Grasso defends Leonard

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso today said she will not ask State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard to quit even though pressure is building across the state for her to fire him.

"I cannot remove him except for cause and I do not plan to ask him to resign," Mrs. Grasso said today at a Capitol news conference.

Mrs. Grasso left the impression she did not want to discuss Leonard or his continued statements in public about the Peter A. Reilly case, which a court has ruled officially dead.

"I endorse his (Leonard's) statement that there should be no further public discussion about the Reilly case," she said.

On Monday, Leonard said the evidence that prompted the state police to arrest Reilly in the Sept. 28, 1973 stabbing death of his mother, Barbara Gibbons, 51, in Falls Village, is still valid.

"That probable cause still exists," Leonard said, adding the Connecticut press had done a "job" on him.

Superior Court Judge Maurice Spozzo in November ruled the police have no case against Reilly and the 22-year-old ambulance driver must not be harassed further by any state official about the death of his mother.

Several newspapers in Connecticut have run editorials demanding Mrs. Grasso fire Leonard. (See story on Page 5A.)

Mrs. Grasso separated herself from her 1974 choice to head the state police by saying, "I did not advise him in those statements. We must do our jobs as we see fit."

She said she does "not endorse his statements. I expect there was no good cause served by this."

When asked if she would be upset if Leonard quit, she said, "I have had the experience of having commissioners resign before. Many of them have been outstanding."

Connecticut law gives the state police commissioner post a unique status. The post can be filled by a person chosen by the governor, but cannot be removed by the governor except for cause, such as proof of a crime.

Leonard's four-year term expires June 30, 1979.

Mrs. Grasso said, "Whatever the decision that will be made will be the commissioner's."

Senior citizens enjoy dinner

The second annual dinner for Manchester senior citizens was held Thursday night at the Regional Occupational Training Center (ROTC). The buffet was prepared by students in the Cook and Bakers Class at Manchester Community College and served by members of the ROTC. Following dinner, entertainment was provided. ## Grasso mum on Killian

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso today refused to take issue with any charges leveled at her administration by Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian, saying, "The people will make their own decisions."

"I don't plan to fight with anyone," she told a Capitol news conference in answer to repeated questions about her reaction to Killian's announcement he will not join her re-election bid in 1978 and may even run in the primary against her.

"I sincerely trust we can manage our business and proceed in a gentlemanly fashion," said Mrs. Grasso, the only woman governor ever elected in her own right.

She fell back under the barrage of questions by reporters about her response to Killian's accusations her administration lacks leadership and accessibility by saying over and over again, "The people will make their own decisions."

"I expect Democrats to make up their own minds after reviewing the achievements of this administration," she said, her hands beginning to shake as despite her efforts to end the discussion about Killian, the questions continued.

Killian met with Mrs. Grasso Wednesday morning and then in the afternoon announced he had refused to join her re-election campaign. He held a news conference and said, "I am learning, up until now, that people feel generally that this administration does lack something. There are gaps and omissions."

He said people complain of a "lack of decisiveness, lack of initiative, lack of direction and lack of accessibility."

Soon after the Wednesday news conference, Mrs. Grasso issued a statement saying she would "not be intimidated" and "I am in this through the end."

Mrs. Grasso repeated that statement today, but would not elaborate on what she meant by "intimidated." "Would you be intimidated?" she said when a reporter asked if Killian had tried to intimidate her.

Storm soaks the area

Rain and more rain hit the Manchester area today from a fast-moving winter storm which is expected to dump more than six inches of snow in the northern New England states.

Freezing rain this morning in Bolton, Andover, Coventry and Hebron forced the closing of schools. Though the freezing rain has ended, the roads in these areas are still icy, according to reports.

The National Weather Service said that the passage of the storm will plunge the area into a deep freeze, with temperatures dropping to as low as 10 degrees tonight. The weathermen said that the extended forecast indicated unseasonably cold weather into next week.

Winter storm warnings and travelers advisories were posted from Pennsylvania to New England Thursday night as the storm system moved slowly from the Midwest to the Northeast.

Gale warnings were in effect on Lakes Superior, Huron and Ontario and a blizzard warning extended through Wisconsin.

To the south, a freezing drizzle closed schools in Missouri and eastern Kansas. Eighty barges and 10 towboats were jammed above a lock and dam by a five-mile ice drift on the Mississippi River.

Ten survive the big freeze

MCMURDO, Antarctica (UPI) — Ten people aboard two helicopters survived frozen landings on Antarctica's frozen Ross Sea and have returned safely to the American base at McMurdo.

None of the 10 suffered any injury despite more than three days of hurricane-force winds and 20 below zero temperatures.

A sudden storm forced the two helicopters down some 45 miles from McMurdo Saturday while they were on resupply missions in the Antarctic interior.

The helicopters were piloted by Lt. Sam Feola of Camarillo, Calif., and a Lt. Brown of Morehead City, N.C. The seven aboard Feola's helicopter found refuge in a hut at Marble Point, but Brown, with copilot Ken Mathews of Auckland, N.Z., and crew chief Rod Law of Knoxville, Tenn., were forced down on the sea ice and spent the next three days huddled in sleeping bags while 90-mph winds drove snow which eventually engulfed their craft.

"The sky cleared for about half an hour Saturday night, showing we were less than a mile from the edge of the ice pack, which was crumbling fast under the high winds," Brown said.

Brown, a three-year Antarctic veteran, said they could not tie the bright orange helicopter down because they had landed on glare ice and only the fact that the wheel froze to the ice saved him from being overturned or blown into the ice-filled sea.

"We had no radio communication and knew it would be impossible to launch any search for us until the storm ended," Brown said. "All we could do was wait and pray, and I will have to spend lots of time in church to keep the promises I made to God out there on the ice."

Feola jammed his New Zealand passengers into the hut where they settled in for what was to be a three-day wait. Feola had radio communications with the New Zealand base, but Brown, Mathews and Law were all by their lonesome out on the edge of the ice pack, living off emergency rations and huddled in an unheated helicopter some 80 hours until the storm broke Tuesday afternoon.

It took Feola's crew three hours to dig out their craft and Brown's people finally got the snow cleared after a similar snow-shoveling job.

"The happiest moment I'll ever have is when we hooked up the battery and it showed 23 volts despite those three days and nights of sub-zero temperatures. And the sweetest sound was when the engine caught and we knew we were going to be able to fly home," Brown said.

Both helicopters landed at McMurdo within minutes of each other Tuesday, and they now hold the record of being "lost" longer than any other aircraft in Antarctica without injury or loss of life.

State panel OKs grant for I-park

The state Bonding Commission today approved $5,345,802 to be released as the state's share of the cost of site acquisition and development of the Manchester's planned industrial park in the Buckland section. Gov. Ella Grasso had recommended the grant-in-aid money be released earlier in the morning.

The commitment by the state now authorizes the state to make the final financial agreements with the Town of Manchester on the park development, according to Charles Duffy, deputy commissioner of the Department of Commerce.

The completion of the financial transactions will allow the town to request funding needed to carry out the work on the park.

Duffy said he is very happy that things are moving along with the state.

"I hope it will mean a quick and successful development of the park," Duffy added.

This is the second major favorable action in relation to the park this week. On Monday, Superior Court Judge T. Clarke Hull ruled that the state's approval of the proposed park is valid in connection with an environmental suit against the park. J.C. Penney Co. has planned a two million square foot catalog distribution center that would be the major building in the proposed park.

The total cost of the 320 acre park is estimated at $15.4 million, which was approved in a referendum in Manchester last March.

The final cost to the town, after selling park land to tenants and splitting the costs with the state, is expected to be between $4 and $5 million.

Report due on cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Cancer Institute expects to produce a report a week for the next six months on results of its search for cancer-causing chemicals. The latest report cleared a widely used anti-diabetes drug. The institute announced Thursday that tolbutamide, an oral drug taken by an estimated half-million diabetics, was found not to cause cancer after being fed for 78 weeks to rats and mice.

Vance in Cairo to push peace

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance flew to the Middle East today to seek support for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace drive as Arab leaders intensify efforts to mend a rift that has plunged the Arab world into its worst crisis since the creation of Israel.

Before he left Brussels for Cairo, Vance said the United States and the Soviet Union are in direct conflict on next week's Cairo conference. He said Moscow does not consider the talks bringing together Egypt, Israel, the United States and the U.N. Secretary General as useful, while Washington sees it as "a useful step forward."

But Vance, beginning a six-nation Middle East tour, said the Soviets still are interested in working toward a comprehensive Mideast settlement, adding that what Moscow wants is a full-scale Geneva peace conference.

In Tel Aviv, Israel announced it is bolstering its delegation to the Cairo conference with the inclusion of a general for discussing military and security issues. The addition of Maj. Gen. Avraham Tamir, 53, head of the army's planning branch, will make Israel's delegation equal in status to that of Egypt, which has already named a general as a delegate.

At the same time, a senior Israeli government official said Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, despite official denials, held a secret meeting last weekend with a high-ranking Egyptian official. The official did not identify the Egyptian but the newspaper Haaretz said it was Deputy Prime Minister Hassan Tahmi.

The site of the meeting was not disclosed. Haaretz said it took place Dec. 3.

Ab world leaders stepped up mediation efforts to heal the rift between Egypt and hard-line Arab states over Sadat's efforts for peace with Israel.

Syrian President Hafez Assad arrived in the Persian Gulf state of Kuwait today from Saudi Arabia where he held lengthy discussions with King Khalid and Crown Prince Fahd.

The Syrians have severely criticized Sadat for his overtures to the Israelis, but have turned to oil-rich Saudi Arabia and Kuwait to save what is left of Arab unity following Sadat's visit to Israel.

The Saudis, while opposed to the Sadat's Middle East peace approach, are also concerned with the effects of the opposition to Sadat on Arab unity.

Jordan's King Hussein flew to Saudi Arabia today from Cairo talks in which he voiced cautious support for Sadat's drive to achieve a Middle East peace settlement.

DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

Today's news summary

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some years ago Tom Rhodes and his wife put their home in their son's name to protect it from some financial trouble they were having. Thursday they had to move because that son had them evicted.

In September, a judge ruled the son was the owner because all the legal papers for the house were in his name. The son has steadfastly refused to respond to questions about the eviction.

Sixty-one American citizens fly to San Diego today from Mexico, where they have been doing time in jails and 38 Mexican citizens in U.S. jails will be sent back to Mexico.

At least 237 more Americans are expected back in the United States by Christmas. For some of the returning prisoners it will be complete freedom, but others with more time to serve will finish their sentences in stateside jails.

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Politicians said today they saw no immediate replacement for the cabinet of Prime Minister Mario Soares that toppled on a no-confidence vote Thursday. President Antonio Ramalho Eanes met with the major party leaders but the politicians said little progress was made toward reaching a consensus.

Soares said the three parties that knocked down his government "bear the primary responsibility" for naming a new prime minister and taking austerity measures crucial to getting a $750 million foreign loan.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators today reached agreement on the first of many issues holding up legislation to bail out the financially ailing Social Security program.

The agreement — concerned not with Social Security itself but with welfare — was to provide $187 million to state and local governments to help them meet the burden of welfare costs. Another $187 million would be provided next year in other legislation.

That left many other issues still to be decided.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller says restoration of the striking union's depleted health benefits program is the most important roadblock to settling the four-day-old walkout of 188,000 miners.

But Miller did not attend a negotiating session called by chief federal mediator Wayne Horvitz Thursday. Another session was scheduled today.

The union chief was present at the Capital Hilton Hotel Thursday at the time set for the session in mid-afternoon. But when coal operators failed to show up and a one-hour delay was announced, Miller left the hotel and did not return.

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — A helicopter crash in the Gulf of Mexico that killed 17 offshore oil workers may have been caused by a collision between the aircraft and a crane on an oil rig, officials say. All but two of the 19 men aboard the twin-engine helicopter were killed in the accident Thursday. None of the bodies have been recovered.

Coast Guard search and rescue coordinators said their aircraft would resume the search today.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission today announced the recall of tens of thousands of scuba regulators which could fail, cutting off air to the diver.

Involved are all such regulators sold after Dec. 1, 1976, manufactured by the U.S. Divers Co., Santa Ana, Calif., which is conducting the recall. The units were sold nationwide.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration today told the nation's groceries and other retailers they must place saccharin warning posters near the entrance to their stores and in aisles where saccharin-containing products are sold.

The regulation, published in proposed form in the Federal Register, is a further implementation of the late President Carter signed last month delaying for 18 months the proposed ban on saccharin and providing for consumer warnings in the interim.

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — Drawing support from labor, community and political leaders, negotiators for striking Yale University workers looked forward to another attempt Saturday to negotiate a settlement of the 10-week walkout.

Hartford Stage play — old story with a twist

By JUNE TOMPKINS

The story of the world premiere play now in performance at the Hartford Stage is an old one. It has undoubtedly been enacted many times. But the young playwright Jack Zeman has given it a new twist. In "Past Tense," Zeman tells about two characters on the verge of divorce who look back on their 27 years of marriage and reminisce about the happiness, the sadness, the bitterness, the humor of their years together. They use their recollections to evaluate their situation, establish their identities, and determine the worth of it all. Tragedies that have lain carefully covered in each of their lives are bare, and like a dental nerve, are excruciatingly painful to endure once exposed. The audience is made to feel like an onlooker from a corner of the room, even a confidante, as first the their experiences. It's easy for your sympathies to vacillate from one to the other and you think it's possible they may reconsider their divorce plans. The essence of the play is heightened by the bare stage setting which, in itself, suggests finality. The action takes place in a living room in a middle class home with only a sofa left, covered with a protecting cloth, waiting for the movers to pick up. Miss Baxley wears a light textured lavender dress that clings tantalizingly, sometimes to the point of being disconcerting. It may have been selected to enhance her affected personality. Grizzard's gray tweed suit may have been chosen to match his gray tweed personality. It is an easy play to watch and interesting to listen to. There's no serious plot. It's an interplay of dialogue with many moods. "Past Tense" plays through Jan. 1.

and then the husband delivers a comment, or a rebuttal directly to the audience. Ralph and Emily Michaelson are played by George Grizzard and Barbara Baxley. Emily is a theatrical type of woman who is portrayed to the hilt by Miss Baxley. Dramatic gestures, emotional outbursts and energetic movement are Miss Baxley's portrayal of Emily. In sharp contrast is Grizzard's cool characterization of Ralph. More the master of his emotions than Emily, and because of this, Ralph seems to be the antagonist, and yet the one who remains on top of the situation. Anyone who has been married can relate to either of these persons and

How can Charo be 26?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There's a clear and present danger inherent in asking any female over the age of 18 to tell how old she is. But when a woman makes an issue of her age, as did Charo recently when she became an American citizen, no holds are barred. A judge, accepting affidavits from family and neighbors in Spain, officially declared the singer-guitarist to be 26 years old. Charo laughed it up. In the Spanish ballad of fire is only 26 now, how could she have been featured with Xavier Cugat in Las Vegas a dozen years ago? Fourteen-year-old kids aren't allowed to work saloons in the first place. And anyway, no 14 year old in memory had achieved the physical precocity of the Couchie-Couchie girl when she first appeared on stage. Charo, however, is adamant, though somewhat inarticulate, about her 26 summers. As a new and recurring member of the "Chico and the Man" television series, Charo took time off during a rehearsal break to defend her age. "I lied when I first came to this country from Spain with Cugat," Charo said. "Other girls my age were drinking hot milk and going to bed at 8 o'clock. "When we went to the Flamingo hotel in Las Vegas they told me as a minor I couldn't work in the lounge because the shows were too late. The last two shows went on at 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. "But I didn't want to lose the opportunity of my life. So I bought heavy black eyelashes, wore red, red lipstick and walked like Mae West. Nobody gave me any trouble. People forgot about my age." Her expansive bosom, cascading pile of blonde hair and provocative mannerisms clearly were those of a woman of the world. No one batted an eye when she became Mrs. Xavier Cugat about a year after her arrival in the United States. Charo married Cugat and lied about her age again. "According to the marriage license I am now 31," Charo giggled. "My driver's license says I'm 29, my work permit has me as 33 and the passport says 36. "It is an easy play to watch and interesting to listen to. There's no serious plot. It's an interplay of dialogue with many moods. "Past Tense" plays through Jan. 1.

Gambler explains system

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — A "systems betting" gambler has told state gaming investigators he wagered $5.8 million at jai alai arenas in three states but his $100,000 profit is in the hands of Uncle Sam. Rodney E. Woods Jr., 36, described Thursday how he gambled heavily, sometimes as much as $2,000 on a single jai alai game, using the systems betting that included wagers of $3 million in Connecticut alone. Woods, who was granted immunity from prosecution by the gaming subcommittee, described how he paid some front clerks up to $200 a week to punch his tickets. On several occasions in 1976, Woods said, he punched tickets himself at the Bridgeport jai alai arena. His last returns, introduced at the inquiry, revealed he won over $5.6 million in 1976 jai alai arenas in Connecticut and Florida and indicated a gross profit of $130,000 in "systems betting," as a spokesman said. Woods testified for about five hours after the subcommittee earlier in the day granted him immunity from prosecution. The subcommittee has been investigating allegations that professional gamblers may have been given privileged information by front employees who were heavily tipped. Woods was scheduled to resume testimony next Thursday. The subcommittee heard testimony Wednesday from a former Hartford jai alai employee, Harvey Ziskis of Newton. He claimed Woods and two other Florida men identified as David Herman and Donald Werner, comprise a "Miami" or "Florida syndicate" who combine their winnings at jai alai fronts. Woods denied he was connected with them and said "there's no such thing," as a spokesman said. According to gaming officials, Woods' tipping of the clerks and his own use of a ticket machine is an apparent violation of state gaming regulations. However, system betting is not illegal. It involves betting on a trifecta combination, where the first three winners must be picked in order. Out of over 300 possible combinations, Woods said he generally bet between 50 and 100 combinations in each game. He said he sometimes bet $2,000 on a single match. Woods said in 1976 he had employees betting his system at five fronts in Florida. Woods, of June, Fla., said he is not now gambling and his money is tied up by the federal government. Last May, a federal tax law went into effect placing a 20 per cent tax on all part placed winnings over $1,000.

Opinion

Do nothing

Whatever the town does about the water problem now will probably be wrong, unless the town does nothing.

Nothing is the only sensible thing to do. That should have been obvious before the election. Some candidates were holding out the promise of immediate action. Now that the election is over they should forget it.

The problem is long range and needs a long-range solution. The town moved toward that solution by hiring a good engineering firm to study water supply and treatment. It has since hired the same firm to study water distribution.

The two problems cannot be separated.

The town also set up a study committee which has worked hard and efficiently to determine what steps it should recommend for a permanent solution to the problem of bad water, badly distributed. The committee found a bunch of old bandages stuck on the ailing system.

We don't need any new bandages, however politically expedient it might be to apply one or two now.

It is very hard to justify spending the taxpayers' money to eliminate a dead end here or there in water lines when those lines may very well disappear in a revamped distribution system. And it would be an affront to the study committee which has been working hard on a real solution.

Filling Hoover's shoes

The difficulty in finding a director for the Federal Bureau of Investigation is in a way a left-handed compliment to the man who must be replaced.

J. Edgar Hoover may have given up the ghost and his 48-year personal identification with national law and order back in 1973, but it is still his shoes which are waiting to be filled.

President Carter and Attorney General Bell thought they had the man big enough to fill them in Frank Johnson, an Alabama judge and Republican with a positive record in civil rights, the record of months-long sifting of hundreds of candidates.

But with Johnson's withdrawal for reasons of health, they are almost back to square one. Another suitable candidate is not ready at hand and, according to Bell, a serious search will not be resumed until after a few dust-settling weeks.

