New HUD plan causes concern

By SUSAN VAUGHN and MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporters

Officials in area towns today expressed concern about the implication of proposed regulations for the new federal community development grant program which would permit cities like Hartford to buy buildings in neighboring suburbs to house low-income urban residents.

The regulations, proposed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) last month, are designed to provide more housing for low to moderate income families and to reduce the concentration of poor persons in the nation's cities.

In Manchester, Assistant Town Manager Charles McCarthy said it may be too soon to comment on the proposal since the regulations have not yet been passed, but he said he was aware of several revisions that are being considered regarding the grants.

Outgoing Mayor Matthew Moriarty said he would be totally opposed to the idea of Hartford buying property in Manchester, based on the input he has received from residents on such matters. He said he is sure the majority of citizens would be opposed because it would pose an additional burden on the tax base.

Vivian Ferguson, a member of the Board of Directors, said that the proposal would have a "tremendous impact" on Manchester and would raise concerns among residents about "The City of Village Charm" losing its image.

"While we are not against people, per se, I think we have to be concerned about housing—especially low-income housing," she said.

She said that she would take a "very cautious" approach to any such proposal.

Town Director Carl Zinsser, a Republican incumbent, said he would be opposed to the City of Hartford coming into Manchester. He questioned who would pay the taxes on the property and said he is not sure such acquisitions would meet the zoning regulations.

Zinsser also said he does not like towns being forced by the federal government to institute programs because the original intent of the Community Development Act was to let towns decide for themselves what they wanted.

Stephen Penny, the only incumbent Democratic town director, also raised the question of Hartford paying the taxes on the property. He said moving people into Manchester would have an impact because low income areas often require a greater number of community services. He referred to the impact of the federal moderate income housing at Squire Village on the crowding of schools in that area of town. Penny added that he is not committing himself for or against the proposal since he only heard of it this morning.

HUD's plans will be on the "front burner" for the East Hartford Town Council after elections no matter who wins, said Council Chairman George Dagon this morning.

Dagon said it will probably be on the agenda for the council at its first meeting after Tuesday's elections.

"Everyone's a little afraid of something they don't know about," Dagon said. "But after we study it, we'll be able to deal with it."

"It will certainly have an impact especially on a town like East Hartford which will get some spillover of people from the city anyway as it is so close."

The mayor was not available for comment.

Vernon Town Planner John Loranger said he has the HUD regulations on his desk. They came in the mail Thursday. But he has yet to study them.

"Up to now, Vernon has taken part in HUD funding," he said.

He said the mayor and his staff as well as the Town Council will have to know a lot more about it before they decide what to do about the new proposals.

Local municipal officials, who received HUD's proposed regulations a few days ago, have been asked to submit to the federal agency by Nov. 18 their impression of the plan to let big cities buy suburban buildings to house their poor.

Lawrence Thompson, HUD's Hartford-area director, said Thursday he's not sure exactly what impact the regulations, which are part of a federal housing development grant program, will have when they come out in their final form.

But asked if the regulations as they are now proposed would allow Hartford to buy an apartment building in Glastonbury, for example, Thompson said, "I don't see how could it mean anything else."

Hartford-area officials had mixed reactions to the regulations.

"We'd consider it (the plan)," said Hartford's chief city planner, Johnathon C. Colman. "We'd certainly look into it."

Town lacks applicants for skilled CETA jobs

The Town of Manchester is having trouble getting applicants for some of its skilled positions through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program and might lose the positions if they are not filled soon.

Six skilled positions—three junior engineering aides, a building inspector, a staff nurse and a planning draftsman—have only one applicant each, Steven Werber, personnel assistant, said.

In fact, for the three junior engineering aides, which are inspector positions in the Engineering and Highway Departments, there have been only two applicants, he said.

There have been several applicants for the other positions, Werber said. The town received 12 jobs and the Board of Education received ten jobs through the latest appropriation of CETA positions.

The Board of Education has received a sufficient number of applicants for its seven classroom and clerical CETA positions, a spokeswoman said.

The applications for three other custodial positions are being handled by Wilfred Dion, supervisor of school buildings, who could not be reached for comment this morning.

Werber said that the Department of Labor will be inspecting the Hartford Comprehensive Manpower office next week to analyze its enrollment figures. That Hartford office supervises the CETA program for Manchester and many other area towns.

If positions are not filled, they may be cut following the analysis of the Hartford office enrollment, Werber said.

Manchester had hoped to fill its positions by the middle of this month.

That deadline might be hard to reach if the lack of applicants continues, Werber said.

Applicants for the positions must be Manchester residents and must have been unemployed for at least 30 days. They are required to contact the Manchester Comprehensive Manpower office at 806 Main St. to make sure that they are eligible for the program.

The positions were approved on Oct. 11 by the Town Board of Directors. At the time of approval, some members questioned whether all the positions could be filled from the town's unemployed ranks.

Joblessness rises to 7 percent

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Unemployment rose slightly to 7 percent in October, indicating no improvement in the nation's job market over the last seven months, the Labor Department reported today.

Blacks, men and factory employees—particularly steelworkers—were hardest hit by layoffs in October. Black unemployment rose again to 13 percent.

Unemployment has hovered stubbornly between 7.1 percent and 6.9 percent since last April. September's 6.9 percent rate represents a post-recession low.

President Carter, apparently discouraged by the lack of improvement in the job market, has promised to propose new measures next year to stimulate the nation's lagging economy—including some tax breaks.

Carter's own economic advisers concede they do not expect unemployment to fall any lower than 6.5 percent by the end of 1977, and 6 percent in 1978. Some independent economists view those predictions as optimistic.

Some 6.9 million Americans were unemployed in October, representing little change over the month. Total employment edged up 135,000 to 91.3 million—representing a 3.5 million increase over the past year.

A 7 percent unemployment rate is high by historical standards, but 2 percent below the recession peak of 1975.

Joblessness among blacks, which tends to fluctuate each month, rose 0.8 percent to 13.9 percent—meaning black unemployment has acutely increased over the past year.

Black unemployment peaked at 14.5 percent during the recession and returned to that level again in August—prompting a public call for Carter to do something for blacks.

The unemployment rate among men over age 25 rose to 4 percent in October, the highest level in the past eight months. This coincided with a decline in factory jobs, including steel layoffs and an aerospace workers strike.

Teen-age and female unemployment meanwhile declined slightly, and joblessness among white workers held steady at 6.1 percent for the fourth straight month.

Total unemployment has fallen by more than 600,000 over the past year, with most of the decline occurring among persons laid off from their previous jobs.

Men and teen-agers took most of the newly created jobs in October, but over the year women have filled about half of the 3.5 million additional openings. Most new openings in October occurred in construction, services and the finance industry.

Skateboard patent in dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal regulatory agency is ready to enter into what could become known as the Great Skateboard Controversy.

The International Trade Commission was expected to vote today to investigate a patent infringement complaint filed by a Los Angeles, Calif., skateboard magnate named Richard Stevenson.

Stevenson has been awarded a federal patent on what is known among skateboarders as the "kick tail," the curved rear-end of the skateboard's fiberglass platform that allows riders to perform stunts and make 180-degree turns on a dime.

The problem, according to Stevenson's formal complaint, is that other domestic and foreign skateboard manufacturers also use the kick tail on their boards and that costs him money.

The financial stakes are mind-boggling.

Industry spokesmen say, 20 million Americans own 60 million skateboards. This compares with 500,000 skateboard owners in 1973, when the fad returned to vogue with the advent of polyurethane wheels and other modernizations.

There are currently 150 skateboard parks in the United States, an explosion when compared with the "handful" operating in 1976, a spokesman said.

By the end of 1978 skateboarding is expected to approach the $2 billion mark in annual sales of boards and related equipment such as knee pads and helmets.

Both industry-supplied estimates are higher than government statistics, which show 14 million people currently owning skateboards, and say the industry will have sales of about $500 million this year and $1 billion in 1978.

Stevenson, a former partner in California surfboard and sailboat ventures, filed a complaint with the International Trade Commission asking that foreign-made skateboards from Taiwan, Mexico and Honduras that utilize the kick tail be banned from this country.

Currently, about 5 percent of the skateboards sold in the United States are imported.

Stevenson has also filed a lawsuit in federal court seeking to block six domestic manufacturers from using his kick tail.

Donald Dinan, an ITC attorney who is heading the skateboard probe, said there is little doubt of the implications.

"The growth curve for skateboards is straight up," he said. "Manufacturers literally can't make them fast enough."

But, he said, based on past experiences on patent complaints, Stevenson's chances of being upheld are about 50-50.

Those in line at 8 can vote

HARTFORD (UPI)—Two election law changes could have a big impact on voters casting their ballots next week, Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer said today.

Mrs. Schaffer, Connecticut's top election official, said the changes will allow voters in line when the polls close at 8 p.m. to cast their ballots and insure that persons who have moved within a specific town may vote.

"For the first time in the election history of Connecticut, people who are in line to vote at 8 p.m. when the polls officially close, but who have not yet been checked off on the registry lists, will be allowed to vote," she said. "This marks a radical departure from past procedure which allowed only those to vote whose names had been checked off by the registrars prior to the 8 p.m. deadline."

