Dorm fire kills seven at college

Rescue at fatal fire

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A four-alarm fire possibly caused by faulty Christmas lights or a hair dryer raged through part of a Providence College dormitory before dawn today, killing seven coeds and injuring 15 others.

"I don't think I'm ever going to be able to go back in there," said student Suzanne Green of Lowell, Mass., who lived on the third floor of the four-story red brick building. The school was ordered closed at noon, to reopen on Jan. 9. Final semester examinations were to begin on Wednesday with the 3,600 students beginning the Christmas holiday season next week.

"We're more concerned with the tragedy right now than examinations," said college spokesman Joseph McAleer.

Gov. J. Joseph Garrity went to the scene for a personal look at the disaster and to talk with students.

The fire broke out at 3 a.m. on the top floor of Aquinas Hall, which housed 300 students. It had no sprinklers or outside fire escapes, but recently had undergone fireproofing.

Hundreds of blanket-covered coeds were driven into the 17 degree cold until they could be sheltered elsewhere. Snow covered the campus around the red brick building.

Students from surrounding buildings helped get some of the coeds out — breaking windows in some instances — and helped firemen by hauling hoses, moving parked cars and raising ladders to young women screaming for help from upper windows.

"The fire doors kept the blaze from spreading beyond one corner of the top floor," said the Rev. Aloysius Begley, alumni chaplain at the Roman Catholic school.

Two young women died when they leaped from a fourth-floor window as flames began to engulf them. Eyewitnesses said the two were afraid to wait any longer for a ladder to arrive.

"Everyone on the ground was yelling to them to stay calm," said freshman Molly McSague of Townsend, Mass. "They broke the window with their fists. They waited 'til the fire was right behind them, then two jumped. A hook-and-ladder truck rescued the third."

A dozen of the injured were hospitalized for burns and smoke inhalation.

The cause of the fire was under investigation. City and state fire officials refused comment. They were checking whether the fire was possibly caused by faulty Christmas lighting or a hair dryer.

"We share the deep sense of loss with the parents of the students who died today, for we too mourn these deaths within our college family," said the Rev. Thomas Peterson, college president, who was visibly shaken as he talked with reporters.

Bodies of six victims were taken to a temporary morgue set up in the campus chapel. A seventh victim, identified as Jackie Botelho of Bristol, R.I., was dead on arrival at Roger Williams Hospital.

"We didn't even think there was a fire until we got into the stairwell. Then we saw the smoke. There were a lot of kids hanging from windows and yelling and coming down ladders. Two of them jumped," said Mary Morrissey of New York City, also an Aquinas resident.

"Seven to 10 girls were at the windows screaming 'Get us down.' There were not enough engines to get them down. Kids from the dorms helped put up ladders to get them out and brought blankets for the girls who were burned," said sophomore John Colusardo of Garrison, N.Y.

Six students were admitted to Roger Williams and two were treated and released. Five students were admitted at Rhode Island Hospital. One woman and a firefighter were taken to Miriam Hospital. One student was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Flynn said that Phillips would set up a meeting with the committee and an architect to discuss proposed library renovations and installation of a temperature control system. It is Mrs. Flynn's understanding that there would be no cost to the architect for this discussion.

In other business, the board will hold a workshop session Saturday, Jan. 7, at Whiton Memorial Library to work on language and "philosophy" in a proposed new personnel policy manual.

Map error will change housing plans

By GREG PEARSON and ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporters

An error was made in the surveying of property for the proposed Wesley Retirement Center, and a change in the plans for the 100-unit housing project for the elderly apparently will have to be made.

The mistake was confirmed by both a state Department of Transportation official and attorney Renard Kolasa, who represents the applicants for the proposed project. The project is planned for a site on the South United Methodist Church's campus near the intersection of Manchester's Main Street and Hartford Road.

The applicants for the project — the church and Wesley Retirement Center Inc. — have two paths they can follow to correct the problem, Kolasa said. One would be to purchase property from the state and an application for such a purchase has already been filed with the state, he said. The second would be to shift the location of the building or to alter the construction plans.

The problem concerning the south side boundary of the proposed project was first mentioned at a Dec. 5 public hearing on the proposal.

Douglas Prior, a land surveyor from Tolland, said that a non-access line bordering the Interstate highway 85 connector was used as the border of the project site. He said that the actual boundary is only 15 feet from the proposed three-story building site.

Zoning regulations would require that the building be 45 feet from the boundary.

Attorney David Call, who represented a group opposed to the project, said that this factor alone should lead to denial of the project by the Planning and Zoning Commission, which conducted the public hearing. The PZC would have to grant a special exception to allow the project to be built.

Kolasa said that the firm that did the surveying work for the project's applicants has been contacted.

"They feel they have made an error," he said.

The state DOT official, who asked to remain nameless, said that the state owns property in varying distances north of the non-access line. The state-owned land extends from ten to 30 feet into the property that had been considered part of the project parcel by the applicants, he said.

Kolasa said that the applicants could purchase the entire strip of land owned by the state. The strip extends the 800-foot length of the proposed site.

The applicants would have to buy only the strip that is in line with the building, but it might be just as easy to buy the entire 800-foot strip, which is about nine-tenths of an acre, he said.

The state official from DOT said that he expects the state would be willing to sell the parcel.

"The reason we obtained it is because it is of little use to anyone but the state," he said.

The Town of Manchester has the right of first refusal on the parcel but is not expected to be interested in buying the land.

The applicants also could shift slightly the location of the housing project or reduce the size of the building to meet the distance requirements, Kolasa said. He said that this step might require another public hearing.

He was unsure whether the purchase and addition of the property would require another public hearing. Town Planner Alan Lamson was not available this morning to clarify the matter.

Monday night, the congregation of South United Methodist Church voted to extend the Wesley Retirement Center's option for purchasing the proposed site for the center.

The 68 to 54 vote approved extending the option, which was scheduled to expire Dec. 31, to Dec. 31, 1978.

The moderator, the Rev. Rene Bideaux of Bolton, district superintendent, told the congregation he would rule out of order any other point of discussion and that it was "not the time to speak in favor or not in favor of the retirement center."

Will the church be able to use its Hartford Road parking lot if the center becomes a reality was one of the concerns of Robert Von Deck, who opposes the sale of the church land for the center. He cited the uses permitted on the tax-exempt retirement center, which according to regulations "shall be devoted to elderly or handicapped housing and related accessory uses." This would prevent the church from using its present parking lot, he said.

