Soviets offer ban on nuclear bombs

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in a concession to the U.S. position, today offered a ban on all peaceful and military nuclear explosions and proposed an end to production of nuclear weapons by all nations.

Brezhnev's wide-ranging, 90-minute speech was made before the top Soviet leaders and visiting dignitaries at functions marking the start of celebrations of the 60th anniversary of the Nov. 7 Russian Revolution.

The 71-year-old Soviet leader said that in the interests of reaching a nuclear test ban treaty with the United States, he was giving up Soviet demands that peaceful nuclear explosions be exempted from any ban.

The United States has insisted that a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty should ban both military and peaceful use of nuclear explosions. "We state that we are prepared to reach agreement on a moratorium covering nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes along with a ban on all nuclear weapon tests for a definite period," Brezhnev said.

Western diplomatic sources said Brezhnev's offer will "make a difference" in the test ban talks, but cautioned, "How much of a difference remains to be seen ... It will have to be spelled out exactly what is meant."

The Soviet leader said his proposed ban on the manufacture of new nuclear weapons, which he labeled "a radical step," should apply to all nuclear armaments — atomic, hydrogen or neutron bombs or missiles.

His remarks were tied to a strongly worded section urging both the United States and the Soviet Union to stop seeking superiority in nuclear weaponry.

"We don't want to violate the approximate parity between East and West and Central Europe, between the Soviet Union and the United States. But in return we demand that nobody else tries to violate it in its favor."

In another section of his nationally televised speech, Brezhnev announced the 1977 grain harvest totaled only 194 million tons — some 29 million tons below the 1976 record and considerably lower than the 206 million tons Western experts had expected.

Brezhnev spoke at the Palace of Congresses to the Communist party's Central Committee, the national parliament, the Russian Federation parliament and 123 foreign Communist delegations.

AUGUSTA, Maine — The small towns that surround Loring Air Force Base face a bleak future of 22 percent unemployment, housing vacancies, business closings and a $140 million loss in retail sales if proposed cuts are made at the base, the Air Force says. An 80 percent reduction is planned at Loring, the closest domestic base to Russia.

CONCORD, N.H. — About 1,500 anti-nuclear demonstrators arrested at the Seabrook nuclear power plant don't deny they trespassed illegally. But they will defend their action by using New Hampshire's "competing harms" law, claiming the trespassing was necessary to prevent greater harm to mankind.

Teamster chief says attorney general lied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters union President Frank Fitzsimmons said today former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst was not telling the truth about their relationship prior to the award of a $23 million union insurance contract to an alleged swindler Kleindienst represented.

"The only thing I can say is Mr. Kleindienst has a very large imagination," Fitzsimmons told the Senate investigations subcommittee probing the alleged misuse of more than $13 million in Teamsters funds.

Kleindienst testified Tuesday he hoped his golfing and gin rummy relationship with Fitzsimmons would help the contract bid by a firm affiliated with alleged swindler Joseph Hauser. The firm later got the contract.

Hauser allegedly converted more than $7 million from the Teamsters union for his own use. Overall, he is alleged to have misused more than $13 million from 20 local unions in eight states.

Under questioning by acting subcommittee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Fitzsimmons disputed point after point in Kleindienst's testimony that he tried to use his influence with the labor leader to get the contract for client Hauser.

Fitzsimmons said he neither offered nor provided help and even denied talking with Kleindienst on several occasions Kleindienst referred to.

When asked if he told the former attorney general that his client's company was going to get the contract in April 1976, Fitzsimmons said:

"It is untrue. If Mr. Kleindienst has said this, he has made an untrue statement."

To each of a series of related questions, Fitzsimmons said, "I never had such a conversation with Mr. Kleindienst."

In response to Kleindienst's assertion that if he ever contacted reputed mobster Allen Dorfman regarding the contract it would have been at Fitzsimmons' bidding, the labor leader replied:

"The only thing I can say is Mr. Kleindienst has a very large imagination."

Kleindienst and other witnesses have said he and Fitzsimmons had a close social relationship. But Fitzsimmons today indicated Kleindienst may have been exaggerating.

"I never said he was a great personal friend," Kleindienst testified.

Town seeks Buckland sewer OK

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Jay Giles, Manchester's director of public works, has sent a letter to the Eighth Utilities District that asks for permission to install sewers for the proposed town industrial park in Buckland.

The sewer installation would be north of Middle Turnpike. According to Special Act 200, any sewer installation north of that road requires approval of the district's legislative body, which is the voters of the district. The sewers are needed for the proposed park.

The park is planned for a 393-acre site in Buckland and would include the two-million-square-foot J.C. Penney Co. catalog distribution center.

The trial of a court case affecting the park was completed last month. Judge T. Clark Hull, who presided at the trial, is not expected to issue a ruling until at least mid-December. There will be no work on development of the park until after the judge's decision is handed down, if the decision is favorable.

Giles did not have an estimate Monday on how much footage of sewer line would be required.

He did say, however, that the proposed installation would begin on New State Road at the Hockanum River. The line would go along New State Road and across open land to Adams Street. It would then travel along Adams Street to Tolland Turnpike and west on Tolland Turnpike to the industrial park site.

Giles said that the town is not requesting sewer service for the entire Buckland section. The town is seeking to provide sewer service to abutting property owners along the proposed installation route, he said.

Installation of the sewer lines within the park would be paid by funds for the industrial park project. Giles said that federal grant money received by the town for sewer installations would pay for work along New State Road and Adams Street.

Tax hike certain—but for whom?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is certain to raise Social Security taxes sharply in the next decade — but whose?

The Senate today was considering a bill putting the increased tax burden much more heavily on employers than employees, breaking the tradition since Social Security began in 1935 that the groups pay equally.

The House last week passed a bill raising Social Security payroll taxes equally for both.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., says the pending Senate version — approved Tuesday by the Senate Finance Committee — is a "soak the employer" scheme, which would add to inflation as increased business costs are passed on to consumers, interfere with employment, and retard recovery from the recession.

He planned a floor fight for equal taxation.

Another fight was possible over how much retirees should be allowed to earn in wages without losing Social Security benefits. At present they may earn $3,000, above which they lose $1 in benefits for each $2 in wages until their entire benefit is lost.

The Senate bill would raise this "earnings limit" to $4,500 next year, $6,000 in 1979, and after that it would rise automatically with national wage levels.

The House voted to remove the limit entirely in 1982 for persons 65 to 72, which would mean they could earn unlimited income and still collect full retirement benefits. The earnings limit does not apply above 72.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., planned to propose the House provision on the Senate floor.

The Senate bill, as sent to the floor, would raise the maximum Social Security tax for an employee from $965 this year to $2,390 in 1987. The employer's maximum tax per worker would go from $965 to $5,287.50. The House bill would make them both $3,024.60 in 1987.

The reason is, that under the Senate bill the wage base on which an employee's tax is figured rises from the present $16,500 to $33,900 in 1987, while the base on which the employer's tax is figured per worker rises from $16,500 to $50,000 in 1979 and $75,000 in 1985.

TBC approves police station plans

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

The Town Building Committee Tuesday night approved plans for the first phase of the expansion and renovation program at the Manchester Police Department.

The committee accepted the plans and project manual after Architect Richard Lawrence of Lawrence Associates showed and explained the expansion drawings.

The $750,000 renovation project is federally funded. The grant, awarded by a Public Works Employment Act grant, stipulates that project recipients begin work within 90 days from the time the grant was awarded. The deadline for starting construction is Dec. 11.

Because of the short time limit, Lawrence said that he has asked that bids be in by 11 a.m. on Nov. 17.

The first phase will include concrete footings and foundations and a jack hole for the elevator which will be installed in the second construction phase.

Among the items included in alterations to the existing building will be a ramp entrance for the handicapped. The elevator will also make some areas of the building more accessible to the handicapped.

There will be a basement and two-floor addition to the rear of the existing building. The basement area will include 10 new cells—eight for males and two for females—and a holding area where several prisoners can be held at one time while waiting for processing. There will be two shower rooms.

Also in the basement will be a paint storage area. Deputy Police Chief Richard Sartor said that the police department buys hundreds of five-gallon paint cans every year for highway painting jobs and there is currently no convenient storage space for them.

The new unit is designed with protective measures for cell occupants as well as police personnel. Smoke detectors and sprinkler heads in the corridors as well as remote controlled cell locks will help to assure the safety of those in the building in case of fire. Locks with keys will not be used, Sartor said. The new locks cost $800 apiece.

On the top floor will be a large multipurpose room to be used for physical fitness, training programs, and a dormitory. There will be a folding partition which can divide the room so that more than one activity can take place at one time.

Lawrence said the second construction phase would include updating and upgrading of the lighting quality in the existing building, window replacements, and a new roof.

Lawrence told the committee that work on the addition and alterations to the Washington School will begin as soon as the debris from the razed recreation building is removed which should be any time. The footings and foundation will be the first construction done. Lawrence said the steel probably wouldn't arrive before January.

"Essentially, the job is going according to schedule," Lawrence said. He said that Custom Concept Builders, the Simsbury contractor who has the job, hopes to get all the footings in this fall.

In other business, the committee decided to meet the same night as the next Board of Education meeting so that they could both discuss alteration plans for Bentley School.

The Town Building Committee will meet with Richard Mankey of Mankey Associates, architect, Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Robertson School. The Board of Education meets at 8 p.m. in the education administration building at 45 N. School St.

Opinion

Congressional payoff

Indicators are that Congress may quietly drop the idea of easing some of its older members out the door with a $3,000-a-year going-away present.

Skipping the arithmetical complications, a representative or senator retiring at the end of the 95th Congress in 1978 with 20 to 32 years service will receive a less-than-spartan pension of $42,880 a year. This is based on 80 per cent of his average salary for his last three years.

Because congressional salaries were boosted to $37,500 earlier this year, however, members who retire in 1980 at the end of the 96th Congress will qualify for a pension based entirely on the higher salary. It works out to $46,000, or a difference of a little over $3,000 a year.

It seems to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. that extending that $3,000 to congressmen retiring next year would help clear out a lot of aging wood in Capitol Hill, and he slipped legislation to that effect through the House. The measure is now before the Senate, where it is beginning to receive "the attention it deserves."

