With Christmas and holiday festivities as the central theme, the museum will offer classes for both children and adults. There will be workshops on making ornaments, gifts and wrapping paper. The workshops are as follows: • Stained Glass Ornaments, Dec. 6, 3:45 to 4:45 p.m., Grades K to 2 — making ornaments resembling stained glass from dough and candy. • Scrumbaw Pins, Dec. 7, 3:30 to 5 p.m., Grades 3 to 6 — making linked pins. • Animal Gifts, Dec. 8, 3:45 to 4:45 p.m., Grades 3 to 6 — how to dress up packages into imaginative creatures. • Bring in a box or gift to decorate. • Christmas Countdown, Dec. 9, 3:45 to 4:45 p.m., Grades 3 to 6 — counting the days before Christmas by eating candies you attach to your own hanging. • Make a Christmas Card, Dec. 13, 3:45 to 4:45 p.m., Grades K to 2 — making cards from a variety of materials. • Candle Creations, Dec. 14, 3:30 to 5 p.m., Grades 3 to 6 — making and decorating a holiday candle. • Holiday Sweet Tooths, Dec. 15, 3:45 to 4:45 p.m., Grades K to 2 — making holiday munchies, including a wreath that looks and is good enough to eat. • Wrapping Paper, Dec. 10, 10 to 11:30 p.m., ages 8 to 99 — creating unique gift wrap. • Pre-registration is required for all workshops and programs. Further information is available by calling the museum at 643-0949.

We can help decorate

The Lutz Junior Museum, 126 Cedar St., invites the public to join the staff in decorating the museum for Christmas. Ornaments will be made from yarn, material, paper, cans, or anything you can think of. Materials will be supplied by the museum. The decorating will continue from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10. Further information is available by calling the museum at 643-0949.

Acquin may stand trial

WATERBURY (UPI) — A psychiatrist says Lorne J. Acquin may be suffering from a mental disorder, but he's still competent to stand trial for the slayings of his foster brother's wife, seven children and an overnight guest. In a 13-minute hearing in Waterbury Superior Court, Dr. Robert Miller, superintendent of Fairfield Hills State Hospital in Newton, said Thursday Acquin understands the charges against him and can assist his lawyer in his own defense. If an accused meets those two requirements, he is judged competent to stand trial. Miller is one of two psychiatrists who was ordered to examine Acquin to determine if he was competent to stand trial for what authorities term the largest mass murder in Connecticut history. The other psychiatrist, Dr. Michael Sheard of Yale University, will testify Dec. 7 when the competency hearing is continued. Acquin's attorney, John R. Williams of New Haven, has said Acquin, 27, of Waterbury is not mentally competent to stand trial. Acquin is charged with the July 22 slayings of Cheryl Beaudoin, 29, her seven children and a 5-year-old family friend at the Beaudoin's Prospect home.

Vet school funding due

ESSEX (UPI) — Calling it "terribly important" to the six-state area, Gov. Ella T. Grasso predicts New England will soon have its own school of veterinary medicine. "I have every confidence the school will open," Mrs. Grasso said Thursday. "I think it's terribly important." Mrs. Grasso made the comment at a meeting of the region's six governors at which officials from Tufts University laid out revised plans for the long-delayed school. "The new plan that is evolving is more acceptable and provides tremendous opportunities," she said. Mrs. Grasso and the region's other five governors, sitting as the New England Regional Commission, were expected to approve a $150,000 planning grant today for the school. New England has not had a veterinary school since Middlesex College in Waltham, Mass., closed 30 years ago. Since then, New England students have had a difficult time getting into veterinary schools elsewhere because all of them are state supported and give preference to their residents. Backers of the New England school hope to accept their first class of 35 students in July 1979. Under the plan, veterinary students will take the first two years of instruction in conjunction with Tufts Medical School because of similarities in course work. The third year of instruction will be at a facility in Grafton, Mass., while the fourth and final year will be at one of a number of existing colleges in the six New England states where students can get experience in particular areas. Under the envisioned arrangement, part of the cost of a student's education would be underwritten by state grants for pupils from their respective states. Murnane said so far he had received 2,000 unsolicited applications for the entering class. Eventually the school will have a total enrollment of 400, Murnane said.

Two charged in slaying of Plainville policeman

PLAINVILLE (UPI) — A University of Connecticut football player and another man were arrested Thursday and charged with murder in the Nov. 21 shooting death of a Plainville policeman. Police Chief Francis Roche said he believes others may have been involved. "We envision more arrests," Roche said. "We have zeroed in on a number of suspects." But Roche refused any details. "I am not at liberty at this time to say how soon." Gary Castonguay, 33, and Rocco J. Testa, 30, were arrested at their Bristol homes by state and local police and charged with the shooting death of Robert Holcomb, 28, the first Plainville policeman ever slain while on duty. Testa was ordered held on $500,000 bond on a charge of felony murder. Castonguay was charged with capital felony and ordered held without bond pending arraignment. A state police spokesman said Testa is a University of Connecticut junior and played safety for the school's football team in the season that just ended.

Pornucopia Spain's King Juan Carlos has given the royal nod to the blue movie industry. He's abolished all film censorship and says Spaniards now will have to cross the French border to see X-rated movies. Says Jose Garcia Moreno, director-general of the Culture Ministry's cinematography section, "The law means that we consider Spanish cinema goes as groups allowed to see the entertainment of their choice. I have not seen 'Deep Throat,' but I see no reason why those Spaniards who want to see it should be denied this right." Near miss It was a plain envelope, so officials of the Rose Valley Youth Center in Longview, Wash., ignored it. They were busy after all — preparing for a celebrity auction to raise funds for playground equipment. Someone finally noticed the letter and opened it. Out dropped a $1,000 check from Frank Sinatra. A center spokesman says that just about Chancellors says he'll become a roving reporter and commentator for NBC, dispelling rumors he's quitting to take a government job. Clumpies Nanette Fabray, hospitalized in October when she was assaulted by an angry elephant, is back on the set in Hollywood, filming "Harper Valley PTA." Canadian publisher Pierre Peladeau Thursday announced the founding of his new newspaper, the Philadelphia Journal, on Dec. 3. Paul Newman dropped in on the Hollywood set of "I Want to Hold Your Hand," which costars his daughter, Susan Kendall Newman. Singer-composer Paul Simon will star Dec. 8 in an NBC-TV variety special to be filmed in New York. Henry Fonda and Jane Alexander are in rehearsal for a new play, "The First Monday in October," which opens Dec. 28 at Washington's Kennedy Center. Gerald and Betty Ford will be in New York City Dec. 8 to accept the Charles Evans Hughes award, presented by Henry Kissinger.

Panel reviews reasons for new water facility

By GREG PEARSON Herald Reporter
The Manchester Water Study Committee Thursday night reviewed its work of the past nine months as it prepared a report to explain its choice of the Globe Hollow area as the proposed site for a water treatment plant. The report will be presented Tuesday night at the Board of Directors meeting. The board has an item on the agenda to appropriate $15,000 for a site study for the proposed plant. The plant is one of the long-range steps being considered to help the town upgrade its water system and meet new, stiffer water standards. The Water Study Committee reviewed a report of ten alternatives for improving water treatment. It settled on locating the plant in the Globe Hollow area, either where the pool is located or across the street to the west of Mt. Nebo. The site was considered the most feasible because of gravity flows and the size of the land that is available. Some people have expressed opposition to locating the plant at the pool site. It has been suggested that if the plant does replace Globe Hollow, another pool might be built in the area. Jay Giles, director of public works, suggested Thursday night that two referendum questions might be presented to the voters. One would be for the borrowing of money to pay for the plant construction and other water improvements. The second might be for the location of the plant. Giles also said that a study of the water distribution system that is now being done should be completed sometime between Jan. 30 and March 15, according to estimates he has received. He also said that town officials will meet Wednesday at 9 a.m. with representatives of the Metropolitan District Commission. The MDC has said that it will sell water to Manchester but the suggestion was rejected by the Water Study Committee. Committee members felt that the purchase was unnecessary because the town now has an adequate water supply. Members also said that the purchase arrangement would result in the town losing control of the cost for water and its water supply. MDC officials, however, would still like to meet with town officials to talk about the proposal.