Von Deck also felt the parking lot is presently in violation. Records in the Planning Office show that no approval was given by the PZC or the Zoning Board of Appeals for the lot.

Several other members of the congregation spoke both in favor and against approving the option. The moderator said that when the retirement center is approved by the PZC and comes back to the church to purchase the land, there will be many questions to be answered before the sale is completed.

Buckley steps down from library board

By JUNE TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

After serving as chairman of the Manchester library board for more than 25 years, William E. Buckley Monday night stepped down from his office, saying it was time for a change in leadership.

Buckley began the meeting with the first item of business on the agenda which was organization of the library board.

"I have served continuously on the board since 1944," he began, "and have enjoyed it thoroughly."

He continued, "I do not want to continue as chairman, and I think it's time for a change in leadership in the library board. However, I think I can still make a contribution as a member of the board, and that's why I accepted an appointment to (serve on) the board again."

Buckley added that he doesn't want to lose touch with the board members and that he feels he can contribute to the government of Manchester.

With a touch of humor, Buckley quoted an English writer's definition of original sin, which is the desire to escape responsibility.

"As I grow older, I am growing more deeply into this kind of sin," he quipped.

Before leaving the chair, as his last official act, he nominated Leo Diana, vice-president, to succeed him as chairman. Diana was unanimously elected.

A library board member for 17 years, Diana in turn nominated Buckley to serve as vice-chairman, an appointment which was also unanimously approved. Ruth Tucker was re-elected secretary.

Other board appointments are as follows: Roger Bagley, chairman of the personnel committee assisted by Mary LeDuc; Ruth Tucker, chairman of the Whiton committee assisted by Marge Flynn.

Diana asked Mrs. Flynn to continue serving as chairman of the library developmental planning committee assisted by Bagley, LeDuc, and Buckley. Diana said he would serve in an ex-officio capacity on all committees.

Mrs. Flynn and John Jackston, head librarian, met with Town Manager Robert Weiss recently to discuss the library's future development plans and asked him how to proceed. Mrs. Flynn said Weiss suggested that the developmental planning committee meet with Paul Phillips, town building committee chairman, as Phillips has had considerable experience with architects, heating and temperature control engineers and other construction personnel.

Mrs. Flynn said that Phillips would set up a meeting with the committee and an architect to discuss proposed library renovations and installation of a temperature control system. It is Mrs. Flynn's understanding that there would be no cost to the architect for this discussion.

In other business, the board will hold a workshop session Saturday, Jan. 7, at Whiton Memorial Library to work on language and "philosophy" in a proposed new personnel policy manual.

Today's news summary

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A 28-man Israeli delegation arrived in Cairo today for preparatory talks with Egyptian leaders on ending three decades of conflict in the Middle East.

The El Al Boeing 707 was decorated with Israeli and Egyptian flags and its nose was painted with the words "Shalom" in Hebrew and "Salaam" in Arabic — the words for "peace."

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — In a related development, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, trying to enlist Arab support for the Cairo conference, landed in Lebanon today on the fourth leg of his six-nation Middle East tour.

Vance failed Monday to persuade Jordan's King Hussein to participate in the Cairo talks, but Hussein did not rule out attending a later conference, perhaps at Geneva.

Progress was reported Monday in negotiations to resolve the nationwide coal strike. The strike by approximately 188,000 miners in 22 states began Dec. 6 when the United Mine Workers' three-year contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association expired.

Negotiators for both sides met for two hours Monday in Washington and recessed for an indefinite period to allow both sides to reassess their positions. "We're making progress and still moving," UMW President Arnold Miller said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Center for Health Statistics said today Hawaiians live longer than Americans living in any other state.

It said residents of the nation's capital have the shortest life expectancy, two years lower than in any other state.

The figures, based on the decade ending in 1971, also found the life expectancy of a black in America fell to 60 years for the same decade. Black women averaged 68.3 years for the same period.

Current life expectancy in the United States for all races is 69 years for a man and 76.7 for a woman. Hawaii had an average life expectancy for both sexes of 73.6 years.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials say President Carter is getting frustrated with the absence of substantive action on his energy package. They say Carter considers moot the possibility of having an energy measure on his desk by Christmas, but he still hopes the House and Senate conferees will arrive at a "basic agreement" on key provisions before the holidays.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Mondale said today agreement has been reached to separate the issues of Social Security and college education tax credits, thereby freezing Social Security funding legislation for congressional passage.

But a spokesman for Sen. William Roth, R-Del., author of the college tax credit proposal, said not all details of such an agreement have been worked out. His plan has delayed action on Social Security.

Mondale made his statement to reporters at a White House breakfast meeting, but did not say exactly who was involved in the agreement.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police say a 78-year-old retired minister fatally shot Jeffrey DeVilla, 14, of Hartford as DeVilla apparently tried to break into the minister's apartment.

Authorities said today the minister, whose name they refused to release, heard someone prying at his door at 6:30 p.m. Monday. He fired a single rifle shot which passed through the closed door and struck DeVilla in the chest, police said.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Negligence at the Danbury federal prison contributed to the deaths of five inmates and to the injuries suffered by about 80 other prisoners in the July 7 fire, the Connecticut NAACP said today.

Ben F. Andrews Jr., executive director of the Connecticut NAACP, said his investigative task force learned a sixth inmate injured in the fire died Nov. 29.

The $10,300,000 phone call and what you can do about it.

1-411, as you know, is the number you call when you can't find a number in your phone book.

Every day, Directory Assistance operators handle hundreds of thousands of requests for numbers — most of them for numbers already listed in your phone book. Unfortunately — the volume of calls each year keeps growing — and so does the cost.

This year, to provide Directory Assistance service to Connecticut, it will cost $10,330,000 (does not include equipment and facilities).

All Connecticut telephone users pay this bill.

Everyone can help hold down that cost. It's easy, and it's simple, and it's fast. Whenever you possibly can, use your phone book.

- Some tips on how to get more out of your phone book:
- You'll find emergency numbers (fire, police, medical) just inside the front cover of your book.
 - Numbers for government offices (city, county, state, federal) are all up front in the white pages.
 - For numbers not in your book, call 1-411. Then write them down in the space provided on the inside back cover.

Land sale hearings on board agenda

The Manchester Board of Directors will meet tonight at 8 and hold two public hearings concerning the sale of land for the town's proposed industrial park.

The board is being asked to approve the sale of about 162 acres of land to the J.C. Penney Co. at a cost of $3,248,500. This sale could take place after the town buys about 95 acres from the State of Connecticut for $2,141,714. Separate public hearings will be held for both transactions.

