Egypt says Israel to leave the Sinai

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Israel and Egypt reached virtual agreement at their Christmas summit on an Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai but did not announce it because they could not resolve the Palestinian issue, Egyptian officials said today.

The officials said President Anwar Sadat did not wait to show agreement with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin on Sinai because it would appear as if Israel and Egypt made a bilateral settlement and ignored the Palestinians. But the two leaders agreed to keep on talking.

Sadat must have something to show to the Arabs, particularly Jordan and Syria, that he was able to win concessions from Israel regarding the occupied West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip, the officials said. Egypt wants a Palestinian state in those areas.

In Damascus, Syria said the Christmas summit with Begin was a "total failure" and called on Sadat to step down from power.

The government-controlled Damascus daily Tishrin said, "Begin did not make any concessions to Sadat that approached Sadat's visit to Israel."

In Jerusalem, Begin briefed his cabinet and the U.S. ambassador on his talks with Sadat and prepared for a tough debate in parliament on the latest moves toward peace.

"The discussions in Ismailia were constructive," Ambassador Samuel Lewis said after his meeting with Begin at the premier's office.

In Cairo U.S. Ambassador Hermann F. Eilts met with Sadat, who returned from the Suez Canal city of Ismailia where the summit was held, for a briefing on the talks with the Israelis.

The head of the U.S. delegation to the recessed Cairo Peace Conference, Alfred Atherton, will go directly from Egypt to Warsaw to meet with President Carter about the Middle East peace moves. Poland will be Carter's first stop on his tour.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt arrived in Cairo to demonstrate his country's support for Sadat's peace moves.

Begin and Sadat ended two days of talks in Ismailia Monday with a joint news conference acknowledging that crucial differences remained between them, primarily on whether to establish a Palestinian state on lands now occupied by Israel.

Begin said on his return to Israel that "additional momentum" had been given to the establishment of Middle East peace.

But Sadat said he was not satisfied with Israel's response to his breakthrough journey to Jerusalem five weeks ago.

"There was a disagreement in viewpoints," Sadat said at the news conference. "Mr. Begin may consider that, from his own viewpoint, he made concessions. But in my view, he has not."

And Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, taking a far less optimistic view than Begin, said he was "very worried" by the wide gaps that developed at the summit.

"The question is how to avoid running around or hitting a dead end," Dayan said on the flight home from Cairo.

In Warner Robins, Ga., President Carter said Begin called him Monday to report that his talks with Sadat were "very successful." Carter said the United States would do "all we can" to keep the peace momentum going.

Sadat and Begin had hoped to announce an agreement on the "principles of peace" during their summit in the Suez Canal city of Ismailia, near the Egyptian president's rest home.

But Egyptian officials said Sadat refused to announce a surprise Israeli offer for total withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula, because he thought it dodged the sharp differences that remained on wider issues in a Middle East settlement.

Key among these was a Begin rejection of Sadat's demand for establishment of a Palestinian state, the officials said. They said Begin's Sinai offer also masked refusal of an Egyptian call for Israel to withdraw from other captured Arab territory as well.

The two leaders did agree to establish two cabinet-level committees to discuss the military and political aspects of a peace settlement. The committees will meet Jan. 15, one in Israel and the other in Egypt.

Sadat and Begin also agreed to upgrade the Israeli-Egyptian conference in Cairo to the ministerial level. The conference has taken a back-seat role to the talks between the two leaders.

Egypt's chief delegate to the Cairo talks said it was time for heightened American involvement in the peace negotiations.

"In the near future we must bring in the United States more and more so that it can undertake its mediation between the two sides," Esmat Abdel Meguid said.

Begin, at the joint news conference, also alluded to the importance of Washington, which has been the chief mediator in the 29-year-old Middle East conflict since the early '70s.

"There is hope that with God's help and that of our friends, President Sadat and I will establish peace," Begin said in what Israeli sources saw as a call for widened U.S. involvement.

Copter crashes into apartments

QUINCY, Mass. (UPI) — The traffic-scouting helicopter of a Boston radio station crashed into an apartment house as the morning highway crush began early today, killing the pilot and a reporter, police said.

Four residents of the three-story apartment building were injured in the three-alarm that fire followed the crash.

Police said pilot Richard "Red" Banks, 50, and newsman Chip Whitmore, 29, of station WEEI were trapped in the downed aircraft. Whitmore was aboard substituting for the vacationing regular traffic reporter.

A newsman for the all-news station said two bodies were recovered from the crash debris. "They were trapped inside the wreckage," a Quincy police spokesman said.

The helicopter apparently was beginning a turn to try an emergency landing when it went into a nose dive and spiral and hit the building at 7:32 a.m. Part of the bubble cockpit sheered off and one rotor blade came to rest sticking out of an apartment window, according to eyewitnesses.

The last word from the aircraft was that the pilot was going to try an emergency landing.

The radio station said Whitmore was substituting today for vacationing regular traffic reporter Kevin O'Keefe.

Many of the residents at the apartment house at 71-A Station St. in West Quincy rushed outdoors in their nightclothes. Flames were rising from the roof as the first of some 30 fire trucks arrived at the scene.

"People were either sleeping or just getting up when the thing struck," a fire department spokesman said.

Linda Crowley, who lives in a basement apartment, said the shock of the crash made her think it was an earthquake.

Job figures not firm for Penney building

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

State and local officials both have said that the proposed J.C. Penney Co. development in Manchester will be a boost to the region's lagging construction industry, but the exact number of construction jobs is not yet known.

J.C. Penney announced last week that despite some pending legal actions that it plans to purchase property in Manchester for a proposed two-million square foot catalog distribution center. The center would be the major building in the town's proposed 393-acre industrial park.

The J.C. Penney building would be the largest ever built in Manchester and would be one of the largest single-story structures in New England.

A report prepared last year by the firm said that the project would generate 1,600 construction jobs. This figure, however, is "a bit too high," Paul Slusarev, the project manager, said today. He does not yet have an estimate on the number of construction projects that would be generated by the development.

Slusarev said that he is aiming to begin construction by March 1, although several steps, including the purchase of land, still have to take place.

He expects to send bids out for the first part of construction by mid-January.

Bid documents will be sent only to those firms that have applied to J.C. Penney and have met the company's requirements for sub-contractors.

A total of 23 separate contracts will be bid for the project, he said. Thus, even though the construction may not result in 1,600 jobs, it still will have a substantial impact on the industry.

The report prepared by the firm includes charts prepared by the town on such topics as Grand List growth and projected population growth. Town Manager Robert Weiss, who has a copy of the report, said, "We do this sort of thing—usually to a lesser extent—for any industrial prospect."

Along with the prediction of 1,600 construction jobs, the report also said that the center would produce 2,100 full-time jobs, 500 seasonal jobs and 3,900 indirect jobs.

Weiss said that he is not sure how the last figure is obtained or is measurable, but he feels it might be a high estimate. Indirect jobs would be those created in other areas because of the increase in the employment level.

The report also said that the firm predicts local expenditures related to the center to reach $23 million. These would be for such items as utilities, maintenance and security.

Stationery and related items, for instance, is one category that alone will cost the firm $2 million, according to the projections.

Grant will expand Lutz

The Hartford Foundation for Public Giving has made a grant of $28,435 to the Lutz Junior Museum of Manchester to expand program and staff.

The grant, payable over the next three years, will allow the 24-year-old museum to hire Susan Craig full time to help maintain and update some 500 educational display kits loaned to schools and to teach enrichment classes in nature studies and science. The foundation's grant will also provide materials for scientific kits.

Ms. Craig, who has served the museum on a part-time basis since 1975, is the former director of the Barnes Nature Center in Bristol. She holds degrees in zoology and biology with an emphasis in ecology from the University of Connecticut.

Established in 1953 through the efforts and vision of Miss Hazel Lutz, a Manchester art teacher, the museum today attracts about 25,000 children and adults annually as visitors or as participants in its classes in the old Cheney School on Cedar Street or to its 53-acre Oak Grove Nature Center. A trail guide to the center will also be developed under the grant by Ms.

Craig. The teaching kits are loaned to elementary school systems including Bolton, East Hartford, Enfield, Glastonbury, Manchester, South Windsor and West Hartford, among others.

This is the first time the museum has applied for assistance from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving, which is a pooling of gifts and bequests received from individuals for the purpose of meeting the medical, educational, cultural, civic and social welfare needs of the people of this area.

Negro plans to seek Enderlin's MHA post

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Town Treasurer Roger Negro said today that he plans to apply for the executive director position of the Manchester Housing Authority.

The present director, Leon Enderlin, announced last week that he plans to resign March 31. Enderlin has served in the position since it was created in 1962. He is resigning for health reasons, he said.

Applications for the position will be accepted after Feb. 1, Pascal Mastrangelo, chairman of the Housing Authority, said. This will provide two full months for screening and interviewing candidates.

Mastrangelo said that he has received four inquiries about the and also knows of two other persons who are interested.

The final appointment will be made by the five-member Housing Authority, Mastrangelo said.