Dust has already been settling for too long at the FBI, since Hoover's departure left a void of greater dimensions than even his ardent supporters, let alone dedicated critics, might have expected. Meanwhile, problems have matured into crises.

The FBI today faces something of a heads-it-loses, tails-it-criticizes-win dilemma in the investigations of wiretapping, mail-opening and other illegal activities alleged on the part of its operatives. There is the unpleasant prospect that some of its agents may be making precedent-shattering appearances in court not as defendants.

Should it escape that embarrassment, through a government decision not to prosecute, the result could be an opinion backlash in a public resentful of the apparent condoning of lawbreaking by lawmen, further tarnishing the FBI's public image.

That image is currently suffering from the release, as a result of freedom-of-information requests, of more than 50,000 heavily censored pages from FBI files on past programs to harass and spy on suspect political groups.

There may be more and worse to come in the 80,000 pages of documents dealing with the John F. Kennedy assassination.

As if its external problems are not burden enough, the bureau faces internal upheaval. More than 750 senior agents, almost 10 percent of its force, will have retired by the end of next year, most as a result of the newly mandated retirement at 55 for all federal law enforcement personnel.

The FBI's most serious problems largely date from or are the result of conditions which developed during the latter years of the Hoover directorship. His successors — L. Patrick Gray, who probably will be best remembered as a footnote to Watergate, and present Director Clarence Kelley, the conscientious former Kansas City police chief — lacked either the capabilities or mandate to deal effectively with them. Their tenures have represented in essence a holding action.

During almost five years and three administrations, the search has been for both the proper shape of the post-Hoover FBI and the proper man to shape it.

That the search has been so long and so difficult is evidence both of Hoover's accomplishments and of his failings. As can be said of perhaps not other federal officials and federal agencies of comparable importance, he built the FBI and he was the FBI, an identity of man and institution which may initially have been a strength but has had unfortunate consequences.

The man who eventually succeeds the Hoover role must be both large enough to fill it and strong enough to change it, to revitalize the FBI and make it again an effective but not personalized instrument of public policy.

It is no common task and it calls for a man of uncommon stature whose character in large part will determine the character of the FBI for years to come.

That image is currently suffering from the release, as a result of freedom-of-information requests, of more than 50,000 heavily censored pages from FBI files on past

Question:
My mother is living alone in her apartment but she is getting more and more forgetful. We worry about her and want her to move into a retirement home. Her health is okay for a person 82 years old, but she won't even talk about moving. How should we help her to see that a move would be the most sensible thing for her?

Answer:
It's awfully hard to convince someone to do what we consider to be "sensible" when the person does not necessarily view that action as sensible. Your concern is certainly natural, as we all want to see our parents living in the best conditions possible.

First of all, you ought to look at whether it would actually be in your mother's best interests for her to move to a retirement home. From her point of view, you might want to consider what it means to live in a familiar neighborhood where one knows the people, probably has a favorite drug store and grocery store, and has a feeling of "belonging."

From your own point of view, you would certainly consider safety factors (could she get out of the apartment in case of fire), emotional needs (how often can you or someone else visit her), support needs (can she prepare her own meals and do her housework).

Once you have a handle on your mother's needs and your own feelings, it is important to consider the options that are available to you. If your mother remains in her apartment, she may need a homemaker to come in periodically to assist with the housework or prepare meals; a "friendly visitor" to call or come in occasionally; or any number of service that can safely be provided in the home.

In most communities you will find "Homemaker Services" and "Social Service Agencies" listed in the yellow pages of your phone book. These agencies can tell you what services they provide and what it will cost. Your local public health or visiting nurses' association can also assist you in determining your mother's needs.

It may be comforting for you to know that forgetfulness is common in older people, especially if their days are not very active or stimulating. Involvement with some of the local senior citizen programs may improve your mother's forgetfulness, although some absent-mindedness is to be expected.

It does not sound as though your mother needs to be in a retirement home. With the proper outside services and some assistance from her children, she can probably remain an independent lady for a long time. Good luck!

Vivian Ferguson, minority leader of the Manchester Board of Directors, feels that the Democratic members did not give full consideration to the Republicans at the Tuesday night meeting.

"Last night was really a slap in the face," she said the morning after the meeting.

Two items particularly upset her. One was the appointment of the three part-time assistants for the town council's office. Former Town Counsel Victor Moses had recommended that three part-time assistants be hired rather than one part-time assistant and one full-time assistant.

The Democratic chairman said that he feels the board has shown unity and is hard-working — not surprising a remark since six of the nine directors are Democrats. The Republican chairman said that it is too early to judge the board.

"This is a group that together is doing its homework," Ted Cummings, Democratic town chairman, said. "Everybody is really working at it."

Thomas Ferguson, GOP chairman, preferred to hold off on his comments. He pointed out that the new board has only had one meeting where it has had to make decisions — the second meeting in November. "It's too soon. They're too new," he said of the board, which was elected Nov. 8.

Mrs. Ferguson also was displeased that a minority member was not invited to an informal discussion session held between some directors and members of the Manchester Bar Association about a legal aid proposal.

The board is considering a $5,000 appropriation of Community Development funds for a legal aid program in Manchester.

Mayor Stephen Penny said that the session was called quickly and the failure to invite a Republican was an oversight. He said that he would avoid making the same mistake in the future.

After its first month in office, the work of the new Board of Directors has received different reactions from the town's party chairmen.

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — The director of the gaming commission's lottery division says the Daily Numbers game is popular not just with poor people but with an economic cross section of Connecticut's population.

John F. Winchester Thursday challenged the conclusions of a University of Connecticut study released last week which said mostly poor people play the Daily Numbers game and said the game should be scrapped.

"To say that primarily the 'poor' are playing the game appears to be an unwarranted conclusion," Winchester said. "Our observations seem to indicate the Daily Numbers attracts representative income segments of the population."

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority has ordered a team of auditors to make sure Northeast Utilities doesn't slow down service to customers by laying off several hundred workers.

On Oct. 25, the authority granted Northeast permission to raise its Connecticut electricity revenues by $55 million. But the company wanted a $90 million increase.

After the PUC decision, Northeast announced it will lay off about 400 regular employees and stop construction of its third nuclear power plant in Waterford. Because of the construction halt, more than 1,200 construction workers will be thrown out of work.

HARTFORD (UPI) — The possibility of a Democratic bloodbath over next year's gubernatorial nomination has at least one state Democratic leader worried.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph I. Lieberman of New Haven said Thursday he is hopeful Lt. Gov. Robert K. Killian's split with his boss, Gov. Ella T. Grasso, will not erupt into a name-calling free-for-all that will destroy the Democrats' chances of winning next November's gubernatorial race.

NORWICH (UPI) — Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer has called for passage of a seven-year extension of the approval of the Equal Rights Amendment which will die unless three more states ratify it by March 22, 1979.

Mrs. Schaffer said Thursday prospects are dim for the amendment to be made part of the U.S. Constitution unless Congress approves the extension.

Newspaper asks Leonard to resign

By United Press International
A Connecticut newspaper Thursday called on State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard to resign and said Gov. Ella T. Grasso should fire him if he doesn't.

Another newspaper said in an editorial that the only "job" done on Leonard was not done by the press, but by Mrs. Grasso who didn't go far enough.

The editorials were in response to Leonard's comments Monday that the Connecticut press had done a "job" on him by ignoring several conclusions — favorable to the state police — in the June 2 grand jury report on the Peter Reilly case.

Last month, Superior Court Judge Maurice Sponzo ruled Reilly cannot be arrested or prosecuted again in the Sept. 28, 1973 stabbing death of his mother, Barbara Gibbons, 51, in Falls Village.

In an editorial Thursday, The (Meriden) Morning Record and Journal said "the honorable course" for Leonard is resignation and if he does not resign, Mrs. Grasso — who appointed Leonard after her 1974 election — should fire him.

The newspaper said, in part: "We, like others, are interested in getting to the truth. None, we are sure, has any vindictive purpose to, as he puts it, do a job on the commissioner. On the contrary, this newspaper, editorially has published a position asserting confidence in the state police department."

The (Torrington) Register, in an editorial Thursday, said Leonard's criticism of the way the press covered the grand jury report "is simply wrong not only with regard to the coverage provided by The Register but also with regard to that provided by other newspapers in the state, especially The Hartford Courant and The Lakeville Journal."

"No one compelled State Police Commissioner Leonard to open his mouth in public about the Peter Reilly case in New Haven Monday. When he did, he proceeded to stick his foot in it all the way up to the knee."

"If the commissioner really believes, as he remarked, that Peter Reilly and the state police should be left alone, perhaps someone ought to remind him that charity begins at home."

New England summary

BOSTON (UPI) — A social worker, a child psychiatrist, two staff members of a private boys school, and the president of an investment counseling firm.

The five unlikely suspects are among 17 persons charged with operating a homosexual prostitution ring in the Boston area involving boys between 8 and 13 years old. Youngsters said they were paid up to $25 for each act.

One investigator termed it "the largest child porn operation in the state's history."

The Suffolk County district attorney's office said 15 of the suspects had been arrested by late Thursday. Authorities said they were also hunting for seven other men who were indicted by the same grand jury, but were not directly involved in the ring.

Two of the suspects were arrested in Atlanta and New York City. Authorities said others were being sought in Connecticut, Vermont, Maryland, Michigan, and Florida.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court agreed today to review a lower-court injunction against a strike city school bus drivers which has kept thousands of students out of school for two days.

Fifty-six of the approximately 200 striking drivers appeared in Suffolk Superior Court Thursday to face contempt charges for violating the injunction.

The hearing was recessed until late today after attorneys for the drivers presented their arguments.

Most of Boston's usual fleet of 240 public school buses remained idle Thursday on the second day of the walkout.

An estimated 28,000 students usually ride buses to school in Boston. On Wednesday, about 27,000 of the city's 61,000 enrolled students in grades 1-12 stayed home.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Raymond L.S. Patriarca — once reputed to be New England's organized crime leader — could lose his parole freedom after this week's FBI seizure of two handguns, bullets and other items in a raid on the offices he shares.

