News summary

State

HARTFORD — The Firearms Division of Colt Industries has announced plans to lay off about 50 more workers soon because of federal government cutbacks in orders of the M16 rifle.

HARTFORD — Gov. Ella Grasso says she may scrap the customary seniority system when considering candidates for the state Supreme Court next year. Chief Justice Charles S. House of Manchester is scheduled to retire next year.

HARTFORD — Seven electrical wiring manufacturers and some of their officials have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring for 14 years to fix prices.

BRIDGEPORT — Connecticut's education commissioner, Mark Shedd, has charged that Bridgeport school officials have violated state laws in failing to carry out court-ordered desegregation.

HARTFORD — Twelve companies are offering jobs through the state's program to aid the 3,000 white-collar workers slated to lose their jobs at Electric Boat in Groton.

Regional

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Rhode Island's first statewide grand jury has indicted 20 suspects in the multi-million-dollar "Rhode Island Connection" drug trafficking case. Most charges stem from seizure of eight tons of marijuana in four towns.

CONCORD, N.H. — The New Hampshire House has voted to give dying patients a chance to die in peace, without being forced onto costly life-supporting machines. The House overrode Gov. Meldrim Thomson's veto of the bill, which now goes back to the Senate.

HAVANA, Cuba — A group of Massachusetts businessmen fly home to Boston today, ending five days of trade talks with Cuban officials and President Fidel Castro.

National

TAFT, Calif. — Red Adair, the Texas oil-well firefighter, proved Thursday he's a man of his word. He snuffed out the three-day oil well fire which killed three men.

WASHINGTON — The House says elderly Americans should be allowed to earn any amount of wages without losing Social Security benefits. If it stands, the decision could affect 22 million persons, but the proposal faces an uncertain future.

WASHINGTON — The Senate Judiciary Committee's vote to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana is likely to be overturned next week, and the result may be worse for the casual user.

WARTBURG, Tenn. — James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of Martin Luther King, has been found guilty of breaking out of prison. He received a sentence of one to two years, to be added to his 99-year sentence for the King murder.

DETROIT — The U.S. auto industry, which offset rising labor costs and government orders for safer, cleaner and more fuel-efficient cars with higher prices, appears headed for a record profit-making year.

WASHINGTON — President Carter today signed bills to permit the transfer of American prisoners in Mexican and Canadian jails to U.S. facilities and extend for four years federal assistance to refugees from Indochina.

International

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — Kidnapers today grabbed one of Holland's leading realtors and dragged him into a waiting car. A telephone caller identifying himself as a member of the Bader-Meinhof terrorist gang claimed responsibility.

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel, in a revolutionary economic reform plan designed to halt soaring inflation, today raised taxes and fuel prices and floated its pound — in effect devaluing it.

Tour impresses farm secretary

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland was impressed with what he saw Thursday during a tour of some of Connecticut's farmland.

That's what he told Emanuel Hirth, general manager of the Central Connecticut Cooperative Farmers Association, when he visited the Manchester grain storage and processing facility Thursday afternoon. The facility, located at 10 Apel Pl., is owned and operated by farmers from Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York and Vermont.

Bergman told Hirth that his tour of the state was the most educational trip he had ever made. "I had the typical midwestern notion that Connecticut was a kind of suburb between Boston and New York, but I find that agriculture is almost a $300 million business here," he said.

The secretary, who was accompanied on the tour by U.S. Rep. Christopher Dodd, told Hirth "I would never have believed it, even if Chris Dodd had told me, what a large part agriculture plays in this state."

Bergman and Dodd also visited the Gerber farm which is operated by Edwin and Beverly Gerber on Dart Hill Rd., Rockville, Thursday.

Thursday night, Bergland spoke to about 600 people at the University of Connecticut. He said he "will start scouring New England for a grain storage facility" which farmers said they need in the event grain shipments to the region are halted in an emergency.

Agency helps families

United Way

Both, Ss' and Susan were locked into a negative, unsatisfying power struggle in which everyone was losing. David Bland, social worker, is helping the family to mobilize the strengths they possess as individuals and as a family and to deal with many complex issues in more productive ways.

Family counseling is one service offered by the Northeast District Office of Child and Family Services at 110 Main St., Manchester. In addition to helping in parent-child relationship problems, Child and Family Services provides individual, marital and pre-marital counseling. Single expectant parents can also find help at Child and Family Services including temporary placement of babies in foster homes and adoption planning when requested.

The Family Day Care program places infants, pre-school and school age children in carefully selected and supervised Family Day Care homes.

The agency is always interested in recruiting qualified day care mothers who provide individualized care for each child as well as children who can benefit from the service.

Child and Family Services, Inc. is a voluntary agency supported by private contributions and the United Way. Fees are based on income and the number in the family. Information regarding counseling and Family Day Care services may be obtained by calling 643-2761, Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Economic index hasn't changed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government index designed to plot the direction of the economy rose only 0.3 per cent in September, the government said today — a figure that suggests weak expansion of industrial production and little, if any, improvement in unemployment for the rest of 1977.

Although President Carter Thursday rejected any income tax cuts to stimulate the economy in 1978, the poor gain in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators could force the President to reassess his position by January.

The gain in September was sharply down from the revised 1.4 per cent rise in August and was only the third rise in five months. After making rapid gains in February and March, the index has barely moved since April when it stood at 130.5.

The index now stands at 132.4 from a 1967 base of 100.

The new report confirms the trend of other recent economic indicators.

The broadest measure of activity, the Gross National Product, is not growing fast enough to reduce unemployment.

The balance of trade — a portent of inflation and a flood of foreign goods that could lead to layoffs and factory closings, if persisting for an extended period — retains a deep deficit.

Unemployment is virtually unchanged since spring.

And the inflation rate continues above 6 per cent despite monthly fluctuations.

Since it takes several months to establish a trend, the small increase for September clearly indicates that economic activity will continue at a modest rate for the rest of 1977.

Senators convinced of big car ban need

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate negotiators on energy legislation insist the worst gas-guzzler cars should be banned, but also are exploring compromises that could get House conferees to go along.

It is the last big issue for a House-Senate conference committee in its consideration of energy conservation, the first of four non-tax energy bills the negotiators must hammer out from vastly different House and Senate versions.

House-Senate negotiators continued their arduous sessions amid signals from the White House that compromise was possible on the overall energy package.

At a news conference Thursday, Carter refused to say whether he would veto a congressional energy bill that followed natural gas price ceilings higher than the $1.75 per thousand cubic feet he requested. But he said he may have to "do some compromising" in order to get an acceptable measure through Congress.

One of the most controversial features of the energy package still lies in the Senate, where a battle is under way over a $40 billion, eight-year package of tax credits and incentives to encourage energy conservation and production.

Once the Senate's version of Carter's energy tax plan is passed, it will join other planks of the energy plan at the conference committee.

The Senate Thursday gave Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., the blank check he wants to write an energy tax bill with House negotiators.

It also agreed to impose a tax on industries which could use gas or oil but could use coal. It was the first tax increase approved by the Senate, which so far has gone along with Long's plan to provide financial incentives rather than taxes to win energy objectives.

A home insulation tax credit for individuals also is likely in the final bill. A $200 million tax credit for intercity bus companies was killed.

As in the past, House Senate negotiators are finding the automobile a tough area on which to compromise.

The Senate conservation bill included an outright prohibition against any 1980 model car — the ones that come out in late 1979 — getting fewer than 16 miles per gallon of fuel. The requirement would go up a mile per gallon yearly through 1985. The House bill had no such ban.

Conferees had tried Tuesday to agree on the issue, but deadlocked and put it off for the time being.

Bidding delayed on Penney park

The Town of Manchester has decided to postpone the opening of a contract for the first phase of construction work in the proposed industrial park.

The bid opening, originally scheduled for Thursday, now has been set for Monday, Nov. 28, a date closer to the expected court decision on a case affecting the park, Jay Giles, director of public works, said.

A court case involving the park, in which J.C. Penney would be the chief occupant, was completed earlier this month. Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hull, who presided, said that his decision might not be made until about Christmas.

"We didn't want to take bids now and not be able to say yes or no until after Christmas," Giles said. No work on the park will be started until at least after Hull's decision is handed down.

"We don't like to keep the contractors hanging on for too long," Giles said. Thus, the decision was made to postpone the opening of the bids.

The bid is for drainage work to be done in the northeast section of the park. It is the first of several bids that would be required if the park project proceeds.

Energy is key to area future

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — New England, more than any other region in the nation, faces economic ruin if it doesn't find alternate energy sources, a federal official says.

"New England's need for developing these alternate sources is the most critical in the nation," Robert Mitchell, the regional head of the new U.S. Department of Energy, said Thursday.

"If we don't take action, our economic viability and competitive position in national and world markets will erode. We will remove ourselves from everything except service industries. I don't think we can fly that way. We have to take action," he said.

"We have to come up with the energy equivalent of roughly 210 million barrels of oil annually by 1985 to stay in place," Mitchell said in a telephone interview from his Boston office. "Any action we do not take means incremental addition to our present dependence on oil."

He said his office has prepared a plan to come up with the 210 million barrel equivalency, but "it will take hard decisions and commitments in the public sector and private sector before action can be taken."

He said New England's economic viability depends on not becoming any more dependent upon petroleum products. The region is now 65 percent dependent on petroleum for energy, and this is a major factor in New England's energy costs being 45 percent higher than the rest of the nation, he said.