About town

Leaf pickup on schedule

The annual leaf pickup program is on schedule and should be completed a week from today, Timothy O'Sullivan said. The crews had fallen behind because of some rainy weather and an abundance of leaves. But, the work days during the Thanksgiving week were used to catch up on the backlog of work. O'Sullivan said Thursday that the crews are now on schedule and should complete the work in a week.

Manchester Elks plan 25th memorial service

The 25th annual memorial service of the Manchester Lodge of Elks will be Sunday at 5 p.m. at the Elks Lodge, 30 Bissell St. George Meixell, past exalted ruler and chairman of the program, explained that the grand lodge requires that each of the more than 2,400 lodges designate the first Sunday of December for a special ceremony in memory of the departed members of the lodges. The public is invited to join with the Elks in this tribute to the deceased members of the lodge who passed away during the year. The nine members being recognized are Thomas Agnew, Arrigo Amendi, James B. Cowles Sr., Edward C. Custer Sr., Walter Freeburn, Albert Keeney, Conrad Kowalski, Joseph Mistretta and Albert Poudrier. Exalted Ruler Jon C. Hawthorne Sr. will direct the Ritual of the Order of the Elks in this tribute to the deceased members of the lodge who passed away during the year. The wheelchairs are needed to help handicapped residents cast their votes. Those interested in contributing a wheelchair are asked to call the registrars office at 649-3278. The office will make the pickups. The registrars of voters office of the Town of Manchester is asking for donations of wheelchairs that can be used during elections.

The little man

The report at first glance is quite startling: a 71 percent increase in the last million men in the number of "house husbands" — married men not working outside the home or seeking work.

The actual number, while impressive, is still a small fraction of the total work force. According to Business Week magazine, 2.2 million married men are not wage earners. And "more married students, other young husbands and middle-aged men," it says, "are staying home and letting their wives earn the paycheck."

We are hardly in the middle of a sociological revolution, however. Not yet, anyway. About half the 2.2 million men for example, are disabled men collecting Social Security or other disability benefits. Others, especially blacks, have "retired" not out of choice but because they lost a job they once had and haven't been able to find another.

The true revolution is the continuing growth in working wives.

More than half of all married women — 52.4 percent as of 1976 — have joined or replaced their husbands in the 9-to-5 grind. Some wives are doing it for sheer fulfillment, no doubt, but most are working just to help bring home that expensive bacon.

One statistic we'd like to see is how many of these 2.2 million househusbands really deserve the name. That is, how many are washing the clothes, scrubbing the floors, cooking the dinners and all the rest, and how many are still able to con the little woman into doing that.

Lesson from a tragedy

A great many of the nation's laws have been written in the aftermath of tragedies and catastrophes. It is human nature to worry about the security of the barn only after the horse has been stolen.

In the case of dam safety, it has taken another tragedy to spur demands for enforcement of legislation already passed as the result of previous tragedies.

The latest tragedy was the collapse of a dam in Toccoa, Ga., which took nearly 40 lives, half of them children. The law is the Dam Inspection Act of 1972, which mandated the U.S. Corps of Engineers to inspect some 49,500 dams in the United States but which Congress never funded.

Now the Toccoa tragedy has understandably aroused intense emotions. "These dams are like loaded shotguns aimed at the people downstream," said Rep. Leo Ryan of California.

But Ryan, who is chairman of a House subcommittee investigating dam safety, erred when he claimed that the Toccoa tragedy could have been avoided had the 1972 inspection act been enforced. It would not, because the law prescribes inspection only for dams above 25 feet in height. The Toccoa dam was 20 feet high.

Thus not only is full funding and implementation of the 1972 law in order, but a new law or laws are needed to close such "loopholes" as the height limitation.

It is also pertinent to note that the Toccoa dam was a privately built and owned structure, one of 14,000 dams it is said have been built without control over their design or construction. Georgia has no law requiring either the licensing or inspection of dams.

Thus part of the remedy must be sought on the state level, although federal legislation could include inducements to the states to institute or tighten safety standards and inspection procedures.

One thing we do not need is another tragedy on the order of the Toccoa dam burst to make us aware of the urgency of this problem.

Thought

A miraculous bottle

When the great Dutch patriot, Corrie ten Boom, and her sister, Elizabeth, were interned in a German prison camp, their only possessions were a Bible and a tiny vial containing a few drops of vitamins. It was their great joy to share their Bible with other inmates, but for Corrie it was very difficult to share the vitamins so badly needed by her ailing sister with the strangers whose lot was hardly worse than their own. She grudgingly doled out a few drops to the weakest ones who sought her out.

Corrie tried to see how much of the precious liquid remained, for she was sure the bottle must be empty, but she could not see through the dark glass. She was amazed as time after time she drew from its contents and always found a little left. Many days passed and still the little bottle yielded its life extending droplets.

One day Red Cross packages arrived and among their marvelous contents were vitamins. That night, try as she would, Corrie could not squeeze even the tiniest dribble from the miraculous bottle.

Corrie was obedient to the Christian ideals which were her heritage even when obedience was not wise or prudent. Throughout her imprisonment which included physical misery, humiliation and degradation, and finally the death of her beloved sister, she turned instinctively to the scriptures which her father had read to his family every day of their lives.

"In all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Romans 8:37, 39.

By United Press International Today is Friday, Dec. 2, the 338th day of 1977 with 29 to follow. The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mercury. Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American statesman Frank Kellogg was born Dec. 2, 1856.

On this day in history: In 1859, John Brown was hanged for his raid on Harper's Ferry. On the way to the gallows, he said of the Virginia countryside "this is a beautiful country."

In 1927, the Model-A Ford was introduced as the successor to the famous Model-T and was available for the first time in a variety of colors. The roadster sold for $268.

In 1942, the "Atomic Age" was born. A group of scientists demonstrated a self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction at a makeshift laboratory below the University of Chicago football stadium.

In 1961, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro revealed himself to be a Communist and said he had formed a single political party with himself as its head. He admitted he had concealed his true political philosophy until he had solidified his hold on Cuba.

A thought for the day: American automobile pioneer Henry Ford said, "History is more or less bunk."

Currency anemia

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $2 bill, reissued in April 1976, has bombed badly.

If it had been a Broadway production, it would have closed on Saturday night.

On paper, the bill looked good. Like everything else these days, the cost of printing money is on the rise. Simple arithmetic will tell you it's cheaper to make one $2 bill than it is to make two $1 bills.

So the Bureau of Engraving and Printing ran off about 327 million with the expectation of saving maybe $5 million a year.

At last count, however, only about 220 million were in circulation. Meanwhile, the demand for $1 bills has continued to grow apace. Despite overwhelming evidence that it has a real turkey on its hands, the Treasury Department keeps trying to improve the bill's image and thus salvage its investment.

The latest effort along that line is an agreement with food store chains to distribute $2 bills to their customers in certain areas.

If public resistance remains high, the government presumably will try something else.

I'm certainly no currency expert but from long experience I do know something about public relations gimmicks. Here are a few that might boost the bill's popularity:

Contests — Fill goldfish bowls with $2 bills, place them in store windows all over the country and offer prizes to the people who come closest to guessing how much money the bowls contain.

It might be easy to estimate that a bowling ball contains, say, 836 bills. But that's just the half of it. To hit the correct monetary sum, a contestant must remember to double that figure. This is certain to make the public more $2-bill conscious.

Public Service Announcements — All sorts of celebrities donate their services to plug worthwhile causes on radio and television. I'm sure the Treasury Department could line up a wonderful group to endorse the $2 bill.

"Hi, this is movie star Burt Reynolds asking you to join the crusade against currency glut."

