Social Security dilemma

Bad news we can take. But the new Social Security taxes proposed by the House Ways and Means Committee are so depressing we'd almost rather talk about something else.

The committee wants Congress to nearly triple the Social Security tax in the next 10 years. This year's maximum tax payment of $965.25 would jump to $2,732 by 1987. The tax would be levied on the first $39,600 of income instead of the first $16,500. The tax rate would be 6.9 per cent instead of the 5.85 per cent in force today.

These are shocking figures to a man or woman trying to support a family on a modest income. They're shocking to employers, who match each employee's contribution dollar for dollar. And the sad thing is that Congress may have to accept the committee's proposal — or something equally appalling — unless it can find some other way to keep the Social Security trust fund from going broke.

Without new income, the main trust fund will be exhausted in 1983. The disability trust fund could be depleted by 1979.

How, you may ask, did we get into this fix? And how can we get out of it without draining away income that should be used for buying a house, sending a son or daughter to college or building a factory?

The answer to the first question is that Congress failed to raise money to pay the costs when it extended benefits almost every two years. We're raised the benefits so fast (in fact, they're now tied to the cost of living) that the fund has begun to run dry.

To complicate matters, we have an aging population. There now are three workers for each retiree. By the year 2030 there may be only two workers for each retiree.

There are, fortunately, some ways to cut costs. We can correct a flaw in the law that overcompensates future retirees for inflation. We can tighten up the much-abused disability fund by making it harder for workers with vague injuries to retire early. And we can broaden the base by bringing federal workers into the Social Security system.

Beyond that, we could raise the retirement age. Or take money out of general revenues for retirement benefits. Or levy extra Social Security taxes on employers, as President Carter has suggested. But all of these remedies have serious side-effects that could be worse for the economy than simply whacking workers with a stiff tax increase, as the Ways and Means Committee wants to do.

It's the kind of dilemma that makes one wonder where the voices of prudence were when Congress was voting generous new benefits without pausing to reflect on the nation's ability to pay.

... law ... c'mon! Part!

Thought

We want to think of the word faith this week. The foundation of faith is the best place to begin. Faith is worthless in itself. If faith is not properly founded, it can lead to nothing but disaster.

The late Dr. Donald Grey Barnhouse of Philadelphia, Pa., gave this illustration:

"One night cars sped along the main highway between Jackson and Vicksburg, Miss. The drivers had faith in their cars and in the bridges over the streams. They passed over some bridges at fifty or sixty miles per hour. Everything was lovely, the concrete spans stood firm over the rivers and bayous, and the cars went on their way.

"Suddenly, the twin tallights in front of a truck melted into the road and disappeared. The driver of the truck caught only a glimpse of a black gap in the concrete before he too plunged into the stream blow."

"Breaking glass, he succeeded in freeing himself. He swam ashore, but before he could reach the highway, other cars zoomed smoothly up to the gap and vanished. Frantically, he tried to flag three others. Their drivers ignored the dripping, scarcrow figure and sped on into the void. Each time there was a single booming splash, sometimes followed by a few hoarse shouts and screams.

All the drivers had faith in a bridge that was out. There is only one bridge across the gulf of death. Listen to the words of the Lord Jesus Christ:

"Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6).

Disaster awaits the man who attempts any other highway. His faith will carry him to a Christless eternity and not to heaven.

"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

Faith must have a proper foundation — Christ.

PTA invites public to candidate session

To the editor:

As a comparative newcomer to Manchester, I would like to extend a very personal invitation to all Manchester residents — old and new — to come to an important meeting tomorrow night (Oct. 25) in the cafeteria at Iling Junior High School.

I know that we are all part of a very diverse community, which I have had the good fortune to see from the fresh point of view of a newcomer. Some of us are concerned, passionately interested citizens; some of us seem indifferent, even apathetic. But all of us have a stake in the future of our town.

I therefore invite all of you to take advantage of this opportunity to personally hear, meet, and question the candidates for our Board of Education. All of them have accepted the invitation. Three organizations representing different segments of the community — the PTA Council, the League of Women Voters, and the

Voting machine instructions asked

To the editor,

There are many people who would like to split their ticket on election day, but they don't know how.