Mitchell said his department's plans for developing alternate energy sources include conservation, construction of new nuclear power plants, a greater use of wood and coal and installing solar heating units.

He said the plans call for using conservation measures to save the equivalent of 97 million barrels of oil and constructing six nuclear power plants to produce the equivalent of another 66 million barrels of oil.

The plan also calls for converting oil-fired electrical generating plants to coal where it wouldn't produce air pollution problems to generate the equivalent of 25 million barrels of oil and developing the use of wood as an energy source to produce the equivalent of 21 million barrels of oil.

Two-hundred thousand solar heating units would also be installed in new and older homes to generate the equivalent of 1.4 million barrels of oil, he said.

"What we have planned is achievable if we take action," Mitchell said. "But we don't have the luxury of sitting down and taking choices on which alternatives we will use. New England has to take action on all fronts."

He said his department is waiting for the passage of a national energy policy before pulling out all stops in its efforts to involve the region in developing the alternate energy sources.

"The first thing we need is national energy policy. Right now it is confusing as to what the policy will be," he said. "We are holding off until a national energy plan is adopted so potential investors will know the environment they are investing in."

Oneupmanship

The Queen of the Screen and the Princess of England may soon be crowned Thursday night. Elizabeth Taylor won Protocol was left in pieces at a benefit ball for the Anglo-American Dance Foundation in New York when Miss Taylor, who chaired the event, failed to attend a reception for Princess Margaret.

In fact, Miss Taylor, and husband John Warner, didn't show until after Margaret was seated — a double-barreled slight in the world of royal protocol. Finally, Margaret arose from her table, went to Miss Taylor's and said, "Hello, I'm Margaret." Warner snapped to his feet. His wife, though gracious, remained seated. The mountain had come to Mohammed. The ball went on.

Punch-line Charley

Prince Charles was a star among stars at a Thursday luncheon in Los Angeles. As a joke, he was handed a "lifetime drive-in parking pass" to Hollywood's 20th-Century Fox studio lot.

Quipped the heir to the British throne, "I will have this pass framed and put it in my lavatory so that I may look at it under the most comfortable circumstances." The wisecrack brought a roar of laughter from Henry Ford, Charlton Heston, Telly Savalas, Merle Oberon, Clety Tyson, Roddy McDowall, Samantha Eggar and Michael York.

Later, Charles visited the set of "Charley's Angels" to chat with Kate Jackson, Jaclyn Smith and Cheryl Ladd.

GI general

California said goodbye to the "GI General" Thursday, presenting Omar Bradley with the state's Medal of Valor and firing a 19-gun salute in his honor. The 84-year-old Bradley, last of the nation's five-star generals, is moving to Ft. Bliss in El Paso, Texas.

He's confined to a wheelchair and says he wants to live on a military base because "in a wheelchair or out of it, at the stage of my life I want to be on a post serving our army and our nation."

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. hailed Bradley as "a man who preeminently demonstrates respect for civilian authority, personal courage and a sense of honor and integrity... unparalleled in our history."

HARTFORD (UPI) — Northeast Utilities says 1,650 workers will have to go. But the state Public Utilities Control Authority says it can pay 1,200 construction workers — not Northeast employees — will lose their jobs at the Millstone III nuclear power plant in Waterford. Northeast said another 450 workers would be let go because of company cutbacks elsewhere.

The utility has also threatened reduced service and more brown-outs.

PUCA also plays tough

HARTFORD (UPI) — An anti-rape group says Heublein advertisements showing women in bikinis and seductive low black dresses "promote sexism and violence against women."

Thursday that Heublein ads of some liquor products degrade and exploit women and have "implicit violent overtones."

She asked the company to discontinue the ads for Black Velvet and Smirnoff vodka, and said her group would start a boycott of all Heublein products if the request was not fulfilled.

Blue law plan is a gamble

HARTFORD (UPI) — Leaders of the effort to reimpose a ban on Sunday business in Connecticut have decided on a strategy they admit is a gamble.

Lawmakers, business, labor and civic leaders Thursday met and agreed to pin their hopes on a technical change in the law aimed at convincing the state Supreme Court to hear their case.

If they are successful, the courts could dispose of the matter by the spring, but if they are not, the issue could drag on at least until 1979 and perhaps even longer.

Outside school audit sought

HARTFORD (UPI) — The co-chairmen of the Legislature's Education Committee want an outside firm to audit the state's schools.

Rep. Abraham Glassman, D-South Windsor, and Sen. Richard Schneller, D-Essex, said Thursday an examination was needed of the methods used by the auditors in their highly critical report on the state Education Department.

But the Legislative Management Committee, composed of leaders from both parties, turned the issue over to a subcommittee to decide if outside help is needed.

Auditors Leo Donohue and Henry Becker last spring strongly criticized the Education Department and State Board of Education for not doing their jobs. The Education Committee is reviewing the audit with other panel members.

Abe suggests woman judge

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff has recommended Superior Court Judge Ellen B. Burns, the first woman to serve on the state's second highest court, to be a U.S. District Judge from Connecticut.

Judge Burns, 53, was the Connecticut Democrat's second choice for the post. Ribicoff's initial choice, Hartford attorney Joseph Adinolfi, was opposed by the American Bar Association and Ribicoff withdrew his support.

Opinion

Basic sex attitude

You can put a woman into uniform, but you can't make everybody salute her.

Or so suggests a survey of more than 600 upperclassmen and incoming male cadets conducted by the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Researchers tested the cadets' attitudes toward women both before and after exposure to the new female cadets. As reported by Science Service, not only were their attitudes found to be more "traditional" than the attitudes of nonmilitary male colleges students to begin with, but they became ever more chauvinistic after their first contact with women in basic training.

The investigators offer a number of explanations, including the fact that the men's choice of a traditionally male-dominated career like the military indicates they would be less receptive to changing female roles than their civilian counterparts.

In addition, the integration of women into the service academies was mandated by Congress and has thus placed male cadets in a "forced compliance situation."

All of which leads us to predict that the nation's first female cadets and midshipmen should make pretty good officers. They're having to fight quite a battle just to win their commissions.

Sauce for the gander

And still on the subject of the changing sexual relationship, feminist leaders have long pointed out that men stand to benefit as much as women from equality of rights under the law, irrespective of sex.

It's happening. A recent case in point is the striking down of a state law in Maryland under which a man could be sent to a prison for failing to support his wife or exwife.

Because the law prescribed obligations and penalties for men but not for women, the law was discriminatory and thus a violation of the 1972 equal rights amendment to the Maryland constitution, the Court of Special Appeals in Annapolis rules.

What effect the decision will have on domestic relations in Maryland can't be predicted, but officials who deal with welfare and nonsupport cases expect it to be especially "disruptive" in their fields.

Theoretically, men under court orders to make payments to their spouses or former spouses and their families could now refuse to do so — although in a subsequent court review they probably would be ordered to pay up again.

This wouldn't make much difference to divorced or abandoned women on welfare, since state support payments would continue in any case. But it could be tough on women who are not on welfare and can't afford to hire a lawyer.

Well, the feminists never promised anybody a rose garden.

Bribery law loophole

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After years of embarrassing disclosures about illegal payments of millions of dollars by American corporations to politicians and government officials in other nations, Congress is about to pass a law prohibiting the practice in the future.

The legislation offered to the Senate, however, contains a little-noticed loophole that not only will allow interstate national bribery to continue but will endow the practice with the federal government's seal of approval.

Because many of the nation's largest companies have falsified their financial records to conceal such corruption in the past, the bill establishes stringent new accounting and reporting requirements for publicly owned corporations under the jurisdiction of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

But the measure also includes a crucial exemption that waives the reporting requirements for "any person acting in cooperation with and at the specific, written directive of the head of any federal agency or department responsible for matters concerning the national security of the United States."

In plain language, that provision exempts international political bribes undertaken at the request or with the cooperation of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) or other intelligence organizations within the government.

The special waiver was inserted in the bill by Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., when the Senate Banking Committee was drafting the legislation earlier this year. The bill was routinely approved by the full Senate last spring.

While tracking down the history of the obscure provision, Fielding M. McGehee III, an official of a public interest group called the Military Audit Project, discovered that there was no testimony during the public hearings on its effects or genesis, no debate by the committee, no recorded vote and no discussion on the Senate floor.

The House version of the bill, drafted by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., recently was approved by the House Commerce Committee and now awaits action by the full House.

Eckhardt's bill contains no exemption for intelligence-related bribery. "We never focused on that, it just never came up," says an aide to the congressman. But other sources say Eckhardt specifically parried the intelligence community's efforts to write the provision into the bill.

The Senate version is objectionable for several reasons, not the least of which is its effect of placing the federal government in the position of a parent who forbids a child from doing something because it's wrong, but insists that it's perfectly appropriate for mother or father to do it.

The exemption also leaves executives and employees of American corporations stationed abroad under a continuing cloud — both as CIA operatives and as paymasters of illegal funds.

There have, in fact, been numerous reports in recent years that the CIA was aware of, encouraged and possibly even provided the funds for corporate bribery in the past.

Questions have been raised by about $7 million paid by the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to an intermediary in Japan; about commissions paid by the Boeing Co. to its "agents" in Iran, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia; and about almost $3 million transferred overseas by Deak & Co., a New York-based firm, in deals in international currency transactions.