The second change allows persons who have moved to a new address within the same town to add their names to the new registry list on election day. However, such persons must provide proof they remain legal residents of that community and their names must be on one of the two previous year's lists or the current year's preliminary list.

"In other words," Mrs. Schaffer said, "as long as it can be proven that the voter's move is within the boundary of the city or town where he or she was previously registered, the voter is no longer required to re-register to vote."

Mrs. Schaffer said a series of state workshops for voting moderators appeared to have been successful and she was hoping for a relatively "trouble-free" election Tuesday when municipal elections are held in most Connecticut communities.

She said she was "hoping" for a 70 percent voter turnout, but conceded she was being "optimistic."

News Summary

Compiled from United Press International

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—State auditors say there are shortcomings in the Department of Children and Youth Services' accounting practices.

Auditors Henry Becker and Leo Donohue said Thursday the department had failed to submit an annual inventory of all its property as required by law.

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—The law firm of Hartford Democratic Town Chairman Peter G. Kelly has become a bond counsel for the state.

State Treasurer Henry E. Parker said Thursday he added the firm of Kelly, Updike & Spellacy to the state bond work list this year because he wants "as broad a group as possible in the state bond program and they are very qualified."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Air Force officials have already decided to recommend cuts of more than 83 percent at Loring Air Force Base in Limestone, Maine, even though they say the decision hasn't been made. Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, says.

Cohen said Thursday that he believes the Air Force has made its decision "notwithstanding all their public pronouncements to the contrary" and the final plea to keep Loring may have to be made to President Carter.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Saying the walkout could cause "irremediable harm" to the Ivy League school, a group of legislators has asked both sides in the Yale University blue collar workers' strike to resume negotiations.

Rep. Irving Stolberg, D-New Haven, speaking for nine New Haven area lawmakers, Thursday sent letters requesting such action to Acting Yale President Hannah Grey and Vincent J. Sirabella, the business manager for striking Local 35 of the Federation of University Employees.

The Defense Department has told New England's congressional caucus it is considering renewed military activity in the region, a move that could partially compensate for devastating pullouts in 1973-74. Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., said Thursday the Navy was studying the effects of moving four destroyers back to Newport, R.I.—the site of massive cutbacks four years ago when the Atlantic Destroyer Fleet was moved to Norfolk, Va.

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, trying to drum up public support for the Panama Canal treaties he helped negotiate, said Thursday Senate failure to ratify the pacts would be a "shattering blow" to all of Latin America.

Issuing his second warning in as many days, Bunker told a news conference the people of Panama "are expecting the treaties will be approved by our Senate."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A decision by the Senate apparently has cleared the way for Congress to complete work this year on legislation updating the Social Security system, but the outlook for a settlement of the abortion fight remains doubtful. The Social Security measure, already passed by the House, had been threatened with delaying tactics that could have put off the matter until the congressional session resumes in January.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The U.N. General Assembly has unanimously approved an appeal to all nations to unite and end the threat of air hijackings, averting an international pilot strike. The resolution approved Thursday by the 149-nation General Assembly called on all nations to sign anti-hijacking treaties and stiffen airport security to prevent hijackers from boarding planes carrying weapons.

Second case verified of Legionnaires disease

HARTFORD (UPI) - A second case of Legionnaires disease has been confirmed in Connecticut, but this one was not fatal. State health officials Thursday got confirmation from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta that a 60-year-old man taken to Bristol Hospital in mid-September had Legionnaires disease.

many persons are unemployed, they lack required skills and in some cases do not have the basic educational tools which would allow them to be adequately trained. Donald W. Davis, chairman of the C.B.I.A. board, said he could not specify the exact number of job openings statewide, but said it might total as many as 25,000.

It is about 60. He said Connecticut's traditionally large numbers of such cases do not have the basic educational tools which would allow them to be adequately trained. He conceded business groups traditionally have opposed formation of another layer of government bureaucracy, but he said this case was different. He said private industry is cutting back its apprentice programs because they are too expensive.

State government lacks a planning group, the major responsibility of which is utilization of labor market information and formulating an overall policy which includes the manpower development goals of the Departments of Labor, Education, Social Services, Commerce and Corrections," Davis said. He said such an office could help supplement programs developed by private industry which he said are declining in number.

The CDC earlier this fall was sent blood samples from 15 Connecticut residents suffering from respiratory illnesses. Test results on many of the other cases are incomplete, state health officials said. The CDC has identified 73 cases of the disease in recent months in 25 states and the District of Columbia. There have been 16 deaths.

Confirmation of the disease has been delayed because the tests involve two blood samples taken 21 days apart and then sent to Atlanta. The lab there is the only one in the country that can confirm the existence of Legionnaires disease. State Health Commissioner Dr. Douglas Lloyd said evidence is mounting that indicates Legionnaires disease is present wherever it is searched for. He said it can be present in isolated cases without causing an epidemic. The disease was named after an outbreak at an American Legion convention in Philadelphia in 1976.

Taxpayer's safe landing

Remember the national controversy that erupted back in 1971 when President Nixon asked Congress to guarantee $250 million in loans to the near-bankrupt Lockheed Aircraft Corp.?

The deal was promptly labeled a bail-out and even many business leaders opposed it, fearing it would set a "dangerous precedent." The debate continued hot and heavy for three months, until the bill squeaked through the House of Representatives by three votes and through the Senate, after a long filibuster against it, by just one.

There simply was too much at stake to risk letting one of the nation's major manufacturers of military and civilian aircraft (among other products) go under, taking tens of thousands of employees with it.

Fortunately for Lockheed, the series of scandals involving payoffs to foreign officials did not surface until several years later; otherwise, its corporate goose would have been cooked.

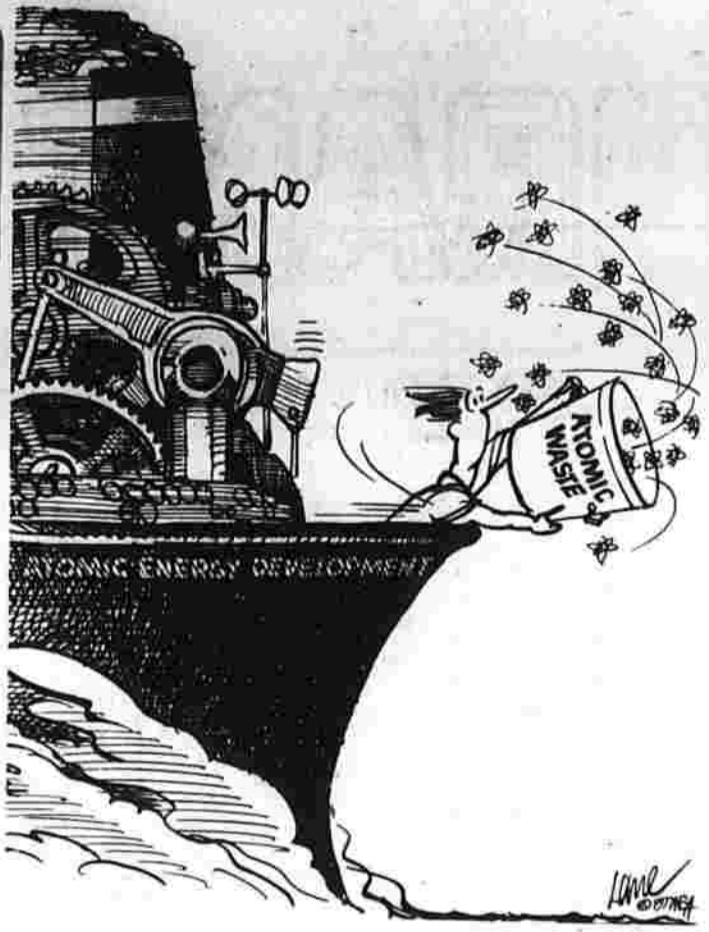

The books have now been closed. Lockheed and the government's Emergency Loan Guarantee Board have now agreed to terminate the loan because of the company's improved financial position.

The best part of this news is that not only did the board not have to advance a single nickel under the guarantee during the past six years, it earned $31 million in fees from Lockheed's bankers.

It did not look like a good policy then, and it does not now, for the government to get in the habit of rescuing private companies from the consequences of their own mismanagement for the perils of the marketplace. But obviously, the government hasn't, and the Lockheed loan guarantee really was the special case the Nixon administration said it was.

Lockheed Corp. — the "Aircraft" — was dropped at a September stockholders' meeting, the first such since 1968 — isn't out of the woods yet. It still has debts of more than $600 million and its creditors, although confident of its ability to repay them, won't let Lockheed declare a dividend.

But as far as the U.S. taxpayer is concerned, the story is over — with a happy ending for everyone.

A change of heart

Today is celebrated by Church Women United around the globe as "World Community Day." — Global theme of "Heart Change" — Global Change focuses, as always, on some aspect of justice and peace. It is a call for a change of heart which can help free all people by enabling them to live decently and humanely. It is a call to reach out to the earth, to the free people in our own community, our own land — as well as the free people in distant lands.

