Jaycees prepare haunted house

Members of the Manchester Jaycees are busily at work turning the former Treasure City store at the Parkade into a haunted house in time for Halloween. Among the workers are Kevin O'Brien, front, and Rick Kenny who are constructing a maze out of black cardboard. The haunted house, guaranteed by the Jaycees to scare "the yell out of you, will be open to the young and old Oct. 28 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Oct. 29 and 30 from 5 to 9 p.m. Proceeds will benefit the Jaycees civic projects. ## Town to use flat-rate for sewer charge billing

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Sewer rates in Manchester will be changed to eliminate a sliding scale that decreases the charge as water usage increases. Frank Jodaitis, water and sewer administrator, said Wednesday.

The change to flat-rate billing per unit is required by the federal government and will be instituted, probably within two years, Jodaitis said.

The sewer rate is now 115 per cent of the water bill, which is calculated on a sliding scale. Based on that scale, the cost for water decreases as usage increases. Thus, the more water a customer uses, the less the per-unit cost.

Since the sewer rate is based on the water charges, but this will have to be changed, according to the federal government.

A system will have to be developed where a customer pays the same sewer rate for each unit of water used, regardless of the total amount.

The federal government proposed such a flat-rate system for sewers in 1972, Jodaitis said. Towns do not have to adopt the system unless they use federal funds for sewer projects.

Manchester recently received federal monies for the sewer installation that is planned from Union Pond to the Baldwin-Concord Rds. area. Thus, a flat-rate system will be developed for the town, Jodaitis said.

The federal government does not now provide monies for water improvement, so it does not require changes in the billing for water service. The town may make no changes in its water billing methods at this time, Jodaitis said.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said that the town might consider a similar flat-rate for water billing to promote conservation.

Jodaitis said that the new flat-rate system for sewers probably still will peg sewer bills to the amount of water usage. Two different billing systems will have to be developed, however.

The water billing can continue on its present sliding scale, but the sewer charges would have to be calculated on a new flat-rate schedule that would charge an equal amount for each unit of usage.

Now, a customer using 5,000 cubic feet of water receives water and sewer bills that are less than five times the bills for a customer who uses 1,000 cubic feet. Under the new system the customer with the greater use might still receive a reduced per-unit cost for water, but the sewer charge would be five times the bill for the smaller user.

This change would primarily affect any large user of water, including some industry.

The Eighth District sewage is now metered as it enters the town system. Thus, it is one large customer and its rates are calculated accordingly.

Under the sliding scale, this provided a reduction in the total sewer charge because of the decrease in the rates with the increase in usage. The proposed flat

Against West German interests

Terrorists open attack

By United Press International
Leftist terrorists and their allies have opened a new offensive against West Germany, killing a top industrialist and firebombing German vehicles and businesses across France and Italy.

The Bonn government, returning the challenge, said it will hunt down the killers of kidnaped industrialist Hans-Martin Schleyer, whose body was found Wednesday in the trunk of a car in Mulhouse, France.

"They will have no rest," a government spokesman said. "We will give them no chance."

Demonstrators attacked West German property in Paris and Rome and a host of smaller Italian cities, smashing windows and firebombing buses and businesses.

The violence came one day after West German commandos freed 86 hostages from a hijacked Lufthansa airliner in Somalia, killing three of the four Arab and German hijackers in a seven-minute Entebbe-style raid.

Hours after the commando raid, West Germany announced the suicides of Andreas Baader, a co-founder of the notorious Baader-Meinhof gang of urban guerrillas, and two comrades in Stammheim prison. Baader's lawyer said his client was killed by a bullet to the base of his skull.

At the United Nations, meanwhile, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim moved to head off an international strike by airline pilots incensed by the execution of the pilot aboard the hijacked Lufthansa jetliner.

Waldheim invited Derry Pearce, head of the International Air Line Pilots Association, to travel from Hong Kong to New York to discuss ways of curbing hijackings. The pilots have demanded the U.N. take action against air piracy.

In Mulhouse, French police acting on a telephone tip from the Red Army Faction terrorist group found Schleyer's body. The 62-year-old president of the German Employers' Association had been shot in the head.

He was kidnaped Sept. 5 in a machine gun attack in Cologne that left his four bodyguards dead.

In the public protests, hundreds of demonstrators rampaged in the streets of Genoa, Italy, and smashed a glass door of the West German consulate building. Police fired their guns in the air to disperse the mob and arrested 19 persons.

In Rome, young rioters stormed down the elegant Via Veneto shooting out office windows. Police in armored cars pumped tear gas into the crowds to protect the West German Embassy and the Lufthansa Airline building. There were also disturbances in Milan and Como.

In France, arsonists firebombed three West German tourist buses in downtown Paris and two in Nice. Passing motorcyclists doused the flames in the capital and damage was only slight, police said. But in Nice, both buses were destroyed.

Italian authorities also reported bombings at German automobile showrooms and businesses in Turin, Livorno, Bologna, Milan and Siena. In Venice, attackers set fire to the door of the German consulate.

Telephone callers attributed the outbursts to leftists bent on avenging the deaths of Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe in their German prison cells.

The Bonn government said the three made a suicide pact upon learning the hijacking plot to free them and eight other terrorists from West German jails had been smashed in Mogadishu, Somalia.

The government called on the entire West German nation to join the hunt for Schleyer's killers and released the names and photographs of 16 terrorists who it said are "known" to be involved.

Suspected bank robber hijacks Frontier jetliner

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A suspected Georgia bank robber today forced his way through a security checkpoint at a Nebraska airport and hijacked a Frontier Airlines jetliner in what officials said was a plot to free another accused bank robber.

The jetliner, with 35 persons on board, was taken over at 6:30 a.m. at Grand Island, Neb., flown to Kansas City, Mo., for refueling and then took off for Atlanta at 9:30 a.m.

"Man in the cockpit," the pilot of the Frontier Airlines 737 radioed to the tower at Grand Island. "Going to Kansas City International for fuel."

Grand Island police and federal authorities identified the hijacker as Thomas Michael Hannan, 29, of Grand Island. They said he demanded the release of George David Stewart, 29.

Hannan and Stewart were arrested for the Sept. 2 holdup of the Northside Parkway branch of Fulton National Bank in the Atlanta area. Stewart was being held as a federal prisoner in the Fulton County Jail, while Hannan was free on bond.

The FBI said Hannan, in addition to Stewart's release, also demanded $3 million, two parachutes, two machine guns and two .45 caliber pistols.

The Federal Aviation Administration said 19 of the 30 passengers, including one heart patient, were allowed to leave the plane at Kansas City, leaving 11 passengers and a crew of four aboard the jetliner for the 800-mile, two-hour and 50-minute flight to Atlanta.

Authorities in Atlanta were ready for the jet, but there was no indication whether any of the demands would be met when the jetliner arrives.

Fulton County (Atlanta) Sheriff Leroy Stynchcombe said Stewart had been moved to an "undisclosed location." The sheriff said it would be up to federal authorities whether to release Stewart to meet Hannan's demand.

Authorities originally thought two persons were involved in the hijacking. FBI officials said the confusion arose because of the apparent coincidence of the presence of a former high school friend of Hannan's, Lyle Wurtz, aboard the plane.

Bill William, FBI special agent in Kansas City, said Wurtz helped with the negotiations with Hannan.

"Wurtz convinced him to release the women and children in Kansas City," William said. "He tried to persuade him to give this thing up, but Hannan wouldn't hear of it."

Stewart is a native of Mobile, Ala., while Hannan is from Sioux Falls, S.D., but had been living in Grand Island. They were arrested at the Atlanta holdup in Whistler, Ala. on Sept. 6. Stewart had been held in the Fulton County Jail since Sept. 15.

Grand Island Police Chief Tom Shama said the only contact police had with Hannan was in 1956 for a minor traffic violation there.

The FBI said Hannan and Stewart allegedly entered the Atlanta bank dressed in army khakis, carrying attache cases and were armed with handguns.

The twin-engine Boeing 737 — Flight 101 — was hijacked as it was loading passengers for Lincoln, Omaha and Denver.

Frontier officials began making flight reservations for the women and children who were allowed off the plane so they could continue to their destinations. The Red Cross provided breakfast for the passengers and diapers for a baby.

Interconnections are established in Korean scandal testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first formal testimony and evidence presented to the House ethics committee links Korea's diplomats, its CIA agents and its president, Park Chung Hee, to influence-buying efforts on Capitol Hill.

