Sadat invited to visit Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel today officially invited Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to come to Jerusalem, the national radio said.

It said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin handed the invitation of the Israeli government to U.S. Ambassador Samuel W. Lewis during a recess of parliament, the Knesset, where the prime minister was to make a formal statement on the issue.

Sadat had said he would come to Jerusalem if he received a proper invitation.

The move was unprecedented in the history of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Lewis said it would take the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv only minutes to transmit the invitation to the embassy in Cairo from where it would be relayed to Sadat.

It quoted Lewis as saying the invitation would be on Sadat's desk "by this evening."

Begin declined to reveal the wording of the invitation, the first such offer made by an Israeli leader since Israel came into existence in May 1948.

The invitation was extended shortly after Sadat said in Cairo his proposed trip to Israel is "a holy job" and he will make it as soon as possible after receiving the official Israeli invitation through the United States. He said he would not fear for his safety in Israel.

But Sadat emphasized he would be speaking for Egypt only and not for other Arabs when he addresses the Israeli parliament and the aim of the visit will be to explain his views and not to negotiate any agreement.

The Egyptian president told a 14-member delegation from the U.S. House of Representatives he views the visit as part of preparations for a reconvened Arab-Israeli peace conference at Geneva.

"I consider the visit a holy job," Sadat said. "We must do the impossible to break the vicious circle in which Arabs and Israelis have been moving for 30 years. This is for the sake of our future generations. Hence the holiness of the mission. If I do not try to break this vicious circle, God will bring me to account, and so will future generations."

Asked whether he would fear for his personal safety in Israel, Sadat snapped "Never."

He said "Whenever the invitation arrives I shall be ready to go because we should not lose time on procedural arrangements (for the Geneva conference)."

Israeli Premier Begin said Monday he would send a formal, written invitation to Sadat through the American ambassadors in Israel and Egypt.

Begin Monday welcomed Sadat's offer to visit Israel for peace talks and said he would greet the Egyptian leader at the airport.

Today, he summoned the U.S. ambassador to discuss relaying a formal invitation to Sadat. Both leaders said they would rely on the United States to convey such a request, since the two countries are still technically at war and do not have diplomatic relations.

Sadat's proposed trip apparently would be the first official visit to Israel by an Arab head of state since the founding of the Jewish state in 1948.

"I'm just waiting for the proper invitation," Sadat told CBS television news in an interview broadcast Monday night. "I'm looking forward to fulfill this visit at the earliest time possible."

CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite asked if "that could be, say, within a week?"

"You can say that, yes," Sadat answered.

Begin, in a separate CBS interview, said the Israelis "really want the visit of President Sadat, we really want to negotiate peace, to establish permanent peace."

Shah greeted with tear gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police tear-gassed angry young Iranian demonstrators outside the White House today as President Carter, weeping from the fumes, welcomed Iran's Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi for talks on weapons and oil.

The masked, stick-wielding opponents of the shah broke through lines of mounted police on the grassy Ellipse behind the White House and attacked a nearby group of shah supporters as the greeting music and cannon salute died down.

On the White House lawn, Carter winced and tears rolled down his cheeks from the gas. He welcomed the shah as "a longtime friend of our country."

There were no reports of injuries or arrests, although one horse was knocked to its knees when struck by a hurled trash can.

The shah, denying that torture exists in his country, had describe his vociferous opponent in this country as "Marxists."

Shouting "down with the shah," more than 1,000 opponents had demonstrated loudly but peacefully since before dawn on the Ellipse and in Lafayette Square on the other side of the White House.

But when the Iranian ruler arrived by limousine instead of by helicopter as planned, the anti-shah demonstrators on the Ellipse broke through protective police lines and attacked quieter and older shah supporters with sticks.

Police waded in and broke up the fighting.

Both Carter and the shah kept their composure and delivered their greeting statements as guests and reporters gaged and winced from the smoke bombs.

The shah put his hands to his face, and Empress Farah and Mrs. Carter dabbed their eyes constantly.

"It is a great honor for us to have with us his imperial majesty from Iran, a long-time friend of our country," said Carter.

Later, during a ceremony in the grand hallway of the White House, Carter apologized to the shah "for the temporary air pollution."

Carter said in his welcoming remarks the shah had known every American president since Franklin Roosevelt. "It is a great honor for me to have him come during the first year of my presidency," he said.

"When the Shah took over the leadership of his nation 36 years ago, Iran was occupied by a foreign power," Carter said. During the Shah's reign, Carter said, "The growth of Iran into a position of world leadership has been remarkable."

The shah reportedly came with a shopping list for more U.S. weapons.

The shah has bought billions of dollars in U.S. jets, radar and other weapons. But Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd and other lawmakers have demanded that Carter keep his promise to cut down exporting weapons to Iran and other countries.

The critics point to what they call the shah's preoccupation with military hardware, nuclear power and other costly projects, they claim he has so far failed in spending billions of dollars to change relatively primitive Iran into a major industrialized, educated power.

ZBA opposes proposal to limit its power

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Members of the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals and a flock of local attorneys attended Monday night's meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission to protest a proposal to limit the ZBA's power.

After the public hearing, Town Planner Alan Lamson and some members of the PZC gave indications that the proposed change, as presented, would not be approved.

In another matter, the PZC approved a 48-lot subdivision on Vernon Street.

The proposed change affecting the ZBA would prohibit the board from granting variances for nonpermitted uses in a zone. Lamson, who was the only one to speak in favor of the proposal, said that legislation passed by the state General Assembly permitted such a limiting of the appeal board's power.

"Nothing, other than spot zoning, can contribute to the breakdown of zoning regulations more than the indiscriminate issuing of use variances," Lamson said.

The idea, however, was greeted less than enthusiastically by ZBA members and attorneys who spoke.

Attorney Joel Janenda, who represented the ZBA, said that the proposed change was an example of "overkill." He said that the local ZBA has shown no blatant misuse of its power to grant a use variance.

Such projects as the renovation to the Manchester police station would not have been permitted if the amendment had been in effect, Janenda said. The station is a non-conforming use in a Residence A Zone.

Janenda said that the PZC should eliminate some uses in some zones if it feels a change is needed.

"If there are problems with particular decisions, the solution should be aimed at those decisions," he said.

He also said that ZBA members were disturbed that they had not been contacted about the proposal. Lamson later said that notices had been sent to ZBA members but did not arrive until after a newspaper story on the proposed change.

Flexibility

Attorney David Keith said, "We need an avenue to provide flexibility." He said that the court provides a recourse for any abuses of the present system.

Keith called the enabling legislation "an ill-advised change."

Attorney Dominic Squatrito said that units of multiple housing for the elderly might not have been permitted in the past without variances from the ZBA.

"We may be giving up a safety valve in our society that is necessary," he said.

Others who spoke against the proposal were attorneys Leon Podrove, John Mrosek and George Ripley, local developer Barney Peterman Sr., ZBA Chairman Bernard Johnson and ZBA Vice Chairman Clarence "Bud" Brown.

After the hearing, Lamson said that several good points had been made by the opponents.

"I would strongly recommend that the amendment, as presented, be denied," he said. William Bayer, a PZC member, said, "Whatever goods they have made do not justify this kind of overkill."

No action was taken Monday night by the PZC, however.

The board did approve by a 5-0 vote the Vernon Street subdivision.