In the service this year, water — one of the most basic human-growth needs — is used to symbolize fruitfulness, life, justice.

The Holy Scriptures speak often of justice. In Isaiah 32:15-17 God promises his spirit will be poured out, and justice will be the fruit. Agai in Isaiah 41:17-18 this pouring out is described as God's gentle and generous giving to the have-nots — the promise of water and its fruitfulness. We hear the Lord's promise to do justice for his people who are in the land of the living for a change of heart. For it is His people who must

South Africa: The crime of truth

By LEE RODERICK

WASHINGTON — When Percy Qoboza, respected editor of South Africa's largest black newspaper, The World, was arrested and dragged off to jail the other day, vivid memories of a long conversation with Qoboza in his Johannesburg office two years ago came flooding back.

My notes from that interview deepen a suspicion that he was silenced and The World shut down not because they helped "create a revolutionary climate," as charged by the government, but because they have steadfastly refused to renounce the first tenet of journalism: To tell the truth.

It has been the government's draconian policies that have created the revolutionary climate. Those policies, directly or indirectly, have led to the mysterious deaths of 20 prominent blacks in South African jails within the past 19 months — including Steve Biko, the latest casualty, whose death was first linked to a hunger strike but who is now known to have suffered severe brain damage from a blow to the head.

The latest sweeping crackdown on the National Party's critics included the closing of two other newspapers, outlawing of at least 17 antigovernment organizations, and arrest of 70 black leaders — called by a leading member of parliament the "last of the moderates."

Prime Minister John Vorster and his "justice" minister Jimmy Kruger have defended their actions as necessary to stem the black consciousness movement sweeping the country. They might just as well try to amputate the Cape of Good Hope with an ice pick.

In the case of Qoboza, a small, soft-spoken man who kept a photograph of Martin Luther King above his desk, Vorster and Kruger were half-right: He is passionately concerned over the welfare of his fellow black countrymen. And he was an activist. He had returned from the United States just before I met him in 1975 after

No victory for consumer

Dear editor:

In no way can the Public Utilities Control Authority (PUCA) decision to grant Northeast Utilities a $35 million rate increase be considered a victory for the consumers. This is so even though Northeast Utilities asked for $80 million and has to settle for only 40 percent of that.

In the first place, as pointed out by David Silverstone, former state consumer counsel, and the Connecticut Citizens Action Group (CCAG), the $35 million is more than enough to complete Millstone III in 1982 as the PUCAs has recommended and at the same time insure that investors get an increase in the rate of return. In spite of these facts, Northeast Utilities is howling about the decision and is threatening layoffs and delaying completion of Millstone III until 1986. This threat alone seems to buttress the argument that CCAG and others have offered that Northeast Utilities has too much overcapacity already. It has been estimated that its overcapacity is between 50 and 60 percent. The federal government recommends 20 percent overcapacity while the national average is about 30 percent. Considering the slow growth in Connecticut's population coupled with the national efforts toward energy conservation, maybe 1986 is a better year than 1982 to complete

Dicing with death

In 1975, bowing to pressure from motorists, Congress decided to stop penalizing states without helmet-use laws through the withholding of federal highway funds.

Since then, according to the American Motorcyclist Association, 23 states have amended their laws to permit helmetless riding. (Three other states either never had or never enforced helmet laws.)

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has been conducting a study in Kansas, one of the 23 states which eliminated its helmet requirement. Preliminary data from Kansas show that since repeal of the law:

— The number of head injuries suffered by motorcyclists has increased 70 percent.

The chances of head injuries are 81 percent greater for motorcyclists not wearing a helmet than for those wearing a helmet.

— The severity of head injuries is 56 percent greater for helmetless motorcyclists than for those wearing a helmet at the time of injury.

— The death rate for those not wearing a helmet is 310 percent greater than the death rate for those wearing a helmet at the time of accident.

Motorcyclists asked for "right" to risk their lives. They've got it, and that's exactly what they're doing.

Sadloski

Betty Sadloski, Republican candidate for town treasurer, has accused her opponent of not commenting on some of the issues raised during the campaign.

"I have raised many issues that are a serious problem to the taxpayers of Manchester. My opponent has refused to comment," she said, referring to Democratic Treasurer Roger Negro.

She mentioned that he turned down an offer to debate that was made Monday and he did not answer a questionnaire from the Manchester State Bank on the depositing on tax money.

"The people are being denied his viewpoints when he refuses to talk. Just giving figures does not explain anything since they are not compared with anything," she said.

Mrs. Sadloski also said that she has been surprised that the Democrats "are taking credit for everything that has happened in Manchester."

She said that there were Republican members on the approving boards and that voters and taxpayers have voted and paid for the schools and roads that were built.

She also said that the Democrats have suggested many improvements that they have not made, even though they have been in power for six years.

"The same promises were made two years ago and nothing was done once they were re-elected," she said.

Sweeney

Joseph Sweeney, a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors, has called Republican claims that the town budget will have a deficit "an outright falsehood."

He said that a report from Controller Thomas Moore said that certain changed economic conditions at the end of the first three months of the budget year called for caution in how the town spends its budget allocations during the next nine months.

"This is no different from the housewife who runs a little over her weekly food budget, but who still manages to stay within her over-all budget," Sweeney said.

"There never has been a deficit and there is not going to be a deficit," he said.

Sweeney said that one of the changed conditions was a fall-off in tax collection, a situation that should be corrected by

The Democratic candidates, inexperienced to a man, have been placed in the unenviable position of defending the lackadaisical, irresponsible record of their predecessors, all of whom have ducked out of this year's action to safer havens.

Resort city eyes a boom

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Master planners for this economically troubled seashore resort have proposed a 2,500-acre Convention Center to accommodate the millions of visitors expected to be lured by casino gambling.

Other suggestions include solving transportation problems by building a vehicular tunnel under the Boardwalk or an elevated monorail with overhanging cable cars similar to ski lifts.

The Convention Center would encompass a five-block center city section bounded by Texas and Ohio avenues and the Boardwalk and Inland Waterways, the city's master planners disclosed Wednesday.

Since 1965, Atlantic City has been in serious economic decline that has resulted in a population drop from 59,000 to 49,000.

Fat counts in diets

DEAR DR. LAMB - My friend and I have recently joined a club to lose weight - a lot of weight, and we are supposed to count our calories and keep a record of all foods we eat.

How much do you count for fats in a meal? I cut all fats, trim my meats, and stopped using butter, Crisco and margarine, along with cutting out my sugar and sweets. My friend contends that sweets are enough to omit, that the fats don't make that much difference.

She and her family live on hamburgers and french fries, fried chicken, pizza with sausage and that type of food. They all have upset stomachs and diarrhea and all are overweight and nervous. Will you comment please?

DEAR READER - The facts are that there are nine calories in one gram of fat, and about four calories in a gram of carbohydrates or protein. Even worse, fat tissue contains less water than muscle (lean) or the bulky vegetables and fruits. The water content affects the calorie count also.

Sugar contains a lot of calories because it contains almost no water. It is dehydrated and refined beet or cane juice. Usually the best place to cut calories from a diet is to eliminate all the fat that you can and eliminate the concentrated sweets such as sugar, candies, syrups, jellies and the like.

There will be some fat in almost all foods. Even fresh fruit contains a small amount of fat. There is fat in corn - hence corn oil - and some in most vegetables. But these amounts of fat are small.

compared to the amounts found in high fat foods, such as untrimmed pork chops, cold cuts, processed or cured cheese and the like.

To diet properly you really need to have an idea of the actual calorie counts of various foods you eat, whether the calories are from starches, sweets, fat, or protein. I am sending you The Health Letter 4-7.

Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this diet can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Don't forget to exercise while dieting. It will help a lot.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been taking vitamins A, B, C, and D for a year now. A nurse told me I need vitamin E I would not need A, B, C and D. My doctor says take a multiple vitamin mixture which includes A, B, C and D.

PAUL WILLHIDE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DEAR MANCHESTER VOTER: Education in our town involves hundreds of employees. Many of these employees belong to unions or other recognized organizations. Nearly 75% of local property taxes are applied to education.

I believe my background in business, personnel, and labor relations will enable me to make a positive contribution to the Board of Education.

THE ISSUES

Paid for by Sadloski for Treasurer Comm., Nancy LaRonne, Treas.

The present treasurer has refused to discuss the issues but I believe the people are interested in how government affects them. Anyone can and will earn interest on money invested with the paid advice of investment counselors. Naturally the more money collected in higher taxes the more interest. The Democrats have ordered Re-evaluation, though the notices were conveniently delayed till after election. This will cost almost everyone more.

The important issues are how the Treasurer handles the pension fund and the placement of town money. He quotes an increase in the pension fund but doesn't mention this year there was only 2.9% interest gained which is disgracefully low. The counselors warned that it may get worse yet but just denies there's a problem and does nothing about it.

There is the fact that town money is being put into Hartford banks which deprives Manchester residents of having it available for business loans and home mortgages.

Then there is the catering to political and special interests. Political when he kept silent while the pension fund was underfunded, then raided to pay the deficit. This will cost all taxpayers at least four mills under the Federal Pension Law.