But the naming of erring congressmen may be months away.

With Special Counsel Leon Jaworski directing Wednesday's opening session the panel heard three witnesses describe a covert lobbying operation that included envelopes full of $100 bills, secret letters and strategy meetings and a raft of code names for participants.

Kim Sang Keun, a former Korean CIA agent, was asked to testify again today at the second round of hearings after saying his boss in Seoul sent him letters in 1974 with word that "the chief priest" knew of the clandestine activities and "the Patriarch has expressed his satisfaction."

Kim said he was told those were code names for the South Korean president.

In almost four hours of testimony Wednesday, a crowd of several hundred persons in the huge hearing room and an audience watching on public television were shown that the investigators had found a highly complicated scheme stretching back to the 1960s.

The aim evidently was to gain favorable U.S. military and economic policy for Korea and Jaworski said the plan clearly was carried out "at least in part."

The first witnesses, working from a photograph, identified former Ambassador Kim Dong Jo as the man who brought an envelope holding "an inch-high" stack of $100 bills to Rep. Larry Winn, R-Kan., in 1972 and returned for the money after the apparent bribe was rejected.

Kim Dong Jo now is President Park's assistant for foreign affairs. His past role as an apparent "bagman" in the scandal was related by Winn's secretary, Nan Elder, and Jai Hyon Lee, a former information minister at Korea's Washington embassy.

Lee recalled a time when the ambassador, carrying about two dozen plain white envelopes loaded with $100 bills, left the embassy saying he was going to the Capitol.

And he said he once saw a letter in which President Park told the ambassador not to "quarrel" with

Tongsun Park and to "give him good cooperation."

Tongsun Park, the wealthy rice dealer now in Seoul and refusing to testify, is under a 36-count indictment on charges of bribery, conspiracy, racketeering and mal fraud.

He is said to be the central figure in the scheme.

The long-awaited hearing followed numerous official denials from Seoul and the session began with Jaworski promising to produce evidence showing that Korean government officials conspired "to buy off" American congressmen" during the 1970s and carried out the plot "at least in part."

BUM RAP. Britain's Prince Charles says history handed him a bum rap to his great-great-great-great-great-grandfather — that King George III actually was "a great person interested in people." The prince, launching a 12-day American goodwill tour in Chicago, also defended Britain's monarchy as a system with no political "grind." He told University of Chicago students, "Constitutional monarchy is not biased... its great advantage is what it can do in a human way... it's a matter of popularity. If they don't want you around, they'll let you know."

NO BIG DIEHL. Having a president for a houseguest is nothing new for Woodrow W. Diehl. He entertained Lyndon B. Johnson at his 1,500-acre Ackworth, Iowa, farm in 1966 and now he's set to take in a fellow farmer — President Jimmy Carter. Diehl and his wife, Mary, will entertain Carter on Oct. 21, when the President stays overnight for a fund-raising appearance at a Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Des Moines.

BELLOW BOND. It cost Saul Bellow $50,000 to stay out of jail on an alimony rap Wednesday. The Nobel Prize-winning novelist posted bond in that amount after Chicago Judge Mary Ann McMorro sentenced him to 10 days, but gave him five days to file an appeal bond. Bellow's third wife says he's $11,150 behind in alimony payments. He's balked at paying them because the couple's 1968 divorce still is in dispute.

But he believes it now and it has him steaming. The Detroit News, quoting an FBI agent, says Volans "snitched" on the mayor as part of an FBI drug probe, though the bureau "didn't have anything special in mind where Young was concerned." Says Young, "Now it has come from too many sources and I believe it, and I'm pretty burned up about it."

Retirement age limit raised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By overwhelming votes, the Senate and House have passed bills to allow millions of Americans who now must retire at 65 to work until 70 if they want to. Negotiators now try to reconcile differences between the two bills. It appeared possible a compromise could be reached and signed into law by the end of the year. An estimated one-third to one-half of American workers are governed by some mandatory retirement age, most commonly 65. A 1967 law already forbids employers from discriminating on the basis of age against persons 40 through 64. Both bills would extend this protection to an employee's 70th birthday. In general this would mean an employee could work until 70 if he wanted to. But he still would have the option of retiring earlier. Nothing in the bills would prevent an employer from keeping a worker on his payroll beyond 70.

The Senate version — passed 87-7 Wednesday — would not apply to "highly compensated management employees" in business (defined as those with retirement pensions of more than $20,000 a year, not counting Social Security) — or to tenured university professors. Their employers could still require them to step down at 65. The House version — passed 559-4 in September — would treat business and university professors the same as everyone else. Business groups and university administrators lobbied for the Senate version.

The Senate bill would take effect Jan. 1, 1979; the House version, six months after enactment. The American Association of University Professors and the Organization for Women lobbied for the increased age limit. NOW said women have more need than men to work into old age because they live longer, work for lower wages and retire with lower pensions. The Senate bill would take effect Jan. 1, 1979; the House version, six months after enactment.

Salaries called astonishing

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso says she is "astounded" at the salaries of the state's top executives. She said she would let the state gaming commission figure out what to do about it. An audit of the front's first year of operation released by the commission Wednesday showed Detroit lawyer Robert Zeff who owns 95 percent of Bridgeport jai alai, was paid a salary of $500,000. His law firm received another $500,000 for doing legal work for the front. Zeff also was paid an additional $44,000 for travel, transportation and automobile expenses. The $1,044,000 does not include what Zeff made in profits for holding 95 percent of the company's stock. That figure was not immediately available. The audit also showed front Vice President Moe Barak, Zeff's brother-in-law, received a $280,000 salary and another vice president, received a $150,000 salary and $1,600 in expenses. Five other executives were paid a total of $345,000 in salaries and expenses. "I was astonished," Mrs. Grasso told a news conference, referring to the audit. "The salaries were exorbitant." But she said she will leave any action to the gaming commission. "I would expect there would be no need for me to add my dismay to the consternation that must already be felt by the commission," she said. "I'm sure the commission will look into it." The salaries of Zeff and the other executives were listed as expenses in the audit and were not included in the front's net profit of $6.1 million before taxes. The gaming commission Trustee said he is concerned because the state cannot tax the salaries, but could tax the profits.

Government and guidelines

We are like children, so often, lost along the way, unable to tell just what it is we want our government to do for us, unsure of how to measure when it has gone too far and needs restraint, unable to fit our sense of right and wrong against some set pattern. Our lives need benchmarks, points of reference by which to measure what is happening to us. Without them, we cannot make sound judgments, find ourselves adrift. So we do the best we can in the immediate situation. Perhaps that's called situation ethics. Patchwork replaces principle. With our government it is the same.

We have been in a period of political patchwork for many years-making our national and international policies fit the particular pressure of the particular moment. Perhaps that's better called pragmatism.

President Carter, with a deep Biblical background, seemed to hold the promise of such guidelines. But he has now nestled down among the Washington pragmatists and the guidelines and principles are melting here and there.

"What do you mean? What is it you want me to do?" We cannot give him a straight answer for there is no one thing. So we struggle to give him a guideline.

"We think American society must be kept free enough from government control and from excess private power so that those men and women who want to make something out of their lives are able to do so."

We want people to have those chances. That is the important part. That is what our whole political and economic Decisions made last week by the Manchester Board of Directors put an end to two matters as campaign issues.

The board voted unanimously to form a charter revision committee to study conflict-of-interest. It also agreed to abolish fees that had been established for use of the landfill.

Both the landfill charges and the conflict committee had been mentioned in early campaign statements from Democratic and Republican candidates.

Republicans had criticized Democrats for the establishment of the landfill use fees. Democrats had said that the fees were established to prevent out-of-town use of the landfill.

All nine directors agreed last week to rescind the fees and update a 1964 ordinance that includes free use of the dump for town residents and fines for out-of-town users caught using the dump.

The unanimous vote on the formation of the charter revision committee was a surprise because some if that system seems powerless to stop the slaughter of innocents. Mrs. Williams took the first step in the crusade. It took courage because she not only is a Roman Catholic, she is married to a Protestant. In Northern Ireland, Catholics and Protestants merely hate each other. Both see mixed marriage as an act of treason that puts its participants beyond the pale.

Yet, there was Betty Williams invading the IRA stronghold of Andersonstown, asking strangers to sign a petition for peace and an end of the killing that had taken hundreds of lives since the late 1960s. A small peace march she organized drew only 200 women. But one of them was Miss Corrigan, and shortly she became Mrs. Williams' partner in the movement.