The development is proposed for a 71-acre site behind the Crestfield Convalescent Home. The PZC made several modifications to the plan including possible drainage improvements. It also granted an inland-wetlands permit for the development.

The PZC took no action on a subdivision proposal for a Residence M Zone off Parker Street.

In another public hearing held Monday night, several residents spoke against a proposed zone change for property at 519 and 531 Center St.

The applicants, Mark and Linda

Davis and Reginald Houde, are seeking a change to Residence C Zone for the property, which now zoned Residence A and Business II.

Jason Stansfield of 29 Perkins St. presented a petition signed by surrounding residents who oppose the change. He and others who spoke said that they were concerned about increased traffic and the possible devaluation of their property.

Patrick Dougherty of 17 Dougherty St. also said that a home from the Revolutionary War era is nearby at 537 Center St.

Attorney Leonard Jacobs, who represented the applicants, said that the change to a Residence C Zone would be in character with the surrounding area. He indicated that a house on the property might be used as an office building but there would be no change to the exterior of the structure.

Artist shows her work

Using a rear projection screen, an artist demonstrates her work Monday at the Bowers School while a student, at left, poses for the work. The demonstration was the last in a series which has been presented throughout the Manchester elementary schools this month. Sponsored by the school fine arts program, the demonstrations were designed to stimulate creativity in the arts through "slide art" presentations featuring moving figures silhouetted on the slides combined with student involvement. The program was presented by The Learning Guild of Boston. (Herald photo by Dunn)

Two appeals challenge PZC subdivision okay

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

An appeal was filed Monday in Hartford's Court of Common Pleas against the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission's approval of a proposed subdivision for the 40-acre Lenti Farms tract off Gardner Street.

Two separate appeals were filed — one against the PZC's subdivision approval and one against the granting of an inland-wetlands permit. The PZC, which acts as the town's Inland-Wetlands Agency, also approved that permit.

The appeals papers said that there are several reasons for the court action, including the following:

- The PZC received and used evidence not presented at the Oct. 3 public hearing, thus denying the plaintiffs the right of due process.

- The PZC held a public hearing on the inland-wetlands application sooner than 30 days after receiving the application.

- An existing septic system encroaches on some of the approved lots.

- The plans fail to make proper provisions for storm water drainage. Flooding problems may occur.

- The PZC granted permission to reduce the minimum lot frontage of some lots.

- The grading plan did not contain certain information required by regulations.

A total of 14 reasons was listed in the two appeals, nine for the subdivision-approval appeal and five for the inland-wetlands permit appeal.

There are five defendants listed in the appeals — the PZC, Jack Goldberg, Robert Stone, Paul Lenti and John Lenti. Stone and Goldberg are the developers of the proposed subdivision. The Lentis own the 40-acre tract in question, the appeal papers said.

The five plaintiffs listed are Richard Bushnell of 66 Thayer Road, Bruce Forde of 78 Thayer Road, Paul Rossetto of 86 Thayer Road, Robert Smith of 50 Thayer Road and Barbara Auchincloss of 15 Tuck Road. All of the plaintiffs own property that abuts the site of the proposed development. Rossetto is a member of the town's Zoning Board of Appeals.

The return date listed in the action is Dec. 27.

Attorney David Call, who is representing the plaintiffs, was contacted this morning but said that he could not comment on the claims listed in the appeal.

Defendants Stone and Goldberg could not be reached for comment.

The proposed development of the Lenti Farms tract has been a subject of controversy since the spring of this year.

Goldberg, a former member of the Board of Directors, and Stone, a former member of the Manchester Economic Development Commission, resigned from their posts when questions arose about the possibility of a conflict of interest because of the proposed development.

Many neighboring residents spoke against a proposed 79-lot Residence AA Cluster Zone for the Lenti Farms tract. The PZC, on July 25, voted 3-2 to deny such a cluster zone. Cluster zoning permits lots and houses that are smaller than those permitted in a regular zone and requires part of the land to be transferred to the town.

In September, the developers submitted a request for a Residence AA Zone for the property. This 59-lot subdivision proposal was approved by a 4-1 vote by the PZC on Oct. 24. Residents also had opposed this proposal.

Court stops South Windsor council oaths

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Correspondent

South Windsor Town Clerk Charles Enes stood before a packed council chamber Monday night to read a temporary court-injunction prohibiting him from administering the oath of office to any of the newly elected council members.

The injunction was served at 6 p.m. — just two hours before the "swearing in ceremony" was scheduled to begin.

The injunction, signed by Francis

J. O'Brien, judge of the Hartford Superior Court, ordered "Charles N. Enes, under the penalty of $1,000, to...desist and refrain from certifying the results of the election of the office of South Windsor Town Council...and to refrain from administering the oath of office to any of the candidates...."

The injunction named Joseph L. Krahula, Democratic candidate for Town Council who placed tenth in the election, as plaintiff. Krahula was not among the top nine usually considered elected to the nine-member body.

Following the administering of the oath of office to all other elected officers, except council members, the officials gathered in the hall outside to speculate as to how the council controversy will be settled when the issue comes before the court Friday.

The final votes of only eight of the nine-member council have been certified leaving a 4-4 split on the council between Democrats and Republicans.

The vote of the ninth candidate, Richard Ryan, was not certified by head moderator Myrtle Odium, because of an error in the vote count on one machine in District 2. Ryan received a total of 374 votes — 85 more votes than the number of persons voting on the malfunctioning machine.

Originally, Ryan's vote was reported to be 384, however, apparently the 10th position on the machine was stuck, making it almost impossible for vote counters to determine the actual figure. The machine in question, one of three used in District 2, is said to be the oldest in South Windsor and was bought in 1952.

It will be difficult, say some officials, for a solution acceptable to all to be found because the majority rule on the Town Council is at stake. Republicans have not had a majority rule on the council for six years.

If the court rules to eliminate all votes cast on the faulty machine, which some say appears unlikely, the remaining certified votes would still give the Republicans a 5-4 majority on the council.

Most seem to feel a runoff vote, or possibly a new election for council members, is the most likely solution.

The Board of Education, town treasurer, constables, Board of Selectmen, and planning and zoning officials were issued the oath of office following Enes' reading of the injunction.

A Town Council meeting is scheduled for Nov. 21. If the issue is not resolved by that date the old council will remain in session.

News summary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran bearing a long military shopping list and a hold-the-line offer on oil prices, arrived in Newport News, Va., Monday afternoon for a state visit. He will meet with President Carter today in Washington.

After being cheered by several hundred Iranian supporters and booted by hundreds of Iranian student demonstrators, the shah was taken to the Colonial Williamsburg Inn where he spent the night.

BOSTON (UPI) — The prejudice that brought violence and bad feelings to Boston with the advent of school busing, reared its ugly head Monday.

Charles Battles, 36, a history teacher, his wife, and a group of 12 students from an all-black Pennsylvania Seventh Day Adventist high school were attacked by a small band of whites wielding wooden sticks and golf clubs, while they were touring Bunker Hill.

Battles and four of the students were injured, none seriously. Three white men were arrested and charged with five counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The theory of the big bang start of the universe evidently didn't hang at all, space agency scientists, who have been researching with a high-flying U-2 jet, said Monday.

The researchers concluded the beginning of the universe was a very smooth, almost serene process, with matter and energy uniformly distributed and expanding at an equal rate in all directions, a NASA statement said.

