Senate OKs U.S. funding of abortions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate today approved federally funded abortions in the case of rape or incest or if the woman might die or suffer severe health damage. The vote was 59-29.

The controversial legislation was sent immediately to the House where there was no assurance the newest Senate language would be acceptable. A quick House vote was expected.

The latest effort at compromise in the abortion dispute has virtually held hostage a $60 billion appropriations measure funding two large government agencies. The two chambers have been deadlocked over the abortion issue since July.

"If the House doesn't accept this language, then God save them," said Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who opposed any restrictions on federally funded abortions but voted in favor of the compromise to end the raging dispute.

The latest proposal was agreed upon by Senate conferees late Wednesday night after two more unsuccessful efforts this week by a joint conference committee to reach agreement.

It would allow abortions to save the mother's life or in cases where a woman would suffer "severe or long-lasting physical health damage" if the fetus were carried to term. Abortions also would be allowed for victims of rape and incest.

"There's a lot of irony in this," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-

Wash., who has headed the Senate conferees. "There's a group of 10 or 12 men, all men, sitting down in a room deciding probably one of the most important matters in the life of a woman."

The Senate originally sought to include "medically necessary" abortions to allow the mental and physical health of the mother to be taken into consideration, as well as abortions in cases where the fetus would suffer health damage.

Brooke and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., objected to ending abortions to free families from the tragedy of children born with genetic diseases detectable before birth but said they would go along in the spirit of compromise.

But both said the Senate must hold fast on its position involving abortions for the mother's health and rape or incest.

"We're not talking about hangnails and sore toes. We're talking about serious health damage," Bayh said.

He said the House showed the "ultimate in lack of understanding" by seeking to deny abortions for pregnancy resulting from rape or incest by arguing that there are "not very many pregnancies" in this category.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the leading Senate anti-abortionist, said the "bottom line" of the dispute is "the deliberate termination of innocent human life."

He said any compromise language is "not a solution but a delay" and vowed to fight against federally funded abortions "as long as I have breath."

Candidates debate many issues

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Candidates for the Manchester Board of Directors met Wednesday night to discuss topics ranging from the budget to the Buckland firehouse.

The two-hour debate, held six days before town voters go to the polls, provided an opportunity to see all 13 candidates together.

Independent candidate Ronald Kittredge sat in the middle of the stage surrounded by the six Democrats—Stephen Cassano, Thomas Connors, John FitzPatrick, Betty Intagliata, Stephen Penny and Joseph Sweeney—and the six Republicans—David Call, William Diana, Peter DiRosa, Vivian Ferguson, Richard Weinstein and Carl Zinsser.

Each candidate made a brief opening statement and then questions were asked from the 150 people in attendance.

Cassano talked about the "awareness and concerns" of the Democratic Party for human services. He mentioned advancements made in that area during the past six years of Democratic rule, including steps taken to help the elderly and handicapped.

Call said that more effective budgeting practices, including zero-based budgeting, should be started.

He also said that the town must work to improve water quality.

"We pay for and deserve quality drinking water. Let's get it," he said.

Connors praised the town's industrial guidelines. He also repeated a suggestion he has made before in the campaign—refurbishing the Cheney Mills complex.

Diana said that he would not reshuffle the problems that have been discussed during the campaign—"Water you can't drink, a firehouse you can't use and a budget you can't balance."

He said that the Democrats must take the blame for the problems if they also take the credit for the accomplishments.

FitzPatrick asked for more input into government by citizens of Manchester. He proposed that a suggestions committee might be established to listen to remarks from residents.

DiRosa talked about the needs of Manchester's future.

"I feel I can meet the challenge and would like to have the chance to make Manchester a better place to live," he said.

Kittredge said that there is disenchantment with government and many people no longer participate. He said that he hoped his independent approach would have a larger membership for the 1979 town election.

Experience argued
Mrs. Intagliata, one of five Democrats running for the board for the first time, said that previous experience in government might not be as important as other factors.

"Experience can be gained from many aspects of life," she said. She also said that she would like to see more citizen input in government.

One of three incumbents running for the board, Mrs. Ferguson said that she felt previous experience is important.

She also said that there has been a "lack of response" in recent years by the town government.

Penny said that an indication of the Democrats' good record is that the J.C. Penney Co. decided to locate in Manchester.

He said that the Democrats have provided continued community services with smaller tax increases than those passed by former GOP-controlled boards.

Weinstein called such budget statements by the Democrats "half-truths" because the party fails to mention that its budgets have received $5.7 million in federal Revenue Sharing funds since 1971.

Sweeney referred to the national problems of the past six years, including inflation and the energy crisis.

"During all of those years, the Democratic Party has done all you have wanted it to do," he said.

Zinsser said that the Democrats have "a record of government by crisis instead of by design." He said that the party has failed in some areas, including the failure to build a playground this year at Nathan Hale School and the attempt to establish landfill-use fees.

Topics mentioned during the question-and-answer session included:

• Budget—Call proposed that the purchasing departments of the town and Board of Education be combined to increase efficiency. Sweeney said that such a step is prohibited by state law, a claim that Call later said was not true.

Zinsser again explained his request for a report from Controller Thomas Moore, which pointed to possible deficit areas in the budget and said that these areas might have shortfalls of as much as $680,000.

"Let's not wait until the last minute to correct these problems," Zinsser said.

Penny, however, criticized the Republican for running "misleading ads" that mention a deficit.

"You can't draw any conclusions from it (Moore's report)," he said. "There is no deficit." Penny and Zinsser both are now board members.

• Police—Kittredge said that more money might be spent for the traffic control division to help prevent serious accidents. He also said that morale within the department could be improved.

Mrs. Ferguson said that the town might study an expansion of the department. People are concerned about safety and there are not now any detectives working at nights or on weekends, she said.

Water discussed

• Water—Mrs. Ferguson said that there has been little response to an engineering report done in 1968. Following some of those recommendations might have prevented this summer's contamination problem, she said.

Mrs. Intagliata criticized the water issue as "political rhetoric. This is a complex question and there is no simple answer."

Cassano said that recommendations in the 1968 report, such as the installation of 22,000 feet of pipe, were not done until the Democrats took control in 1971.

• Buckland firehouse—"If that isn't the height of economic waste, what is?" Weinstein said in

Boy killed in crash

Kevin M. Segar, 14, of Old Kent Road, Tolland, was pronounced dead on arrival at Rockville General Hospital Wednesday night. He died of injuries suffered in a one-car accident on Snipsic Street, Rockville.

The driver of the car, Timothy H. Hauser, 17, of Ann Drive, Tolland, is reported in serious condition at Rockville Hospital. A hospital spokeswoman said he is in the Intensive Care Unit with head, leg, and possible internal injuries.

Two other boys in the car, Michael Winter, 17, and Christopher Winter, 13, both of Kent Road, Tolland, were treated and released at the hospital. Police said the car was traveling south on Snipsic Street and hit a stone ledge off the side of the road. The accident is still under investigation.

Parking ban

The Manchester Police Department reminds residents that the winter parking ban is now in effect until March 31. Owners of all cars parked on public streets, in municipal parking lots and any area maintained by the town will receive a ticket and a fine of $5. The special no parking ordinance is in effect from 2 to 6 a.m. daily.

Marshalls expanded

Marshalls opened its new store in the Manchester Parkade at 9 a.m. today with the traditional ribbon-cutting and champagne bottle broken against the side of the building.

Several local, area, and regional Marshalls managers and many new employees awaited the customers, who came drifting in one by one after the opening ceremonies were over.

The new store occupies a bright, roomy south side of the former Forbes and Wallace building. The entrance to the store is in the interior center mall, which caused confusion for some shoppers who were waiting on the outside of the building.

The new store includes expanded departments for more brand name merchandise as well as two new departments, giftwares and fashion accessories.

Vincent Sanzeri, an area manager for Marshalls, noted the giftware section features quality imported crystal and china at reasonable prices.

Bill Bellows, manager-in-charge, pointed out that the domestic department includes all new merchandise, featuring complete linen and bath ensembles.

