23 Over again 25 On the peak 28 Coin of Iran 27 Word of

DEAR ABBY: After 32 years of marriage, my hust and I separated. He was hard-working, non-drinking and faithful. I forced the separation because he was terribly hard on our three children (they're now all college graduates and married). Also, he refused to socialize with myone. I felt trapped and stifled, and couldn't take his elfish, insulated way of life. He moved out of our lovely home and into a small spartment.

About a month ago I bumped into him at the shopping center. He invited me to see his apartment, so I went. Before I knew it I found myself in a very amorous situation and I stayed overnight. He served me breakfast in bed and confessed that the separation made him truly appreciate me. He said he could never love anyone the way he loved me and if I took him back he would try his best to be more sociable and make me happy. The next weekend we drove out of town secretly like two young lovers. I didn't want out of town secretly like two young lovers. I didn't want anyone (especially my family) to know. Since then, he's been wining and dining me, and I have been loving it. It's better than our courtship ever was!

People keep telling me how marvelous I look since I got rid of "that pill." They don't know I'm in love all over again.

If I take him back, my friends and family will think I've lost my mind. I'm still ashamed to let them know I'm seeing him. What would you do?

WALKING ON AIR

WALKING ON AIR DEAR WALKING: I'd take him back and give him a chance to prove his sincerity. And the last thing I'd worry about is what my friends and family think. DEAR ABBY: I just had a confrontation with a woman in a laundromat over her smoking.

am asthmatic, and cigarette smoke not only offends me, it makes me sick. When I asked her to please put her cigarette out, she told me—and everyone else in the place—in no uncertain terms that she will smoke wherever she wants to. Furthermore, she said there were no "No Smoking" signs in evidence, so I had better get used to it because

Unfortunately I will now have to go into debt to buy a washer-dryer. I'm sick of bringing home a cough and clothes that stink of cigarette smoke from the laundromat. WINCHESTER, VA. DEAR WIN: I am no defender of smokers, but it's a rare smoker who will not quickly douse his cigarette if someone complains. More and more public places post "No Smoking" signs, which I think is a step in the right

DEAR ABBY: I am a 64-year-old woman and my problem is my husband. He is 68, and no matter where we go, he ogles the women, young or old. His head looks like it's on a swivel. He's been impotent for the last 15 years, so I can't understand why he's looking. He doesn't just -he leers. One of these days somebody is going to take a poke at him. When I tell him that his looking is obvious and ask him to please cut it out, he says I am jealous. I'm not really, because I know darned well that all he can do is look. What I want to know is this: Is he wrong for looking? Or LOOKER'S FRAU

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) - Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., who had represented Arkansas in the U.S. Senate since 1943, died during the night.

A staff assistant to McClellan said the senator's wife found him this morning when she went to awaken him for breakfast. He had died in his sleep. McClellan announced a week ago he would not run for re-election in 1978. His term would have expired in

McClellan said that in the political world "there is a time to aspire, a time to achieve and a time to retire." He said that during his 50 years in public office, all his hopes and aspirations had been filled many times over. McClellan, first elected to Congress in 1934, was a typical southern Democrat of his generation - a conservative who voted frequently with the Republicans and a