One misconception that many people have is that if they vote for a candidate on the top level they can't vote for the candidate directly below. They may know that you can push one lever and push down another but they believe you have to knock out the person directly below or above the candidate for whom they want to vote. They may want to vote for both of these people and should know that they can.

The voters should know that they can learn how to split their votes at the polls. I believe there are people who don't take advantage of this because they don't want to other people to know how they are going to vote. They may also want to hide

The casually brutal murder of the brave and resourceful captain of the skyjacked Lufthansa airliner must turn every mind towards this hideous and growing menace.

International agreement against the skyjacking pirates needs urgently to be sought. But if the results prove disappointing or slow to come, that is no excuse for individual nations not to set a prompt example in the hope that others will follow.

We should each make it clear in advance what we shall do if one of our own airliners is skyjacked, or if someone else's skyjacked airliner comes within our jurisdiction, or if any state anywhere gives sanctuary to pirates.

If at the very least we are prepared to ban the airlines and take other sanctions against accomplice states, we should say so.

If we are not prepared to bargain at all in any circumstances with pirates, we should say that too.

If we are now sure that the death penalty should apply in all such cases, we should enshrine that in our law. — The London Daily Telegraph

The first 1,500 gallons of fuel oil we burned in our new home 19 years ago really didn't cost us one red cent!

Ted Bantly used to kid us about that — one of his regular customers getting free fuel for a year.

We can thank the Manchester Chamber of Commerce for that savings — thanks to its "Auction Bucks" promotion.

Remember? For one month, from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, 1958, people received auction money to be used in an auction for merchandise and services donated by town merchants. For every dollar that you spent, you received the equivalent of $100 in auction money.

We wound up with about $250,000 in auction money, and it was all legitimate!

You see, when you submitted your bids at the auction, you had to present sales slips made out in your name and the slips verified.

We used our auction bucks for the 1,500 gallons of fuel oil, which was probably the second best buy. The first was a piano, and it went for $450,000 in auction money.

The piano purchaser was Charlie Lesperance, local Realtor and insurance salesman.

So we settled for second; we would have liked that piano, though.

Some comments from that auction:

"I'm going home. I can't afford to buy a toothpick."

• Remark about $37,000 for a record album: "It must be pure gold; probably by Elvis himself."

• "The money isn't worth anything."

• We won't agree with that last one: It was worth 1,500 gallons of fuel oil

DOD scandal report is a dud

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Like most of its counterparts in recent years, the Defense Department Entertainment Scandal of 1975-76 included all the requisite elements of what has become the traditional script for such affairs.

It began with a spate of new stories disclosing official wrongdoing. Next came the politicians' saccharine calls for reform. Finally there was the thorough housecleaning promised by the ostensibly embarrassed Pentagon officials.

Lavish spending

The newspaper headlines told of aerospace firms and other defense contractors spending uncounted thousands of dollars to provide lavish forms of entertainment for both military and civilian employees of the Defense Department.

There were detailed accounts of government procurement officers being flown by corporate jet to ski resorts, hunting lodges, golf tournaments, deep-sea fishing expeditions and free mid-winter vacations in the Caribbean.

William P. Clements Jr., then deputy secretary of defense, promised a congressional committee "to focus the highest possible attention on this subject." The Defense Contract Audit Agency (DCAA) was dispatched to conduct special audits of the financial records of the 10 major defense contractors.

Never volunteered

The Pentagon never voluntarily shared the results of those audits with the public. But in response to a request filed under the terms of the Freedom of Information Act it has released a small portion of the material compiled by DCAA, the supposed "watchdog" of defense contractor spending.

But the 10 reports have been so heavily censored that they mock the concept of public disclosure. In two cases, involving the Boeing Co. and the Sperry Rand Corp. The material

MACC news

FISH of Manchester, an interfaith group of men, women, and teen-agers who want to express their love and concern for their neighbors and have found they can do this more effectively together than separately, have become affiliated with the Conference of Churches as an associate member program.