Surprisingly, the idea is supported by that "people's lobbyist," Common Cause, whose president, David Cohen, says it is worth the money to "infuse new blood into the institution." For an organization dedicated to improving the democratic process, this is a rather elitist attitude. What it says is that if the people don't have enough sense to retire a representative or senator who has become a mere timeserver in Congress, then it will have to be done for them.

A corollary assumption is that any congressman who has been around for more than 20 years is an obstacle in the way of progress. We don't think this is necessarily true.

Admittedly, some members of Congress can't be dislodged by anything short of death or dynamite. It is exceedingly difficult for "new blood" to challenge an entrenched incumbent.

But people become entrenched in elective office because the voters put them there and the voters keep them there. This, for better or worse, is democracy.

Of course, any congressman who would feel strapped on a pension of $42,880 a year and who would let himself be "bought" for an extra $3,000 probably deserves to be retired.

But we still think the people ought to do it, not the U.S. Treasury.

'Project Integrity'

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has temporarily halted a computer search designed to ferret out doctors and pharmacists suspected of cheating the Medicaid program.

Since it was launched last April, "Project Integrity" has identified 1,400 doctors and 1,100 druggists, who the department says, are only the most flagrant apparent abusers among a stunning 47,000 whose claims for reimbursements under Medicaid are suspect. And that's only for claims submitted in 1976.

There may not be honor among thieves, but in this instance there unhappily seems to be safety in numbers. As an HEW spokesman put it, the project has been suspended because "it's a question of how many you can prosecute."

Despite the enormous amount of litigation confronting them, however, it is to be hoped that HEW and the Justice Department will proceed vigorously and with the utmost publicity to take action against the 2,500 most flagrant cheaters. The other 44,500 may at least get the message, even if the law cannot eventually catch up with all of them.

Worship experiences

This summer my family took a trip to Penaquid Point lighthouse in Maine. We arrived at high tide, and quickly headed for the rugged rock formations to watch the powerful waves. The rocks were crowded with people of all ages, some standing, some sitting—some oldsters in their folding chairs, some youngsters at the water's edge.

And everyone just stared, entranced, hypnotized by the spell of the sea... watching the waves swell and roll toward them, breaking against the rocks, spraying foam in the air, advancing up over the feet of some daring souls who got too close.

What power and might... what strength and beauty!

You might call it a worship experience.

This is the time of year that excites me most, when nature dons her coat of many colors.

We have some Norwegian maps in front of our house whose leaves don't turn to bright, sunshine yellow till late in the season. They are just passing their peak now. We had a beautiful sight last week when, after all the rain and a heavy frost, their yellow contents poured down in abundance, laying a yellow carpet all around our house.

You might call it a worship experience.

Our civil rights policy

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON—Isn't it thrilling, having all those American businessmen visiting Cuba," said the stylish matron between sips of sherry.

Well—thrilling? I find such chic junkets interesting, and of a certain newsworthiness. But I am not exactly titillated by photos of Yankee capitalists whoping it up with Fidel Castro, who presumably delayed his entrance until he'd washed the latest blood off his hands.

Administration which could raise suspicions.

One quoted, a confidential source who claims that one Ramiro Rivas, also a Panamanian, told him that he was in partnership with Torrijos in trafficking of drugs. Another has him linked with one Frank Marshall Jimenez in the same kind of business.

Although the evidence is skimpy at best, it was enough for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to ask Attorney General Griffin Bell to explain what has been done to investigate the allegations.

Unless this matter is fully aired, the American people will never accept any agreement with the Republic of Panama which is tainted at the very source by such allegations," Helms wrote to Bell.

Noting that a great deal of heroin and cocaine comes into the United States through Panama, according to a 1973 House subcommittee report, Helms added, "The question of whether General Torrijos and his immediate family condone this trafficking or participate in it is of crucial importance to the American people."

Although it is perfectly proper for opponents of the treaties to be shocked at the allegations, their more casual about civil rights than we are. Even in the France of "egaliter" cops usually are more equal than trouble-makers, and a defendant is presumed guilty until he proves his innocence.

That is to say, the United States must consider its rights policy on a case-by-case basis. Or, as depicted by Mark L. Schneider, an assistant secretary of state, our tactics involve the particular type of relations the United States has with a given country and the opportunities for leverage and persuasion that these relations afford.

Consider the South Koreans. We need them. The country in effect is an American military base set up against possible aggression by Communist China that could endanger Japan. We can and should try to persuade the Korean rulers to stop pushing people around, but we vitally need to keep them on our side. So we are a touch more polite with them than we might be with, say, Costa Rica.

At the same time, we are sensibly attempting to establish a relationship with Peking that would render that dictatorial regime less likely to start trouble. I could wish that our various emissaries would stop fawning on assorted Chinese galleuters, but I guess we can't have everything.

Has a point
 And Ed Derwinski has a point. It is indeed fashionable in some liberal chic quarters to lambaste right-wing dictatorships while ignoring human rights violations in Communist states. Thus, Cuba and Red China are "in," for reasons that elude me, while rightist Chile is "out."

One is tempted to ask whether Cuba's political jails are more comfortable than those in Chile and South Korea.

In any case, it is foolish to argue that Jimmy Carter's human rights crusade should be employed everywhere. A dictatorship, of course, is simply a dictatorship, but one recalls that when Communism threatened to overrun all Europe, Spain's Francisco Franco, a true blue fascist, was one of the few who made the Reds run on time.

Stinks. Such a discussion must be framed in the context of the facts of international life. Except for Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries, most of our major allies are revision should have no bearing on the facts. It has to be presumed that supporters, including President Carter, aren't in favor of the drug trade either.

Agreement between nations
 The two Panama Canal treaties — one which turns over operation of the Canal to Panama until the year 2,000 and then turns it over to that country — is an agreement between two nations.

It is not an agreement between Carter and Torrijos and therefore should be judged on what it provides. If it is rejected or sent back for renegotiation, it should be on the basis of the defects in the pact and not on what kind of man Torrijos is.

Certainly not Carter and presumably not Torrijos — although political lives are unpredictable in Central and South America — are going to be in power when the year 2,000 arrives.

So what Torrijos does as a sideline, even if he has one, has no bearing.

But as a maneuver, the flouting of the allegations by the opponents and their demand that Bell open the files on the Panama Connection is good politics.

With the outcome so in doubt, almost anything can tip the balance.

Schools stay open

Wilson Deakin, assistant superintendent of schools, reminded Manchester residents that schools will be open on Election Day, Nov. 8.

Voting does take place in some town schools, but all will be open. In the past, town schools normally have closed for Election Day.

Insurance hearings expand to evenings

HARTFORD (UPI) — An evening session has been planned to allow more Connecticut subscribers to attend public hearings on proposed Blue Cross and Blue Shield rate increases.

State Insurance Commissioner Joseph C. Mike said he added the evening session to give working people a chance to sit in on the hearings and voice their comments.

The increases sought would raise premiums for the Century Contract an average of 25.7 percent. This coverage for physicians fees affects 1.1 million residents.

An 8.9 percent increase is being sought for premiums in the Blue Cross small group programs that cover 360,000 persons.

The Blue Cross 65 program would rise 15 percent for 212,000 subscribers and the premiums for some 130,000 direct payment contracts would be raised over-all by 9.1 percent.

The night session will begin at 7 p.m. next Monday in the Judiciary Room on the third floor of the state Capitol.

Daytime hearings that day are scheduled between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 90 Washington Street, Hartford, in the Human Rights and Opportunities Commission hearing room.

Yule workshop set

The Manchester Recreation Department Fall Cultural Program is offering a four-week Christmas Craft Workshop.

The class will meet on Tuesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., beginning Nov. 8. There will be no class during the week of Thanksgiving.

Registration will be Wednesday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Anyone wishing to register may contact the Arts Building or call 643-8795.

Miss DeLeo elected to panel of institute

Miss Gertrude DeLeo of Manchester was elected recently to the executive committee of the Connecticut Institute of the Blind in Hartford.

An alumna of the Oak Hill School, conducted by the institute, Miss DeLeo retired in 1974 after teaching music for 29 years at Mansfield State Training School. She has been blind since she was one year old — the result of an illness.

The Oak Hill School has reorganized its administration and drafted new plans in connection with a new philosophy relating to the education of handicapped children.

According to Dr. Larry Guldager, superintendent of Oak Hill School, recent legislation dictates that blind children as well as many other children with special needs attend public schools. That fact will determine what kind of services Oak Hill School will deliver in the next 10 years, Guldager said.

Program plans to be implemented in this school year include a 12-month program for certain children instead of the traditional 10-month program, two shifts of professional teaching staff, in order to provide 18 hours of daily training, respite care, community involved training, a comprehensive therapy program, a program to guarantee a place to live and a place to work after graduation from Oak Hill, and comprehensive and evaluative medical services.

Helms goes after Torrijos

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On both sides, the fight over ratification of the Panama Canal treaties has become a no-holds-barred brawl.

Even the old Duke — John Wayne — has saddled up one more time to ride into battle on the side of the administration.

The lines are being drawn as the two sides — months in advance of a Senate vote — seek to fire grassroots support around the country.

Into this already delicate political situation, some opponents of the pact have injected a completely alien factor — the moral character of Panamanian strongman Omar Torrijos.

The allegations surfaced by high-ranking conservatives are that Torrijos and members of his family are multi-kilo deep in drug trafficking.

Although the evidence is skimpy at best, it was enough for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to ask Attorney General Griffin Bell to explain what has been done to investigate the allegations.

Unless this matter is fully aired, the American people will never accept any agreement with the Republic of Panama which is tainted at the very source by such allegations," Helms wrote to Bell.

Noting that a great deal of heroin and cocaine comes into the United States through Panama, according to a 1973 House subcommittee report, Helms added, "The question of whether General Torrijos and his immediate family condone this trafficking or participate in it is of crucial importance to the American people."

Conglomerates spin off companies they gobbled

NEW YORK (UPI) — The gobbling up of companies by conglomerates in the dizzy 1960s has reversed — and the resulting wave of spin-offs of these same companies is creating a lot of business for commercial finance houses.

Monroe R. Lazere, chairman of the National Commercial Finance Conference, said the spin-offs reflect the inability of conglomerates to operate the acquired small firms as profitably as the former owners. In fact, in many cases it is the former owners who are buying the businesses back.

And increasingly, Lazere said the commercial finance houses are the only lending institutions seriously interested in lending money to small business.