"Did you ever stop to think that carrying around a fat, overstuffed wallet imposes an extra burden on your heart and also may cause you to walk lopsided?"

"The U.S. Treasury Department wishes me to remind you that you can reduce wallet bulge up to 50 percent by switching to trim new $2 bills."

Superstition — Arrangements are made for Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees to carry a $2 bill in his pocket during the World Series.

If he breaks the home run record, word gets around that a $2 bill brings good luck.

If he strikes out, he is traded to the State Department to plug the Panama Canal treaty.

"Our trial marriage is not working... I'd like a trial divorce!"

Peace, not victory, is the only thing

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — "My heart," said the Egyptian diplomat, "says the Arab world and Israel can make peace without the help of any other nation." He smiled thinly. "But my brain tells me to face reality. We shall need your country's services."

The diplomat, as he put it, was "uplifted" by the remarkable meeting of Egyptian President Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Begin. "They told the world they would do anything to avoid another war," he said.

"That was the psychological meaning of President Sadat's visit to Jerusalem. It was the first time an Arab and a Jew proclaimed 'no more war.'"

Now, he said, the United States has the opportunity to play the honest broker from a position of "constructive neutrality." And that, he said, means that both sides must be assured that Americans will take an even-handed approach.

Again, the thin smile. "You know," he said, "we Arabs cannot be blamed if we feel that your country on occasion has been neutral on Israel's side. We don't ask for patronage from Washington, only the fairness and understanding expected of a football referee."

The Egyptian diplomat's position is a reasonable one. It should be permissible to state the obvious: To wit, that the United States sentimentally and as a benevolent banker has always tilted toward Israel. This has not always been bad, but it is a fact the Arab world finds irritating.

"We Arabs find some previous American positions incomprehensible," said the Egyptian. "After all, it is in America's selfish interest to have peace in the Middle East. The United States is a sovereign nation; there is no law that says your country should assume the role of big brother to certain other nations."

So it is time to say the unsayable, to suggest that Washington reject the attitude assumed, since the last World War II shot was fired, that there are certain nations that are more equal than others. This had led us into supporting governments solely on the grounds that they are anti-communist and thus pure.

It might be more accurate to plier from the late Talaluh Bankhead, a shrewd amateur politician, and describe the more dictatorial regimes we support as "pure as the driven slush."

Israel, of course, has never been that kind of a country. Indeed, Israel is not interested in only one thing — the state of Israel and its security. Otherwise President Sadat's statesmanlike excursion to Israel will be futile.

Indisputably, Israel has suffered. Moreover, we all share the guilt for suffering of Jews written in blood on the pages of history. It is proper that the United States regard Israel as a protégé. But to support Israel unequivocally while seeming to ignore the interests of the Arab world and the Palestine refugees makes us suspect when striving for "constructive neutrality."

Sadat and Begin have made a good start. But I doubt they can do the peace job alone. They need a referee both sides can trust. We can continue our traditional friendship with Israel while strengthening our wobbly relationships with the Arab states. Unlike the late football dictator, Vince Lombardi, Sadat and Begin seem to have agreed that peace — not victory — is the only thing.

Chamber continues effort to revitalize downtown

In an effort to strengthen its commitment to the revitalization of Manchester's downtown area, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce announced that James C. Breitenfeld, the chamber's executive vice president, will be attending a two-day conference in Boston.

Preservation, the Society for Preservation of New England and the Preservation League of New York State.

The Main Street Revitalization conference, to be held early this month, is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Society for Preservation of New England and the Preservation League of New York State.

The conference will bring together business, government and civic leaders from the Northeast to discuss practical approaches to making downtown areas attractive and thriving community centers.

Participating will be experts in historic preservation, community organization, architectural design, financing and marketing. The local chamber is attending this conference as a follow-up on its recent endorsement of the Nov. 8 town referendum on renovations to the Main Street roadway. The chamber is also moving forward in several other areas related to this project and expect to announce the formation of a high level downtown revitalization committee in the near future.

If you can't afford it, rent it

Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether you need a peanut vending machine for the kids party or a hospital bed to recuperate from the party, almost anything can be — and is — rented nowadays.

The rental industry has grown by leaps and bounds as Americans are realizing that they can have use of everything and avoid the expense of owning it.

Annual revenues for the thousands of rental stores in the country are estimated at $2 billion and industry experts say the industry is growing at a rate of 15 to 20 per cent a year.

United Rent-All, the biggest of two franchise operations in the country, has 123 franchised stores in the United States, and has recently expanded its operation to Japan.

The list of items Americans can rent is seemingly endless — chairs and card tables for a party of 100, a trailer for a camping trip, a small portable concrete mixer to repair your sidewalk, a chainsaw to cut up a dead tree, a garden tractor, an extra long blade hedge clipper, a floor sanding machine.

"One of our stores at Valparaiso, Ind., ordered a number of canoes to rent out," says United Rent-All President Bob Feinstein. "This mystified us because there is no navigable stream or lake at Valparaiso. We discovered people were taking the canoes hundreds of miles to water stop their cars; it didn't make sense to own a canoe if you lived so far from water."

Lawn and garden tools, building tools, medical emergency equipment and party equipment are the bread-and-butter business of United Rent-All's 125 stores. But, through contacts with talent agencies and other businesses, a United Rent-All store can rent you practically anything you want to get if you give them enough notice.

"Our Beverly Hills store once rented the late Elvis Presley's Rolls-Royce and a lot of other things belonging to big stars for a customer who wanted to make a big name-dropping splash at a Hollywood party," Feinstein said.

The Taylor chain, the other nationally franchised equipment rental firm, operates through dealers who are primarily sellers of tools and equipment. But thousands of other independent tool and equipment dealers also are in the rental business.

Feinstein's company was founded in Lincoln, Neb., in 1968. For a time it was a part of All Laps International Industries, Inc., which also ran a chain of franchised pancake restaurants.

Feinstein joined the company in 1968 and bought control of it in 1974. He has expanded its domestic operations and recently obtained permission of the government to start a franchised rent-all business in Japan.

"I think the Japanese will be even more pleased than Americans to be able to rent things," said Feinstein. "Storage space is at a premium in Japan and this should make rental of large items more preferable than owning them."

"I think they will rent much the same things as Americans, plus large luggage for travel and ceremonial costumes for traditional festivals."

In the United States, a United Rent-All franchise usually has a $50,000 personal investment (the owner has to pay that much down) in a business with an inventory of AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Higher pie changing their destinations prices aren't keeping people from eating out, said Peter Manning, going to restaurants; they're just eating out," said Peter Manning, eating at places closer to home, according to a University of Massachusetts professor.

Manning said it is the first time the energy price increases or short-haulage are likely to result in more people eating out.

Effects of childhood trauma may not last

NEW YORK (UPI) — What's ahead for a baby whose mother hits the bottle pretty hard now and then and whose dad sometimes loses the food money at the racetrack? The baby may sometimes go hungry. The baby may suffer other kinds of neglect when mom's in an alcoholic haze. In toddler years, the baby born into such circumstances may be cold, unloved, often ignored. But, according to Dr. Jerome Kagan, Harvard University professor of human development, this baby born into deprived circumstances and-or neglect will not necessarily be a bum adult. He said contrary to precepts from child development experts for generations, there often is little connection between a baby's early experiences and the kind of adult it becomes. Kagan has put together evidence showing the first few years of life are not so important as previously thought. He has found that the immature mind seems to be elastic, springing back to its original shape once the child is removed from potentially harmful or negative surroundings.

Kagan's research will be published by Harvard University Press in the spring. It is called "The Place of Infancy in Development." "Both life and laboratory research could undermine the Western belief that a baby's experiences determine the course of its adult life," Kagan says. To support that conclusion, he cites eight separate studies of children in a wide range of circumstances — war orphans, middle and working class children, newborns, children in other cultures, and one case of unprecedented early childhood deprivation. "Not until a child was 6 to 10 years old was there any firm evidence that his or her behavior foretold the kind of adult the child would become."