Rhyme Reed, store manager, said there are about 150 employees in the new store.

The $80,000 in renovations for the store and the mall were completed by E.K. Associates, owners of the building. Several other stores will occupy the north section of the new mall when it is completed.

News summary

State

HARTFORD — Production workers at three Pratt & Whitney Aircraft plants have authorized their union to call a strike if contract negotiations break down. But union and company spokesmen said Wednesday they are confident agreement can be reached in time to avoid a strike.

HARTFORD — The State Capitol, two Environmental Protection Department buildings and 12 other state-owned properties frequently violate Connecticut's air pollution laws, according to environmental officials.

HARTFORD — The FBI has arrested two men for allegedly trying to sell $250,000 worth of rare Colonial currency stolen from a New York museum.

WETHERSFIELD — The major owner of the Bridgeport jai alai fronton, A. Robert Zeff, says a state gaming commissioner, Lester Snyder, has cast "aspersions" on his reputation by saying he (Zeff) may have tried to hide his true profits. Meanwhile, the gaming panel has given up its quest to find out who really owns a strip of land between Interstate 95 and the fronton.

HARTFORD — In a precedent-setting ruling, Superior Court Judge William Bieluch has cleared the way for a family to sue for damages on behalf of a child injured in her mother's womb, when the mother was involved in a traffic accident.

HARTFORD — A U.S. District Court judge has scheduled a Nov. 14 session to hear Murray R. Gold's claim he should be free while he appeals his murder conviction for the 1974 slayings of his former in-laws.

Region

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Rep. Edward P. Beard, D-R.I., says a White House meeting is being arranged this month to discuss the layoff of 3,000 white collar workers at Electric Boat shipyards in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

CONCORD, N.H. — Gov. Meldrim Thomson says a group of blacks who held a press conference outside his office are guilty of racism — the same charge blacks leveled at him.

AUGUSTA, Maine — The NAACP has criticized the state for its minority hiring record and accused officials of dragging their feet in Affirmative Action, the federal government program to combat discrimination.

CRANSTON, R.I. — Six attendants at the Rhode Island Institute of Mental Health have either been suspended or arrested on charges ranging from raping or assaulting patients, to stealing food and furniture from the state facility.

National

WASHINGTON — An administrative law judge has recommended the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission approve the building of a liquefied natural gas terminal on the Bay of Fundy in Canada.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. is embracing Soviet overtures for a total nuclear test ban while cautioning Moscow against possible trials for prominent Soviet dissidents.

NEW YORK — Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis is out on $10,000 bail after his arrest on charges of threatening a former CIA informant who reportedly told authorities Sturgis shot at President Kennedy the day he was killed in Dallas.

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices rose 0.8 percent in October, the biggest increase in six months, reflecting dramatically higher prices for farm goods and 1978 model cars.

DETROIT — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has warned that about two million Ford Motor Co. vehicles may have transmission defects.

WASHINGTON — The CIA last year launched a $10 million plan — including three assassination plots — against Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley, according to an article in Penthouse magazine. The cia denied the story today.

Opinion

Vote 'Yes' on questions

There will be two referendum questions on the voting machines Tuesday.

Each deserves your "yes" vote.

Question 1 says this: "For an appropriation of $1,286,000 for construction of sanitary sewers."

Those sewer lines would service the Bryan Farms area.

The town has received a federal grant that will pay for most of the cost; the town's share would be $315,000 and that would be recovered through assessments to those property owners served by the line.

The sewer project will go ahead no matter the outcome of the vote. But a "yes" vote allows the town to ease the cash-flow process; otherwise, it would have to make payments from the budget and wait for reimbursement through the grant.

Question 2 says: "For an appropriation of $1,560,000 for construction, reconstruction and improvements of highways."

Those projects are:

- Reconstruction of Main Street from Charter Oak Street to Ford Street, $1,375,000.
- Reconstruction of The Center, $580,000.

• Improvements of Vernon Street and West Vernon Street from Lydall Street to the Vernon line, $780,000.

• Renovations to the Adams Street bridge and the street from the bridge to New State Road, $605,000.

The town's cost of the $3,340,000 project will be $1,002,000. Other necessary funds now are for preliminary engineering and right of way work before reimbursement.

The Main Street project includes repaving, some improvements to storm drains, street lighting, sidewalk repairs and some sidewalk replacement.

We need to know more about the planning design for The Center, but almost anything will be an improvement over the mess we have had there for too long a time.

Anyone traveling Vernon Street knows how necessary are the repairs planned there. Curves would be straightened, and the road needs surfacing.

The Adams Street project means straightening out the curve in the road and reconstructing the bridge.

Vote "yes" on both questions.

Aiding crime victims

Having waged war for years against criminals, the country now seems equally determined to do something for the victims of violent crime.

At least 20 states, including California, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, compensate crime victims for the injuries they suffer or the income they lose.

More than 20 states — with Colorado being the prime example — operate restitution programs in which convicted criminals are required to pay the people they've robbed or cheated along the way.

Just last month, the House of Representatives passed a bill that would reimburse states for up to 25 percent of the first $25,000 they pay to victims of violent crime.

Given a choice, it would seem preferable that the federal government stay out of the crime compensation business except when federal crimes are involved. Most crimes, after all, are covered by state rather than federal law.

It also would be wiser, when possible, to require restitution by the criminal himself rather than shift the financial burden to the taxpayers, who have plenty of other bills to pay.

However they're carried out, though, programs for aiding crime victims have obvious merit and should be encouraged. Many victims are elderly people on limited incomes. Others are so badly hurt they're unable to work for long periods of time.

One of the more effective restitution programs is operating in Hamilton County, Ohio, which includes the city of Cincinnati. In that program, young criminals work (under close supervision) in parks and other public facilities and repay their victims with the money they earn.

This approach makes more sense than simply tossing youthful lawbreakers in jail, where they can do little or nothing to learn a trade or repair the damage they've done.

Women mix gas and alcohol

WASHINGTON — Seventy-eight Montanans with an organization called Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) rolled into town the other day in pickups, vans and cars propelled by a mixture of 10 percent alcohol, called "ethanol," and 90 percent gasoline.

The farm women — dressed in red — drove some 2,000 miles, accompanied by husbands and children, to urge the use of alcohol made from grains for auto fuel.

"We love being farmers," said Pat Torgenson of Lambert, Mont., who is the ethanol chairman for the state. "We love what's on top of the ground. If we sell our land to coal companies, then we'll be gone."

Reps. Max Baucus, D-Mont., and Floyd Fithian, D-Ind., were among the congressmen who drove with the alcohol fuel-backers from the Lincoln Monument to the steps of the Capitol, where a rally was held.

Alcohol proponents claim their fuel gives better mileage, emits fewer pollutants, and can go right into the gas tank without engine adjustments.

"The beauty of ethanol is that it can be made from anything that ferments," said Mrs. Torgenson. "New Yorkers could use their garbage, Iowans their corn, Hawaiians their sugar beets and Montanans their wheat to produce automobile fuel. Even damaged crops can be used, saving some of their value."

In addition to offering one approach to the energy and surplus grain problems, the women with WIFE point to the serious economic situation generally facing farmers today.

"If we don't find an industrial use for our grains, family farming will die," Mrs. Torgenson told Scripps League Newspapers. "With such incredibly high freight rates, low market wheat prices, plus only harvesting a crop every other year, we can barely afford to farm anymore."

Montana, along with Nebraska, Florida, Maryland and Indiana, is vying for federal funds allocated in the 1977 farm law for pilot plants to produce ethanol. The Montana women have shown that gas and alcohol will mix.

Letter to the President

Dear Jimmy:
Sorry I haven't written for a while, but the wife's been worrying over the budget and it's taken all I had just to keep the dog and the kids out of the way. When she gets down into the budget, we just try to hide out somewhere where we can't be seen. You know how it is with budget directors. The budgeting is behind a houseplant and hope you can survive.

I tried to tell you when you were running for President that all those speeches about trust and truth and throwing the dice would come home to the roost. Well, it looks like the first rascal was Burt Lance. It'll help get your arm in shape.