Special interests as happened when the check for Case Mt. was given a week early costing the town over $5,000 in lost interest.

He has claimed he made the town into an AA rating on the Standard & Poor Index. This is not true. The Manchester Property Owners Assoc. and the voters did that by defeating wasteful and unneeded bond issues. Low bonding indebtedness gives a town a good rating. Neither he nor the Democrats are responsible for that. The common sense of the voters and taxpayers accomplished that fact.

Finally there is the question of the salary which should be only $6,000 for part-time work. He requested and took a raise knowing the voters had refused raises in the last Charter Revision vote.

These are the issues, the office needs someone who will think like a taxpayer, for the taxpayers. I promise to fulfill that requirement as I have been doing for years in fighting for the best government at the least cost.

Home got $2.4 million from Medicaid in 1976

The Meadows Convalescent Home is one of the nursing facilities in Connecticut that received more than $1 million in state Medicaid reimbursements in 1976.

New Britain Memorial Hospital received the most money, $3.3 million. The Meadows Convalescent Home was next with $2.4 million.

Although the reimbursement looks like a lot of money, Michael Terelmas, an official of the Geri Care Nursing Centers of America which owns the Meadows and other nursing homes, said that in reality the nursing home is making very little money. Seventy percent of the operating costs goes for salaries and wages, Terelmas said. "The nursing home industry is an industry where you don't make a lot of money," he said. The Meadows lost about $1 million last year, he said, because of the low Medicaid reimbursement rate. Although it has been increased this year, it still doesn't entirely meet the estimated $20 per day per bed cost in the skilled nursing area, Terelmas said. He explained that the administration tries to make up the cost differential from the fees paid by private patients.

Geri Care owns 19 nursing facilities in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Florida.

Data process group readying its report

The subcommittee of the Manchester Data Processing Advisory Committee is now ready to work with figures and compile information for a recommendation to the Board of Directors.

The subcommittee, a work study group, Wednesday night heard James Turek, town collector of revenue, present a summary of observations relative to the computer system which is being used by his department. The computer system, Turek explained, has been used since last July.

Turek compared an estimated yearly cost operation of the Burroughs system (in use for several years) at $12,333 to about $10,000 for the new IBM system which includes one terminal.

Turek strongly advised the addition of a second terminal. He said the overall effectiveness of the system would be substantially impaired by using just one. His statement was qualified as he described the long lines of town residents during the tax season waiting for information at the town tax office.

With more than one third of all daily activity being in-person transactions, Turek said that simultaneous input by two cashiers and inquiry by other office personnel with just one terminal would be unworkable.

An additional terminal would increase the estimated yearly cost of the new IBM system to about $11,000. Mechanical breakdowns in the Burroughs system have delayed the tax processing routines and have caused increasing inconvenience in the tax department.

Recommending a faster processing cycle in the system, Turek explained that the quicker the tax department could reconcile tax receipts, the sooner they could be given to the town treasurer for bank deposit and earlier interest.

In summing up the advantages of retaining the new computer system, Thomas Moore, town controller, said that it would provide better service to the taxpayers. He also said that the sooner the tax money reaches the town treasurer, the sooner it can be deposited and "made to work for the town."

He also reminded the group that recent tax legislation will affect the work operation of the tax department staff.

The data processing subcommittee will report its recommendation to the Board of Directors.

Absentee ballots that are taken from the office must be mailed and received by the town clerk's office by 8 p.m. Tuesday night, Edward Tomkiel, Manchester town clerk, said.

The ballot, however, may be filled out in the office, sealed and left with the town clerk to be opened with all other absentee ballots, Tomkiel said.

Manchester's office will be open from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday; South Windsor's will be open from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday and Vernon's will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday.

Republicans organize election day chores

Manchester's Republican Town Committee met Thursday night to organize for Election Day chores and talk about Election Day chances.

Predictions of Tuesday's outcome were positive.

"The signs are all looking good to me," Thomas Ferguson, town chairman, said. He said that some Democrats have told him that they are voting a straight Republican ticket.

"I went into the campaign confident. I'm going into the countdown very, very confident," Vivian Ferguson, seeking re-election to the Board of Directors, said.

Others who spoke predicted a landslide GOP victory.

The Democratic majority was attacked for its past performance.

Mrs. Ferguson criticized them for running what she called "the campaign of deception."

She mentioned the controversy about campaign signs, Democratic statements about the budget and the endorsement of the Democrats by the heads of the town firefighters union, an endorsement she called "a play set by Ted Cummings (Democratic town chairman)."

She also said that during August, when Town Manager Robert Weiss was on vacation, she asked Charles McCarthy, assistant town manager, about setting a special meeting on water. She said that McCarthy told her he first would have to ask Cummings about the idea.

"That's what's been going on at town hall," she said.

McCarthy, contacted this morning, had no comment on Mrs. Ferguson's statement.

Carl Zinsser, also seeking re-election to the board, said that the Democrats are not running a candidate who has worked before on a town budget.

He referred to what he considers present budget problems and said, "Imagine what they (the Democrats) would do with six new members."

There was also time for humor during the hour-long session.

Peter Difosa, a candidate for the Board of Directors, referred to the rigors of the campaign when he said, "People keep referring to me as the new face. A couple more days of this and I'm getting old."

Betty Sadloski, the party's candidate for town treasurer, and the mother of 11 said, "I never thought when I had those children they would come in handy, but they have."

Little Sandy Bender takes big ribbing

By JUDY KEHNEI

Nearly 200 persons turned out Thursday night to pay tribute to the "pretty lady from the mid-West" who became South Windsor's first woman mayor.

Sandra J. Bender, took jobs and teasing good-naturedly at the "roast" held at Ma Ma Mia's Restaurant in her honor by fellow Democrats.

Mrs. Bender announced some months back she would not seek reelection following two terms on the South Windsor Town Council.

"Sandy has proven women can do just as good a job as men and mediocrity knows no sex," quipped former Democratic Town Chairman Bill Young.

Toastmaster Vin Callahan reminisced about the first time he had ever met Sandy.

"Four years ago someone told me just as this little girl who might make a good candidate for council," joked Callahan. "So I went to the house to meet her, and there she was, sitting on the floor with a Barbie Doll."

Council clerk Winnie Wilson, whom Callahan described as "an authoritative woman behind an audience she helps Sandy to recognize the other council members."

"Ray (Danke) always begins with 'I'm a poor country boy,'" joked Mrs. Wilson. "Len (Sorosiak) starts with 'In my opinion, Bob Myette, I don't care what it is, just put it on Rye Street,'" and Ed Havens says 'As long as it doesn't cost any money.'"

"One of the few things Sandy has been successful at," joked Atty Ed Lassman, "is saving fuel. There has been so much hot air generated from the caucus room that the bills have really gone down."

The good-natured jokes were not limited to Mrs. Bender, however, and Democrats took the opportunity to needle each other with Sewer Commission Chairman Jim Throve often the victim.

"After being an ignored mayor, Jim Throve decided to get down to

The approval carries with it a grant of $22,715 which will be used to increase the existing pre-school and psychological examiners' time to work with children.

School officials said also a full-time learning disability teacher will be hired to help students needing increased time in the resource room.

A copy of the plan for the spending of this money will be on file at all school offices. Anyone interested in reviewing it may do so by asking at the offices.

Rockville's Arthur Drug moving to bigger store

By BARBARA RICHMOND

The Arthur Drug Store in Rockville will be expanding into larger quarters in the Rockville Shopping Plaza where its existing store is now located.

The announcement was made at Mayor Thomas Benoit's press conference Thursday afternoon and learned Rubin, owner of the plaza, credited encouragement of the present administration. Rubin said he was about ready to close up the whole area but town officials gave him such encouragement that he continued to pursue filling the vacant stores.

Arthur Yankin of Arthur Drug has made a firm commitment to move the present operations and Rubin said that a preliminary commitment has been made by another firm to move into the quarters being vacated by Arthur's.

Rubin said he is still negotiating the lease with this firm and expects it will be firming up in 30 to 45 days.

The move by Arthur's means that it will be expanding floor space from 5,500 square feet to almost 14,000 square feet.

James Mastriani, vice president of Arthur Drug, said the expanded space will mean the company can expand its stock. He said the new department will have a complete optical store.

State comments on water pipe complaint

Robert McGarity Jr., of 151 Hany Lane, Vernon, the resident who brought to light complaints about pinhole leaks in water pipes in his and other homes in Vernon, has received a letter from the State Office of Consumer Counsel commenting on complaints about the water from the Rockville Water Aqueduct Co., which services the town, was the cause of the leaky pipes.

The water company was recently granted a rate increase and the Public Utilities Control Authority (PUCA) upon granting the hike, asked the water company to make follow-up reports.

McGarity complained that the PUCA didn't direct the company as to the type of tests or procedures that should be implemented.

Michael J. Lanoue, staff attorney for the Consumer Counsel, told McGarity that his suggestion has merit to the extent that the authority would have control over the tests and controls and thereby would reduce the possibility of overruns.

But he also said the suggestion suffers from the problem of the authority directing the people closest and most informed about the problem.

