftsmen will be at work making pottery, brooms and candles. Ladies will spin lamb's wool and the men will demonstrate wood-working and black smith under the spreading Mulloon publicity; Doris Burchgott art; William Worthen, tickets, and Joseph Kyc, props.

Few criticize rev-share use plans

There was little criticism from the 50 Coventry residents at Monday night's Town Council hearing on proposed uses for $112,475 in federal revenue sharing funds. Only Anthony Roberto, a member of the Parks and Recreation Commission, made a plea that some item be deleted from the town's proposed use of the money for a fence around the half-acre at Laidlaw Park. He said the field cannot be developed while automobiles can gain access to the field and destroy the ground. Two councilmen asked Roberto whether he was speaking for himself or for the commission. Councilmen Robert Olmstead and Douglas Whipple suggested that $4,000 for a town vehicle could be diverted for the fence. Council chairman Jesse Brainard said the $10,000 for two police cruisers may be reduced because only one cruiser has more than 100,000 miles on it. The new unit will not be air-conditioned. Town Manager Frank Connolly said a $15,325 "bushwacker" for the Highway Department had been tried out and was on display in the Town Hall parking lot. He said the vehicle is needed to clear tree limbs and brush along roads. Brainard said $10,000 each for the town's two volunteer fire departments would be added to next year for the purchase of $25,000 fire trucks. Harold Crane asked that $1,500 be added to this amount for repair of two burned-out sirens. Board of Education member Vincent Whipple questioned whether this money should be spent on repairs when maintenance was not being adequately administered. Library spokesman Arnold Carlson said maintenance would be up-

High school patrols handled by woman

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter The appointment of Ms. Horn as building and grounds security guard at the high school was approved by the Vernon Board of Education Monday night. She has been working at the school since it opened, however. She is 20 years old and is a graduate of Manchester Community College, where she took the police training course. Ms. Horn, a pretty blonde, said the students are getting to know who she is and why she is there, and are getting to respect her authority. Her general duties are to enforce school policies and regulations; prohibit smoking in the school building and limit it to assigned areas; prevent vandalism; check cars for parking violations on the school grounds; investigate and act upon any illegal activities, inside or outside the school, and communicate with responsible authorities. She is also to keep the high school principals up to date on students who continually violate school policy. She works from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and will be assigned to evening and weekend activities as needed. An amount of $5,760 has been budgeted for her salary. Monday night, on recommendation of Police Chief Herman Fritz, the board also approved an appropriation of $800 to buy radio equipment for Ms. Horn to allow her to communicate with the principals inside the building while she is outside. While she doesn't have the authority to make any arrests, she will be of help to police, who don't want to get involved in every episode at the school, Fritz said. Fritz said he finds Ms. Horn very perceptive. "My gut reaction is she has the potential to do a good job at the school," he said. Ms. Horn was hired because her car had been vandalized recently in the school parking lot. The board asked Ms. Horn to make a written report for the board to review in six months.

Vernon schools see drop in enrollment

For the first time, the Vernon Public Schools opened in September with fewer pupils than when schools closed in June for the summer vacation. In view of this, Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, told the Board of Education Monday night that a kindergarten teacher will be resigning in October and he didn't see the need to replace her. He proposed two traveling teachers who could be teaching at different schools in the morning and afternoon sessions of kindergarten. He said it's easier to transfer teachers back and forth than to move the children. He said, however, that he has already heard objections from the teachers and noted he didn't want to know his path unless the board was in agreement with him. "The enrollment keeps declining we can't keep the same staff," he said. Board member Russell McPadden complimented Dr. Ramsdell and said he thought this would be the start of a good plan. Dr. Ramsdell said the plan could continue if there are more resignations or retirements. He said he has been told he doesn't have the authority to do this. "But I maintain we because we are not firing anyone." He said when schools closed for the summer the enrollment was 6,588. When they opened in September it was 6,492. "This is the first time I ever remember this happening," he said. The board agreed with the concept and asked Dr. Ramsdell to bring a complete plan to the Oct. 3 meeting.