One knowledgeable official on Capitol Hill suggests that "some people in the Senate don't want to totally hamstring the CIA, if that indeed is their modus operandi."

If the CIA must resort to bribery and must rely on corporate "cutouts" to obscure the source of the money, there is no sanctimonious self-congratulation from Washington's politicians if the final version of the "reform" legislation contains the multi-million-dollar loophole.

"We live in a free enterprise system, yet today's business owner, or farmer, spends nearly as much time puzzling over government forms to fill out as he or she does running the business or the farm," adds Heinz.

The senator continues: "Government, as only a bureaucracy can do, has found a way to propose solutions that actually compound the problem. The effect on the American people — on our institutions and on ourselves — has been so devastating that we turn a deaf ear to the problems of our leaders and a cynical glance at their solutions. We have indeed achieved a standard of living that sets us apart from the rest of the world. Yet, in our rush to bigness and in our rush to the future, we have put ourselves more and more in the position of being servants to the government."

Richard D. Cudaby, former chairman of the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin, notes that "to meet real public service needs, bureaucracy is inescapable." He admits, however, that there is a "tendency to inflate needs to justify bureaucratic empires."

Wisconsin's Gov. Patrick J. Lucey suggests a glance at two books will give some insights into the fact of a bloated government. The first book, 782 pages, is a catalogue of the federal government's domestic grant, loans and other aid programs. The second volume, 1,867 pages, lists federal agencies and offices that run those programs.

"The cost of this overblown bureaucracy has been, and continues to be, substantial," writes Lucey. "In the past, when the myth of plenty predominated, it was a cost

Busing called unnecessary

To the editor:

Once again the Board of Education for the Town of East Hartford has on its agenda to bus, unnecessarily, the sixth grade children from Center School to O'Brien School in 1978 to ultimately institute the "middle school concept" townwide.

Right now, without busing the children from Center School, the transportation budget is almost a half million dollars. That's a lot of transportation, and with 16,000 taxpayers in town, that amounts to a little over $30 per taxpayer just for transportation. Right now, of the less than 10,000 students in school, more than 4,000 are being bused. If the board voted to send the sixth, seventh and eighth grade Center School students out of their own district, they must also be bused.

Please let the Board of Education members know your feelings about unnecessary spending of your tax dollars. Besides the tax dollars expended is also the added traffic, time the children must spend waiting for the bus and ultimate travel to school plus the use of gasoline for those buses. Our country is still facing an energy crisis and I don't think the Board of Education is helping matters by transporting children out of their own district.

Please be heard at the polls in November and at the board meetings.

Another matter of fact! The Board of Education is allocated a certain amount of tax money to do with as they deem necessary for the educational process so the more money spent for transportation means some other vital aspect of educating our children must suffer.

Sincerely,
Mrs. M. Jane Pettipas

Costs more, delivers less

By LEE RODERICK

WASHINGTON — "As government grows, are we improving the quality of life or the quantity of bureaucracy?"

The American Institute for Public Service — a non-profit group that honors men and women who have given outstanding public service — asked that question to five distinguished citizens. Their answers, published in a volume recently of the press, help document what so many Americans feel intuitively: That the government established to serve us is instead becoming ever more self-serving — and oppressive.

Not helping at all to change that tarnished image was the recent seven per cent pay boost granted federal workers by President Carter. The chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Jack Carlson, says the pay hike will add $60 to $100 to the average family's annual tax bill. The average civilian federal employee made $18,201 last year, according to the chamber, compared to $11,840 for an equivalent employee in the private sector.

What are we getting for our money?

"It is accurate to say that, while government has gained more and more control over our lives, it has lost sight of the things that we value most," says Sen. John Heinz III (R-Pa.), one of the five men questioned by the public service institute.

"A bureaucratic apparatus, however well-intentioned, tends not to correct its own faults or to purge itself of inadequate and badgering personnel. A bureaucracy should be reminded frequently that it has been created to serve the public, not to serve itself."

It was left to an academician — Robert Nisbet, humanities professor at Columbia University — to sound the most dire warning of where our bloated government is taking us: "I am convinced that with expanding federal bureaucracy, we reduce the quality of life for the overwhelming majority of American citizens."

The quality of life is diminishing," adds the scholar and author, "and will continue to diminish, resulting in what I call a twilight period in history. I am not a pessimist by nature, but apart from a new kind of Congress and presidentiality, at this time simply unforeseeable, I see no ending, short of the almighty miracle, for this twilight period."

One can at least pray that the 1978 congressional elections will be the start of that miracle.

Thought

The Christian life is a walk of faith. "As ye have, therefore, received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him. Rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding with thanksgiving." (Colossians 2:6,7).

In the early days in the West the circuit-riding preachers had to swim their horses across the rivers. They tell us that when they were crossing swollen and overflowing rivers if they fixed their gaze upon the swirling waters around them they were likely to become dizzy and falling from their seat, be swept away by the flood. But if they fixed their eyes upon the trunk of a great tree on the bank, or upon the summit of a hill or mountain, they rode through it safely.

In the storms of life faith gives us balance and calm and safety — but we must fix our eyes upon Him, not upon the shifting scene around us.

"Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Hebrews 12:2).

Connally peddling himself

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — Muscles picked Jimmy Carter to beat Gerry Ford "because Ford will make too many goofs." In 1972, he offered 20 to 1 odds against George McGovern beating Richard Nixon "because Humphrey doesn't sound like a president."

Muscle is a Washington bookie. His interest in politics is confined to his pocketbook. Now he says John Connally should be a 2 to 1 bet to get the Republican presidential nomination in 1980 "because people look at the guy and can see him in the White House."

Connally, the former governor of Texas, secretary of the treasury under Nixon, and once a leading Democrat, probably would agree. Big John has no false modesty. He is aware of his high intelligence and his huge political talent. He knows very well that he is star quality, a man who turns on both voters and other politicians.

Asset important

The latter asset is most important in both parties. Jimmy Carter was not universally loved by Democratic stalwarts, but he made himself an exception to the rule by going over their heads to the people. Almost always, however, a candidate for the presidential nomination needs the support of most of his party's professionals.

Connally is wooing that support. He has announced he will stump the country next year on behalf of GOP gubernatorial, Congressional and state legislative candidates. Unlike Ronald Reagan, whose Citizens for the Republic will support only Republican conservatives, Connally speaks of the "salvation" of the party, whatever its members' ideologies.

His favorite line is that "Next year is a critical year for the Republican Party. It's a golden opportunity to pick up gubernatorial and legislative seats. The party will be dead if it doesn't."

Pragmatic realist

Connally can do this because he has never been tarred with the liberal brush. He is almost as conservative as Reagan. The difference is that Connally is a pragmatic realist. He knows that the party needs more than conservative support to win. So all he asks is that a candidate carry the GOP brand.

That posture won Richard Nixon detail and oblivion to the broader — and more crucial — questions of scarcity and the relevancy of government.

Author Russell Kirk says that "Probably the best way to keep a civil service and serviceable is to ensure that the departments of the government, at every level, come under the supervision of elected or appointed public boards not composed of professional bureaucrats."

A bureaucratic apparatus, however well-intentioned, tends not to correct its own faults or to purge itself of inadequate and badgering personnel. A bureaucracy should be reminded frequently that it has been created to serve the public, not to serve itself.

Can-win guy

So far, Connally has offered something for both conservatives and liberals in his party. He has proposed that the Panama Canal treaties be subjected to a national referendum. That's good, vintage Reagan stuff. He has also broached the idea of the national government becoming a marketing association to sell American agricultural and mineral products in the international market.

But mostly Connally is peddling his own handsomeness and forceful personality. He's Robert Redford. He's also Thomas Jefferson, a public servant with enormous ability, a man who gets things done. In Nixon's Cabinet, he stood out as a giant among pigmies. He may stumble along the way, but as of today he's the party's only authentic can-win guy.

Suit claims home wires fire hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move that could mean millions of dollars in repairs to homes across the country, the government has accused 26 manufacturers of aluminum wire of being responsible for a potential fire hazard in home wiring.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, is the latest turn in a five-year dispute over whether up to two million houses built before 1972 were wired in a way that posed a severe hazard.

The commission asks the court to order the aluminum companies to begin an immediate campaign to alert the public to the hazards and order a house by house inspection.

The agency said it had reports of multiple fire deaths in several states.

Dean has new unit

A products division for Dean Machine Products will open soon at 346 Progress Dr., Peter Naktinis, president of the firm, said Thursday.

Interior alterations are being completed at the 6,000-square foot Progress Dr. site.

Products sold by Dean Machine will be channeled through the new division, which will be known as Foxco Products, Naktinis said.

He expects the products division to open in a few weeks. He said he could not give an estimate on the number of new employees that would be hired.

Director

Dr. Thomas J. Conklin of 23 Lookout Mountain Rd. has been named director of medical administration at the Institute of Living, Hartford.

He comes to the 400-bed, private psychiatric hospital from the Touro Infirmary in New Orleans, La., where he was chairman of the department of psychiatry. He was simultaneously an assistant professor of psychiatry at Louisiana State University.

He received his bachelor's and medical degrees from LSU, and served his residency in psychiatry at the Institute from 1970 to 1973. In his third year he was appointed chief resident, and upon completion of his residency was named a full-time staff psychiatrist, undertaking several administrative projects during that time.