World watching North Korea's new parliament

TOKYO (UPI) — North Korea's newly elected parliament gathers Dec. 15 with American and South Korean officials watching from afar for clues to the future of the strife-torn Korean peninsula.

President Kim Il Sung, 66, who has ruled the country throughout its 32-year history, has never swerved from his life goal of uniting North and South Korea under communist rule. That ambition is opposed by an implacably anti-communist South Korean government backed by the United States. On the surface, the meeting of the 579 member Supreme Peoples Assembly elected without opposition Nov. 11, is routine. Like legislatures in most communist countries it has no independent power. Its first duty will be to choose a "central peoples committee," which will re-elect Kim president. If he wants the job. Even if Kim were to delegate the presidency to someone else, it would make little difference. He remains chairman of the Korean Workers Party, North Korea's equivalent of the Communist Party, which is the real power in the country.

The assembly also will probably approve a seven-year economic plan to be launched Jan. 1. Other matters lie below the surface. One is North Korea's policy line toward American-backed South Korea, whose relations with the United States are steadily being poisoned by the Koreagate scandal. In 1970, Kim laid down the line that there would be no second war with South Korea, but that revolution there would be encouraged. In 1975, after the communist victory in Vietnam, he added that North Korea might intervene if South Korea fell into political chaos.

Get involved with Vertices

Many of you have probably heard of Vertices. It is a program in which students are allowed to work at their own pace and are given extra attention. The atmosphere is casual and the teachers show real concern toward their students.

Vertices came to be when teachers, administrators and guidance counselors presented a proposal to the Board of Education for an alternative school. The program started the second semester of the 1975-76 school year. It was only a pilot program but its success led to a permanent position for Vertices.

The name Vertices was suggested by a student in the program. The word is the plural of vertex, which means "a point where lines come together" or "the highest point."

Reasons for getting into Vertices are frequent truancy, problems at home and at school, or by a court referral.

Whenever a spot is open, names are turned into a committee by teachers, administrators, guidance counselors, social workers and Youth Services. The committee selects those students who can best benefit from the program.

Many people think that students go into alternative school to do nothing, but Vertices offers a lot of basic skills courses, some of which are: English skills 1&2, consumer math, basic math skills, college math, education. These courses provide enough work to keep students busy throughout the week.

We will conclude this article with some opinions of our patrons.

Mrs. Sue Hardy (a Vertices teacher) praises the program highly and if she had the chance to work in this program or be a regular teacher she would choose this. "I like the challenge," she said when asked why.

Mr. Bill DiYeso (a Vertices teacher) comments, "I think the program is primarily what the people in it want it to be. People who succeed can pat themselves on the back because they've done it on their own. We only provide a chance to let them try."

"Vertices is good because it lets you be yourself."

"...cause it's fun..."

"No comment while I'm doing my work."

"Enjoy it while you can."

"It's better than regular school."

"It's not boring."

"It's all right, it could be better, it could be worse."

Homecoming festival reviewed

After many trials and tribulations involving student assembly, the student body finally took a vote on Tuesday, Nov. 22 for this year's Homecoming Queen. This began the three-day celebration of the 1977 Homecoming.

As a change of pace, this year's Homecoming was dedicated to the alumni and was celebrated on Thanksgiving. In the past years the Homecoming festivities have been celebrated on the first home football game of the season, but because of many problems this year it was changed to our last football game.

After the final elections were held on Tuesday, the ballots were counted by Laura Leibler and Sandy Shack, and Karen McArdle was announced as Homecoming Queen. Leslie Scott and Carol LeBlanc were in the court. Wednesday, Nov. 23, the Alumni Dance was held with "Nightbird" playing their songs. These consisted of Fleetwood Mac songs and various other tunes. About 500 people attended the dance with about 30 percent made up of alumni who had come back for the Thanksgiving holidays. All those present enjoyed seeing old friends from college and listening to "Nightbird".

The next day was Thanksgiving, and the Manchester vs. East Catholic High football game was played. In an attempt to get the football players up for the game, Manchester High's cheerleaders went out the night before and decorated the senior football players' homes with toilet paper.

At 10:45 the homecoming festivities started with a procession around the football field. The procession consisted of Manchester High cheerleaders leading the sophomore and junior floats, coordinated by Ellen O'Brien and Sandy Shack. The paper was basically the same, and Manchester High added their spirit, marching around to the tune of the "Fight" song. Also in the procession were the Homecoming Queen and her court.

The crowd at the Thanksgiving game was the biggest this year, consisting of more than 2,000 people. There were many alumni there to root for their alma mater. Also present were many students, parents, and teachers from both schools. Even though Manchester lost to East Catholic by a score of 12 to 6, it was still a very exciting game, and the final result came down to the last 49 seconds, when Manchester had a good chance to make a touchdown and tie the game.

This year's Homecoming was a very successful one. There were a great many people involved to make the 1977 event the best in the years.

Special thanks should go to the committee, which really pulled this Homecoming together. For an event that almost wasn't, I'm sure there are many who are glad that there was one. — Valerie Toros

Swedish Exchange Student introduces herself to you

Hi! My name is Anniken Tyden and I'm an exchange student from Sweden. I am a senior at Manchester High School, and if you have seen someone creeping around the corners at school, looking totally confused, it was probably me.

The first weeks I felt really lost, and I still can't get used to seeing so many people in one school. My school in Sweden has only 500 students, so you know your everyone is.

Many people ask me how I like America. "Fine, thank you," I say, and hope that they are not going to ask if I find life here difficult, but that's exactly what they do. That question is very hard to answer, because the USA and Sweden aren't really so different. And yet in certain ways they are, because of Sweden's different way of viewing things.

So many cars

One very different thing here in the U.S.A. are the cars. When I got off the plane from Sweden, the first thing I saw were cars. I was amazed by all of them, because they were so big, fast, and loud, and because there were so many of them. In Sweden, the Volvo is a big car, and there isn't more than one car per family.

Instead of cars, we use subways, buses, taxis, cable cars, and trains.

Swedish teen-agers are not very different from those here. We wear mostly the same clothes — jeans, shirts and sweaters. We don't have as many checked and striped clothes, though. Ours are mostly in one color.

Our jeans and all our clothes are very expensive. A pair of Levi's would cost about $30, and some even more. I think the people in Sweden dress up a bit more. The clothes have to be of the right trademark or brand. There is one big difference: Most of the boys have short hair.

Muscle the same

The music we listen to is the same as yours, although disco-music plays a much bigger role. Because of that fact, we have very few bands of our own — we get most of the music from England and America. "The Eagles," "Yes," "The Rolling Stones," "ELO," "Peter Frampton," "Pink Floyd," and "David Bowie," are some examples. Most of our singers and groups also have concerts in Sweden when they come over here.

I have been here for only four months, but I think I have learned a lot and many things differently now than I did before. I will be here until July, and before I go home, I hope to meet many more people. — Anniken Tyden

Students help clean campus

Why is it that each year George Emmerling, the principal of MHS, must get on the internet to make an announcement to the students about the trash that is dropped on the school grounds?

How many complaints does he get from the people in the community and about how dirty the grounds are, and about how it affects the people living by the school?

After hearing this yearly announcement, I became concerned and decided to get some people to help me clean up the school grounds.

The volunteers on Sunday were: Ayelet Salant, Colleen Wright, Mark Gluhosky, Lynn Alamy, Colin O'Neill, Betsy Thurber, Wendy Waring, Sue Katz, Nancy Siefert, Tom J. Donovan, Darla Close, Joanne Tremano, John Rivoso and Heather Plagge. — Bill Goehoe

Guidance notes

College representatives will be in the Guidance Office to visit with interested students as follows: at 10:30 on Monday, Dec. 5, Franklin Pierce College of Rindge, N.H.; at 11 on Friday, Dec. 9, Eckerd College of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Students who plan to take the SAT or Achievement Test on Jan. 28 must mail their registration form by Dec. 23.