Vernon mayor asks CL&P to cut costs

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter As an alternative to a rate increase sought by Connecticut Light & Power Co. (CL&P), Vernon Mayor Thomas Benoit called for a comprehensive cost reduction program to control operating expenses. Benoit made his plea at a public hearing conducted by the Public Utilities Control Authority (PUCA) all day Monday in Vernon. The hearing was sparsely attended, with only a handful of people speaking. Most of the day was filled with testimony and questioning by lawyers from the Connecticut Conference on Municipalities, the Connecticut Citizens Action Group and other consumer groups. The questions were directed to Donald Switzer, vice president of construction planning for CL&P. Benoit told the PUCA that if the company's application is approved, another burden will be placed on residents, "many of whom are not in a position to absorb such an increase." The company is asking for increases of about 16.1 per cent on electric bills and 7.2 per cent on gas bills. Benoit said the proposed rate increase would mean the town would pay about $32,000 a year more for utilities. He said the town is now paying about $225,000 for electricity, or about two mills worth of taxes. In connection with the suggestion to pursue a comprehensive cost reduction program, the mayor said, "According to its application, Connecticut Light & Power has made significant progress in this area and I would hope that these efforts will continue in the future." He also reminded the PUCA that all rate payers couldn't appear personally at the hearing to comment on the request for rate increase. He asked the commission to bear in mind its responsibility to the public. Henry Abaza, who owns several apartment complexes in Vernon, objected to the rate increase and the effect it would have on elderly residents. He was asked to gather data as to the amount of electricity used and how much the increase would be for apartment dwellers. Morgan Campbell, a Town Council member, also made a plea on behalf of senior citizens. Public hearings will continue in several other towns.

ZBA to hear one request

An appeal for relief from the Andover's zoning regulations will be heard at a public meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Town Office Building. Elenora Moran is requesting relief from frontage regulations on property on Parker Bridge Rd., on an existing town road. Volunteers needed Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer helper at the school library is asked to call Mary McNamara, librarian, at the school. Eric Anderson and Kevin MacKay each read 25 books during the summer.

School drug rule changes

Vernon

The health policy for the Vernon school system has been changed to accommodate new legislation which requires school systems to provide injections as well as oral medication.

The school principals have been trained by Dr. Harold Shapira to give the injections, if necessary.

Dr. Shapira, the school system's health officer, and Mrs. Olive Ferguson, head nurse, are recommending that the school board adopt the policy with the new addition.

The policy requires that prescribed medication not be administered during school hours if it is possible to achieve the desired effect by home administration.

For each medication ordered there must be a written order from a physician and written authorization of a parent or guardian.

The doctor's orders for medicinal preparation to be given must specify the duration of the order, the name of the drug and the dosage. Those orders must be renewed each school year.

A parent or a responsible adult must deliver the medication directly to the school nurse, principal or teacher. The container must be labeled with the name of the patient, name and strength of medication, date of prescription and directions.

Ordinarily the medication is to be administered by the school nurse. In her absence the principal or teacher will give it or designate a teacher to be responsible.

The date, time of administration, student's name, kind and quantity of medicine, doctor's name, and the signature of the person administering the medication must be recorded. The record book and medication must be kept locked.

Only one month's supply of medicine can be stored in school and unused medicine must be picked up by the parent within one week or disposed of by the school nurse.

A spaghetti supper sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary to Vernon VFW Post 10212 has been rescheduled for Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. at the post home, Rt. 83.

The event was originally scheduled for this Saturday. Members and friends are invited. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Inches short

Baseball is a game of inches. So is golf, tennis and football.

Take last Saturday as an example at Yale Bowl in New Haven.

Two yards from paydirt with less than one minute remaining to be played and trailing Yale 10-7, Brown was able to gain only 70 inches and wound up two inches short of a go-ahead score in the Ivy League battle of football giants.

The Elis managed to go off the playing field with a one-point win. Brown's final two points coming on a safety.

"It was the best goal-line stand I've ever seen in my 13 years at Yale," Coach Carm Cozza said.

Brown's John Anderson added, "I sent in four plays that had all worked at other times during the game and Yale stopped them that. That was the finest goal-line stand I have ever seen in football."

And it was, though memory is sometimes short on past games.

Yale and Brown may have the two best teams in the Ivy League and it was too bad they had to meet in the season opener.

The crowd was disappointing in some quarters, 27,196 spectators showing up. No doubt many potential ticket buyers preferred to stay home and watch the action on ABC.

Don't shed any tears for the athletic budgets of the two schools. The going rate for twelve commercial tickets is $65,000 a minute.