I figure you're sort of disappointed about the Secretary of State, Cyrus Vance. Lord knows he's trying as hard as he can. But there is a lot to do.

First, he had to convince the State Department that human rights were important. That's a whole new set of instructions.

Under Kennedy and Johnson it was "which side are you on? Reds or good guys?"

Now it's "we'll only play with you if you come from a good home."

He's trying to change their ways and that's like trying to get a goat to sing opera. Cyrus has been singing now but it sure sounds funny.

And then he had to deal with the Russians on the SALT. You shouldn't have expected them to go for it the first time through. Any she-bear will tell you that you have to put up with a little roughing around before the old man gets down to serious love-making.

And to top it off, Cyrus feels a little like the butler out in the kitchen with Andy Young and Big Zig in the living room trying out new menus.

I think you have been handling the Panama Canal okay. It's a funny thing. A couple of years ago, the canal was as controversial as Kool-Aid. Now it's the big berrie.

Even conservatives are mixed up. Those two columnists, Buckley and Kilpatrick, kind of like the treaty from what I read. So they've got trouble, right there in right-wing city.

Well, don't fret too much about it. Strom Thurmond and Ronnie Reagan are leading the charge against the treaty. A man can always profit from a few well-chosen enemies.

Not much is doing out here in Colorado. It looks like we may get snow this winter, in which case we'll be putting in for blitzard relief. But if it doesn't snow much, there's always drought relief to fall back on. Just remember one thing about old Bert: Better him than you.

Hang in there and our best to the wife and kids and etc.

Rips.

The Brazilian Succession

BY GUY GUGLIOTTA
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — The generals of Brazil usually manage to select the country's next president with a minimum of fuss and an outward show of unanimity.

But an unprecedented public confrontation within the government hierarchy has already made a mess of the succession problem, even though the scheduled transfer of power is still 17 months away.

On Oct. 12, President Ernesto Geisel made "a decision of a personal nature" and fired Army Minister Gen. Silvio Frota, the leader of Brazil's hardline right and a leading contender in the army's efforts to find Geisel's successor.

Ordinarily, protocol and fealty to army solidarity would dictate that Frota pass quietly into retirement, keeping his lips sealed and his opinions to himself.

Instead, he delivered a 3,000-word manifesto attacking Geisel and the military government for tolerating "reactionary and subversive groups" and allowing "Communist infiltration of the press, among students and even in the regime itself."

This denunciation, unprecedented in 13 years of military rule in Brazil, immediately prompted speculation that Frota was trying to provoke the right wing and reimpose tight dictatorial controls that had been loosened by Geisel.

But Frota, his message delivered, went home to Rio. The Geisel government did not discipline him and acted as if the manifesto had never been published.

On the surface, the firing effectively eliminated Frota from contention in the generals' succession sweepstakes and appeared to open the way for the relatively moderate Gen. Joao Batista Figueiredo, the chief of Brazil's National Intelligence Service who is widely touted as Geisel's personal choice.

But no matter who gets tapped, the carefully cultivated system of quiet negotiation to pick a new president from among the nation's high ranking generals had suffered a sudden and severe embarrassment.

Geisel's government has relaxed the heavy censorship that muted the Brazilian press for years after the 1964 coup, and politicians, although they have little actual power, are far more ready to voice their opinions than in the past.

Backers within the military government promoted both Frota and Figueiredo for president through different civilian political factions, and the presidential succession received constant and ample media coverage. This had never been allowed before.

The Frota firing thus demonstrated that the general's directory can receive an enthusiastic public airing by a press and public fully conscious of their own freedom of expression.

Geisel, apparently realizing that the publicity was lining up the secretive institutional selection process, cautioned soldier and civilian alike in the note that accompanied the Frota firing, ordering "reaffirmation" that he "has never authorized any move to name future candidates."

Electioneering in congress stopped. The Rio newspaper O Jornal do Brasil ran the headline "Succession Debate Returns to Square One."

Frota's successor, Gen. Fernando Collor, met with Geisel, then told newsmen, "The army must not interfere in the succession problem."

The implication was that the choice of candidate is entirely up to the current president.

In fact, Geisel will consult with the army's top generals before they settle on a consensus "official candidate," but he has reaffirmed, at least for now, that the choice of a Brazilian president is still not the public's business.

Today is Thursday, Nov. 3, the 30th day of 1977 with 58 to follow. The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American poet William Cullen Bryant was born Nov. 3, 1794.

On this day in history:

In 1783, American independence was established by the Revolutionary War. Congress ordered the Continental Army demobilized.

In 1917, Americans at home learned of the first World War I deaths of U.S. soldiers fighting in Nancy, France.

In 1964, Lyndon Johnson was elected president by the largest majority in history to that date, defeating Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater.

In 1976, former Georgia Gov. James Earl Carter Jr. was elected as the 39th U.S. president, defeating Republican incumbent Gerald Ford by a thin margin.

Thought

A thought for the day: American novelist Dorothy Canfield Fisher said, "A mother is not a person to lean on, but a person to make leaning unnecessary."

A special on crosses

Recently a missionary from Africa spoke at my church. Dr. Norman Thomas, presently teaching at Yale, has spent most of his ministry in Zambia and other parts of Africa. He began his sermon by talking about the popularity of wearing crosses today.

Then he said, "There's a special on crosses in Africa this week — not crosses for wearing, but crosses for bearing."

What a profound statement! In our sheltered world, where freedom is taken for granted, how we forget the real meaning of the cross? The humility and suffering it implied? The persecution?

This quote from a current devotional speaks to our condition — we want to be respectably religious but shy away from a commitment to justice and compassion.

Are we cross-wearers — or cross-bearers? Do we heed the call of Christ to "pick up your cross and follow me," to "bear one another's burdens"?

May the cries of love and justice, the cries of the poor, the hungry, the lonely, the oppressed reach our ears and our hearts. Let us be cross-bearers — for there are unending numbers of crosses we can help carry.

Airplane used to test buildings

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A 110-story building can be subjected to hurricane force wind and heavy rain — so much so that occupants of the top floors feel the sway — and once it's erected it's too late to wonder if it will take the stress.

A company that made exterior walls for four of the five tallest buildings in the United States creates winds of up to 100 miles an hour to test the walls, using the propeller backwash from a World War II airplane.

Cupples Products makes what are called curtain walls of the building — surfaces in direct contact with the elements.

The curtain walls of the New York's World Trade Center (110 floors, 1,350 feet); and the Sears Tower (110, 1,454); John Hancock Building (100, 1,127); and the headquarters of Standard Oil (80, 1,186); all in Chicago, are products of Cupples testing.

The shell of the Navy plane bought by the firm in 1960 works like a giant fan, according to Harrison Scott of the firm's engineering department.

In addition to making sure the building surface can take winds that can duplicate the force of a hurricane, the firm tests for leakage. "You can't build something like the World Trade Center in New York and have it leak like a sieve," Scott said.

"We're liable if the plaster, interior painting, draperies or carpets are ruined. Sometimes it's almost impossible to repair buildings once they're damaged."

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

We've had a killing frost, and now what is left in the flower garden? Chrysanthemums, almost alone, show color. A few late varieties have barely reached full bloom.

A swing around the area to call at several nurseries and garden centers reveals a change in the chrysanthemum season. As growers have learned to bring chrysanthemums into flower at earlier dates by shading the plants to simulate the shorter daylight hours of fall, they have produced blossoms and been ready for market earlier.

Woodland Gardens, which grows most of its own chrysanthemums, had 8,000 plants this year and forced 2,500 of them into early bloom by shading. Leon Zapadka of Woodland Gardens said shading was started with some of the "mums" June 21, giving them a minimum of 12 hours of darkness each day.

The plants that were first shaded were first to bloom and came into flower July 25. Others, where shading was started a little later, blossomed the first week of August. As soon as any of these plants were displayed for sale, in bloom, they went out immediately.

The more than 5,000 other chrysanthemums were left to bloom under natural light conditions, started flowering about Sept. 4 and continued to flower until Oct. 15. The season was thus extended to provide "mums" over a period of nearly three months.