The Guidance Office has received a supply of copies of "College Times," a newspaper published for seniors who are planning further education. It contains articles on financial aid, choosing a college, and has a special section for juniors. Complimentary copies are available in Room 110.

The Financial Aid Forms (FAF) are now available in the Guidance Office. A workshop for parents will be held next Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Henry Miller, financial aid officer, will discuss the FAF in detail, line by line, and answer any questions which parents may have. Parents should secure a copy of the FAF and "Meeting College Costs" prior to attending the workshop. Students are also invited.

Student Assembly meets

A Student Assembly meeting was held on Thursday, Nov. 17. The main topic was the upcoming Homecoming Dance, open to Manchester High alumni and the students.

The Homecoming Queen election plans were discussed and finally a motion was passed allowing students to vote Tuesday morning in hallways and narrow the selection to 15. Afterwards a vote would be taken to decide the winners.

Other old business included the junior prom committee report, the Board of Education report, and the Student Advisory report. It was announced that the first student advisory board would meet in two weeks. It was also announced that the new constitution was passed.

Along the line of new business, a motion was passed to have a committee collect toys for under-

Jewish Feast of Lights begins Sunday evening

The Jewish Festival of Hanukkah, or Feast of Lights, will begin Sunday evening and will continue for eight days. Each evening of the festival small candles will be lit in Jewish homes in a special eight-branched lamp. On the first night only one candle will be lit and on each subsequent evening another candle will be added until all eight lights will be kindled on the last evening of the festival.

Upon kindling these lights a special prayer will be said thanking God for the miracles he had wrought for our fathers in those days at this season. The miracles referred to in this prayer were the victories which the Jewish people had attained in the second century B.C. when the Greeks who had conquered the land two centuries earlier attempted to suppress the Jewish faith.

It is this spiritual aspect of the holiday that is stressed in its observance today. And this is best expressed in the words of the Prophet Zachariah, "not by might nor by power but my spirit saith the Lord." It is not might and power that are decisive in human affairs, but faith and spirit and dedication.

This is the significance of Hanukkah to the Jewish people today and in observing it they dedicate themselves to the ideals of religious freedom and human dignity.

Barry, Moses meet to ease transition
Manchester Town Council David Barry and the man he is succeeding, Victor Moses, met Thursday to review files, and Moses expects a smooth change.

Barry, who served as town councilor from 1971-1973, was appointed Tuesday night by the Board of Directors. Moses had decided not to seek reappointment because of time conflicts with the town position and his private practice.

"Everything's just about all set. I don't think there will be any problems in the transition," Moses said. He said that he and Barry probably will meet a couple of more times to review cases now being handled by the town council's office.

Barry said Thursday that he plans to appoint three part-time assistants, a step that follows a proposal recommended by Moses.

Moses suggested that four part-time people work in the office rather than a part-time town council, a full-time assistant and a part-time assistant as the Board of Directors proposed.

"What is done in the next fiscal year will depend on how well the office functions with four part-time people," Barry said.

Pool bids high
East Hartford
Bids to build the Hockanum Park pool came in Thursday $64,000 above the town's $58,000 construction budget for it, said Purchasing Agent Jack Martin.

But the town may not have to rebuild the project, said Michael Valak, assistant to Mayor Richard Blackstone, today.

The architects of Kane, Farrell & White of West Hartford are going over the bids now, he said. They are looking most carefully at the low bid of $59,000 from the Hartford firm of Anderson-Fairlocks.

Ex-town employee complains to HRC

BY GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter
A former employee of the Town of Manchester who was laid off earlier this year has filed a complaint with the town's Human Relations Commission.

John Bourque, who was hired through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act program and worked in the Highway Department, mailed his complaint Thursday to the commission, which handles cases dealing with discrimination.

He did say that an adequate training program was never provided for him.

"I asked for training and I didn't get any," he said. Highway Superintendent Timothy O'Sullivan said that he offered a training program for all workers in his department. He developed the program and presented a sample lecture. But a sign-up sheet for the program produced no signers.

Bourque also said that he was laid off because of budget problems in the town. This, however, should not have affected Bourque since he was a CETA employee, Bourque said. The CETA program is funded primarily by federal funds.

He mentioned that the town now is having some problems finding unemployed workers to fill skilled positions available through the CETA program.

"If there were a highway inspector (one of the skilled positions for CETA) that much, let them hire a common laborer like me, and I'll train him. That's a chance I never had," Bourque said.

The commission previously developed a plan for future transportation improvements in Manchester. The plan included an in-town bus route and improved commuter transportation from town to Hartford. Weiss said that he would like to see that plan implemented.

One of the major reasons for his suggestion is the proposed J.C. Penney Co. catalog distribution center. The center is planned for a location in the Buckland section and would be the major building in the town's proposed industrial park.

With the likelihood of Penney coming, it'd like them (the committee members) to do whatever they can to improve transportation to Penney," Weiss said.

When the J.C. Penney project was in the initial planning stages, the town had said in some reports that mass transportation to and from the site would be developed.

The boards of directors for the Town of Manchester and the Eighth Utilities District will meet Monday, Jan. 16 to discuss matter affecting both bodies.

The two boards will meet on Jan. 16 at 7 p.m. at Whitt Memorial Library, 85 N. Main St. The date is the regular meeting night of the district board. The district directors will consider their regular business during the meeting with the town directors, Lassow said.

The town and district have been involved in several disputes in recent years. The largest one probably is the Buckland fire jurisdiction case, which now is before the State Supreme Court.

The case involves a dispute over which of the bodies, the town or the district, has jurisdiction for fire protection in Buckland. A State Superior Court judge ruled that the district has the right to service the area, but the town has appealed that decision to the Supreme Court.

Guest caller set by club

Jerry Schatzer of Cromwell will be guest caller at the Manchester Square Dance Club dance for all club-level dancers Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. at Manchester High School.

Russ and Anita White will cue the dance. Schatzer has been calling since 1962 and had been a full-time caller since 1971. He calls regularly for 13 clubs in New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Scott have done duty for Saturday's dance. Refreshments will be served by Mr. and Mrs. John Theiling, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Timbrell and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tracy.

together. The purpose of the meeting is "to start a dialogue which leads to salient results between the town and the district instead of all this combatting," Lassow said.

Two men attempted to enter a woman's car that was stopped early this morning at a red light at North Main and Oakland streets, Manchester police said.

The men had pulled up behind the woman at the stop light. They got out of their car, but were unable to gain entrance into her car because the doors were locked, police said.

The woman drove away and flagged down a police cruiser soon after the incident, which occurred shortly after 1:30.

• Paul P. Appicelli, 65, of 69 McKee St. who was charged with failure to give a proper turn signal following an accident on Broad Street near the Center Street intersection.

There were no injuries reported in either accident. Manchester Police also made the following arrests Thursday:

• Kathleen M. Polowitz, 23, of East Hartford who was charged with fourth-degree larceny. The arrest was made in connection with a price-switching incident at K-Mart, police said. Court date is Dec. 19.

• Robert L. Brown, 25, of Hartford who was charged with issuing a bad check. Court date is Dec. 12.

• John R. Dumont, 16, of 373 Spruce St. who was charged with possession of marijuana. Court date is Dec. 19.

A battery valued at $50 was taken Thursday from a vehicle parked on Sheldon Road, police said.

A Chestnut Street apartment was entered shortly after 1:30 a.m. today, but nothing was reported missing, police said. There also was no report of anything taken in a break at a Spencer Street apartment Thursday afternoon, police said.

A break into a Village Street home reported at 11:58 p.m. Thursday resulted in the theft of $4, police said.

Money found
A sum of money was found in a parking lot off Main St. Thursday morning by a Bennet Junior High School student.