Established in 1968 by cooperative effort of Church Women United and the Manchester Council of Churches, FISH of Manchester immediately discovered that transportation of the ill and elderly to doctors' offices, hospitals and clinics was a priority need in the community.

Although emergency baby-sitting and other special needs emergency sitting with the elderly, shopping assistance for (or with) the handicapped, phone calls to shut-ins, visits to the blind and elderly can be provided, primary thrust of the over 70 volunteer "good neighbors" is transportation.

Last year FISH Drivers averaged some 120 trips per month with the average trip totalling eight miles. Approximately 90 per cent of these calls were from elderly persons. The breakdown of transportation services is as follows: Private doctor's, dentists, 65%; Hospital (clinic or therapy), 20%; Social Services, welfare, 5%; Mental Health Clinic, 5%; Well Child Conference, 2%; Shopping, 2%; Miscellaneous, 1%.

Although FISH drivers provide more than 10,000 miles of transportation each year.

FISH volunteers offer all this service on an annual budget of $700.20. Funding is provided by Manchester churches, church related organizations, service clubs and caring individuals. The cost of FISH is absolutely bare bones basic, since all the volunteers contribute their car and gasoline along with their time. A month's cost for FISH is answering service, $28.50; telephone, $13.80; mailing, $10; insurance, $8.

The FISH volunteer "sincerely believes that it is a privilege to be able to help someone else and to share this spirit with the recipient." No volunteer ever accepts fees for service. Anyone wishing to support the work of these "good neighbors" may send a check to FISH, in care of MACC, Box 773, Manchester to help cover the operating costs of the program.

Link funds to mandates, says Costa

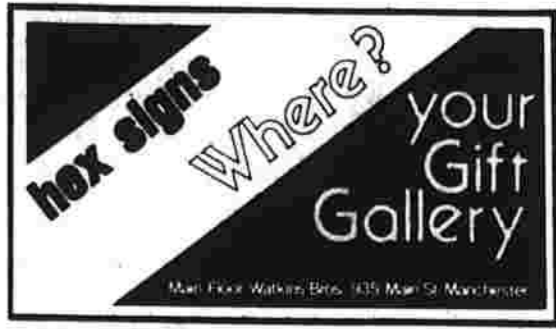

Professor Nicholas Costa, a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said that steps should be taken to insure that federal and state-mandated educational programs be funded by the developing agency.

He said that there is an inability among communities to meet their growing financial and educational responsibilities.

He said that the town should provide certain agreed-to services.

"However, the financial obligation for the implementation and the servicing of such federal and state-mandated programs must be borne by the respective agency and not the community," Costa said. The town should seek assurances that such programs will be funded for the full longevity.

"The federal government can always borrow or make new monies to meet its deficits. The Town of Manchester

Immigrants are vital to the Swedish economy

By BJORN EDLUND

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) - Since World War II foreigners have flooded to Sweden at such a rate that now every ninth resident is an immigrant or the child of one. As immigration increased, so did the myth that immigrants were unduly profiting from Sweden's social welfare system - one of the world's most generous - and taking jobs away from Swedes. Tensions between Swedes and immigrants rose and so-called race riots occurred this year.

But two recent reports indicate that Sweden's social welfare state could not have been built without the immigrants, and that immigrants do not abuse the welfare service system.

"That foreigners come here to take jobs away from the Swedes is a deeply rooted prejudice," admitted university lecturer Jan Ekberg.

Help creativeness. But in a doctorate thesis which received much publicity, Ekberg said immigrants have helped create the nation's wealth, their presence has caused more schools and hospitals to be built, and they live less off of social welfare than do Swedes.

The majority of foreigners now living in Sweden come from neighboring countries - about 46 per cent from Finland, 3.8 per cent from Denmark and 4.8 per cent from Norway. But there are many other nationalities, such as Yugoslavians (9.7 percent), Greeks (4.3 percent), Turks, Poles, Italians, Hungarians, some Americans.

A survey by the government Central Bureau of Statistics showed most immigrants do not enjoy an easy life. They work in lower paid jobs, their housing is poorer and their living conditions are more crowded than Swedes.

