Carter pledges policy on steel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter promised a large congressional delegation today that "in the next few weeks" the administration will draft a new policy to revive the ailing steel industry.

Carter met in the East Room with some 150 senators and representatives from steel-producing states to hear their views. With reporters present, Carter told them:

"I've received resolutions passed by some of you. I think in the next few weeks, we'll evolve the administration's position, which I believe will be compatible with yours, which is to make sure we have a strong viable industry ... and to maintain its competitive nature."

"I'll be listening and I'll give you my answer."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, concerned with the closing of a steel plant in Youngstown, told Carter that the steel industry is "in almost some kind of panic" and said that there should be some "re-evaluation" on the question of quotas.

Metzenbaum described himself as a "free trader," but said that because of conditions within the industry, he was urging Carter to give "further thought" to the kind of quotas that international trade negotiator Robert Strauss had achieved on the import of color television sets.

He also said he has a "strong feeling that the administration is moving ahead" to curb foreign steel dumping on the American market.

Carter has chosen a special panel to recommend ways to assist domestic steel workers without raising protective barriers which would alienate the international community.

The President also scheduled a nationally televised news conference at 2:30 p.m. EDT during which he was expected to be quizzed on what decision he has made on sanctions against South Africa in retaliation for its crackdown against blacks.

Administration sources said the United States is circulating a compromise in which sanctions would be threatened against the regime but deferred to give South Africa a chance to move toward racial equality.

In other developments, the White House denied Carter has any intention of seeking the resignation of Kenneth Curtis, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. A Carter spokesman labeled as "ill informed and misinformed" reports that Carter is unhappy.

Carter, meanwhile, continued lobbying for passage of an energy program that will meet his specifications of fairness to all parties and still provide for conservation for the future. He reassured a group of House members Wednesday that he will veto a bill that "tilts too much to oil interests."

Six congressmen met Carter to stress opposition to major concessions in a compromise between the House and Senate versions on the bill. The congressmen later reported Carter said he is opposed to raising natural gas prices above $1.75 per thousand cubic feet.

Legislation passed by the Senate would eliminate federal price controls. A compromise suggested during the debate would have boosted the price ceiling beyond the $1.75 favored by Carter, but would have continued federal controls.

The group handed Carter a letter, signed by 67 congressmen, warning him that "the clear need to adopt an energy bill must not lead to a capitulation to a conference report which would amount, as the Senate legislation does, to a bonanza for the oil and gas industry."

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said the session was prompted by "rumors that he might be making a compromise or deal."

"The President told us he would veto a bad bill," said Moffett.

You'll never be the same

You'll never be the same after visiting the Halloween Haunted House at Manchester Parkade if this gruesome trio — John LeDonne, left, Janet Decker and Rick Kenny — succeeds with the scary plans they are discussing with their pet snake. The Haunted House, located at the former Treasure City store, will be open to the public Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 5 to 9 p.m. The Haunted House is being sponsored by the Manchester Jaycees, and proceeds will be used for its community projects. Tickets may be obtained at the door. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Deadline nears for draft plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In just two years, the United States may have to decide whether to resume the draft to fill a large and growing manpower shortage in the military reserves, says Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the Army's top commander.

The Army chief of staff said in an interview that draft machinery should be reactivated now to "register, classify, physically examine and keep track of" manpower, and that drafting women will have to be considered if the nation turns again to non-volunteer military service.

"I think we are talking about two years — fiscal 1978 and fiscal 1979 — because if the reserve components are as important as I think they are we just can't continue to postpone this problem if we don't find a solution," Rogers said. Fiscal 1979 expires Sept. 30, 1979.

The draft ended officially in early 1973. The last draftee was inducted in December 1972.

Volunteers for military service are plentiful enough to fill the ranks of the active Army for the foreseeable future, he said.

Conscription for weekend training military reserve units would cause some problems, he conceded, because "you can't draft from Buffalo for somebody to serve in Birmingham."

Resumption of the draft might be a solution, Rogers said, in the standby pool known as the individual ready reserve — trained soldiers that do not attend regular meetings but are on hand to provide replacements for combat losses in time of war.

The pool is short more than 400,000 men and is expected to fall more than half a million men short of its required strength of 679,000 five years from now.

The Army already has taken steps to increase reserve recruiting. Other steps are planned during the next two years, he said.