Parents ask police to search for boy

East Hartford
The parents of Paul A. Allard, 15, of East Hartford have asked East Hartford Police to help them find the boy.

Paul has been missing since Sept. 2, 1976. On that date he left a relative's home in Miami, Fla., and is believed to have been hitchhiking home to Connecticut, police said.

He has not been seen or heard from since. Paul was then five feet and five inches tall, 125 pounds, had blue eyes and straight, sandy brown, shoulder-length hair. He had scars on the first two fingers of his right hand. Anyone with information about Paul is asked to contact police at 528-4401.

Disease probe advanced but germ still a mystery
BOSTON (UPI) - Scientists are making rapid progress in the fight against Legionnaires' disease but the strange germ which causes pneumonia-like illness is still a mystery, the New England Journal of Medicine reports.

Further progress in knowledge of Legionnaires' disease can be expected to occur quite rapidly," the weekly journal said Thursday. It also cited the possibility that "suitable protective vaccine will be prepared in the not too distant future."

It said the germ, which was isolated by a team of doctors and field technicians from the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, is unlike any bacterium known to science.

"It's really a weird bug," said CDC chief information specialist Don Berrett commenting on the report. "If you put it in ordinary tap water, it just sits there. It doesn't multiply and it doesn't die. It just endures."

The strain also is difficult to grow in lab cultures and requires a special blood containing and some carbon dioxide. It thrives in normal body temperatures of 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, is very slow growing, and is difficult to kill, the journal said.

Although scientists were finally able to isolate the germ through silver impregnation techniques, they don't know where it comes from, why it infects some people and not others, and how it is spread, the journal said.

Weiss suggests new job for transportation panel

Town Manager Robert Weiss has suggested that the Transportation Advisory Commission be reactivated to begin work on implementing its proposed transportation plan, which includes a bus route in Manchester.

Weiss sent letters Wednesday to Jane Curtis, who has agreed to serve as chairwoman, and Frank Strano and Renato Nicola. Strano has agreed to serve a four-year term on the commission, and Weiss has asked Nicola if he would accept a reappointment.

The commission previously developed a plan for future transportation improvements in Manchester. The plan included an in-town bus route and improved commuter transportation from town to Hartford. Weiss said that he would like to see that plan implemented.

Steam and fog hide street
Foggy weather and steam from the Cheney Brothers plant combined to make it hard to see Thursday on Cooper Hill Street. The plant produces steam everyday during its production of silk materials, a spokesman said. The steam condenses during cold weather and does not clear as fast as during warmer periods, he said. Neither the plant nor the Manchester Police Department has received any complaints about the matter. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Polish jokes out

No one tells any Polish jokes when Ron Mikolajczyk is in attendance. The guy with the hard name to pronounce is a defensive tackle with the New York Giants.

He's also a professional wrestler, following in the footsteps of Ernie Ladd of San Diego and Russ Francis of the New England Patriots who grunted and growled inside the ropes during the off-season.

Mikolajczyk is reported to be tougher to pin than to spell. The Giant lineman, acquired in a trade with Oakland, has already appeared on the undercard at Madison Square Garden, wrestling capital in the East.

"My name is just like Smith in Poland," Mikolajczyk explains with a smile. "There are pages and pages of Mikolajczyks in the phone book in Warsaw."

Before reaching the National Football League, Mikolajczyk was a wrestling headliner in Memphis. "Being with the Giants gives me more exposure, especially in New York. Basically, my wrestling career depends upon how well I do in the ring," he adds.

Pro football players have long been identified with the mat game.

Perhaps the most famous wrestler who also wrestled is Gus "The Goat" Sonnenberg, out of Dartmouth, who performed with the Providence Steamrollers in the NFL on Sunday and during the week picked up some easy money wrestling on the New England circuit.

Sonnenberg, a tackle at Dartmouth and in the pros, often appeared at Foot Guard Hall in Hartford. He was once chairman of the world's wrestling championships in Boston. Ed "Strangler" Lewis at the Boston Garden in a title match.

The Ivy League product made so much money wrestling that he retired early from the NFL. The "flying tackle" was his pet hold which preceded many triumphs.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gabe Paul, the New York Yankees' president and "man in motion" for the last four years, is resigning to accept a similar post with the Cleveland Indians.

Paul, 67, who engineered most of the deals which enabled the defending world champion Yankees to win American League pennants in each of the last two seasons, will be replaced by Cedric Tallis, who will have the title of vice president and general manager. Talis will be assisted by Al Rosen, former Cleveland third baseman, who has joined the Yankees as executive vice president.

The Yankees also announced that farm director Jack Butterfield has been named vice president in charge of both player development and

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Denver Broncos and Los Angeles Rams can join the Dallas Cowboys as the only teams certain to compete in the National Football League's playoffs en route to Super Bowl XII Sunday, but don't bet the rent money on it.

The Broncos, who have never played in post-season competition during their 18 years of existence, will clinch a playoff berth if they beat the Houston Oilers while the Rams will clinch if they defeat the Oakland Raiders. The Broncos are 1½-point favorites and the Rams are two-point underdogs.

With three weeks remaining in the regular season, all six division titles are undecided and only Dallas, the NFC Eastern Division leader, has clinched at least a wild-card berth among the eight divisional playoff positions available.

The Broncos, whose 10-1 record gives them a one-game head over Oakland in the AFC's Western division, have allowed the fewest points in their division. They will be out to contain quarterback Dan Pastorini and running backs Rod Carpenter and Ronnie Coleman. Craig Morton, No. 3 ranking passer in the AFC with 50.9 percentage and 11 touchdowns, is the key man in the Denver offense.

The Rams will clinch their fifth straight NFC Western crown if Atlanta loses but, of course, are up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee Trevino took a look at the scoreboard, shook his head and said, "It's unbelievable."

"It was the 11-under-par 61 that put Jerry Pate and Hollis Stacy way out front after the first round of the $200,000 Mixed Team Championship, sponsored by Pepsi Cola.

Stacy had six birdie putts to Pate's five and they made no bogeys to take a commanding six-stroke lead after a rainy opening day in this tournament, which pairs top PGA and LPGA players.

"Obviously, they're both playing absolutely perfect golf," said Trevino, who finished eagle-birdie-eagle with partner Carol Mann for a

Trio of Notre Dame stars named to All-America

NEW YORK (UPI) — Notre Dame turns out All-America football players the way General Motors produces automobiles.

The Fighting Irish, whose legendary gridiron heroes have been an inspiration to young football players for three generations, named two repeaters and one newcomer to the United Press International All-America team Thursday, marking the 15th year in a row they have placed at least one player on the first team.

The fifth-ranked Fighting Irish, who will meet top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2, were represented on the first team by tight end Ken Mackler, defensive end Ross Browner and defensive back Luther Bradley. It marked the third straight year that the 6-foot-4, 250-pound MacAfee has been named as the first team and the second appearance in a row for the 6-3, 247-pound Browner.

Notre Dame also led the list of selectees to the second team, naming guard Ernie Hughes to the offensive squad and linebacker Bob Golie and end Willie Fry to the defensive unit.

The teams were chosen by a balloting of sports writers and sportscasters from across the country.

The first team offensive backfield consists of quarterback Guy Benjamin of Stanford, the nation's leading passer with 20.9 completions per game, and running backs Earl Campbell of Texas, Terry Miller of Oklahoma State and Charles Alexander of LSU. Campbell, Alexander and Miller are the nation's three leading rushers, respectively.

Florida's Wes Chandler was named as the wide receiver and the offensive line consists of guards Mark Donahue of Michigan and Lewis Martin of Arkansas, center Tom Brazza of Pittsburgh and tackles Chris Ward of Ohio State and Dan Irons of Texas Tech. Donahue is a repeater from last year's team.

Bruce Little of Arkansas, who steved 19 field goals, earned first-team mention as a placekicker.

Joining Browner on the defensive line are end Art Still of Kentucky, tackles Randy Holloway of Pittsburgh and Brad Shearer of Texas and middle guard Reggie Kinlaw of Oklahoma.