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Three more bodies today were pulled from the rubble of the seven-story Filipinas Hotel where a fire broke out Monday, and the death toll now stands at 47.

As the fire, which was believed to have started from a candle lit by a hotel guest on the fifth floor during a power outage, raged, Manila was being battered by Typhoon Kim with 110 mph winds. At least 22 more people were killed by the typhoon.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fog rolling in from the ocean came to the aid of firefighters battling a brush fire, believed set by an arsonist, which flared through woody Topanga Canyon Monday and destroyed six homes.

The blaze burned through more than 500 acres, forcing evacuation of hundreds of residents, many leading their horses — common in the canyon near the Pacific Coast West of Los Angeles — to safety.

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The assassination of a member of Ethiopia's military council one day after the execution of the nation's No. 2 man has deepened a Marxist power struggle that is threatening to tear the capital of Addis Ababa apart.

Ethiopia Radio said Monday that "anti-revolutionaries" gunned down Lt. Solomon Gesesse, a member of the provisional military administration council, or Dergue, the previous night.

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — A South African police officer has testified black leader Steve Biko attacked his white questioners and "fell with his head against a wall" five days before he died of head injuries.

Maj. Harold Snymann, testifying Monday on the first day of an inquest

Recruiter

Sergeant First Class Willard Leeman, formerly a military police operations sergeant in Germany, was recently assigned to the Manchester's Army recruiting office at 555 Main St. He will be responsible for recruiting operations in Manchester and East Hartford, and in southern Tolland County.

A native of Maine, Sergeant Leeman brings more than 20 years of military experience to the job. Enlisting in 1956 as a tank driver, he has also served as an engineer, infantryman, air marshal and drill instructor. He has been assigned at numerous stateside posts, as well as in Korea, France, Okinawa and Vietnam.

Among his awards are the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and Meritorious Service Medal. He has also received the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry and Vietnam Campaign and Service Medals, and was recently awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Sergeant Leeman has attended the University of Maryland, and was graduated from the Army Recruiting and Career Counseling Academy, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Inc. He now lives in Manchester with his wife and three children.

Waddell PTA wants buses on field trips

Concerned with the safety and liability factors involved with parents driving children on class field trips, the Waddell School PTA Monday night asked the Board of Education to enforce the use of buses for all class trips requiring transportation and to allow funding of buses, either by incorporating the funds into the school budget, by fund raisers or by the parents paying the students' share of transportation costs.

Morancy cited the Board of Education policy that, under the state law, the teacher who arranges a field trip using parent's automobiles is not liable, that field trips should be paid for by the Board of Education and that limited fund raisers are allowed for trips.

Morancy stressed that the PTA is not against the field trips, but that the chief concern is for the safety of the children and secondarily, for the protection of the volunteer drivers.

A letter to the superintendent noted attempts by the Waddell PTA to explore with Wilson Deakin, assistant superintendent, alternative insurance policies to cover the field trips and the individual drivers, but it was found that the insurance is difficult to obtain. The PTA mentioned the possibility of secondary insurance coverage taking over where the driver's personal insurance leaves off.

The PTA letter notes, that despite the efforts to find alternatives, the field trips are continuing with the parent drivers.

Board member John Yavis recommended the PTA meet with the board's personnel and finance committee Dec. 5 at 8 p.m.

Betty's notebook

Jody Powell, President Carter's No. 1 spokesman and public relations man, was in the area Friday night to attend a cocktail party to honor Stanley Weinberg of Manchester, new head of the northeastern region of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The Matsukas family, owners of the Marlborough Tavern where the reception was held, really went all out with delicious hors d'oeuvres and were especially delighted when Gov. Ella Grasso put in an appearance to honor Weinberg.

The governor agreed wholeheartedly with the president's choice of Weinberg and said, "Stanley is more than capable of heading this important administration. There once was a man who owned a car wash (Weinberg's former job) who had tremendous insight and campaign strategy in the presidential election. That's Stan Weinberg."

Powell, who admitted he is rarely at a loss for words since it is one of his tasks to brief the White House news staff each morning, was "Stan and I have been friends for a long time, so naturally I am very pleased with his appointment," he said with a touch of emotion in his voice.

Looking especially lovely was Weinberg's wife, Barbara, who was sporting a beautiful double orchid corsage for the occasion. Barbara was recently named state director of the Friendship Force, which is a citizen-to-citizen exchange program from the United States to foreign countries. Connecticut's force departs Jan. 23 for Tel Aviv, Israel.

Powell, an attractive young man, looked quite dashing in a black and operates the Exchange Shop at 378 W. Middle Turnpike.

Friendship Force

Friendship Flight ambassadors will meet tonight in Hartford for a workshop at the Hartford Insurance Group in Hartford Plaza.

Some of the topics which will be covered are climate in Tel Aviv in January, suitable clothing to take, distances from Tel Aviv to other Israeli cities we may wish to visit, and a variety of other useful information.

Speaking of Israel, I had a call from the Rev. George Webb, pastor of South United Methodist Church. He has just returned from his second trip to Israel and had heard that I was going with the Connecticut group.

He was very enthusiastic about his trip and said he hopes to go again next year.

I'm sure our excitement will mount as time draws near.

Speak out

Women will have a chance to voice their views and seek solutions Wednesday night at 8:06 when WINF radio presents "Focus on Women."

Guests will include Mary Eichelman of the Women's Political Caucus and the Connecticut Task Force on Women and Alcohol, Doris Rodan, President of Mujer, a Spanish Feminist Organization; Betty Karl, Connecticut Task Force on Abused Women; and Carol Hewey, Institute of Cultural Affairs — Global Women's Forum.

Listeners' calls will be invited during the round table discussion of various women's issues.

Dining out

Dining out Saturday night at The Colony, I stopped for a moment when I recognized pretty Pat Shea and her husband.

Opinion

U.S. and South Africa

President Carter's order to halt all U.S. arms sales to South Africa will have little short-range effect on that country's military capability. But it is a warning — and should be taken as such by the white supremacist regime in Pretoria — of more drastic moves to come.

Since 1963 Washington has declined to sell most types of weapons to South Africa as a sign of disapproval of racial policies there. That ban, however, hasn't prevented South Africa from buying what it wanted elsewhere and building up a modern domestic arms industry.

As a result, the 50,000-man South African armed forces are strong enough to crush any uprising by the black majority deprived of its rights and to defeat any combination of African states that might intervene.

This is the situation today, not tomorrow. Carter disclosed that his administration will back a United Nations Security Council demand for a worldwide arms embargo against South Africa. This will make it far harder, perhaps impossible, for the Vorster regime to acquire foreign weaponry. More important than an arms embargo would be an international refusal to trade with South Africa. Prime Minister John Vorster's crackdown on black newspapers and civil-rights groups has put Carter in a mood to consider breaking trade ties if the suppression of blacks continues.

A consensus is forming at the United Nations that South African apartheid cannot be tolerated indefinitely. In time this feeling will lead from the arms embargo to economic ostracism, a withdrawal of the trade and investments South Africa needs to flourish.

For his part, Carter seems to have decided to squeeze South Africa economically if it defies world opinion on the race question. Sooner or later apartheid will lead to a world boycott of South Africa and disaster to whites and blacks alike.

Clearly this prospect calls for a change of course by that country's white rulers and steps away from their discredited policy of racial inequity.