Dr. Conklin is married and the father of five children.

AT&T to raise rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has filed a request to increase charges for interstate single-circuit extensions to Telapak, its bulk-rate private line service.

The new charges would produce an estimated $12 million in additional revenues, the company said. About 150 of the company's 250 interstate Telapak customers use end-links and are affected by the filing.

Telapak permits customers with large communications requirements to buy 60 to 240 private lines at a time at bulk rates.

Bio trip taken

Last Tuesday, while most MHS students were asleep, the Advanced Biology class arose before the sun did. Under the floodlights of the main entrance, 21 sleep-walkers loaded their coats with microscopes, buckets and other necessities for their "mobile laboratory," but where were these somnambulists headed?

No time was wasted throughout the day, so that a perfect educational experience could be enjoyed by all. The day began as the sun rose, when Mrs. Florence Levine, the advanced bio teacher, began her concluding lecture on marine life. All listened attentively as the key for marine plants and animals was discussed in depth.

Arriving at Woods Hole, a small scientific community located at the base of Cape Cod, the class was greeted by Dr. James D. Ebert, Dr. Ebert, the president and director of the M.B.L., offered the group coffee and doughnuts, followed by a talk on the history and function of Woods Hole and the MBL.

Two institutions Woods Hole is a community rich in scientific investigation facilities. There are two federal institutions: The National Marine Fisheries and the U.S. Geological Survey, the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute (WHOI) and the Marine Biological Laboratory (MBL). The MBL was founded in the summer of 1888. Since then it has grown and is now known as the institution housing the world's finest biology library, and as a leading center for scientific investigation. The MBL is attached to a non-institution, but serves people from all over the world. Some of the greatest scientists and Nobel Prize winners are associated with the MBL.

Following Dr. Ebert's introduction to the MBL, all proceeded to tackle the sea. Arrangements had been made by Mrs. Levine for the class to go out collecting on one of the lab's boats, the "A.E. Verrill." It was supplied with our own guide-instructor, Tom Duncan, who is a graduate student from the Boston University Marine Program. Tom showed us the collecting equipment and explained its uses.

For three hours, the students were able to investigate and classify the marine life found in Vineyard Sound. Samples were taken from varying depths of ocean bottom. The Naturalists Dredge and the Epibenthic Slide were used in rocky, sandy and muddy environments.

A vast variety of animals were found, each unique to its environment. Spider crabs, arctica (sea urchins), shell fish, sponges (containing much protozoa life in each clump), hermit crabs, fish and eel grass (the only seed producing plant of the ocean) were just a few of the fascinating samples of marine life collected. While some identified these animals, others sat off to the side trying to overcome their seasickness.

Plankton tow Following the dredging, Duncan conducted a plankton tow using a fine mesh, funnel-shaped net to catch the microscopic organisms. The plankton were jarred and taken back to the lab, where they were later examined under the microscopes.

After unloading the boat of our marine prize catches, we headed back to the MBL, where laboratory space would be provided for us. On our way to our lab, we investigated the MBL supply vessels. We looked into tanks and tanks of crustacea, mollusks and fish. Some saw animals that they had heard about but had never witnessed, such as huge rays, sharks, horseshoe crabs and sea cucumbers. Many of these fascinating animals were brought back to MBL in order to stock our sea aquarium. In this manner our MHS classes could share in and benefit from our experience.

Classifying catches Once in our spacious modern Woods Hole Lab, we took out our marine life key and went to work classifying our catches. Some worked with microscopes, while others viewed the finer feeding of the sea cucumber and the movements of the invertebrates and sea anemones. There were plants and animals to interest all and the 2 1/2 hours in the lab flew by. Before we realized it, it was time for our scheduled lecture.

Dr. Kenneth Edds of the MBL lectured to the group on "How cells change shape." He spoke of his work on sea urchins, and microfilaments in their cells. Dr. Edds also informed the students about the scientific carries out investigations and how practical applications guide the medical field. Questions and answers followed the talk.

Dinner guests At the conclusion of Dr. Edds lecture, the Advanced Biology Class was invited to be guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ebert at supper. All relaxed and informal conversation with the Eberts took place. After our leisure dinner, the class presented Dr. and Mrs. Ebert with a small token of appreciation in the form of a large

Thank you note. Thank yours' were said, and all headed back to the bus for the ride back to Manchester.

Thus a regular school day had been spent in a most extraordinary way. This trip described to you could never have taken place without the greatly appreciated cooperation of the MBL. Special attention should be given to Dr. James Ebert, who arranged functions and activities at our boat trip, and Dr. Kenneth Edds who gave his time to speak to our class.

Praise teacher The MHS Advanced Biology Class feels that much recognition and praise should be given to Mrs. Levine. It is not every teacher who would be giving of herself as to plan a day like ours for a class. Our trip to Woods Hole could never have been taught in a classroom. The educational learning experiences that were witnessed are not comprehensible by the readers of this article.

Mrs. Levine has once again proven herself to be one of the best teachers this school has to offer. In these first few months of school, we have taken shorter trips to Oak Grove and the Cliftonbury Bog to study succession and this day-long trip to Woods Hole. In this article I have described the agenda of the day, but there are no words to possibly describe the vast amount of scientific knowledge and information we were exposed to. The day was enjoyed by all and will not soon be forgotten. — Marc Laufer

Mr. and Mrs. Ebert's introduction to the MBL, all proceeded to tackle the sea. Arrangements had been made by Mrs. Levine for the class to go out collecting on one of the lab's boats, the "A.E. Verrill." It was supplied with our own guide-instructor, Tom Duncan, who is a graduate student from the Boston University Marine Program. Tom showed us the collecting equipment and explained its uses.

For three hours, the students were able to investigate and classify the marine life found in Vineyard Sound. Samples were taken from varying depths of ocean bottom. The Naturalists Dredge and the Epibenthic Slide were used in rocky, sandy and muddy environments.

A vast variety of animals were found, each unique to its environment. Spider crabs, arctica (sea urchins), shell fish, sponges (containing much protozoa life in each clump), hermit crabs, fish and eel grass (the only seed producing plant of the ocean) were just a few of the fascinating samples of marine life collected. While some identified these animals, others sat off to the side trying to overcome their seasickness.

Plankton tow Following the dredging, Duncan conducted a plankton tow using a fine mesh, funnel-shaped net to catch the microscopic organisms. The plankton were jarred and taken back to the lab, where they were later examined under the microscopes.

After unloading the boat of our marine prize catches, we headed back to the MBL, where laboratory space would be provided for us. On our way to our lab, we investigated the MBL supply vessels. We looked into tanks and tanks of crustacea, mollusks and fish. Some saw animals that they had heard about but had never witnessed, such as huge rays, sharks, horseshoe crabs and sea cucumbers. Many of these fascinating animals were brought back to MBL in order to stock our sea aquarium. In this manner our MHS classes could share in and benefit from our experience.

Classifying catches Once in our spacious modern Woods Hole Lab, we took out our marine life key and went to work classifying our catches. Some worked with microscopes, while others viewed the finer feeding of the sea cucumber and the movements of the invertebrates and sea anemones. There were plants and animals to interest all and the 2 1/2 hours in the lab flew by. Before we realized it, it was time for our scheduled lecture.

Dr. Kenneth Edds of the MBL lectured to the group on "How cells change shape." He spoke of his work on sea urchins, and microfilaments in their cells. Dr. Edds also informed the students about the scientific carries out investigations and how practical applications guide the medical field. Questions and answers followed the talk.

Dinner guests At the conclusion of Dr. Edds lecture, the Advanced Biology Class was invited to be guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ebert at supper. All relaxed and informal conversation with the Eberts took place. After our leisure dinner, the class presented Dr. and Mrs. Ebert with a small token of appreciation in the form of a large

Thank you note. Thank yours' were said, and all headed back to the bus for the ride back to Manchester.

Thus a regular school day had been spent in a most extraordinary way. This trip described to you could never have taken place without the greatly appreciated cooperation of the MBL. Special attention should be given to Dr. James Ebert, who arranged functions and activities at our boat trip, and Dr. Kenneth Edds who gave his time to speak to our class.

Prom listed

What will the Junior Prom be like this year? The Junior Prom Committee has met to determine just that. A majority of females, with only a few males, picked a theme and signed with crews to work on the prom.

Many songs were suggested for them, but one was singled out, and it is now the Junior Prom theme. The song is "Color My World," by Chicago. A color scheme has not yet been decided, but rainbow colors were suggested. The theme was chosen because it was considered to be danceable, and bands can play it.

A band has not been chosen, but that may have been intended, as well many more. One of the bands which has been considered is "Fresh." Tickets should be printed by early November, but due to escalating costs, prices have been raised.

Anyone may still be involved in the prom committee, doing such things as decorating the cafeteria, selling tickets, or otherwise helping. To be on the committee, contact either Margie Larsen or Charley Lindsay.

Last year's prom was considered by many to be very good. Its major fault, as felt by some of the school's staff, was that they were left unconsidered. They had taken their time to chaperone the prom, but unprecipitated there was no receiving line for them, many left for that reason and also because the band didn't play long enough which they could dance. Hopefully, this year the teachers and administrators will not be forgotten.