No arrests were made in the Wednesday evening raid and no charges will be filed until after a full investigation, U.S. Attorney Lincoln C. Almond said Thursday.

A report filed Thursday in U.S. District Court showed agents found two handguns, 21 "dum dum"-type bullets, magnetic tapes and stock certificates in the 170 Atwells Ave. site of Patriarca's National Cigarette Service Co.

BOSTON (UPI) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has accused the Army Corps of Engineers of failing to adequately consider all the alternatives to a massive federal hydroelectric project proposed for Maine.

EPA Regional Administrator William R. Adams Thursday, in a review of the corps of engineer's draft environmental impact statement on the proposed $600-million Dickey-Lincoln project, was critical of the thoroughness of the corps study.

He said there are other sites in New England which could generate more hydro-power than Dickey-Lincoln at a lower cost while causing less environmental damage.

The Dickey-Lincoln project is designed to meet 17 percent of New England's peak power needs — the need for electricity when demand is greater than normal generation capacity.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Port Authority has obtained a temporary restraining order to discourage maintenance and service employees from striking.

MassPort and Teamsters Local 157, representing 525 workers, met early today in an effort to agree on a new contract to replace one which expired June 30. MassPort spokesman Ron Brinn said the authority was "confident" that agreement can be reached through collective bargaining.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The long search for a pair of elusive men wanted for the multimillion dollar Bonded Vault Co. robbery in August 1975 is down to one. State police Thursday said they arrested Robert S. MacAskill, 35, in Leominster, Mass., where he was living under an alias and a "completely changed appearance."

MacAskill, fighting extradition, was ordered held on $100,000 vash bail on a fugitive from justice warrant.

Of the 10 men charged with one of the nation's largest robberies, only Mitchell Lanoue of Woonsocket remains at large — 28 months after the crime and 16 months since the trial of six suspects.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerry and Darlene Jenkins forgave New York City for the trouble they had their first night in town, but say they're ready to go back home to Burlington, Vt., where "the quiet people are."

Quiet was one thing the Jenkinss didn't find when they came to the Big Apple to spend their wedding night.

While Jerry, a 26-year-old disabled war veteran, was trying to get a hotel room Monday, a 19-year-old youth poked a gun in Darlene's face, stole their car and took it for a joyride down 42nd Street, killing one man and injuring 12 other persons before smashing it into a fire hydrant.

The Jenkinss met Mayor Abraham Beame Thursday, who presented them with a silver plate bearing the city seal and the assurance that "New York normalcy is a very warm town."

Many without paychecks

HARTFORD (UPI) — Personnel problems and record-filing delays have left hundreds of workers in state job programs without paychecks and they're not too happy about it.

Labor Department official George Cohen said Thursday the paycheck problem started when agencies sponsoring the workers failed to file their records on time. The problem was further complicated by a personnel shortage in his department, Cohen said.

Cuddling and talking critical for newborns

NEWINGTON (UPI) — Cuddling and talking to a newborn child can be "critical" to the infant's healthy development, a Yale Medical School professor says.

Dr. Edmund S. Crelin said fondling and the sound of human voices are necessary to stimulate growth links between brain cells. He urged parents to expose their babies to "lots of handling, light and sound."

"Research has shown, that there are critical times when the growth of the nerve cell branches is dependent on the input of sensory stimuli from the surface of the body and the special sense organs, such as the eye, ear, nose and tongue," Crelin said.

"We are only beginning to determine exactly what these critical times are."

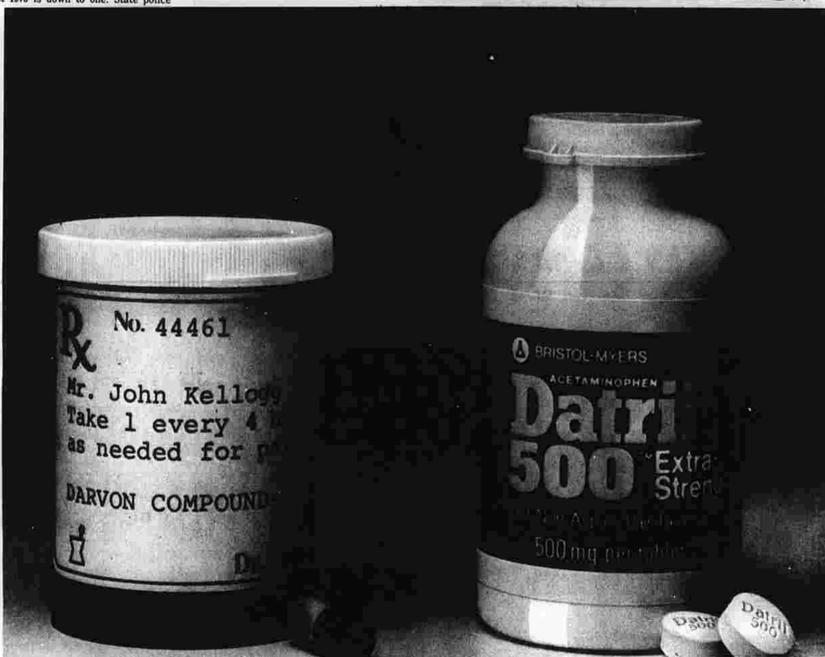

Newborns, he said, should experience "lots of handling, light and sound. This would start the development of the cortical nerve cell branches at a maximum as soon as possible."

If an infant is not adequately stimulated, he said, it can retard the development of the nerve cell connections.

Crelin, addressing a symposium at Newington Children's Hospital this week, also disputed the theory that newborn infants can think at birth.

"I am annoyed at behavioral scientists who talk about the mental life of the newborn baby as though the baby is really using his thinking brain," Crelin said.

"All of the responses they study are basically reflexes involving the brain stem," he said.

The extra-strength non-aspirin in Datri 500 worked better than two leading prescription pain relievers.

Datri 500 is a non-aspirin pain reliever from Bristol-Myers for the relief of headaches, minor aches and pains. You can buy it without a prescription. Yet, in tests against two leading prescription pain relievers, here's what two major medical studies reported.*

The extra-strength amount of non-aspirin in Datri 500 was significantly more effective in relieving pain. More effective than both Darvon® Compound-65 and Darvocet-® N° 100. These prescription products are effective. But the 1000 milligrams of pain reliever Datri 500 puts into two tablets were even more effective. Use only as directed.

Schools haven't sanctioned Youth Forum soliciting

The Better Business Bureau of Connecticut has been informed by several businesses in Manchester and East Hartford of an organization, called the American Youth Forum, which has been soliciting advertising in a pamphlet allegedly to provide drug rehabilitation seminars in area high schools.

The bureau's investigation of the matter has shown that no area high schools have approved the organization's efforts. It has also found that once the organization has received money for the advertisement, the receipt indicates that the proceeds are for a profit.

Pat Claffey of the Better Business

Bureau said that representatives of the Forum ask a business to place an advertisement in a booklet with an implication the proceeds are for charity. The Forum has rented a meeting hall four Jan. 10 at the YMCA in Hartford, but Ms. Claffey said she does not know the intended use of the room.

Robert Digan, director of Youth Services in Manchester, said that no group has been approved for drug-related work in any of the Manchester schools.

The Youth Forum applied for a trade name in Manchester earlier this year under the address of M & M Publications of Braintree, Mass.

New breed of executives always sought the top

NEW YORK (UPI)— Chief executives are fast becoming a unique cadre in American business: they are men who make up their minds in college they are going to be top bosses.

This is the conclusion of Herbert Mines, president of Business Careers Inc., a New York recruiting firm.

Business

created by inflation are causing American industry to move middle management people up faster, thus accelerating the creation of this class of patrician chief executives. "And they are patrician," he said. "They don't socialize or associate with subordinates as a rule, they cultivate personal charm and attractive appearance and a definitely personal management style. This style usually is one that encourages a high degree of participation by key subordinates in the decision-making process." Like Teddy Roosevelt, most modern chief executives reach the top of the ladder while still in their early forties and most come up through marketing or merchandising and sales, Mines said. Mines' firm has recruited 16 new corporate presidents over the past 18 months out of 260 candidates, most of them already top executives of other companies. Mines discovered a lot about the new patrician CEO class in the process.

Did you know that Christmas stockings replaced wooden shoes?

The tradition comes from Holland where years ago on Christmas Eve, children placed their wooden shoes near the fireplace to be filled with gifts from St. Nicholas. But as they stopped wearing wooden shoes, they hung up a stocking instead.

Today, the Christmas stocking is a favorite part of every child's Christmas Eve. And, filling it with little WESTOWN "stocking stuffer" gifts can be a happy event for every Santa's helper.

Youth panel gets support of MOTION

MOTION, the youth task force of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has voted to support strongly the formation of a town Youth Commission.

The committee feels a commission would be a valuable asset in effecting change. The committee has been in existence since 1975 and has studied the concerns of youth in many areas.

The committee, chaired by Shirley McCray, is in favor of adults and youth serving on the commission as suggested by Deputy Mayor Stephen Cassano during the recent town election campaign.

MOTION committee has sent a letter to Mayor Steven Penny, urging prompt attention to the proposal for a Youth Commission.

The formation of a commission was mentioned and received a favorable response at a caucus of the Democratic members of the Board of Directors. The proposal has not yet come before the entire board.

The town had an active Youth Commission until about three years ago, which disbanded for lack of leadership and apparent lack of interest among the youth. Cassano proposed that the new commission be composed of five persons under 21 and four adults, rather than 25 youth as previously.

Panel eyes MCC complaint

The Freedom of Information Commission scheduled a hearing this morning on a complaint from a Manchester Community College history professor.

The hearing was to be held at the commission office in Hartford.

The purpose of the hearing stems from a complaint by Professor David N. Idman that complete records of an August faculty meeting are unavailable to him.

Idman said he wants an account of a conversation between Dr. Ronald H. Denison, MCC president, and Dr. Sidney Lipshires, an associate professor of history and leader of the faculty union. The exchange was left out of the meeting minutes, Idman claims.