The Manchester Economic Development Commission has granted its approval to both transactions as long as J.C. Penney guarantees it will build in town. A similar contingency approval is expected from the directors.

The board also will be asked to approve a tax treaty for J.C. Penney. The agreement says that for the first seven years the firm will not be taxed at a rate greater than 25 cents per square foot.

The board also will consider the formation of a charter revision commission. The Commission has granted its approval to both transactions as long as J.C. Penney guarantees it will build in town. A similar contingency approval is expected from the directors.

The board last month gave its approval to the proposal and the 20 CETA positions were certified Monday by the Hartford office of Comprehensive Manpower, which is the area coordinator of the CETA program.

Mason said that he expects to have some of the positions filled by the first week in January. That means interviewing will begin soon.

He asked that anyone who can qualify from and contribute greatly to an encounter with the arts. The Arts Encounter is designed to provide such artists," a report submitted to the Board of Directors said.

CETA program will coordinate art

A program designed to coordinate art in Manchester will be started soon after the first of the year, Alan Mason, director of human services and head of the Manchester Arts Council, said today.

The Arts Council received approval Monday for 20 Comprehensive Employment Training Act positions it had sought. The CETA jobs, created through Title VI of the federal employment program, will be used for a one-year project called Arts Encounter.

Title VI provides employment for projects that will last for one year. "There is no grass roots, coordinated program to provide services to these groups or individuals who may benefit from and contribute greatly to an encounter with the arts. The Arts Encounter is designed to provide such artists," a report submitted to the Board of Directors said.

previous board approved the formation of such a commission to consider conflict-of-interest matters, but the approval became void when appointments were not made within 30 days. Thus, this board, elected in November, will reconsider the matter.

The matter of such a commission had been an issue in the early part of the campaign, but both parties reached a compromise during October.

The directors will act on three public hearing items that were discussed at last week's meeting. Two of the items deal with the appropriation of funds that have already been received for educational projects.

The third item, and the only one of any dispute, concerns extending a tax exemption for solar heating equipment to include installations to existing structures.

During the summer, the board approved a tax exemption for solar heating equipment included in new construction. This amendment would extend the exemption to additions to present buildings.

A third step is to maintain records that would present an arts history in Manchester.

The fourth step is to develop a working artists program, which would provide an opportunity for potential arts participants to learn about experiences and programs available to them.

These steps might be changed depending on the type of people who apply for the CETA positions.

Full employment dream

In 1946, with millions of young men coming home from war, Congress passed a law pledging the government to "use all practicable means... to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power" in this country.

Some called it a "full employment" act. President Truman hailed it as "a commitment to take any and all of the measures necessary for a healthy economy."

In fact, the new legislation created no jobs. Nor did it say how or when the government's commitment would be carried out. This bill, said Rep. George H. Bender, R-Ohio, "is a fraud."

Now, 31 years later, a new "full employment" bill has been endorsed by President Carter and sent to Congress for action. And the aims of the new bill are just as murky today as they were in 1946.

The bill's sponsors, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., see it as a basic commitment to do whatever needs to be done to put people to work.

A more sober interpretation is that the bill is nothing more than a set of flexible employment goals that even the president concedes may never be reached.

The stated goal of the bill is to reduce the unemployment rate to 4 percent by 1983 without aggravating inflation. Which sounds commendable.

But there simply is no reasonable way to guarantee that the current 7 percent unemployment rate will be reduced to 5 percent or 4 percent or any other percentage by some arbitrary date.

The original Humphrey-Hawkins bill—the one debated during last year's presidential campaign—would have practically commanded the government to be an employer of last resort. Never mind the cost. Just do it.

The president has succeeded, at least, in preserving the principle of full employment without committing himself—and the country—to a deluge of inflationary spending a few years down the line.

The danger, of course, is that future congresses will use

Humphrey-Hawkins as a justification for creating a lot of expensive make-work jobs at taxpayer expense.

In truth, the only sure path to full employment is a healthy economy. That means keeping inflation under control by avoiding excessive government spending, a ballooning money supply and unwarranted wage and price decisions by labor and management.

Truth in charity

It may be coincidental, but the nation's Catholic bishops have chosen a good time—the beginning of the holiday season—to try to eliminate questionable fund-raising practices by Catholic organizations and groups.

Meeting in Washington, the bishops issued a new set of rules for Catholic charities that might well be applied to other worthy causes.

The rules require, for example, that "funds collected be used for the intended purpose and not be absorbed by excessive fundraising costs."

This apparently is aimed at preventing scandals like the one involving the Pallotine Fathers of Baltimore, who raise more than $20 million a few years ago and spent only $500,000 of it on charitable work.

The new rules also stipulate that requests for money be truthful, that no money be raised for "undefined future needs" and that regular financial reports be issued telling how much money was raised and how the money was spent.

It's too bad the bishops haven't been equally enthusiastic about a proposal in Congress to make all charities—religious and secular—state on each fund-raising letter what they do with the money they collect.

The new rules are a step in the right direction, though, and should make it easier for donors to decide which charities merit their financial support.

This act, plus the least pressing but still great need of others in the area for peace development, may dictate the beginning of the end of Middle Eastern hostilities.

As President Sadat said in the Egyptian parliament on his return from Israel:

"The Soviets wanted us to live in a no-war, no-peace situation, because... they would not have a role... if peace were established."

We imagine that others, especially Sadat's main financial backer, the conservative Saudi Arabians, also realize the threat posed to their monarchy by a strong Soviet presence in the Middle East.

Putting Merit on the Bench

By IRA R. ALLEN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter will have a chance to "shape the face of justice for a generation" when Congress delivers him next year one of the fruits of his election victory—a political plum dangling almost 150 new federal judgeships.

But within that gift lies a potential conflict between the prerogative of senators to control the nomination of federal judges in their states and Carter's 1976 campaign promise that "all federal judges and prosecutors should be appointed strictly on the basis of merit without any consideration of political aspect or influence."

There is little question about the need to expand the courts or the need to have qualified judges fill the new positions. The question is how many judges are needed and how they will be appointed.

Expanded in 1970
Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker wryly notes the tendency "to spawn new judges in Democratic administration," although the last time the judiciary was expanded was in 1970, under Richard Nixon.

Ironically, it was the Watergate affair and the impeachment hearings that kept Congress from getting around to the court expansion bill in 1973, 1974 and 1975 and, "Once into the election year (1976) then politics may have been a factor," explains a knowledgeable Senate source.