"I believe the authority, while desiring to monitor

McCoy eyes city role, field lease

In his final statements of this campaign, Frank McCoy, Republican candidate for mayor of Vernon, promises to reassess the town's position with the City of Hartford and work out a new lease for town use of the American Legion Field.

McCoy, who previously served three terms as mayor, said a number of Vernon residents are disturbed over the failure of the Democratic administration to maintain its independence from the City of Hartford.

He said when he was mayor his administration fought the type of regionalism expounded by Nicholas Carbone and Richard Sotusman, Hartford councilmen. He said Mayor Thomas Benoit has "been involved in secret meetings with them and has continually heaped praise on them even as we were suffering from our powerlessness of the Benoit administration with the politically powerful Hartford machine so permeates our present government that even verbal insults of our people go unanswered by our so-called leader," McCoy said.

He promised, "When elected I will reassess our position, reexamine our independence but will return to a policy of cooperation, only when the problems and benefits are both mutual."

Regarding the lease for the Legion Field, McCoy said the town has failed to give written notice to Post 14 of the American Legion of its intention to renew the lease.

McCoy said the existing 10-year lease, expires in April 1978 and the town was supposed to give written notice by this past Oct. 1 if it wished to renew the lease under the same terms, for the additional 10 years.

"The loss of American Legion Field as a recreational area of the town would be a devastating blow to the softball program of the town and also to the independent youth organizations which use the field," McCoy said.

He said that during his terms as mayor improvements were made at the field such as a utility building with toilet facilities, a finished road and parking area, a stone fireplace and playground equipment. These were all made under conditions of the lease.

McCoy said during the past two years other requirements of the lease have not been met. These include a pavilion-type building and a suitable sign.

The legion has leased the field for town use for just $10 a year "and the Benoit administration has been grossly negligent in failing to renew this very favorable lease."

McCoy said "When elected I will immediately confer with American Legion officials as to working out a new lease."

He said he is service officer of Post 14 and he is optimistic "in view of the post's history of extreme generosity and cooperation."

"However, the loss of this lease is another example of the absolute ineptitude and incompetency of the Benoit administration," he said.

Library event signups set

Registrations for holiday programs at the Rockville Public Library will be accepted Nov. 7 through Nov. 12 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the children's department.

The "Potluck" program will return with a new set of activities for children in kindergarten through third grade. Story telling, collage-making, music, and holiday crafts are among the activities planned.

This program is scheduled for children in kindergarten through first grade on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and for those in second and third grade Wednesdays the same hours.

The programs are offered free to Vernon children and will run for a period of five weeks starting Nov. 15. Anyone wanting more information should contact Janet Smith at 872-4710.

'Indian Day' due Saturday

Children and adults will be able to see how the first native Americans chipped stone points and shaped bows at a special Indian Day Open House to be held at Wood Memorial Library, Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Robert E. Karalus of Glastonbury will demonstrate flint knapping and bow making during the event, which is being sponsored by the Albert Morgan Chapter of the Connecticut Archaeological Society as part of the three-day conference of the Eastern State Archaeological Federation meetings to be held in Hartford this weekend.

In addition to Karalus' demonstration, there will be several other experts on hand that day to talk with individuals and to identify artifacts anyone wishes to bring in. The permanent collection of the library will be augmented for the day by artifacts from Wood Chuck Knoll, a site in the South Windsor Meadows being worked under the direction of Dr. Douglas Jordan, state archaeologist. Also on display will be outstanding examples from the Bull collection, property of the University of Connecticut.

Among other special features will be a display of modern tools with their Indian counterparts. Refreshments will be served.

Rham committee favors idea of separate building

The Separate Structure Addition subcommittee of the Regional District Board of Education in its final report recommended construction of a separate building costing more than $4 million rather than an addition.

The report released this week said a separate building will "greatly improve the quality of our educational program in the seventh and eighth grades can be placed in a separate building on the present site."

The subcommittee is one of three studying possible solutions to the overcrowding at Rham High School.

The committee said a separate building should be planned to accommodate about 500 pupils because enrollment projections for seventh and eighth grade students average about 450 students.

The projected enrollment in 1978 was from 1,276 to 1,326 in the junior highs for 1989-90. The 1977 estimate is 1,171-1,325.

The reports said there will be a possible 200-student leeway in the present building which has a 1,008 capacity if a new junior high is constructed.

Any appreciable increase in the projected enrollment would use up the possible extra capacity the report added.

Communities like Hebron are likely to continue their present growth as the areas nearer Hartford are rapidly becoming saturated and Interstate 84 is completed, the report said. The report also points out the need to expand the present core

Democrats plan rally in Hebron

A rally will be held at Democratic Headquarters in the Paradise Shops, Route 85, Saturday at 8 p.m. The candidates invited to chat with the candidates, U.S. Rep. Williams Colter will be among the dignitaries present to greet residents. Refreshments will be served.

DOT plans hearing on Route 31 curve

The Connecticut Department of Transportation (DOT) will hold a hearing on the realignment of dangerous curves on Route 31 Nov. 28, at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Capt. Nathan Hale School.

A notice from the commissioner's office states that "the hearing will be concerned with the department's recommending layout and design for the realignment from approximately 600 feet east of the intersection between Daley Road and Route 31 and extending easterly for a distance of approximately 1220 feet."

The project will eliminate a series of three sharp horizontal curves by realigning Route 31 slightly to the north. The DOT has filed maps for the plans in the town clerk's office at the town hall on Main Street for public inspection.

DOT invites residents to submit written statements or exhibits concerning this project either at the hearing or to its Wetherfield Office on Wolcott Hill Road.

Last year more than a hundred residents petitioned DOT for action after numerous accidents and fatalities on the curves. After the hearing DOT will prepare a final design and let it out for bids. The federal government is expected to reimburse the state for most of the cost.

Coventry students above test average

Coventry High School Principal Dennis Joy told the Board of Education that the town's seniors exceeded state, regional and national norms on recent SAT (college board) examinations.

"The recently received scores show an average verbal score of 438 and an average math score of 483," Joy reported. "This is particularly encouraging when all around us we hear expressions of discouragement with the fact that scores throughout the country seem to be dropping."

Joy added that more than 40 percent of last year's graduates went on to college and an additional 10 percent went on to some other form of study.

In other business Donald Nicoletti, assistant superintendent of schools, reported on the town's special education programs. He said that psychiatric help is being offered and that was not providing all the buses with the power steering that had been contracted for. Owner Jerry Egan hopes to correct the problem when needed parts are received.

Wienall said he had enjoyed his tenure and congratulated School Superintendent Arnold Eiman on his good work.

He also reported that the schools' new bus company, County Schools, was not providing all the buses with the power steering that had been contracted for. Owner Jerry Egan hopes to correct the problem when needed parts are received.

Church planning events

The Second Congregational Church has designated Nov. 13 Stewardship Sunday. The Stewardship Committee plans to visit every church member in Coventry through four teams recruited by Norm Caisse, Lois Pabst, Charles Keison, and Marge Glenney.

Visitors will explain the church's work and attempt to raise $1,000 annually.

On Nov. 12 the church will hold its Holiday Fair from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. followed by a roast beef supper at 5 p.m. There will be baked goods, craft items, cheese, and white elephant.

On Nov. 19, there will be a Harvest Dance from 8 p.m. to midnight in the Community House sponsored by the Mr. and Mrs. Club. Music will be furnished by the Old Spice Band.

On Nov. 20 students will assist the Missions Committee in distributing Thanksgiving baskets to shut-ins. Contributions for the baskets will be accepted that morning between 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Jogging club started

The Timothy Edwards School in South Windsor has started a Jimmy Fund Jogging Club. Any South Windsor resident can join by donating $1. The $1 enables a resident to receive a jogger's patch and for every mile jogged, anytime, anywhere, it will cost the member two cents. All money collected will go to the Jimmy Fund in Boston, Mass. to help in the fight against cancer.

The goal of the club, this year, is 100 joggers and 10,000 miles. The club now has 30 joggers and 1,500 miles. Anyone interested should call the school.

In addition to individual joggers jogging, the club will have its first Jimmy Fun Run Nov. 10 at 3:30 p.m. at the school. The entry fee will be 25 cents plus two cents for each mile run that day.

The course will be five miles for experienced joggers and two miles for beginners.

The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission has voted to take the following action:

- Approve, with conditions, the application of Michael and Fern Bell, 465 Foster Road, for a site plan development on property located on the south side of Sullivan Avenue.
- Approve, with conditions, the application of Imperial Oil Co. for a subdivision of about 13 acres of land on the east side of Main Street.
- Accept the withdrawal of the application of Society of Savings for a subdivision into 18 lots of property located near the intersection of Graham and Griffin roads.

South Windsor's author's work reviewed by medical journal

Medicine and Society in Tanganyika 1890-1950: A Historical Inquiry," written by long-time South Windsor resident Dr. Ann Beck, has been reviewed in a recent issue of the British Medical Journal. Dr. Beck is a historian, educator and writer and was named an "Outstanding Educator of America" in 1975. She is Professor at the History Department at the University of Hartford. Dr. Beck's work was published as a scholarly monograph in the Transactions of the British Philosophical Society and deals with the medical problems of Tanganyika and the ways in which their solutions affected the lives of the Africans.