High risk jobs. Though they have the same education as Swedes, twice as many immigrants have late night shifts and high risk jobs. Measured in cars, boats, campers, dishwashers, summer houses and telephones, the immigrants' standard of living is considerably lower than the Swedes'.

Pantelis Goussis is one of Sweden's 730,000 immigrants. He came in 1971 from his Greek mountain village of Mousiolitissa, "where people live with their goats in the same house."

"My cousins lived here and they told me Sweden was a good country," said Goussis, married and the father of three. He said he likes Sweden, but like most immigrants he wants to return home some time.

Wants a home. "Not yet," he said. "I want to save 150,000 kronor ($31,000) to buy a house back home." He works as a nurse's helper and is an office cleaner at night.

When you are settled it is hard to go home. I visit my village every year, but for my children Sweden is better. The law gives the right to "home language training" to Sweden's 86,000 immigrant school-children. Some 30,000 children take part in home language courses and their number is growing.

Kjell Oberg, head of the Immigrants Office - a government body responsible for Swedish language courses and other immigrant policy measures - said it was important that migrants keep their own language and culture.

Guidelines issued. Parliament issued immigrant policy guidelines in 1975 saying immigrants should enjoy "equality, freedom-of-choice and cooperation."

Home language training means you can choose between your own language and Swedish," Oberg said. "You can choose to keep close to your own culture so that your children aren't strangers if you return to your own country."

The equality principle gives immigrants all rights provided to Swedes by law, except the right to vote in Parliamentary elections. Immigrants were allowed to vote for the first time in the 1976 communal elections.

"We have a system which is neither the 'melting pot' of the United States nor the guestworker system of West Germany and Switzerland," Oberg said.

Stay forever. "When you're accepted as an immigrant for one year, it means you can stay forever."

But, Oberg said, the recent race riots showed the "cooperation" goal was not yet achieved. In early summer, young toughs fought Christian Turks in Soderstrom, just two weeks after American U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young had called Swedes "racists, like everybody else."

The events showed we have neglected to bring the majority and minorities together," he said. "If we and politicians had told the people that immigrants are needed for Sweden's ambitious political and social

The Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) tonight will consider the proposed purchase by the town of 30 acres in the Buckingham Reservoir watershed area.

DENVER (UPI) — The National Prohibition Party, formed 108 years ago on an anti-liquor and pro-family platform, says it will make a trial change in name next year in an effort to attract more voters.

with more than just alcohol.

Dodge, who operates the party's national headquarters from a two-story home in west Denver, said party leaders were polled on three names — the National Statesman Party, the Good Government Party and the Family Protection Party.

The new party name will be used on a trial basis on election ballots in Colorado and other states next year.

Minor quakes reported

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI) — Four minor earth tremors shook the cities of Messina and Reggio Calabria on opposite sides of the Strait of Messina early today, officials reported.

The first jolt at 4:57 a.m. (11:57 p.m. EDT Sunday) and measuring 4 on the 12-point Mercalli scale was followed by three others of lesser intensity.

Panicky residents rushed into the streets but there were no reports of casualties and only slight damage to some old buildings.

The Messina University seismograph station placed the epicenter in the strait at a point 17 miles to the south-southeast.

Chamber endorses referendums

William R. Johnson, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce announced that the Chamber's Board of Directors has voted unanimously to recommend support of the two referendum questions that will appear on the Nov. 8 ballot in Manchester.

Question One concerns the construction of sanitary sewers to service the Tolland Turnpike and Bryan Farms areas of Manchester.

After consideration, the Board voted to endorse the authorization to borrow up to $1,200,000 temporarily to permit construction of the project. In voting to support this question, the chamber board noted that reimbursement by the state and federal government will ultimately reduce the town's costs to $315,000, an amount approved by the Town Board of Directors on Aug. 9, 1977. The chamber board also notes that this final figure will be paid for through assessments to those property owners directly served by the sewer line, thus resulting in no new taxes to support the project.