FBI files show mood of Lee Harvey Oswald

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During his years in the Marines, Lee Harvey Oswald had a private room in a quonset hut, kept books on communism and refused to unlock his room for routine military inspections until he was threatened with punishment, FBI files show.

The 4001 pages of raw files gathered by the FBI add detail to the portrait of Oswald, the accused assassin of John F. Kennedy, that the nation came to know in the days after slaying on Nov. 22, 1963 — a scrawly, moody "loner" living on the fringe of society, almost friendless, unhappy in Russia, unhappy in America, in frequent minor scrapes.

But the files, released Wednesday, fail to shed light on what caused him to do what he did, and the additional 40,000 pages expected to be made public in January also are unlikely to settle that unanswered question, FBI spokesmen say.

The FBI quoted Marine Capt. Robert Block as saying Oswald explained that he kept Communist literature in his room by saying he was trying "to indoctrinate himself in Russian theory in conformance with Marine Corps policy."

Marines said he rarely left the Santa Ana, Calif., base where he was stationed in 1959, saved all his money and said, "Nothing in my room concerns anyone but myself."

Staff Sgt. Carmelous Brown said Oswald was disliked because his "work quality and professional attitude were poor."

Oswald's "Historic Diary" chronicling his 2 1/2 years in the Soviet Union was contained in the files. It revealed he was a poor speller, attracted attention, became disillusioned with Russia and had a sharp eye for women.

At one point, Oswald asked himself and answered questions about his self-tilde.

Gold to hire private eye

WATERBURY (UPI) — Attorneys for Murray R. Gold are expected to announce today the retention of the private detective who helped crack Peter Reilly case.

A news conference has been scheduled for the Superior Court building where Gold, a former Forest Hills, N.Y. stockbroker was convicted in a 1976 retrial of killing his former in-laws, Irving and Rhoda Pasternak.

Private detective James Conway of Rockville, an ex-cop from New York City, confirmed he has talked with William M. Kunster of New York, Gold's attorney, but said any announcement about his retention would be delayed until today.

Conway is credited with developing some of the evidence that eventually resulted in freedom for Reilly, now 22, and an am-balance attendant in Torrington.

Gold's former in-law were stabbed to death on the night of Sept. 26, 1974 and Gold was arrested two weeks later. He was tried and a jury could not reach agreement. A second trial ended in a conviction Nov. 19, 1976.

James E. McDonald, then a Connecticut state policeman, provided crucial testimony leading to Gold's conviction. He also advanced a rejected theory in the Reilly case.

Globe Hollow plan worries head of conservation panel

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

If the Conservation Commission had had a quorum Thursday night, one of Chairman Theresa Parla's acts would have been to appoint a watch dog committee to keep track of the Globe Hollow situation as it relates to the location of Manchester's proposed water treatment plant.

Mrs. Parla said that the reason for the lack of a quorum was probably because of a misunderstanding in sending out notices to the four new members of the commission who were appointed recently by Town Manager Robert Weiss to replace the four who have resigned. Mrs. Parla said although she knows who the four new members are, she preferred not to announce their names until they had been officially notified by letter.

Mrs. Parla said the commission "has got to keep its feet" in keeping informed of progress on the water treatment project and where it will be located. In addition to the Globe Hollow swimming area, other locations being considered are the area across the street from the swimming pool, and near Fern Street.

"The Globe Hollow swimming pool has always been considered a family area," she said. "It's a tradition. It's also a place that's used by the handicapped," she added.

Students help poor families

Some Manchester families will have a happier Christmas because of the efforts of a group of school children.

The sixth grade classes at Washington School, with the cooperation of their parents and teachers, put on an after-school carnival recently to raise money for Christmas gifts and clothing for children of low-income families.

Proceeds of the carnival which included games, raffles, a bake and tag sale, and a movie, came to $167. The money will be given to the school social workers who will purchase items for some low-income families within the Washington School.

Teachers assisting the students were Ms. Linda Roblis and Mrs. Jean Kellogg.

Parties told to resolve South Windsor election

Superior Court Judge Walter J. Sidor ruled Thursday that the question of who was elected ninth member to the South Windsor Town Council is to be settled between the two political parties, as though there were simply a vacancy created through resignation.

The ruling finally allows the eight certified winners of the council race to be seated.

Although the town charter calls for a nine-member council, occasionally, usually through resignation, a member leaves before the completion of a term and the council must operate with less members pending the filling of the vacancy.

According to the charter, the vacancy is to be filled with a person of the same political party.

In this case, the eight elected council members number four Democrats and four Republicans. Since there is no incumbent, the two parties must decide between themselves who will fill the ninth council seat, thus determining Democrat or Republican control of the council for the next two years.

Democratic Town Committee Chairman Robert Hornish said today he feels only fair way to resolve the situation is by a runoff election between Republican Richard Ryan and Democrat Joseph Krahula in District 2.

The voting machine foul-up in District 2 tallied 65 more votes for Ryan than the number of people voting on the machine. Although he came in the third highest vote-getter

Mayor would consolidate Vernon's fire services

Newly elected Mayor Frank McCoy thinks the town of Vernon's two fire departments should be aiming toward consolidation sometime in the future.

The matter of consolidation was brought up again recently during meetings of the Charter Revision Commission but due to negative feelings expressed by the volunteer firemen it was decided not to bring this up as a proposed revision of the charter. The charter explicitly defines the two departments, Vernon and Rockville.

Mayor McCoy said that he would think with the changing personnel and the public itself, and putting townwide fire protection first, that the town should be looking for ultimate consolidation in five years or seven years, or whatever.

He said some degree of merger could be affected without a charter change. He said there could be closer cooperation between the chiefs and the officers of both departments.

He said some joint training sessions are already started and suggested that there could be some joint recruitment. He said due to attrition, some of the new members could come from a joint pool thus giving some unity.

He said perhaps some operational procedures could be merged. He said there could be a de facto integration without actually changing the charter but "how far we could go without a conflict of the charter is the question."

He said, "For example, they could have a joint budget." He said maybe a gradual drawing together and then ultimate consolidation wouldn't be as painful as some might think it would be.

He said there are some people who moved to Vernon within the past 10 or 12 years and have no knowledge of the town before the government was consolidated and perhaps are oblivious to the fact that we actually have two fire departments and could care less what the organizational lines are.

He said to some degree it is to be expected that people who have been in the departments for years are much more apprehensive than people outside the departments.

The Vernon Department has been experiencing some internal conflicts and Mayor McCoy said he doesn't know that anyone is going to be able to change the opinions or attitudes of those who have resigned.

He said he feels that one of the complaints of the men, that might bear some merit, is that some companies might not know how they are supposed to be operating.

"Perhaps operational procedures for each company should be clearly defined so each knows what they are supposed to do. It might alleviate some of the discontent," the mayor said.

He said a single budget would have to be the mutual effort of both chiefs and that the equipment would have to be distributed to the companies that would need it.

Music concerns Bolton group

A group of concerned students and faculty members from Bolton High School and some parents and friends of the students attended the Board of Education meeting Thursday to express strong concerns about the music program at the school and to ask for a solution to the problem as soon as possible.

At the meeting, it was brought out there will be no Christmas concert by the high school band and chorus this year.

The problem appears to stem from the course scheduling and selection at the school. Some students have seven periods of course subjects each day and were unable to participate in the music program. Other students interested in the music program have open periods but not at the same time. The students in the program are not getting an opportunity to practice together.

School Supt. Raymond Allen said he just learned of the problem last week. He said he thought the problems in the program had been worked out reasonably well last year. Fred Audette, high school history teacher, said music and art are part of a good, well-rounded liberal education and it's important for the kids to be exposed to them in a better manner than they are now.

Audette said, "I'm tired of defending where I work. We have a good faculty, one of the best, and the kids are darn good, too."

He said the music program is a public program and when public opinion of that program is subnormal, public opinion of the whole school system is subnormal. Audette said the spirit of the school and pride in the school could be enhanced by music.

Kathy Moore, high school junior, said each year it seems the program gets worse. She said this is the third year the students have been trying to get a solution.

Joel Waldron said the morale of the students is incredibly low. He said the music students do not feel confident enough to perform as representatives of Bolton High School.

Patty Maneggia, 1977 graduate of Bolton High School, said other graduates and in-school students would like an open meeting, not to complain but to propose ideas to benefit the program.

Allen indicated research would be done to find a solution to the problem.

Patricia Rady, parent, said, "I don't think a lot of research will help. Mrs. Wilmut was also angered that she was not given a chance to be heard. Get together and help the kids now."

Patricia Banel, speaking as Bolton Education Association president, said the teachers are willing to go the extra mile working on whatever is necessary to have a viable music program.

Others speaking in favor of solving the problem and supporting having a music program at the school were Patricia Leticia, teacher, Barbara Smith, board member and David Bushnell, Stanley Bates and Edward DeSignore, parents.

Joseph Halobardo, board chairman, said, "We recognize the concerns of the staff, students and community." He said Allen will attempt to come to a partial solution this year and a more permanent solution for next year.

Students suspended

Allen then told the board that 17 students were suspended from the high school in November. He said if some of the students continue, there may be some serious difficulties.

He said, "I think some kind of action will have to be taken with what I see as a growing problem."

Board members seemed to agree it would be appropriate to review the whole school system as applies to discipline.

Language inoperable

And then board member James Marshall expressed concern about the language lab at Bolton High School. He said at the high school open house, he learned the lab was inoperable and had been that way since June. Marshall said as far as he knows it doesn't take that long to get the lab repaired.

Only one board member appeared to listen to him. The superintendent and other board members appeared busy shuffling papers, talking among themselves or walking around.

Toward the end of the public meeting when the board began talking about anticipated revenue for the school, Marshall again brought up the repair of the language lab.

Allen said the subject could be covered in executive session because it does involve personalities.

Rec program gets funding

Coventry

The Coventry Parks and Recreation Commission has voted to transfer money from its summer basketball program, which was never run, to a new Junior Pro Basketball Program organized by Lionel Jean, recreation director.