Dr. Beck's field is modern history. She is especially interested in the study of African history and is a contributor to a number of scholarly journals both national and international.

The recent review of her work says, "...like her earlier works, the latest of Professor Beck's contributions to the history of East Africa has that special value which stems from being based largely on unpublished documents."

Dr. Beck has been on the South Windsor Library Board of Directors since 1968. She is a former president of the New England Regional Library Council. She is a member of the Democratic Town Committee and was twice named chairperson of the United Nations Day celebrations in South Windsor.

Dr. Beck's book, "A History of the British Medical Profession in East Africa, 1890-1950," was published by Harvard University in 1970. It is the study of the complex system of colonial medicine and gives an account of the modernization and development of scientific health services in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. She is active in her profession and is doing research for another book.

Coventry candidates show little partisan difference

Coventry Town Council and Board of Education candidates exhibited few party differences this week at a public forum sponsored by the Coventry Jaycees. About 90 residents turned out for the program, but most of these were members of the Republican or Democratic town committees.

Appearing for the Republicans were council candidates Jesse Brainard, Leonard Giglio, Douglas Whipple, Roberta Kozick, and Alwyn Broderick. The Democrats were Jack Myles, Richard Giegy, Karen Nash, Pat White, and Harold Crane.

On the issue of economic growth, Giglio said the town must increase its population in order to increase its spending power. Giegy favored setting up a citizens advisory committee to propose methods for economic growth, although he said he did not favor heavy industrial development for the town.

Myles said that it was an illusion to believe that business and industry would increase the tax base. "Our industrial development commission must be financed in order to hire experts," he said.

But Brainard blamed the Planning and Zoning Commission for allowing environmental concerns to impede planning. "We need an updated master plan," he said.

Some residents asked for details on the council's new five-year road program. Giglio said permanent improvements were planned on five major projects—one for each year—beginning with Flanders Road, Cedar Swamp Road, and Bolton Branch Road. Myles felt the town needed funded long-range projects.

Whipple said he supported recreation and wanted to see Laidlaw Park developed and more sports for girls. Crane believes the town should have a full-time recreation director.

Board of Education candidates were Democrats Joan Lewis, Vincent Moriarty, Patricia Clark, and Andre Marmen. The Republicans were Suzanne Brainard, Priscilla Doyle, Richard Ashley, and Gary Doplaif.

Both Brainard and Doyle questioned the sequential learning program and felt that alternative structured classrooms should be available for elementary children. Lewis said she would like to see the adult education program supported but that a stringent budget two years ago forced cuts.

Ashley stated he would like to see the board receive its funding at the annual budget meeting and advocated that it stay within its budget. Moriarty defended sequential learning and the extra money spent on aides as a good investment.

Brainard concluded that there were no major differences between the parties on the big issues, but that there was a different approach to accomplishing goals. "Democrats tend toward centralized government," he said, "while Republicans believe in individual decisions."

Nash said the Democrats wanted the council to be an instrument of the people.

Half of NFL teams in playoff contention

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the National Football League moving into the second half of this season this week, at least half of the league's 28 teams remain in playoff contention.

Among the six division races, only unbeatens Dallas (7-0) in the NFC East and Minnesota (5-2) in the AFC Central have taken commanding leads.

Baltimore (6-1) and Cleveland (5-2) hold one game leads in the AFC East and Central, respectively, while Denver and Oakland are tied at 6-1 atop the AFC West. Los Angeles and Atlanta, at 4-3, share first place in the NFC West.

Other AFC contenders are New England and Miami, both 5-2, plus Pittsburgh and San Diego, at 4-3 in the NFC. Washington and St. Louis are each 4-3 and have little hope of catching Dallas in the East. But the Redskins and Cards likely will battle again for the wild card berth if Atlanta falters.

Cincinnati travels to Cleveland for a crucial AFC Central game. The Browns' surprisingly good start in the face of a difficult early season schedule has been somewhat overshadowed by Denver's even more surprising record.

"More than anything else, the reason we're a contender is due to the New York Jets, New Orleans at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Denver, St. Louis at Minnesota, San Diego at Detroit, San Francisco at Atlanta, Seattle at Oakland and Tampa Bay at Los Angeles.

"The thing that pleases me most is the team's attitude and I'm proud of that. Our defense has been great all

'Team to beat' Rodriguez-Regalado pacing Disney golf

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Chi Chi Rodriguez says he recovered from neck trouble a couple of weeks ago and began to feel good about the National Team Championship Golf Classic at Walt Disney World.

"I predicted we would be the team to beat," said Rodriguez, a Puerto Rican whose tournament partner is Mexico's Victor Regalado.

Rodriguez looked like a man of his word Thursday as he and Regalado shared the first-round lead of the $200,000 tournament with Gibby Gilbert and Grier Jones, at 10-under-par 62.

Rodriguez and Regalado had 10 birdies and no bogeys on the par-72, 6,511-yard Palm Course, while Gilbert and Jones had nine birdies and an eagle against one bogey on the par-72, 7,187-yard Magnolia Course.

Three teams were grouped at 15: Terry Diehl and Lyn Lott, Lee Elder and Jim Wiechers, and Charles Coody and Lou Graham.

Andy Bean and Gary Cook, winners respectively of the Dorci and Citrus tournaments in Florida earlier this year, headed a group of eight teams bunched at 8-under-par 64.

Bruins lose O'Reilly for bumping NHL ref

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Bruins winger Terry O'Reilly has been slapped with a suspension for bumping a National Hockey League official.

O'Reilly was suspended for three games Thursday after arguing his case for 2 1/2 hours in a hearing at Boston Garden with National Hockey League Vice President Brian O'Neill.

The decision stemmed from an incident last week in Minnesota when O'Reilly bumped referee Denis Lynch after the referee called on the Bruins to take a timeout.

O'Neill said he reviewed the tape of the incident and made a decision Thursday to suspend O'Reilly, previously unblemished except with NHL officials.

But the Bruins, who lost Wayne Cashman for three games at the start of the season over a fighting incident, feel they are being unfairly punished by the league.

"I would appear they're looking for a reason," said Boston Bruins defenseman Brad Park, who also is vice president of the National

Sultan of Sulk Tempestuous

BOSTON (UPI) — That Sultan of Sulk stung on the Boston Celtics bench this season has turned back into Tempestuous Tom Heinsohn.

The combination of a 1-6 start and a lousy practice for tonight's game against Denver lit Heinsohn's fuse Thursday at the club's high school training camp in Lexington.

"You guys are playing like you're 6-1 and this whole practice has been like that," screamed Heinsohn.

Following the practice, he added, "The team we're playing tomorrow is going to play with a trap defense. So we went out this morning and worked at it and everybody went at it half-hearted, because everybody thinks they're so damned smart. I'm sick of it."

The anger had been brewing for a week, with Heinsohn quietly seething. Heinsohn saw some progress Wednesday when the Celtics played a good fourth period in a 104-101 loss to Cleveland but was pessimistic after during the practice session.

"If you don't want to play, get off the floor," he yelled at the players.

Backward forward Cedric Maxwell and veteran guard Dave Bing looked good in the Cleveland game. Heinsohn said neither will start against the Nets but both will get plenty of playing time.

The game at Boston Garden matches two of the more disappointing losses of the season.

The Nuggets, last year's Midwest Division winners, have dropped four of their first eight contests.

The Nuggets have only five performers left from the squad that faded in the playoffs. Leading the Denver brigade are stalwarts Dan Issel at center and forward David Thompson. They have been supported by forward Bobby Jones, who ranks sixth in field goal percentage and rookie sharpshooter Tony Roberts from Oral Roberts, who has scored more than 20 points twice this season.

All eyes of Texas on Rice Stadium

NEW YORK (UPI) — The eyes of Texas Saturday are upon Rice Stadium but the eyes of Bill Yeoman are on fire whenever he looks at the Longhorns.

Yeoman, the Houston Cougars' coach, as increased because Texas, you see — according to Yeoman — is responsible for the Cougars' current NCAA probation for one year on recruiting violations.

The feud dates back to last year and centers on the attempts by both schools to obtain the collegiate services of highly-touted high school quarterback Darrell Shepard.

The 5-foot-9, 170-pound, Odessa, Tex. schoolboy visited Texas' Austin campus last winter and announced publicly he would sign a Southwest Conference letter-of-intent to play for the Longhorns. The Houston coaches, however, expelled an end-around and when the time came, Texas Coach Fred Akers was stood up without a word.

At that point, according to one published story related by a Houston alumnus, a member of the Texas board of Regents said, "We're going to get Houston on recruiting violations in the Shepard case if it is the last thing we ever do."

Six months later, the NCAA slapped Houston with a one-year probation for illegally helping Shepard's search for a college team.

Akers says, "I don't know who turned in Houston. We never were asked anything about Shepard by the Southwest Conference or the NCAA."

Yeoman says, "The information we have is different." Saturday's game will be played in the sold-out 70,000-seat Rice Stadium, according to Texas' wishes, and the game will be approximately $200,000 more than if the game had been played in the Astrodome, according to one source.