Authority members are planning to call a special meeting to set up qualifications for the post. Mastrangelo said that the members will talk with the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development about the requirements of filling such a position.

Negro was re-elected town treasurer in the Nov. 8 election. He confirmed this morning that he is interested in the executive director's position and will apply.

If Negro were to get the job, he would have to step down from the treasurer's post, which is a part-time job.

Such a vacancy in the treasurer's office would be filled by a reappointment made by the Board of Directors, Town Clerk Edward Tomkiele said.

Another matter is that Negro's wife, Marci, is a member of the Housing Authority. Attorney Dominic Squatrito, counsel for the authority, could not be reached for comment this morning on what procedures would have to be followed if Negro is appointed to the position.

Mrs. Negro undoubtedly would have to abstain from the selection process and also might have to resign from the authority if her husband is selected.

Today's news summary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Detectives have all but ruled out the murder of Paula Glen Ward, 18, and Carolyn Tanya Williams, 21, of Christmas Eve were the work of the "Hillside Strangler."

Two men, Thomas Davis, 24, and Stephen d'Orsey Devezin, 40, were being held on suspicion of murder in the deaths. Police said Miss Ward's body, found on a hillside in the same area in which the Hillside Strangler's victims have been found, may have been put there to confuse the police department.

BREWER, Maine (UPI) — In answer to a call about 7 p.m., Sunday reporting a man with a rifle outside his home, three policemen were sent to try to talk the man into surrendering the rifle and a pistol.

They were met with gunfire and in the hour-long shootout that followed, the man Forrest Peavey, 38, was killed and one of the policemen was shot in the shoulder.

After the police got inside the house they discovered booby traps at all the windows and doors, except the door through which Peavey, described as a recluse, was shooting.

Bomb squad experts were called in Monday to dismantle the traps, designed to fire shotgun shells.

SALEM, Mass. (UPI) — Mrs. Esther Piotrowicz, 55, who suffers from a degenerative disease of the nervous system and weighs only 75 pounds was connected to a respirator 10 days ago after suffering cardiac arrest at Salem Hospital.

The fatally ill woman has been in a coma for nearly two years and her husband was given permission by the Probate Court to ask doctors to disconnect the equipment.

The system, was disconnected at 9 a.m., Monday and a hospital spokeswoman 15 hours later, said, "She is still the same. Her condition is stable."

HONG KONG (UPI) — While Sen. Edward Kennedy attended a banquet in his honor Monday night in Shanghai, China's top leaders were 700 miles to the north in Peking celebrating the late Communist Party's Chairman Mao Tse-tung's birthday.

Kennedy is in China for a 15-day stay, to explore the possibilities for normalizing Sino-American diplomatic relations.

He is expected to meet Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and other top leaders when he goes to Peking, diplomatic sources said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, back in the White House after a family Christmas celebration in Plains, Ga., kept his schedule light today to work on speeches and news conferences planned for his overseas trip, which starts Thursday.

He will be interviewed at a nationally broadcast news conference on the eve of his departure.

The president also is expected to take a final look at the budget for fiscal year 1978, which goes to Congress next month.

Authorities said a small plane crash, a boating mishap, a fire and several auto accidents were responsible for the deaths of 11 persons in Connecticut over Christmas weekend.

Late Saturday night, Michael J. Fogarty, 21, of Burlington, was killed in a one-car mishap in his home town. Scott Slupka, 19, of Prospect, was killed early Saturday when his car ran out of control on an icy patch in Prospect and hit guardrails on both sides of the road.

Opinion

The farmer's demands

The long unhappy and suddenly militant American farmer is getting a lot of attention and even some sympathy where it should count most — in Washington.

The clackings of concern and sympathy go right up to President Carter himself, who acknowledges that recent economic conditions have "created real difficulties" for the farmers. And being a farm-boy himself, although not noticeably pressed economically, he's in a position of being able to say that he ought to know.

But whether the farmers can expect to get much more than headlines and sympathy out of their tractor processions and strike talk is debatable.

AS Agriculture Secretary Bergland says, he wishes the farmers well in their dramatized push for guaranteed farm prices, but doesn't think it's going to be effective.

Farm belt congressmen speak up for their constituents, but they are not the sizable and cohesive Washington force they once were. The realistic among them, which means most of them, admit they cannot legislate what the militant farmers are asking — 100 percent of parity, in effect a federal guarantee that no matter what the economic conditions at the time of sale the farmer will receive a price for his produce equal to the cost of production plus a profit.

The reason is in the numbers. The cost of full parity could reach $20 billion in direct government payments, possibly more as translated into higher prices to consumers. Nonfarm legislators won't buy it. And there are more nonfarm than farm congressmen, and they represent many more American voters.

The farmers' economic impact is likely to be of even less immediate consequence than the political. They have chosen to act between harvest and planting seasons, barring any immediate wide-scale refusal to produce or deliver foodstuffs, and at a time when food stocks are high. Wheat presently in storage is estimated at a 170-year domestic supply. It would be some time before urban consumers felt the effects of any action by the farmers more serious than demonstrations.

While the administration is officially sympathetic to the farmers' plight, its own farm program falls considerably short of matching their demands. It wants to manage the surplus production acreage from production and a grain-reserve program, the latest version of the post-Depression ever-normal granaries. It would guarantee the return of the cost of farm production, but not the profit of full parity.

In a way the American farmer is the victim of his own success. We well know his phenomenal productivity on a world scale. Over the years, each American farmer has produced the food for more and more consumers.

But that changing ratio has another aspect. Fewer and fewer farmers are necessary to produce the necessary food supply. As a consequence, the food producers, while still as vital to the American as to any other economy and society, have carried progressive less numerical weight and consequently political weight.

Parity is figured on a complicated formula based on farm costs and prices in the prosperous 1910-14 years. But much, in addition to relative farm prosperity, has changed since then. In the second decade of the century, farmers and their families accounted for more than 30 percent of the total population. Today, they are less than 5 percent and still declining.

The farmers are not going to be ignored. But what eventuates from attention to their problems is going to be something other than at least the militants are demanding. It's in the numbers.

Christmas unconstitutional?

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON — If I ever met the guy who sent the "Christmas" card, I had fortunately forgotten him. The card shows a leering Santa Claus peering down a female décolletage.

Bad taste, of course. But the relevant question is why the guy bothered to send out "Christmas" greetings. Maybe he did so because he got a few extra days off from bureaucratic cob- byhole and wanted to celebrate sleeping late.

Christmas is funny these days. But not ho-ho-ho funny. For some, Dec. 25 might as well be Arbor Day. The coffee table is piled high with "Christmas" cards imprinted with bird's-eye views of New York City, Astabula, Miami, and London. Some have pictures of dogs, cats, mice and (1) a rhinoceros.

Thanks Auster

To the editor:
I would like to thank Len Auster for his excellent coverage of my girls' cross country team all season long. I have always found his articles to tell the way it is. For example last year when we had a 1-7 record we were given a minimal coverage which at that time I was not very happy with. But Len took the time to explain reasons why to me. This year the girls racked up a 12-2 record and received their just coverage from Len.

Len learned quite a bit about girls' cross country from us and we found out that he was not as close-minded as many would contend he was.

I would also like to thank for their support all season long, besides Len, the school administration, parents of the runners, students, and teachers. The key to our success was that these groups were rallying together behind us, not in different directions, and a group of girls that were fantastic to work with and also pulling together as a team at all times.

Thought

What 'ja get for Christmas?
The presents have all been unwrapped. The floor is a mess with hastily torn pieces of wrapping paper. The house has probably been turned upside down, and mother has been too tired, the day after, to get to the back-breaking task.

But the children are all out on the sledding slopes trying out the new sleds. "What 'ja get for Christmas?" says one child to another.

If you feel a kind of post-Christmas let down, don't fear. It is quite normal. Over the last few weeks our emotions have been building up to a fever pitch: gifts have to be gotten, plans have to be made, meals planned, the home ready for the invasion of guests and family. Madison Avenue and television have really wound up like the child's toy.

What did you receive this Christmas aside from the stockings, neckties and flannel pajamas... and maybe a hangover?

Maybe I am not a Supreme Court justice. I can't figure out how Christmas Day, as a piece of history, can be observed without noting its religious origin. Even if the role of "a church or a combination of churches" may not even be implied, the fact remains that Dec. 25 does NOT honor an obscure Jewish carpenter.

That being the indisputable case, one wonders why the American Civil Liberties union does not forthwith go into court and proclaim that Christmas Day is unconstitutional because Jesus "established a religion" called Christianity.

Reflections

Hal Turkington
Managing Editor

Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1965:
If you were a Kiwanian, you listened to the Round Table Singers of Manchester High School entertain you at your regular Tuesday noon meeting at Manchester Country Club.

If you were a Rotarian, you sang some Christmas songs during your regular Tuesday evening meeting at Manchester Country Club; and Paul Marie accompanied you on the piano.

Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1965:
Kiwanians were told their next meeting would be at the Howard Johnson Restaurant on Tolland Turnpike; Rotarians were going next week to Flano's, and later meetings to Cavo's.