He said frequently — especially with the uncertain economic outlook — the commercial banks won't even talk to the small businessman unless the bank happens to have a commercial finance subsidiary or division.

"Without commercial finance houses, whose loan volume will exceed $45 billion this year, the funding outlook for small business would be grim indeed in the current financial climate," Lazere said.

A commercial finance house is a secured lender that lends to businesses on such collateral as accounts receivable, inventories and plant and equipment. Although they make some rather large loans, they also will lend as little as $50,000. Most of their customers have sales of $1 million to $5 million a year, a few as little as $500,000.

Four years ago, Walter E. Heller Co., a Chicago commercial finance house, enabled Little Baker Laboratories, a maker of quality infant baby food business from Squibb, the pharmaceutical complex. That was a $20 million deal.

Commercial finance houses charge higher interest rates than commercial banks but the interest spread may be less than it appears to be, Lazere said. Commercial finance houses don't require any compensating balance deposits and interest on the loan money actually used each day — loan funds are drawn only as needed.

Many commercial finance houses also are in factoring, the outright purchase of accounts receivable. Business firms traditionally didn't usually resort to factoring if they could get money any other way, but a new system of factoring is used by some big firms that is upgrading it as a method of financing.

Aside from the difference in interest rates and security requirements, the commercial finance house differs from the bank in its overall lending philosophy.

Lazere said it is much more willing than the typical banker to look behind the figures on the loan application — such as management personnel, the products, plant facilities and the small company's as yet unrealized potential for market penetration.

Commercial finance houses also as a rule give more management assistance to their borrowers than banks, Lazere said.

The individual loans are individually tailored and they are made for an enormous variety of goals, Lazere said. For example, loans are made for refinancing, buying out a business, new product development or expansion and diversification.

Soviet SST completes first flight

ALMA ATA, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — The Soviet Union's answer to the Concorde, the new TU-144 supersonic airliner, completed a noisy but otherwise pleasant inaugural passenger flight Tuesday, covering 2,000 miles in under two hours.

The sleek drop-nosed airliner began its Moscow-to-Alma Ata flight with a superpowered takeoff that shoved its 80 passengers sharply back in their seats as the plane lifted off at a steep angle.

The plane, nicknamed the Concoriski, ate up the miles after it hit speeds of over 1,250 mph about 20 minutes after liftoff from a suburban Moscow airport and cleared the more populated capital region.

But it was noisy every inch of the way, worst during the takeoff and continuing even after it was theoretically leaving all sound far behind.

Passengers — most of them journalists and aviation officials — had to shout to make themselves heard by their seatmates in the cramped, powder blue cabin.

At an airport news conference after landing in Alma Ata, the craft's designer Alexei Tupolev, said the high speeds cause the skin of the aircraft to reach temperatures of 248 Farenheit "and we need very strong ventilation with lots of air moving."

He also said the TU-144's four jet engines contributed to the noise problem.

"We are looking into the problem," Tupolev said.

Asked about sonic booms, Tupolev said, "the sonic boom is no different than a thunderclap — so it is no different than nature itself."

Three blue-uniformed Aeroflot stewardesses could barely squeeze their serving carts down the narrow aisle as they dispensed cognac, wine, caviar and roast beef.

The TU-144 began regularly weekly flights on the Moscow-Alma Ata run in December, 1975 — but carried only mail and cargo.

U.S. owes $$$ to business, employees

NEW YORK (UPI) — Uncle Sam owes American business and around 30 million of its employees up to $1.5 billion in Social Security taxes that were collected on excludable sick pay, an expert in payroll tax accounting says.

"It's a legal area that is gray in some spots but so harshly black and white in other respects that it can impose rather fearful contingent liabilities on companies who collect and pay the tax and then forget to file for refunds," says Roy Johnson of PCS Reports, Ltd., of New York.

The $1.5 billion figure, arrived at in a rather complicated way, is based partly on a survey of a sample of big companies indicating that 70 percent of the firms ignore the obligation to do so.

While the law is still being revised through the courts, the present regulations clearly say companies must refund the Social Security tax on legally excludable sick pay to workers even if the company fails to file for the refund before the legal deadline, Johnson said. This liability holds even if the worker fails to make a claim.

Not only is there an opportunity for companies to recover this money for themselves and their employees, there is a legal obligation to do so.

But Marvin Kaufman, a tax expert for Alexander Grant, the accounting firm, said a company with 5,000 workers who make an average $300 a week and who take a week's annual sick leave, could be liable for up to $47,000 a year if it fails to file for the refunds then has to pay the money to its employees.

But in addition to the paperwork involved in filing for the refunds, the whole area is further complicated by the different rules for Social Security tax and income tax on excludable sick pay.

Virtually all pay for days taken off for illness by workers is excludable from Social Security tax. On the other hand, the rules for excluding sick pay from income subject to the income tax are very complex and restrictive.

Gulf Coast pipeline: Mexico's Panama Canal?

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico's planned Gulf Coast pipeline is being turned into a political issue by leftists who are calling the project "Mexico's Panama Canal."

The pipeline, which should be pumping natural gas from Mexico to heat U.S. homes in two years time, is good news for the gas-hungry states — especially after the fuel shortages that resulted from last year's bitter winter.

But critics charge it is a giveaway of Mexico's oil riches and will make this country even more dependent on the United States.

Last May, the state oil company Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) announced it would spend $1.5 billion to build an 80-mile, 48-inch pipeline to carry gas from wells in the Tabasco-Chiapas fields in southeast Mexico to McAllen, Tex.

Pemex said it expected to have one billion cubic feet of surplus gas a day available for export to the United States in 1979, and enough to double that amount in 1981.

Pemex Jorge Diaz Serrano, testified before the Mexican Chamber of Deputies last week to counter critics of the pipeline. He pointed out it will earn Mexico $2 billion a year from gas sales, and he warned that if Mexico does not use fuel exports to finance its development,

Democrats make campaign statements

Coltman
Eleanor Coltman, a Democratic member of the Manchester Board of Education who is seeking re-election, said Monday that the board, under Democratic leadership, has sought to be accountable.

One example of this is the budgeting process, which has been done in the Program Planning Budget format. This method is mandated for use in Connecticut by 1980.

The Manchester Board has used this for its last three budget presentations and, through this method, is able to show what each program in the system costs each year, Mrs. Coltman said.

Another example of accountability is the testing programs to determine how effective the learning process is in Manchester.

She credited Dr. Alfred Tychsen, assistant superintendent of schools, and said, "Hard data are being gained through the total testing effort to prove the board and the administration are willing and ready to stand accountable for your children's learning and for the use of your tax dollars."

In another statement Mrs. Coltman lauded cooperation between the school system, the Youth Services Bureau and the Police Department.

"Staffs of all three earnestly work to help and divert troubled youth. Those young people who potentially may become involved with the criminal justice system are given full protection of their rights under the Constitution of the United States and the laws of Connecticut at the same time that many kinds of efforts are made to try to prevent repetition of anti-social and potentially criminal behavior," she said.

"Alternative education programs are more likely to produce results beneficial not only to the individual but also to the community than is punishment alone."

"Restitution and rehabilitation rather than suspension or expulsion (which moves the problem right back into the total community) should be the goal, Mrs. Coltman said.

Connors
Thomas Connors, a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said that he will seek to assign additional zoning enforcement officers if he is elected to the board.

He said that the base of Manchester's reputation as "The City of Villages Charm" comes from zoning laws that look at social needs, economic growth and a sense of aesthetics.

He said that the pressure of economic growth can sometimes overcome social needs and aesthetics.

"To assure Manchester residents that the lowering of the quality of life in Manchester will not take place, I will seek, when elected, the assignment of additional zoning enforcement officers," Connors said. These officers would be in charge of pursuing complaints of non-compliance and will inspect all sections of town for zoning violations.

Cable TV hosts GOP

Interviews with the six Republican candidates for the Manchester Board of Directors will be shown Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on public-access cable television, Channel 19.

The Manchester Republican Campaign Committee and Wendy Piore, a recent graduate from the University of Vermont, have produced the show.

Each candidate is interviewed for five minutes.

On Friday, at 7:30 p.m., Republican candidates for the Board of Education, town treasurer and Board of Selectmen will be interviewed.

Check abuses plague state

HARTFORD (UPI) — State auditors have concluded the Department of Motor Vehicles is losing thousands of dollars each year to persons who write bad checks or circumvent registration laws.

The auditors, Leo V. Donohue and Henry J. Becker Jr., recommended the department consider creating its own investigative unit to curb the abuses.

"The department's efforts to combat the problems of bad checks, improper out-of-state registrations and other abuses need reinforcement. Significant revenues are being lost by the state because of such problems," the auditors' report said.

Auditors defend findings

HARTFORD (UPI) — State auditors have charged criticism of their report that attacked the Connecticut Education Department is a ploy to divert attention from their findings.

Auditors Leo V. Donohue and Henry Becker Jr. issued a report last March highly critical of the department, saying it wasn't providing necessary leadership to the local school systems throughout the state.

State Attorney General Carl Ajello has issued an opinion supporting the Education Department's claim the law does not give the department any clout to back up what it orders.

The auditors have urged the Legislature to do something about changing the law so the department and the Connecticut Board of Education can provide the needed leadership.

State education officials and legislators have challenged the techniques used by the auditors. Last week, Sen. Richard F. Scheller, D-Essex, and Rep. Abraham Glassman, D-South Windsor, asked the Legislative Management Committee to hire a consulting firm for $4,000 to review the auditors' work.

United Way over the top
The mercury in the thermometer on the United Way signboard at Main and Center streets has reached the top and a little bit over, indicating that Manchester's United Way campaign exceeded its $90,720 goal. Patrols added

HARTFORD (UPI) — There have been robberies involving large amounts of money reported in the past three weeks in the parking lot of the Hartford jail, causing police to step up patrols there.

The most recent incident was the robbery of a Vernon man who said he was taken for $75 as he was leaving the arena Saturday morning.

Ella says police won't try Reilly

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso insists State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard believes Peter Reilly should not be prosecuted, despite reports to the contrary.

Mrs. Grasso said Tuesday Leonard had assured her he is sticking to his Oct. 20 statement that he "wholeheartedly" agrees with a state prosecutor that Reilly should not be indicted again for the 1973 slaying of his mother, Barbara Gibbons.