Nuclear milestone

A significant milestone in the history of man's use of energy was passed this year: Electricity generated by nuclear power plants in America surpassed that generated by hydroelectric plants.

The Federal Power Commission reports that nuclear plants accounted for 12 percent of all the electricity produced in the United States in the first six months of 1977. The nuclear total was 123.8 million megawatt hours. (A megawatt is 1 million watts.)

This exceeds hydro generation, which totaled nearly 110.4 million megawatt hours, or 10.7 percent of the nation's electrical output.

Nuclear is now challenging natural gas (13.2 percent) for third place fuel in electricity generation, behind oil (17.8 percent) and coal (46.1 percent).

Fountain of youth is dry well

Now we know how Ponce de Leon felt. The exposure of elderly Americans to high-pressure oxygen — a treatment once touted as a veritable "fountain of youth" — is now called a waste of time and money.

"Hyperbaric oxygenation" is a technique in which elderly people climb into a chamber and breathe pressurized oxygen. The belief is that the oxygen revitalizes brain cells and reverses or retards senility. Unfortunately, tests conducted by the National Institute of Mental Health show no such benefit. In fact, says the leader of the study team, the oxygen treatment produces no more mental stimulation than a person might get from a couple of martinis.

Well, that's consolation.

"I'm not afraid we won't find it - I'm afraid we will."

Boat-rocking at the FDA

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When Stanford University biologist Donald Kennedy agreed last spring to become commissioner of the beleaguered Food and Drug Administration, his friends in the health field thought he had slipped a cog.

Taking on the FDA job, they warned, was akin to accepting the captaincy of the Titanic.

With the possible exception of OSHA, the Occupational Health and Safety Administration of the Labor Department, there wasn't an agency in the federal government with a worse reputation.

Great boat-rocker
Kennedy's friends needn't have worried. It is now apparent. The new FDA commissioner has turned out to be one of the greatest boat-rockers to hit Washington in years, but there is no sign his ship is sinking.

On the contrary, under Kennedy's leadership, the FDA has suddenly seized an unexpectedly major role in the formulation of health policy in the Carter administration.

And that development is rapidly giving both the medical profession and the multibillion-dollar pharmaceutical industry an Exedrin headache.

Kennedy and his boss, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., are launching a drive for the first major revision of U.S. drug laws since 1962 — and there is good reason to believe they will succeed.

The groundwork for such an overhaul has already been established on Capitol Hill by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate's health subcommittee, and to a lesser extent, by his House counterpart, Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla.

For nearly four years, Sen. Kennedy has been holding hearings that pinpointed inadequacies in FDA's current procedures for testing and approving new drugs, and for reviewing the safety and efficiency of drugs already on the market.

Proposals name
The FDA commissioner believes physicians have a responsibility to learn more about the adverse reactions from drugs they prescribe, and to share such information with their patients. Inserts in drug packages, such as those which now accompany birth control pills, could force better doctor-patient communication, he contends.

The "patient labeling" proposal is tame in comparison with some of the added regulatory powers FDA is seeking in the proposed drug law revisions. Long overdue in most cases.

By this time next year, Congress and the public are likely to be immersed in the most vigorous debate over drug policies since the Kefauver hearings more than a decade ago.

For that, we can all thank Donald Kennedy. He has given a much-needed transfusion — and unaccustomed agility — to an agency one of his colleagues once described as "a slowly moving target that bleeds profusely when hit."

Pet project

To the editor:
Please allow me space to comment on the recent town election. For one, like several hundred voters in Manchester, did not know the candidates running on the Democratic ticket with the exception of Ed Tomkiel. I felt that the Democratic Party had done a fine job under the leadership of Ted Cummings and for that reason voters choose the so-called unknowns to run the Town of Manchester the next two years.

The new Board of Directors will be hearing from me shortly about my pet project — consolidation of the Eighth District with the town.

Seems like a bad situation when the Eighth District officials can have the say about whether or not sewers can be extended to my area at Concord Road and neighboring streets. Do they also have control of highways where the sewer lines will be located? I have been informed that the consolidation issue can be carried out by a townwide referendum.

If the two referendums passed by the voters is any indication of what will happen if and when consolidation issue is presented, should be a plus result in this regard.

Sincerely,
George E. Snow
93 Concord Road

Hospitals blamed for costs

HARTFORD (UPI) — The majority of testimony during hearings on a proposed rate increase by Connecticut's biggest medical insurance company has blamed hospitals for rising costs.

"Under the present aura that exists, the hospitals and physicians who are charging exorbitant rates appear as the benevolent knights in shining armor and Blue Cross and Blue Shield, who pay these exorbitant charges on behalf of their subscribers are projected as villainous culprits wearing a black hat."

Herbert A. Leibert, president of the Underwriters Association Inc. of Hartford, said Monday. Leibert was one of only a handful of residents who attended a Connecticut Insurance Department hearing Monday night on the proposed 25.7 percent increase for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Connecticut.

Need not flee the kitchen

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — "He's an arrogant SOB," snarled an oil-state senator when President Carter in effect accused the Senate of backing under to petroleum interests in carving up his energy program.

Both the senator's adjective and noun were far off the mark. Jimmy Carter is supremely self-confident, but he is too poised, too cool, too to arrogant. An "SOB" doesn't care whether people like him, Jimmy Carter does. Besides, the average "SOB" is by definition unproductive. Jimmy Carter wants mightily to get things done.

That is not to say he rejects harsh rhetoric out of hand. He talks tough when he thinks it will put pressure on those who are holding up one of his programs. Thus, his charges of "rip-offs" and "potential war profiteering" by the oil industry a few weeks ago was an advisory to Congress to consider the folks back home.

Plain people watching Jimmy wanted to remind them that plain people were watching both him and Congress," says a White House staffer. "But too many guys on the Hill got sore and accused him of going over their heads to the country. He realized that would be counter-productive, so he changed tactics. He has enough assurance to backtrack when the occasion demands."

That, of course, is what Carter did in his television address on energy. He was speaking more to Congress than to the people — and speaking in dialect tones. "This is not a contest of strength between the president and the Congress," Carter said. And then, "The choices facing the members of Congress are not easy." This was a president assuring Congress that he understood its problems.

In short, whatever his faults, Carter does study his job daily for possible defects. He's aware he doesn't know everything about that job although he doesn't advertise

it. So he admits himself to on-the-job training.

Still finding his way
The picture is that of a bright, competent, and hard-working president who is still finding his way. He may fail, but not for lack of intelligence or an inability to face up to the problems of his office. He may be aloof, as some critics say, but he listens to his Cabinet members and his White House advisers before making decisions.

And he is down-to-earth. At a meeting with his Council of Economic Advisers, Carter listened closely to assorted opinions on the sickly state of the economy and then summed up what he had heard.

"I guess," he said, "that nobody really understands why we have inflation and high unemployment at the same time." A Treasury official shook his head sadly. "Jimmy was right," he said.

Carter has also shown he can stick to his guns when he thinks he's right. Shortly after he took office, he announced his intention to defer the Clinch River breeder recreation plant. When Congress voted to go forward with it, wise guys on the Hill predicted that Carter would never waste a veto on a project with such strong industry support.

Carter vetoed it as "large and unnecessarily expensive, which when completed, would be technically obsolete and economically unsound."