Manchester Country Club was ruined by a fire that night.

We had staffers on the scene that night; Reggie Pinto was there with his camera; Phil Fiske heard the alarm and was on his way, and he packed a camera in his car.

One of us on the staff — and we won't mention names — heard the alarm near midnight, decided to wait awhile because it could be another false alarm from that prominently placed alarm box, and then promptly fell back to sleep. The recall sounded much, much later; it was no false alarm.

The alarm sounded at 11:57 p.m. and it was believed that the fire started in the bar on the lower level. A passing motorist pulled the box alarm.

By the time firemen got to the scene, the building was "fully involved," said the fire chief. It took more than two hours to get the fire under control, but there wasn't much left to salvage.

The town and the country club were then in negotiations about a lease; the club wanted to expand and was seeking a long-term lease in order to get a bank loan for the work proposed.

A lease was a major political battle back in those days; in fact, it was a good reason why today there is an Ellington Ridge Country Club.

Nader should know better

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — In what can be described only as an act of petty harassment, Ralph Nader has launched a personal investigation of a European trip taken last month by Joan Claybrook, administrator of the federal auto safety agency.

That previously unpublished move is the latest development in Nader's month-long personal vendetta against Claybrook, among his most trusted aides and closest friends before she accepted a job offered by the Carter administration.

In a formal request filed under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act, Nader is pressing for disclosure of every imaginable detail of Claybrook's government-sponsored November 4-20 trip to Great Britain, Sweden, France, Germany and Italy.

Determined to embarrass Claybrook into resigning from her post as head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), Nader presumably hopes to portray her trip as a junket financed by American taxpayers and European automakers, whose United States exports she regulates.

He is demanding from NHTSA Claybrook's detailed itinerary, a list of everyone she met on the tour, names of all members of her traveling party and a full description of any lunches, dinners or gratuities accepted from her hosts.

But Claybrook was so scrupulous about avoiding even the appearance of impropriety that she personally refused to her hosts the cost of every meal provided by automakers while she toured their plants.

When Fiat, Italy's largest manufacturer, offered a corporate plane to fly Claybrook and her aides to its elaborate crash-testing facility in Torino, she declined in favor of an overnight train trip.

The tenor of Nader's request suggests he suspects Claybrook devoted too much attention to auto producers and too little to European consumer and safety groups. In fact, much of the trip involved meetings with government traffic safety experts and inspection tours of their test facilities.

Nader's high-pressure campaign against Claybrook was launched in mid-November, when he sharply criticized her in his syndicated newspaper column. One week later, he stepped up the attack in an interview with the Washington Star.

And less than a week after the interview, Nader released to the news media an 11-page, single-spaced letter to Claybrook charging that she was "unwilling or unable to take command of your agency" and that the failure during her early months in office "etch a trail of averted or broken promises."

Carter to visit old ally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will visit one of the United States' oldest allies when he stops in France during his year-end overseas trip. His appearance coincides with greatly improved relations between the two nations.

Carter will spend the nights of Jan. 4 and 5 in Paris, and visit the Normandy beach where American troops went ashore on D-Day in 1944.

He will lay a wreath at the Arc de Triomphe Jan. 4, be the guest at a state dinner at Versailles Jan. 5 and meet with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing Jan. 4 and 5.

During the years of Charles de Gaulle's leadership, France staked out a path of independence from other western democracies and pulled its military forces out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Relations between de Gaulle and Lyndon B. Johnson, two men of a kind, were particularly strained.

That has changed. A high administration official said he expected that Carter and Giscard would discuss East-West relations, the French concept of detente, the strategic arms talks, U.S.-Soviet relations and "the so-called gray areas of weaponry."

The U.S. official said Giscard also has an interest in other issues, especially in Africa, where French influence was very strong in past decades, and in an international economic summit.

Carter pointed out in his last news conference that although France was not a member of NATO, it was "very supportive of the European defense effort."

French Prime Minister Raymond Barre visited Washington in September. Expressing views remarkably similar to Carter's own thoughts, he outlined France's views on the fundamental issues facing the world.

—A new economic order must be defined to take into account the aspirations of all nations.

—A policy of detente is more necessary in East-West relations than ever.

—The dangers of nuclear proliferation.

—The absurd, dangerous, overly wasteful, ruinous character of the unlimited accumulation of armaments.

In the past France has wanted to be able to sell atomic plants to other countries without international controls. France did sign to sell a reprocessing plant to Pakistan but if the plant is built it will be done so with international controls.

Asked whether France will continue to make such sales, the source said, "it is difficult to say... we want to keep our technology but we want to respond to Carter."

The French source pointed out that the United States sells more arms in Europe than France. He said that if it were possible to persuade other arms merchants to reduce sales — which Carter has made an objective of his foreign policy — "we would follow suit."

Carter told Giscard at London in May that he would want to visit France this year. It was believed important he do so well in advance of the French elections in March.

Power plants working to save small animals

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — One of the major problems of this energy-hungry age is to find ways to generate more and more electricity without doing irreparable damage to the environment.

At the Oak Ridge National Laboratory a device has just been developed which researchers hope will help find answers to at least a small portion of the problem — damage done to living organisms that are pumped through the cooling systems of electric generating plants.

Chief researcher for the project is Sam Suffern. The project is one of the concerns of Dave Reichle, assistant director of the lab's environmental sciences division, and Chuck Constant, manager of the cooling systems program.

Constant said the current assumption of engineers dealing with power plant cooling systems is that there is 100 percent mortality among tiny fish, eggs and zooplankton sucked through the systems.

"We know that some plants kill everything," Suffern said. "We also know that some are not so deadly. We want to find out why."

Within the past several weeks, a power plant cooling system simulator has been completed. This is a closed system in which all the factors involved in "entrainment" can be studied.

Entrainment means simply that water is pumped from a lake or stream into a power plant cooling system, carrying with it fish eggs, fish larvae, and plankton in its various forms.

This living material, which cannot be screened out of the water at the intake, travels through the pipes, the pump, the condenser tubes, and in some cases through cooling towers then back to the water source.

Emergency home sought for juvenile offenders

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

A new model program attempting to keep juvenile offenders out of institutions is in need of short-term emergency shelter care homes for the youth in a 14-town area surrounding Manchester.

The deinstitutionalization of Status Offenders (DSO) pilot program was established a year ago throughout the state, with Manchester as the center for a group of towns east of the Connecticut River.

The program in Manchester is called Project Open Door, with offices at 357 E. Center St.

The purpose of the program is to help the youths, who are mostly in the 14 to 15-year age group who have committed offenses which are considered criminal because of their age.

The most common status offenses are running away from home and truancy from school. The other two categories are incorrigible behavior and immoral conduct, although these are not so common.

At the core of the program, in its intent to return a youth to his community as soon as possible after being picked up for an offense, is the shelter home, according to Jean Zurbrigen, assistant director and educational coordinator for the program in Manchester.

She said she would like to develop a cadre of foster homes, at least one or two in each of the 14 towns, which would make a commitment to provide a maximum of 21 days of shelter for one of the youths.

Even if the federal funding for the program ends next July, Ms. Zurbrigen said the program would like to leave a legacy in the form of the shelter homes.

Ms. Zurbrigen plans to have a training program of four or five two-hour sessions for persons interested in providing the emergency care. She said she would bring in "seasonal foster parents" to share their feelings and problems that might be involved in taking on the responsibility.

Ms. Zurbrigen also said she hopes the training could alleviate some of the concerns that families might have about the youth.

Because of the short time span between the initial arrest and placement, the shelter homes need to be available on a moment's notice, Ms. Zurbrigen said.

Project Open Door has three weeks to plan a program for the youth once they have entered, which includes a series of diagnostic testing, sometimes a part-time job or other activities in which the youth may be interested.

The important thing is to get the youth reintegrated into his community as fast as possible, Ms. Zurbrigen said.

Since the project started in Manchester last March, 29 status offenders have entered the program here and most of them have remained in the program and had success in finding some new alternatives for their lives.

In the Manchester office, nearly 75 percent of the youthful offenders picked up are girls, Ms. Zurbrigen said. This is somewhat higher than the national average of 52 percent girls.

Ms. Zurbrigen is interested in starting the training program for interested foster families in January. Anyone interested should call her at the offices between 8:30 and 4:30 p.m. daily at 643-2595.

The processing for the juveniles begins once they are picked up and brought to the Hartford detention facilities on Washington Street. The youth is processed and the parents are called to the facilities. They can then choose the courts or the DSO program for their child. If they choose to enter the program, then no records of the offense will be kept.

A representative from the appropriate DSO office is then called and has two hours to arrive at the detention facility to pick up the youth.

The youth is then released either to go home with his parents, a relative or friend or to the NETWORK or temporary foster home if one is available. The last option is the

Court strikes down law on trash hauling permits

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional a new state law requiring trash hauling firms to get permits before they can take solid waste from one community and dump it in another.