Jean reported that 130 boys and girls from Grades 3 through 6 have signed up for basketball and that 50 parents have volunteered to help. Final registration will be Saturday morning at Captain Nathan Hale School.

Jean plans to scale down the rules for the youngsters, to use smaller balls, and to lower the hoops. He told the commission he needs four backboards at $100 each. The commissioners thought they might be able to utilize $400 that has been budgeted for the now-defunct teen center.

The commission decided to re-surface the basketball courts at Lisicle Park in the spring. Meanwhile, the backstops there will be repaired and chain nets will be purchased.

The recreation officials reviewed design plans for the realignment of Route 31 by the state Department of Transportation and voted to approve them. Only Robert Wilmut opposed the vote on the grounds that a bad curve would still exist and present a safety hazard near the beach.

Mrs. Wilmut was also angered that no attempt had been made to remove the rocks from the swimming area at Lisicle.

East Hartford drops bomb on Glastonbury connector plan

East Hartford dropped a bomb on Glastonbury Wednesday night when Michael Valuk, assistant to Mayor Richard Blackstone, carried the bomb in his suitcase pocket to the Glastonbury Town Hall to a public hearing on the proposed connector.

Then Valuk spoke.

"East Hartford is cursed with two major expressways that terminate on our own town streets—namely the Route 2 and 5 terminus at Governor Street and the Interstate 84 terminus at Spencer Street and Silver Lane. East Hartford is a town beset by automobiles."

It seemed as everyone there seemed to want the connector or some version of it. It would take highway through traffic off Glastonbury's Main Street.

Then Valuk spoke.

"East Hartford is cursed with two major expressways that terminate on our own town streets—namely the Route 2 and 5 terminus at Governor Street and the Interstate 84 terminus at Spencer Street and Silver Lane. East Hartford is a town beset by automobiles."

Valuk was speaking in place of Mayor Blackstone who could not attend the hearing himself.

DOT officials said the bridge connector would cost about $10 million totally paid for with federal funds. Design phases would be complete by 1980 and construction done by 1984 if there are no major hitches, they said.

There will be another hearing in January, this time in East Hartford. The date has not been set.

Chicken pox hits school

More than 40 students and a student teacher at Andover Elementary School have chicken pox. Principal David Kravet said he expects there will be a few more cases before it's over.

Adelina Martone, student teacher, is the first and only staff casualty so far.

Kravet said many of the teachers couldn't remember whether or not they had chicken pox so they've been calling their mothers and checking their baby books to find out.

McCoy explains reason for stand on projects

Vernon

During the election campaign, Vernon Mayor Frank McCoy was critical of two projects that got under way during the administration of his predecessor, Thomas Benoit. Yesterday, at his first press conference since being elected, he explained why.

He said he was critical of the proposed conversion of the U. S. Envelope factory on West Main Street into housing for the elderly because there is no clearcut evidence that the Economic Development Commission (EDC) had used any real efforts to maintain the building as a commercial or industrial site.

He said paramount importance has to be attached to maintaining jobs and job opportunities for the town. He said if you take a look around the state you see some very calamitous situations developing such as the layoffs at the Electric Boat.

"I think in the future we must try to maintain our present employment possibilities and try to expand them in this case I don't think we did," the mayor said.

However, he said the program has gone so far it would be reckless to abandon or discharge it now. He said he met with Barkan (the developers) people before he took office and he has no real doubt but that Barkan will do a good job.

He expressed the hope that the conversion will upgrade the total environment of the area. He said the project has been moving along through the various commissions, but due to an error in advertising the public hearing scheduled by the Zoning Board of Appeals for Dec. 14 won't hear the appeal concerning the conversion. He said it will probably be rescheduled for January.

The mayor said he is a little concerned that Barkan seems to be retracting from a position taken earlier that the company would be agreeable to continuing the lease on the playground area on the U. S. Envelope property.

The town has been using the property for a small neighborhood playground and the mayor said he wouldn't like to lose it. He said he was concerned that the Zoning Commission didn't make this stipulation.

American League voids Red Sox sale

HONOLULU (UPI) — It was a bitter-sweet day for the Boston Red Sox at the winter baseball meetings.

Early Thursday afternoon, the Red Sox hit a home run acquiring second baseman Jerry Remy from California for pitcher Don Aase as part of a deal in which the Angels also acquired free agent outfielder Rick Miller.

But they struck out later in the day when the American League owners rejected a proposal by the Haywood Sullivan-Buddy Leroux group to purchase the club from the estate of the late Tom Yawkey.

Ten votes out of 14 were needed for approval, and while AL President Lee MacPhail would not divulge the vote, UPI learned the Sullivan-Leroux application was defeated 10-4.

It was a bitter blow for Sullivan, a former catcher for Boston, and Leroux, formerly the Red Sox trainer. Things had looked bright for them early in the week when a probate judge in Boston had set aside an injunction sought by an Ohio-based conglomerate known as ATO Inc., which was out to block the sale.

ATO had sought the injunction on the grounds its bid of more than $18 million was more than the one of $15 million offered by Sullivan's group and, therefore, it should be first in line for ownership.

The Sullivan-Leroux group had even switched finance companies to please the AL owners. Originally, the group was seeking financial support from the State Street Bank of Boston, but because of the heavy restrictions on the $9 million loan it was seeking, the new group switched to the American Finance Corp. of Cincinnati.

Apparently the new company didn't please the AL owners either. "Basically what we discussed was the economic viability of the ownership," said MacPhail. "We didn't feel it was economically feasible." Sullivan, one-time Red Sox catcher, was distraught at the results.

"I'm very disappointed at the outcome," said Sullivan, who remains as general manager with the club. "Frankly, I don't understand it. The reason stated is very ambiguous as far as I'm concerned."

The decision means the Red Sox ownership remains in control of the club at the beginning of the new year and current Indiana President Ted Bonda will remain as part of the new ownership.

general manager with Leroux as his assistant.

"We'll be back," said Leroux. "I'm not gonna quit on it."

In a direct opposite move, the AL owners needed only five minutes to approve the ownership of the Cleveland Indians by a group headed by trucking magnate Steve O'Neill.

Gabe Paul, finishing his presidency of the Yankees, is expected to rejoin the Indians at the beginning of the new year and current Indiana President Ted Bonda will remain as part of the new ownership.

Reasons why Dolton's Tigers compiled an undefeated record on the football field this fall were Chris Morano and Charlie Anderson.

The one-two punch of the club that topped 11 straight games while winning the Eastern Midget Conference each gained over 1,000 yards carrying the ball.

Morano averaged 14.2 yards per carry, a fantastic figure for the eighth grade student. He scored 20 touchdowns and had at least one in every game. He accumulated 1,225 yards rushing and added 285 more passing.

Anderson, also an eighth grader, picked up 1,043 yards, compiled an 8.4 yard per carry average and tallied at least one touchdown in 10 of the 11 games.

Both are 125-pound youngsters.

The prized triumph came in a post-season game for Coach Gili Boisjenson's charges, a 28-20 decision against Everett, Mass., the Pop Warner Division champions who went into the battle with an unblemished record.

With no football offered at Bolton High, each youngster will have to turn his sights to other competitive sports next fall.

The football careers of Morano and Anderson most likely will be curtailed for at least four years as they move on to a junior high or high school that offers football in its program.

Sack high

While Tony Dorsett and his running mates with the Dallas Cowboys have been getting the bulk of the publicity this season, the defensive unit has been doing its job too.

Harvey Martin, in his fifth NFL season, has been slightly terrific as a pass rusher. The 6-5, 235-pound end from East Texas State has been credited with 23 quarterback sacks, a record, with two games to play. He has also had at least one in every game. He accumulated 1,225 yards rushing and added 285 more passing.

Anderson, also an eighth grader, picked up 1,043 yards, compiled an 8.4 yard per carry average and tallied at least one touchdown in 10 of the 11 games.

Campbell lands Heisman Trophy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Campbell, the star of Texas' first-ranked Longhorns, pledged Thursday to represent the standard of the Heisman Trophy while stating candidly he thought he deserved to win college football's most prestigious award.

The 22-year-old senior, who led the nation in rushing and scoring as Texas won all its 11 games for the only perfect record in college football this year, was named the winner of the Heisman Trophy Thursday night in nationally televised ceremonies following a lavish dinner sponsored by the Downtown Athletic Club.

"When I was a kid and got in trouble, I'd say, 'Hey, mom, I'm in trouble,'" Campbell said turning toward his mother in the audience after receiving the trophy. "So, 'Mom, I'm in trouble.' I really don't have words to express my feelings. I hope I can represent what it stands for and will do everything I can toward that aim."

At a press conference following the dinner, also attended by Mrs. Campbell, the subdued Texas star expanded on his views.

"I'm too happy to cry or smile," Campbell said. "But, yes, I think I deserved it because I worked so hard for it. Let me sum up my feeling. If you had seen how hard I worked for it, you would say, 'Earl, you deserve it.'"

The 220-pound runner, who said his favorite player is Pittsburgh Steeler star Franco Harris because of his all-around skills, "wouldn't predict" this year, was named the winner of the Heisman Trophy Thursday night in nationally televised ceremonies following a lavish dinner sponsored by the Downtown Athletic Club.

"I'm very happy and very proud," said Mrs. Campbell, whose eyes glistened with tears. "I had no idea he'd be the winner. I really didn't realize what the Heisman Trophy was until about three months ago. Even then it never occurred to me it would be important in his life."

Campbell, whose mother raised her family and still lives in an unpainted house on a two-acre plot where she grows roses, said he intends to build a new house with money he expects to make from playing pro football.

He seemed surprised when a newsman asked where he would build the house.

"Why, in the same place," he answered.

Campbell won the award after the field had been narrowed down to him, Terry Miller of Oklahoma State and Ken MacAfee of Notre Dame.

Braves profit from multiple deal

HONOLULU (UPI) — The largest deal ever engineered at the winter baseball meetings left the Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets dreaming of a pennant, but the Atlanta Braves may have actually profited most of all.