Going back to the start of the season, Mr. Zapadka said that the 2,500 mums were placed in pots and left in a greenhouse where the day length would later be controlled. After they had been growing for two weeks, 5,000 cuttings were taken from these plants and rooted. Then the rooted cuttings were placed in pots and left outdoors. They would provide the potted "mums" for later sale, developing under natural light conditions and flowering at intervals according to the time required for each variety.

Most chrysanthemums are sold when they are in bud and showing color since most buyers like to see the color before they make their choice. Some gardeners choose, on the other hand, to buy small plants early in the season at a much lower price and grow them to full size at home.

The chrysanthemums in home gardens, when they have finished flowering, can be cut back quite close to the ground and the tops can be added to the compost pile. In late November they should be given winter protection.

An easy date to remember for applying the winter mulch came from John Whitham at his nursery in Bolton. This job should be done, said Mr. Whitham, the week after Thanksgiving. His recommendation for a mulching material is salt marsh hay, spread over the stems to a depth of several inches.

Mr. Zapadka also recommended salt marsh hay or, as an alternative, pine needles. People who have nine trees on their property can gather pine needles at no cost. Both materials are coarse and stiff so they do not pack down and keep air from reaching the surface of the soil. Water should be sprinkled on the "mums" before they are mulched. Mr. Zapadka said, so that root growth will continue. Both men warned, however, that chrysanthemums cannot be expected to live through the winter if they are not in a well-drained area.

"Heaving" breaks roots. Chrysanthemums are notably shallow-rooted and the purpose of a winter mulch is to prevent frequent freezing and thawing of the top few inches of soil and "heaving" of the soil that may break many of the small roots. Corinne Willard, with whom I worked at WTEC on a radio program on gardening, used to say that a mulch was not supposed to keep the plants warm; it was to keep them cold.

Looking ahead to spring, Mr. Zapadka gave an indefinite date, "in late March when the frost is out of the ground," for removing the winter mulch. As new growth starts to show, the entire clump should be dug up and divided. Pieces of root, each with a new green shoot attached can be planted in groups to start new clumps for next year's flowers.

As the new shoots reach a height of six to eight inches they must be pinched back so that side shoots will form. As these, in turn, grow six to eight inches tall they should be pinched and this process should continue until July 20. The plant, when it blooms next year, should be 15 to 18 inches tall. Left unpinched, the first shoots might be four feet tall next fall.

Candidate eyes savings

David M. Call, Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said cost saving may be achieved by combining the three separate offices handling finances for the town and for the Board of Education.

Call said offices of the controller, treasurer and Board of Education operating in one large office would be more efficient in terms of added flexibility to the ebb and flow of work volume. He also added that it could save in tax dollars.

Call said, "I also feel that a consolidation might reduce the need to hire new town employees because the productivity of the consolidated office would be greater."

Call previously had suggested that the Town and Board of Education's maintenance and purchasing departments be combined to increase efficiency.

Apple peel record stands

LONDON (UPI)—The 1978 edition of the Guinness Book of Records, an essential document for bettors around the world, says Kathy Waffler's apple peeling feat remains unsurpassed.

The 24th edition of the book, published Tuesday, says the longest single unbroken apple peel on record is one of 172 feet, 4 inches, peeled by Miss Waffler, 17, of Wolcott, N.Y., in 11 hours, 30 minutes in Rochester, N.Y., on Oct. 16, 1976.

The longest recorded distance for catching a thrown grape in the mouth, the book says, is 343 feet, by Arden Chapman at Northeast Louisiana University on May 6, 1977. Benny D. Jones also achieved fame as the grape thrower.

Vandals, elderly, dental care among candidates' statements

Connors

Thomas Connors, a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, said Wednesday that if he is elected there are several steps he would take to discourage vandals.

"We must act as a community to discourage vandalism," he said. Connors said that he would propose the following actions to help meet the vandalism problem:

- Establish orientation sessions for the elderly on how to guard against vandals.
- Implement a pilot program of security-watch services with Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) employees.
- Start a youth commission to deal with anti-social juveniles.
- Enforce the licensing laws and ordinances.
- Enforce zoning regulations to assure the legitimacy of business operations.

The last two steps are necessary because some vandals have established "fences" for selling stolen goods. Connors said.

On another issue, Connors questioned the Republican Party's stand on the Buckland firehouse.

"Playing with the safety of thousands of persons serviced by fire station number five, the Republican leadership shows a woeful lack of memory or a consummate lack of concern for residents of Manchester," he said.

Connors said that the party sponsored an ad that criticized the "irresponsible expenditure for the construction of fire station number five." Then, two days later, Republican Town Chairman Thomas Ferguson said that the party's stand is misunderstood.

"The facts are that the chairman is not misunderstood, nor is he understood by any voter in Manchester when he utters his contradictions," Connors said.

"Fire protection is not an issue to be kicked around as a political football. It is an issue that affects the right of every citizen who needs protection from the deadliest of nature's wrath — fire. The Republican chairman trifles with that issue," he said.

Diana

William Diana, a Republican candidate for the Board of Directors, said Wednesday that he will try to improve protection for Manchester's senior citizens if he is elected.

"In my door-to-door canvassing, I found that our senior citizens are afraid to open their doors to strangers. In conversations with them, they express the apprehension they have for their safety," he said.

Diana also said that a relative's home was broken into recently. That person is still afraid to go into the darkened house or to sleep with the lights out, he said.

"If I am elected to the Board of Directors, I will work closely with our police chief to see what can be done for senior citizens to give them more peace of mind in their own homes as well as on the streets, within our budgetary constraints," Diana said.

In a related issue, Diana said the town should seek an enlarged senior citizens center. He said that he will recommend that the town study the acquisition, through lease or purchase, of the old Marshall's store.

"This building on West Center Street is centrally located, is large and has excellent parking facilities," Diana said.

He said that the present senior center is too small for its more than 7,000 members. The facility also lacks proper parking areas, he said.

Intagliata
Betty Intagliata, a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, has vowed her support for the work being done on a possible dental clinic.

She urged that interested citizens provide input and support the dental clinic committee of the Manchester Advisory Board of Health.

She said that funding for the clinic is being sought outside of the town budget. Public grants through the federal Urban Health Incentives program or private grants might be obtained for the proposal, Mrs. Intagliata said. She also said that assistance might be found by providing a staff member or members through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

Penny
Stephen Penny, a Democratic member of the Manchester Board of Directors who is running for re-election, said that two campaign issues have underscored the fact that the Republicans have no substantive issues on which to campaign in the local election.

Penny mentioned the Republican Party's protest about campaign signs and the ads against the dump tax.

He said that the dump tax no longer exists. A permit fee system for the landfill was designed to protect out-of-town use of the area. When the system was found to be ineffective, it was abandoned, Penny said.

"The Republicans, meanwhile, have conveniently ignored the fact that the Democrats have taken every step with regard to the landfill over the last 15 years," he said.

He mentioned a 1964 ordinance, that was passed by the Democrats. The ordinance establishes fines for out-of-town use of the dump and will be the basis of the new landfill reclamation program, Penny said.

He also mentioned the 1973 Democratic-approved purchase of additional acreage, which extended the life of the landfill for at least 25 years.

"The 1977 efforts to meet head-on the present nonresident dumping problem were made by the Democrats. The Democrats' record over the years with regard to the landfill speaks for itself and has earned for them the continuing support of the people of Manchester," he said.

Tomkiel
Edward Tomkiel, Manchester's town clerk who is seeking re-election, said Wednesday that he has provided a profitable office for his 21 years in the position.

He has installed an alphabetical and chronological computerized recording system for the land records. It is recognized by title searchers and attorneys as one of the best systems in the state, he said.

"This, installed with microfilming, has provided the town with greater accuracy and security," he said.

Tomkiel said that he has also served on various state committees of the General Assembly and the secretary of the state's office.

He is a past president and present legislative chairman of the Connecticut Town Clerks Association and was presented with the association's "Hall of Fame" award this year. He also has received the national designation of a certified municipal clerk.