The Cougars lost quarterback Danny Davis early in the season and have a disappointing 3-4 record, but a win Saturday over hated Texas, 7-0, would make Yeoman's year.

Texas is a 14-point favorite, however.

Elsewhere in the top 10, No. 2 Alabama visits LSU as a one-touchdown favorite, No. 3 Oklahoma is a two-TD choice at Oklahoma State, No. 4 Ohio State is better than a three-TD pick at Illinois, fifth-ranked Notre Dame hosts Georgia Tech, as a two-TD pick; sixth-ranked Michigan is an off-the-board choice at home to Northwestern, seventh-ranked Penn State is a 9-point choice at North Carolina State, eighth-ranked Arkansas is a 13-point pick when it hosts Baylor, ninth-ranked Pittsburgh is a two-TD favorite at West Virginia and 10th-ranked Nebraska is given the nod by oddsmakers by 7½ points at Missouri.

Evert whips Wade

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Despite a flurry of disputed line calls, top-seeded Chris Evert cooly came from behind Thursday night to defeat a flustered Virginia Wade, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the $250,000 Series Championships.

Wade, this year's Wimbledon champion, blizzed Evert in the first set with a series of great passing shots. Evert double-faulted twice in the sixth game of that set.

The 2-hour, 10-minute match was a seesaw match with Evert coming out on top. But a rash of disputed line calls in the third set proved the decider with Evert keeping her poise.

"I sensed the crowd wanted me to come back in the second set," Evert said. "I'm not as tense a player as Virginia. I felt I handled the close line calls better than she did and I think that was the difference."

"It just seems that at the end everything that was close was called the wrong way," Wade said. "It's had there was not a more infallible system."

"I can't believe it. Even if I win in two sets tomorrow, I can't get in the finals Saturday. It seems ridiculous. The placement should be decided on percentage of sets won."

In another match, Billie Jean King had a tough start but rallied to defeat Kerry Hoek of Australia, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1.

Earlier, Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia took more than two hours to defeat Australian DiAnne Fromholtz, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

The 2-hour, 10-minute match was the first defeat in two matches for Fromholtz, who opened up the eight-player, round-robin event Tuesday with a victory over Evert. This was Navratilova's first victory in the series after two straight losses.

Navratilova used the same heavy serve against Fromholtz that she used against Evert Wednesday, but this time with more success.

She took a 2-1 lead in the first match after breaking Fromholtz's serve, then went on to win 6-4 in that set.

Uranium is generally found in low-grade ores with about 0.2 per cent uranium content. The ores are crushed and the uranium chemically extracted and shipped as uranium oxide. The uranium residues, called "mill tailings," are discarded. Natural uranium occurs in two varieties, or isotopes — U-238 and U-235.

Make It 'Your' House

In having a house built to order, you are automatically evincing a desire to own a house particularly suited to your needs. Make sure you get one. Don't insist on costly frills that add to the price when you actually need plenty of closet space or an extra bath. Individuality is fine within bounds and good taste. But don't overdo it. Some day you may want to sell the house and discover that your prospective purchasers are interested in that closet space extra bath, and in whether there is sufficient insulation and a dozen other practical things that make family living comfortable.

The matter of which frills to avoid is often individual, depending on needs, taste and the amount of money available. It is wiser, for instance, to spend money to be certain a house is protected against termites than to have expensive hardware. It is more important to be sure there is sufficient electricity and enough convenient outlets than to have ornate electrical fixtures. But if money is no object, you can have anything you want. In all cases, avoid excessive ornamentation, often a bar towards the sale of a house that otherwise has appeal.

The most popular basic house designs fall into one of these categories - the ranch, the split level, the 1 1/2-story, the two-story and a combination ranch and two-story and a combination ranch and two-story referred to variously as a raised ranch or a staked two-story.

House Design Affects Costs

Design or plan the house to meet your family's requirements. Too-small a house, for example, would be false economy. Here are some principles of economical design:

- Two-story houses cost less per square foot to build than single-family ones. The main reason is that less roof area is required to cover an equivalent amount of living area.
- Rectangular floor plans cost less per square foot to build than L-shaped, U-shaped, or other irregular floor plans.
- Simple gable roofs are the most economical. Flat and shed roofs are cheaper but have poor drainage and high maintenance cost. Ridges and valleys increase the cost of a roof.
- Basements add low-cost space to a house. If well lighted, well ventilated, and dry, they can be used for living quarters.
- Attics also add low-cost space. And shed dormers, while they may cost a little more, provide more usable space than gable dormers.

Q-119

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do doctors ever fall in love with their patients? I've been going to a certain doctor for some time now, and from the first time I saw him something happened inside me. Now the feeling is so strong I can't think of anything but him.

I can't come right out and tell him how I feel about him, but it must show when I look at him.

Right now I'm just another patient. Please tell me what to do.

DEAR IN: Doctors have been known to fall in love with their patients, but not nearly as often as patients fall in love with their doctors. Your feelings are probably a combination of admiration, respect, gratitude, hero worship and fantasy—not love.

Don't DO anything, except try to control the way you look at him. Fantasies are fun and harmless—but you have to live in the real world, so don't get your hopes up, dear.

DEAR ABBY: I can't get that letter signed P.I.E.C.E.S. out of my mind. I've been there, so I know what it's like to love someone who has stopped loving you.

You said, "Don't permit yourself to think of the loss in the face of it, that appears to be sound advice, but suppressing such feelings will often make the grief much worse later on, when the thoughts catch up and overwhelm the conscious suppression."

The only way to adjust to such a loss is to finally accept the lost relationship as a reality, and then move on to other things that make life beautiful and then love again.

THREE YEARS LATER

DEAR THREE: I advise those whose love is not loved, that excluding the swifter's grief and the live-in girlfriend, would that be proper?

DEAR ABBY: My employer is planning a dinner party for the men in our company and wants to include their wives. Two of the men are not married. One is a swinger who dates several different women. The other is a young man with a live-in girlfriend.

My employer feels that only legitimate wives should be invited, thus excluding the swinger's date and the live-in girlfriend. Would that be proper?

DEAR INQUIRING: No, I wish you were to be included, the single men should be invited to bring "A Friend."

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 60s and have worn dentures for years. Recently I had a new set made, and the day I went to pick them up, my dentist had some of his relatives visiting in his office.

While I was in the chair, a boy who looked to be about 10 wandered in and stood right in front of me gawking while the dentist asked me to take my old dentures out so he could put the new ones in. I was mortified!

Abby, all these years none of my children or grandchildren has ever seen me without my teeth.

A few days later, when my mortification subsided and my sense of humor returned, I realized how lucky I was not to have had this stupid dentist for my prosthodontologist.

East Hartford police report

East Hartford
Edward Ellis, 28, of 21 Hockanum Dr., East Hartford, was arrested Thursday at his home after 12:43 p.m. and charged with criminal attempt to commit first-degree assault.
Police were called to his home by someone who said Ellis had just taken an overdose of valium, police said. Police arrived to find town paramedics working on Ellis in his living room, police said.
Ellis jumped up, ran to his bedroom, and began to pull a gun out of a bureau, police said. A police officer wrestled the gun away from him and arrested him then, police said.
Ellis was being held this morning on $5,000 surety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court 12 here today.
The incident stemmed from Ellis' loss of a job and his resulting despondency, family members told police.
Someone broke through the screen in an air duct on the roof of Jones Automotive at 77 Connecticut Blvd. sometime Wednesday night and stole a 1976 blue Buick valued at $8,500. An apartment at 550 Burnside Ave. was broken into Thursday between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. and $1,100 worth of stereo equipment and jewelry taken.
An apartment on Hamilton Road was broken into Thursday and $40 in cash taken.

CB name is misnomer for candidate Kolpak

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

CBers have tagged Ronald F. Kolpak "Rotten Ronald" for the same reasons Robin Hood's band called their biggest member Little John.
"Rotten" is one of the nicest people running for a seat on the East Hartford Town Council in the town elections Tuesday. He has worn the handle since 1962 when he first got into CB radio air waves and joined the Central Connecticut Citizen Banders club.
Father a Republican
Kolpak, 47, was born in New Britain as the only third generation Pole in his area. He is the oldest of three sons.
He graduated from New Britain High School in 1947 and joined the Marines. He was a police sergeant in the service, mainly at Ocean Side, Calif.
"I liked the service. I was one of the few that did. But I really enjoyed my time."
When Kolpak turned 21 (the voting age in those days), his father told him why he had always been a Republican.
"If it's good enough for you, it's good enough for me," Kolpak told his father. He then registered Republican and has been in the GOP since.
When he got out of the service, he went to the New England Technical Institute, then in Hartford, and, in two years, became an electronic technician.
He ran his own TV service business in New Britain for several years before starting to work with RCA Service Co. now on Brewer Street in East Hartford, in 1957.