The high court's ruling, released Monday night, upholds a lower court decision by Superior Court Judge John J. Bracken, who said the new law does not provide adequate guidelines on how municipalities are to issue the permits.

The town of New Milford, which had filed suit to prevent SCA Services of Connecticut from accepting garbage and trash from five neighboring communities. The commission said SCA had never obtained a permit to bring in outside trash.

SCA, which operates a solid waste disposal plant in New Milford, then went to Bracken asking that the commission's award of $9,838.37 to the Waterbury Teachers Association. The association had claimed the Waterbury Board of Education violated a union contract by not delivering and picking up mail and interschool materials from the school system's central office. The association said it was required to pay the expenses and wanted to be reimbursed by the school board.

An arbitrator called in to resolve the dispute ruled that the teachers' association was right and the school board had an obligation to deliver the supplies.

But later, neither side could agree on how much the teachers should be reimbursed.

Another arbitrator was summoned and he ruled the teachers' association was entitled to the $9,838.37. The school board objected and took the matter to Superior Court.

The Superior Court judges involved with the case declined to handle it and passed the matter on to the high court.

The Supreme Court ruled that both sides submitted to arbitration and the arbitrator's decision should be accepted.

The new law can be found in an intelligent principle for the (New Milford) commission to follow in granting or denying such a permit.

The Supreme Court decision will affect several other towns in Connecticut that are dumping grounds for garbage and rubbish from other communities. A private contractor in Colchester, for example, has been accepting trash from several adjacent towns, which has outraged some residents and local officials.

In another decision released Monday, the high court instructed the Superior Court to sanction an architect's award of $9,838.37 to the Waterbury Teachers Association. ## Pastor will speak at Tokyo seminary

"Ohayo" (good morning), "arigato" (thank you) and "sayonara" (goodbye) are just a few of the Japanese expressions the Rev. and Mrs. Norman Swensen of Manchester will have to learn before leaving for Japan in the spring.

The Rev. Mr. Swensen, pastor of Trinity Covenant Church, has been invited to speak at the commencement program this spring at the Covenant Seminary in Tokyo.

Arrangements for the minister's participation in the seminary's commencement was made by Professor Hiromu Shimizu, who is active in the Japanese Covenant Church and became well acquainted last year with the Swensens and members of Trinity Church while he and two of his daughters lived in Manchester during his sabbatical year. Shimizu is a professor in American literature at Nara University in Nara, Japan.

The Rev. and Mrs. Swensen will spend some time with the Shimizu family before visiting other Covenant churches in Japan, where the minister will conduct church-growth seminars, and his wife will observe the work of the Sunday Schools and Covenant Women's groups.

During their month in Japan, the couple plans to visit historical and cultural centers and to renew acquaintances with the families of two Covenant missionaries stationed there. Before returning home, they plan to visit Mt. Akagi Bible Camp where Professor Shimizu assists Covenant missionary Harry Engeman during summer vacations.

Fun-during activities are under way at Trinity Church to pay for the Swensens' trip.

The first project is a newspaper drive. Those interested in participating may leave tied or bagged bundles of papers at the church Wednesday. A truck will be in the rear parking lot of the church and boys will unload cars from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. More information may be obtained by calling the church office, 649-2655.

Police said the three, armed with a shotgun and a pistol, entered the bar after 11 p.m. and took $1,132 from the cash register and four patrons inside. Detectives were alerted soon after the trio escaped from the tavern and caught them as they sped off in a Cadillac. The suspects did not offer any resistance, police said.

Police said they believed Dow was involved with the escape from the Somers prison but they refused to elaborate.

Finley was serving a three-to-nine-year sentence for burglary, and Collins was serving a seven-to-15-year sentence for first degree assault.

They scaled two fences to escape from the Somers facility during a recreation period, a prison spokeswoman said. They apparently climbed through a cell window after the bars were cut.

Guards fired two warning shots as one of the men was spotted climbing the fence. Collins had escaped from prison before, when he was an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison, the spokeswoman said.

CHESHIRE (UPI) — State police were searching today for a Cheshire state prison inmate who failed to return from his Christmas furlough.

Prison officials said Lawrence Beauvais, 18, did not return at 6 p.m. Monday night when his furlough was supposed to end. Beauvais, who was serving two years for second degree arson, had been released to visit his foster parents in Hartford.

A DIVISION OF TANDY CORPORATION

Coming in from all corners of the community, some 5,000 new and good as new toys plus an assortment of new shoes, mittens and hats were arranged for Christmas "shopping" last Wednesday evening by Salvation Army angels. By Wednesday evening over 1,500 toys had been dispersed, including all but a handful of the new ones. Indeed, so many toys were received, that a considerable number of used toddler toys, games and puzzles were left over. These have been channeled to nurseries at the Y and the Salvation Army Emergency Shelter. Additional toys were sent to Head Start and our own Project Service office, some of which will go out for Christmas. Some of the left-over games and books were set aside for the Interfaith Day Camp and some of the other games and puzzles will be made available to shut-ins and convalescent homes.

Ring the bells

The Christmas bells should peal for Miss Maybelle Cunningham, who, although handicapped and unable to leave her own home, made and donated so many beautiful crocheted gifts for children and elderly; for the students at Manchester High School who went door to door collecting toys; for the Student Senate of Manchester Community College that carried out both a toy and food collection for us; Lena Shubert for her beautifully knit toys and mittens (other mittens knitters were M. Sims, Mrs. Bowser, Mary Stewart, Florence Osgood); Mrs. Shannon who donated six watches for teenagers; St. Bridget's Women's Circle for candy and beautiful dolls; I lost track of all the mittens and hats that Emanuel Church Women brought in; would just like all our knitters to know that mittens and hats are almost the first things to go.

Ring the bells also for Carroll Nelson who brought us 30 bushels of marvelous delicious apples.

Rights warning not needed at accidents

HARTFORD (UPI) — Police do not have to advise persons involved in auto accidents of their rights unless the statements are made during a "custodial investigation," the Connecticut Supreme Court says. The court defined custodial investigation as "questioning initiated by law enforcement officers after a person has been taken into custody or otherwise deprived of his freedom of action in any significant way."

The court made the ruling while upholding the conviction of Roosevelt Smith for misconduct with a motor vehicle which resulted in the death of Nicholas Digio of Orange on July 31, 1974.

On appeal, Smith argued the lower court erred in admitting testimony relating to admissions he made to police that he had been drinking. He argued the statements were not made before he was advised of his rights under the so-called Miranda warning.

"It is well settled that incriminating statements made by a defendant are admissible whether or not the Miranda warning has been given when the statements were not made during a 'custodial investigation,'" the court said.

Counselor's book is self-help guide

This month marks the publication of a new book by Lee M. Silverstein of Columbia University, formerly of Manchester, and a part-time faculty member of Manchester Community College.

The author presents an eclectic, or "cafeteria style" of therapies, mainly values clarification, reality therapy, and rational emotive therapy, plus his own unique way of putting it all together.

Fire victims still critical

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Two weeks after fire flashed through a Providence College dormitory killing seven coeds, five students remain hospitalized — two in critical condition.

Sally Garvey, 18, of Enfield, Conn., was listed Monday as "very seriously ill, critical" at the Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas.

CCM criticizes PUCA on loss of discounts

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Public Utilities Control Authority's decision to drop special telephone rates that give local governments a more than $1 million price break has come under criticism from municipal officials.

The Connecticut Conference of Municipalities said the telephone company did not request elimination of the special rate. It said the issue was raised by the PUCA.

Betty's Notebook

By BETTY RYDER

Merry Christmas! Hope you all had a wonderful weekend.

We did. Had several guests plus the family. Grampa was released from the hospital on Saturday, so was able to join us for Christmas dinner.

I must admit I would have enjoyed a sprinkling of snow, but without it traveling was much easier. It was nice just to sit around after dinner with family and friends and reflect on past holidays.

Improving: Slept in to see Eddie Reed at Windham Community Memorial Hospital

HEALTH Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My right leg is always an inch or more larger than my left, ever since my last child was born three years ago. I've been to a specialist and he called it congenital lymphedema.

Is there anything I can do through diet or operation? I would hate to see it get worse.

DEAR READER — You are right to ask because the natural history of this disease is that it does get worse.

The lymphatic fluid is similar to the clear fluid of blood. It contains proteins and can even clot, although somewhat more slowly than blood clots.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, as you need to follow that program. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Evening Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, and that walking promotes Grasso and her husband, Tom, should be interesting.

We go for our final orientation night Jan. 4 and should then receive actual time of departure on Jan. 23, etc.

Was a little disappointed to hear our visit will be cut short by one day due to a change in carriers. Instead of Trans Intercontinental (TIC) we will be flying El Al (Israeli Airlines) and due to El Al's schedule will return home Feb. 1 instead of Feb. 2. Oh, well, we'll have to keep busy while in Israel so we don't miss seeing anything we had planned.

One of my sons gave me several cassettes for my tape recorder, so once I stock up on batteries, get some film for my camera, sharpen my pencil and grab a notebook, I should be all set — at least wise.