The prom is Nov. 9, but in order for it to be a good one, plans must be made now. A good prom will require the efforts of many. If you haven't already gotten involved in it, then your assistance can be most helpful. — Richard Walden

Hockey team ready for season

The Manchester High School hockey team has begun its practicing with office conditioning and good begin work out on-ice after Nov. 2.

The team has started off slowly with only 11 skaters and 4 goalkeepers, but spirit has been high at practices. Coach Dennis Doyle is hoping for at least 15 to 20 to get into the CCIL tournament.

To play hockey, you must have good balance, strength, agility, and be able to make quick decisions. Coach Doyle has come up with many AFS is a unique club. Unlike most clubs, where all of the members share at least one common interest, be it a sport or a language, AFS is a potpourri of interests. One may very well meet a member he does not know through any other club.

The AFS Club meets about every two weeks, alternating each after school and once in the evening, at a member's home. Meeting at a home avoids monotony, and lends to a more casual atmosphere.

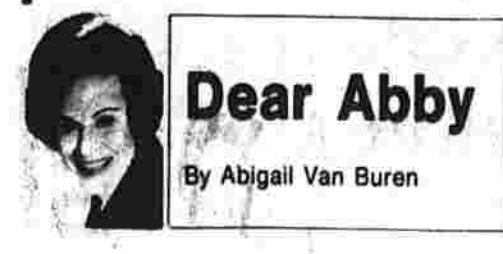

Proposed activities for the year include an AFS weekend, an area exchange and fruit sales to aid in financing the Americans Abroad program. — Becky Bourret

Assembly opts for students

At the last Student Assembly meeting, there was a voice of concern about Mr. Len Auster's article appearing in the Oct. 13 issue of The Manchester Evening Herald. The article was about the broken trophy case and the moral decline at the high school.

The assembly voted to have Board of Education representatives Mark Meridy and Jon Keller read an official statement concerning the assembly's objections to Mr. Auster's article. The statement reads as follows:

The Manchester High School Student Assembly regrets Mr. Auster's statement that the moral fiber and pride in the school is low. The entire school cannot be judged by the actions of one or even a few individuals. It is unfortunate that his facts regarding the incident of the broken trophy case were incorrect.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We've been married for 14 months and already I've got big problems. My wife wears she loves me as much as she ever did, but what am I supposed to think when she tells me she wants twin beds?

We're moving from a furnished apartment to a bungalow and have started shopping for furniture. That's when she said she wanted twin beds. Before we were married we agreed on a double bed, and she always seemed perfectly satisfied with it.

I have argued all I can. She insists we will both sleep better in twin beds. Maybe SHE will, but I won't.

DEAR HURT: If she wears she still loves you, what do you want, an affidavit? Remember, you agreed on a double bed BEFORE you were married, so you can't blame her for not knowing your sleeping habits. Maybe you snore, kick in your sleep or hog the blankets. Quit arguing. Absence could make the heart grow fonder.

DEAR ABBY: When being introduced to a person, is it proper to say, "I've heard a lot about you?"

DEAR GENE: It all depends on what you've heard.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were in our 30s and very much in love when we were married. Six years later I am a nervous wreck. He says I am the woman he has been looking for all his life and he isn't going to lose me. He has to know when I am every minute, and he calls me six or seven times a day. If I go out during the day, he cross-examines me about where I went and who I saw.

DEAR PRISONER: Your husband sounds like a very sick man. For your own safety, report his past actions and threats on your life to the police. And for your sanity, seek the help of your doctor.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to: ABBY, Box No. 6700, L.A., Calif. 90009. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

First flu cases reported today

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first cases of influenza this fall were reported today by federal health officials in Puerto Rico, Canada and the state of Oregon. The Center for Disease Control reported the most serious outbreak of the illness in Puerto Rico, where the disease has apparently reached near-epidemic proportions. Two CDC influenza experts were dispatched to the island to help identify characteristics of the influenza virus and to determine the effectiveness of the vaccine currently recommended. The Puerto Rican outbreak appeared to be centered in a rural southwest area of the island. The CDC said the extent of influenza in Puerto Rico was difficult to determine because it was occurring along with cases of Dengue fever, which has similar characteristics. The Oregon case involved a 77-year-old man hospitalized with pneumonia last month. The Canadian cases involved military personnel who arrived in Canada from Australia in August. Twelve of the 145 Australian infantrymen who arrived in Victoria, British Columbia, came down with influenza-like symptoms. Secondary cases have occurred among Canadian armed forces since then. The CDC said that in all instances the influenza virus closely resembled the A-Victoria or A-Texas strains prevalent last winter.

City schools want to delay test plan

HARTFORD (UPI) — A Hartford Board of Education committee wants to delay a plan to test by the school superintendent to require all pupils to pass basic reading tests before advancing to the next school grade. School Supt. Dr. Edythe J. Gaines Thursday protested the curriculum committee's 4-1 vote to stall the program. "These children hunger and thirst for the benefits of education and we are not ready to give them. We have no right to drag our feet," she said, but her arguments were cut short by the committee chairman. "I want to be damned sure that once we set up this thing, it's going to work," said Kate Campbell, the panel's chairman. At the start of the school year last month, Mrs. Gaines said she would require all students to pass basic skill tests to be sure they were capable of performing on a level at least even with their grade before they would be promoted to the next grade. But her policy sparked sharp protest from some parents and some board of education members. One Maria Sanchez, said she feared Spanish-speaking students would be kept back unfairly.

Coroner says boy caused own death

Hartford County Coroner Henry Ramenda has concluded that a Coventry youth was responsible for his own death in an accident last April on I-84 in Manchester. A hearing was conducted Aug. 22 because there was reason to believe that the death of Thomas J. Bendell, 17, of Alice Dr., Coventry, was the result of the act of another person. According to the coroner's report, Bendell had attempted to move his vehicle to the right lane of the highway to avoid a car, and in doing so struck another vehicle from the rear. Police found the Bendell car on its roof in a grassy area off I-84.

Water problem trial will continue Nov. 7

The case involving this summer's water problem in the southwest section of Manchester will resume Monday, Nov. 7 at 2 p.m. in New Britain's Court of Common Pleas.

The case involves five residents of southwest Manchester who are seeking damages from the town because of a 12-day period in August when water in the area had a high bacteria count. Residents on many streets were required to boil their water during the period.

The trial started on Oct. 6 when Joseph Reynolds of 86 Niles Dr., who is the leader of the residents' group, and the four other plaintiffs testified about the water problem.

The case was continued until Oct. 17, but that session was later postponed. The new date, Nov. 7, has now been set. Reynolds has subpoenaed state and town officials to testify in the court case. He has not said who has been subpoenaed, but he did say that members of the Town Board of Directors are among the group.

Pension decision to stand

Manchester's Pension Board will not appeal a court decision that permits four paraprofessionals to make retroactive payments to the town's pension fund.

"We got the court order. That's what we wanted," Roger Negro, town treasurer and a member of the Pension Board, said today.

The paraprofessionals — Helen Diehl, Carmella Brennan, Mariame Chambers and Marilyn Miller — all are employed in the school system. They said they were erroneously left out of the pension plan when they began to work in 1970. They have been members of the plan since 1973 but sought to be included from the starting date of employment.

This requires that the four make back payments for the time that they were not included in the pension plan. Town Council Victor Moses had ruled that such retroactive payments, which normally are prohibited by the town's pension ordinance, would be permissible in this case.

The Pension Board, however, ruled against the back payments. The board said that the pension ordinance specifically prohibits the treasurer from accepting any such payments. The board meets Monday and will vote on whether to accept or appeal the court decision made by Superior Court Judge Thomas O'Sullivan in favor of the paraprofessionals.

Negro said that the board will accept the decision. "One concern of the board was that permitting the back payments by this group would permit other employees to take similar action. The judge, however, said that his ruling applied only to those in this particular situation and could not be considered a precedent for others who do not meet the exact same circumstances."

Viewing the Hockanum River

Studying the serene but filthy Hockanum River in East Hartford are two two-year-old local residents. Eric DeMonte, left, of 3 Cannon Rd. said, "We both own dogs that swim. But we won't let them in the river because when they come out, they stink and we have to give them baths." Joe Thibodeau of 20 Cannon Rd. said, "The kids try to catch fish. But there's nothing there." The town has recently won approval to pay a 41-man crew to clean up town streams. They may get to the Hockanum before the funds run out. (Photo by Dick Paradisi)

Traffic force to expand

Manchester Police Department has received for the second year a $30,350 highway safety grant to expand its Traffic Services Bureau from the state Department of Transportation's Office of Highway Safety.

These grants the town police have received are to expand its coverage during the highest accident and traffic days, time and especially during the late hours when alcohol-impaired drivers are most prevalent.

The first grant, enabled the department to expand its traffic squad from two to four men, to put the men on duty and to purchase additional equipment, including one additional equipped police cruiser, two portable radar units for the men to carry in the field and two more radar hand-held radar units, Deputy Chief Richard Sartor said.

This year's grant will be used to pay the salary of the two added traffic safety officers and to provide funds for conferences and training, Sartor said.

The Police Department will receive two more of these yearly grants, Sartor said.