Reilly was convicted of manslaughter in 1974. A judge later tossed out the conviction and ordered a retrial. Subsequently evidence tending to clear him surfaced and the case against Reilly was dropped.

Last week it was reported that Leonard told troopers his remarks were misinterpreted by the media and he still believed Reilly should be retried. "He has stated to me that he has not altered the view that he presented at that time," Mrs. Grasso said.

Leonard first refused to accept the decision of State Attorney Dennis A. Santore, who said the latest state police investigation failed to provide enough evidence to merit prosecuting Reilly again.

Leonard released a confidential state police report which said Reilly was "the sole perpetrator," even though all charges against the young man were dismissed in 1976.

He then met privately with Mrs. Grasso, and later announced he "wholeheartedly" agreed with the prosecutor. This led to speculation Mrs. Grasso pressured Leonard to change his public position. Mrs. Grasso Tuesday denied twisting his arm.

High court reviews acquittal of Avocelle

HARTFORD (UPI) — Prosecutors say the state Supreme Court should review Bernard Avocelle's murder acquittal to see if a mistake was made. His lawyer maintains it doesn't matter, that whether the lower court was right or wrong, Avocelle is a free man.

Bridgport attorney Theodore Koskoff Tuesday argued before the high court that reviewing his client's acquittal will trample on Avocelle's constitutional right to be prosecuted only once for a crime.

A Waterbury Superior Court jury this summer found Avocelle, a Naugatuck lawyer and former assistant Democratic minority leader, guilty of killing his wife Wanda.

But Judge Simon S. Cohen dismissed the charges saying there was not enough evidence to justify the verdict.

Cohen first refused permission for the state to appeal his decision and released Avocelle from bond, but 14 days later changed his mind. Under state law, a judge's permission is required before an appeal can be taken.

The Tuesday Supreme Court hearing was on whether the high court should review the case. If it decides to do so, another hearing, probably next year, will be held on the merits of the case.

Lawyer: 'Free Gold'

WATERBURY (UPI) — The lawyer for convicted murderer Murray R. Gold says Gold should be set free because a policeman who testified against him also manufactured a questionable scenario in the Peter A. Reilly case.

In a legal complaint filed Tuesday, attorney William Kunstler said New Haven policeman James E. McDonald's theory that Reilly ran over his mother with his car means the officer is either "mistaken" or "lying in the Gold case."

Kunstler also charged the Gold case was "totally fabricated."

The challenging document was served on State's Attorney Francis M. McDonald, who refused comment. It seeks a dismissal of the charges or a new trial for Gold, convicted in the Sept. 28, 1974, slaying deaths of his former wife's parents in their Waterbury home.

State's Attorney McDonald successfully prosecuted Gold, who was given two life sentences, after a first trial ended in a mistrial.

Tax cut possible

State budget picture continues to improve

HARTFORD (UPI) — The state budget picture continues to improve in the area of business tax reform. The state ended last fiscal year with a $73 million surplus and only about $42 million of that was anticipated — and therefore spent — when the budget for this year was drawn up.

Adding that money to the current estimated surplus comes to more than $70 million available next year.

Mrs. Grasso said previously the state faced a potential budget gap but that threat has been waning, officials say, because of the improved economy.

Her political enemies have charged she made up the revenue gap to hold down spending as she prepares to seek re-election.

In addition to the surplus money from the last two years, Connecticut is to get $22 million from the federal government to settle a welfare lawsuit. Congress must okay the agreement, but state officials say that will be done.

Supports plan
Nicholas Carbone, Democratic majority leader of the Hartford City Council, told lawmakers Tuesday he supports creation of a National Domestic Development Bank.

Carbone said federal regulations discriminate against "older established businesses that want to remain in their hometowns."

Later in the day, Carbone said he supports President Carter's welfare proposal to create a 14 million public service jobs.

Talk of tax cuts has been rare at the Capitol recently because of fears the state faced a revenue shortage

Celebration set by church group

World Community Day will be celebrated by Church Women United of Manchester Friday at Community Baptist Church, 58 E. Center St.

The celebration will begin with a noon luncheon. Those planning to attend are asked to bring sandwiches. Coffee and dessert will be provided by the women of the church. Baby-sitting will also be provided, and children should be fed before coming to the church.

At 1 p.m. there will be a worship service in the church sanctuary. Participating in the service will be Evelyn Burton, Dorothy Smith, Marge Bradley, Carolyn Wallman, Phyllis Gordon, Lena Schubert, Marge Reed, and Elaine Holcomb.

Catherine Johns will be the soloist, accompanied by Maressa Easton, organist.

Christian women from all churches will be welcome at the celebration.

The origin of World Community Day can be traced to the week of Pearl Harbor, when the constituting convention of the United Council of Church Women met in Atlantic City. "As the nations were flying apart, the women were coming together," said Amy Weicher, who became the first president of the council, which now is known as Church Women United. One of the council's first acts was to inaugurate a day of peace in 1942. The next year, this observance became World Community Day and was concerned with the price of an enduring peace. Each year there is a specific issue in the council's first act was to emphasize corporate action for justice and peace.

This year's theme, "Heart Change—Global Change," focuses on reaching out to the untreed people throughout the community, nation and world by striving for unity and world peace.

The offerings on both World Community Day and World Day of Prayer, together with gift certificates, support the work of Intercontinental Mission, a channel for Church Women to United to foster global change through funding of self-help and development programs.

Jaycees sponsor pageant in area

The Greater Vernon Jaycees will, for the second year, sponsor the "Miss Hockanum Valley Scholarship Pageant," formerly known as the Miss Tolland County Pageant.

The contest is open to women, age 17 to 26, from the towns of Vernon, Tolland, and Ellington. Jaycee Tony Wasilefsky has been named executive director and Jack Smith will be in charge of entries.

In order to participate, contestants will have to be graduated from one of the three area high schools by next Labor Day and be a United States citizen before the beginning of the state competition. The contestants must also have been a resident of one of the three towns for at least six months and either working full time or attending school in the area.

Although the contest won't be until April 6, the application forms must be in by Dec. 31. Anyone wanting more information should contact Smith, 39 Elna Drive, Tolland, 875-2768 or 875-2591; or Tony Wasilefsky, Cora Road, Tolland, 871-2117 or 645-1561.

The contestants will have to present a talent routine such as singing, dancing, playing a musical instrument, dramatic reading, art display, dress designing, or a three-minute talk.

Winners of the Hockanum Valley contest may be eligible to participate in the state and national Jaycee competition. Dates for these events haven't been announced.

Nurses to help cancer victims

The Rockville Public Health Nursing Association has started a new community service in cooperation with the Manchester Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The new service is a support group for cancer patients and their families. Elaine Shattuck, director of the association, said the agency has been involved in the care of more and more cancer patients in the past year and the need for the support group became obvious in the course of the work.

Miss Shattuck said the first meeting of the group was Sept. 27 and six persons attended. The meetings will continue for 10 weeks.

The agency also started a new series of classes for expectant parents. The classes used to be for the expectant mothers. Miss Shattuck said now that they are open to both parents the attendance has been much better.

Stephen Marcham, a local pharmacist, gave a lecture on medications used in heart disease at the monthly in-service education session of the association. He will teach two more classes on drug therapy this fall.

Miss Shattuck said the agency conducted four "Well-Child" clinics during September and 45 children were seen. She also said 50 children were at the September immunization clinic.

Counseling service gets new associate

The Rev. Dr. Mahlon B. Gilbert has been named associate director of the Pastoral Counseling Center of Manchester, located at 21 E. Middle Turnpike.

Democrat answers

Thomas Connors, a Democratic candidate for the Board of Directors, contends that Republicans were contradicting themselves this weekend over responsible leadership.

Connors' statement follows:

"A spokesman for the Republican party stated that the town administration was not receiving enough direction from the elected officials, while Republican incumbents bemoaned the Democratic leadership that directed security in firefighting in the area covered by Fire Station Number 5.

"Progressive city management seeks to encourage growth and must put on the line what it is offering to stimulate the growth. A top offering is the extent of guarantees for the public's safety.

Dr. Gilbert assumed his new duties Tuesday, according to the Rev. Dr. Felix Davis, director of the center. The new associate director comes from the North Community Church of Marshfield, Mass., and the Marshfield Pastoral Counseling Center, where he has had experience in both parish ministry and pastoral counseling.

He is a graduate of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and Rochester-Colgate Divinity School, Rochester, N.Y. He received his doctoral degree in psychology and counseling from Andover Newton Theological School, Newton, Mass.

The center, which opened in September 1976, is a non-profit, non-sectarian community resource, providing counseling services to individuals and families undergoing stress caused by crisis situations, the breaking down of personal relationships and other emotional problems, Dr. Davis said.

The addition of Dr. Gilbert to the staff "will enhance the center's ability to give service to more people in the greater Manchester area," the director said.

Appointments may be made by calling the center, 646-3811.

South still low income

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although industries and jobs have increased in the South, the per capita income of southerners — which has risen significantly — still remains the lowest in the country, according to a congressional study.

The Congressional Research Service study, requested by Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., covers the pattern of regional changes between 1960 and 1975. It was prepared for the Senate Appropriation Committee.

The study found that the gap between per capita income levels among states and regions narrowed considerably over those 15 years. "The South has made the most significant gain though it remains the lowest per capita income region," the report said.

The study also showed that in the 15 years, "there has been a gradual but steady shift of the center of employment opportunities from the Northeast and North Central regions to the South and West."

The report said in 1950 slightly more than 60 of every 100 jobs were located in the Northeast and North Central regions combined but in 1975 this had slipped to slightly more than 50 out of every 100.

Volunteer patrol knocked

ORRINGTON, Maine (UPI) — George Moore says he is just trying to protect his home against thieves and vandals.

But Penobscot County Sheriff Otis N. Labree says Moore and other volunteers who are patrolling this east central Maine town of 2,500 persons are "bounty hunters" trying to take the law into their own hands.

"If these same bounty hunters would just tell us what they know we could do our work. I think it is just a big act," Labree said Tuesday.

Labree said he had two deputies stationed two miles from Orrington and the nearby Brewer police could also help out in the area if residents would cooperate.

identities of persons seen committing crimes and said they would "take care of their problems themselves."

"I'm dead set against this. I think all these idiots want to do is take over the judicial system, and that's illegal," he said.

Moore, who works in a law office in nearby Bangor, helped form the volunteer patrols. He said they were started because law enforcement officials have been unable to stop an outbreak of vandalism and thefts.