He has been involved in many fund drives as well as the Manchester Sesquicentennial Committee, co-chairman, and the Manchester Bicentennial Committee.

Sylvester
Peter Sylvester, a member of the Manchester Republican campaign committee, has criticized Treasurer Roger Negro for not debating his Republican challenger, Betty Sadioski.

Earlier this week, Mrs. Sadioski challenged Negro to a debate, but Negro declined because of the lack of time before the election.

"I find it unbelievable that a man who wants the voters to believe that he does a conscientious job as town treasurer would back out of the opportunity to face his opponent in a debate," Sylvester said.

"In view of the seriousness of the problems of the town's pension fund and the effect it will have on the taxpayers, I feel that Negro is trying to hide behind a very shallow excuse and is afraid to face the issues of the election," he said.

Man admits abduction

HARTFORD (UPI)—An East Hartford man has pleaded guilty to kidnapping in the disappearance of his estranged wife.

Superior Court Judge John F. Shea Jr. set sentencing of Arthur Lisbon, 32, also known as Tony Collins, for Dec. 2.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Meyers, who prosecuted the case, said investigators are still hoping to find the victim, Geraldine E. Lisbon, 32, or prove she was murdered.

Meyers said Mrs. Lisbon's brother, Robert M. Allen, told police Lisbon kicked down the door to his apartment and abducted the woman. Neighbors said they saw Lisbon dragging the woman across a parking lot on March 7, Meyers said.

Lisbon's guilty plea was made shortly before a trial on the case was about to begin.

Cable TV will show town's best, worst

Two videotaped programs entitled "The Best and Worst of Manchester" will be shown today and Friday on Greater Hartford CATV's public access Channels 13 and 21. Jay April and Kate Deere, two independent video artists from Manchester, produced the tapes as a public service to stimulate the development of public access community television. Local residents will be interviewed on a variety of issues affecting Manchester, including youth problems, schools, water quality and police harassment. "Rarely, if ever, does commercial television go out into the street to talk to folks at length about what they want to talk about. Video and public access channels on cable television have made it possible for people to really move toward participatory television," April said.

Another bridge due

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — State Transportation Commissioner William Hennessy says New York may have to build another bridge across the Hudson River. "The Tappan Zee (Bridge) is not sufficient to handle the traffic we already have," Hennessy said. "Something is going to have to be done to relieve the congestion that's already beginning to pile up on the Tappan Zee." Hennessy said traffic will increase when New Jersey finishes a portion of Interstate 287 to connect Interstate 80 with the New York Thruway at Suffern. A second state-run Hudson span would not be constructed for $1.4 billion but it is being considered, he said.

Mulligan-Costa

Clarrissa M. Costa of East Hartford and Carl F. Mulligan of Middletown were married Oct. 8 at St. John's Church in East Hartford.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Geraldine R. Costa of East Hartford and William T. Costa of Ellington. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mulligan of Middletown.

The Rev. Alva Decker of East Hartford officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Robert W. Hixley of East Hartford, wore her mother's wedding gown.

Miss Colleen Costa of East Hartford was her sister's maid of honor.

Russell Burtzell of Nashua, N.H., the bridegroom's cousin, was best man. Ushers were Frank Hixley of East Hartford, the bride's uncle, and Kevin Burtzell of New Hampshire, the bridegroom's cousin.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall in East Hartford, after which the couple left on a trip north. They are residing in Middletown.

Mrs. Carl F. Mulligan

HEALTH

Has rumbling stomach

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a very annoying and embarrassing problem. I can't find the courage to discuss it with my doctor.

I'm 66 and in good health. The best way to describe my problem is, if you ever heard a horse run after drinking water (sure you have) then you know the rumbling and grumbling sounds of my stomach.

With me it is not painful but annoying, as I work with people. I cannot accept a dinner invitation for this reason. Usually after I eat or have a cup of coffee then I have these stomach spasms, as I will call it, which last a half hour at a time. This occurs three to four times a day. It is on the left side below the ribs.

DEAR READER — You have borborygmi. The means rumbling noises produced by the rhythmic contractions of your intestines. And everyone has it. If you didn't, your intestines would be silent — paralyzed — and you would have an intestinal obstruction.

The difference is that the loudness of the sound is unusually such that a doctor has to use a stethoscope to hear the frequent gurgling sounds. In almost everyone at some time the sound is loud enough that you can hear it. In a few unfortunate people like yourself it is so loud constantly that it becomes annoying — mostly to the person who has the noise.

There are a limited things you can do. Many people have these when they are hungry, eating a small amount will calm the overactive digestive system and the sounds go away. Since yours occur after eating that might not help you. You can try it though. Try something bland such as bread and a small glass of milk.

You might try including more bulk in your diet by eating cereals that contain bran. If your intestines are not so empty they may not do this so violently. If this doesn't work try a bulk expander such as plain Metamucil. It may not give you gas and may help. And you should avoid things that stimulate overactive contractions. That means coffee, tea and any drinks that contain caffeine.

If all else fails and if you have the courage to talk to your doctor about it, you may be able to take an antispasmodic to quiet your active digestive system.

Anything you can do to prevent gas formation will be a help. I am sending you The Health Letter number 64, Controlling Gasousness. Follow those principles and it may help diminish your symptoms. Others who want information on gas can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Sometimes swallowing air is an aggravating factor to borborygmi.

I would like to assure you that normal people can have the same problem you experience and it does not mean that you have any serious health problem. Since you have no symptoms and otherwise think you are in good health it just means an overactive digestive system. I might add that nervous tension may make the situation worse.

If you find that keeping your digestive system content with more frequent feeding helps, then you may be able to eat a small amount before you go out and not be embarrassed after dinner.

The Christmas Club with an added dimension of love.

For the past several months the students of Manchester's Regional Occupational Training Center and Norman Fendell (right), the Center's Director, have been growing and potting hundreds of begonias for us. And you will receive one of these lovely flowering plants when you open your 1978 Christmas Club. You may start your club with any amount you wish and arrange for whatever weekly deposits are convenient. Best of all, your Heritage Savings Christmas Club will earn 5% interest — just like a savings account. And if you've had a 1977 Heritage Christmas Club, it will automatically renew itself for 1978 when you make the first deposit after you receive your 1977 Club check. It is our hope that the begonias, carefully prepared by these exceptional young people, will provide an added dimension of love for your holidays.

Liquid protein diet under FDA check

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Robert Linn, author of "The Last Chance Diet," which sparked the liquid protein diet fad, says minimal monitoring of dieters by doctors may have contributed to the deaths of some users.

"I have not myself in my practice experienced any deaths nor am I aware of any unreported deaths in the program, which occurred under careful medical supervision," Linn said Tuesday.

The reports of deaths that have occurred, he said, appear to have been among patients "who have been monitored minimally" by their doctors and may have been caused by a lack of micro-nutrients, especially potassium.

"There is no implication of toxicity of liquid protein. The problem area seems to be the omission of other nutrients," he said.

Two federal agencies Tuesday said they were investigating reports of several deaths among persons using prodigious liquid protein to lose weight.

Personnel panel sets timetable

Vernon
The ad hoc committee appointed to select a superintendent of schools for Vernon, has set up a timetable with the appointment scheduled for April 15.

The committee appointed Charles Brown, a former member of the Board of Education, as chairman and Joseph Bellis, principal of the Northeast School, as secretary.

Brown said this morning that the time schedule, set up Wednesday night, is contingent upon ideal conditions.

Applications will be accepted from Dec. 5 with a cutoff date of Jan. 15. The screening process will start Dec. 6 and continue through Jan. 30. The initial interviewing will be done by the ad hoc committee from Feb. 1 through March 1 and the number of applicants will be narrowed to five to seven candidates.

Vernon will correct violations

The Vernon Town Council Tuesday night endorsed recommendations to correct alleged violations of the civil rights provisions of the Revenue Sharing Act and approved to invite officials from the Office of Revenue Sharing (ORS) to come discuss the act with the council.