What he meant was in no mood to let a Republican president fill all those judgeships more than have ever been available before. It waited until this year, with a Democrat in the White House, to start moving.

The Senate bill adds 35 new circuit court judges and 113 district judges. The House Judiciary Committee has approved 110 district judges, and the House will act on the bill early next year.

Kept adding positions
The House version came out of subcommittee with 81 district judges, but members of the full committee kept adding positions, singing "Hearts and Flowers" renditions of enormous court backlogs in their states and the "hard working" nature of the judges.

Support all sports

To the editor:
I would like to comment on the Dec. 8 "Thoughts ApLENTy" column.

In this article, Mr. Auster writes and I quote "The sole sport this group (Manchester High Boosters Club) is interested in is football."

If this is true, why is it that the first recognition of any sport by this club was baseball with a presentation of a plaque to Manchester High baseball Coach Harold Parks honoring his 100th victory?

If this is true, why is it that the first event the Boosters Club is sponsoring is an awards dinner for the high school boys' cross country team and the girls' swim team?

If this is true, why is it that our long-range goal is to honor all athletic participants at Manchester High School? As our membership grows and public support increases, we hope to achieve this.

Perhaps Mr. Auster's thoughts were confused by the fact that the Boosters Club did recruit some members at the home football games. We also had membership tables at home soccer games (rain or shine). Other members joined from personal contact or word of mouth. I have to state that for a club only a few months old, we have made great strides and have a very enthusiastic and supportive group.

The board of directors of the Boosters Club consists of parents of basketball, football, soccer, softball, tennis and swimming.

As a member and director of the Manchester High Boosters Club, I can personally assure the people of Manchester that the goal of this organization is to encourage and support ALL the Manchester High School sports programs.

Sincerely yours,
Norma Marshall

Says commentary unfair

An open letter to Len Auster:
I have subscribed to The Manchester Evening Herald for thirteen years, but after reading your commentary in the Dec. 8 issue, I am seriously thinking of canceling my subscription.

It is beyond me how such third rate, cynical "journalism" is allowed to be printed by this newspaper, especially on the sports page.

The comic or obituary section would be more appropriate.

Your commentary was both unfair and unbalanced. Now let me give you a couple of true facts:

First, The MHS Booster Club did not sponsor the Iling Junior High School football dinner. It was a potluck supper supplied entirely by the mothers of the players.

Second, The MHS Booster Club's only interest was to encourage the involvement of these boys in the High School Total Athletic Program.

Two years ago I told you that you were unworthy of being a so called "sports writer," and your recent commentary certainly verified just that.

Not a football club

Dear editor:
I find it surprising that The Manchester Herald would keep on its staff a person who has to use second- and third-hand information, rely on initiating controversy, and print complete falsehoods in order to fill his column.

I am referring, of course, to Lenny Auster whose column is entitled "Thoughts ApLENTy"—that's a laugh! I don't think Mr. Auster has given any thought to the gross amount of damage he has done to Manchester High School's sports program. He has dwelt on the negative aspect of every situation, and rarely has correct information.

He is not respected by coaches, athletes or townpeople because of his inept handling of sports coverage. A journalist's job is to print news as it exists, not to try to stir up controversy.

Mr. Auster misinformed your readers in an article in Thursday's paper concerning a banquet which the Manchester High School Boosters Club gave for the Iling Junior High football team. The Boosters Club did NOT give a banquet. Each family brought a main dish, and it was a potluck supper.

The Boosters Club, however, graciously purchased a team trophy and individual medals for each team member.

This was done in an effort to encourage the players who will be at the high school in the fall to continue in sports. Also, it was an opportunity to solicit new members from the parents who attended.

The other trophies presented to the outstanding members of the Iling team were purchased by Iling. Mr. Auster was invited to attend, and would have known this had he chosen to be there.

The Boosters Club has plans for honoring other teams, and is NOT a football club. Mr. Auster finds the idea of the Boosters Club "revolting." Being as kind as I can possibly muster, Mr. Auster's column is revolting!

The Herald is a town newspaper and should at least print some positive attitudes toward our sports events. Mr. Auster's reporting is the one bad apple which reflects poorly on the entire newspaper.

Dianna Troy
29 Ashworth St.
Manchester

(Editor's note: Dianna Troy is the wife of Bill Troy, the Iling Junior High School football coach. Mr. Auster claims that it was Mr. Troy who told him about the potluck dinner for the Iling football team and that it was sponsored by the Manchester High Boosters Club. Mr. Troy denies making that statement.

Mr. Auster says, "I do apologize to those members of the Boosters Club with interests in other sports who may be offended. It was caused by misinformation supplied me.")

Anti-delinquency plan abandoned by agency

Efforts by social services agency representatives to apply for a Connecticut Justice Commission-sponsored grant to aid target families in Manchester have been abandoned.

A committee under the direction of Robert J. Digan, youth services director, was unable to find local matching funds stipulated by the federal grant program.

The committee was formed in late September after a larger group of persons involved in youth and community services were informed of the grants aimed at prevention of delinquency and providing services to target families. The target families had been designated by the group in earlier meetings as persons living in Squire Village and Beechwood Apartments, two large middle-income complexes.

The initial grant would have been for $40,000 for the first year with a 10 percent commitment by the town or other local sources. Succeeding grants for the next two years would be in increasing amounts on the local level and decreasing amounts by the federal government, Digan said. He said gaining a three-year commitment of funds by the town was the main consideration on the local level.

The deadline for the application was Dec. 1. Digan said the timing was not right either for the two privately run complexes or for the town.

The concerns relating to the two areas were over vandalism, housebreaks, property damage, thefts, as well as nutrition, health and other individual and family needs in the two areas.

College workshop slated on credits for veterans

A workshop on granting academic credit for training, education and related experiences gained during military service will be held Wednesday in the auditorium of the main campus of Manchester Community College (MCC), from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. It is being co-sponsored by the college and the Office of Veterans' Affairs of the State Board of Higher Education.

About 75 persons, including directors of admissions, registrars, veterans' coordinators and academic deans from 35 colleges and universities in Connecticut will attend.

The workshop has been organized by Dr. Wayne W. Kahaly, director of admissions at MCC, as a way to provide college representatives with information that will enable them to evaluate military credentials and documents submitted by veterans who want credit toward a college degree for knowledge and experience earned in the service.

Only about five percent of the 9,000 veterans enrolled as students in Connecticut have received credit for previous military training and experience, according to Kahaly.