"We are simply trying to watch each other's homes like good neighbors should," Moore said. "We are not patrolling using CBs and telephones to act as eyes and ears for the local constables and other law enforcement agencies."

He admitted some members of the group have suffered great losses from the thefts and vandalism and "are hot-headed and have their own ideas about how the patrols will be run."

Asked if he thought there would be any problem controlling these individuals, he said, "No."

Labree said he had two deputies stationed two miles from Orrington and the nearby Brewer police could also help out in the area if residents would cooperate.

Devotion promised by GOP

Party at Nathan Hale

Keith Baker, 3, and Stacy Baker, 5, of 35 Foster St. arrived at the Nathan Hale PTA Halloween Party Monday as cute Raggedy Andy and Raggedy Ann and walked off with one of the prizes for pre-schoolers and kindergartners.

Here they are greeted by State Rep. Francis Mahoney, one of the judges in the costume contest with Mrs. Mildred Nilson, school librarian, and Mrs. Amy Gannutz, school secretary.

The event was termed a great success.

Wallace Irish, a member of the Republican campaign committee, said Tuesday that the GOP party is devoted to offering leadership to Manchester.

"The Republican team has faced the voters of Manchester and taken the opportunity to address the problems. We have not tried to hide any of the issues," he said.

He said that the Democrats have concentrated on past performance.

"While nostalgia is something we all admire, it cannot be successful in governing a community which is in transition from a large town to a small city," Irish said.

The Republicans have polled voters to see what the major concerns are, he said.

"An element must be of the people... for the people. But, most of all, responsive to the people. The Republican candidates are devoted to offering leadership to our community," Irish said.

"I enthusiastically endorse your election and wish you the best of success in November," Cotter wrote.

EB's parent will help find jobs

HARTFORD (UPI) — The General Dynamics Corp. has promised to help find jobs for 3,000 white-collar workers laid off at its giant Electric Boat Division — the Navy's largest manufacturer of submarines.

At the same time, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said Tuesday the state will try to find employment for 1,200 construction workers at Northeast Utilities' Millstone II nuclear power plant in Waterford. The layoffs were announced last week by the power company after the state granted only $30 million of the $80 million rate hike it requested.

Mrs. Grasso said some of the construction workers will be hired by Electric Boat. The shipyard says it has openings for production workers, despite the layoff of 3,000 white-collar employees at its Groton and Quonset Point, R.I., plants.

At the same time, EB officials in Groton said a three-day "Job Fair" will begin Thursday to help the displaced workers find other jobs.

About 2,300 of the workers were employed at EB's Groton facility and 700 at Quonset Point, R.I. Rhode Island officials unveiled plans in Providence Tuesday to find jobs and training programs for those workers.

In St. Louis, David S. Lewis, chairman of General Dynamics conceded Monday the layoffs were planned well in advance and said more are on the way. The only consolation he offered was that he does not expect the shipyard will shut down, according to Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn.

Patient stealing charged

Professional Ambulance Service Inc. has filed a complaint against the Ambulance Service of Manchester Inc. at the state Office of Emergency Medical Services (OEMS).

The incident took place Tuesday morning at Charter Oak Mall off Silver Lane. East Hartford Police filed a report on the case.

Officer Neal Huber reported Richard Donnelly, 35, of 1180 New State Rd., Manchester, was the patient. He told Huber he was in the Medi Mart store at the mall when his "back went out" and he fell and could not get up.

Hunter said a store employee asked Donnelly if he wanted an ambulance. He said he did and he wanted Professional Ambulance. Hunter said so the employee called Professional and also called police to report the incident.

Police said a dispatcher logged the call at 10:32 a.m. He dispatched Huber to the scene and also, as part of police routine, notified the town's paramedics of the case.

When the Professional ambulance crewmen arrived, they went to the rear of the store as they had been directed. By the time they were admitted, they found that a crew from Manchester Ambulance was already there working on the patient and getting ready to transport him, Hunter said.

Scott Vinci, Manchester Ambulance driver there, said he was on Silver Lane when he saw the town's paramedics unit heading towards the mall. He followed them and entered the front of the store with them.

Police said the police dispatcher did not dispatch the Manchester Ambulance.

"This is just like the movie 'Mother Jugs and Speed,'" said Hunter. "It's very unprofessional what Manchester did," said Hunter. "You can't automatically assume every call is for you."

East Hartford has chosen the Manchester firm as its primary ambulance service following state OEMS procedures. It had used a three-firm rotation system which included Professional. Police would call one of the firms in rotation for every call they had to make.

Harvey Kagan, president of Professional, was in Hartford County Superior Court Tuesday at the time of this incident arguing against the new system. It is "restraint of trade," he has said. It gives Manchester a monopoly and is not as safe for emergency victims as the rotation system, he has said.

Roger Talbot, president of Manchester Ambulance, told police Vinci had assumed his firm had been the one called. Talbot was not available for comment today.

OEMS will investigate Professional's charge.

Makes things happen

Nearing the half century mark in years, Gordie Howe makes things happen when on the ice with the New England Whalers.

It's amazing to see the 40-year-old, balding grandfather-to-be centering for the Whalers' No. 1 line in the World Hockey Association.

Howe is an inspiration to other members of the team, most of whom are young enough to be his sons.

In his most recent appearance on Hartford Civic Center ice last Saturday night against his old club, Houston, Gordie gave another remarkable exhibition.

He picked up two assists in a 7-2 win and might have tallied a goal himself to match those of his two sons, Mark and Marty, if he so wished.

"I know I had a good opportunity to score in the last two minutes but Jack Carlson was open and it would have been nice if he could have scored," Howe said as he stripped down in the Whaler dressing room.

Did he get any personal satisfaction from beating the Aeros, a team he twice led to the WHA playoff crown?

"Any win is a thrill," he answered. "I was pleased with the way we played and it was nice to see Marty (Howe) score. He always works so hard but doesn't get the recognition that others do," he said.

Howe mentioned that some of the Whalers, who were around last year, seem to have reached new heights since the Howes joined the club and when Gordie is on the ice, the tempo of the game really picks up.

"That's what my wife tells me," he chuckled.

Howe, who has amassed over 1,600 penalty minutes during his 29-year career in the National League and WHA, and just four in the penalty box in eight games this season.

"You're not hitting as much these days," I chided the man who will turn 50 on March 31.

"No, I don't hit (check) as much as I did when I was younger. It takes longer for me these days to get over the bruises," was his answer.

Credit to coaches

"Both teams were beautifully coached," Dr. Gene Davis remarked after watching the Manchester High-East Catholic High swimming meet last week. "The coaching is just great," he added.

Wilson Deakin, assistant superintendent of schools, reported a man who rates a low for the upgraded swimming teams at the two schools is Mel Siebold, Recreation Department director, and coach of Rec Teams. Credit, too, goes to Ted Boudreau and Dave Frost at Manchester High and Ralph Viola at East Catholic.

New York Rangers have sent Nick Fotis down to New Haven in the American Hockey League which should help the club at the gate.

Nick Costa, a candidate for a seat on the Board of Education, is a former WHA defenseman and at that rate he'd have to play two more years, plus to reach 1,000 career goals.

But don't count the old guy out. He's truly amazing.

Coaches' corner

Our loss (21-7 to Avon) last Saturday could have been caused by first game jitters. But it couldn't be because it was the seventh game of the season.

We looked like a team committing early season errors. We had 11 penalties and most were the plain old stupid mistake kind such as off sides and illegal procedure.

We also had our share of mistakes in our offensive and defensive assignments. Avon awakened to finally find that they are a good team after all actually scored five touchdowns but two were called back because of penalties.

We felt that if we could hold them for the first half then they would find they did in the previous three games and we would come on to win. Actually, Avon got stronger in the second half and we became more disorganized. The result was a win for them.

Field hockey
MANCHESTER HIGH
Manchester High girls' field hockey team completed the 1977 campaign yesterday with a 1-0 triumph over Wethersfield High in Wethersfield.

The Indians just missed qualifying for the state tournament with a 5-2 record. They scored 14 goals and allowed 14.

Both sides had scoring bids the first half but neither broke through until Manchester's Lisa Griffin banged home a beautiful pass from Linda Cheney. The score came with 20 seconds left in the half.

Manchester controlled second half play but couldn't add to its total.

Seniors playing their last game were co-captains Cheney and Doreen Downham; Cindy Fortuna, Wendy Kemp, Lori McCurry, Charlotte Clifford, Alicia Hagler and Chris Hellstrom.

The jayvees played to a 9-0 state-wide win the shortened 20 minutes due to darkness. Manchester winds up 7-2, the best ledger compiled by a jayvee squad ever.

ILLING
Illing's varsity soccer team topped its record to 6-6 with a 12-15, 15-7, 15-4 and 15-5 win over East Hartford High.

Mary McCormier, Yvonne Nolen and Katie Murphy played well for East, net 8-8 with two matches left on the schedule.

Swim girls unbeaten, crown at stake Friday

The calm before the storm. Manchester High girls' swimming team remained unbeaten with an easy 103-66 duke over Fernald High yesterday in Enfield.

The 9-0 Silk Towners won't find their next test so easy, however. The Indians Friday host unbeaten Windham High with the CCIL championship at stake. Both teams are 7-0 in league encounters with the Whippets, defending titlists, riding a 22-meet win streak.

"If we swim like we did against East Catholic, I'm confident we'll come through," confided Tribe Coach Dave Frost. In that meet, Manchester won, 88-84, and in the process set three and tied one school mark.

Shelly Valentine was a double winner for the Tribe, taking the 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard free. Kim Noone took second in the 200-yard freestyle and captured the 100-yard

Tech booters win in season finale

Cheney Tech closed out its 1977 soccer campaign yesterday with a 3-0 victory over St. Thomas Seminary at the Beavers' field.

The Techmen wind up with a 5-2 record, their best mark in four years. Cheney tallied 24 goals while yielding 38, placing seventh in the Charter Oak Conference at 2-5-2.

Jim Boudreau got Cheney on the scoreboard with five minutes left in the first half assisted by Mike Gagner. It was Boudreau's seventh goal of the campaign. He later added two assists for a total of six for the season, totaling 13 points.

Sophomore Mike Frazer at the 15-minute mark drilled home a 15-foot shot. It was his ninth tally of the season, the team lead. Fraser also had four assists for a total also of 13 points.