Campaigns always produce plenty of literature and candidate advertising. Robert Heavisides, a Republican candidate for the Board of Education is using a slightly different approach. Heavisides, an avid collector of postcards, had copies made of cards that picture Manchester in the early 1900s. On the back, the cards have printed his name and the position he is running for.

They made it happen. Together, they made it happen. Ten thousand people marched with them a few days after the children were killed. Twenty thousand marched a week later. The movement continued to grow. Money and letters of encouragement poured in from the British Isles and Europe.

The Nobel Committee wanted to give the two women the prize last year, but could not do so because their peace campaign had been launched after the Feb. 1 deadline for nominations.

Meanwhile, violent deaths in Northern Ireland have dropped by 54 per cent since the movement started. "We hope this has something to do with our movement," said Mrs. Williams. She is too modest. Even in those bullet-shattered streets of Ulster, she and Mairead Corrigan have made people listen to their argument that if they work at it, individuals can make possible an impossible dream.

South Windsor KofC official acknowledges support

Dear Sir,
I am pleased to publicly acknowledge those who contributed to the outstanding success of the drive to raise funds for the mentally retarded conducted recently by the South Windsor Knights of Columbus. Rev. E.G. Rosenberger Council No. 5783.

Similar to last year, the proceeds from this Second Annual "Tootsie Roll Campaign" will benefit the Special Education Class at the South Windsor High School.

Deserving recognition are the following contributors to the success of the campaign:

- Mayor Sandra J. Bender and members of the Town Council of South Windsor for their very appropriate proclamation.
- Town Manager Paul Talbot and the Police Department for their support.
- John Nachyly, drive chairman.

Become informed voters

To the editor:
As an unaffiliated voter in Manchester, I wish to encourage all Manchester residents to do several things before election day.

First, to become informed voters by attending the candidates' nights sponsored by several local organizations — Oct. 25, for the Board of Education; and Nov. 2, for the Board of Directors, both being held at Hill Junior High School at 7:30 p.m.

Second, to be sure they vote for any six candidates for the Board of Directors and any two candidates for each of the terms open for the Board of Education, which does not mean that all voters must be in the same party.

Sincerely,
Pauline S. Widmer

Beyond Bakke

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For all the emotionalism attached to the issue of "reverse discrimination," the Bakke case now before the Supreme Court may yet serve an invaluable social function.

Because of this highly charged case, a much-needed spotlight has finally been focused on one of the most neglected areas of American education: the admissions policies of colleges, universities and graduate schools.

In a society where advanced education is increasingly perceived as a key to remunerative and challenging careers, the question of who shall be admitted — and why — demands the most careful sort of public scrutiny.

Many affected. There are more than 3,000 accredited undergraduate institutions in this country, and about a third as many graduate schools for arts and science, law, medicine and management.

The vast majority of these schools, particularly at the graduate level, have selective admissions policies. But as a new study by the prestigious Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education documents, criteria for admission vary wildly from school to school — and student applicants are seldom given any clear description of the qualifications demanded by a given institution.

It is about time, as the Carnegie Council suggests, for colleges and graduate schools alike to decide exactly how high a student needs to score on admissions tests in order to have a good chance of succeeding in his academic career if admitted.

No school should accept an applicant who cannot meet this minimal standard. But once the threshold is crossed, a student with an 800 score need not be given preference over one with a 600 score if the latter has other qualifications the school values highly.

A great deal of confusion and bitterness could be avoided if schools would make public their objective criteria for admission and explain, to the degree possible, what other factors they are applying in choosing students.

Regardless of how the Bakke case is decided by the Supreme Court, higher education must remain accessible to all qualified students in this society. It is time for our universities to determine, with far more precision and openness, exactly what qualifications are needed for a student to have a reasonable chance of successfully attaining a degree. Then everyone seeking admission will know what the rules of the game are.

Argentinian has solar-electric car

By DIANA PAGE

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — It was raining, but that didn't stop Ariel Rietti from taking his solar-powered electric car out for a spin.

"The rain doesn't matter. I've forgotten that. The car runs at night too," the Argentine inventor said.

Rietti, 54, opened up his neighbor's garage where he keeps the car. It consists of a Citroen chassis, two seats, a motor in front, six lead batteries behind and a clear plastic roof where the solar energy cells are placed. It looks like a big go-cart.

Rietti tucked his crutch under the seats and started the car. He won't talk about the airplane accident that crippled one of his legs during his days as a pilot.

Eye catching. The strange vehicle slid back out of the garage. A businessman with a black umbrella stopped to watch the car glide almost silently down the street. "So, it does work," he chuckled.

The neighbors on Lezica Street take a humorous view of Don Ariel and his solar car. "I don't know what he's doing, but he's got a workshop on the roof-terrace of his two-story house. Three years ago, he completed his 'Godzilla-5' airplane which can take off from a 20-yard runway and land in 30 feet.

This year it was the solar-energy car that was lowered from the roof terrace by a crane.

"The next step is to improve this car so it can go further and faster," Don Ariel said.

60 mile range. Rietti's car can travel 60 miles on stored energy alone, and has a maximum speed of 35 m.p.h.

However, the batteries can be partially recharged by the solar cells and by the motor when the car is in motion. To fully recharge, it must be plugged into a wall outlet.

"The energy from the sun enables you to economize, but it can't yet run on solar power alone," Rietti said.

"Of course, this is all in the process of development, we hope to make better batteries and other improvements."

Rietti believes an electric car using solar power could be produced commercially for no more than the average combustion-engine car costs.

His formal education ended when automobile will be 25 per cent less because everyone now has come to understand the need for an alternative to the present system.

For the past eight years he has devoted himself to his inventions, working with about a dozen friends, each a specialist in some technical area of his projects. He said he was economically independent, but various firms have donated material and scientific institutes have provided technical assistance.

Rietti has been a pilot and a ple have learned I'm serious." Rietti said.

Making possible a dream

WASHINGTON — Unfortunately, Thomas Hardy was right when he said: "My argument is that war makes rattling good history, but peace is poor reading."

Fortunately, women continue their uphill battle to successfully challenge Hardy's hard-boiled dictum. "We have created a climate for peace to become respectable," says an Irishwoman named Betty Williams.

Betty Williams indeed. I can hear the Hardy cultists sneering. But for a few hours the other day Mrs. Williams and her comrade, Mairead Corrigan, made peace pretty good reading. Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan were awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for their campaign against war in Northern Ireland.

Seldom on Page 1. I expect most Americans had never heard of Mrs. Williams and Miss Corrigan. Crusaders for peace seldom make Page 1 or TV's evening news. The story in Northern Ireland is still organized murder. These two Irish Catholic women did not peddle the shock of violence which makes Hardy's "rattling good history."

They went around preaching that peace was possible. They called their movement, simply, "Peace Women." So what's new? The answer came from Norway in the Nobel Peace Committee's citation of the two women: "Their initiative paved the way for the strong resistance against violence and misuse of power...Mairead Corrigan and Betty Williams acted from a deep conviction that the individual person can make a meaningful contribution for peace through constructive reconciliation."

Individuals do matter. Ah, that was well put. It tells individuals everywhere that they can matter, that their voices can still be heard above the clamor of special interest blocs roaring their litany of self-serving expediency.

Those two women matter because they care. They cared deeply when on Aug. 10, 1976, they saw three children killed by a getaway car of fleeing Irish Republican Army guerrillas in Belfast. The children Mrs. Williams was the children's aunt.

Not afraid to fail. Many a man would have said what's the use. But one of the characteristics of the female sex is that its members are not afraid to fail. And on the issue of war and peace, they dare to be dismissed as impractical dreamers. They do not, willy nilly, accept "the system." Not

Gardening

Frank Atwood

"I started as a kid," said Donald Rannacher of his vegetable gardening hobby. "I love planting seeds and watching the plants grow."

Donald Rannacher of Oliver Rd. holds banana squash he grew in his vegetable garden in Hebron. The squash weighs 40 pounds. (Photo by R. Miner)

Now, at garden cleanup time, he is showing friends and his own family how to grow a winter supply of vegetables for the family. He has raised this year more than a hundred spaghetti squash, another exotic vegetable.

Most of these squashes and other surplus vegetables, produced in quantities far beyond the needs of a single family, have been sold by a friend who operates a roadside stand. Last year the garden produced 75 large watermelons that went to the stand. They were very sweet and Mr. Rannacher left one of them cut open on the stand so that customers could taste before buying.