"After we've done all the things we can think of, some consideration has to be given to another solution," Rogers said.

Rogers said the Selective Service system, now in "deep standby" inactivity, should again register potential draftees because starting from scratch in a national emergency would take at least 110 days to get the first man into basic training. That time should be reduced to 30 days, he said.

Trade loss looks better

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's foreign trade deficit, bolstered by an across-the-board surge in exports, came to $1.7 billion in September, the smallest increase since spring, the government said today.

The September figures, however, brought the deficit for the first nine months of the year to $19.3 billion, more than three times bigger than the largest deficit for any full year in history.

The $1.7 billion rise in September was considerably below the $2.67 billion jump in August and was the smallest since the $1.2 billion increase last May, the Commerce Department said.

Town begins to work on filling CETA posts

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester today will begin work on filling 22 Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) positions that have been approved by the Hartford Comprehensive Manpower office.

The Hartford office, which is the local coordinator for CETA, notified the town Wednesday that the 22 positions — 12 for the town government and 10 for the Board of Education — have been approved.

The Town Board of Directors on Oct. 11 approved the allocation of the 22 positions and also granted six other CETA jobs to non-profit agencies in Manchester. The final approval from the Comprehensive Manpower office was required before the town could begin filling the positions, Charles McCarthy Jr., assistant town manager, said.

The six positions for non-profit agencies are being handled separately by the agencies, McCarthy said. He said that the town will begin interviewing and testing candidates as soon as possible and hopes to fill the positions by mid-November.

The hiring process for CETA does not take as long as for regular town jobs because all of the applicants come from town and none are now working, McCarthy said. CETA requires that applicants for these new positions must be Manchester residents and must have been unemployed for at least 30 days.

Applicants are required to contact the Manchester Comprehensive Manpower office at 806 Main St. to make sure that they are eligible for the program. If eligibility is established, the applicant should then apply at the Municipal Building, 41 Center St., for town positions and at the Board of Education office, 45 N. School St., for the education positions.

The 12 town jobs are as follows: Account clerk for the collector of revenue office, building inspector, buyer trainee, clerk II for the general services office, two construction inspectors for the Engineering Department, construction inspector for the Highway Department, planning draftsman, public works grants coordinator, staff nurse, water and sewer analyst and youth services research specialist. The ten Board of Education jobs are as follows: electrician, elementary physical education teacher, groundsman, custodian, elementary instrumental music teacher for band, elementary instrumental music teacher for strings, school enumeration and research clerk, library assistant, maintenance helper and remedial reading teacher.

All CETA employees receive the same pay rates and benefits of full-time employees and work under the same rules. Salary costs up to $10,000 and fringe benefit costs are paid by the CETA program.

Teachers endorse some candidates

Seven candidates in this year's town election have received endorsements from the Manchester Education Association.

The association interviewed all of the candidates for the Board of Directors and the Board of Education and has decided to support seven, six of whom are teachers or former teachers.

Carl Zinsner and Peter DiRosa, Republican candidates for the Board of Directors; Stephen Cassano, Thomas Connors and Betty Inagliata, Democratic candidates for the Board of Directors; Eleanor Colman, Democratic candidate for the Board of Education; and Nicholas Costa, Republican candidate for the Board of Education, received the backing of the teacher's group.

All are teachers or former teachers except for Zinsner, who was supported because he voted in favor of the last teachers contract, according to one association member.

The endorsements were voted on by a representative council of the entire association, the member said.

The association has sent letters to all Manchester teachers announcing the endorsements. It asks the teachers to donate to the campaigns of the seven candidates.

The letters were sent to teachers in the Manchester system and to teachers who live in Manchester but teach elsewhere.

Researchers make pneumonia vaccine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A group of 77 black children suffering from sickle cell anemia were immunized with an experimental vaccine that proved totally successful in warding off pneumonia, University of California researchers report.

Of 15 young sickle cell patients get pneumococcal infection despite, in some cases, daily use of antibiotics. Once stricken with the illness, a sickle cell patient's chance of survival is only one in three.

The vaccine, first developed in the 1930s but put aside after the discovery of "wonder drugs" such as sulfa and penicillin, could eventually be given all children as a protection against the pneumonia virus, Dr. Arthur Ammann said Wednesday.