Chris Vann with his second goal of the year two minutes later, a five-yard boot, completed the scoring.

Doug Victor, Tom Mainville, Ed Lackard and Walt Kostreza also played well for the Beavers. Cheney outshot Seminary, 18-8.

Whalers thump Nordiques again

QUEBEC CITY, Que. (UPI) — The New England Whalers scored their second win in a week over Quebec City when they trounced the Nordiques 6-3 Tuesday night in World Hockey Association play.

The Whalers pulled ahead after 12 minutes in the game to a 3-0 lead on goals by Mike Antonovich, Jack Carlson and Gordie Howe, but the Nordiques came back in the second period with goals by Marc Tardif, Serge Bernier and Steve Sutherland.

Marty Howe scored a goal at 14:15 and John McKenzie put one in at 19:49 to bring the score at the end of the second period to 5-3. Carlson tallied his second goal in the third period to bring the final score to 6-3.

Whalers' Coach Harry Neale said, "We should've put the game away early in the first period."

"We only had 28 shots on goal, but

Duggan to run, third last year

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Back for a 10th try at winning the Five Mile Road Race in Manchester Thanksgiving morning will be Charlie Duggan. The race starts at 10:30 on the lower end of Main Street.

The former Hartford High and Springfield College standout, who three times was named to the College All-America cross country team, placed third last November behind Amby Burfoot and John Vile after chasing Burfoot home first in 1975.

Running for the Florida Track Club, Duggan is now teaching in Glen Cove, N.Y., at State University College.

The former CIAC cross country champ has been inactive in competition since the Boston Marathon last April. However, he's been in serious training since early fall and is looking forward to another top showing.

"Last year you picked me to win and I feel that I disappointed you and many others. So I'm writing to let you know that I plan on running in Manchester. I wouldn't miss it for anything, in fact, it's the reason I have decided to start training again."

But I don't feel that I'll be in good enough shape to challenge the leaders though I will be running to win. I don't feel that I'll run better than last year," he writes.

Duggan has placed in the top 10 seven times in his nine previous tries with a fourth, a sixth, two seventh and an eighth placement to his credit.

The 24-year-old runner covered the five miles in 23:20 last turkey day. 46 seconds behind Burfoot who won in 22:34. Vile, who has entered, was clocked in 22:43 last year after leading over the first three miles. Burfoot is expected to defend his crown.

Race officials expect over 1,000 entries and as many as 1,500. Post entries will not be accepted.

Simpson's pro goal may not be reached

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — O.J. Simpson may never realize his goal to be the NFL's all-time leading rusher. Simpson, currently the league's second-leading rusher, will undergo surgery next week in Buffalo to repair cartilage damage in his left knee. The Bills will lose their premier running back for the remainder of the season — and maybe forever. The future is "a subject I can't deal with right now," Simpson said. "I have another year in my contract with the Buffalo Bills. Once the operation is over... I'll begin to think about the future, but not before."

RSox sale called potential 'disaster'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A sports group founded by consumer advocate Ralph Nader has told the president of the American League the pending sale of the Boston Red Sox to a financial group headed by Hayward Sullivan and Buddy LeRoux is a potential "disaster." In a telegram to American League President Lee MacPhail, the executive director of F.A.N.S. (The Fight to Advance The Nation's Sports) urged league owners Tuesday to disapprove the sale during their meeting in New York this week. Peter Gruenstein called the offer made by the Sullivan-LeRoux group "ill-conceived and underfinanced."

Old story rings bell today, sports times have changed

By GIL PETERS BOSTON (UPI) — A story in the old Boston Traveler 15 years back advised future sports writers to avoid journalism school in favor of courses dealing in law and medicine. The article was written before the expansion of pro sports and the era of the athlete-in-charge. The story comes to mind every day now when another player chooses to challenge an existing contract or when a group of investors tries to buy a sports franchise.

New Orleans, Atlanta surprising in NBA

NEW YORK (UPI) — No, the Central Division standings are not being printed upside down. New Orleans and Atlanta really are perched up there on top while Cleveland and Washington rest on the bottom. Tuesday night, New Orleans beat Chicago, 98-88, in its fifth straight win. Atlanta won 107-99, to stay within one-half game of the Jazz at 4-1. Leonard Robinson scored 28 points in a row, led 91-84 with 5:30 remaining but the Hawks held the lead at 91-84 with 1:17 left. Atlanta won 107-99, to stay within one-half game of the Jazz at 4-1.

Transactions

Hockey Philadelphia — Bought defenseman Terry Murray from Detroit for their Maine farm club. St. Louis — Acquired left-wing Inge Holmstrom from Toronto for right-winger Jerry Butler and assigned goaltender Yves Belanger to Salt Lake. Football Minnesota — Signed kickoff return specialist Manfred Moore to a one-year contract. Seattle — Signed free agent tight end Fred Rayle.

possibly can help win a World Series. We've come a long way. We used to talk about balls and strikes; now we talk about balls of red tape and player strikes. Now there is only one question left: Does appetite, outside the people involved in the money-making end of sports, care about these business stories with baseball caps on them? There is no answer because the fans have not spoken out as a group. Yet the attraction of sports has been its ability to make fans forget the realities of the bigger ballgame of daily survival. So we open up a newspaper or turn on talk shows, presumably hoping to gain some insight into the personality of a ballplayer or the reasons for yesterday's win or loss.

Enough is enough, though. If a major professional league questions the finances of a prospective owner, in the early part of the century, sports writers were the eyes of the fan. They watched the ballgames and wrote their stories — without consulting a player or manager for his opinion. Occasionally the big story of Babe Ruth seeking more money would filter down, but by-and-large, the articles were filled with on-field happenings.

Tribe girl runners have shot at title

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports-writer It didn't win league honors. But the Manchester High girls' cross country team has a good shot of capturing the state Class LL championship. The title race is Thursday afternoon at the Rockledge Country Club in West Hartford. For the first time four divisions will be contested. All will have a walk through the course at 1:30 with the LL run slated for a 2 o'clock start.

Adams, who would've been in the forefront, has torn ligaments in her hips. She ran the campaign in pain until it became too much and is now sidelined. Brown, formerly of soccer fame, has closed the gap between herself and the top group. Tilden and Woodhouse were Nos. 4 and 5 earlier and it doesn't mean they can't come up with top-grade performances.

Tribe girl runners have shot at title

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports-writer It didn't win league honors. But the Manchester High girls' cross country team has a good shot of capturing the state Class LL championship. The title race is Thursday afternoon at the Rockledge Country Club in West Hartford. For the first time four divisions will be contested. All will have a walk through the course at 1:30 with the LL run slated for a 2 o'clock start.

Agent ready for baseball draft

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Superagent Jerry Kapstein is ready for Friday's free-agent baseball draft but has no plans to make Providence the off-season capital of the sport as he did in 1976. Most baseball stories a year ago came from the 28-story Hospital Trust bank building where Kapstein conducted day and night bargaining marathons over hamburgers and milkshakes.

Seaver best pitcher Redleg manager ever saw

By MILTON RICHMAN NEW YORK (UPI) — The baseball writers have voted Philadelphia's Steve Carlton the Cy Young Award as the National League's No. 1 pitcher this year and the last thing Sparky Anderson is looking for is an argument with them. As a manager, and not a writer, he didn't have vote in the Cy Young balloting, but if he did have, there wouldn't have been the slightest question in his mind. He would've picked Tom Seaver, the ace of his own Cincinnati pitching staff, hands down.

Cy Young award in NL won by Steve Carlton

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Carlton, whose 23 victories for the Philadelphia Phillies made him the major league's biggest winner, won his second National League Cy Young Award Wednesday by a decisive margin over the Los Angeles Dodgers' Tommy John. The Phillies' 23-year-old left-hander, who also won the award as a 27-game winner in 1972 when Philadelphia finished last, received 17 first-place votes and a total of 104 points from the 34-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America which conducts the annual poll.

Veeck and Zisk's agent far apart on money

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox President Bill Veeck and the agent for outfielder Richie Zisk are at odds on how much money it will take to sign Zisk, a home-run slugger, who will be in the free agent draft Friday. Veeck said Tuesday Zisk's agent, Jerry Kapstein, wanted $800,000 for Zisk for the 1977 season.

Jackson cleared of charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reggie Jackson was poised and controlled as he faced a mob of impatient reporters outside a Manhattan courtroom Tuesday after he was found innocent of charges of harassing a 14-year-old boy. The New York Yankee outfielder's calm exterior was in sharp contrast to his demeanor when he faced another mob scene in the parking lot at Yankee Stadium following the All-Star Game on July 9 and chased young Chris Howe for shouting an obscenity about his mother.

Obtain winger

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Looking for a good skater and goal-scorer, the witless St. Louis Blues turned their eyes northward to Toronto Tuesday and grabbed left wing Inge Hammarstrom from the Maple Leafs. In return the Leafs received right wing Jerry Butler, not known as a scorer but a good checker.

Surgery slated

CHICAGO (UPI) — All-pro defenseman tackle Wally Chambers will undergo surgery on his right knee Friday and will be out for at least the remainder of the season, the Chicago Bears announced Tuesday. Chambers, who damaged his knee in last season's All-Pro game, will be operated upon by Dr. David Bachman and has been given a 65-35 chance to play again, said General Manager Jim Finks.

Candidates have many statements

Coventry

The four Democratic candidates for the Coventry Board of Education are pledging themselves to continue the involvement of local citizens with the educational system and are calling for more participation in the future.

Incumbent Patricia Clark said it has been her experience that when the people of Coventry are asked they are willing and able to assist their schools.

Vincent Moriarty, chairman of the board's Building Needs Committee said that the Citizen's Advisory group, working with his committee, provided invaluable assistance in developing priorities for revenue sharing money.

Joan Lewis, current chairman of the board, said that many citizens selected at random, participated along with the staff and board in defining the goals of the Coventry School system.

Candidate Andre Marmen said that another form of community involvement is through the adult education program which provides both academic enrichment and recreational opportunities. He said the adult education program has the additional benefit of creating increased use of the school buildings.

All four said citizen involvement is essential and must be encouraged.

Board of Tax Review

Jesse Williams, Republican candidate for the Coventry Board of Tax Review believes that board should act as an intermediary between the taxpayer and the various town assessors.