Student show

Full size maple trees in their colored fall foliage reached to the high ceiling of the Ratcliffe Hicks Area at the University of Connecticut at the annual student-run Horticulture Show.

For two days, Oct. 8 and 9, the students transformed the area, built for showing cattle and horses, into a lovely woodland scene. The scent of freshly cut evergreens mingled with the fragrance of herbs, growing naturally in pots and others dried for use. Appealing to the ear

Education today: What is education?

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Education is a triangle made up of parents, teachers, students. The three must work together if education is to succeed.

John Rynor, President of the National Education Association, in an interview, said these days teachers more than ever before are seeking cooperation from parents and students in the resolution of problems in the schoolhouse.

Some problems listed
Some of the problems on Rynor's list:

Violence directed at teachers — 70,000 attacks last year — increases every year. In a random sampling of 9,000 delegates at the annual meeting of the National Education Association, attacks on teachers was cited as a top problem.

cannot adjust to a regular classroom. Teachers spend time on problems created by such students and can't do their best for all the other students.

Rush to cut 'frills' — The rush to cut drama, music, art and other so-called "frills" as money for education becomes harder to come by in these inflationary times. Rynor takes serious exception to cutting such extras "frills."

On teacher strikes, Rynor said: "There are about 6,000 contracts negotiated each year and perhaps 100 or at the most 200 strikes."

On the declining SAT scores (college entrance examination tests) he made these points: — Don't blame teacher laziness or a decline in teaching standards. "Eighty-five per cent of the teachers in the classrooms today were teaching when the test scores were high."

Change values in society, television watching, the deterioration of discipline and the family may be more likely contributors to the poorer performance on the tests.

Reform measure a victory for organized labor

By GENE BERNHARDT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor won an important victory in the House with passage of the National Labor Relations Board reform measure.

When the 96th Congress convened in January, many observers made the mistake of assuming that the big 2-1 margin of Democrats over Republicans assured smooth sailing for labor bills that long languished in committees or were defeated outright in the House for lack of large Democratic majorities.

The first test case on the construction site picketing measure, which has been around Congress for more than a decade and looked like a sure thing this year. It was defeated in the House early in the year.

Carter urged Somali cooperation in hijacked plane attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter sent several messages to Somali President Mohammad Siad Barre urging cooperation with West Germany before the dramatic rescue of 86 Lufthansa hostages held by German terrorists, administration officials said Wednesday.

Public opposition slows up metrics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government, bowing to public opposition a second time, once again has delayed the transition to the metric system.

Computer panel endorses new system for tax data

Manchester's data processing advisory committee favors the continued use of the computer system which has been in service on a trial basis since July in the town tax department.

James Turek, town tax collector, demonstrated to the committee members Wednesday night the functions of both the existing Burroughs computer system and the new IBM system terminals which are located in the Municipal Building.

The Burroughs system was instituted about seven years ago, Turek said, to regain control of lost tax receipts. The town purchased the system outright but maintains an annual service contract for $1,500 which includes parts and labor.

Breakdowns in the equipment are increasingly frequent, Turek said, and it's usually the following day before service is restored.

The Burroughs equipment is currently used solely for updating paper work of tax payments. It is updated only through Sept. 30 because of breakdowns, Turek said.

The IBM system which is installed on a rental basis, is a nearly complete information center on property, water and sewer, and motor vehicle taxes. The terminal can give within

Manchester Herald

SECOND SECTION THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1977

10 to 15 seconds information on a resident's specific tax status. A duplicate tax bill for anyone who has lost a bill can be run off quickly.

Turek said that his department has processed an average of 100 in-person tax inquiries a day by the new computer system. Most inquiries are from taxpayers, but many are from attorneys, he said.

Turek compared it with the lengthy procedure formerly used by researching card file and catalogue systems, which would be obsolete if the computer system were to be used permanently.

Both the IBM and Burroughs systems are connected to the town data processing system which is located at Bennet Junior High School.

The tax department currently sends out about 120,000 tax bills, including water and sewer, property and motor vehicle taxes, per year, according to Turek. The IBM system could be set up to include the present service given by the Burroughs system.

Local pilot convicted for air law violation
Jack W. Scott, 39, of Manchester, was convicted in Common Pleas Court 14 in Hartford Wednesday of violating state law by operating an airplane rental service out of Branford Airport without clearing it with officials.

Scott was fined $100 for "violating rules and regulations of the aeronautics commissioner." He said he will appeal the fine in a municipal court.

Evidence introduced by Prosecutor Thomas P. Miano showed that Scott ran an advertised air rental service for use of his private plane. An undercover state trooper said he rented the plane and was told to state the rental fee in a motel behind the pilot's seat after he landed.

A state tax examiner also testified that Scott had never obtained a sales tax license and, for that reason, probably had never paid sales tax on service fees he earned by renting the plane.

State law prohibits the use of an aircraft as a base of operations for commercial purposes unless a leasing arrangement is made.

Miano said he intends to notify the City of Hartford and the state Tax Department and the aeronautics division of the Department of Transportation of the violation because they may want to press complaints against other illegal revenue-producing operations at Branford and other airports.

Committee members suggested that perhaps the Burroughs machinery could be used in another town department. The tax department got rid of it. Leo Kwash, committee chairman, suggested inquiring as to other possible uses for the Burroughs machinery. Committee members agreed that getting rid of the Burroughs would not be a loss, but a savings.

"It's like an albatross. It has outgrown its usefulness. Charles Kramer, committee man, said.

Kwash doesn't think there will be any problem getting funds to maintain the IBM system even though the town budget is tight but it's up to the committee to justify its need to the Board of Directors, he said. He said there is a good possibility that there are some town contingency funds to maintain the IBM system for the next couple of months. He said he will talk to Town Manager Robert Weiss about it. Kwash reminded the committee that it would take time to audit approval from the new Board of Directors which will be elected next month.

Kwash asked Turek to prepare an estimated operational cost of the new system for the committee's work study meeting Oct. 26. Paul Junner, town director of data processing, was asked to check into cost figures for equipment from other vendors to be used with the IBM system, and the specifics of the current Burroughs contract.

Bolton panel approves apartment zone change

By DONNA HOLLAND

The Bolton Zoning Commission voted 2-1 Wednesday night to approve a zone change from R1 to R2 for a 13-acre parcel on Bolton Tpk. and South Rd. It was the first time in its history that the commission caused a zone change during a public meeting. In the past, all requests have been decided in executive session. After a lengthy discussion, the board clerk suggested to members they call the question on approving the change. The vote resulted in a tie and it was up to the chairman to cast the deciding vote. Harold Webb and Edward Zakowski voted to grant the change. Alan Wiedie and George Hawkins voted against the change. Philip Dooley, chairman, cast the deciding vote to grant the change. The zone change becomes effective Nov. 20.

Under Bolton zoning regulations, there must be a public hearing before property in an R2 zone is built on. At that hearing, specific plans for the development of the property will be presented. The Zoning Commission has the right to make changes. The date for the hearing has not yet been set. The zone change was requested by Stillman Keith, acting on behalf of the Jennie Perrett Estate. Keith plans to build 48 apartment units on the site. At length, the commission members discussed the pros and cons

Vernon tempers flare as candidates debate

By BARBARA RICHMOND

Tempers flare and charges flew as Vernon mayor and town council candidates vied for the favor of the voters at "Meet the Candidates" night Wednesday. The audience tried to do a little politicking, too, but was reminded by moderator Joyce Taylor of the League of Women Voters, sponsors of the program, to stick with asking questions only. By a loss of a coin, incumbent Democratic Mayor Thomas Benoit was the first speaker. He criticized the administration led for six years by his Republican opponent Frank McCoy. The audience tried to do a little politicking, too, but was reminded by moderator Joyce Taylor of the League of Women Voters, sponsors of the program, to stick with asking questions only.