UCLA's Jerry Robinson, Ohio State's Tom Cousineau and Kansas State's Gary Spani comprise the linebacking crew while Bradley is denied in the defensive secondary by Dennis Thurman of Southern California and Zac Henderson of Oklahoma.

There were only four underclassmen among the first team selections. Alexander, Kinlaw, Cousineau and Robinson are juniors. Joining the three Notre Dame players on the second team are Quarterback Doug Williams of Grambling, the leader in touchdown

Road jinx ends in Rocket victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Houston Rockets picked up their first road victory of the season after eight straight losses Thursday night, a 105-92 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers — but it might have come too late.

The Rockets are struggling at 8-12 and in last place in the Central Division.

Thursday night, however, Moses Malone put things in order.

The 6-foot-10 center scored 28 points and grabbed 23 rebounds as Houston pulled away from Cleveland in the fourth quarter.

With the Rockets up, 87-86, with six minutes left, Malone scored five straight points as Houston reeled off 15 in a row to put the game out of reach.

"I am still getting used to playing center," said Malone, the NBA's second-leading rebounder, "but it sure is a better position to block shots."

Rudy Tomjanovich had 27 points and Calvin Murphy 13 for Houston while Campy Russell led the Cavaliers with 23.

"This is one of the best games we've played this year," said Coach Tom Nisalake.

In the only other NBA game Thursday, San Antonio beat New York, 120-116.

Spurs 120, Knicks 116:

George Garvin's 29 points helped spark San Antonio to its comeback victory. New York took a 10-point first-quarter lead but the Spurs narrowed it to 67-65 at halftime. With four minutes to go in the third period, Garvin hit a 30-foot jumper to put San Antonio ahead for good.

Larry Kenon added 15 points and 13 rebounds for San Antonio, while Billy Baultz had 15 points and Louie Dampier 10 assists. Bob McAdoo led the Knicks with 30 points and Earl Monroe had 28.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cincinnati's unbeaten streak on its home court is still intact — by a Bearcats' whisker.

The eighth-ranked Bearcats ran their streak to 62 at home, longest in the nation, when they defeated North Carolina A&T Thursday night, but only after a nightmarish second half and by the slenderest of margins — 58-57.

Cincinnati had a 9-point lead at halftime, but the Aggies cut it to 54-51 with six minutes left. The Bearcats then went into a four-corner stall but failed to make it work and North Carolina A&T stole the ball twice and took a 56-55 lead with 31 seconds to go.

With a startling upset in the making, however, Cincinnati pulled out the victory when Eddie Lee connected with a field goal with only six seconds left.

Here's A Checklist For Home Insulation

So you've decided to do something about the high cost of heating and cooling your home by upgrading your house insulation. Here is a handy checklist on where to insulate a typical home and how to determine how much you'll need. In ceilings and attics, you need an equivalent of six inches of insulation. A 3/4 inch batt is considered effective in walls between heated and unheated areas, in all exterior walls, and in floors over unheated areas. When measuring the area to be insulated, determine the total square footage as well as the width between the framing members. Insulation is manufactured in 15- and 23-inch widths to fit the common distances found between framing members in normal construction. The chart below may be used to decide how many bags or rolls of insulation are needed. In the living areas, conserve the heat flow by closing draperies and blinds at night, and by lowering the thermostat setting. Make sure your heating and cooling units are cleaned and adjusted properly before the season begins in your area. Change or clean air filters regularly.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old single woman. Four months ago I met a man about my age and we hit it off beautifully. He has his own business, is active in politics...

DEAR DEEPLY: If you're the one who will tell him you never want to see him or hear from him again. It will hurt...

DEAR NAMELESS: Unless a kiss is spontaneous, voluntary and sincere, it's counterfeit. So I would urge parents and others not to instruct youngsters to bestow their kisses indiscriminately.

DEAR OUT OF SHAMPOO: Your problem is not the peddle. It's you and your inability to convince your friend that you do NOT want her piddling pool to be a puddle on your carpet.

DEAR BERRY: The reason you and over 99 percent of the people who read this column are not getting any younger is that our experience has taught us that we can't control the future.

DEAR BORN LOSER: I'm guessing you're a man. You're a loser because you're a loser. You're a loser because you're a loser.

DEAR HEATHCLIFF: You should have seen the one that got away. You should have seen the one that got away.

DEAR SHORT RIBS: You're back and you're better. You're back and you're better. You're back and you're better.

These Aircrafters who have been with Pratt & Whitney Aircraft since 1952 spell out our North Haven plant's anniversary.

The 25-year history of our North Haven Plant is the history of jet aviation.

Congratulations to the skilled Aircrafters who made it possible.

In 1952, there were exciting new sounds in the skies. They came from gigantic, 8-engine B-52 jet bombers of the Strategic Air Command. Before long, they came from 707's and DC-8's which launched the commercial jet age in the United States.

In 1952, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft also dedicated a new manufacturing plant in North Haven. Its purpose was to manufacture precision parts for the engines that would power these giants of the air.

Since then, we at North Haven have played a major role in the growth of both Pratt & Whitney Aircraft and the jet aviation business. (See box at right.) We've doubled our size and today employ over 3,800 people. And along the way, we've made most of the critically important rotating parts that make every P&W engine go around.

We've also put together one of the strongest groups of technical and manufacturing people anywhere — the Aircrafters whose skills and dedication do so much to keep us #1 in the business.

It seems appropriate on the 25th Anniversary of the North Haven Plant to pay tribute to the men and women who made it possible. After all, it is their skills that are the real capabilities and strengths of the company.

In just 25 years...

- 1952 First production run of jet engines to power the new B-52. The P&W J57.
- 1954 First flight of a prototype 707 powered by P&W JT3 engines.
- 1960 First production run of a ten jet engine in the United States, the P&W JT3D, which now powers 707 and DC-8 aircraft.
- 1969 First flight of a commercial jumbo jet, powered by P&W JT9D engines.
- 1974 The F-15 fighter, powered by two F100 engines, goes into service. Because this engine develops eight pounds of thrust for every pound of its weight, the F-15 can climb almost vertically.
- 1977 Go-ahead on P&W JT8D-209 engine for new DC-9-80; production begins on F100 engines for F-16 fighter.

United Press International
HARTFORD — Sen. Robert Hooley, D-Somers, criticizes Liquor Control Commission for being sensitive to the needs of the industry it regulates and not the public.
Hooley is unhappy with a commission decision reversing a previous ruling that a 10 percent discount could be given persons buying beer by the case.

ESSEX — New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr., a Republican conservative whose opinions often differ from those of his colleagues, Friday was elected chairman of the New England Governors Conference.
The governors approved a $100,000 appropriation to help create a regional veterinary school.

BOSTON — Daredevil skiers who throw caution to the wind when they point their skis downhill may be paying their own hospital bills, if a proposal introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature is passed.
AUGUSTA, Maine — The fate of the uniform property tax, which was adopted four years ago as its supporters rallied behind the causes of equal education opportunity and property tax reform, will be decided Monday.

The referendum considering repeal of the tax was initiated by a petition drive that gathered 46,583 signatures.
BOSTON — Hundreds of gallons of gasoline flowing into the sewer system from a gas station touched off a series of explosions Friday and ignited a four-alarm blaze which destroyed a three-story apartment building. Officials said the explosion appeared to be a vandalism situation.

HARTFORD — State and municipal officials plan to testify at a House subcommittee on aging hearing Monday on the effectiveness of senior citizen centers.
The hearing, arranged by Rep. Ronald Sarasin, R-Conn., is scheduled to be held at 9 p.m. at the Parkville Senior Center.

NEW HAVEN — A year-long test to determine whether using synthetic oil will improve gasoline mileage and reduce engine wear has been started by the Southern New England Telephone Co.
WASHINGTON — President Carter Friday received recommendations for ways the federal government can help cure problems of the ailing steel industry including community and worker takeover of abandoned steel mills.