Kinel to coach

Announcement will be made shortly of the appointment of Frank Kinel as varsity basketball coach at Manchester Community College. He succeeds Don Geisler who resigned. Kinel, an East Catholic High and St. Peter's grad, had been on the East hoop coaching staff for several years. Tickets for the Yale-UConn football game this year (Saturday) will not be offered at a reduced rate as has been the case for several years. The game could draw 15,000. Talk about upsets on the weekend, there were three shockers in the NFL, Los Angeles bowing to Atlanta, Cincinnati losing to Cleveland and the New York Giants whipping Washington. Chick Bill Zwick was second with Fred Bruno, John Andreoli, Dan Pinto and Gene Champ following in that order.

Bruno was closest to the pin on the par three 14th hole to win a special award.

Forfeits, forfeits

Something's wrong with a promotion when five of the scheduled eight matches in first round and quarter-final play result in forfeits. That was the case in the Rec Men's Doubles Tennis Tournament last Sunday at Charter Oak Park. The women fared much better with all eight matches being played as scheduled in first round and quarter-final pairings. John Quinn is a member of the freshman football squad at Springfield College this season. The National League has beaten the American League again in gaining 20-game pitching winners. Philadelphia's Steve Carlton was first in the exclusive club while Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs was next to attain 20 decisions. Walter "Ty" Holland writes and asks for:

One down, dozen to go for Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — One down and a dozen to go.

That's how the Boston Red Sox viewed the task before them today as they forget Monday night's vibrant 6-3 victory over New York and prepare for tonight's game against the front-running Yankees.

The win, combined with Baltimore's 3-1 loss to Toronto, left the Red Sox and Orioles tied for second, 3½ games behind New York. Boston and Baltimore have 12 games remaining while the Yankees have 11.

"We have to win them all or today doesn't mean a darn thing," said Carl Yastrzemski, who homered and singled in another run in front of 34,346 raving fans. "I know we have to win them all to have any kind of a chance."

Boston Manager Don Zimmer, who has predicted all season that the race will go down to the final week, added, "If we win tomorrow then three clubs have a hell of a shot at winning. Cleveland displayed and came out of this series two games down in the loss column."

For the Red Sox to win again, they will need the type of gutsy pitching Reggie Cleveland displayed and the kind of power hitting Carlton Fisk and Yastrzemski supplied in Monday's game.

Yastrzemski offset Thurman Munson's first inning homer with a run-scoring single in the bottom of the inning, but Fisk ended the rally by striking out with two runners on base.

In the third inning, though, Fisk came up again with two men on following rookie Ted Cox's sixth straight hit since being called up from Pawtucket, and a single by Jim Rice.

Fisk, who had hit a pair of 400-foot homers against El Figueroa in his team's 2-0 loss, spiked the Puerto Rican right-hander's slider into the left field net to give Boston a 4-1 lead.

"I hit five balls better than that in New York and all I came up with was one hit," said Fisk, referring to Boston's two losses in the three game series last week in New York. "It's nice to be home and have a well hit ball get out."

Cleveland, who admittedly was sharper in last Wednesday's 2-0 loss just 184 at game time, drove in two runs with a double and a single while Barry Larkin spaced nine hits in registering his 10th victory and 12th complete game.

"I guess this shows we're not pushovers for anyone," said Cerone. "Playing the spoiler is sure a lot more fun than just going through the motions at the end of a season."

Elsewhere in the American League Chicago blanked Oakland, 8-0; Detroit put away Cleveland, 6-4, and Texas downed California, 6-1. There were no National League games scheduled.

Ken Kravec, 9-8, tossed a four-hitter and struck out eight, while Eric Soderholm stroked his 23rd home run during a four-run fifth inning for Chicago. Lamar Johnson also had a two-run triple to help Kravec who pitched his fifth complete game.

Tim Lincecum hit his 28th homer with two aboard to help the Rangers edge over Chicago for second place in the AL West. Nolan Ryan was deprived of his 20th victory. Doyle Alexander 16-10 went all the way for the win.

Rookie Cox makes 'hit' with manager and fans

BOSTON (UPI) — It took seven trips to the plate before Ted Cox made his first major league out, but by then he already had made a hit with Manager Don Zimmer and the Boston fans.