Big happy party
Kolpak married years ago and had five children. They are Karen, 25, who lives in New Britain, Ronald II, 23, who is married with two sons, Timothy 21, and Kevin, 19, who both live and work in Bristol.
His youngest son, Mike, 10, lives with him in East Hartford.
Kolpak and his first wife divorced some years ago. Over three years ago, he married the former Resi Kochikowski of East Hartford and moved to town with his son.
"Resi is a little doll. She's taken over my son and does a marvelous job with him. All of our children are welcome in our home."
Mrs. Kolpak had four children. They are Loretta, 22, who lives in town and works at the Sage Allen store here; Linda, 21, who lives with them when not studying at the University of Connecticut; and Steve, 19, and Ralph, 18, who also live with them.
"I liked the service. I was one of the few that did. But I really enjoyed my time."
When Kolpak turned 21 (the voting age in those days), his father told him why he had always been a Republican.
"If it's good enough for you, it's good enough for me," Kolpak told his father. He then registered Republican and has been in the GOP since.
When he got out of the service, he went to the New England Technical Institute, then in Hartford, and, in two years, became an electronic technician.
He ran his own TV service business in New Britain for several years before starting to work with RCA Service Co. now on Brewer Street in East Hartford, in 1957.

Praises the town
Kolpak put Mike into second grade at East Hartford School three years ago after his marriage to Resi. Mike had been doing poorly in school. Mike now is in the fifth grade and getting top marks.
"Oh boy, does he love his teacher, Mr. Ray Johnson."
He said he always liked coming to East Hartford to work.
"It's a nice town with mostly nice people," he said.
At Brooks, a local GOP leader, introduced him to East Hartford politics. He worked hard two years ago for Tony Donatelli, GOP candidate for mayor then and this fall. He was pleased to take a spot on the GOP slate this fall for Town Council after another Republican pulled out for personal reasons.
He elected, Kolpak said he will concentrate on services for the elderly and for their protection. He recalls getting a call from an elderly woman in town to come and fix her TV. But when he got there, she was in tears. The woman had stepped out for a few minutes during the day. On her return, she found someone had broken into her apartment and stolen the TV.
"The kids are all cousins," said Kolpak. "You see, Resi had been married to my cousin."
"Everyone gets along. The wife and I argue now and then. But mainly it's one big happy party."
Kolpak had been RCA sales manager until he took custody of his sons. He could not afford the long work hours away from them. So a few years ago he went back on the road, doing TV service calls so that his hours would allow him to be with his sons longer.
Kolpak is studying nights at Trinity College and the University of Connecticut. He hopes to get a degree in commerce and social studies.

Democrats' expert wants to keep job

Democrat incumbent candidate for town treasurer Donald F. Bates. (Herald photo by Barlow)

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

Donald F. Bates, 49, made himself an expert on East Hartford in 1967 as he helped set up the town's present strong mayor form of government.
Bates is seeking to keep his job as East Hartford's town treasurer in the town election Tuesday.
In 1967 he was a member of the Democratic minority on the old 11-member Town Council. He wrote and then helped pass all the enabling ordinances needed to smooth the transition from the old commissioner style of government to the new mayor form.
His work made him the Democrats' expert on the government since.
Hartford native
Bates was born the fourth of five children to a Hartford family. He grew up in the South End and graduated in 1946 from Bulkeley High School.
He went to work there for the Underwood Typewriter Co. as a stock expediter.
In 1950 he joined the Army Signal Corps and was stationed at Fort Monmouth, N.J., then the Army's biggest radio and signal training center.
Back in Hartford, he joined the J.P. Frisbie Pie Co. Jan. 5, 1953, as a salesman. The company gave its name to the Frisbie. College kids would take the empty Frisbie pie plates and scale them over the campus lawns.
Frisbie folded in 1956. But Table Talk Pies called Bates and asked him to work the same route for Table Talk. Bates has been delivering baked goods on the same route for nearly 25 years.
Route salesman seems to be a common full-time job for East Hartford's successful politicians.

Democrats William Dailey Jr. and George Dagon also have routes. In fact, Bates met Dailey in Waterbury as their routes crossed before either got into politics.
Assessment work
Bates bought a house on Burke Street in the mid-1950s six months before he and the former Terry Albert of Pittsfield, Mass., got married and moved to town.
He has always taken an interest in politics, he said. But it was not until the MDC (Metropolitan District Commission) assessed him for new sewer lines that he got into politics himself in 1963.
He protested the assessment at public hearings.
"I was really burned up about it," he said.
Working with then State Rep. Tim McNamara, Bates tried to make the MDC more responsive to the public it serves.
In 1963, he also worked hard for the Democratic Party in town elections.
He continued working for the party. In 1967 he ran for a Town Council seat. Despite a Republican sweep that fall, he won a minority seat with Democrats Don Grosscup, Mario Govoni (who later became a town treasurer), and William Dwyer (town treasurer before Bates).
When the new government was ready for elections in April 1968, Bates held onto his minority seat along with Dwyer. Dagon won a council seat for his first time then.
Bates, Dwyer and Dagon made a fearsome trio to the Republican majority.
"It was valuable experience," he said of his minority years.

The Democrats swept back into power behind Mayor Dick Blackstone in 1969 and have been there ever since. Bates won a council seat then and in 1971 and 1973. He resigned from the council in April 1973 for personal reasons.
After the death of Dwyer, Bates was appointed the town's treasurer in September 1975.
Bates is running for the office mainly on the basis of the fiscal strength of East Hartford. Proof came this year when the town was able to sell bonds at a lower rate than any other town in the state.
In his long record of public service in town he was a president of the Barnes School PTA, the St. Christopher's Men's Club, and the Young Democrats. He was the party commissioner in 1968 under the old charter.
He has served as chairman of the Welfare Board, first chairman of the Inland Wetlands Commission, and member of the Ordinance Committee, the Audit Committee and the Community Council on Youth.
Bates chaired the Land Acquisition Committee when the town bought the land for the Langford School. He said it is the best site for a school anywhere in town. He also helped lead the campaign to buy the East Hartford Country Club which sits on 106 acres of land off Long Hill Street.
Family man
About 10 years ago Bates moved his growing family to 243 Country Lane in town.
His son Stephen, 21, is now a senior at Plymouth State College in New Hampshire, where he is studying business administration. He is a member of the student senate there.
Richard, 19, is a sophomore at Central Connecticut College, also studying in business. He too is interested in politics and took part in a model congress during his high school years.
Maryann, 17, is a senior at Penney High School. She is on the Honor Society, is a drummer in the band, and is on the varsity cross country, basketball and track teams. She wants to be an attorney.
Robert, 15, is a junior at Penney on the wrestling team.
Mrs. Bates works for the Post Office on Main Street. Due to her job, she has "nothing to do" with politics, Bates said. She does allow herself to cheer him on, however.

East Hartford bulletin board

Educational trade
Purchasing Agent John Martin said Thursday the town is still waiting for final word from the University of Hartford on its proposal to swap university courses for three of the town's portable classroom units. U of H offered to pay the town for the units with 600 credit hours in the College of Education and Allied Services. At the tuition rate of $72 per hour, the price paid by the U of H would be $43,200. The courses and workshops would be held in East Hartford.
But the university said it must wait for final approval of a federal grant before it can make its offer final. The town has had no other offers for the portables.

Workers in water
Mayor Richard Blackstone said the first 10-member crew of Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) workers starting cleaning a town stream this week. The town got approval to hire three more such crews to clean the streams of debris and brush and they are being set up now.
The town has over 100 CETA job positions it can fill as long as it can get an equal number of project jobs approved through the federal program. More projects are in the works, the mayor said. The town personnel office is taking applications for the jobs now.
Corps wins trophy
The American File and Drum Corps of East Hartford won second place for appearance in the Corps of the Year competition Oct. 29 in Newington. "They did a tremendous job," said Bruce Gaudette, corps director. There are 15 marching fifers, three drummers and a cymbals player as well as a color guard in the corps. Others of the 36-member corps of young people are still learning the instruments and how to march. Miss Suzanne Collins, East Catholic High School student, is the corps' majorette.
LWV urges "yes" vote
The East Hartford League of Women Voters is urging voters to vote "yes" to approve the town's joining a regional program to handle trash and garbage. It would be called a "regional resource recovery authority."

Absentee ballots
East Hartford Town Clerk John Barry Jr. said his office will be open Saturdays from 9 to 11 a.m. only for applications for absentee ballots for use in the Tuesday town elections.

Russo is back
John Russo, owner of Russo Brothers Inc. of Hartford, will appear before the town Inland Wetlands Commission Tuesday, Nov. 9 in a public hearing at 7 p.m. at the Town Hall to continue trying to get his plans approved. Russo has been before the commission before seeking its okay to remove top soil on his 10 acres of land on the east side of the Podunk River near the South Windsor town line. On Sept. 13, the commission asked Russo to get test borings on the land. They told him they would consider his request again Nov. 9 after the tests.
Other requests to come before the commission Nov. 9 include one by John Gimbel for construction of Yankee Kenworth, a truck dealership, along Roberts Street.

Lack of librarians
Jean H. McEvers, president of the East Hartford Education Association (EHEA), is still pressing the EHEA requests for certified librarians in the town's elementary schools.
"Are you aware that approximately 6,400 students are without one certified library person?" she said.
She said the National Education Association recommends one librarian for every 250 students. East Hartford has none that are certified.