Coming after four days of relative calm, the four-team trade involving 11 players was the high spot of a day, which included:

- An early-morning trade, in which St. Louis sent relief pitcher Al "The Mad Hungarian" Hrabosky to the Kansas City Royals in exchange for reliever Mark Littell and a player to be named later.
- A five-player deal between Chicago and St. Louis that sent all-star outfielder Jerry Morales to the Cardinals and Heily Cruz to the Cubs.
- A trade where pitcher Doug Aase went from the Red Sox to the Angels for second baseman Jerry Remy.

Approval by the American League of the transfer of ownership of the Cleveland Indians.

Rejection by American League officials of the sale of the Boston Red Sox to the Buddy Leroux-Haywood Sullivan group.

The big trade among the four clubs included all-star performers Bert Blyleven, Al Oliver, Willie Montanez and Jon Matlack and took four days to finalize. In the end, Montanez became a Met, Blyleven went to the Pirates and Oliver and Matlack joined the Rangers.

It began this way. The Braves traded Montanez to the Rangers for pitchers Adrian Devine and Tony Boggs and outfielder Eddie Miller and the Rangers in turn sent Montanez, outfielder Tom Grive and a player to be named later to the Mets.

New York followed suit by sending Matlack and first baseman-outfielder John Milner to Texas and the Rangers completed the deal by shipping Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and minor-league infielder Nelson Norman.

On the surface, the deal would appear to benefit every team but the Mets. "I don't know whether people out there care to see players in Cadillac limousines arrive at the ballpark dressed in spats with mink-decked women on each arm."

"I lost so much money last year I'm down to my last pair of Gucci loafers. We want guys who wear T-shirts and drink beer at the corner bar."

Outfielder Rick Miller also wound up with the Angels in the same package.

Improving Cheney set for opener

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Writer

"We've done increasingly better in every scrimmage," enthuses Cheney Tech basketball coach Gerry Blanchard. That wasn't necessarily so a year ago.

So "seeing progress every day," the Braves head into the 1977-78 campaign which laps off Tuesday night at home against Lyman Memorial.

One of the plusses for Coach Gerry Blanchard's Techmen is experience. It was in short commodity but a year of play, which brought a disappointing 5-13 record, and getting adjusted to a new defensive system should bring better results.

The Techmen got a plus even before the opening jump. Bernie Ertel, 6-3, 225-pound senior pivotman, was believed out for the season with an ailment. He, however, will be available to man the center post, although his status is "still on a day-to-day basis. He has to tell me when he's had enough," Blanchard informed.

Ertel, who has been averaging 15 rebounds per scrimmage, tossed in 158 points last year. His frontcourt mates will be Co-captain Kevin Tyler, 6-2 senior, and 6-0 junior Dave Gustamachio. The latter pair netted 197 and 168 points respectively in '76-77.

The backcourt tandem pairs Co-captain Jim Boudreau, 5-9 senior, and 5-8 senior Brian Brown. Tim Martin, a 5-9 senior, swings between the backcourt and forwardcourt.

Six-foot-one Ben Morgan and 5-10 Glen Rossignol, both seniors and 5-10 Mike Fraser and 5-7 Dan Jaski, both sophomores, are top reserves.

The team "will rely on the top six as the others don't have that much experience. The top group has played together for two years," Blanchard explained, primarily at the guard positions, is a Beaver asset. It will be used to implement Cheney's gambling style of defense which at times can yield uncontested layups.

"If we come up with the ball on a steal it's a bonus. What we're looking for in this is a bad pass, a turnover," remarked Blanchard, beginning his fourth year at the helm.

Top contenders for the Charter Oak Conference (COC) title should include Bacon Academy, Coventry and Cronwell. And Cheney? "Our goal is to make the tournament. I foresee a 500 record this year. I really do. The games we lost by three to six points a year ago we should be able to turn around because of experience."

The team has a very positive attitude," Blanchard continued. "The leadership from Boudreau and Tyler has also been very, very good. And you always see the team together, they are together."

Schedule: Dec. 13 Lyman Memorial H, 16 Bacon Academy H, 20 Vinal Tech A, 23 Rham H, 27 East Granby H, 30 Portland A, Jan. 6 Bolton A, 10 East Hampton H, 13 Coventry H, 17 Cronwell H, 20 Rocky Hill A, 24 Portland H, 31 Vinal Tech H, Feb. 3 Rham A, 7 Bolton H, 10 East Hampton A, 14 Coventry A, 17 Cronwell A, 21 Rocky Hill H, 23 Bacon Academy A. # Bucks breaking norm on road with winning record to date

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the NBA, where road victories are about as common as 5-foot-11 centers, the Milwaukee Bucks have won seven and lost only five away from home. The trouble is, they have won seven and lost six at home, too.

"I really can't figure it out," said Bucks' Coach Don Nelson Thursday night after Milwaukee edged Golden State, 117-116, for its latest road triumph.

"Entering the season I figured that if we were going to make the playoffs, we would have to have a super year at home and then scratch like hell on the road," continued Nelson. "Just the opposite has happened: We are playing better on the road."

The Bucks' young hotshots were in command against Golden State. Brian Winters' shot at the buzzer proved the difference.

After Rick Barry's 18-footer with 11 seconds left gave the Warriors the lead, Milwaukee called time out and worked for the final shot. Winters fired with four seconds to go, but fell as he shot. An air ball resulted and the Warriors knocked it out of bounds.

East girl cagers win impressively

With a tremendous team effort, East Catholic girls' basketball team opened its 1977-78 campaign with an impressive 68-30 duke over St. Paul last night at the Eagles' Nest.

The Eagles got off to a slow start experiencing first game jitters. But they warmed to the occasion the second stanza pumping in 19 tallies to grab a 30-20 halftime bulge.

East blew it wide open in the third period as its tenacious defense allowed St. Paul, 1-1, just four markers while chalking up 24 to go into the final quarter with a 30-point advantage.

A fine defensive game was turned in by senior Maryann Ostrout and juniors Ellen Petkakis and Laurie Barry. Petkakis led all scorers with 20 points followed by senior captain Sue Frelheit (12) and Gretchen Lindberg (8).

East's jerseys upped their ledger to 6-0 with a 68-25 win. They jumped to an early 23-6 lead and were never in jeopardy afterwards. Sophomore Sue Dalley set a jayvee record with 26 points with Ellen Ostrout netting 12 and Tracy Young eight.

East's next stop is Wednesday at home against Mercy High of Middletown.

Must wait

VAL d'ISERE, FRANCE (UPI) — Anne-Marie Moser-Proell must wait next week before she knows whether she is in the lead for her sixth World Cup.

It depends on the result of a preliminary test on the ski suit she wore when she placed second in Thursday's giant slalom in the Criterium De La Premiere Neige in Val d'Isere.

The suit may have been illegal.

USF hoopsters still have clout

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of San Francisco basketball team does not have its 1-2-3 punch going these days, but its 1-2 punch is still capable of delivering a knockout blow.

Winford Boynes scored 24 points and James Hardy added 22 Thursday night as the ninth-ranked Dons won a surprisingly easy 99-78 decision at Stanford. Hardy hit seven 12-shot for 14 points in the first half and Boynes had 14 points in the second half. Kimberly Belton was high for Stanford with 21.

The Dons' third punch, towering center Bill Cartwright, is due to return to action later this month after being sidelined so far this season with an injury.

In other games, Purdue scored a 76-75 victory over Arizona State. Kansas State dropped Oral Roberts University, 75-64. Duke routed SMU, 91-67, and Michigan State topped Wichita State, 84-57.

Jim Sparneck scored 24 points to lead Duke. Mike Gminski collected 17 points and 10 rebounds. Eugene Banks and reserve Scott Goetsch added 15 and 11 points, respectively.

Freshman Ervin Johnson scored 19 points, had nine assists and grabbed 20 rebounds to lead Michigan State. The highly acclaimed 6-foot-9 freshman put on a dazzling first-half display. He had 11 rebounds, eight assists and six points by halftime. Charles Brent scored 13 points for Wichita State.

In other games, it was Detroit 69, St. Louis 61; Athletics in Action 70, Texas Tech 68 and Tex.-El Paso 75, Kentucky 57.

The Cougars plan to play 10 games over a 10-day stretch, beginning March 17 in Baltimore and then spending March 20 through March 22 in South and North Carolina, stopping it off back in Baltimore March 23 and 24.

Funds are being raised through a raffle by members of the team.

First prize is a trip for two to Bermuda, second prize, a color TV, and third is a cassette tape player with speakers.

The drawing will be held Feb. 24 at 10:45 p.m. at the Manchester State Armory.

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York's Bob McAdoo and Boston's Dave Cowens are engaged in a tight battle for the starting center berth on the Eastern Conference NBA All-Star team.

The first results of NBA fan balloting show McAdoo leading all Eastern Conference pivots with 29,231 votes, but Cowens trails the Knicks' smooth-shooting center by only 214 votes.

East's overwhelming leader is Philadelphia 76ers' forward Julius Erving with 64,573 votes. Erving's teammate at forward, George McGinnis, is holding down the other starting position with 27,009 votes.

The Trail Blazers — led by Bill Walton and Maurice Lucas — lead the NBA's Pacific Division with an 18-4 record, five games ahead of Phoenix, and are coming off a 121-109 loss at Philadelphia Wednesday night.

THE 1980's CELICA IS HERE NOW.

THE NEW TOYOTA CELICA GT LIFTBACK. A CAR WHICH MEETS OR EXCEEDS ALL 1980 FEDERAL FUEL ECONOMY AND SAFETY STANDARDS.