Cox, promoted to the Red Sox last week after hitting .334 with 11 RBIs in 95 games for Pawtucket of the International League, only had two hits in four at bats Monday in Boston's 6-3 win over the New York Yankees.

A day earlier, he had started his big league career by going four-for-four with a walk against Baltimore.

Starting as the designated hitter again Monday, the 22-year-old infielder hit a first inning single to start the game and a two-run single to left center.

When he came to bat in the fifth inning, the 34-year Fenway Park fans gave Cox a standing ovation.

"I never experienced anything like that in my life," said the 6-foot-3 resident of Midwest City, Okla. "But then I never expected to get off to a start like this."

After the crowd settled down, Cox made his first out, a grounder to first. The right-handed hitter also hit a long fly to center in the eighth.

The hit came from a bat he borrowed from Butch Hobson, the man responsible for keeping Cox in the minor leagues this season.

Both played third base, but Hobson was elevated because he was a far better hitter. Cox, known for his good fielding, lost weight and added upper body muscles last winter to lift his average 56 points from the 278 mark.

He hit in Double A last the previous season.

"I know Butch is going to be here a long time and that my future with this team seems to be at first base," said Cox. "I played 1953 as first this year and I hope to play first in Puerto Rico this winter."

"In fact, before I was called up last week, I bought Pawtucket first baseman Jack Baker's car for $20. He said he is going to try to make it to the big leagues as a pitcher."

Cox apparently has earned himself a job with the Red Sox, solely on his hitting. In contrast to his power-laden teammates, Cox is more of a line-drive, beseat batter. Zimmer already has installed Cox in the second position in the batting order and will leave him there as long as Cox does the job.

"Right now I don't want to think about that first game or what I did today," said Cox, who also would not want to know he has a 750 lifetime average in the majors. "I just want to go up to the plate and take my swings."

I used the word "humiliating" last Saturday night and I still think it's the exact term to be used for our performance (4-5 loss). I should use the word "shocked" also, especially after what we thought was a very positive three weeks of pre-season practice.

The South Windsor offense puts a lot of pressure on one or two people in your defense but you can't blame these people for the complete breakdown because they should have more help from the rest of the team in stopping South Windsor's veer running game. As it shows in every game, it takes a complete team effort to win and a less than complete team effort will lose it for you. Such was the situation Saturday night.

Despite the over-all shoddy performance, there were some good individual efforts on defense. Sophomore linebacker Dave Bottaro pulled more than his own weight with seven unassisted tackles. Senior Bob Smith at cornerback, John Karzar at defensive end and Brian Shea at linebacker worked hard to stem the onslaught.

Offensively, there weren't many bright spots but we did get some pretty good efforts from Dennis O'Connell at guard, Brian Sirois at fullback and Arnie Carter at tailback. Guard John Andreoli played well despite the fact that he was called upon to play most of the game both ways. Wide receiver Dave Blake while not a starter turned in a good enough performance to earn himself a starting job next game.

The only bright spots as far as team effort goes was the pass blocking of the offensive line and backs. We had enough time to throw the ball but just weren't making the completions. Our conditioning also seemed to be good.

Saturday's opponent, Rockville, will be tough to beat. Coming off their championship year, they are a good team but one which is lack depth. We will have to stop their option game if we want to beat them so we are facing the same problems as last Saturday.

I'll go way out on the limb and promise all our fans that we will play a much better game Saturday. I wouldn't do this if I didn't think we have the people to do this.

Steelers not sharp in routing 49ers

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Steelers' NFL season-opening victory over San Francisco Monday night was, in the words of Franco Harris, "a good one to get us going."

But that's just about all the nationally televised 27-0 win was something for the Steelers to build on.

It was certainly not the type of performance that Pittsburgh can depend on to beat Oakland at Dallas and some of the other tough teams awaiting the Steelers on their regular season schedule.

Yes, the Steelers offense scored 27 points, but it also failed to take advantage of the excellent position that San Francisco miscues and the Pittsburgh defense consistently gave it.

Yes, the Pittsburgh defense scored a shutout, grabbed two interceptions and a fumble and broke up several other Jim Plunkett passes, but it was hard to judge whether the defense's success stemmed from its strengths or from San Francisco's weaknesses.

After all, the 49ers haven't scored a touchdown since their third of six pre-season games.