Clothes. Well, that's another thing. I never travel light and on this trip

When I went to Bermuda last June, Gladys asked me to take some fabric to her sister, Mrs. Phillip Grant, who would then have it made into a suit for Gladys' son. He was going to be an attendant at a wedding there in August.

That's how I met the family in Bermuda and they were so kind. Mrs. Grant drove us all around on a sightseeing tour.

I was happy to hear that all is peaceful on that beautiful island after the disruption several weeks ago.

As a nine time visitor, I consider it almost a second home. It's just marvelous.

Happy New Year! If you're planning any celebration for the New Year, do be careful. It's fun to get together with friends, but be extra careful driving home.

Hope the New Year is happy and prosperous for all of you.

Auditors check armory records

HARTFORD (UPI) — The federal government and other tenants have been allowed to use Connecticut's state armories rent-free, or at less than the usual fee, a state audit shows.

The auditor also said the state's military department, headed by Adjutant General Major General John F. Freund, has failed to keep up-to-date attendance, vacation and sick leave records.

The audit, which covers 1973-1976, cites eight problem areas in the department's operation. But auditors Henry Becker Jr. and Leo V. Donohue were especially critical of the agency's personnel and armory policies.

Personnel records were "poorly maintained and in need of substantial improvement," the auditors said Monday.

A check of attendance records showed that although they had been signed by supervisors, "they were frequently inaccurate."

"We found that although the federal government had utilized various armory facilities for office and other purposes, it paid little or no rent for the use of such facilities," the auditors said.

"Various tenants occupied quarters at state facilities without the payment of the proper amount of rent, ordinarily charged for the use of these facilities."

Donohue said in an interview he did not know how much money the state had lost in the process.

The auditors also said the department should establish and enforce regulations that will ensure adequate control over the income and spending of the various armory associations authorized by the department.

"There was little or no supervision over the use of any of these funds," they said.

Among the problems with the funds cited were instances of a bookkeeper getting $2,895 for his services without any substantiating documentation and loans that did not appear to have been repaid.

The auditors said rental rates for the armories have not been increased in almost 20 years.

Although part-time rental rates were increased in September 1975, they are still substantially below the rate charged for comparable facilities by the private sector, the auditors said.

Brief, private ceremony marks burial of Chaplin

CORSIER, Switzerland (UPI) — Under a misty sky, Charlie Chaplin, the father of modern movie comedy, was buried today in a private ceremony attended by his wife and eight of his 10 children.
The private burial in the tiny cemetery of this Swiss village had been requested by Sir Charles, who died in his sleep Christmas Day at the age of 88 in his 50-room Manor du Ban overlooking Lake Geneva.
There was a brief service at the family mansion and later Ona Chaplin, his wife of 24 years, his children, household staff and family physician drove under a misty sleet to the cemetery.
The Rev. Richard Thomas, pastor of the Anglican church in the neighboring town of Vevey, read a short address and the coffin was lowered into a simple grave at 10:45 a.m. (4:45 a.m. EST).
Police kept the curious, reporters and photographers away from the gravesite at the request of Lady Ona. Chaplin was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II in 1975.
Attending the services were Lady Ona and seven of their eight children — daughter Geraldine was filming a movie in Spain — and Sydney Chaplin, 51, the actor's son from the second of his four marriages.
A crowd of about 300 arrived at the cemetery.
The British Ambassador to Switzerland Alan Keir Rennie, who represented Queen Elizabeth was the only person in the crowd allowed to join those at the graveside.
News of Chaplin's death from old age brought worldwide tributes and acclaim around the world for classic movies like "The Great Dictator," "City Lights" and "The Kid" — when his slide began amid scandals over his teen-age brides, a paternity suit and his leftist politics in the heyday of McCarthyism.
Chaplin was the king of Hollywood — acclaimed around the world for his role in the 1920s as a boy, Chaplin spent part of his childhood in an orphanage.

Final step in White Brook project

The final step of the White Brook storm drainage project — the installation of these nine-foot diameter pipes at Robertson Park — is expected to start this week and should take about a week to complete, Jay Giles, director of public works, said. All of the upstream work, including pipe installation along Oakland Street and Green Road, is finished, he said. The project is expected to alleviate flooding problems in the area. ### Fired teacher case nearly set for trial

The pleadings have been closed and all evidence by the Manchester Board of Education has been submitted in a case of a tenured teacher who has appealed the termination of her teaching position, according to the board's attorney, Thomas N. Sullivan of Hartford.
The next step in the proceedings is up to Attorney Robert L. Hirtle Jr., representing Mrs. Joan Hoveman, the fired Buckley School teacher, to claim the case for trial. Hirtle has not yet claimed the case for trial, according to Sullivan, and Hirtle could not be reached today.
The evidence submitted to the Hartford County Court of Common Pleas includes decision to terminate Mrs. Hoveman by an impartial arbitration panel as well as a 946-page transcript of the arbitration hearings.
The school board voted in August to follow the recommendation of the hearing panel and to terminate the teacher's contract. Mrs. Hoveman appealed that action.
The matter has been under consideration since Mrs. Hoveman was granted a leave of absence in August 1976.
The board's reasons for dismissal of Mrs. Hoveman were "inefficiency and incompetency."
The Board of Education has not issued statements on the specifics of the case, but has publicly backed

A pre-dawn fire on Christmas Day left part of a two-family home at 76 North St. with heavy smoke damage, but resulted in no injuries. A smoke detector alerted the residents to the fire.
The Eighth District Fire Department reported that the fire started in the home of Patricia Brown when a candle beside a bed ignited a foam pillow. An attempt by the resident to put the fire out ignited a towel, caused no further structural damage, but resulted in heavy black smoke, firemen reported.
It was not known how many residents were in the house at the time of the fire, but all escaped without injury.
Forty-four district firefighters responded to the call at 5:40 a.m. The firemen had to enter the house using breathing apparatus and the fire was under control by 5:53 a.m.

One of the more than 30 firemen who responded to the blaze was also injured, he fell. He was identified only as M. Healy. Authorities said Miss Bacon's home near the West Hartford town line was destroyed. The cause of the fire was under investigation.

The $10,300,000 phone call and what you can do about it.

1-411, as you know, is the number you call when you can't find a number in your phone book.
Every day, Directory Assistance operators handle hundreds of thousands of requests for numbers — most of them for numbers already listed in your phone book. Unfortunately — the volume of calls each year keeps growing — and so does the cost.
This year, to provide Directory Assistance service to Connecticut, it will cost $10,330,000 (does not include equipment and facilities).
All Connecticut telephone users pay this bill.
Everyone can help hold down that cost. It's easy, and it's simple, and it's fast. Whenever you possibly can, use your phone book.

Some tips on how to get more out of your phone book:

- You'll find emergency numbers (fire, police, medical) just inside the front cover of your book.
- Numbers for government offices (city, county, state, federal) are all up front in the white pages.
- For numbers not in your book, call 1-411. Then write them down in the space provided on the inside back cover.
- When you look up a number you'll probably call again, underline or circle it. Next time you'll find it easier.

The committee will conduct interviews with the 11 candidates during the first two weeks of January. After that, a selection of the top candidates will be made and forwarded to the superintendent and the Board of Education for final approval. Martin Fagan, head principal of the school, will be retiring the first of the year. The Board of Education appointed assistant principal John Murphy to take over until a new principal is appointed.

Walsh advises lake associations

Coventry

Unincorporated Coventry lake associations have been advised by State Representative Robert Walsh (D-3rd District) to consider forming special districts under Connecticut's Home Rule Act in order to receive matching road funds from the town. His advice constitutes an alternative to have the associations incorporate under a special act of the legislature, a process that would also make them eligible to receive the town funds. Until last year, the lake associations were receiving town money to help them maintain their private roads. But the Town Council discovered that some of the associations were not legally incorporated and decided to hold their funds in escrow until the matter was resolved. Town Attorney Abbot Schwedel advised the council that the affected associations should incorporate under a special act of the legislature. But Walsh said such acts are viewed negatively by the legislature. He did not think six or seven special acts for Coventry would be well received in Hartford. The town has more than a dozen lake associations. Town Manager Frank Connolly suggested funds be withheld for the following: Actors Colony, Birch Bend, Cheney Lane, Hemlock Point, Lakewood Heights, Standish Road, and Northeast Shores. Walsh told the associations they could require the council to call a special meeting upon petition of 20 members of an association. The meeting could establish a special district for each association. If an association goes the route of the state legislature, it must present a special bill for incorporation which costs about $80 to draw up, Walsh said.

Council session planned tonight

South Windsor

The South Windsor Town Council will meet in work session tonight at 7:30 in the caucus room of the Town Hall. Deputy Mayor Robert Myette has issued an invitation to the two candidates for the vacant council seat to attend all work sessions. The council is reviewing the financial structure of the town in preparation for budget study. Included on tonight's agenda is a discussion of the proposed voting machine inspections and repairs and the necessary funding. The inspection of all of the town's voting machines has been suggested following the failure of one machine in District II on Nov. 8. The malfunction of one of the gears under the name of Richard Ryan has left the council short one member. For more information call a request by Councilwoman Nancy Caffyn for a state-of-the-town report from Town Manager Paul Talbot.