The research involved 77 black children weakened by sickle cell anemia and 19 other children weakened by loss or damage to their spleens. A healthy spleen acts as a trap to catch bacteria as they invade the blood stream.

Town paver among firms cited in trade complaint

The state's Department of Consumer Protection has taken action against two paving companies, including one whose owner lives in Manchester, for alleged violations of guarantees to customers.

Mary Heslin, consumer protection commissioner, announced that administrative actions have been filed against Charles Colla of Manchester, doing business as Colla Paving, and Precision Paving and Excavating Inc. of Bloomfield. Action was also filed against Peter D'Angona of Windsor Locks, individually and as an officer of Precision Paving and Excavating Inc.

The actions were filed under the Connecticut Unfair Trade Practices Act based on information gathered during investigations by the frauds division of the department.

The complaint alleges that Colla told customers that his paving would be unconditionally guaranteed for a five-year period, and D'Angona and Precision Paving unconditionally guaranteed their work for a one-year period.

The defendants have failed to perform the necessary repair work and have failed to respond to repeated telephone requests from customers who called about repairs, the department charges.

The department's complaint also charges that the defendants violated the Connecticut Home Solicitation Sales Act by failing to include in their contracts a mandatory notice of disclosure to inform customers of a three-day period during which a customer may cancel a paving contract.

The department is seeking orders requiring the defendants to cease and desist from continuing these alleged practices.

A show-cause hearing on the cease and desist order against Colla Paving is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 10. The hearing for D'Angona and Precision Paving and Excavating Inc. is scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 15. Both hearings will be at the department's office, 185 Capitol Ave., Hartford.

Crime up as budget is cut

HARTFORD (UPI) — Crime has increased dramatically in Hartford while the police department budget has decreased and its manpower dwindled, according to City Council candidate Robert Ludgin.

Ludgin, running as an Independent Democrat, has been criticizing Hartford Democratic Council Majority Leader Nicholas Carbone and Democratic Town Chairman Peter Kelly as responsible for many of the city's problems.

Ludgin, a lawyer, said Wednesday there has been a "drastic" crime increase since 1972, while conceding that part of the reported increase may be attributable to improved reporting methods begun in 1974.

"What has the Carbone-run City Hall done to provide protection to citizens against this drastic increase in the crime rate?" Ludgin said.

"The shocking answer is that the Carbone-run City Hall has cut the budget on the police force to such an extent that no officers have been hired since May 1975.

"Although the level of sworn personnel in the Hartford police force on July 1, 1972, was 497, it has now decreased to 428," Ludgin said.

Police chase policy eyed

MERIDEN (UPI) — The Connecticut Safety Commission has started an investigation of high-speed police chase policies.

The beginning of the investigation came in the same week a state policeman was credited with saving the lives of three teen-agers in Lebanon who were allegedly in a stolen car and were being chased by the officer when the car crashed and caught fire.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso ordered the Safety Commission investigation in the wake of the death of a 22-year-old Madison man who drove his pickup truck across the path of a high speed chase by state police of another man allegedly driving a stolen car.

Police reports show the dead man, Lee Richards, was on his way back from a trip to Vermont when the allegedly stolen car slammed into the side of his truck. A police cruiser also rammed the truck, police said.

Appearing at the first hearing of the commission Monday, Rep. Linda N. Ermmons, R-Madison, urged the panel to conduct a thorough investigation of "this statewide problem."

Boy held in woman's death

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police say they have charged a 16-year-old boy with murder of a 77-year-old woman who died from injuries she suffered when she was knocked down by a purse snatcher.

Authorities declined to name the youth, but said he was 15 when the woman was attacked on Sept. 30.

An autopsy report by the medical examiner's office concluded Mrs. Bertha LePage died of injuries when she was knocked to the sidewalk as she was making her slow way to her apartment building, locked because of a rash of muggings and assaults on the elderly residents of the building in the past few years.

Neighbors said the youth hid just outside the building and ambushed the woman as she neared home.

Though cut and bruised, Mrs. LePage at first refused treatment. A few hours later she began to feel dizzy and was taken to Hartford Hospital. She died Oct. 3, police said.

The youth was turned over to Juvenile Court authorities Wednesday, police said. Authorities said Mrs. LePage's death was one of 31 murders in Hartford this year.

Barry seeks youth panel

State Sen. David Barry of Manchester has asked for the formation of a standing legislative committee on Children and Youth Services.