He said his party advocated changes for the better. "In two short years I've spent the last two years just trying to make up for last time... trying to get Vernon back on track. What are Benoit's plans for the future of Vernon? He proposes land to be found to start a second industrial park as the first one is full; the start of a capital improvements program; establishment of a mayor's business council; and continuance of programs he has already started. Then McCoy's turn. It was then McCoy's turn to speak. He said he would find some of his opponent's attempts to minimize the record of accomplishment of his administration amusing "were it not

Wiedie voted against the change because of "obvious reasons," including the increased traffic flow, soil conditions and the fact there are areas in town where multiple dwelling complexes can be built without a zone change. Hawkins agreed, citing the fact South Rd. would not handle the increased traffic flow. Zakowski said granting the zone change did not mean a building permit would be issued. Many restrictions would have to be met, he said. Webb said everyone was concerned with the septic system but it would

Carilli surveys Coventry

Joyce Carilli has made a report to the Coventry Democratic Town Committee on a survey she took last month while making her unsuccessful primary challenge to the party-endorsed Town Council slate. Mrs. Carilli polled 184 people. Of these, 102 living in the lake area were 55 per cent in favor of sewers while only 29 per cent of the 82 persons living in other parts of the town were in favor.

On association roads, 64 per cent of the 50 people polled in the lake area favored takeover by the town, while 61 per cent of the 134 people living in other parts of the town favored such takeover. About half the people questioned were in favor of increasing recreational appropriations in the annual budget. As to street lights, 23 per cent wanted more, 36 per cent were content with the present number, 17 per cent felt that some should be added only if needed for safety, and 24 per cent had no opinion. Of the 184 people polled, 22 per cent were happy with the present level of town services, 9 per cent wanted

Vernon eyes hiring plan

Town Attorney Martin Burke will be asked to review Vernon's Affirmative Action Plan and to recommend changes, if any, to the Town Council. Area II encompasses towns in the central and southern section of the state. Grandone's territory is the eastern portion of the state, which is administered from a branch office in Chester.

Lynch quits Rham board

Leslie O. Lynch, one of four Marlborough members of the Regional District Board of Education, has resigned from the board, effective Nov. 1. Lynch said he has accepted a new job out of state. He submitted the resignation Monday night. In other business, the Rham board discussed the effect of double sessions this year at Rham High School. Supt. David Cattanch said measuring the effect is not easy. He said lost instructional time in double sessions would have a detrimental effect. Bruce Gallant, Hebron board member, said he talked to parents who felt their children were doing better academically with the double sessions than they had done with the traditional schedule. Cattanch said the decision should be made by the community. If the community feels double sessions are good, then that is what the community should do.

Rockville hospital notes

Admitted Wednesday: Donna Archer, Pearl St., Manchester; Frederick Archer, Pearl St., Manchester; Jennifer Archer, Pearl St., Manchester; Shirley Brakay, East Hampton, Mass.; Norman Nicholson, Windsorville; Cynthia Blower, Tolland; Keith Raymond, Bolton Rd., Vernon. Discharged Wednesday: Bernadette Dunay, Stafford; Mrs. Barbara Estabrook and daughter, Stafford Springs; James Pfeifer, Davis Ave., Rockville; Robert Edgington, Windermere Ave., Rockville; Gunber Ritz, Weare, N. H.; Paul Smithwick, Ellington; David Snow, Willington. "For over two decades Coventry appropriated funds to all the lake associations, and suddenly this year a change in policy occurred," Mrs. Koonz stated. "This change resulted from an inquiry into the legality of giving road appropriations for maintenance of private roads. 'If I am elected to the council I plan to work toward solving this quandary. If a legal way cannot be found to supply all associations with matching road funds, then we must work to change the law so that all people receive fair treatment in the legal process,' she said. Douglas Whipple, incumbent Republican candidate for the Town Council, said he supports a more aggressive and effective job of providing space and areas for new businesses to improve Coventry's tax situation. "We must also provide increased job opportunities for young people. At the same time we must realize that all young people will sooner or later want a home or an apartment of their own - homes in Coventry, if possible," Whipple said.

Baseball's Man of Moment admits his faults

By MILT RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball's Man of Moment, Reggie Jackson, freely admits his faults. He has never tried making anybody believe he's a Willie Mays in the field. When he first reported to Baltimore last year, he told Earl Weaver, "I don't know what you hear about my work in the outfield, but I'm not as good as you think I am." After watching Jackson in the field awhile, the Orioles' manager said, "he's right." Like everyone else, though, Weaver is in love with Jackson's bat...

what takes place on the field. You saw San Diego, Montreal, California and Kansas City competing right up there with us in the last free agent draft, didn't you? I think you'll see Cincinnati in there this time....

Last year, there were only 24 free agents to choose from. This year, with six-year players and certain minor leaguers thrown in, the total probably will run closer to 100. The four top players available are reliever Rich Gossage, who did so well for the Pirates this year, outfielder Lyman Bostock and Larry Hisle from the Twins and Mike Torrez, who wrapped up the World Series finale for the Yanks Tuesday night. Gossage's asking price with the Pirates was $2.7 million over seven years, with $500,000 of that up front, at which point they wished him luck....

All different kinds of conditions are being written into player contracts these days. One National League club has a provision included whereby the free agents they can make instant millionaires in the re-entry draft. Bowie Kuhn, like big brother, is watching for any signs of tampering, so George Steinbrenner is being especially careful about mentioning any free agents who may appeal to him. But the man who spent all that money to get Reggie Jackson, Catfish Hunter and Don Gullett thinks any criticism by other owners of the way the Yankees went out and bought themselves a world championship is nothing more than sour grapes. "Free agency is part of baseball," says Steinbrenner. "That makes it every bit as much of the game as salary of one of its players is reduced $25,000 if he smokes tobacco any day. He can chew all he likes, though....

Don Sutton claims three men carried the Dodgers all year long. "You take away Dusty Baker, Reggie Smith and Bill Russell and we'd have finished in the cellar," says Sutton....

Tug McGraw knows exactly how the Dodgers feel losing the World Series, having felt the same way himself when the Phillies were beaten by them in the National League playoff. "It's like a death in the family," says the Philie reliever. "There are three phases you go through — shock, depression and acceptance, and of the three, I'm not sure which is worst...."

Thurman Munson can forget about being traded to Cleveland so he can be close to home. To begin with, the Indians don't have the players to give the Yanks in return and secondly,

UConn to host UMass

Wolverines rated best 11 in nation

STORRS (UPI) — The University of Massachusetts has no intention of allowing history to repeat itself in its football clash Saturday against winless University of Connecticut.

A year ago, the Huskies were 0-6, went to UMass and upset the Minutemen 28-6. The Huskies are again winless in six games this year, and they host UMass at Storrs. But UMass has won five games in a row after a season opening loss to Army and coach Dick MacPhearson is determined not to lose.

"It's the biggest game on our schedule, and they embarrassed us last year. We hate to lose to Connecticut," said MacPhearson Tuesday.

UConn Coach Walt Nadzak replied that UMass "is the best defensive team we've played this year. He called them physically tougher than Rutgers. Alabama, still riding the crest of its big upset over Southern California two weeks ago, is lodged in third place with 291 points after beating Tennessee, 24-10, on Saturday. USC recouped some of its ground after tumbling from the top rank by climbing to the No. 4 slot on the basis of a 33-15 routing of Oregon and receiving 258 points.

Woody Hayes' Ohio Staters lashed Iowa, 27-6, and was voted No. 5 with 255 points. Oklahoma, which handed Ohio State its only loss earlier in the season, occupies the No. 6 berth with 230 points after beating Missouri, 21-17.

Colorado dropped several notches to No. 7 when tied 17-17 by Kansas. The Buffs gained 130 points in the voting. Arkansas received 22 points as the No. 8 team. Penn State, playing without Coach Joe Paterno, who was at the bedside of his injured son, ranked No. 9 after whipping Syracuse, 31-24, and collecting 73 points. Notre Dame moved up to No. 10 in 63 votes following a 24-0 shutout of Army.

Texas A & M led the second 10, Pittsburgh was No. 12, followed by Texas Tech, California, Brigham Young, North Texas State, Nebraska, Iowa State, Clemson and Arizona State.

Good confrontations

There are two big events coming up Tuesday.

One is in Willimantic, where Manchester will go after the CCLL boys' cross country championship against Windham. Both are unbeaten in league competition with the winner taking the laurels.

The other confrontation, which should prove to be interesting, is between the Manchester and East Catholic girls' swimming squads at the Indians' pool.

The first pairing is for all the marbles. Coach George Sutor's thirdeens, led by seniors Wes Federbach and Dave Locke, and Junior Ed Lemieux, are in position to snatch top honors. The Silk Towners, however, will go in as slight underdogs. For one, the race is on Windham's home turf and that's an advantage from the start.