Mrs. Caffyn has asked for a complete financial report as well as the status of all law suits. At the regular council meeting last week Mrs. Caffyn suggested that all new council members be given a tour of Town Hall to familiarize them with the location of records and reports. She also requested a tour of areas of the town under the jurisdiction of the council, such as sanitary land fill area, sewer treatment plant, and town garage. Blood pressure tests. A free public blood pressure screening program will be held Wednesday, Jan. 4 at South Windsor Convalescent Home, 1060 Main St. in South Windsor. This program is presented in cooperation with the American Heart Association of Greater Hartford. Blood pressures will be taken from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. by trained members of the nursing home staff. The public, especially senior citizens, is encouraged to stop by and have a blood pressure check. For further information, contact the Heart Association at 522-4155.

The award recognizes the senior student at a high school who has attained the highest scholastic standing in science subjects. As winner of the award Heath is eligible to compete for one of several four-year Bausch & Lomb Science scholarships at the University of Rochester. Scholarship winners are selected on merit and stipends, based on need, could range up to $4,500 per year. Square dancing. The South Windsor Square Dance Club will have its "Beginners Ball" Jan. 11 at the Wapping Elementary School from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Don Swift and Cliff Brodeur will call the squares. All new club dancers are welcome. The club will have a regular dance on Jan. 13 with Charlie Underwood as guest caller. Russ and Anita White will cue the rounds. This dance will also be at the Wapping Elementary School from 8 to 11 p.m. All club-level dancers are welcome to attend.

Porter heads ag committee again

Tolland County

Douglas Porter of Hebron, a dairy farmer, has been re-elected to the Tolland County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee for a second, three-year term by delegates at the county convention. Porter was elected chairman and John Mordasky of Stafford vice chairman. Wesley Bradley of Union is the third member of the committee and Horace Pease and William Lipton of Somers were elected first and second alternates. The delegates at the convention, held recently in Vernon, were all community committeemen, also elected recently by their fellow farmers during a mail election. The county ASC committee is responsible for local administration of government farm programs such as agricultural conservation, emergency livestock feed, emergency conservation, forestry incentive, wool incentive, long-term conservation plans, grain loans and emergency surveys and coordinations. Community committees elect farmers of their choosing to the county committee and assist the committee in farm program administration. They also keep county farmers informed of program provisions. The committee consists of the four county committees, in the order of chairman, vice chairman, member, and first and second alternates. Committee I, Somers, Stafford, and Union; Horace Pease, Harold Eastwood, both of Somers, William Mordasky of Stafford, and William Lipton and Francis Ribbe, of Somers. # Emergency phone line considered

Bolton

The possibility of the Town of Bolton having a phone line and an emergency system is now under consideration, said Selectman Johann Neith. Such an info line would be for people in need or trouble, healthwise, mental or physical, victims of abuse, suicide attempts and the like. Mrs. Neith said the selectmen will discuss whether or not there is a need for the service and, if there is a need, how it can be met. The meeting for the discussion will be Jan. 10 at 8 p.m. at the selectmen's office. Mrs. Neith said after talking with the director and Board of Health she feels there is an apparent need for the service. She said having an in-town emergency line would require qualified, regular volunteers who were dedicated and trained. In the meantime, anyone having any such problems is encouraged to call INFO-LINE at 521-7150. They will receive assistance.

Tax bills sent out in Tolland

Earl H. Beebe Jr., Tolland tax collector, will be mailing out 1,485 motor vehicle tax bills, due to be paid during January. The bills will be for motor vehicles registered between Oct. 2, 1976 and June 30, 1977. Taxes that were due in July and not paid must be paid in full before the January tax is accepted. An explanation sheet, along with the tax bill, will be mailed to assist taxpayers in understanding the new law regarding this tax payment. Taxpayers who have questions about their assessments may call the assessor at 872-9079.

Tax bills sent out in Tolland

The Public Utilities Control Authority has granted approval to the Tolland Aqueduct Company to borrow $23,000 from the Savings Bank of Tolland as a first mortgage loan on real estate in Tolland. The note will be for a term of 20 years at an interest rate of 8.5 percent plus one percent at closing. The real estate involves 25 acres on the Burbank Road reservoir property and six acres on Torry Road. The proceeds of the loan are to be used for repayment of a current mortgage in the amount of $2,866 and $20,000 for the financing of a new well

Vernon ZBA to act on factory housing

The Vernon Zoning Board of Appeals will act on two applications of the Barkan Development Corp. of Chestnut Hill, Mass., at its meeting scheduled for today at 7:30 p.m. in the Memorial Building, Park Place. Barkan is the developer planning to renovate the U. S. Envelope factory on W. Main Street to provide housing for the elderly. The developer is seeking a variance to allow creation of a 64-space parking lot in connection with the complex, which will have 114 units. This is fewer spaces than zoning regulations allow. It is felt that the elderly do not own as many cars as would occupants of a regular apartment complex. Barkan is also asking for a variance to density requirements which would normally allow only 95 apartment units on the 6.43-acre lot where the factory stands. Approval of the two requests will clear the developers who already have tentative approval of a $37,740 grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for tenants' rental assistance. The program will allow qualified tenants to pay up to 25 percent of their incomes for rent and utilities.

PUCA OKs financing for Tolland Aqueduct

The Public Utilities Control Authority has granted approval to the Tolland Aqueduct Company to borrow $23,000 from the Savings Bank of Tolland as a first mortgage loan on real estate in Tolland. The note will be for a term of 20 years at an interest rate of 8.5 percent plus one percent at closing. The real estate involves 25 acres on the Burbank Road reservoir property and six acres on Torry Road. The proceeds of the loan are to be used for repayment of a current mortgage in the amount of $2,866 and $20,000 for the financing of a new well on Torry Road and the associated pump and storage tank installation. It is a condition of the loan that as soon as the new well is self-sufficient at the Torry Road site the land on Burbank Road be sold at a price agreed to by the bank and that the line proceeds of the sale be used to reduce the mortgage. The PUCA said that an independent appraisal offered as evidence by the writer company indicated that the Burbank Road property currently has a market value of $25,000. Sale of the property will require approval of the PUCA.

Repaired bridge collapses

Coventry

The newly repaired Pucker Street Bridge collapsed under the weight of a 12-ton oil truck and may be closed for six months for reconstruction. The Coventry bridge was posted for five tons, and driver Richard Hill was charged with reckless driving and exceeding the bridge's recommended weight limit.

Representatives of the M&M Oil Co. of Bolton, owners of the truck, claim Hill thought the bridge was posted for 15 tons. The cab of the truck was able to cross the bridge from Columbia to Coventry, but the rear of the truck broke through the bridge and came to rest on the rocky river bottom. Town Council Chairman Jack Myles said no one was hurt in the incident.

The 90-year-old bridge recently underwent repairs by the town road crew at a cost of almost $8,000. The council is expected to discuss alternatives for reconstructing the bridge at its first meeting in January. Although the truck was carrying oil at the time of the accident, local officials said there was no contamination of the river by the oil, which remained contained.

The town has more than a dozen lake associations. Town Manager Frank Connolly suggested funds be withheld for the following: Actors Colony, Birch Bend, Cheney Lane, Hemlock Point, Lakewood Heights,

Area police report

Tolland

Three members of a Cleveland, Ohio family were injured in a two-car accident on Route 195 in Tolland Friday night. Robert Weller, 31, Phyllis Weller, 30, and Robert Weller Jr., 3, were all taken to Rockville General Hospital. The driver of the other car, James B. Donagher, 25, of Baxter Street, Tolland was also taken to the hospital. The two older Wellers suffered broken arms and internal injuries. The child was treated and released. Donagher suffered a broken nose. Police said the Weller car was traveling north on Route 195 and the two cars hit head on. The accident is still under investigation.

Police said the outage was caused when a car driven by Valerie J. Steppen, 18, of Middle Butcher Road, Ellington, struck an icy spot on Vernon Avenue, swerved across the road and struck a utility pole, snapping it off at its base. No police action was taken against the driver.

Police said the Warren car collided with one driven by Philip S. Hopper of 41 Arrott Road, Manchester. Warren has a court answer date in Rockville of Jan. 16. South Windsor Police are investigating the report of the theft of a stereo tape player, valued at $40, and 20 tapes, valued at $100, from a truck parked at P.S. Machine Company on Route 5.