Who will benefit?
In his energy speech, he did nothing to soften his program's impact on the people's pocketbook. The price of energy, he said, will continue to rise no matter what. The question, he added, is who will benefit from higher prices, the energy industry or the nation as a whole. His plan would return that money to the public to stimulate the economy and create new jobs.

Jimmy Carter has a long way to go before they start mentioning his name with the Great Presidents. But he need not flee the kitchen. He can take the heat.

MCC staff busy oampus plan

Administration and staff at Manchester Community College are doing lots of homework in preparation for anticipated approval of state bonding money for planning of permanent buildings for the college campus.

Dr. Ronald H. Denison, president of the college, said Monday he is hopeful that the $20 million in planning monies which were approved by the State Legislature last session will be released within a "couple of months" by the state Bonding Commission.

In the meantime, he has sent out a request to college staff and personnel in specific areas asking for their input regarding specific needs for space. In the memo, Dr. Denison said the data is needed by Jan. 1, and no later than Feb. 1.

He asked that persons in each specific area work with their supervisor to determine the number of spaces needed to handle their courses or activity; the sizes and shapes of the needed spaces; any special, built-in features and the recommended priority in building the spaces.

The input from the specific areas will then be compiled into the appropriate academic divisions and priorities prepared. All the information will eventually be compiled by the president's office.

The planning monies are the first stage in the five-year plan for permanent construction of $25 million worth of facilities at MCC.

Dr. Denison said he is trying to keep the avenues open in getting the bonding money out of the commission.

The Board of Trustees for Community Colleges has submitted a long-range plan for $2 million in land purchases, planning and construction costs. Some of the legislative leaders who have reviewed the plans have looked favorably on it, Dr. Denison indicated.

He hopes the General Assembly will appropriate money for the permanent building, so the college could proceed with its second phase or building after planning, possibly as early as next fall.

The new facilities will include 150,000 square feet of construction for more student center facilities, data processing, business classes and improved dining, kitchen and classroom facilities for the Hotel and Food Service Management program. Construction of the new facilities will allow the eventual closing of the Hartford Road campus.

Mrs. John Lauritzen - Mrs. Mary Shea Lauritzen of 30 Pratt St. died Sunday at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center, Hartford. She was the wife of John Lauritzen.

Louis Rinaldi - Mr. Rinaldi was born in Pontelandolfo, Italy, and had lived in East Hartford for 50 years. Before retiring 17 years ago, he was employed for 27 years at the First National Warehouse of East Hartford.

Guest artist

Cathy Hitt, of 179 Green Rd. will be the guest artist at the Manchester Art Association meeting.

Mrs. Hitt will demonstrate in oil pastels. The public is invited. The local artist attended Hartford Art School of the University of Hartford where she studied with Paul Zimmerman.

Her works have been exhibited in art galleries in Hartford, Talbotville, and in East Tisbury, Fla. She has received several awards for her works which have been displayed in many juried art shows in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

CPR course scheduled for staff at Meadows

A training course in basic life support (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) will be held on Dec. 6 and 7 at The Meadows Convalescent Home. The six-hour program in CPR, presented by the Manchester Town Fire Department in cooperation with the American Heart Association of Greater Hartford will include a lecture, film, slides, a demonstration by the instructor and practice by all participants on life-like manikins.

Ramp at Cheney Library doesn't meet standards

The Manchester library advisory board was told Monday night that the ramp for the handicapped at Mary Cheney Library is not up to standards. In a recent memo to the board, Allan Mason, director of human services in Manchester, said that he and Frank Conti, the town's chief building inspector, had examined the ramp at the library and found them not up to any standards.

Martha Loew and Barbara Nelson, in other business, the board agreed to "keep pushing" for improved parking conditions at the Whittier Memorial School complex. The parking lot has been torn up during storm drainage installation in that area of the North End. Buckley said the lot is being replaced with a new parking lot in order before winter sets in.

Communist defies Yale pickets

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - The leader of Spain's Communists crossed a picket line today at Yale University and was called a "scab" by a union chief who "spits in the faces of workers."

Earlier this month, Sen. George McGovern, Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall and former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir canceled plans to appear at Yale because of the picket lines. "In Spain, the feeling is with the American labor movement is more to the right than the Spanish Right," he said.

School board cites retiring members

By SUSAN VAUGHN Herald Reporter. Three retiring Manchester Board of Education members were cited for service in the community Monday night by the school administration and board members.

Board members Albert C. Harris and Beverly Malone were also thanked and given citations, along with Thomas, by the board. Harris has served on the board since July 1973 and Mrs. Malone for the past three years.

Kennedy cited the special superintendent-board chairman relationship he has had with Thomas over the past five years since he became superintendent. He noted the decisive leadership of Thomas as shown in the way he conducted board meetings, his "wise and sage advice" and his ability to explore ideas with the superintendent.

Harris, in presenting a brief overview of his years on the board, said he has been most impressed with the way Dr. Kennedy and the school staff have revitalized the Manchester school system in the Robertson School complex, the student art work which has been displayed from time to time in the board rooms, the "no smoking" in public meetings, the Bicentennial parade and a fire and business manager Ray Demers once put out after a late meeting.

Meal service expands and drivers are needed

The Meals on Wheels program has been expanded recently to include a fifth route, and drivers are needed. The one-year-old community service program was begun in July 1976 by River East Homekeeper-Home Health Aide Service Inc., formerly Manchester Homekeeper Service Inc.

Last week, Virginia Briggs, coordinator of the Meals on Wheels program, began a fifth route for delivery of meals to the homes of elderly shut-ins, who, without these hot nourishing meals, would suffer nutritionally and fall in health, according to Mrs. Briggs.

No action on proposals to ban school smoking

Vernon
Before schools in Vernon closed last June, Dr. Joseph Kristan, the town's director of health, called for more nutritious lunches and snacks, four-day "swishing" and no smoking in the teacher lounges.

Monday night's meeting of the Board of Education reviewed, but took no action on, suggestions from teachers in the various schools and a price list for equipment that would be helpful in solving the smoking problem.

The price list was for fans and the cost of labor to install them. This is estimated at $1,376, but G. G. May, supervisor of custodians, doesn't think the fans are the answer.

He said air conditions and fans will not eliminate all odors from rooms, and running fans during the winter would cause the heat, as well as the odors, to be drawn out of the rooms, making them uncomfortable. He added that electronic air cleaners are costly to buy and maintain and he wouldn't recommend them.

At Rockville High School, the problem has been pretty-much solved. The present lounge across from the main office will be maintained as a smoking room and there will be non-smoking rooms in each of the three "houses" of the school. No smoking signs have been posted in the latter three.

At the Middle School, about half of the teachers who answered a questionnaire said they smoke, but

Administrators get raise

Following an executive session Monday night the Vernon Board of Education approved a salary schedule for principals and 10-12 month supervisors, which will allow six percent salary increases in the next two years and a 25 percent increase in the third year.

The schedule involves 27 employees.

The board also approved a salary schedule for the intramurals program which hadn't been approved when the teacher salary schedules were approved last year.

The cost factor for the next three years will be $11,400 for the first year and $11,800 and $12,530 respectively for the following two years.

This involves the intramurals programs at Rockville High School and the Middle School and 17 full-time and part-time instructors.

The teacher salary schedule was adjusted slightly just to include seventh-year and PhD. steps. Dr. Daniel Woolwich, head of the board's Personnel Policies Committee, said when the original two-year teacher contract was approved there wasn't a necessity to include these two steps.