Manchester police report

Four breaks or attempted breaks into Manchester homes were reported within a 90-minute period Thursday, Manchester Police said. Only small items have been reported missing in the incidents, however, police said. The first report came at 4:10 p.m. Police said that there was an attempt to break into a home on Blyeu St., but no entrance was made. There was a break reported at 4:58 p.m. into a Lyness St. home but there is no report of anything missing, police said. The second occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m. Six beers, cigarettes and a lighter were taken, according to police. A chain saw was taken from the town building at East Cemetery, Manchester Police said. Entrance was gained by prying open a lock, police said. A CB radio was stolen from a locked vehicle parked on W. Middle Tpk., police reported. A 1963 tan Ford was stolen from a Center St. parking lot, according to police. An accident Thursday at 3:27 p.m. at the intersection of E. Center and Lenox Sts. resulted in the arrest of one driver and hospital treatment for the second driver. Police charged Richard G. Kuhnshi, 21, of 107 Oakland St. with failure to obey a traffic signal. Carol A. Longo, 28, of 878 Center St. was treated for multiple contusions and was discharged, a hospital spokeswoman said. An accident on W. Middle Tpk. resulted in the arrest of Arnold H. Moses, 49, of Vernon. Moses was charged with failure to drive to the right. The accident occurred at 3:17 p.m. Thursday. Manchester Police reported the following arrests: • Nelson D. Carrier, 26, of 215 Center St. who was charged on rearrest warrants with second-degree criminal mischief, third-degree criminal mischief and third-degree larceny. He is to be presented in East Hartford's Court of Common Pleas. • Christopher P. Johnson, 28, of Willington who was charged with operating a motor vehicle while his license is suspended and operating at an unreasonable speed. Court date is Nov. 8. • Michael A. Simons, 30, of 432 W. Middle Tpk. who was charged with operating while his license and registration are suspended. Court date is Nov. 8. • Steven R. LaForest, 21, of 801, Queens Court, was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol. Court date is Nov. 15. • Donald E. Pee, 25, of Hartford who was charged with breach of the peace. Court date is Nov. 21.

Bus will go to 'Cabaret'

The Manchester Arts Council will sponsor a bus for senior citizens to the Little Theatre of Manchester's performance of "Cabaret" Friday, Nov. 11, at East Catholic High School.

The bus will carry passengers from Mayfair Gardens, Westhill Gardens and Charles Apartments. Senior citizens who are interested in attending should contact Diane Wicks of the Manchester Department of Human Services at 649-5281, extension 285, by Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Court shifts cases

A new schedule for Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford is designed to relieve crowding and long waits for defendants and witnesses. It goes into effect Nov. 14. Mondays, East Hartford and Manchester police cases will be heard beginning at 10 a.m. Glastonbury, South Windsor, Marlborough and state police cases at 2 p.m. Tuesdays cases which have been continued will be heard at 10 a.m. Court trials and probable cause hearings will be held at 2 p.m.

Nutrition is subject of school assembly

Martin School today held a kick-off assembly which was the first in a series of nutrition programs. Guest speaker at the assembly was Mrs. Mary Upping, Manchester's school cafeteria director. Films on nutrition were shown to all grades and Mrs. Upping answered students' questions. Wednesday, the fifth grades at Martin will have a snack, tasting party. Class members will bring in samples of snacks and will explain their nutrition value. Students will check the taste and value of each snack on a rating sheet. The school has planned these and other programs as one of the schools educational goals for the year — nutrition.

Town opens bids for walk project

The Town of Manchester this morning opened bids for sidewalk work along three streets in the Frances Dr. area. The bids are the first opened for projects that will be paid for with federal Public Works Employment Act funds.

The act provides funding to selected projects that can be started within a 90-day period. Manchester received grants for three projects — $79,000 for sidewalk repairs, $75,000 for police station renovations and $245,000 for Thompson Rd. drainage work.

Only part of the total sidewalk work was included in the bids opened today. The apparent low bidder is Aleria & Sons of East Hartford, which submitted a price of $216,556.50.

Only one other firm — N. Cardillo & Sons of Newington — submitted a bid. Its price is $225,405. Both firms said that work would be started by Dec. 8, the end of the 90-day period for starting work. Both firms also listed minority-owned companies that would receive ten percent of the contract, which is also required by the federal program.

Aleria listed two Hartford firms, Patrick Construction Co. and Lee Jackson Construction Co., as the minority firms it would use for the work.

The body might be Hoffa's because it contained extensive and expensive gold inlays and fillings which Jennings said. Hoffa's son told him his father had.

Teachers protest

TRUMBULL (UPI) — Public school teachers have started a limited job action to protest the town council's rejection of a proposed three-year contract that took 15 months to negotiate. The 432 teachers affected by the Tuesday rejection, voted in June to authorize a strike, but Wednesday instead decided to not participate in extracurricular activities.

Jennings told the Philadelphia Inquirer that the body discovered near Honesdale, Pa. by a turkey hunter, is that of a white male, about 55 to 60 years old.

The former Teamsters Union president disappeared July 30, 1975. He was 62 at the time. The remains were found stuffed into two plastic bags and hidden in thick underbrush, the Inquirer said.

But FBI sources in New York and Detroit said they were all but certain the body was not Hoffa's. FBI spokesmen said the autopsy was being checked out as a routine matter.

Wayne County, Pa., Coroner Robert Jennings was in New York today awaiting word on the outcome of the examination. Jennings said authorities suspect

Trooper may get bravery citation

A Manchester resident who is a Connecticut state trooper has been named for a departmental bravery citation for helping to save the lives of three persons in a burning vehicle.

Trooper Donald Simmons was one of two Colchester barracks state troopers involved in the same incident who are being recommended for the department's second highest award.

Simmons and another trooper were patrolling in separate cruisers near I-84 in Manchester Oct. 7 about 5:50 p.m. when Simmons saw a burning car up against a rocky ledge.

Simmons radioed the other trooper for help and the two then tried to push the burning car up enough so that the other trooper could remove one occupant, a male, to safety.

Simmons said the burning car's gasoline tank exploded and he had to move his cruiser away from the immediate area, but moved it back again after the explosion.

The two troopers, aided by a bus driver, were then able to drag two more men from the flaming car. The bus driver had been stopped by the other trooper in a speed check and asked to follow the trooper to the emergency scene.

Police said no one was critically injured in the accident. The car had burst into flames when it crashed against the rock ledge, Simmons said.

He said his cruiser came through the incident with just a few scratches. Simmons has been with the Colchester barracks 14 years. Before that, he worked with U.S. Army intelligence for two years. He and his wife have two children.

Case shifted

HARTFORD (UPI) — The case of a 17-year-old Hartford youth, charged in the shooting and attempted robbery of a Connecticut Transit Bus driver, has been transferred from Juvenile Court to Hartford Superior Court.

A warrant for the arrest of Quinton M. Starks was issued Thursday. A second juvenile, 15, has been named as a participant in the Sept. 27 shooting of Miles R. Spittstoesser, 62, of Newington. The shooting occurred about 10:10 p.m. in Hartford while the driver sat talking with a friend inside the bus at the end of one of its routes.

Vernon starts plan to fix lake area roads

By BARBARA RICHMOND
Herald Reporter

The residents of Middle Bolton Lake for many years have been asking the town to improve their roads so they can be accepted and serviced by the town. Thursday afternoon a group of these residents met with Mayor Thomas Benoit and Town Engineer Leonard Sczesny to go over plans for a survey being conducted as a first step toward making these roads acceptable.

PZC okays subdivision

The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) has granted Thomas McLaughlin permission for a four-lot subdivision on Flinders Rd. opposite Plains Rd. with the stipulation that lots be developed on the property line and road to be located to the town. McLaughlin has cleared and graded the land to improve the sightline onto the road.

Club age minimum lowered

One definition of the word "boor" is small farmer. The first white settlers of South Africa — who arrived in the early 17th century — were called Boers because they were Dutch small farmers. He said too much time is lost operating out of two different locations. Another thing that bothers him is the fact that he does all of the purchasing for public works and he has no central spot to store the items and therefore can't buy items in bulk.

Gordie the marvel

Call him whatever you want, what you did when he came to Hartford with Houston in enemy colors or what you do now regarding the green and white of the New England Whalers, but Gordie Howe is a marvel.

He's a 49-year-old operating with the speed and enthusiasm of a 21-year-old rookie.

The all-time great, who was playing professional hockey before many of the current pro skaters were born, is a treat to watch on the ice with the World Hockey Association Whalers.

He seems to be always in the right place at the right time. His presence centers the club's No. 1 line with Tom Webster and Mike Antonovich on the wings could very well be the best in the WHA.

Hockey fans in these parts are afforded an opportunity to see the great Gordie and Co. in action on a frequent basis at the Hartford Civic Center.

He's no longer mean as in younger days with the Detroit Red Wings in the National League when he piled up over 1,400 in penalty minutes but he has the savvy and strength to keep opposing players from taking cheap shots at his frame.

Saturday night Howe will go against his former Houston club at Hartford and it could be a royal battle. The Aeros tried to do a job on the Howes, father and sons, Mark and Gordie, in Houston last season. The Whalers came off the ice as a winner.

Success seems to follow Gordie Howe and the Whalers are hopeful that he hasn't lost any of his magic in this line.

Crowds help

Sitting half naked in a far corner of the home team dressing room Tuesday night at the Hartford Civic Center, Dave Cowens offered his views on the trials and tribulations of the Boston Celtics to date.