Mystery victim was Alabama girl

EAST HARTFORD (UPI) — For almost a year, she remained a mystery to this community that provided her a final resting place and the adopted name of Norma.

State and local police poured through thousands of missing persons reports to see if the 5-foot-2 brown-eyed girl with long brown hair was among them.

Police circulated a picture and description of her, but no one came forward to identify her.

On Thursday, the first crack appeared in the mystery. By Monday, an Alabama family had been told that the girl killed in a Connecticut town was their own Angela Carol Patterson.

Police report

Two Massachusetts women were served warrants Monday by the Manchester Police Department in connection with activities at a local cafe Nov. 17.

Talks try to avert Meadows strike

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter
Contract negotiations were in effect today between the union and management at the Meadows Convalescent Home on Bidwell St. in an effort to avert a strike threat issued Dec. 2.

Neither union officials nor management at the Meadows were available for comment today. However, Fred Josky, vice-president in charge of operations of Geri Care Nursing Centers of America, which owns the Meadows and other nursing homes, did confirm that negotiations between union and management were being held today.

District 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, AFL-CIO, sent notices to the Meadows and several other convalescent homes in Connecticut announcing their intent to strike Dec. 14 and 15 unless a contract agreement is reached.

"We've been in constant touch with the Meadows," George Allen, a member of the state health department said today. He said the health department's concern is that if a strike should occur, that the patients would receive continual quality care.

Parents air concerns on field trips

Manchester Board of Education members and school administration listened Monday night to concerns of several parents of Wadwell School children over using parent drivers for class field trips.

The parents expressed concern over the safety of the children, the liability for the parent drivers and the effect on the environment when using several cars instead of buses.

Moroney said primary coverage for the volunteer drivers during a school function is too expensive and not available. Secondary insurance coverage for the individual trips is also costly and difficult to obtain, he said.

John P. Hogan, 29, of 134 Hill St., was charged with 10th-degree burglary Monday night in connection with a dispute with a tenant on Hill Street. Police said she was removing furniture from the tenant's apartment.

Senior center closed

Because of a breakdown in the furnace, the Senior Citizens Center on Myrtle Street will be closed until further notice, Mel Siebold, director of recreation, has made the Teen Center at the Nike site a temporary base for senior citizens operations.

The Christmas Gift Party is postponed until Thursday, Dec. 22. The senior bus will make the regular run for activities.

At the temporary site, sandwiches, desert and coffee will be furnished during the noon hour.

Deakin also said that the board provide funding for class trips which are related to the curriculum.

Vernon pupil drop means staff cuts

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter
The enrollment figures in the Vernon Public School system are dropping at the elementary level and the administration has been asked to eliminate 10 staff positions to offset this drop.

Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, in a projected enrollment report, said that two methods of predicting kindergarten enrollment were investigated.

He said using the birth/survival method, an average error factor of minus 12.4 percent was evident from the 1973-74 school year to 1975-76.

Using the census data from 1975-77, the average error factor was plus 22.6 percent. The range of error for census data ranged from plus 18.2 percent in 1975 to plus 24.3 percent in 1977. He said the average for 1976 and 1977 was very close with the difference being only about one percent.

Mansfield students accepted

By BARBARA RICHMOND Herald Reporter
Sixteen special education students from the Town of Mansfield will be taken into the Vernon School system in January. To accommodate these students another teacher and a teacher-aide will be hired.

The move was approved by the Board of Education Monday night. The annual tuition fee of $2,100 per student for a year will be pro-rated. This will amount to a total of $19,800 for the remainder of the year.

Dr. Ramsdell said both methods have been quite accurate in predicting the 1977-78 kindergarten enrollment and there was no significant differences when extended out as far as 1980-81.

He said a constant problem in Vernon for the past five years is a significant loss of pupils from grade to grade and the largest loss generally occurs between kindergarten and first grade.

No mayor yet in South Windsor

Myette is deputy mayor after political scramble

By JUDY KUEHNEL Herald Correspondent
Robert Myette emerged from behind closed door caucuses and bipartisan meeting last night as deputy mayor of the newly sworn-in eight-member South Windsor Town Council.

The council — short one member — was unable to decide on a mayor; thus Myette will preside over the town's governing body pending the selection of the ninth council member, and the selection of a mayor.

Myette, however, was seen shortly thereafter leaving the Democratic caucus, obviously upset by the twist of votes which denied him the deputy mayor's slot on the first ballot.

Myette was then seen entering the meeting with the four Republican councilmembers.

When advised that with Myette's participation in the GOP meeting, it no longer constituted a party caucus — and the closed door could be in violation of the Freedom of Information Law — Councilwoman Cushman locked the door and permitted the press to observe the conclusion of the meeting.

At first Myette "passed" on his vote for Havens, but later changed to "yes", creating another tie vote along party lines. The vote was also tied for the GOP nominee, Mrs. Caffyn.

Enes asked for nominations for deputy mayor.

No one opposes subdivision

Coventry
Oren Miles' application for an 18-lot subdivision on Stonehouse and Eagleview roads received no opposition at a Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC) public hearing Monday night.

Engineer Douglas Fryer said the 108-acre tract has several Connecticut Light and Power Company rights-of-way and an eight-acre pond.

Residents Charles Funk and Pauline Little asked questions at the hearing, but did not oppose the application.

Padick expected engineering systems for most of the lots. He added that all land between the new lot lines and Old Eagleview Road must be deeded to the town. Padick also suggested road improvements.

Padick answered that the commission plans to set up a joint meeting with the council next month in order to work out a road policy. The council has scheduled a special workshop on roads for Jan. 28.

The Conservation Commission submitted a letter stating that too many homes were being applied for on soil with severe septic limitations and that septic runoff might go into the pond.

The PZC continued the hearing to Jan. 9.

Bolton board apologizes to teacher

The Board of Education has apologized to Kenneth Roy, Bolton High School science teacher, following action taken in executive session during its meeting last week.

At its November meeting the board was informed by School Superintendent Raymond Allen that a college credit biology course was not being taught at the high school because in August the instructor dropped his offer to teach. That instructor was Roy.

When contacted, both Marshall and Boisenau said they do believe Roy is due an apology, because of the new information given to board members in executive session.

Both Marshall and Boisenau still maintain that "someone is responsible for those 17 kids being hurt." And both said based on the limited information given at the November meeting by Allen, they would have taken the same stand.

At the close of school in June, 17 students had expressed an interest in taking the course. But, since it was dropped, all but four of those students began other courses.