He said now, however, those planning to teach are staying in school longer and getting out with higher degrees, therefore the committee felt it necessary to expand the schedule. The board also discussed, in executive session, the

Subdivision okayed at town garage site

Coventry
The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) Monday night approved a lot subdivision by the Lenard Engineering Co. on Talcott Hill Road at the junction of Route 31. The area was recently turned down for the site of a new town garage by a town meeting. A ninth lot that included a large wetland tract was omitted from the final application by the developer. The PZC attached nine stipulations to ensure adequate drainage and open space.

Another application for a lot subdivision on North River Road, Goose Lane, and Morrow Road by the East-Cover Development Corp. ran into opposition during a public hearing and was continued to the commission's next meeting on Nov. 29.

Developer Isadore Case said he plans to create the lots, most of them about one acre, to improve the adjoining roads, and then to sell them for building. He would deed part of Morrow Road to the town for widening and part of Goose Lane for straightening. A third part of the triangular-shaped parcel fronts on North River Road.

About six residents of the area showed up to complain that development there would increase traffic on the roads and onto their properties. In addition, the Conservation Commission recommended that only three of the nine lots be given approval because of drainage problems.

However, Town Planner Gregory Padick told the commission he would probably recommend conditional approval of the entire subdivision "if drainage matters can be satisfactorily handled by the applicant" and if additional technical data are presented.

Town Sanitarian Donald Holmes said that "each lot is large enough to satisfy the minimum requirements of the State Health Code" and that the soils were well-drained. But he did recommend engineered septic systems because of seasonally high water tables.

In other business the PZC approved a rear-lot subdivision on Main Street opposite Armstrong Road. The property is owned by Earle Lyman, and the application was made by John Stalb, who plans to develop the lot. The 1½-acre lot is part of a 18-acre tract owned by Lyman.

Zoning Agent Ernest Wheeler described it as "above the wetlands area," and Holmes said test holes proved satisfactory for drainage. Stipulations to the approval provide for road siteline correction and stabilization to prevent erosion and sedimentation in a nearby brook.

The PZC denied another rear-lot application by Felix Winters for property off Brigham Tavern Road. Town Attorney Abbot Schwelb advised the commission that the lot had not been legally created and therefore the PZC had no jurisdiction to act.

Padick said that Roland and Robert Couture violated zoning regulations in 1973 when they sold the parcel to Winters because it does not conform with frontage requirements. The applicant may take his request to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a variance. If he is successful, he may reapply to the PZC.

Diabetes screening

In observance of National Diabetes Month this month, the Coventry Public Health Nursing Association will conduct screening tests for residents.

Residents are asked to pick up specimen bottles and instruction at the nursing office in the Town Office Building or at Bane's or Hill's pharmacies.

Nothing left

WALLINGFORD (UPI) — Fire officials have decided not to try to find the cause of a spectacular multi-alarm fire that completely destroyed a warehouse.

"Assistant Fire Chief William Theberge said Monday, "There is nothing left to investigate."

About 30 firefighters fought the stubborn blaze for two hours early Monday trying to keep neighboring houses from being damaged. There were no reports of injuries or damage to any other structures.

Major job ahead
"I'm really excited. I know that we have a challenge. We can't afford to make a lot of mistakes," Dom Perno, new University of Connecticut varsity basketball coach, told members of the media at the annual post-lunch luncheon yesterday on the sprawling Storrs campus.

A major job faces the former UConn player and assistant who takes over for the departed De Rowe. The latter fashioned a 17-10 win-loss record last season and on the surface this will be a major accomplishment to match that ledger.

With Tony Hanson no longer on the scene after a fine four-year career, Joe Whelton out of East Catholic High, the team captain, is the man who will direct the play. He's the key man. As Whelton goes, so will go the UConn.

"Whelton is closer to the year he had as a sophomore," Perno said. "He was hurt in the opening game at Yale and then he tried to come back too quick. He was a step slower last year but has looked great in practice."

"We think we have a great leader in Joe Whelton. He's our point guard. We all know that he's a good scorer but he's more valuable in controlling the tempo of the game," the coach continued.

Perno has been encouraged by the enthusiasm shown since practice started Oct. 15.

"We've been putting the X's and O's together."

"Some of our players have played in the shadows of great players in the past, John Thomas, Tony Hanson, Jimmy Foster."

"We haven't had a bad day of practice."

"It's tough to evaluate what we have out there because we have been working against one another," Perno added.

Opens in Hartford

UConn opens Saturday afternoon, Nov. 26 at the Hartford Civic Center against Fordham.

"We must get what we lost out of our entire squad," Perno continued. "The Huskies lost in Hanson was a fellow who averaged 26 points, 11 rebounds and five assists a game.

"We will run a different type of offense. We want to get everyone involved. We will have to control the tempo of the game. This will be important. We'll run when we get a chance."

How does UConn rank in pre-season polls for the New England area?

"We have been placed fifth, sixth or seventh," Perno answered. "Holy Cross has been tabbed No. 1. Providence, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Fairfield will all be strong and with most of last year's players returning."

"It's a challenge," Perno said of the UConn schedule and everyone was to agree.

One feels that a 500 season would be acceptable.

Major coverage

Four major telecast networks were on hand last Saturday night at the Hartford Civic Center in the event Gordie Howe of the New England Whalers scored his 1,000th goal in professional hockey. Dennis Randall, Whalers' public relations director, also reserved the VIP room adjacent to the Whaler dressing room to agree.

Major job ahead
"I'm really excited. I know that we have a challenge. We can't afford to make a lot of mistakes," Dom Perno, new University of Connecticut varsity basketball coach, told members of the media at the annual post-lunch luncheon yesterday on the sprawling Storrs campus.

A major job faces the former UConn player and assistant who takes over for the departed De Rowe. The latter fashioned a 17-10 win-loss record last season and on the surface this will be a major accomplishment to match that ledger.

With Tony Hanson no longer on the scene after a fine four-year career, Joe Whelton out of East Catholic High, the team captain, is the man who will direct the play. He's the key man. As Whelton goes, so will go the UConn.

"Whelton is closer to the year he had as a sophomore," Perno said. "He was hurt in the opening game at Yale and then he tried to come back too quick. He was a step slower last year but has looked great in practice."

"We think we have a great leader in Joe Whelton. He's our point guard. We all know that he's a good scorer but he's more valuable in controlling the tempo of the game," the coach continued.

Perno has been encouraged by the enthusiasm shown since practice started Oct. 15.

"We've been putting the X's and O's together."

"Some of our players have played in the shadows of great players in the past, John Thomas, Tony Hanson, Jimmy Foster."

"We haven't had a bad day of practice."

"It's tough to evaluate what we have out there because we have been working against one another," Perno added.

How does UConn rank in pre-season polls for the New England area?

"We have been placed fifth, sixth or seventh," Perno answered. "Holy Cross has been tabbed No. 1. Providence, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Fairfield will all be strong and with most of last year's players returning."

"It's a challenge," Perno said of the UConn schedule and everyone was to agree.

One feels that a 500 season would be acceptable.

Four major telecast networks were on hand last Saturday night at the Hartford Civic Center in the event Gordie Howe of the New England Whalers scored his 1,000th goal in professional hockey. Dennis Randall, Whalers' public relations director, also reserved the VIP room adjacent to the Whaler dressing room to agree.