The championship could be decided on how well juniors Dave Timbrell and John Labda perform. The former has made tremendous progress in recent races while Labda has started to come back strong after a short lull. One other could make the difference. Senior Matt "don't call me Jimmy" Schmid is talented. He's also been off-injured. In last Tuesday's meet, he "logged" through the course and still took 19th among 52 runners. He'll go all out against the Whippets.

The swim meet is for prestige more than anything else. No league or state title is up for grabs. But when you get cross-town competitors clashing, that always breeds something special.

Manchester is unbeaten after five starts and very much in the running in the CCLL. East with an independent slate is 2-2. The Eagles' schedule is a demanding one, but one Coach Ralph Viola wanted.

Each side has talented personnel. The Indian contingent is headed by Chris White, Kim Noone, Karen McArdle, Leslie Scott, Tess Mazzoni.

Monday night football has been more enjoyable to listen to the last two weeks. Wonder why?

What they saw was the headline-grabbing Namath two Mondays ago distain the vaunted Ram ground attack to go pass-happy. The result was expected.

Namath has since been relegated to gathering splinters. And he should seriously consider retirement. He's been hanging on. Any longer, and what's left of his reputation will be tarnished beyond repair.

In closing... Monday night football has been more enjoyable to listen to the last two weeks. Wonder why?

Cicero took a George Mejia pass and tallied with 22-22 game. Minutes later a Doug Durdan headball set up Garcia, who fired past goalie Jim Griffin. Forty seconds later, Garcia scored in the same manner as the first goal, with Cicero claiming the assist.

brenner, the principal owner of the newly-crowned World Champion New York Yankees, victors over the Los Angeles in six games in the World Series. "We plan to do everything we can to improve the team."

And although the Yankees already have justified Steinbrenner's huge expenditures for talent such as Reggie Jackson ($3 million), Don Gullett ($1.9 million) and Bucky Dent ($100,000 and Oscar Gamble), the happy ending to the storybook season is not without some more undercurrents of unrest.

Jackson, the self-acclaimed superstar right fielder who capped his stormy season with a record-tying three home runs in the Yankees' series-clinching 8-4 victory over the Dodgers, has said he wants to come back, but it remains to be seen whether his relations with Manager Billy Martin will improve.

"I know there was a lot of turbulence on the ballclub this season," said Steinbrenner, "but I think in the long run these things steered our players into performing even better. When they had to win... they did."

"I think maybe it was my fault we had so much turbulence and maybe next year I'll take more active steps to prevent it from re-occurring.... But all in all, I have no regrets. It was a great, great year, and Billy Martin did one helluva managing job."

Besides Jackson, catcher Thurman Munson, the team captain, can also be expected back in Yankee pinstripes for the 10th straight season despite his request to be traded to Cleveland so he can be closer to his family.

Center fielder Mickey Rivers has repeatedly asked to be traded, but again the Yankees don't seem too eager to accommodate him either, without all the problems we had this year....

"I don't know if I could go through another season like this one," said the emotionally-drained Jackson.

Added Piniella: "If things don't change from how they were this year, we'll be a good fourth-place team next year."

Money may buy the Yankees more good players, but it is doubtful it can buy their happiness. That can only come from within and it's already apparent that, although Steinbrenner may have no regrets, his world champion players do.

"I'd like to win this thing again next year," said third baseman Graig Nettles. "But I'd like to do it without all the problems we had this year."

Webster hat trick leads Whaler win

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — Veteran Tom Webster pulled off a hat trick in leading the New England Whalers to a 6-3 victory over the Edmonton Oilers in a World Hockey Association game Wednesday night.

It was the third time in his career that Webster, the Whalers' all-time high scorer, had scored three goals in one game. Also scoring for the Whalers were Mike Rogers and Mark Howe, who got his first goal as a Whaler.

Gordie Howe had a pair of assists to raise his point total to 2,401 in a 30-year career.

The Whalers, now 3-1-1, enjoyed a 6-0 whitewash before the Oilers got on the board with their three goals coming in the last 11:55 of play.

Former Whaler Brett Callaghan, Kern Baird and Blair MacDonald got scoring shots past New England goalie Louis Lefauveur who had blanked the Oilers for 48 minutes. Edmonton is now 1-3.

Webster's first marker early in the first period came after Rogers gave the Whalers a 1-0 lead. Webster got two more in the second period to give his team a 5-0 lead. He also had an assist.

Webster now has 212 career goals, fourth best in the WHA. The Whalers next play at Winnipeg in a Friday night game against the 4-0 front-running Jets.

Spurs solve problem, whip Celts at home

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — In their season opener, the San Antonio Spurs solved a problem that haunted them through their first season in the National Basketball Association — inability to beat the Boston Celtics.

In six meetings last year, the Spurs won two and lost four. Boston and the Celtics brought San Antonio's playoff hopes to an abrupt halt, eliminating them in two straight games of the first round.

But George Gervin poured in 39 points and the Spurs took advantage of 27 Boston turnovers Wednesday night for a 114-109 victory over the Celtics before a standing room only crowd of 10,466.

"Now I just hope we don't have the on-the-road jinx like we did last year," the lanky Gervin said after hitting on 17 of 26 floor shots and five of six free throws.

Although the Spurs gained the playoffs on the basis of a 44-38 mark last season, most of the victories came on their home court. They found particularly rough going on the West Coast where the team opened a four-game visit Friday against Golden State, followed by Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles in a five-day span.

"You can't win 'em all unless you win the first one," grined San Antonio Coach Doug Moe after the game. "We had to control the whole game until they made that run. We had to beat them. We'd never experienced beating them."

"I told the guys at halftime, 'The Celtics aren't going to quit. You've got to keep working at it.'"

Moe was right. At the end of a season first quarter, San Antonio tied the score 27 on a 10-foot jumper by Mike Gale. The Spurs went ahead 56 seconds deep into the second period, led 65-55 at halftime and built the margin to 16 points twice midway through the third stanza.

But to the White score, eight points for the beginning of a Boston rally that brought the Celtics to a 82-79 third-quarter surge. Then Dave Cowens led a furious fourth-quarter surge with 14 points that moved Boston them within three points with 2:05 left in the game.

Gervin, apparently blocked away from the basket, came a 20-foot jumper from the left side as the 24-second buzzer went off at that point to stave off the Boston rally.

Larry Bird backed Gervin's effort with 18 points and Billy Paulitz scored 17 points for the winners. White led the Celtics with 24 points, while Cowens wound up with 18 points and three rebounds and Charlie Scott scored 17.

Hard work paid off

Noone big winner in freestyle events

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

There's always room on a team for someone like her. She handles the dirty work.

Well, it's not actually dirty work. Not when you consider the sport is swimming. But smiling Kim Noone is Manchester High girls' squad's main threat in the 200 and 500-yard freestyles. The latter event many do not like to tread.

"Some people in the stands the other day said they couldn't swim let alone race 20 laps (500 yards)," commented Manchester Coach Dave Frost.

"The first year we scrambled to find swimmers for the 500. Noone is our mainstay. She's been a double winner in most meets," added the Indian leader who has seen his team win its first five in a row.

Noone not always was so successful. Whatever success she's had has not come by accident. "When she first came out two years ago she had desire," explained Frost.

But she made herself a good swimmer, mainly by hard work. Her mechanics aren't perfect but she's been able to overcome by strength and conditioning and a good head.

A good head indeed. Noone is one of the top two on the high school match team. Last summer, she was one of 25 youngsters in the country selected to attend a National Science Foundation-funded math program at Bard College in upstate New York.

The seminar lasted four weeks. Noone is also a member of the National Honor Society and in the top five per cent of her class.

It depends on the individual but it takes time to learn how to navigate the 500. You have to be patient, to know how to pace yourself. "It takes a lot of perseverance." It took Noone most of last year to understand completely the nuances.

Kim Noone

This year already she's improved her time in the 500 by 22 seconds, "that's a hunk of a chunk" over her best last year. In the 200 free, Noone's lowered her personal best by nine seconds.

Last winter Noone swam with Mel Siebold's AAU crew. That brought her back this year a lot stronger.

"By her improving so much this year, we can count on her to do the event," Frost stated. "We can use her top personnel elsewhere because we can count on her to do the job."

Maybe not a star, but Noone is a stickler. A hard-working, dependable, steady performer Manchester High has learned it can count on.