On Oct. 3 the town received a letter from ORS detailing what that office felt were violations and asking the town to indicate, within 60 days, what steps it will take to correct the violations and implement six specific recommendations made by ORS.

ORS also told the town to implement whatever measures are necessary in order to provide facilities which can accommodate both male and female employees.

Stanley Roesler, director of administration, prepared recommendations to be sent to ORS on this, and other complaints.

Roesler said the town's plan already includes goals and timetables. It states that the intermediate goal (1980) is for a significant movement to reflect an increase in the percentage of minority and female employees and any areas not showing a movement toward the goal will be carefully studied and corrective action taken.

The long range goal (1984), the local plan states, is to have all classifications show minority and female employees holding positions which reflect their percentage in the labor market and that any discrepancies will require written justification.

Roesler told the council he would suggest that ORS either overlook the goals and timetables or they are not acceptable. He said ORS officials should be asked to clarify the position.

ORS also told the town to implement whatever measures are necessary in order to provide facilities which can accommodate both male and female employees.

McCoy hits Democrats on taxing, sewer funds

Vernon

A two-part statement issued by Frank McCoy, Republican candidate for Mayor of Vernon, chastises the present Democratic administration for the manner in which automobile taxes and federal and state funds for sewer projects were handled.

McCoy, who served three terms as mayor, is running against the incumbent mayor, Democrat Thomas Benoit.

McCoy said that "one of the many instances in which the Benoit administration failed miserably to take action on behalf of the taxpayers of Vernon is in the matter of the single payment of the motor vehicle personal property tax."

He said last July motor vehicle owners received, without warning, a bill for automobile taxes which required payment in full. Before that the taxes could be paid in two installments.

McCoy said new legislation allowed the towns to choose whether the payments should be in one lump sum or in two installments. He said the public act became effective June 6 but it was a much-discussed subject and the legislation had been pending for several weeks before that.

"Certainly, if such a strong line of communication and eternal alertness existed between Mayor Benoit and (State) Representative (Chester) Morgan, the town should have been fully prepared to take action so as to benefit the taxpayers," McCoy said.

He said the Town Council was later told that it was too late to take any action and "thus the poor taxpayer suffered from the so-called 'open government' indecision and lack of action."

McCoy speculated that the Democratic administration will probably ask to be excused for their "inaction and indecision by some self-serving statement by the mayor or his allies."

He said this is one situation which he can promise to rectify by initiating the payment of two installments.

He cited as another example of "inaction, indecision, and inefficiency of the Benoit administration," the loss of funding for lateral sewer lines on several streets.

"Recent discussions with state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) officials leads me to question the efficiency and timeliness of the Benoit administration's application for federal and state funds for sewer projects," McCoy said.

He said that during his six years in office he constantly battled with DEP to try to obtain funding for lateral sewers but was never able to convince DEP officials to fund them and so the property owners had to pay the majority of the per foot cost.

McCoy said that last January the DEP had $15 million unspent in sewer construction funds and then announced the policy change that made lateral sewer lines eligible for the federal funds.

He said the deadline for applications was June 1 and one of Vernon's applications for lateral sewers in the Wells Road, Taylor Street, Trout Stream Drive, Tumblebrook Drive and Deerfield Drive areas didn't have complete information as of that date and therefore wasn't considered for funding.

McCoy said another application for areas off Route 30, was completed in time and the project was funded for $720,000 for the laterals. "The town had no right to gamble with the property owners' opportunity to save three-fourths or more of his sewer assessment," he said.

The former mayor said these projects should have been combined into one application so that all property owners would feel they were being treated equally. He said he believes that the lateral sewers in all of these areas might have been funded.

Absentee deadline is Nov. 7

The deadline for applying for absentee ballots is Nov. 7, the day before election.

Applications must be returned through the mail so they will be received at the post office on Union Street, Rockville, by election day.

In a case where an elector applies personally for an absentee ballot it can be completed and returned at the same time.

The town clerk, in addition to regular business hours, will have his office open Saturday, Nov. 5, from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., solely for issuing the absentee ballots.

Championship Friday

No. 1, not No. 2 spot goal with harriers

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sportswriter

"We're not going to be satisfied being No. 2," Manchester High boys' cross country coach George Sutor said with fire in his eyes Tuesday morning.

Sutor, after coming off so close in '76, fiercely wants to capture the 1977 state Class LL championship. That opportunity comes Friday afternoon at Timberlin Golf Course in Berlin at 1:45.

The Silk Towners qualified for the state meet by winning the Eastern Sectionals with a point total of 79. The result of the Western Sectional drew concern from Sutor. Holy Cross of Waterbury took it with a total of 45 points, finishing 53 points better than its closest pursuer.

"I'm not sure how good Holy Cross is," Sutor admitted. "I didn't expect them to win by that much. After that you have to rate them the favorite."

"I don't like being the favorite," he added.

Senior Wes Fedorchak, junior Ed Lemieux and senior Dave Locke ran well at the sectional, garnering second, fourth and seventh places respectively.

"Our fourth and fifth runners have to run better, otherwise we're not going to win Friday," Sutor freely states. "We need better performances out of them. But I think our kids will like the course."

"It's been said before but the key could also be senior Matt Schmid. He's had more of a tenure than schoolboy career as injuries have set him back. I hope Schmid pops out Friday," Sutor exclaims. "He is capable of a good race."

The team's preference for smoother terrain will be answered as the Timberlin 5,000 meter layout is mostly flat.

Sophomore John Clifford placed third in the sectional and is looked to finish in the top five or better at Timberlin. Seniors Rick Walsh, Kevin Skehan and Jim Hance and sophomores Dave Kittredge, Pete Kiro and Bob Fitzgerald will complete East's field.

"I figure we can finish ahead of three teams who were ahead of us Monday. I'd like to see us in the top 10 in Class LL all come up with premier performances. We're capable of doing it."

Frazier works magic as Cavs edge Celtics

BOSTON (UPI)—They were good and they were bad but Walt Frazier saved them from being ugly in the end.

"They" were the Cleveland Cavaliers, who had a 21-point lead with eight minutes to play but had to depend on the newly acquired Frazier to save them in the last minute of a 104-101 victory over the Boston Celtics.

The Celtics, woeful in scoring 37 points over the first half and 21 points more after three quarters, netted 43 points in the final period. Boston's last gasp came in the final three minutes when rookie Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell scored the last four of his career-high 15 points to pull the Celtics to within two points, 100-98, with 15 seconds to play.

But Frazier, acquired from the New York Knicks just before the season, made the second of two free throws to give Cleveland a three-point lead with 12 seconds to play. Jo Jo White and Charlie Scott hit offenses, which had been resting in the elongated final 10 seconds of play.

Frazier, who led both teams with 22 points, said "that's the type of team we are. We've done that a number of times this year."

"But I'm glad I got the ball near the end because that's why they traded for me, I guess," Frazier said. "Then I put myself in a bad situation by missing the first free throw. After you miss a first shot like that, you have to do some soul searching. You have to concentrate. If I had missed that second shot, I would have known I choked."

Frazier, aided by Bing Smith's six points down the stretch, kept the Cavaliers from choking and helped them to their fifth win in eight games. The Celtics are 1-7 and have lost three games in a row.

"It's early in the season, though and the Celtics are going to be a good club because they've got a lot of talent," said Smith, who finished with 16 points. "The thing with the Celtics is that they're a running team and once they get it going they start scoring four and six points at a time and keep coming back and coming back. So when you think you're up by 20, you look at the scoreboard and find out you're only up by two."

The Cavaliers let the game slip away in the fourth period when they abandoned the effective pattern baskets around a three-point play by Frazier, who had given them an increasing large lead at the end of each quarter, and tried to scramble with the fast-breaking Celtics.

Maxwell, a 6-foot-9 first-round pick from University of North Carolina at Charlotte, entered the game with two minutes left in the third period. He scored 15 points over the final 14 minutes to ignite the Boston comeback.