Cardinals finish strong, rough up Cowboys, 24-17

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — One of the nastiest, bitterest, cussingest feuds in the National Football League has been fought to a draw in 1977 and if the St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys meet again in the playoffs, there may not be enough liniment and bandages to go around.

St. Louis pulled off its biggest victory of the season Monday night, coming from behind to whip the previous season Cowboys, 24-17.

Several small skirmishes broke out during the course of the evening and one major fight occurred late in the game and resulted in the ejection of Dallas' Benny Barnes and St. Louis' Lee Nelson.

"There was a lot of mouthing off going on out there," said Cowboys' defensive end Harvey Martin, in a bit of understatement.

The Cardinals won for the first time in Texas Stadium (it was opened in 1971), closing to within two games of Dallas in the NFC East and moving into good position for at least a wild card playoff spot.

"I've never been happier about a win than I was tonight," said St. Louis Coach Don Coryell.

Over on the losing side, Dallas Coach Tom Landry, furious that his second-year team had a chance to put the game away early in the third quarter and didn't — allowed a little more acid slip into his voice than is normal.

"When you give a team breathing room in this league you're going to get burned," said Landry.

With Dallas leading, 14-3, the Cowboys' Randy Hughes intercepted a 33-yard pass from Hart to tight end Jackie Smith.

During that stretch Dallas could manage only a 21-yard field goal and a 24-yard pass to tight end Mike Pritchard over once and failed to make a serious threat in either of its two possessions following St. Louis' go-ahead touchdown late in the half.

Dallas, although it didn't dominate the first half, still led after two quarters.

Tarkenton hopeful he'll be in playoff

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton, the Minnesota Vikings' 37-year-old quarterback who holds the most NFL passing records, says he hopes his broken right leg will heal in time for him to compete in the playoffs.

That optimistic statement Monday contrasted to Tarkenton's gloomy outlook after the Sunday injury, when he said he might forego the final season of his contract.

Tarkenton was hurt by a loss in a broken audible play in the third quarter of the Vikings' 42-10 victory over Cincinnati Sunday. The impact broke his fibula, smaller of two bones between the knee and foot, just above the right ankle.

With five games left, Dr. Don Lannin said it was "very doubtful" he could play any more in the regular season.

The night of the injury Tarkenton was discouraged, looked around his Midway Hospital room and told a friend, "Requiem for a quarterback, bedpan and all."

But the former Georgia star's spirits perked up Monday and he said: "I hope I'll be back in six weeks."

That's when the playoffs begin, and the Vikings, with a 6-3 record and a two-game lead over Detroit in the NFC Central Division race, have a good chance to make the playoffs for a fifth spot at the Super Bowl.

Dr. Lannin was keeping ice on Tarkenton's leg to hold down the swelling and he said he might be able to put on a cast today.

Coach Bud Grant, who called Tarkenton's injury "a tremendous loss," stopped in to see his quarterback, a group of school youngsters visited him and the hospital said it was flooded with flowers and calls for him.

It was Tarkenton's first major injury in 16½ years as a pro. Grant hasn't decided yet who he'll start at quarterback against the Bears at Chicago Sunday — veteran Bob Lee, just recovering from a hand injury, or rookie Tom Kramer, who took over for Tarkenton Sunday and hit on four of six passes for 54 yards and a touchdown.

Harvard leader

BOSTON (UPI) — The new captain of the Harvard University football team is cornerback Steve Patsyan.

The 5-foot-116-pound defensive back, from Northbrook, Ill., led the secondary during the season with 40 tackles, including 34 unassisted stops. The junior was second on the squad in interceptions.

Smith returns

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (UPI) — Boston College quarterback Ken Smith has been reinstated by his teammates, who voted to put one of the nation's leading quarterbacks back on the field after a one game disciplinary suspension.

Smith, who reportedly was not in physical condition to run a team practice last week, sat out the Eagles' 20-3 loss at Syracuse. The football team voted Monday to reinstate him.

MIAMI (UPI)

A year has made a big difference for the Miami Dolphins.

At this time last year, they were breaking apart at the knees — 11 top performers went out of action with knee injuries — and their defense crumbled.

The Dolphins' young defense coach Don Shula reported Monday his players suffered only the usual assortment of bumps and bruises against New England.

"They'll need their health. Starting Sunday they'll play two tough teams on the road in five days. First come the Cincinnati Bengals and then the St. Louis Cardinals four days later on Thanksgiving.

Shula warned Cincinnati will be on the rebound from a 42-10 pasting by the Minnesota Vikings.

"Minnesota had gotten beaten badly by St. Louis the week before and they were playing at home," he said.

"Now we are running into the same situation at Cincinnati."

While the players prep for the Bengals Friday, the Miami coaches will be spending extra hours in the film room studying the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Normally on Fridays we look at films of the next opponent, but we don't really study them to the point of being analytical," Shula explained.

"We'll work on it harder this week than we normally do, but of course you don't even mention the next game to the players," he said.

Shula was asked about the puzzling play of Benny Malone, the team's leading runner. Malone has been benched two games in a row and replaced by Gary Davis.

Healthy Grogan Patriots' hope

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Steve Grogan is still healthy and that's all the New England Patriots could salvage from the crushing defeat Miami dealt them.

While they lost their second straight game, 17-5, and while they probably dropped out of the National Football League playoff, the Patriots still had a quarterback to start Sunday's contest at Buffalo.

Six starting quarterbacks were injured in Sunday's wars but Grogan suffered nothing more serious than a broken eye after completing 15 of 31 passes for 140 yards and one interception.

Insult, more than injury, hurt the Patriots Monday as they skulked back to the practice field to see if they had a quarterback to start Sunday's contest at Buffalo.

"This has been a frustrating year," said Coach Chuck Fairbanks, pondering the Patriots' off-field problems and injuries that have led to a 2-4 record despite an easy schedule. "We can beat every team that beat us this year, but we didn't and that hurt. We're a good football team, not a great one."

Dan Musinski tops grid poll

Tabbing all 14 games correctly last week, Dan Musinski of 272 School St., East Hartford, won The Herald's "Beat the Expert" football contest last week.

He's the first to record a perfect score.

Runner-up honors went to Joe Grzymkowski of 63 Carmen Rd. with 12 correct, plus a 24 tie-breaker score.

Third place went to Sharon Stetzer of 35 Indian Hill Trail, Glastonbury, who was also a winner last week. She had 12 right and a 26 tie-breaker score.

Early in last Sunday's game, John Rodegier took off for 30 yards to score the Elk's only first half touchdown. With a 6-0 score, the first three quarters remained a defensive battle.

The Elk's B team, which shone during an earlier season game with the Giants, couldn't move the ball. Gary Rodegier was the lone B teamer who managed to gain any yardage.

Both A and B's defensive units were strong throughout the game, stopping many Giant drives.

Kenny Puchalsky saved the day after the Giants tied the score and were close to scoring again. His interception broke up the last Giant scoring drive with minutes remaining on the clock. Earlier in

Educators agree to delay busing

By MAL BARLOW, East Hartford Reporter

The Board of Education Monday agreed "by a consensus" to put off busing Center School sixth graders to a middle school next September, said Board Chairman Lawrence DePonte.

Newly elected members of the board were sworn into office in ceremonies at the Town Hall at 8 p.m. They went to the amphitheater at Penney High School to begin their first board meeting after the Nov. 8 elections and found about a dozen parents waiting for them.