He said any aggrieved taxpayer has the right to contest any taxation by going through the Connecticut courts, but they must first appear before the Board of Tax Review in the town where they live and pay taxes and be denied the right of tax relief.

Williams said this board is the only entity in the town that has the uncontested right to reduce the Grand List.

The board also has the right to increase taxes with certain stipulations. If a complaint is received from a taxpayer, recommendations from the assessor on a building, property or personal property that has been improved since the filing of the Grand List; or the knowledge of errors or omissions by the assessor.

Roland Green, Republican candidate for the Coventry Board of Tax Review, said he feels the purpose of that board should be to listen to all complaints and check all assessments and property values so that everyone pays a fair share and everyone is treated equally.

"Shortly Coventry will have to comply with the state law and be re-evaluated," Green said. He said this should be done as fairly and as economically as possible and care should be taken to have a complete, thorough and accurate evaluation of all property at that time.

"The Board of Tax Review may be taken for granted by some, but I feel this board carries great importance to all property owners and taxpayers in the town. The board is an important phase of taxation," he said.

Town Council

Harold Crane, Democratic candidate for the Coventry Town Council is accusing the Republican-controlled council of manipulating the annual budget "in order to give the false impression that they were keeping campaign promises."

Crane said that at the 1976 budget meeting the council presented a budget that reduced the town payroll, thus fulfilling a Republican campaign promise made the previous fall.

Crane said that a relatively unpublicized special town meeting was held a few weeks after the original budget was adopted and the council restored to full time, all of the positions they had previously cut "and also had assured us at the annual town meeting were not necessary."

"By leaving the public with the false impression that expenditures had been controlled, the Republican-dominated council made a mockery of our annual budget meeting," Crane said.

Wisconsin outlaws weight loss drugs

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin health officials, citing abuses by doctors and patients alike, have banned most prescriptions for and sales of amphetamines — drugs commonly prescribed for weight loss.

The ban was the first of its kind in the nation and took effect Tuesday, authorities said.

On Monday, the State Medical Examining Board said it was banning any doctor from prescribing, ordering, selling, dispensing or even giving away amphetamines except in a limited number of instances where the drug is necessary for medical treatment.

Cecile Jacques works on braided rug

For Nov. 10 fair Senior Citizens make holiday gifts

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor

"Many hands make light work." John Heywood said it back in the 15th century and the Manchester Senior Citizens are proving it's just as timely in the 20th century.

For months now, members of the Senior Citizens Center have been busy on a near daily basis, preparing for their annual fair to be held Thursday, Nov. 10 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the center at 63 Linden St.

"We have two annual fund-raising events," Gloria Benson, program director at the center, said.

"Proceeds from our annual fair and the variety show are used to benefit the food program for the seniors, here at the center," she said.

Among the many items to be featured this year are felt Christmas trees for door or wall decorations, pompon wreaths which fit neatly over doorknobs, braid-trimmed felt vests which make a wine or liquor bottle look like a bartender, afghans, holiday dolls, mittens, hats, and a variety of other gift-giving articles.

Materials for a large braided rug were given to the center by Picota of Hilliard St., which is no longer in business.

"The material, which is in soft pastel shades, apparently was knitted cuffs and waistbands for sweaters and other sportswear. The women have been busy making a huge braided rug which will be raffled off at the fair, and they have also made chair pads out of some of the remnants," Gloria said. "We also have a handmade quilt to be awarded."

"The seniors are looking forward to greeting their many friends and neighbors and are rightly proud of their fine workmanship," Gloria said.

In all, more than 40 members of the center have worked diligently on articles for the fair.

"Some of them worked at home when for various reasons it was not convenient to come into the center," Gloria said.

This year's fair will feature a luncheon which will include soup, grinders, assorted pastries and a beverage. There will also be coffee and pastries available for early morning shoppers.

During the day, visitors may browse and enjoy selecting items from the various booths, including foods, plants, odds and ends, hand-made articles, and white elephant.

"The seniors are looking forward to greeting their many friends and neighbors and are rightly proud of their fine workmanship," Gloria said.

See you at the fair!

Consult another doctor

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me what I can do next with my problems. I have diabetes and my blood sugar is 281 with a plus ruine. My blood pressure is 190 over 120. My doctor is giving me Tolinsae, four tablets a day and for blood pressure two tablets a day of Hydroiril and two tablets of Aldomet. This medication is not helping and my doctor isn't very nice about it and has me very worried.

I watch my diet and I am not a salt eater. I have many problems and I don't care for my doctor. Please tell me what I could take that will help me. What could I take for that 4 plus urine sugar? I don't care for my doctor.

DEAR READER — I might wish to put you on insulin if you have associated kidney damage — which overweight it is very important that you lose weight both to lower your blood glucose levels and to lower your blood pressure. I think you should go to another doctor. When a patient is giving his or her doctor it is really better for all concerned to change doctors. You will probably do better with one you like.

No one can clear your urine of sugar, though, until your blood sugar (glucose) level comes down. Whenever the blood glucose level is over 170 there is usually some spilled into the urine. As a person gets older the kidneys change and the blood level may be higher without a positive urine test. That is one reason why blood tests are done at intervals.

Some diabetic specialists might wish to put you on insulin if you have associated kidney damage — which may be the case with your high blood pressure — particularly if you are not overweight. If sugar is omitted from the diet, if this is so, would you please explain the role of sugar in cholesterol buildup?

DEAR READER — No, it is not true at all. If you are eating too many calories of any kind and food containing cholesterol you may significantly increase your cholesterol level. This has been observed on some of the so-called magic reducing diets that limit carbohydrates. They're certainly not as good as the very successful lowering of your cholesterol, even if you limit the foods that contain cholesterol in your diet.

It is true, however, that if you do not restrict your calories from all sources enough to eliminate or prevent obesity you will not be very successful in lowering your cholesterol, even if you limit the foods that contain cholesterol in your diet.

An ode to elbows

Last week I developed such a bad tennis elbow that my doctor made me wear it in a sling. I had never realized what an important part of me that elbow is. Not just as a joint for bending my arm up and down, but important in itself, in a strictly elbow sense.

You use your elbow for nudging, pushing, showing, bidding and leaning on and believe me, when your elbow is out of commission no other part of your anatomy can take its place. Think about it. When your hands are full of groceries and you have to open the refrigerator door... your elbow does it. When your nail polish is wet and you want to switch the light on... it's the elbow's job.

When you're trying to read a book and eat an apple and the pages won't stay down... your elbow serves as the paper weight. Elbows are great for testing the bath water before you put the baby in. For holding down paper napkins when you're picnicking on a windy day. And when you want to keep a small child safely occupied, just challenge him to touch his elbow to his nose.

Elbows are indispensable for nudging. It can be a nudge of shared pleasure when you are sitting on the sofa with your husband watching a television replay of "Laugh-In." Or it can be a nudge of disapproval when you want your kids to tone down their conversation in front of company.

Now, elbows are not perfect, don't get me wrong. They have a disturbing way of poking holes in sweaters. They're certainly not pretty and they are prone to injury. The skinned elbow runs a close second to the skinned knee and when you hit the funny bone (the pointy part) wow! It can make stars appear before your eyes.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

In search of marijuana, a policeman took a specially trained dog into the baggage room of an airport and turned him loose. After a few tentative sniffs the dog zeroed in on a black satchel, which — upon being opened — yielded a cache of the drug.

But in court the owner of the satchel invoked his constitutional rights. He said a search without a warrant, in a private section of the airport, was a violation of the Fourth Amendment.

And the court agreed. Throwing out the incriminating evidence, the court said: "The agents of the government must observe the law in enforcing it."

This case illustrates the kind of "search and seizure" problems arising from the growing use of canine detectives in locating drugs. For the most part, however, the courts have found such evidence acceptable.

In another case, police had also used a trained dog to check luggage at an airport. But here they had been alerted by an airline clerk, whose suspicions had been aroused by the owner of a particular suitcase.

With that much to go on, said a court later, the search could not be classified as unreasonable. Result: The evidence stood up.

In a third case, the pilot of a private plane was asked by officers if he could examine his personal belongings. When he said yes, they brought in a trained dog — and the dog found narcotics in what appeared to be an innocent package.

Haled into court, the man objected that he had not given the police permission to use "extraordinary" measures. But the court overruled his objection. The court felt that as long as the police had permission to search, they had permission to do it well.

News for senior citizens

Hi there! Well, our trip to Penn Duich was really great. The weather was just right and our friend and guide Mrs. "Mont" Buckwalter was just super. Everyone enjoyed the trip and are still talking about it.

This week our second group should be on their way home while you're reading this column, and I hope the weatherman was good to them. Last Thursday afternoon we had as our guest our good friend, Nate Agostinelli and James C. Brettenfeld, executive vice president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

On Friday, here at the center, we had 40 players for our setback games and the lucky winners were: Bernice Martin, 126; Violet Dion, 122; Ada Rojas, 121; Sam Schora, 120; Josephine Schultz, 119; Grace Windsor, 118; Rene Maire, 117; Catherine Cappuccio, 117; Paul Schuetz, 116; Mabel Loomis, 115.

Florida trip Back to trips and our friend Jim Uccello, who incidentally is recuperating very nicely and wishes to thank everyone for the many Refreshments will be served and tickets will be fifty cents for seniors. If you are interested in attending, we have fliers available, and also if you need a ride, you can sign up here at the office.

So there you have it and all three programs are excellent and I'm sure it would make for an enjoyable evening. Your attendance to air or any will be certainly appreciated.

It was suggested that maybe some members would volunteer to sit out at the store. This isn't a bad idea, and if we had enough volunteers we could set up a schedule to sell chances for our raffle and maybe one or two would only need to stay a few hours. If anyone is interested, please call our office.

A reminder to all you folks who have tickets out for our rug and quilt raffle that you should be turning in either the tickets or the money before the day of the fair.

Spanking said dangerous

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study finds that spanking or other physical punishment may be dangerous as well as ineffective.

The study by a team from Temple University published in the current issue of Children Today, a publication of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said corporal punishment is a widely accepted method of disciplining children in school.

The report was written by Irwin Hyman, director of the Center for Study of Corporal Punishment and Alternatives in the Schools at Philadelphia's Temple University.

unpunished just as the behavior of a gambler is reinforced when he wins even though he may lose more often.