He made his request Wednesday in a letter to Sen. Joseph Paulso, president pro tempore of the senate.

"The problems involving young people both in and out of the juvenile justice system are well known," Barry wrote. "They need our attention now and are not addressed adequately by the shotgun approach we presently take."

Barry has been active in youth matters and is chairman of the state Juvenile Justice Commission.

"I'd like a separate committee to handle bills related to juveniles instead of having the bills buried in other committees as now happens," he said.

He said that bills affecting juveniles and adolescents have been sent to a variety of committees in the past, including Education, Human Services, Judiciary and Humane Institutions.

Barry mentioned one bill he co-sponsored this year that would have had the state adopt the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. The bill would have helped prevent child abductions by a parent who seeks custody in Connecticut courts after having lost a custody case in another state, he said.

The bill was never reported out of the Judiciary Committee. This bill and other affecting children will stand a much better chance of passage if a separate committee is established, Barry said.

The names of two cities in Africa made the same thing: Libreville, Gabon Republic, and Freetown, Sierra Leone.

Deaths on highways increase this year

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Safety Council reports 31,580 people died in traffic accidents in the first eight months of 1977, 2 per cent more than the number killed in traffic accidents the first eight months of 1976.

About 1.1 million people suffered disabling injuries from motor vehicle accidents during the first eight months of the year, the safety council says. The council would like them to advise others about the use of safety belts, defensive driving techniques and slower highway speeds.

"It would be a wonderful thing for the American public if these million-plus persons who survived so many terrible accidents could join with us in being missionaries for the cause of traffic safety," council President Vincent L. Tofany said.

"They could, perhaps, be more persuasive than we," Tofany said, "because they can speak from personal experience."

Candidate suggests related work combo

David Call, a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, has proposed that the town government and the Board of Education combine related services.

Call said he supports zero-based budgeting which helps eliminate town programs that are not cost-effective. He said that one area that would be studied is the combining of the purchasing departments for the town and the Board of Education.

"There is some cooperation, but more opportunities exist for joint buying," he said.

Such a combining of the two separate purchasing offices might produce savings in business contract maintenance and the purchase of office supplies, materials and capital equipment, call said.

He also suggested that the town and board maintenance crews could be combined.

"The town and the board each have their own lawnmowers and snow-removal equipment. I see an opportunity for the town and board to contract with each other for the performance of these services. This would result in a larger manpower pool which makes for more efficient utilization of personnel," he said.

He also said that there might be a cost savings in the purchase and maintenance of town and Board of Education vehicles.

"Consolidation of repair schedules would help identify the names of two cities in Africa made the same thing: Libreville, Gabon Republic, and Freetown, Sierra Leone."

All residents of Mayfair Gardens are invited to a potluck Friday at 6 p.m. in Cronin Hall. Those planning to attend should bring their own dishes and food for the potluck. The set-back card game scheduled for Friday night has been canceled.

A fundraiser party for Peter DiRosa, Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, will be held Saturday from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. at David's in the Manchester Parkade. The public is invited.

Child will stand out in handmade costume

If you want your child to stand out in this Halloween's cast of hobo's hobgoblins and super heroes, consider the advice of Marie Smith, a holiday displays designer.

"Unusual Halloween costumes are relatively easy and inexpensive to make," she says. "The biggest expenditure is time, and with a young child that's always time well spent."

"Start by discussing the whole range of Halloween costumes with your child. Let the youngster decide on a theme and then get busy together."

"A child, a parent, a pair of black letorads or pants and a black shirt go a long way toward creating a unique tom cat to roam the Halloween streets."

"Here's how to add the finishing touches," says Mrs. Smith: "Fasten a robe tail to the child's belt. Draw thin black whiskers on the child's face with an eyebrow pencil, add a pair of black gloves and send the child out purring."

"All the junior parties, demons and witches who trick or treat should clearly mark by luminous tape to alert motorists," the designer reminds.

Here are some additional Halloween costume ideas: To outfit your youngster as a friendly pumpkin, cut a stalk from two cardboard-pumpkin door decorations. Punch holes above and below the arm slots. Tie the decorations together with green yarn or string. Green tights or pants, green material scraps over the shoes, and a collar of green leaves cut from scraps and gathered on elastic complete the look.