"I had the same combination of players in there in the fourth quarter and I stayed with them too long," said Cavaliers Coach Bill Fitch. "But this was the second game in two nights and we have to play a rested Milwaukee team tomorrow (tonight at Cleveland), so I was trying to keep that in mind and rest some of the guys."

The Celtics, playing their first home game Wednesday after six road contests, host the Denver Nuggets Friday night.

Banks colorful guy

Death claimed Jake Banks this week.

He was one of the most colorful baseball players in the Greater Hartford area and for several years displayed his hitting ability with local Twilight League entries after a long career in pro ball.

A Manchester resident for more than a decade, Banks just missed making it in the National League with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I'll never forget that boy," the late Frankie Frisch told me one spring while on the Grapefruit League spring training junket in Florida.

"I have never seen any player in all my years in baseball who had so much energy and enthusiasm. Unfortunately, he just didn't have enough talent to stick with our great team at that time, but what a fellow," he recalled.

The year was 1934 when the Cards won the National League pennant and added the World Series.

"When I came to the Cardinals, I was the first guy on the field and the last to leave. And boy, did he love to hit. When he connected, he could give that ball a ride as far as anyone, but he didn't hit it often enough to stick.

"A guy like Jake would be welcomed on any club today. I've never seen anyone work as hard as Jake did that spring. He even carried the bats out to the field and did all kinds of errands. It nearly broke my heart when he had to ship him out," Frisch added.

"Whenever our paths crossed, Frisch would always bring up Banks' name."

Learned fast

Known as a prankster, Banks, in his first year with the Cards' big club which boasted the Dean Brothers, Dizzy and Duffy, Pepper Martin, Phil Minton and Frankie Frisch, a playing manager, learned fast.

Banks was assigned to catch Dazzy Vance, for many years one of the top pitchers in the National League, who was near the end of the trail when he hooked on with the Cards after starring with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Vance could really throw a curve ball," Frisch recalled. "I warned Banks to be extra careful when warming him up."

"I walked back to the dugout and I told him to warm up. I said I'd be there in ten minutes. He said, 'I've heard so much about you.'"

"Old Dazzy obliged and threw it. Banks let out a yell and dropped his glove. The ball broke the middle finger on his throwing hand."

Coaches' corner

By JACK HOLIK
Manchester High

As the old saying goes, "mistakes will kill you." Never was an axiom so apt as in our game against Simsbury (14-0 loss).

Three offenses penalties by our defense allowed the Trojans to sustain their opening drive until they finally reached paydirt. Misreads on a third-and-10 down play set up Simsbury's second score.

A fumble at the Simsbury 27 killed our first drive and as we got moving again in the fourth quarter, a delay of game penalty squandered that effort.

Also, Tri-captain Mike Linsenbigler, playing his first game as nose guard, turned in an admirable performance.

However, we can't have the defense on the field 70 per cent of the time and still expect to win. It seems every week we've had a breakdown in a different aspect of our offensive attack. Hopefully this Saturday, we can put it altogether.

This week we took an Enfield High game to a breakaway and again at 2:30 the second overtime period on another breakdown of O'Reilly.

East outstayed Seminary, 16-11, with Rich Thurston making six saves to register the shutout. East goalie Don Martin had eight stops.

Out for year

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Bengals' General Manager Paul Brown announced Wednesday veteran linebacker Ron Pritchard will undergo knee surgery next week and will be lost for the season and is being placed on the injured reserve list.

Red Sox sale off indefinitely

Herald sports

THURSDAY, NOV. 3, 1977

BOSTON (UPI) — The proposed sale of the Boston Red Sox has been delayed indefinitely.

Executors of the estate of the late owner, Thomas Yawkey, asked the American League to call off today's meeting of other AL owners, who were to vote on whether to approve the transfer of ownership.

"Postponement was caused by the suit filed in Boston by another bidder for the franchise," AL President Lee MacPhail said in messages to the league owners. "No future date for the meeting has been set at this time."

A suit was filed in Boston Tuesday by A-T-O Corp. of Ohio, which reportedly submitted the highest of five bids, $18.75 million, to buy the Red Sox. The trustees had accepted a bid of $16 million from a 13-member group headed by Haywood Soderholm and Buddy Lefoux and including Mrs. Jean Yawkey, wife of the late owner and one of three executors of the estate.

On Tuesday in Boston, Suffolk County Probate Judge Mary Fitzpatrick had declined to issue an injunction requested by A-T-O to stop the sale of the Red Sox to the Sullivan-LeRoux group. However, it was dismissed without prejudice and was dismissed without prejudice and the A-T-O spokesman said that leaving the company with legal standing to challenge the sale later.

Joseph LaCour, one of the executors, said he requested the postponement because of the A-T-O action.

"...it wasn't fair to ask the owners to travel the long distances to meet in New York with the suit unsettled," LaCour said, "and we didn't want to make the American League possible parties to the action."

"We will be trying very hard to have this issue settled by the end of the month and before the winter meetings in Hawaii."

However, MacPhail said there "really wasn't any discussion about when a meeting would be held on the postponement."

Sullivan said he was not surprised at the postponement.

"Anything of the magnitude of the purchase of the Red Sox would produce a number of problems," Sullivan said. "We have been through some of them already, and we are confident this one will also be solved."

Following postponement of the meeting, Lefoux, formerly Red Sox trainer, was named vice president in charge of administration. Earlier this month former catcher Sullivan was named general manager.

Sullivan's group known as Boston Red Sox Associates, whose bid was accepted by the executors Sept. 29

Soderholm AL comeback player of year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eric Soderholm of the Chicago White Sox started the 1977 baseball season as perhaps the least glamorous of the recovery-draft players and finished as the American League's comeback player of the year.

The 29-year-old third baseman was presented the honor by a panel of 24 UPI sports writers Wednesday, by a vote of 8-5 over outfielder Bobby Bonds of the California Angels.

"It's an honor and I wanted it more than anything," said Soderholm, who batted 280 with 25 homers and 67 runs batted in last season. "I'm highly goal-oriented and this was one of them. It's a greater honor because I met one of my goals. It was hard work and a lot of credit should go to the Nautilus."

The Nautilus is a complex exercise machine, on which Soderholm worked during 1976 when he was sidelined with a knee injury. Soderholm credits his work on the machine with rehabilitating his knee and plans to work on it again this winter.

"It was a fantastic year," commented Soderholm, who entered the re-entry draft virtually unnoticed. "Bill Veck and I were both pretty down a year ago — I didn't know if I had a career left and he was in tough financial shape. We both made it."

Soderholm agreed to a contract, which guaranteed him $55,000 if he made the White Sox after spring training and $27,500 if he was cut. He is believed to have signed a two-year contract for $100,000 for 1978 and 1979.

O'Reilly receives reprieve

BOSTON (UPI) — Terry O'Reilly of the Boston Bruins has a reprieve but it might be only temporary.

O'Reilly and Bruins officials had said Tuesday they were informed by the National Hockey League O'Reilly had been suspended for three games for throwing a glove at the head of referee Denis Mors and bumping into him during a game in Minnesota last week.

NHL Vice President Brian O'Neill announced Wednesday he had made no decision and would be in Boston today to hear O'Reilly's side of the story.

Coach Don Cherry is disturbed over the possibility of losing O'Reilly, a hard-working right wing who has two goals and six assists to lead the team in scoring. The Bruins play Buffalo tonight.

Fred Shero (Philadelphia Flyers) coach said he just about O'Reilly, Cherry said. "All those years everyone thought the Bruins were Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito. All along, the heart of the team was Terry O'Reilly."

Boston General Manager Harry Sinden said "justice prevails" when he heard O'Reilly would get a hearing but he had doubts about O'Neill.

"He said he already reviewed the case and made a decision," Sinden said. "Now he's going to change it and admit he's wrong? I think the hearing should be conducted by somebody other than O'Neill."

The Bruins are 3-3 and third in the Adams Division. Buffalo is 5-2-1 and second in the same division.

Eagle booters bow in finale

East Catholic soccer ended the 1977 season with a complete collapse and suffered a 2-0 overtime defeat at the hands of inspired St. Thomas Seminary yesterday in Bloomfield.