Both Marshall and Boisenau said they do believe Roy is due an apology, because of the new information given to board members in executive session.

However, the school board felt the course should be offered to the four students who are still able to take it and any other students who were interested and eligible to take it.

Both Marshall and Boisenau said they do believe Roy is due an apology, because of the new information given to board members in executive session.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The 4-0 Kentucky Wildcats maintained their hold on the No. 1 spot in the United Press International Board of Coaches' poll, but North Carolina, a close second last week, slipped all the way to fifth on the basis of the Tar Heels' startling 78-75 upset loss to William and Mary Dec. 5.

In its place, the 6-0 Notre Dame Fighting Irish, who defeated UCLA in Friday's Payton for the second straight year Saturday, 69-46, moved up from third while UCLA slipped to sixth from last week's No. 5 spot.

Marquette, 4-0, also moved up a notch to No. 3 from fourth.

Arkansas, 6-0, moved into the No. 5 spot while Indiana State moved up to seventh, switching with Cincinnati, which dropped to eighth.

Louisville, rated 18th last week, burst into the top ten by downing the No. 11 spot to No. 10.

St. John's slipped one notch from 18th to 19, while New Mexico, which lost to Southern Cal. 23-0, dropped out of the top 20 to be replaced by Virginia.

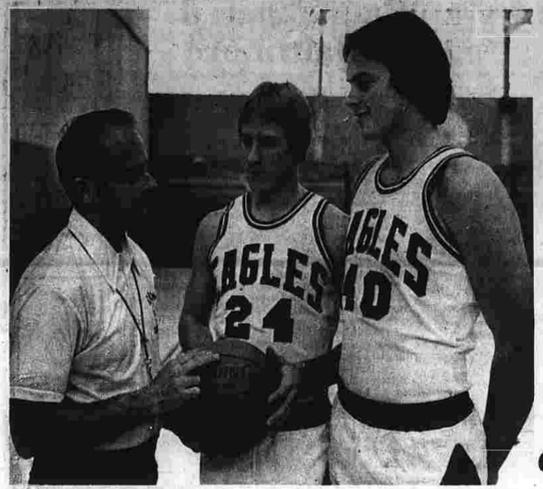

San Francisco, which remained undefeated at 4-0 but had a rough time showing unranked California-Santa Barbara in overtime Saturday, dropped out of the top ten to the No. 11 spot.

Holy Cross, which defeated Iowa and Yale, moved up from 18th to 21th; Providence moved from 7th to 13th by defeating Wisconsin and Assumption, and Michigan, now 4-1, dropped from the No. 11 spot to No. 14.

Teams which were shuffled back two spots included No. 15 Utah (3-1); No. 16 Purdue (4-1); No. 17 Kansas (5-1) and No. 18 Maryland (5-1).

St. John's slipped one notch from 18th to 19, while New Mexico, which lost to Southern Cal. 23-0, dropped out of the top 20 to be replaced by Virginia.

Others receiving votes were Texas Tech, let's bet Arizona, Texas A&M and Kansas State.

Sports Night Friday

First sports night in Manchester in several years featuring men on major league parrots comes up Friday night at Manchester Community College.

Speakers will be two Nutmeg State prospects, catcher Johnny Ellis of the Texas Rangers and Coach Billy Gardner of the Montreal Expos.

It will be a money raising venture. Pat Mistretta reports, with proceeds earmarked to help cover the Community College baseball team's spring southern trip in March.

Gardner, who has spent 32 years in pro baseball as a player, manager and coach, has a world of stories to relate. He's quite an interesting guy who was never a star player but worked hard and blessed with versatility managed to play a dozen years with five teams, including the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox.

Ellis, coming on the comeback trail after a double break in his leg last season, was an All-State selection in both football and baseball at New London High and was with the New York Yankees and Cleveland before winding up in Texas.

Major league sports figures have always added much to past programs staged here and there is every reason to believe Friday night's will be along the same high lines.

End of the line

Danny Buggs, now a starting wide receiver with the Washington Redskins in the NFL, is a one-time dishwasher in a pizza parlor in Georgia. A third round draft pick of the New York Giants, Buggs was picked up on waivers by Coach George Allen and fit perfectly into the Redskins picture... Not only were the games close in the annual Trinity College-University of Hartford Basketball Invitational Tournament last weekend but attendance was excellent, a good indication that the event which also involved Wesleyan and Central Connecticut State College had caught the eye of John Public... Former UConn hoop coach Dee Rowe will be a gold key recipient along with Frank Cristodi and Porky Vieira at the Jan. 19 Gold Key Dinner in Hartford... Schoolboy basketball gets off the mark tonight on a full scale with all three local schools in action, Manchester High, East Catholic and Cheney Tech.

Notes of the cuff

Complicated? Not really is the situation caused by New England's win over Miami and Detroit's stunning upset over Baltimore in the AFC East race. The team with the best percentage in its division wins a berth into the playoffs. If Baltimore and New England each win this weekend, the Colts are in and the Patriots are out as the former will have won one more game over AFC East rivals. Complacency are extended to the family of Frank Kinel Sr. who died Sunday. His two sons, Frank and Gary followed in his footsteps as first class baseball players. The former is the current

Intelligent Man

CINCINNATI (UPI) - University of Cincinnati basketball coach Gale Catlett says Adolph Rupp was the type of person who would have made it to the top of a company like General Motors had he chosen business instead of basketball as a career.

"He was a very intelligent man, very well-read," said Catlett, a former assistant under Rupp at the University of Kentucky. "He read the front page, the editorial page, the stock market."

NEW YORK (UPI) - Time was, not so long ago, when the Boston Celtics never looked back. Their whole game was to keep running straight ahead for the easy layup.

But as they prepare for tonight's game in Hartford, Conn., against the visiting New Jersey Nets, a number of the Celtics are hearing footsteps.

"Part of our problem is the insecurity of some of our players, worrying about being traded," said Coach Tom Heinsohn Monday in discussing the Celtics' 8-16 start this season.

"I don't help their performance when they are constantly thinking about that," Heinsohn said. "You can't have a guy looking over his shoulder all the time."

Some of the trade talk has been generated by the fans and the media but the subject also has been heard around the Celtics' offices. Boston General Manager Red Auerbach, while saying wholesale trades hurt a team in the long run, has been listening more often and more intently to trade offers this season as the Celtics have gotten out to their worst start ever.

Schoolboy hoopsters open season tonight

Another opening, another show.

That's what it'll be for the three local schoolboy basketball outfits as each taps off its 1977-78 campaign tonight.