"It's tough to open on the road, especially when you have to play before hostile crowds," Cowens reflected after he helped Boston win its first game of the season after three setbacks with a 19-point showing in a 110-103 victory against Atlanta.

"There's nothing like playing at home with the crowd behind you. It's great to have fan support, especially during games in which you are trailing. On the road this season, the crowds have been against us from the start. Tonight, it was different and we played better."

Junior high sports

BRANET
Hunting girls' cross country team blanked Vernon, 15-50, but was worn up on the short end of a 22-34 score.

On the distaff side, Mara Walrath won with a 12:30 clocking for 1.9 mile layout. Stearns Michelle Maffucci, Sue Casquette, Mary Markham and Beth White took the next four placements. Jeanie Murphy was seventh, Cathy Decker eighth and Linda Wagoner 10th for the Bears.

Vernon took the top three places on the boys' side. Harry Veal was fourth for Bennett, Dan Kibbie fifth, Tom Gallant seventh, Rick Danforth eighth, John Lautenschach ninth and Pete Phelan 10th.

Soccer

HILLING
Hilling's varsity soccer team topped Timothy Edwards of South Windsor, 3-1, yesterday at the Rams' field.

Edwards got on the board first but Hilling, putting together one of its finest efforts of the year, knotted it on a goal by Jim Voland assisted by Alex Britzell. The tally came with 26 seconds left in the first half.

Voland assisted by Doug Luck made it 2-1 and Andy Brown with an unassisted tally closed it out for the Rams.

The entire backfield led by the goalie topped the strong defensive effort.

Hilling, 4-2, next sees action Saturday morning at 10 against cross-town Bennett at Mt. Nebo.

WYAND
Webb Junior High trounced Bennett, 2-0, with goals in the first and third periods yesterday. Scott Cheney, John Hedlund and Chris Carmel played well for the losers.

Eagle booters nip Coventry

Mark Marciano's 10th goal of the season proved to be the difference as East Catholic upset Coventry, 2-1, in soccer action yesterday at Cougar Field.

Fred Nassiff took a chip from Harry Carr and fired the ball to the far post beating the Coventry goalie at the 17-minute mark of the first half. Ken Goodale, however, knotted it for the Patriots before the end of the half.

Nassiff, in the second half, sent a through pass to Marciano. He gathered it in and beat the keeper for the game-winner. East is now 3-7-2 for the season while Coventry slips to 7-5-1.

"It was fantastic," exclaimed East Coach Tom Mallin, "It was total team effort and a lot of individual and team pride. A win against Coventry is like a win against UConn for us."

"It was the last chance for our seniors to ever defeat Coventry," he continued, "and under their leadership the job was accomplished."

East outshot Coventry, 21-18, with Eagle goalie Don Martin making nine saves.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yogi Berra has sat down and thought it over.

He's not announcing his decision to the world at large because he's light-lipped about things like that, but this is what it is:

He'll take the Atlanta manager's job, providing the price is right and Hank Aaron isn't whistling Dixie when he says he's perfectly happy with the job he has now and doesn't want any part of managing the Braves.

Bill Lucas, the Braves' Director of Player Personnel, took the first step toward bringing Berra to Atlanta Thursday by asking the world champion Yankee for permission to talk with Yogi.

Lucas spoke with Yankee President Gabe Paul, and as long as he was asking permission to negotiate with Berra, he felt there was no harm asking about Bobby Cox, another of the Yankees' coaches, as well.

"We gave our permission for him to talk with both of them," says Paul. "Only as manager, though, not as a coach."

George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' principal owner, wouldn't like to see Berra leave.

"I like Yogi," he says. "I'd hate to lose him, but if that's what he wants, then that's what I want for him."

Steinbrenner means it. Aaron enters the picture this way: His name first came up as a possible manager of the Braves when he was zinging in on Babe Ruth's all-time home run record three years ago. At the time, he generated something of a stir by saying "nobody ever so much as came and talked to me about it."

Aaron now is a vice president with the Braves and travels in some high circles. On Thursday, for example, he was Jimmy Carter's guest at the White House. His official title with the Braves is Director of Player

Bad situation
A bad situation getting worse. And it won't get much better, not the way things have been going.

Manchester High football is in the doldrums. No question. But what appears on the surface is much more underneath, especially after some facts came to light recently.

It seems before the Indians' most recent outing the coaching staff had a checkup last Friday. Some parents, it seems, told the coaches, "yes, John or Joe or Bill or whoever was home." On the contrary, however, they were benched against Westchester.

Also, it seems, one certain player ran afoul of the law and was arrested. He was suspended for two games.

But, his father got a lawyer, it was reported, and threatened to sue the school. The case, which probably would've been upheld, was based on a U.S. Supreme Court ruling a few years ago in regards to double jeopardy.

The point, however, in both situations is that the coaching staff instead of getting support ran into opposition. There is no way in the world you can get discipline and motivate youngsters without support.

It's a question of priorities and what's happening is parents, in isolated cases, are covering up. It's like spinning your wheels on ice.

There are other items. Players, when left on their own, were "borrowing" equipment from others not informing them of the fact.

Another item. The football team must be off the practice field no later than 5:30 every night. It's a high school regimen here, nowhere else it's believed. It was suggested that practice begin early, so the repetition needed could be undertaken, but that was futile.

Some players are trying very hard. But not enough. That's been borne out by the films.

It won't get better. Not until some needed, not obstacles, is given. Maybe what Manchester High needs is Gil Thorpe.

Berra would take over Braves' job

By Len Auster

Development and in that capacity he gets to work with their young players, something he thoroughly enjoys.

Bill Lucas is Aaron's former brother-in-law, and when the two men talked some time ago about whether Aaron ever would be interested in managing the Braves, the all-time home run king said the job didn't appeal to him at all.

Now Aaron says he would be willing to consider managing the Braves should the directors ask him to take the job left vacant by Dave Bristol's dismissal.

"I'd like to see him do it," said Yogi. "I'd hate to lose him, but if that's what he wants, then that's what I want for him."

Double triumph for MHS girls

Sweeping to a pair of easy victories yesterday was Manchester High girls' cross country team. The Indians ran their winning streak to eighth with a 15-50 triumph over Hartford Public and 16-45 decision over Bulkeley at Center Springs Park.

Coach Phil Blanchette's crew will now prepare for Thursday's state Class LL Championship Meet at Rockledge Country Club in West Hartford. Race time is 1:30. The Silk Toppers, 10-2, had their top four finishers within 20 seconds of each other and the top five almost within a minute.

Sophomore Lynne Wright took top honors with a 16:40 clocking for the 2.25 mile layout. The course record is 15:50. Kate Hennessy was second at

East swimmers relax in outsourcing Bulkeley

Juggling the lineup, East Catholic girls' swimming team registered a relaxed 88-77 triumph over Bulkeley yesterday at Hartford.

The Eagles, now 5-3 for the campaign, swam unofficially in two events.

Sisters Claire and Kathy Viola took three events for East. Claire capped the 200-yard individual medley and 100-yard butterfly while Kathy was victorious in the 50-yard freestyle.

Kelli Dakin, Chris Harvey, Jane Price and the 200-yard medley relay team also garnered wins for the Eagles.

Results:
200 medley relay: 1. East (K. Viola, Dakin, Tucker, Price) 2:13.3.
500 free: 1. Messing (B.) 2. Price (E.C.) 3. Sinsigalli (B.) 2:08.8.

Illing gridders triumph

Illing Junior High's football team rolled up 280 yards on offense en route to a 28-14 triumph over East Hartford High's freshmen yesterday at East Hartford.

With Mark Scarito doing the inside work and Ray Cameron outside, Illing, now 4-1, marched down the field 50 yards on its first drive. Paul McCluskey capped the movement with a five-yard scoring jaunt. The extra points were missed.

East Hartford scored on a 50-yard interception return with one minute left in the first half. The extra points were missed.

The second half belonged to Illing. Scarito capped a 70-yard march with a three-yard scoring jaunt and added the extra points to make it 14-0.

On their next offensive series, the Rams drove 60 yards with McCluskey covering the final 10. Scarito added a two-point conversion.

East Hartford added a second score against Illing reserves with the Rams countering with a 25-yard scoring blast by Cameron.

Battered schoolboy gridders in action

By LEN AUSTER

Injuries could play a role in how the local gridiron elevens fair Saturday.

Manchester will host revitalized Sunbury High at Memorial Field without three of its top defensive linemen. Cross-town East Catholic travels to Avon High with one of its top pass receivers a doubtful performer.

Both are slated for 1:30 starts.

Manchester Coach Jack Holik reported tackle Dave Marshall and Dave Edwards and nose guard Bill Stokes won't be in the lineup. This trio led the Indians' best defensive effort two weeks ago and will be sorely missed.

Offensively the blocking must get straightened out if Manchester wants to break into the win column. The locals are 0-5 while Sunbury bouncing back from a disastrous 7-6 campaign 3-2 in the league and 4-2 overall. The Trojans won only one last year, that over Manchester.

East, 1-5, relies on its passing attack but wide receiver Mike Freiheit was banged up last week and is highly doubtful. He handled in 12 against the Falcons and has latched onto 33 aerials in all.

Without his quarterback Tony Pachas is going to have to look in Dave Blake's direction more with Coach John LaFontana also hoping to get his ground attack going. Avon also sports a 1-5 record.