If your child wants to clown around, take some inexpensive fabric or an old sheet and, using the child's pants and shirt as patterns, cut out a costume. Allow three extra inches on the front and the back for the blousing effect. Baste along the side seams, and gather the arms, waist and cuffs of the pants on elastic. Stitch the shirt hem and collar. Use two colorful paper plates as oversized buttons and yarn pompons as fluffy polka dots. String accordion-fold crepe streamers on elastic thread to make ruffles at the neck and wrists.

If your clown needs floppy feet, cut two tear-drop shaped pieces from cardboard, cover with material and trim with pompons. Then provide a big bug and send your clown on his or her way.

Court will consider Avcollie case appeal

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Supreme Court has scheduled a hearing Tuesday to begin consideration of the Bernard L. Avcollie case. Oral arguments were scheduled for Tuesday on whether the prosecution can appeal Superior Court Judge Simon S. Cohen's dismissal of a jury's murder conviction of the former legislative leader.

On July 20, the jury convicted Avcollie of strangling his wife, Wanda. But Cohen immediately rejected the verdict, saying there was not enough evidence to support the finding.

The judge at first refused to allow prosecutor Francis M. McDonald to appeal. But he later changed his mind in the face of growing protest statewide sparked by complaints from jury members who said they felt their nine weeks in the case were a waste of time.

Avcollie Wednesday said he is happy that the court will hear the appeal soon.

Bay State businessmen talk trade with Castro

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — President Fidel Castro met Wednesday night with Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill and a party of Massachusetts businessmen interested in trade with Cuba. Castro expressed interest in various trade proposals, but said none could come to fruition unless the United States lifts its trade embargo against Cuba. Earlier in the day, O'Neill held talks with other Cuban officials. The U.S. was sending "signals" about possibly relaxing trade restrictions but had not been receiving encouraging signals in return. O'Neill, son of U.S. House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, held a private meeting with Castro after a general reception. Although he did not go into specifics, O'Neill appeared pleased and said they discussed trade and other matters. "The meeting had to do with the question of signals being sent out," O'Neill said. "We understood each other well."

O'Neill said Castro gave him permission to visit relatives of Cuban refugees who now live in Massachusetts. The refugees had asked O'Neill, before he left Massachusetts, to try to visit their relatives and deliver letters to them. Dressed in an olive-green uniform, white shirt and black tie, Castro, constantly smoking cigars, stayed for about four hours with the more than 60 members of the delegation and Cuban cabinet ministers at the government's official ornate reception hall just outside Havana. Also attending the reception and buffet was Lyle Lane, chief of the U.S. Interest Office located in the Swiss embassy in Havana. It was the first time Lane was invited to meet socially with Castro.

Castro was surrounded by eight, unarmed bodyguards dressed in suits and ties, but he spoke with anyone who approached him. Asked whether any U.S. citizens were prisoners in Cuba, Castro said "almost all of them have been freed."

"There are a few left who were part of hijackings and other crimes and three or four of them are important CIA agents," Castro said. "In that sense as far as releasing people, we have done the maximum. The

What's it about? Pesos and dollars

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — A delegation of Massachusetts businessmen is finding Cuba as interested in them as they are in Cuba. The reasons are simple: Pesos and dollars. A $300 million annual trade market in Cuba has been left untapped by U.S. businessmen for 15 years because of an embargo. Behind an overlay of mutual friendship, margaritas and Monte Cristo cigars is an intense interest by Cuban officials in the industrial and merchant leaders from the Bay State and what makes them tick.

The Massachusetts group, led by Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, is the third trade delegation to walk the streets of Havana this year. The presence of O'Neill is important in the delicate balance of relations between the two nations. His father, "Tip" O'Neill, is the speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.

An oddity for the Massachusetts group is getting used to not leaving tips for service — it's not a custom in Cuba. Havana has lost the sparkle and glitter of its pre-revolution days, but there are no anti-American signs in the streets.

Lobbying probe

BOSTON (UPI) — An investigation into allegations Aetna Insurance Co. is using its agents as unregistered lobbyists was ordered Wednesday by Secretary of State Paul Guzzi. Guzzi said a complaint by Fair Share of Massachusetts, a public interest group, "raises several serious questions about Aetna's lobbying activities."