Question Two asks the voters to authorize the town to borrow $1,500,000 for construction, reconstruction, and improvement of three streets in four separate projects. The streets to be reconstructed and the cost of each project are: 1) Main St. from Hartford Rd. to Ford St., $1,375,000; 2) The Main and Center St. intersection, $500,000; 3) Adams St. from the Hockanum River to New State Rd. and the Adams St. Bridge, $600,000; 4) Vernon St. from Lydell St. to West Vernon St. and West Vernon St. from Vernon St. to the Vernon Town Line, $780,000.

The town's cost for these projects is $1,002,000 (30 percent) with the remaining 70 per cent being provided by the Federal Highway Administration. The temporary borrowing authorization of $1,500,000 includes preliminary engineering and right of way work that must be done before reimbursement is received. However, once federal monies are delivered to Manchester, the town's share of the $3,340,000 project will be $1,002,000. In endorsing these projects, the chamber board includes a proviso that citizen input be solicited prior to acceptance of final designs.

For example, the chamber views the reconstruction of Main St. as a key element in the much needed revitalization of Main St.

However, any reconstruction must ultimately work to benefit both the merchants in the area and the citizens and consumers who frequent Main St.

ly those directly affected, be consulted as to the ultimate design and benefit.

Weicker aides local candidates

U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker, who visited town Saturday to campaign with local political candidates, said that he believes Manchester is a town that can produce a Republican victory in November.

Surrounded by Manchester candidates and party workers, Weicker made stops at the Holiday Lanes bowling alley and the Weicker Gardens elderly housing project.

The visit, however, did not go as smoothly as the GOP supporters would have liked. A scheduling mixup had Weicker arrive in town an hour earlier than originally had been announced.

He had left by 11:30 a.m., the time he had been expected to arrive, according to the schedule given to local media.

Lost boy incident ends on happy note

A nine-year-old Manchester boy lost his way on the trails on Lookout (Case) Mountain Sunday afternoon, causing some anxious moments for his family and a large group of volunteers who began a search for him. Fortunately, the search ended happily when Andrew Boggini of 132 Baldwin Rd. was returned to his parents, the Charles Boggini's, waiting at the top of the mountain after two and a half hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Olson of 68 Mountain Rd., Glastonbury, who were walking with their dog, found Andrew walking along a trail and drove him back to Highland Park entrance and walked him back up the mountain.

Mrs. Boggini said today that Andrew was walking with his brother early in the afternoon when they took separate trails. Andrew apparently assumed he would come out eventually on the same trail with his parents, she said, but he ended up on the Slipnic Trail and finally decided to keep going to the end of the trail once he realized he was lost.

Groups unite to save local historical sites

The Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), and the Manchester Historical Society, Inc. have formed a non-profit corporation to preserve the maintenance and preservation of the old glass works site.

The Pitkin Glass Works dates back to 1783 when the U.S. government granted a patent of monopoly to William and Elisha Pitkin and Samuel Bishop to manufacture glass in Connecticut. The principal production of the factory was bottles.

About town

EHHS wins game four

Jeff Scanlon got the second half scoring going when he intercepted an Enfield pass. With Flenke running and Ogle and Grabowski connecting, the Hornets got two first downs.

When it looked like Enfield had stopped their drive, Tom Abern went back to punt. But Flenke took the ball and ran for the needed first down.

Ogle then found Grabowski for the final TD of the day.

Ogle had 10 completions in 16 tries for 183 yards. Grabowski caught four of them for 52 yards. Jesse Santiago and Mike Martinec also pulled down several.

The Scanlon twins added greatly. Besides Jeff's TD, Joe ran the length of the field for a TD which was nullified by a penalty.

Later in the game, Joe grabbed an Enfield punt, freed his attackers by flipping to Jeff for a Hornet gain. Defensively the Scanlons stood out with nine individual tackles and one interception each.

Grabowski and linebacker Steve Farmer added eight individual tackles each. Dakin also cited Kevin Kearns, Mike Christ and Tom Abern for defensive play.

The Hornets met Concord Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Both have 4-1 records.