I need The United Way more than ever

Now that I'm older, it's not always easy to do things for myself. I really depend on United Way agencies and services. Last year, I broke my hip. When I came home from the hospital, my meals were delivered to me; a Visiting Nurse gave me medical attention; volunteers dropped by to cheer me up. And I feel a lot better knowing that my own pledge helped pay for that care. Help yourself; give to The United Way of Greater Hartford.

Road Race entry list at 200

Vitale and Crothers, two ex-champs enter

By EARL YOST

Five weeks from today the first Five Mile Road Race will be held over Manchester's paved streets and among the first 200 entries were those from two former winners, John Vitale and Ray Crothers.

John Vitale and Ray Crothers

Vitale won the Turkey Day feature in 1970 and was second best four times, including last November when he again chased Burfoot home.

The Rocky Hill resident also finished second in 1972, 1973 and has always been among the top 10 and among the top four in his last 12 showings here.

Crothers, 34, is on the comeback trail. He flashed home first in 1965. He did not compete the last two years but was fourth in both 1973 and 1974.

Both ex-champs will represent the Hartford Track Club. Last year there were 1,063 entrants with 927 finishing, both records total.

Prize list has been increased this year to include females. Merchandise awards will be presented to the top 25 finishers, plus the top three males and the top three females.

Proceeds will again enter the Muscular Dystrophy Fund, national objective of the Tall Cedars. Money collected from entrants will also go to this worthy cause.

McGinnis off to fast start with 76ers in new season

NEW YORK (UPI) — George McGinnis had all summer to think about last spring.

When the Portland Trail Blazers stunned the Philadelphia 76ers this past June to win the NBA championship, much of the finger-pointing was directed at McGinnis.

The playoffs were a series of disasters for the 6-foot-8 forward. His outside shot, his defense, his foul shooting mysteriously disappeared, and no one was more puzzled than McGinnis. It was as if he was suddenly a stranger to himself.

But Wednesday night McGinnis began the new season the way he would have liked to end the last one: He scored 32 points and grabbed 22 rebounds as the 76ers blew by the Detroit Pistons for a 113-96 victory in the season opener for Philadelphia.

Montreal just too tough for struggling Capitals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody thinks it can go on forever. Sometime in the future, Tom McVie is convinced, the Washington Capitals will find a way to beat Montreal.

It seems every time we play them and get beat, it makes me want to work hard and prepare harder to beat them," the Washington coach said Wednesday night after the defeated Capitals edged the Capitals 5-3. "And we will beat them. I just don't know the date yet."

It was the Canadiens' 19th victory in 19 games against the Capitals, a record that's noteworthy but hardly surprising.

We can play games where we make a lot of mistakes and give goals but that's not the history of the games against the Caps here last year," said Canadiens' goalie Ken Dryden, who overcame a slow start to blank the Caps through the second half of the game.

After Lanny McDonald had put Toronto ahead only 1-07 before Toronto also got goals from Jack Valiquette, Igor Hammarstrom and Dave Williams. Paul Gardner scored two goals for Colorado.

Bruins 3, Kings 1. Cleveland broke a 1-1 tie with two second-period goals by Dennis Maruk and Bob Murdoch. The Bruins took a 2-1 lead in the first period on Fred McRob added an insurance goal in the final period before Wenzel scored again and Bob Miller added a final tally with 23 seconds remaining in the game.

BENNETT JV Superior depth proved to be a vital factor in Bennett's Jayvee soccer team victory over Koscusko yesterday, 3-2.

The Enfield team held a 2-1 margin going into the fourth period but Pat Collins and Mike Calabro scored to turn the tide. Earlier, Mike Letourneau tallied for the Bears who now boast a 3-1-1 record.

Kevin Moran tallied three times, twice in the first period, as Bennett's varnished whitewashed Koscusko yesterday, 5-0.

Roger Greenwood and Mike Nightingale added the other scores with John Hedlund, Chris Carmel and Martin Hancock all turning in fine performances.

MANCHESTER HIGH Winning all three sets by lopsided scores, Manchester High's girls' varsity team trounced East Hartford at the latter's gym, 15-1, 15-5, 15-7. The local record stands at 7-2 and the squad will take part in the state tournament.

Kathy McCoan and Laurie Turkington played well for the Indians.

The local jayvees also won by 15-13, 15-8 margins.

BENNETT Bennett and Ellington played to a scoreless tie yesterday in Ellington with the home team getting off only four shots as play was in its half of the field most of the game.

Jackie Meyer and Linda Weiss led the aggressive forward line of Bennett with Jackie Tucker and Vicky Ashley helped out.

Underdogs ready for upsets

BOSTON (UPI) — Let the favorite beware this weekend. At least three underdogs are preparing for upsets Saturday in games against their New England nemeses.

Northeastern, which scared New Hampshire in last season's game, will be at Durham to face the undefeated Wildcats; Princeton, with three close losses contributing to its 1-4 record, travels to Harvard for an Ivy League match; and Villanova, in the same position as last season when it dumped Boston College, faces the Eagles at Alumni Stadium.

"Northeastern seems to come up with the big play that can kill you and that's the thing that we are going to have to prevent them from doing," said Boves, noting that New Hampshire's young defense has not had to play much this season because of the team's powerful offense.

"But our defense has done its job this year, getting the ball back for the offense. And we've only had to punt once in the last three games," said Boves, whose team is 6-0.

Princeton, close to being an Ivy League contender, comes into Harvard Stadium with losses to Dartmouth, Rutgers and Brown by a total margin of 10 points. "We're not going to run any team off the field but we were close enough that with a couple of breaks, we could have won one or two of them," said Tigers Coach Bob Casciola.

"Last year they beat us decisively and deservedly," said Boston College Coach Joe Yukica, whose Eagles are 5-3. "Villanova's a good football team and we respect them. Their starting quarterback was hurt last week and yet Pat O'Brien came in and got 173 yards against Delaware."

In other Ivy League games, Dartmouth hosts Cornell and Yale in home against improving Penn. and Brown plays at Holy Cross in a non-league game.

In the New England Conference, Wesleyan visits Amherst; Norwich is at Albany State; Worcester State plays at Bates; Central Connecticut enters Glassboro State; Western Connecticut plays at Coast Guard; Trinity travels to Colby; Southern Connecticut is at New York Tech; undefeated Massachusetts Maritime journeys to Plattsburgh State; and Tufts is at Williams.

In the New England Conference, Bridgewater State is home against Plymouth State; Boston State is at Framingham State; New Haven hosts Nichols; and Maine Maritime plays host to Curry.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from hearing a Federal Court decision that sent my 21-year-old grandson to prison for five years. Outside the courtroom I confronted Don (my son-in-law) for having taken the boy out of school in the eighth grade. Don said the boy was better off OUT of school - that all he learned there was racism, violence and how to smoke pot. He didn't even know how to read.

My daughter and Don have three younger children, and Don says he's not going to send any of them to public school. If the authorities try to force him to, he says, they will have to kill him first.

My daughter says she will try to get some correspondence courses and teach the children at home. Can this be done?

ESCONDIDO GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: According to California law, education - either public or private - is mandatory. In the case of a handicapped or ill child, the board of education often provides special tutoring. But if your son-in-law refuses to send his brutish children to school, and attempts to "teach" them at home, he can expect to have a legal battle on his hands.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to marry a dead person using a proxy? In my area, a teenage boy drowned a few weeks ago, and he had planned to marry soon. They had a license already.

I understand the girl was pregnant and she wanted a name for her child, so they were married at the funeral parlor. Is that possible? Can you find out for me? Thank you.

CURIOUS IN PA.

DEAR CURIOUS: You don't need a Philadelphia lawyer to hunt up a precedent for this. The answer is no, it's not possible.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate, and you are my only hope. I have positive proof that my husband is on drugs. Don't tell me to approach the mental health people or talk to my parish priest. My husband is well-known in town and holds a very responsible position. He would be ruined if this were ever found out.

He left me and our children three months ago. (He made ridiculous excuses for leaving.)

He is still a young man with a brilliant future ahead of him. I am going out of my mind worrying about him. If there is any information you can give me on how I can help him, I will forever remember you in my prayers.

CURRENTLY IN LIMBO

DEAR IN LIMBO: It is impossible to "help" him unless he agrees to be helped. Is he heavily into drugs, or just an occasional user? You say he's "left" you, but you don't say whether you know where he is. If you can contact him, do so. Tell him that you "know" and urge him to get into a drug rehabilitation program. Your local Mental Health Association can give you the information you need.