Museum brings bones to class

BOSTON (UPI) — The youngsters joined hands, circling around a cluster of ancient bones in the center of the floor. Then they collapsed and scrambled for remnants of dinosaurs and battered animal skulls. "His teeth might get dirty," said one kindergarten from the Trotter School in Boston's Roxbury section. "He doesn't have to worry about that any more. He's dead," explained David Ebert, a teacher from Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology who participates in the joint education program with the Cultural Education Collaborative. The Boston-based CEC nurtures such programs across the state in an effort to link the resources of cultural agencies with educational institutions. "It is a mini-museum program that is ongoing. It is not the kind of thing where the museum would do a bite, and then leave. Afterwards the schools will have learned enough to continue," said Steve Marcus, who oversees the program for the CEC. He said it is one of 45 programs in Boston that the collaborative oversees. Ebert, along with a student teacher and co-teacher, spends two days a week at the elementary school teaching science. Students are also treated to two weekly visits to the museum. In any one day, the team teachers will be on hands and knees surrounded by bright-eyed tykes examining seashells, butterflies and fish. Ebert had the kindergarten class pretending they were clams and snails — a creative approach to teaching kids about sea life. "Everyone breathe like a clam," he told the children. And suddenly there were 20 kindergartners illustrating the clam's intricate breathing process.

The improvisation is necessary in a class with children who have only been in school for four months. The teachers use another approach with the older grades. A sixth grade class created giant murals of the ocean floor after a two-hour lesson on the seas and living things. They examined sponges, starfish, sea urchins and snails, and talked about the seashore and the ocean. When Ebert took time out to find out what the kids liked and didn't like about their class, one freckle-faced redhead said simply: "I like discovering things about the world."

Yule gift saves family

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — 'Twas the night after Christmas and fire filled the house — but the uninstalled smoke detector nestled under the tree saved the family of four. Eugene Bulakias, his wife and two children fled to safety early Monday after the battery-equipped gift went off with a loud shrill. "Without the smoke detector they would have been killed," said Fairfield Fire Chief David Russell. "It was a great Christmas present. I'm positive it saved their lives."

Russell said the Bulakias' son, Billy, 22, a member of the volunteer fire department in the neighboring town of Weston, put the gift under the tree on Christmas morning and equipped it with batteries. "It's a good thing he did that before he left," Russell said. "Half of the collar was in flames by the time we got there. If the family had not been alerted we never would have had a chance to save them."

"We've been pushing these smoke detectors and it's a good thing this family had one," Russell added. He said it was not known how the blaze started, although it appeared to be accidental.

You'll have to excuse them

BOZRAN (UPI) — Bozrah's selectmen have not met in at least 30 years, so you'll have to excuse them if they spend today's historic session getting themselves oriented. "It's been a long time," First Selectman Ralph Fargo said Monday. "I guess forever."

The Democratic head of Bozrah, which has 2,200 residents, said records show there hasn't been a meeting of the town's three-member board of selectmen in at least 30 years and he's not sure if they ever got together formally. The sole item on the agenda today was member orientation. Fargo, who for 10 years has been hounded with making most of the major decisions that weren't handled at town meetings, said he called the selectmen's session "to take a little weight off of my shoulders." "Now, I'm always the good guy or the bad guy," he said. He said he's been trying to call a meeting for four years but one thing or another has always postponed the event. Republican Selectman Edward A. Stevenson said he first learned of today's meeting by reading about it in the newspapers. He said he thinks it's a good idea because "some people may have some good ideas that they want us to consider." Democratic Selectman Arnold Williams, who was selected to a first-term in November, couldn't be reached Monday, but his wife said he was looking forward to the first meeting.

Calendars still selling

Pinups are good business

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pinup calendars of pretty girls in bikinis still are wonderful sellers of a wide variety of products and some millions of them have been distributed in recent weeks.

They're not quite as popular as they were 20 years ago, according to the Advertising Specialties Association of Chicago, trade association for the calendar industry. But Karl Keck, advertising manager of Ridge Tool Co. of Elyria, Ohio, member of the Emerson Electric Co. group, swears by them.

Keck distributes about 650,000 two-year pinup calendars every other year at a cost of half a million dollars and he says they are by far Ridge's best promotional tool.

However, pinups are no longer the biggest part of the wall calendar business, which is expected to run about $36 million next year, up 15 percent from 1977. Seascapes, landscapes, Carrier & Ives' prints and other art work, exceed them in popularity.

The association spokesman said he believes the ubiquitous presence of pinup girls in Playboy, Penthouse and other popular magazines, including those that are openly pornographic, had hurt the legitimate pinup calendar sales.

Nevertheless, Keck said, for something like hand tools and small power tools, you just can't beat a pinup calendar. It gets attention and it keeps Ridge's company name right where the mechanics will see it every day all year round. The twelve pages for the months also serve as a handsomely illustrated catalogue of Ridge products.

Which brings up the possibly surprising fact that photos of the pinup girls, handsomely done as they are, normally represent about the smallest part of the calendar's cost, less than a tenth of the total cost, sometimes less than the postage to mail them.

The Advertising Specialties Association said custom-produced wall calendars such as Ridge uses, may cost anywhere from a few cents to $6 dollars each, depending on the quality of the artwork and paper and the size of the press run.

Where does the biggest part of the money go?
On the photos of the products in Ridge's case carefully reworked calling became so heavy that busy signals were common, jamming circuits and affecting the service of other telephone users.

Previously, state residents phoned either the Stratford or Windsor Locks National Weather Service. In most cases this was a toll call and if severe weather conditions were imminent, photos of screw drivers, wrenches, small drills, chisels, and the like. It's pretty much like the famous story of how long and hard the artist had to work to paint a glass of beer that the brewery advertising manager considered delectable enough — it took him a solid month.

Keck said that for an artist to use the airbrush to touch up a picture of a wrench, saw or a drill to show it off to best advantage took enormous time and consummate skill.

"But there's another subtle problem," Keck said. "If the artist does his touchup work just a little too well, the resulting picture doesn't seem authentic to the experienced mechanic."

Big assist from ally aides Vikings who advance in Super Bowl Derby

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With a big assist from an old ally, the surprising Minnesota Vikings are in the NFL's final round of the annual Super Bowl derby.

The weatherman came up with all the right ingredients for the supposedly decrepit Vikings Monday and they responded with a 14-7 upset over the Los Angeles Rams.

That put Bud Grant's bunch of venerable veterans into the NFC championship game at Dallas on

New Year's Day where they undoubtedly will be even bigger underdogs than they were in the rain and mud at Los Angeles.

"I hope it snows in Dallas," smiled Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, flashing a rare smile.

With quarterback Fran Tarkenton on the sidelines with a broken ankle, 32-year-old Bob Lee, a nine-year pro from University of Pacific, directed the Vikings to their fourth win over the Rams in four playoff meetings.

Lee completed only five passes for just 57 yards but they all came on Minnesota's first offensive possession as the Vikings drove 70 yards in 11 plays for a 7-0 lead. Chuck Foreman capped the march with a five-yard touchdown run at 9:17 of the opening quarter.

Lee tried only five passes after that and just three in the second half. All were incomplete but the Vikings ground out a second touchdown with a 40-yard, 10-play drive that came on Sammy Johnson's one-yard plunge with 1:01 gone in the final quarter.

In the second half, the Vikings controlled the ball for 20:33. The Rams had it 9:27.

Playing catchup Pat Haden was intercepted three times, twice in the final quarter. On a first-and-five situation on the Minnesota five in the second quarter, Haden had a pass picked off by Nate Allen in the end zone. Paul Krause and Jeff Wright had the final-period interceptions, the one by Wright ending the game.

Haden threw a one-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson with 56 seconds left and Rod Phillips recovered an onside kick with 33 seconds to go. Haden got the Rams to the 30 with seven seconds to go but threw his third interception of the day as time ran out.

The Rams' Rafael Septien missed a 33-yard field goal attempt in the second quarter. As far as Haden was concerned, Allen's interception was the key play of the game. "I accept all the blame," Haden said. "I didn't execute and our offense didn't move."

It was a particularly bitter defeat since the Rams, winners of five NFC West titles under the former Detroit Lions' assistant, have never made it to a Super Bowl.

"The field conditions were terrible," Rams Coach Chuck Knox noted. "But we can't blame the weather, we have no excuses. Minnesota played on the same field we did. They won and they deserve all the credit."

Knox snake-bitten in playoff showings

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Coach Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams seems snake-bitten in the National Football Conference playoffs.

During his five years as head man of the Rams he's won the NFC West five times and for the fifth time Monday he and the Rams were kayoed early in the race for the Super Bowl.

The Minnesota Vikings beat the Rams by a 14-7 score in the NFC semifinal round on a rainy day that made the Coliseum turf a mudhole.

"We got some Minnesota weather," said Viking Coach Bud Grant, who sends his team against the Cowboys at Dallas New Year's Day in the NFC title game. "I hope it snows in Dallas." Grant dejectedly said, "We're a bad weather team."

Knox took the loss hard but would not blame the weather. "The Rams' coach, eyes red and voice quivering with emotions, was clobbered in the dressing room with his players for 15 minutes before he faced reporters."

"The field conditions were terrible for both teams," Knox said. "In that

Cowboys looked sharp, peaked for Super Bowl

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys played well enough to win the Super Bowl Monday.

The 37-7 divisional playoff whipping Dallas laid on the youthful and overmatched Chicago Bears was such a high quality performance it had the Cowboys honestly believing this is their year.