Manchester High hits the road as it travels to East Hartford to combat Penney High in a clash which pits two of the three teams which shared last year's CCLL championship.

East Catholic, with a cast of new characters, is home to non-conference foe St. Bernard, while Cheney Tech also debuts at home against Lyman Memorial. Varsity action in the trio is slated for 7:45.

Washington fined $10,000 and suspended for 60 days

NEW YORK (UPI) - NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien levied one of the stiffest penalties in sports history Monday, fining Kermil Washington $10,000 and suspending Los Angeles Lakers' forward for at least 60 days for punching Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich last week.

The suspension is the longest ever in NBA history and the fine is the maximum permissible under league rules. Washington may apply for readmission at the end of the 60-day period but the suspension could be extended for the rest of the season.

The action continued the strict policy against violence set this year by O'Brien, who earlier in the season fined Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, also of Los Angeles, $5,000 for punching Milwaukee Bucks' rookie Kent Benson.

"There must be some way I can take this to court," Washington said when informed of the fine. "I've talked to other people I understand Rudy wasn't going to fight. He's never even been in a fight. It was an honest, unfortunate mistake."

Holy Cross five No. 1

BOSTON (UPI) - Holy Cross has beaten weekly battle for poll points but the Friars could get their chance to make up the difference this weekend on the basketball court.

Both Holy Cross and Providence are nationally ranked and both are heading into the Industrial Classic Friday and Saturday night at the Providence Civic Center. But the region's 16 Division I coaches rated Holy Cross eight points better than Providence.

The Crusaders received 13 first-place votes and a total of 76 points. Providence collected the other four first-place ballots and a total of 68 points.

With no head-to-head games scheduled this season, Providence and Holy Cross get their only chance to meet if both reach the Saturday finals of the Industrial Classic. The Crusaders play Brown and the Friars meet Jacksonville in the Friday night opener.

Massachusetts stayed comfortably in third place, where it resided all last season. The Minutemen, 4-4 after knocking off Vermont Saturday, garnered 43 points.

Despite a loss last week to Boston College, Fairfield remained in fourth place with 18 points. Rhode Island, 5-2 after wins at LaSalle and at St. Joseph's, held fifth place with 16 points.

Vermont was sixth with seven points while Boston College and Connecticut were tied for seventh with six points.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with a first-place vote worth five points.

College basketball

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Kentucky Wildcats played under a special burden Monday night, and they emerged like the top-ranked team they are.

"We certainly did not want to lose this game," said Coach Joe Hall after the Wildcats topped South Carolina 84-65 in their first game since the death of Hall's predecessor, Adolph Rupp.

Rick Robey scored 19 points and keyed a scoring spurt midway through the second half before a capacity crowd in the arena that bears the name of Rupp, Kentucky's prime basketball mover.

"We talked about it before the game," said Hall.

"Although none of us actually played for him, we all knew what he meant to the program," Robey said.

South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire admitted the timing of the game did not work in his club's favor, but added that his team stuck to its "New York" style of play, it might have won.

Offensive showing in Cowboy victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Forget the score. Tom Landry got what he wanted.

The Dallas coach was a little concerned about his team's offense, which generated only 30 points the last two weeks in victories over Washington and Philadelphia.

The Dallas coach was a little concerned about his team's offense, which generated only 30 points the last two weeks in victories over Washington and Philadelphia.

So when the playoff-bound Cowboys came out to play Monday night against the San Francisco 49ers, Landry was hoping for an offensive show.

He got it, and then some, as Roger Staubach completed 14 passes for 220 yards and three touchdowns in a wild 42-35 victory over San Francisco.

White Staubach was having his best game of the season, so was Jim Plunkett for the 49ers. Between them, the two veteran quarterbacks threw seven, count them, seven touchdown passes in what amounted to a no-defense game.

"If someone would have said there would be 77 points scored in this game," said 49er Coach Ken Meyer, "I wouldn't have believed him. I don't think anyone would have, considering these were two pretty good defensive teams."

Landry wasn't upset his team gave up 35 points. He was tickled to death, though, with the 42 the Cowboys scored.

"Our offense was excellent," he said. "It's the best offense we've had in some time. Of course, the defense wasn't too good, but I'm not upset."

The Cowboys locked up the NFC East title and the home field edge in the first round of the NFC playoffs by beating the Eagles a week ago. The victory over San Francisco gave them the home field edge for the NFC championship game as well, should the club get that far.

Of course, the only thing on the Cowboys' mind these days is the playoffs, even though they have one more regular-season game left to play — Sunday at home against the AFC West champion Denver Broncos, the team they could possibly meet again later in the Super Bowl.

"We wanted to get some momentum going for the playoffs," said Landry. "This game (against San Francisco) helps. I'm pleased more than I can say because we scored 42 points against a pretty good defensive team."

Landry did not know it for a fact but the 42 points was the most scored against the 49ers since the middle of the 1969 season, a span covering 121 Ray. Staubach threw scoring passes of 36 yards to Preston Pearson, 20 to Tony Dorsett and 22 to Butch Johnson, while Plunkett got touchdowns on throws of 10 to Ken Harrison, 27 to Gene Washington, 1 to Delvin Williams and 41 to Paul Seal.

That may be an exaggeration, but it was a tough game against the 49ers who had a 2-4 lead to Minnesota and lost 28-27. The week before, the 49ers struggled to beat New Orleans following a ragged 23-10 loss to the NFC West champion Los Angeles Rams.

No matter, because Meyer wasn't upset his team gave up 35 points. He was tickled to death, though, with the 42 the Cowboys scored.

"Our offense was excellent," he said. "It's the best offense we've had in some time. Of course, the defense wasn't too good, but I'm not upset."

Lamney, who scores two goals to lead the Canadiens to a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Barons in game interrupted more than 15 minutes during the second period by a bench-clearing brawl.

The light started when Barons' defenseman Bob Stewart checked the Canadiens' Mario Tremblay into the boards.

"Montreal was out to let Stewart know he couldn't do that," said Cleveland Coach Jack Evans. "They were out to let us know not to touch their little guys. But I thought our guys handled themselves very well."

"It could have been prevented if they had called a penalty on Cleveland," said Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman.

The free-for-all ended with four players being penalized 12 minutes. Gilles Lupin, who squared off with Cleveland's Fred Ahern, was penalized 32 minutes while Ahern drew a 30-minute penalty. Both players had requested a heart attack but were assessed 25-minute penalties.