Coach Tom Malin's contingent wins up with a 3-3 mark. East scored 21 goals and allowed 27, losing four one-goal victories.

It was scoreless after regulation with Seminary's Steve Gondak scoring at 1:52 of the first extra score on a breakaway and again at 2:30 of the second overtime period on another breakdown of O'Reilly.

East outstayed Seminary, 16-11, with Rich Thurston making six saves to register the shutout. East goalie Don Martin had eight stops.

Kicker dropped

ATLANTA (UPI) — Nick Mike-Mayer, who missed 12 of 19 field goals this season, was released by the Atlanta Falcons Wednesday to make room for new kicker Fred Steinfour.

The left-footed Steinfour was Oakland's fifth-round draft choice last season, but was replaced by veteran Earl Mann in midseason when he failed to kick up to expectations.

Manchester girls shoot for swim crown

Manchesters girls shoot for swim crown

Manchester standout Chris White and Windham star Katy Povel are expected to duel, Cindy Devlin and for the girls' swimming crown. White, of UConn swim coach Pete McDevitt, are two others to watch.

Windham also has a strong diving contingent which could help in the difference.

Both teams are basically the same from a year ago. That meet Windham took by a 9-41 count.

Along with league foes the two tank crews have one common opponent, East swim East Catholic and both Manchester and Windham won by 8-84 scores.

It should prove interesting Friday when they head-to-head for league honors.

Paul Gardner's big night leads Colorado to win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Things are looking up for Colorado center Paul Gardner — as he looks down upon the rest of the National Hockey League scorers.

A season-high McNichols arena crowd of 8,465 was on hand to see the center score a pair of goals and add an assist as the Rockies skied past the New York Islanders, 6-2, Wednesday night.

Gardner's performance tied him with the New York Islanders' Bryan Trottier for the league point lead with 18 goals.

Colorado now trails the Chicago Black Hawks by a single point in the Smythe Division.

The foot, 183-pound Gardner has scored 10 goals in his last seven games.

"This is the first experience I've had against good players and it's the thrill of my life to lead the league," Gardner said.

Rookie Barry Beck broke a 2-2 tie with just over eight minutes left in the game and the Rockies added three more goals.

Walt Tkaczuk and rookie Lucif DeLoore — with his first NHL goal — tallied for New York.

Elsewhere in the National Hockey League, Montreal and Atlanta tied, 2-2. Detroit defeated Pittsburgh, 3-1.

Washington and Chicago skied to a 2-2 tie, Minnesota edged the New York Islanders, 3-2.

Chicago tied St. Louis, 4-4. Toronto topped Vancouver, 5-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Houston Aeros rallied for a 5-3 victory over the Birmingham Bulls and Winnipeg beat

Howe was Esposito's idol

NEW YORK (UPI) — The older he gets, the more Phil Esposito remembers his first love affair.

He was only a kid then, but he idolized the Los Angeles Kings' star center, Stanley Cup playoff berth they hoped it would, but they can't really blame that on him, because he led the league in power play goals last season and has lost none of that old touch he had with the Bruins.

When he first came to the Rangers in November of 1975, he complained about everything, was booed repeatedly by the fans and reprimanded by his boss, John Ferguson, for his rudeness with the media.

Gradually, though, Esposito changed. He stopped kicking about the fans, the media and such things as the condition of the ice or of traffic on the way from his home to Madison Square Garden.

And the better he began accepting all these circumstances, the more he began to be accepted by everyone else surrounding him.

Another disturbing element when he first arrived with the Rangers was the recognition factor. In Boston, where hockey sometimes ranks second only to godliness, everybody instantly recognized Esposito for the outstanding player he was and knew him. In New York, even Greg Garbo walks unrecognized.

But Esposito has gotten used to that and it doesn't bother him so much anymore. In New York or anywhere else.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Eddie (not his real name) and I have been steady for four years. The 26 and Eddie's 26. We definitely planned on getting married, but here's the problem. Eddie says we can't get married until he pays his parents back for putting him through college. Otherwise we'd be getting married on his parents' money.

DEAR GIRL: I think Eddie should be commended for wanting to repay his parents, but it seems to me that's a five-year stay. Stalls are for horses and other four-legged animals. I'd say "Nay."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl with a story to tell. Last night about 9 p.m. I was walking home alone from the public library. I live 4 blocks from there. The wind was blowing hard, and it was very cold. Besides, I had a car pulled up alongside the curb, and a nice-looking man opened the door and asked, "Want a ride?"

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for sharing your experience. It contains valuable advice.

DEAR ABBY: Eddie (not his real name) and I have been steady for four years. The 26 and Eddie's 26. We definitely planned on getting married, but here's the problem. Eddie says we can't get married until he pays his parents back for putting him through college.

DEAR GIRL: I think Eddie should be commended for wanting to repay his parents, but it seems to me that's a five-year stay. Stalls are for horses and other four-legged animals. I'd say "Nay."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl with a story to tell. Last night about 9 p.m. I was walking home alone from the public library. I live 4 blocks from there.

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for sharing your experience. It contains valuable advice.

Dagon says council must be responsive

By MAL BARLOW East Hartford Reporter

"You must be responsive," said George Dagon, chairman of the East Hartford Town Council, as he tried to define a good politician.

Dagon ran for public office for the first time in 1967. He graduated from the University of Connecticut, the Air Force and was a supply sergeant until 1952.

Dagon graduated from East Hartford High School (EHHS) in 1947 when it was still in the building now called Center School.

Over the past 10 years, Dagon has been involved in many town projects. While speaking to an EHHS class last week, he answered questions about why he decided to build the school's newest wing the way he did.

Dagon, 48, was born and raised in East Hartford. His father had been born on the Wickham Farm which is now Wickham Park off Burnside Avenue. His uncle, Frank Dagon, was fire chief in town up to the mid 1960s.

Dagon 48, was born and raised in East Hartford. His father had been born on the Wickham Farm which is now Wickham Park off Burnside Avenue.

He is now a volunteer parent and saw how the K-through-8 system worked. She said the younger children were "petrified" by the older ones.

She regretted the opposition to her candidacy but said she means it about middle schools. "This is the way I feel. A middle school is a necessary thing, a good thing."

She worked in the Hockanum School last year as a volunteer parent and saw how the K-through-8 system worked. She said the younger children were "petrified" by the older ones.

All his father's five children still live in East Hartford. They are Caroline O'Neal, James (a fire fighter), Doris O'Connor, and Ann Barlow.

Back in town, he attended the University of Hartford nights studying business while working for Gerber Products Co. as a salesman.

He also chaired the PBC as Penney's expansion went forward and the Langford School was built.

"EHHS is a beautiful building. I think it will still be beautiful in another 20 years."

He praised architect Robert Butterfield who designed the original building in 1954 as well as the expansion.

The achievement of which Dagon is most proud is the town's paramedics.

Busing worries more and more

Mrs. Denise Benoit, president of the Center School PTA, said more and more people are joining the parents' group who are concerned about students being bused away from the school.

She thought she and a few other parents were alone in their concerns a few weeks ago. They attended a Board of Education meeting and found out that many parents shared their views.

More parents from Center encouraged them. Some actively supported them. Parents from Hockanum School including Joseph Larosa joined them.

Mrs. Benoit said Tuesday there are now about 50 parents working with her. They are phoning voters and passing out fliers on the issue.

Right now, the main focus of their work is on the campaign for a two-year term on the Board of Education. Voters will choose in the town elections Nov. 8 for Mrs. Joan Flannery (D) who favors separate schools for upper grades and Mrs. Elsie Whitford (R) who doesn't.

"We want to let the people of this town know we'll be left with no middle school children attending school on the west side of town. They'll all be bused from here to schools on the east side."

She said members of all six neighborhood associations in the East Hartford Citizens Action Group (EHCAG) have voiced support. They do not want children bused away from their neighborhoods.

Flannery comments: Mrs. Flannery said Tuesday, "I opened up a whole big can of worms." She regretted the opposition to her candidacy but said she means it about middle schools.