- Toyota engineering advancements and wind tunnel test refinements have produced an aerodynamic work of art.
- MacPherson strut front suspension power assisted front disc brakes, steel belted radial-ply tires. All standard.
- Equipment, features and handling comparable to cars costing thousands more.
- Welded unitized-body construction to help maintain light body integrity.
- The entire body is "acid" etched for superior paint adhesion and then fully immersed in primer to help prevent rust corrosion.
- Traditional Toyota economy. In EPA tests the 1978 Celica GT Liftback was rated at 34 highway, 20 city. These ratings with manual transmission are estimates. Your mileage will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.
- The 1978 Celica Three models — the GT Liftback (pictured), GT and ST Sport Coupes. Dynamically practical cars for the 80's that are here today.

THE FACTS SAY "BUY NOW"!!

Fact 1. The home you looked at and liked last year has most likely increased in value.
Fact 2. The $1,000 you worked to save in order to have more down payment has not helped you - AND Fact 3. You lost the rent monies you paid all year - AND Fact 4. You weren't able to use the taxes plus interest you would have paid on your "OWN HOME" when figuring your income tax. So - Fact 5. It makes good sense to buy now!

BUYING STILL AT RECORD LEVELS
Basic economics in home buying, which we thought we learned over past decades, seems to have blown a fuse.
Prices have risen to all time record levels - reflecting an increase rate of two percent faster than inflation over the last 15 years. Yet American families are buying those homes in greater volume than ever before.
Nationally, a record 4.2 million homes were sold last year. In 1977, that figure is expected to grow by half a million, according to a report from the National Association of Realtors' Department of Research.
Surprisingly to many, nearly half of today's home buyers are under 35 years of age, and about half of all buyers are renters moving into owner status.
It is interesting to note that buyers are not looking up to the basic no-frills home. They are seeking homes with more living space, air conditioning, fireplaces, etc.
In conclusion, all of this sales activity is a basic increasing desire for home ownership by the American Family and the realization that a home purchase, even at today's prices, is probably the BEST INVESTMENT around.

Doc says quitting doesn't help

BOSTON (UPI) — A Boston surgeon has dispelled the popular belief that people who quit smoking reverse the risk of lung cancer.

Dr. Wilford B. Neptune Wednesday told the Massachusetts Cancer Society and the Greater Boston Medical Society that putting an end to a smoking habit, no matter how short-lived, does not reverse the cancer risk.

Neptune said there are 100,000 lung cancer cases every year.

He said young people retain the risk despite their mistaken belief they can avoid it by quitting when they're older.

Summary
HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Bonding Commission Friday approved funding $2.9 million of repairs to public housing projects in Hartford and New Haven through bond sales.

Another bond sale of $1.93 million was approved for the state Board of Education to use to replace worn out and obsolete shop equipment at regional vocational-technical schools.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — NATO foreign ministers ended a two-day meeting Friday with a statement of support for U.S. efforts to reach a new SALT agreement with the Soviet Union and an appeal to Communist countries to respect human rights.

In a final communique, the 15 NATO ministers unanimously expressed support for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's Middle East peace initiative. The Greek and Turkish ministers remained behind to seek solutions to their disputes, which threaten the security of NATO's southern flank.

An $180,000 coal drill was dynamited and a coal company official was fired upon as scattered violence spread from Utah to Virginia in the four-day-old United Mine Workers strike, it was reported Friday.

Washington (UPI) — The government is studying a reform of pharmaceutical laws in order to speed up the process for getting safe and effective new drugs on the market and to make it easier to remove bad drugs from sale, an administration source said Friday.

Proposals sharing these common provisions:

- Speed the process for getting drugs off the market more quickly by requiring closer monitoring of the drugs that are being distributed in the market place.
- Provide consumers with information about the drugs in an understandable way.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Memphis, Tenn., offering to pay $75,000 cash up front, was chosen over Seattle, Denver and Honolulu Friday for the Democratic mini-convention in 1978.

The Democratic National Committee's site selection committee took only two ballots to choose Memphis, which offered a total package of about $150,000 in goods and services — more than the firm offers from the other three cities.

An exact date for the conference will be set by the DNC executive committee in January, but the favored dates are Dec. 7-10, 1978. In any case the three-day meeting of the 1,257 delegates will be held sometime during the first 16 days of December.

Charlene Gagne, 34 Dunn Hill Road, Tolland — "Beautiful. It's nice to have a change with the snow. The kids love it."

Mike Musco, 1194 Windsor Ave., Windsor — "I think it'll be very, very cold. It's only early December and there's already ice. I'm splitting for California."

James Lentochea, 7 Clyde Road, Manchester — "I don't think it'll be any worse than last year. That's just a feeling I have."

Bill Stanton, 43 Cedar Swamp Road, Tolland — "I think it's going to be milder than last winter because that's what all the experts tell me and I'm going to Florida."

Mary McCarthy, 69 Richmond Drive, Manchester — "I think we're going to have one of the worst winters ever."

Joe Bouchard, 138 Center St., Manchester — "Cold. I'm st. already."

Giles says site up to directors

Jay Giles, Manchester's director of public works, said Friday that he believes the town legally could locate a water treatment plant at the Globe Hollow swimming pool and the final decision rests with the Board of Directors.

Giles said that Frank Ennis of the Engineering Department has investigated the situation and found that the Globe Hollow area was purchased with a bond issue that has specified the pool area be used for recreation purposes.

That bond issue, however, has been paid off. This could mean that the obligation to use the property for recreation is no longer valid, Giles said.

The Water Study Committee has recommended that the plant be located in the Globe Hollow area, either at the pool site or across the street in an area just west of Mt. Nebo.

The directors will be asked to appropriate $15,000 for a site study that would determine which location would be the best.

It seems likely that efforts will be made not to locate the plant at the site of the pool. Members of both the Conservation Commission and Water Study Committee have expressed opposition to eliminating the pool for the plant.

Giles has proposed that if the pool site is used, another pool might be built across the street. But, it is generally believed that the elimination of Globe Hollow would be a politically unpopular decision.

The matter, in fact, did become a campaign issue during the last town election. At least one candidate, David Call, voiced opposition to the elimination of the pool.

Plan seeks quicker tests of new pharmaceuticals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House of Representatives passed legislation Friday to speed up the process for getting safe and effective new drugs on the market and to make it easier to remove bad drugs from sale, an administration source said Friday.

Proposals sharing these common provisions:

- Speed the process for getting drugs off the market more quickly by requiring closer monitoring of the drugs that are being distributed in the market place.
- Provide consumers with information about the drugs in an understandable way.

The current process for getting a new drug on the market is usually lengthy with little sharing of research. The source said the legislation would make formal the procedure of a few years ago when L. Dopa, a new drug for sufferers of Parkinson's disease, was quickly placed on the market.

The source said the administration is circulating the proposals among various government departments and agencies. He said the proposals are basically alike except for some differences in the procedure mechanism.

The source said the pharmaceutical industry probably would object to provisions to allow certain information about a drug to be made public at an earlier stage. The industry contends this would allow a company to take quick advantage of a break-through by a competitor.

The nation's basic pharmaceutical laws were set forth in the 1938 Food and Drug Act. Amendments in 1962 required that drugs had to be proved safe, and in 1962 that drugs had to be proved effective. "Grandfather" clauses, however, exempted drugs already on the market from the amendments.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The case of the two babies, immigrants, who were rescued last week from a shipwrecked boat in the Gulf of Mexico, became a worldwide issue that reached the U.S. Supreme Court, then headed by Oliver Wendell Holmes. In the days before their execution at Charlestown Prison, the streets of Boston were filled with thousands of demonstrators, including some of the foremost scholars and literary figures of the time.

Letters written by the two men from their death row cell insisting on their innocence, eloquent despite their broken English, found their way into newspapers and many of them are incorporated into standard courses of study.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis issued a proclamation over the summer declaring the two men had not received a fair trial because of the anti-Communist hysteria that gripped the country following World War I. Questions have been often raised about the conduct of the trial judge and prosecutor in the case.

Move on to mend Arab rift

KUWAIT (UPI) — Syria's President Hafez Assad conferred with Kuwaiti rulers Friday in an attempt to put pressure on Egypt to halt or at least slow down President Anwar Sadat's rush toward peace.

However, Kuwaiti government sources said both Kuwait and Saudi Arabia were working to patch up the Syria-Egypt quarrel.

The Syrian leader arrived in Kuwait from Saudi Arabia on the second leg of a tour of the oil kingdoms. Assad conferred with Kuwait's ruler, Sheikh Sabah as-Salem as-Sabah, and planned to fly to the Gulf state of Qatar Saturday, government sources said.

Kuwaiti government sources said both Kuwait and Saudi Arabia were trying to mediate the rift between Assad and Sadat over the Egyptian President's peace overture.

The Kuwaiti sources said their government "told President Assad's visit to Jerusalem (and) deplores the serious rift in Arab relations the visit caused."

Secret papers open in famed murder

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Papers concerning the trial of Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, kept secret for 50 years, were opened at Harvard University Friday, but it will be at least a month before it is known if they shed any light on one of the nation's most debated cases.

The papers were compiled by A. Lawrence Lowell, a former Harvard president who headed a special commission appointed in 1927 to review evidence allegedly lodged on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, later executed for the murder of two men during a 1920 South Braintree holdup.

Harvard University officials, scholars, state officials and reporters filled a conference room of the Nathan Pusey Library as the papers — wrapped in brown paper, sealed with red wax and tied with brown string — were unsealed by Douglas Bryant, director of the Harvard Library.

Deputy Secretary of State John J. McGlynn immediately lodged a claim for the state to determine whether the papers were public records, in which case they would belong to the state. McGlynn said he did not expect a court fight over the issue of whether the papers were the case and the state was disclosed about the contents.

Immediately after the 20-minute ceremony, the papers were taken to another section of the library to be microfilmed and catalogued. When that is completed, said Bryant, the papers will be opened to the public for inspection, by application only. He said the process would take four to six weeks.

Letters written by the two men from their death row cell insisting on their innocence, eloquent despite their broken English, found their way into newspapers and many of them are incorporated into standard courses of study.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis issued a proclamation over the summer declaring the two men had not received a fair trial because of the anti-Communist hysteria that gripped the country following World War I. Questions have been often raised about the conduct of the trial judge and prosecutor in the case.