Clifford sets pace for East harriers

East Catholic closed out its dual schedule with a 25-31 cross country triumph over South Catholic yesterday at Goodwin Park in Hartford.

The Eagles, 6-2, were led again by sophomore John Clifford who turned in a 13:46 clocking for the 2.6 mile layout. Teammate Rick Walsh was right behind in second place at 14:13.

Dave Kittredge was fifth for East with Jim Kane. Pete Kiro and Kevin Sheehan taking eighth thru 10th spots.

The team has trained extremely hard the last 10 days in preparation for Monday's sectionals, noted East Coach Jack Hall. "I believe they'll be stronger physically Monday than any other time this year."

Results: 1. Clifford (E.C.) 13:46 for 2.6 miles. 2. Walsh (E.C.) 1. Hallisey (S.) 4. Kelly (S.). 5. Kittredge (E.C.). 6. Braun (S.). 7. Buchalski (S.). 9. Kane (E.C.). 10. Kiro (E.C.).

ATLANTA (UPI) — Home run king Hank Aaron says he's available to manage the Atlanta Braves. If owner Ted Turner thinks he'd be the right man to "get the Braves back to where they should be,"

reports that Aaron was under consideration for the manager's job. "I don't know who offered it to me," he said.

The Atlanta Journal reported Thursday if Aaron wants the job, it is his hard to do, the newspaper said, former Yankee great Yogi Berra was next in line.

"I'm always willing to listen," Berra said Wednesday when asked about the possibility of managing the Braves. "But I haven't heard anything yet. I might want to manage again."

Berra, 52, led the New York Yankees to the American League pennant in 1964 only to be fired after losing the World Series to St. Louis. He also pitched New York Mets to the National League pennant in 1973, but lost to the Oakland A's in the World Series. He was fired late in the 1975 season.

Braves veteran knuckleball pitcher Phil Niekro has also pitched for the Braves' managing job.

Patriots serious for Jets this time

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — This time, the New England Patriots are taking the New York Jets more seriously.

After the upstart Jets tipped the favored Patriots, 30-27, in New York early this month, many observers said New England had taken its opponent too lightly and had not prepared to win.

"The players may have taken the Jets lightly last time, I don't know," said Patriots' Coach Chuck Fairbanks. "We shouldn't this time."

The New England players, in fact, are chomping at their chins in anticipation of the game Sunday, which will be blacked out on Boston-area television because 456 tickets remain to be sold.

"We've got to be up for everybody now and we obviously want to win," said defensive end Julius Adams, who helped the Patriots limit the Baltimore Colts to 16 yards in total offense last weekend. "But we want revenge."

"Look, when the Jets beat us in Shea Stadium, they acted like it was the Super Bowl — people

Now That You've Got Your Home...

When you become the owner of a used or new home, you agreed in your mortgage to keep the property in good condition. This is only common sense. Why sacrifice to buy an expensive house and then allow it to lose value through neglect? Regularly put aside an amount for the fact that maintenance costs will vary from year to year. A house is a complicated mechanism and you can't expect to know how to keep everything in good working order. If you are handy with tools, you may be able to do some of the repair and improvement work. But don't tamper with expensive equipment and appliances unless you are sure that you know what you are doing. You may void the warranty on such equipment if you attempt to do repairs yourself. When the plumbing, electric, or heating system needs more than minor repair, it's time to call in an expert.

Keep all the guarantees, service agreements, and instructions that come with your various appliances in one safe place. Read the instructions carefully before you operate any appliance. If anything goes wrong that you cannot correct, call the local utility company or the servicing agent.

Figuring Your Paint Order

For a rough estimate, you can figure the amount of paint you need for flat surfaces by simply multiplying the height (or length) times the width and dividing the result into the coverage estimate on the label. If, for example, you wish to paint a room which has 416 square feet of wall area, a gallon of paint advertising as covering 500 square feet will be adequate for one coat. Second coats generally require less paint.

But remember that these are average estimates of coverage. Some surfaces are more absorbent than others, and your paint dealer can give you the benefit of his experience in tailoring an estimate to the particular surface you are going to be covering. Be ready to provide him with extra measurements of the areas to be covered.

Your dealer will also be able to advise you about the number of coats that will be required for different surfaces and different types of paint. Don't buy until you and the dealer have reached agreement on the approximate amount of paint. Thinner, primer and other supplies you may need. If a particular dealer is lacking in patience in reaching this agreement, find another dealer.

Viewing the Hockanum River

Studying the serene but filthy Hockanum River in East Hartford are 20-year-old local residents. Eric DeMonte, left, of 3 Cannon Rd. said, "We both own dogs that swim. But we won't let them in the river because when they come out, they stink and we have to give them baths." Joe Thibodeau of 20 Cannon Rd. said, "The kids try to catch fish. But there's nothing there." The town has recently won approval to pay a 41-man crew to clean up town streams. They may get to the Hockanum before the funds run out. (Photo by Dick Paradisi)

Damaschi recalls some rough times

Court shifts cases

A new schedule for Common Pleas Court 12 in East Hartford is designed to relieve crowding and long waits for defendants and witnesses. It goes into effect Nov. 14.

Mondays, East Hartford and Manchester police cases will be heard beginning at 10 a.m. Glastonbury, South Windsor, Marlborough and state police cases at 2 p.m.

Tuesdays cases which have been continued will be heard at 10 a.m. Court trials and probable case hearings will be held at 2 p.m.

Town Hall fiasco

Damaschi became interested in politics by first becoming interested in emergency medical training (EMT).

He became interested in EMT in 1973 because of new federal safety laws. Mortuary Bros. needed to have people trained in first aid on the premises. Damaschi took an EMT course then offered at Mount Sinai Hospital in Hartford. With him in the course were East Hartford fire fighters Mike Coppinger and Paul Campbell who are now paramedics on the force. Police Officer Bob Rice also took the course.

Damaschi and others in town became convinced the town needed an emergency medical service program similar to the Los Angeles one made popular on the TV show "Emergency." They took the ideas to the Town Council and the mayor.

"I attended my first Town Council meeting then," he said. "It was a fiasco, a three-ring circus. It was rife with partisan politics."

"The more I saw, the more I didn't like."

He soon after joined the Republican Town Committee.

He worked for other Republicans and then got into a race of his own in 1975. He sought a seat on the council that fall but lost.

After the election, Damaschi was appointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals and to the town Emergency Medical Services Committee.

About his work on the ZBA, Damaschi said, "I don't play politics with it. James Mirabile (Republican Town Committee chairman) told me I didn't have to answer to anybody. I look into each matter and try to objectively make my own decision."

He noted he consistently voted against the granting of a variance to

Mock vote gives GOP one winner

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

A Republican beat a Democrat for the first time in a mock election held at East Hartford High School Wednesday.

Mrs. Esther Clarke, leader of the GOP minority on the Town Council, not only held onto her seat by topping the rest of the Republican ticket, she also garnered more E.H.S. votes than two Democrats.

The nine council seat winners among the 12 candidates by vote totals were: George Dagon (D), 1043; William Dailey Jr. (D), 976; David Killian (D), 967; Dick Torpey (D), 927; Mrs. Clarke (R), 838; Harry Egazarian (D), 836; Robert Ryan (R), 801; Henry Genga (D), 785; and James Cordier (R), 738.

The losing three were: John Finnegan (incumbent R), 726; Ronald Kopak (R), 509; and John Krysakowski (R), 455.

Mayor Richard Blackstone (D) won his fifth term over Anthony Donatelli (R) by 904-540. The E.H.S. students surprised no one by this result except for the large margin.

Treasurer Donald Bates (D) kept the post he was appointed to in 1976 by beating Robert Damaschi by 890-524.

Nicholas Jackson, chairman of the E.H.S. social studies department, said, "This is the first time I can remember a Republican beating anyone on the Democratic side of the scale."

He said the town elections of the past have closely reflected the E.H.S. mock elections. Talk in town had it that the whole Democratic slate would easily sweep the Republican slate as it has for the past four elections, he said.

There were no winner-loser surprises here in the E.H.S. mock election. But the vote totals were much closer than expected.

There is a two-part election for the Board of Education this year. Three candidates from each party are seeking five board seats, each one with a four-year term.

Also, one member of each party is seeking an unexpired term of two years on the board.

In the first part, the winners by vote were: Dorothy Carey (D), 948; Richard Daley (D), 947; Gerry Ingallina (D), 858; Kenneth Carrier (R), 812; and Joseph Visiglio (R), 777. The one loser was Dr. Richard Veltri (incumbent Republican), 743.

In the other part of the board election, Mrs. Joan Flannery (D) won the seat over Mrs. Elizabeth Whitford (R) as expected but only by 852-851.

Jackson said nearly 85 percent of the E.H.S. total student body of about 1,600 voted.

"The mock election has always run true to form," he said. "It will be interesting to see the results from the Nov. 8 elections."

Still loose

SOMERS (UPI) — An escapee from the maximum security prison in Somers has eluded police and prison guards using dogs to track him for two days.

Byron Shields, 27, of East Hartford, escaped Wednesday and became the first maximum-security prisoner to escape from the institution since 1974. Shields was serving a 3-to-8 sentence for burglary and larceny, police said. Prison officials said Shields is a white male, 5-foot-7, has blond hair and weighs 150 pounds. He said he does not have a history of violence.