Penney loses to Simsbury
After a scoreless first half, Simsbury High School's football team struck the first blow against Penney Saturday afternoon at Penney by recovering a blocked punt. With 7:19 left in the third quarter, Simsbury had moved into Penney's end zone in five plays.

Simsbury then recovered a fumble on the 42-yard line of Penney. The next play was a 42-yard pass, making the score 14-0.

And that's the way it ended. The loss gives Penney a 1-3-2 record.

Again, Penney won the game if statistics counted more than the final score. Penney appeared to have outplayed Simsbury.

Head Coach Ted Krukak said, "Head Coach Ted Krukak said, 'This was one of the best officiated games we have played all year. What happened is we beat ourselves.'"

Penney's offensive unit fumbled the ball away eight times but only recovered four of them. Simsbury fumbled twice but recovered each of them.

Simsbury intercepted four Penney passes. Penney only intercepted two of them.

The kids played tremendously on defense. But we had to play catch-sootly right from the start," said Krukak.

Krukak singled out Jim O'Connor, Mike Noble, David Leitao and Keith Austerlmann as the outstanding players.

Penney's next opponent is undefeated Hall at its West Hartford field Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Maple Cafe at the top

Maple Cafe beat Eyeball Optical, 40-0.

Pete Bezzini connected on 28 of 36 passes, six for TDs. Rick Waltz had two interceptions and four flags. Mike McDermott and Brad Phillips helped the defense keep Eyeball scoreless.

Tom Doran had three interceptions with one TD. Greg Ratic had three with one TD.

On defense, Maple's Joe Wilcox had three interceptions and four flags and Al Maximino had two interceptions and four flags. Mike McDermott and Brad Phillips helped the defense keep Eyeball scoreless.

Housing repairs promised

"Heads are going to roll," are the words of a member of the East Hartford Housing Authority director remembered by residents of the Hockanum Village housing complex of Brewer St.

John McNamara of the authority attended a meeting Wednesday at the village where he and two other members of the authority talked with about 30 residents of the 100-unit, low-income complex.

With him were Chairman Ray Levey and member Constance O'Brien as well as Nick Giamalis, executive director of the authority. The Hockanum Village Association had invited them.

Elks beat Mustangs in midgets

In the first game at McAuliffe Park Sunday, the Elks beat the Mustangs 30-0.

Early in the first quarter, after the Elks defense stopped a Mustang drive on the seven-yard line John Rodegher thrilled the crowd with a 73-yard run on an Elks touchdown.

Emilio Gilberto ran in the extra point. The 8-0 score remained on the board until late in the third quarter.

Blake said, "This was the A Team's game."

Mustangs win
After their loss in East Hartford, the Mustangs travelled to Vernon for a late afternoon game with the Pioneers. The Mustangs won, 50-0. In the second game at McAuliffe Sunday, the Cardinals continued their winning ways, beating the Elks 33-0.

Mark McCoy set up the first score when he stole the ball from the Raiders. Scott Dineen then ran 20 yards for a touchdown.

The Vikings did not play.

East Hartford police report

A Woodmont Dr. resident slept in the master bedroom of his house Saturday between 7 and 8:45 p.m. while someone ransacked the home, police said.

Entry was made by breaking a storm window and inside window of a bathroom. Then the house was apparently ransacked in systematic fashion with liquor and a speaker taken. Then the thief or thieves got to the master bedroom. The master was sound asleep.

When the man's wife got home later in the evening, she discovered his car was gone. Then she discovered the house had been ransacked. She woke him up and they found his pants had been taken, along with $200 cash, his wallet and his car keys.

Police later found the car in the lot at the Blessed Sacrament Church.

Larry Burn, 27, and Barbara Lewis, 34, both of Hartford, were arrested Sunday at the Bradlee's store on Silver Street and charged with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). They were each released on $50 cash bonds for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12.

Joseph A. Margini, 17, of 25 Smith Dr., East Hartford, was arrested Saturday at the rear of the Coca-Cola plant at 451 Main St. and charged with third-degree larceny and criminal trespassing. He was caught by police after they received a tip someone was stealing Coke from the plant.

Court date is Nov. 7.