The Canadiens had taken a 3-0 lead on goals by Pierre Mondou, Lemaire and Tremblay before Dennis Maruk scored Cleveland's lone goal at 12:48 of the second period.

The goal, Maruk's 16th of the season, came just 29 seconds after Cleveland regained full strength following a 71-second, two-man advantage held by the Canadiens.

The light followed and Montreal put the game away with a goal by Bob Gately at 10:58 of the second period. Lemaire scored his second goal early in the final period.

The Barons are winless in their last five games.

Clifford, Walsh All-HCC picks

Two East Hartford performers, sophomore John Clifford and senior Rick Walsh, were named to the All-Hartford County Conference team in cross country.

Xavier placed three third-place, Northwest Catholic and St. Paul two each and South Catholic one on the all-conference squad.

Ex-ump better

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Former National League umpire Chris Pelekas, felled by a heart attack three weeks ago, is making a line recovery. It was announced Monday, and expects to return to work for the San Jose Missions of the Pacific Coast League soon.

Mission publicist James Gama disclosed Pelekas' illness. The former umpire had requested his condition be kept private until doctors made a further determination.

Rupp survives

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Services for Adolph Rupp, the University of Kentucky basketball coach who died last week, will be held in Lexington Tuesday.

Group plans big meeting

The East Hartford Citizen Action Group (EHCAG) is making plans to hold a town meeting this winter. Plans so far are to hold the meeting at the St. Rose School on Church Street on Sunday, Feb. 12 beginning at 1:30 p.m. Leaders of the town's government will be invited to take part in workshops. Each workshop will be run by one of the seven neighborhood associations which make up EHCAG. A planning committee of members of each association met Monday night at the Raymond Library to begin planning for the town meeting. The Rev. Alphonse Lablancie, a leader in the South End Association, suggested the leaders invited should be those who might best be able to help EHCAG people solve their problems. For example, he suggested an association invite James Fitzgerald, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee. Other leaders suggested for the workshops included: Esther Clarke, minority leader of the Town Council; George Dagon, council chairman; Mayor Richard Blackstone; and Henry Genga, council majority leader.

Others who may be invited include Police Chief Clarence Drum, councilman James Cordier and members of the Board of Education. The Burside Center Association will focus mainly on crime and vandalism, said association members present Monday who were Eileen, Irene Manupelli and James Manupelli. The Prospect-Center School group may focus on state highway traffic.

Arthur Mulligan, director of Public Works, suggested residents not shovel out the bottoms of their driveways until after his plowing crews are done. This will save the resident repeated shoveling efforts. He also warned residents there is a fine for dumping snow on town streets.

Firemen promoted

East Hartford Fire Chief Michael Fitzgerald announced his department has promoted two firefighters. Peter Callahan, 42, was promoted from assistant master mechanic to master mechanic. Kenneth Slocum, 41, was promoted from Callahan's temporary assistant to regular assistant mechanic. The promotions followed the process of applications and exams begun with the retirement earlier this year of Deputy Chief Edward Heimer. Callahan has been with the department almost 21 years. He was Heimer's assistant mechanic since 1968. Callahan and his wife, Barbara, have eight children named Christine, Angela, Kenneth, Gloria, Peter, Chris, Margaret Mary, and Kevin. He is the son of John Callahan who was a sergeant on the East Hartford police department until his retirement a few years ago. Slocum has been with the department 14 years as of Dec. 5. He had been a mechanic before joining the force and had held the status of driver before becoming temporary assistant mechanic Feb. 14 for this year.

Workshop airs fund use ideas

Ideas for spending an expected $50,000 in federal funds came out of Monday night's workshop held at the Senior Citizen's Center at McAuliffe Park. Mrs. Doris Sussman of the League of Women Voters suggested some of the funds could be used to end the bottleneck at the entrance to Martin Park off Burnside Avenue. Cars must go in the same way they came out. Traffic jams are common on summer nights even without special functions in the park, she said. Mayor Richard Blackstone told her he liked the idea but asked her "to wait a few years." The town runs a landfill area just east of the incinerator. The mayor said he would not want to have the public driving through there often. But the town will someday switch from using the incinerator to get rid of solid waste to a regional method. The landfill area could then be used for something else and a road could run through. He said the town could build a bridge over the Hockanum River from Martin Park to land the town park area. Traffic could then leave the park area over the bridge to Hillside Street on Roberts Street. Youth centers Mary Goodwin, president of the league, suggested the money might set up and maintain youth centers in town. She pointed out the need for such a center at the Hockanum Village housing project off Brewer Street. The mayor said the town had set up youth centers at the O'Brien and Goodwin Schools. The O'Brien center was closed because few youths attended. The Goodwin center was moved to Penney High School where there are more facilities but attendance is still light, he said. About the Hockanum Village center to be put in a rebuilt Community Hall there, the mayor said, "How often should one rebuild a building?" He noted the hall at Hockanum Village has been destroyed three times by vandals since it was built over 20 years ago. Boards now cover over its broken windows. Only a few tables and chairs remain in its gutted interior. League members also suggested: Support repair programs for existing one-, two-, three- and four-family homes in town and better enforce housing codes. Help the East Hartford Housing Authority repair and improve its 879 units of elderly and low and moderate income housing. Provide rent subsidies to people hard pressed to meet rent payments. Study the need for day care centers. Set up a community activity program for the handicapped. Hire a professional staff to work with the Human Rights Commission and start the Urban League's fair housing program. Build more bus shelters.

Daughter still away

Mrs. Roberta Griffin of East Hartford said this week she is afraid she will spend her second Christmas without her daughter Heidi, 5. Her ex-husband, John, took Heidi with him to California where they lived with his brother, Mrs. Griffin went to California last winter to regain custody of Heidi and failed in the courts there. "My life isn't going to be complete until I have Heidi," said Mrs. Griffin. She and her second daughter, Jessica, three months, now live at 100 Columbus St. here. "Many, many other mothers have my problem," she said. She said she will speak to anyone concerned about the problem if they contact her at her home.

Refuse collectors plea

Arthur J. Mulligan, director of the Public Works Department, made a plea for his refuse collecting crews. He asked residents to shovel out an area for rubbish barrels at the edges of the street or leave the barrels in the driveway. Barrels and refuse bags put high on snow drifts or behind the snow on sidewalks subjects the crews to extra hazards. The men risk breaking their backs to reach some refuse. Mulligan also asked that residents put their refuse out before 7 a.m. on the day of collection instead of the day before. A fresh snowfall during the night could lead to their being plowed in.