United Way drive almost halfway

Manchester United Way workers have reported a total of $41,315 collected as of last Friday for the United Way of Greater Hartford Fund. That represents 47 1/2 per cent of Manchester's goal, which is $80,720. Manchester Public Health Nursing Association has acquired 100 per cent participation in the United Way campaign qualifying it for membership in the employe honor roll 100 per cent club. The drive continues throughout October.

Berm painting suggested

Town Manager Robert Weiss has sent a suggestion about painting a berm at Mayfair Gardens to Pascal Mastrangelo, chairman of the Manchester Housing Authority. The suggestion was made by Republican Director Vivian Ferguson, who said that while visiting the site Saturday saw a person trip over the berm.

Weiss said that housing for the elderly projects do not come under his jurisdiction. Thus, he sent the suggestion to Mastrangelo.

Congressmen angered by threat of rail cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angry congressmen complained Wednesday that Amtrak was threatening to slash rail passenger service as a way to win a bigger appropriation of federal funds. One lawmaker said Amtrak's tactics were like going for the jugular vein, while another said the rail service was putting a gun to his head. Despite their complaints, the lawmakers told a House appropriations subcommittee there was little Congress could do but give the government corporation at least part of the $26.5 million it is seeking. The congressmen were not alone in their opposition. Transportation Secretary Brock Adams has asked Congress to reject Amtrak's request for a supplemental appropriation.

Adams, in a letter to subcommittee chairman John J. McFall, D-Calif., said there had been "no significant or uncontrollable changes" in Amtrak's operations since last March when officials said they could manage with $500 million. "We do not share Amtrak's view that an 'emergency' supplemental (appropriation) is required now," Adams said.

In opening special hearings on the request, McFall said Amtrak first asked for $454 million for the current fiscal year. This was reduced to $500 million by the administration, and Congress appropriated

$48.5 million. Five House members appeared at the opening hearing to ask that Amtrak be given the money it is seeking to keep the trains running even though all criticized the way the corporation operates. "We had a gun placed at our head by Amtrak," Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said. "Amtrak has in effect said to Congress either give us the funds we want immediately or we will eliminate rail service on which literally hundreds of thousands of passengers are dependent."

Dodd said 18 of 43 trains now serving Connecticut would be eliminated if Amtrak goes ahead with the cutback on Oct. 30. Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., criticized Amtrak officials for deciding on the cutbacks without consulting members of Congress and said they lacked a sense of social responsibility. Moffett accused Amtrak of being wasteful. "It's not that Congress had since last March when officials said they could manage with $500 million."

"We do not share Amtrak's view that an 'emergency' supplemental (appropriation) is required now," Moffett said of the Amtrak threat. Reps. Max Baucus, D-Mont., and Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., said their sparsely populated state would be especially hard hit by cutbacks that might save $1.7 million.

Six in Vernon race for education board

There will be six candidates running for the Board of Education in the Nov. 8 election, Vernon three from each party. Two candidates from each party will be running for a full six-year term and one each to fill vacancies for two year terms. Voters are asked to vote for any two for the six-year term, and any one for the two-year vacancy.

The three candidates with the most votes will win the seats. Lee Belanger, Republican, is seeking election for the first time. She received her B.A. degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and is a part-time medical technologist at Rockville General Hospital.

Harold Cummings, Republican, seeking re-election, is an attorney and received his B.A. degree from Trinity College and his law degree from Georgetown Law School.

Candidate hits fund loss

Vernon

Mrs. Marie Herbst, candidate for re-election to the Vernon Town Council, said if the town followed suggestions made by Republican council candidate John Giuletti, the town would have lost more than $5 million worth of federal funding.

Mrs. Herbst said Giuletti said during a meeting sponsored by the League of Women Voters last week that he supported the Affirmative Action Plan that Vernon should not use Hartford as a guideline to the town's hiring program.

"Mr. Giuletti is either not knowledgeable or is deliberately misrepresenting the facts," Mrs. Herbst said. She said the facts are that in order to obtain federal funds for the projects the town has initiated or intends in the future, "we must follow the guidelines set forth by the federal government."