Many of the parents were from Center School, the only school in town which still houses all the grades from kindergarten to eighth. They came to speak to board members about their concerns for their children. She wanted the minutes of the Oct. 3 board meeting to be corrected about her statements on the middle school concept. She is not against the concept, she said.

John Christensen of 18 Orchard Terrace, another Center parent, said the parents were there because they are afraid for their children. He urged the board listen to their pleas not to bus their students away from Center.

Denise Benoit, Center PTA president, repeated Mrs. Scapino's comments that she is not against the middle school concept, just busing. She urged better communication.

Board member Richard Daley seemed to agree with some of the parents. He said he was concerned that all four middle schools tended to be on the east side of town. All the middle school students on the west side would have to be bused away if the Center School upper grades were phased out.

The board listened to the parents at great length. They did not close the meeting until nearly 2 a.m.

But the parents came away assured by the board's "consensus" taken by DePonte that it would not order the busing of Center students to a middle school.

DePonte said there are two main reasons why the board opposes the busing. First, the students would have to go to the O'Brien Middle School which has many portable classrooms. The board is opposed to using the portables any longer than needed, he said.

And second, busing to O'Brien threatens to cause crowding there, he said.

The board will meet Dec. 5 to go over a new school housing report. The enrollments in the town's 22 schools may dictate more closings of schools or other measures, he said. There are fewer students each year.

Second North

There were also parents from the Second North School at 1450 Main St. attending the meeting. Mrs. Mildred D'Addio spoke about their fears the school would be closed and its 106 students transferred to the Norris School further north.

The parents have hired an attorney, Dominick Caciopoli of New Haven, to help them keep the school open.

DePonte said the board will schedule a special meeting, possibly Nov. 28, to go over the closing plans.

Elks beat Windsor in champion round

By SHEILA TULLER, Herald Correspondent

East Hartford's Elks beat the Windsor Giants 14-6 to win the first round of the league championship Sunday at Vernon's Pioneer Field.

The Elks, representing the Northern Division of the Bill Skoneski Midget Football League, will now play the East Hartford Cardinals of the Central Division for the league championship. Windsor's team represented the Southern Division.

Early in last Sunday's game, John Rodegier took off for 30 yards to score the Elk's only first half touchdown. With a 6-0 score, the first three quarters remained a defensive battle.

The Elk's B team, which shone during an earlier season game with the Giants, couldn't move the ball. Gary Rodegier was the lone B teamer who managed to gain any yardage.

Both A and B's defensive units were strong throughout the game, stopping many Giant drives.

Kenny Puchalsky saved the day after the Giants tied the score and were close to scoring again. His interception broke up the last Giant scoring drive with minutes remaining on the clock. Earlier in the game Puchalsky grabbed a Giant fumble to stop another drive.

Kevin Foley's interception late in the game set up the Elks for their winning touchdown. After Emilio Gilberto moved the ball downfield on several runs, John Rodegier scampered five yards for the winning touchdown.

Gilberto's run for the extra points was good. In the beginning of the game Gilberto had a 45-yard touchdown called back.

Elks Coach Bob Blake praised all his players after the conference win. He was very pleased with tackles Steve Ciccarello and Nick Carella and guard Steve Lord for their fine blocking.

Scott Sirolis made two fine catches in the key third down situations that helped the last scoring drive.

Defensive standouts for the Golden Elks were Mark Chevalier, Tommy Parlante, Brian Barrett, Wayne Plansky, Scott Casserino, Brian O'Connor, Rich Hauerz, Puchalsky, Sirolis, Rodegier and John Geres.

Blake said Geres called a good game when he came in at quarterback also.

"This team, 6-0 in regular season play and now 9-0, surpassed everything I ever dreamed of for this season," Blake said.

One loss saddens ceremony

The only sad moments during the swearing in of newly elected town officials Monday night came at the mention of John Finnegan.

Finnegan, a Republican member of the Town Council elected in 1975, lost his seat in elections Nov. 8.

Mayor Richard Blackstone, Democrat, said after the swearing in, "I want to thank Mr. Finnegan for his efforts on behalf of this community."

David Killian, Democratic member of the council, later repeated the mayor's sentiments about Finnegan. He said, "We're all agreed we're going to miss John. He was a fierce competitor, but not so fierce he couldn't see some sense coming from this side of the Democratic side of the table."

"I will do the same," said Killian to the three Republicans on the council. "When I see some sense coming from the other side of the table, Killian will support you."

Town Clerk John Barry gave the oath to the mayor, to the council, to the five newly elected members of the Board of Education, to Town Treasurer Donald Bates, and to the selectmen and constables.

Mayor Blackstone then presided over the Town Council's first meeting since the election. He took the moment to praise citizen action groups forming in town. But he also cautioned that individuals must never feel they need to speak to elected officials through group only. They need to speak to each other and to the council. He asked each council member to speak.

Mrs. Esther Clarke, renamed by Republicans as minority leader, said, "Our homework is a little harder. But it's always an honor to sit anywhere on this Town Council."

The only new member to the council, Republican Robert Ryan, said, "I have a lot of listening to do before I do too much talking."

Dagon called upon all council members to operate as a team.

Mayor Blackstone and the council split the costs of a small party staged in his office for all the elected officials and their friends and family.

Public work bids are within budget

Bids opened Monday morning for the $942,000 paving project in East Hartford's package of federal Public Works Act projects appear to be within budget and federal restrictions.

General Paving of Cromwell was low bidder on all four sections of the paving project, said John Martin, town purchasing agent.

General Paving bid $283,024 on Section A which includes Forbes Street from Spruce Drive to Bradley Street. Oak Street from Forest Street to the Glastonbury line, Burke Street and Britt Road.

General Paving was also low bidder on the other three projects with bids of $186,000 for Section B, $114,000 for Section C, and $138,400 for Section D. But the firm told Martin its bonding company refused to bond it beyond one project.

Castello is also the next lowest bidder on Section C with $117,037. Streets include Henson and Norman drives and Chesler Road.

Central Paving of South Windsor is the next lowest bidder after General Paving for Section D with $142,765. Streets include Chapman Street, Robin Terrace, Richard Road, Orchard Street, John Street, and Fuller Avenue.

Mayor Richard Blackstone's staff will now review the bids before awarding contracts.

Public work bids are within budget

Bids opened Monday morning for the $942,000 paving project in East Hartford's package of federal Public Works Act projects appear to be within budget and federal restrictions.

General Paving of Cromwell was low bidder on all four sections of the paving project, said John Martin, town purchasing agent.

General Paving bid $283,024 on Section A which includes Forbes Street from Spruce Drive to Bradley Street. Oak Street from Forest Street to the Glastonbury line, Burke Street and Britt Road.

General Paving was also low bidder on the other three projects with bids of $186,000 for Section B, $114,000 for Section C, and $138,400 for Section D. But the firm told Martin its bonding company refused to bond it beyond one project.

Castello is also the next lowest bidder on Section C with $117,037. Streets include Henson and Norman drives and Chesler Road.

Central Paving of South Windsor is the next lowest bidder after General Paving for Section D with $142,765. Streets include Chapman Street, Robin Terrace, Richard Road, Orchard Street, John Street, and Fuller Avenue.

Mayor Richard Blackstone's staff will now review the bids before awarding contracts.