Sophistication begets bottom three Four notrump bid have shown two since it was impossible for South to hold 21 high card points with just one ace and one king.

North's five-diamond bid asked for South's lowest ranking four-card suit, so North knew that South could not hold four cards in any suit except spades. The five notrump bid asked for the missing king so North could see that a spade finesse would be needed to make seven. He settled for six.

At the other tables no one had this series of over-complicated bids at his disposal and somehow or other almost everyone bid the grand slam and wrapped it up when the finesse worked.

Ask the JACOBS

A Tennessee reader wants to know if in standard American bridge the opening bid is forcing when you have 40 or more.

In standard American and general expert play this two bid is treated as a one-bid bid in that it is not a forcing bid.

South two notrump showed a balanced 21 or 22 points. North's four clubs was a weak bid. South's four hearts showed one ace; North's four spades asked for kings; South's five clubs showed one.

Economic slowdown noted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department said Wednesday the nation's economy expanded only 3.8 per cent during the summer, not enough to provide jobs for laid-off workers or those entering the work force for the first time.

The third-quarter slowdown in Gross National Product from a near 7 per cent increase last winter and spring was expected. And it was not healthy for millions of jobless Americans.

Administration and business economists generally accept a rule that the GNP — an overall measure of the nation's goods and services — must increase at least 4 per cent to have any impact on employment.

Consumer buying of cars, refrigerators, clothing and other durable and nondurable goods was lower in the summer than spring. Consumer spending accounts for about two-thirds of GNP.

Business investment was also off in the third quarter.

There was good news on inflation. The department said the inflation rate was 5.1 per cent, a substantial improvement from the 7.1 per cent inflation in the spring.

The department estimated the GNP after adjustment for inflation at $1.34 trillion, up from the $1.33 trillion of spring. Personal consumption of services like health care and housing investment accounted for almost all the gain.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said the "marked slowing" should not detract from the economy's progress since the depths of the 1974-75 recession.

GM recalling 133,000 Caddys

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors' Cadillac Motor Division Wednesday recalled 133,000 of its luxury cars, citing danger of engine fires, and said at least seven persons have been injured as a result of the defect.

In a brief announcement, Cadillac said the recall involved 111,000

Sevilles — now the most expensive domestic full-production car on the market with a sticker price of more than $15,000 — and 22,000 Coupe DeVille and Eldorado models.

The cars were built in the 1975 through 1978 model years. The 7½ were delivered to dealers just 2 weeks ago.

Cadillac said all the recalled cars are equipped with an electronic fuel injection system. The defect, it said, involves the possibility of fuel leaks which could ignite and cause engine fires.

The injuries that resulted from the problem were described as "minor." Cadillac said it would install new hose connections to correct the defect.

Kryszakowski wants to win

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter
"I'm in it to win," said John M. Kryszakowski, 34, a GOP candidate for a seat on the East Hartford Town Council in the Nov. 8 elections.

"I have something to offer the town. I can do it as a director," Kryszakowski accepted the Republican Town Committee's offer late this summer to run for the council after another Republican pulled out. He denied he is just filling a hole for the party. He doesn't need the publicity, he said.

He has had exciting work in law enforcement and in business, he said. He will make a valuable member of the council.

Kryszakowski was born and raised in Stamford. He has a younger sister, Mrs. Marguerite Pucakonas, now living nearby in Vernon with her husband and two children.

As a boy and a high school student, he worked in his father's store, K's Market, selling meats and groceries. His father owned the store for 40 years.

His father was a staunch Republican and his mother a Democrat.

"This made for an interesting household," he said. He left his father's business to join the Ridgefield Police Department in March 1964. The town then had 8,000 people. In the five years he was there, the town grew to 18,000. A stretching police force was one of its growing pains.

Kryszakowski became a sergeant in Ridgefield in 1967. He was told he was then the youngest sergeant in the state at age 24. He took as many law enforcement courses as he could.

"I still miss it," he said. "There is a great deal of satisfaction in dealing with the public despite some of the insurmountable obstacles standing in front of the police."

Security director
He left Ridgefield in 1969 to become director of security for the Pitney Bowes Co. in Stamford. He was in charge of security and fire protection at the large plant. He also conducted internal investigations in all the company's plants and warehouses.

His Pitney Bowes staff of 45 was larger than the Ridgefield police force.

"When I joined, Pitney Bowes maintained the watchman type of security. I turned it around some."

He put in an ID system and set up close ties with local police and fire departments. When he left the company in 1974, he said they had a program equal to most police departments in training and capability.

To East Hartford
In 1974 he became the area manager for the Wachenhut Corp., third largest firm in the security and investigating field. The firm had a Main St. East Hartford office. This is what brought him to live in East Hartford.

In July 1976, he joined the Sanitas Corp. as president of its Sanitas Security Service Corp. subsidiary. Sanitas had money troubles then and was in receivership.

"We made one of the quickest turnarounds in business history," said Kryszakowski.

Sanitas got out of its money troubles within 13 months. Kryszakowski takes pride in his firm's part in the recovery.

"We've got a good thing going," he said. His firm provides security and investigations to people, business and government in Connecticut and six other states. The firm's gross income is in the many millions, he said. He is in charge of more than 1,000 employees.

Family man
Kryszakowski's wife, Joan, is also a Stamford native. They were high school sweethearts, he said.

CPR helps save lives

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

"If someone in every family knew CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation), there would be fewer fatal heart attacks," said Santo Alleano, president of the East Hartford fire fighters union, after he met Kelly Rockwell Wednesday.

Ms. Rockwell is the program instructor in the infant stimulation class run by the North Central Regional Center, division of the state Department of Mental Retardation. Tuesday afternoon she gave CPR to an 18-month-old girl in her class while Engine Co. 5, stationed on Main St., East Hartford, rushed to the school.

The girl is alive and well today. Ms. Rockwell took the short CPR course offered through the Red Cross in the summer of 1976. She then took the CPR instructor's course that fall.

Since then, she has given CPR courses to other teachers of the Regional Center and to parents of retarded children.

"All teachers should have Kelly's training," said Lt. Robert Devaux of Co. 5.

"It was such a relief to pull up to Willowbrook School and see that Kelly was already working on that baby," he said.

Every second counts when anyone has a heart attack, agreed Alleano, who is also a member of East Hartford's Emergency Medical Services Commission. The town's fire stations are placed so that the men can get any house in town within two minutes, he said. But even those two minutes can make all the difference in a victim's living or dying, he said.

"Talking CPR is something like buying a smoke detector," Alleano said.

Richard Senerth, a fire fighter now trained as an EMT (emergency medical technician), took over from Ms. Rockwell when Lt. Devaux's men got to the school. He recalled how he used to feel in such emergencies before getting the EMT training.

"I felt so helpless. It's a terrible feeling to go to an emergency and not know what to do," he said.

Senerth said he has given CPR to other people but never to a small child. He said fire fighters are extra concerned whenever they hear the word "child" as they are dispatched to a scene.

"We don't let any more grow on those wheels," he said.

Devaux and Alleano said their work has been changing a great deal

Castro visit said no threat to United States' interests

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Even though four top American diplomats and Rosalynn Carter have recently visited every independent country in the Caribbean, the United States says it has no fear of Castro policy.

The diplomats also say that Cuba's growing ties with other islands — marked by Fidel Castro's state visit to Jamaica this week — do not mean that Cuba's growing ties with other islands are a security threat to Washington.

They say the massive attention the islands on the southern doorsteps of the United States have received since the Carter administration took office is due to a genuine desire on Washington's part to establish closer relations.

Police report

East Hartford
Someone broke into a home on Quaker St., recently and stole a TV and two space heaters valued at a total of $250. The man living in the home has been in the hospital for the past week or so. A friend discovered the break.

Pat Pelletier, chairperson of the meeting, said, "Mr. Barone promised to inspect hedges at intersections which are making it difficult for motorists to see traffic coming. He said hedges are only supposed to be two-and-one-half feet above the grade of the intersection."

Residents complained of trash left in vacant lots. It is an eyesore and attracts rats, said Mrs. Taylor.

"Our group wants these lots cleaned out before winter sets in," said Mrs. Pelletier. "Mr. Barone promised to send an inspector out to check on the lots."

Georgia Bigelow said the men referred residents to other departments when they could not handle their problems.

Mrs. Pelletier said crime again came up at the meeting. The residents still want a foot patrol in Burnside.