The report mentioned these possible drawbacks of paddles on the backside and other physical punishments:

Among the other states 12 are silent on the issue but corporal punishment is not practiced in only one of them, West Virginia.

Social Security

Q. Several years ago, my husband died and I started getting reduced widows benefits when I was 60. I'll be 65 soon and eligible for retirement benefits on my own work record. Will my retirement payment be affected by the widows benefit I've been getting? A. Your retirement benefit will be reduced, too. Generally, once a person receives reduced benefits, he or she will always receive a reduced payment. This reduction takes account of the longer period of time over which the person is likely to receive payments. Q. My wife died two months ago. I'm her sole survivor and I've heard that widowers can get Social Security benefits even though they weren't dependent on their wives. Can I get payments? I'm 47. A. No, it's true that widowers and widows no longer have to prove dependency to get benefits on their wives' work records. But, if a widower doesn't have young children in his care, he must either be 60 or older or between 50 and 60 and disabled to get survivors benefits. Q. I was a secretary for several years, but I haven't worked since I got married. As a result of a heart condition, I'm now completely disabled. Can I get Social Security benefits? My husband is working full time. A. Yes, under the Medicare carryover rule, any covered medical expenses you have in the last three months of the year can also be counted toward the $60 medical insurance deductible for that year. The exact amount of work you need depends on your age when you became disabled. You should contact a Social Security office; the people there will tell you if you have enough work credit. The fact that your husband is working would not affect your benefits on your own record. Q. Our son is blind and we think he may be eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments. My wife and I both work. Would our income have any effect on his eligibility? A. It might. If an unmarried child is under age 18, or under 19 and a student, the parents' income is considered in determining his or her eligibility and payment amount. Not all of the parents' income counts, however, and certain kinds of income are not counted at all. The rules for figuring what income might be deductible, but isn't there a special rule which allows me to count them for next year's deductible, too? A. Yes, Under the Medicare carryover rule, any covered medical expenses you have in the last three months of the year can also be counted toward the $60 medical insurance deductible for that year. The exact amount of work you need depends on your age when you became disabled. You should contact a Social Security

Manchester candidates are saying.....

Negro
Roger Negro, the incumbent town treasurer who is seeking re-election, has released information about gains in investments for the Town of Manchester while he has been treasurer.
His total salary covering the six years he has been in office is $31,000. During that period, he has earned an additional $38,224 in investment procedures, he said.
"This represents more than ten times my salary paid to me during the past six years by the taxpayers of Manchester. I feel that this is an excellent return for your investment in me, as your town treasurer," he said.
Negro also said that he has earned $3,936.318 in interest through the investment of town funds.
Deposits represented by checking and savings accounts are maintained in all local banks and two Hartford banks, he said. Five commercial banks participate in the town's investment programs and when the town is for such things as construction of neighborhood recreation fields.

Zinsner proposed such a field for the Redwood Farms area in September. He also suggested in his letter that such fields could be built for Forest Hills and other residential areas. Democratic candidate Joseph Sweeney also has spoken in favor of developing such neighborhood recreation areas.
Zinsner suggested that another use for BOR grants would be to improve the entrance and exit of Charter Oak Park.

Final approval of a BOR grant for the Nathan Hale School project will not be received until Nov. 15, Zinsner also said in his letter to Weiss.
"It is very unfortunate that this process is taking so long that the playground improvements will not be started until the spring," he said.
Program has received national attention.
In April of this year, the board submitted a policy statement for vocational and career education to the state Department of Education. In September, an action plan for that policy was submitted.
"Citizen communication has been encouraged in a variety of ways and particularly by citizen advisory committees.
"Career education is strong in Manchester. The Cooperative Occupational Education

Zinsner
Carl Zinsner, a Republican member of the Manchester Board of Directors who is seeking re-election, has sent a letter to Town Manager Robert Weiss asking that the town consider several uses for federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR) grants.
He said that there is more than $1,275,000 in BOR grants that could be used by Manchester

Colman
Eleanor Colman, a Democratic member of the Manchester Board of Education who is seeking re-election, said Monday that she is making of Republican candidates for the board show a lack of knowledge about current school system programs.
"Many of their statements propose excellent suggestions, but these are already being implemented by the board," she said.

Seader
Leonard Seader, a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Education, has encouraged more citizen participation in legislative matters.
"Groups such as the legislative committee of the PTA can be highly effective. Their influence and activity on Manchester's behalf in front of the state legislators is important,"

Connors
Thomas Connors, a Democratic candidate for the Board of Directors, said that the Democrats have taken many steps to improve Manchester's water system.
"The record shows that in the short span of history that the Democrats have been in the

Yavis
In the next two years and beyond the Board of Education will continue to deal with questions relating to declining enrollment, the board budget, hiring of key administrators, and renovations of existing schools. In all these areas, as in the past, the Democratic Board of Education candidates are committed to working closely with community groups including citizens' committees specially formed to advise the board on specific questions.
"After the success of the committee that participated in the hiring of Dr. Kennedy, the board appointed the separate committee that approved the renovations of Washington and

Call
David Call, a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said Monday that the town's proposed water treatment plant can be located north of Globe Hollow swimming pool and the pool can be retained.
Call, who has spoken in favor of retaining the pool, toured the land north of Spring St. with Jay Giles, director of public works. This property and the pool site, are being considered as possible locations for the proposed treatment facility.
He said that property on the west side of the brook leading from the reservoir is flat and appears large enough to accommodate the plant.
"I think it is very important to retain and improve Globe Hollow swimming area because it is the only large, naturally formed swimming area in town," he said. The pool will be needed to serve the town's 80,000 population projected for the year 2000.

FitzPatrick
John FitzPatrick, a Democratic candidate for the Board of Directors, has proposed utilizing school buses in early morning hours, before school sessions, to pick up commuters and bring them to central locations, possibly schools or public buildings.
The pick-up area would be the same as designated school bus routes and the drop-off would be locations in town where a connecting public commuter bus would complete the journey. The return trip would follow the same pattern. The cost of the service would be borne by the commuter.
Commuters could walk to the school bus route, and the drop-off point to connect with the public transportation would be an existing public facilities.
This contributes to reduction of air pollution and reducing energy use by eliminating the necessity of private autos and additional commuter parking lots.
The primary thrust would be fuller use of existing school buses, public facilities and commuter bus services.

Costa
"We must teach our students how to learn not simply what to learn," said Nicholas Costa, Republican candidate for the Board of Education.
"The attempts on the part of various candidates who are currently seeking office to the Board of Education to capitalize upon the existing mood of the electorate by recommending a return to the basics in education, engaging in a quest to evolve a one-dimensional career-oriented educational program would only provide the students with an opportunity to engage in the performance of meaningless minutiae," said Costa. Speaking at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Korbusieski.
"In order to obtain the full realization of the educational system we must evolve an all-encompassing educational program which would teach the students of our community how to learn rather than simply what to learn. Only in this manner can we respond to the basic interests and needs of the student, link the people of our community directly with the learning process and add to education the needed personal and individualized touch which insure the development of a student ability to ones fullest potential," said Costa.

They will perform there before an audience of at least 20,000 on Feb. 22. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Council progress pleases Finnegan

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter
"I'm pleased the Town Council has not been content to live with the status quo," said John G. Finnegan, 32, Republican candidate for reelection to the council.
Finnegan said he views the chief work of the council in the past two years has been to revise all the town's ordinances. The council's Ordinance Committee has gone over the local laws one by one in lengthy sessions for the past year. They are streamlining and revising to make the laws better.
"They must be more realistic," he said. "We have improved them."
For example, an old ordinance said residents could not put their garbage on the curb in a plastic bag. Yet the bags have been found to be full of getting rid of solid refuse.
More important may be changing the local laws on building code violations.
"The codes have to have teeth," he said.
Elmwood Irishman
Finnegan was born the fourth child of six to an Elmwood, West Hartford family. One of his brothers, Robert Finnegan, 35, of Enfield, is a manager at the Bradlee store on Silver Lane here.
"If you've ever met me, you know what Bob looks like," he said.
Finnegan graduated from Hall High School in 1963 and joined the Army. He taught soldiers how to use nuclear weapons for several years at Fort Devens, Mass. He got the assignment because of his scores on aptitude tests.
He was pleased none of his graduates used the skills he taught them during the Vietnam War. Nuclear weapons were not allowed.
When he got out of the Army, he began inside sales work for Power-

Into politics
Mary and John Finnegan first got into politics as members of the CCSC Progress Party. The party motto was "I give a damn." John won election as senior class treasurer and Mary as secretary.
They had the pleasure of being members of the college's majority party then. East Hartford's Republicans are a definite minority.
Finnegan was a registered Democrat in 1973 here when he got interested in local politics. He spoke with Republicans Jane Foss, Esther Clarke and Emery Daly and decided he liked the Republican Party here.

Citizens want council action on playground

By SUSAN VAUGHN

Members of the Hockanum Area Association, who appeared before the Town Council for the second time in a row, said the council should express their disappointment at council action on their request for improved playground equipment.
After extensive comment by citizens and discussion among the council members, they recommended a vote on the matter of more playground equipment for the Hockanum School playground to Mayor Richard Blackstone for further study and a report.

Several residents from the Prospect Street area also appeared before the council Tuesday night expressing their opposition to heavy truck traffic on the street.
Harold Powell of 92 Prospect St. cited the problems caused by the trucks such as shaking houses and physical damage to homes, air and noise pollution, which he said is above the federal highway standards, and lack of enforcement against the truck traffic by police. He urged the council to order the chief of police to enforce the law against the trucks. He said the street traffic is under jurisdiction of the town.
Mildred D'Adda of 76 Prospect St. cited very harmful effects of lead poisoning from truck and auto fumes on children, and the potential hazards of children being hit by trucks which she said sometimes drive on the sidewalks.
The council agreed to a recommendation by John Seaman of 283 Prospect St. to organize a meeting of the council residents, the state Transportation Department and other agencies involved in the matter.

Daggon said he had received a communication from the state. Sen. George Hannou, D-3rd District, that he plans to file a bill with the Transportation Committee in the current Legislature to eliminate the toll charge on the Bissell Bridge to help divert the truck traffic.
The council also voted its support and urged citizens to vote "yes" on questions one and two which will appear on the election ballot next week. The questions are a bond referendum for $2.5 million sewer monies for the Metropolitan District Commission and a question giving the town council permission to join a regional solid waste disposal system.