She said the federal government says, in its regulations, specifically that Vernon's labor area is the Hartford labor market. She said Giuletti's suggestion that the town use the Ellington, Tolland, Vernon labor market as its basic guideline is ludicrous since both Ellington and Tolland use the Hartford labor market as required by law

Absentee ballots

Vernon residents who will be unable to appear at their polling places on election day, Nov. 8, because of illness or physical disability, absence from the state during voting hours, or who are students attending college or members of the armed forces and their spouses, or religious reasons should apply for absentee ballots. Application forms are available at the town clerk's office in the Memorial Building, Park Pl. They may be obtained in person or by mail. They must be returned through the mail so that they are received by the town clerk by election day. The last day for issuing absentee ballots is Nov. 7.

Bolton ponies win

Bolton's senior pony football team beat Tolland 12-6 Tuesday at Mt. Neo in Manchester. The win puts Bolton's season record at 5-1. Steve Holcombe ran eight yards for the first touchdown. Vinny Morrone caught a pass in a 40-yard play for another TD. Michael Ouellette intercepted a pass. Pat Myette and Mark Hopper each recovered a fumble. Coach Mark Buonome said outstanding defense was played by Jim Blair, Myette, Brad Lessard, Jim Vatteroni, Danny Baskas, Billy Bonenfant, Ron Everett, Chris Hopper, Mark Hopper, Ouellette, and Holcombe. Bolton next plays Saturday at Coventry.

New Hampshire fights loss of first primary

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — New Hampshire's early primary provided the springboard for Jimmy Carter's successful presidential campaign and the national Democratic party should not interfere with it, state party officials say. They turned out 100 strong Wednesday night to criticize a primary reform proposal made by the Winograd Commission, which will report the national Democratic

Job effort may expand

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's NAACP says it may expand its pilot employment program to other cities in the state because the job-finding service has worked so well in Hartford. NAACP Executive Director Ben Andrews said the program, which began Oct. 1, "has been unusually successful," finding jobs for about 10 persons a week. Andrews said while government

FAA seeking cause of airplane crash

MORRISVILLE, Vt. (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered an investigation into the cause of a single engine plane crash at the Morrisville-Stowe Airport which killed all four persons aboard. The plane, piloted by Joseph Buehl, 56, of Massapequa, N.Y., made an abortive landing attempt Wednesday, circled back, and plunged into thick underbrush on a farm about one half mile east of the runway, police said.

The victims, all from Massapequa, were identified by police as Buehl, his wife and copilot, Elizabeth, 53; William Lambert, 45, and his wife, Mary Elizabeth, age unknown. Buehl was a representative of L.S.A. Sales, Inc., of Massapequa, and Lambert was a vice-president of the Long Island Trust Co. The plane crashed beside a shallow creek on the C.C. Miller farm about 1 p.m. There was no fire, and his wife, Miller said, was working outside his barn a few hundred yards from the end of the runway and saw the plane pull up from its landing approach.

Dream for ambulance is wrecked by joyride

LISBON, Maine (UPI) — Ron Kadlec, a crippled medical technician, borrowed money and invested his life savings so his hometown could have volunteer ambulance service. This week the ambulance was taken for a joyride and wrecked. "I'm really in shock. We started the service three years ago with a 1963 ambulance and a dream of buying a newer ambulance," he said. "Since then we have all worked and saved our money so we could buy one, we got it three months ago and now it's creamed."

A mountain of corn is dumped on the street next to this grain elevator in Blooming Prairie, Minn., and Herbert Benson has his hands full shoveling the kernels. For the first time in this small community, there isn't enough room in the grain elevator, due to a record crop. (UPI photo)

Rhode Island will pay to end Indian claims

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — State officials hope a proposed $1 million payment to the Narragansett Indians will end the threat of more tribal claims in rural Charlestown, where residents are "economic prisoners of their own lands."

For months now, Carl Zinsner has been saying, "Dump the dump tax." Finally, other Board members have seen things his way.

In July of this year over Carl's objections the Democratically controlled Board of Directors pushed through a new tax, forcing you to pay a fee to use your own refuse area. Carl Zinsner led the fight to repeal that unfair levy and won! This is just one reason why you should re-elect Carl Zinsner to the Board of Directors.

And in Cape Cod case...

BOSTON (UPI) — Expert witnesses for Mashpee Indians, who have claimed most of the land in their Cape Cod community, told U.S. District Court Wednesday the Indians are a "tribe."

Town officials contend the Indians are not a tribal unit and cannot sue for the land, which has an estimated value of $300 million. The hearing has been characterized by Judge Walter Jay Skinner as a "partial trial" to establish whether the Mashpees constitute a legal "tribe."