The basic framework of the package is to curb steel imports until the domestic industry can expand production and employment, improve profits, and buy new equipment designed for efficiency and pollution control.
PRETORIA, South Africa — A South African judge ruled Friday that no one was responsible for the death from brain injuries in a jail cell of black leader Steve Biko.

The United States said it was "shocked" at the verdict and that it was "inconceivable" that no one was responsible. A British member of Parliament called the verdict "outrageous" and said the Biko family should "fear for their lives."
WASHINGTON — The FBI watched closely in 1968 as opposition of veterans groups apparently thwarted plans of a group of Massachusetts residents to erect a memorial to W.E.B. du Bois.

FBI files released under the Freedom of Information Act showed the FBI had considered du Bois to be a Communist sympathizer.

Does New England need nuclear power?

AMHERST, Mass. — The issue of whether New England needs nuclear power was in the spotlight Friday at the opening of a two-day conference on the region's economic future.
New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson, newly elected chairman of the New England Governors Conference, said the six states should work together to bring more nuclear power to the region because it will lure industry.
"We can't remain a state separate from New England in the long run," Thomson said at an afternoon press conference in nearby Northampton.
But Thomson said he does not oppose alternatives to nuclear power if they can produce as much energy.
At the conference's evening session, Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis was grazed on the hand by a Boston cream pie thrown by an unidentified young man as he spoke to conference participants.

Several student demonstrators, protesting what they said was Dukakis' unwillingness to fund higher education programs, had greeted the governor as he arrived at the evening meeting.
"Well, I don't think I look like Anita Bryant," Dukakis quipped, apparently referring to pie-throwing attacks against the singer by backers of homosexual rights.
Govs. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire and J. Joseph Garrity of Rhode Island canceled scheduled Friday evening appearances at the conference.

Thomson cited his planned trip to Taiwan early Saturday and his need to catch up on lost sleep before he left, Garrity was in Washington Friday.
At the opening panel of the convention at the University of Massachusetts, a physicist and corporate executive said if New England wants to grow, it must accept nuclear power plants.
Nuclear power is now the most efficient and economical fuel and a "necessary component" to progress in the Northeast, said Robert Charpie, president of the Cabot Corp. in Boston.
"We either go nuclear or we don't go," he said.
"I agree, but who wants to go at all?" replied fellow panelist John Cole, editor of the Maine Times and a trustee of the National Aulubon Society.
Cole said New England does not have to grow to improve its economy.
Nuclear power "is not for this region and is not for this time," he said.

New Haven, Conn. Mayor Frank Logue, opening a panel on problems of New England cities, said the present tax structure penalizes urban areas because they have large concentrations of poor people.
"The downtowns of New England need revitalization and we need federal and state policies that provide employment," he said.
The conference, scheduled to end Saturday, is co-sponsored by the Council for Northeast Economic Action, University of Massachusetts, Worcester Telegram and Gazette and the Boston Globe.

Officer Robert Johnson of the Manchester Police Department's Traffic Services Bureau checked the identification of a man stopped and eventually arrested on a charge of "driving while under the influence of alcohol." Drunk motorists not easy to spot

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter
It's not as easy to spot a "drunk driver" as it once was, "more commonly known as a 'drunk driver,' as one might think.
That was the experience of this reporter while accompanying Officer Gary Wood of the Manchester Police Department's special Traffic Services bureau on patrol late one recent weekend night.

Wood and Officer John Marvin, also of the bureau, have had 46 hours of training which concentrated on the drunk driver alone, which helped them become more aware of the many signs which may be exhibited by drinking drivers. Wood also gave a training class to other members of the police force.
Apparently that training has paid off, as the number of arrests due to driving under the influence of alcohol has more than doubled from July through September this year over the similar period last year.

The drunk driving has also increased during the past two months, said Officer Robert Johnson, also traffic bureau of patrolman.
Johnson works a special shift from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. daily, in order to concentrate on the hours when most drivers "under the influence" are likely to be on the road and are often involved in serious accidents.

The Police Department specifically assigned the special patrol hours to one hour after the bars close. Either a direct or indirect effect from the emphasis on the drunk driver has been a decrease in the number of fatalities in Manchester during the past year from 13 in 1976 to four so far this year. There was no increase in the number of accidents during the three-month report period over the same period last year.
The result of the additional training and awareness of the driver under the influence has been the apprehension of more drivers with fewer clearly obvious symptoms of alcohol consumption were previously picked up, Wood said.

When Wood looked up at the Center Church clock at the start of our patrol and said, "Yep, it's after 9 o'clock. Nearly every driver you see after that time has had something to drink." That immediately raised my awareness of the other vehicles' driving patterns on the streets. It was also surprising to learn, from Wood, based on statistics from Alcoholic Anonymous, that most of the drinking is done between the hours of 4 and 8 p.m. at home, before the drivers head for a party and more drinking.
Johnson, who served as our backup that night, said he spends most of his time looking for servers, primarily

State to increase Medicaid payments

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut doctors who treat Medicaid patients during office visits will have their state payments increased by five percent as of Jan. 1. Dentists, psychologists and laboratories will receive two percent more.
State Social Services Commissioner Edward Maher said Friday his agency's decision to increase payments for office visits is aimed at encouraging more doctors to participate in the Medicaid program.

In Connecticut and in other New England states the reimbursements for Medicaid, a state-federal program designed to provide health care for the needy, have traditionally been low.
The result has been that relatively few doctors in the six-state region have been willing to take part in the program.
Budget measures to increase Connecticut's Medicaid payments were approved during the last General Assembly session, but the legislature left it to the Social Services Department to appropriate monies to specific health services.
Maher said compared to other states, Connecticut's Medicaid payments are "still relatively low" despite the increase, the first since 1969.

He said his department is still trying to determine what other health services — in addition to psychologists, dentists and laboratories — should receive a percent increase in reimbursement.

Giles to check legality on using Globe Hollow

Jay Giles, director of public works, said Friday that he is investigating whether the site of the Globe Hollow swimming pool could be used as the location for the Town of Manchester's proposed water treatment plant.
The Water Study Committee has recommended that the treatment plant be located in the Globe Hollow pool area, either at the pool site or across the street just west of Mt. Nebo.
The Conservation Commission previously had raised some questions about the use of the pool site for the plant.
The Globe Hollow swimming pool site was part of a large land parcel purchased from the Cheney Bros., part of it for water purposes and part for park and recreation purposes.
Giles said that he wants to investigate the matter to see which parcels were intended for which use. He said that money from the General Fund and Water Department budgets paid for the purchase.
He expected to have more definite information on the subject early next week.

Accord near on CETA jobs

Officials from the Town of Manchester and the union representing employees of the Public Works Department met Friday and apparently came close to reaching an agreement on disputed Comprehensive Employment Training Act positions.
The union, Local 991 of The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, approved two one-year CETA projects that would have created 20 jobs. The local union's position came, however, after a staff representative from the international union opposed the proposed creation of a new classification and salary.
If the positions are created at the existing laborer's classification, the salary would be $10.63. This means that the town would have to pay money for the projects because CETA only pays salary costs up to $10,000 per position.
A statement from Town Manager Robert Weiss and Donald Beecher, a negotiator for Council 4 which represents Local 991, called the Friday session "very productive."
The statement said, "Progress was made and it is the expectations of both parties that by the board meeting on Tuesday night all the problems will have been ironed out."
According to CETA guidelines, the positions are supposed to be filled by Tuesday.

- Flynn — Vicki Flynn, 42 Edgewood Drive, Manchester — "Yes, I feel safer."
- White — Nieve White, 840 Ellington Ave., South Windsor — "Yes, they could save your life. But I don't think people should drive so fast they need safety belts. I drive slow, about 10 miles over the speed limit, and don't use them. But I don't think people should drive 50 miles an hour over the speed limit without them."