"This is the best team I've played on in four or five years," said Cowboys' offensive tackle Ralph Neely, who last week said he would retire at the end of the season.

The team Dallas will have to be ready for Sunday is Minnesota, a surprise winner over the Los Angeles Rams Monday. The game will be played at Texas Stadium. Dallas will be trying for its fourth trip to the Super Bowl, Minnesota its fifth.

Quarterback Roger Staubach was sharp and Robert Newhouse and Tony Dorsett both ran through huge holes for 80 and 85 yards respectively. Dorsett scored twice, Elfen Herrera made good on three of his field goal attempts and the Cowboys overpowered Chicago Bears who equalled a post-season record in that department. And Chicago fumbled the ball away three times.

The final fumble was by Walter Payton, Chicago's talented runner who gained 1,822 yards during the regular season but was limited to 60 yards in 19 carries.

Payton was so beat up after the game he said he could not remember all of it.

"I hurt," he said. "I've got a headache."

The Cowboys drove 79 yards late in the first period and scored on a 2-yard run by Doug Dennison. They drove 74 yards moments later and Staubach hit light end Billy Joe DuFree with a 28-yard touchdown pass on which DuFree made an excellent catch looking into the sun.

Herrera's first field goal, a 21-yarder, made it 17-0 at the half and on the opening play of the third quarter Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis intercepted an Avellini pass.

Dorsett promptly scored on a 22-yard run and before the period was over Avellini had thrown two more interceptions — both to Waters — and the Cowboys had recovered two fumbles, one by Avellini and another by tight end Greg Latta.

Dorsett scored again in the third quarter on a 7-yard run and Herrera kicked two more field goals of 31 and 37 yards.

Chicago finally scored in the final period on a 34-yard pass from Avellini to Steve Schubert.

The Bears, under the leadership of Coach Jack Pardee, had won their last six games to make the playoffs for the first time in 14 years.

"I'm proud of our team," said Pardee. "They stayed in there and played as hard as they could. We were just playing a very good team."

Conard game. His inspired third period play kept Manchester in the lead with Coach Doug Pearson hoping more of the same this evening. The fourth-year mentor also will hope Scott Hyde and John Hasslet, among others, are over the effects of the flu.

East, in its loss to Aquinas, was able to break the Saints' press but then proceeded to turn the ball over in the frontcourt, winding up with 22 turnovers. Coach Jim Penders hopes his young Eagles stop making these sorts of mistakes.

Four of the five previous Manchester-East meetings have been decided by 10 points or less with one going into overtime. The Eagles took 57-49 and 50-47 decisions a year ago.

Swim meet
Manchester High will hold an alumni-versity swim meet Saturday morning at the high school pool, announced Coach Ted Brindamour.

Warm-ups are at 9:30 with the meet slated for a 10 o'clock start. Any alumni not contacted and wishing to compete is invited.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The president of the Providence Shooting Stars of the Eastern Basketball League says he'll try to sell the basketball team before sinking more money into it.

"We're either got to put more funds into it or close up shop," John C. Davis said Sunday. "It's just a question of whether you want to put good money after bad, so to speak."

"Quite honestly," he added, "I'm not going to dump my life savings into the thing."

Kentucky five adds to poll lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kentucky's competition for the No. 1 spot in college basketball continues to decrease.

The undefeated Wildcats took all but two of the 38 votes cast in the weekly United Press International Board of Coaches ratings released today and opened a 119-point lead on their nearest rival, North Carolina.

Kentucky's rise in popularity among the coaches resulted from Marquette, last week's runner-up, suffering its first loss of the season — 61-60, to Louisville. The Warriors, who held the No. 2 spot last week, dropped three places to No. 5 as a result of the defeat, while Louisville's victory enabled the Cardinals to advance four places to No. 6.

North Carolina moved up one place to No. 2 after turning its record to 7-1 with a rout of Tulane in its only game of the week.

Notre Dame and Arkansas also moved up one place each from last week. The Irish routed St. Joseph's (Ind.) and climbed one notch to No. 3 and Arkansas, which received one first place vote, remained unbeaten in eight games with a pair of victories to move up one place to No. 4.

Despite winning both of its games, UCLA dropped one place in the rankings to No. 7 and Indiana State, idle last week, fell one notch to No. 8, despite receiving one first-place vote.

Holy Cross, running its record to 6-0 with a victory over Harvard, moved up two places to No. 9 while Syracuse fell two spots to No. 10 after a win-lose record.

Morton injured
DENVER (UPI) — Denver Broncos quarterback Craig Morton was scheduled to leave St. Luke's Hospital this morning after receiving routine treatment for a swollen left hip, said Head Coach Red Miller.

Houston winner DuPree catch turning point

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Houston Rockets had been kind enough to take Alonzo Bradley under their collective wing and he figured he should do the same for them.

"I really wasn't nervous at all," Bradley said Monday night, after scoring 15 points to lead Houston to a 113-90 victory over the Kansas City Kings. "I felt I would take the right shots at the right time."

Bradley was signed Sunday after playing with Athletics in Action. He was one of many Rockets playing defense. Houston took the lead near the end of the first quarter and never relinquished it. The Rockets led, 52-38, at halftime and had an 86-68 advantage at the end of the third period.

Moses Malone and Calvin Murphy each had 22 points to lead the Rockets. Rookie Otis Birdsong was high scorer for the Kings with 22 points and Rich Washington added 21 before fouling out late in the fourth quarter.

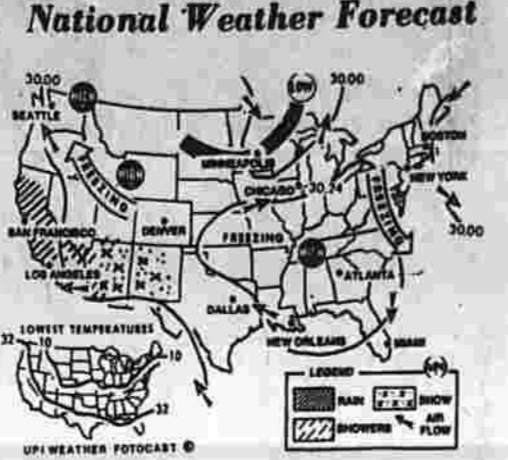

In other NBA games, Washington ripped Atlanta, 113-106. Detroit beat Boston, 102-90, and Denver stopped Phoenix, 127-108. Bullets 113, Hawks 106.

Former Atlanta guards Tom Henderson and Herb Brown with a team-high 21 points for Washington. Reserve guard Larry Wright scored 17 while reserve center Steve Hawes paced Atlanta with 25 points.

David Thompson and Dan Issel each hit 24 points and teammate Bob Brown snapped a five-game losing streak. Walker Davis led Phoenix with 23 points.

National Weather Forecast

For Period Ending 7 a.m. EST Wednesday, Tuesday will find rain over most of the state of California, changing to snow in the low Rockies. Mostly fair elsewhere. Minimum readings include: approx. max. temperatures in parentheses Atlanta 21 (41), Boston 18 (32), Chicago 21 (27), Cleveland 4 (20), Dallas 20 (31), Denver 10 (14), Duluth -11 (7), Houston 35 (53), Jacksonville 25 (32), Kansas City 12 (17), Little Rock 22 (32), Los Angeles 55 (65), Miami 52 (68), Minneapolis 4 (15), New York 49 (58), New Orleans 32 (53), Phoenix 47 (66), San Francisco 47 (57), Seattle 32 (41), St. Louis 10 (27) and Washington 18 (30).

The Bears agree that was the turning point in Monday's game. "You see it?" he wanted to know. "No," he said, laughing a little. "I didn't see it at all. He (Staubach) just laid it right in my hands."

From then on, there was nothing left for the Bears except maybe next greetings. Six years have passed since they last defeated Dallas and with the cold, precise efficiency the Cowboys were operating Monday on their way to the NFC title game in the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, the Bears could keep playing another six years and still not beat them.

No mincing words for Celtics' coach

DETROIT (UPI) — Boston Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn doesn't mince words anymore.

"We got beat," he said simply, and he was right. Heinsohn watched the Celtics lose their 11th straight road game Monday night, 122-100, to Detroit, and he wasn't in a holiday mood.

"We got beat and we didn't deserve to win," he said after Detroit beat the Celtics off the court, taking a 100-88 lead after three quarters.

"Detroit deserved to win. I'm just getting tired of explaining everywhere we go why we're losing."

The loss was Boston's sixth straight, with its last road win coming against Milwaukee in overtime, 127-119, on Nov. 13. Boston, with a 12-2 mark, is in fourth place in the Atlantic Division, 10 1/2 games behind first-place Philadelphia.

Detroit General Manager and interim Coach Bob Kaufman upped his record to 5-2 since he took over this month after firing Herb Brown. The win also was the Pistons' fifth straight, the longest since they won seven in a row Nov. 10-17 last year.

"We put a lot of pressure on them," said Kaufman. "All of our men moved real well and he got some real good shots tonight and we shot well."

But Kaufman also said he was finding the role of GM and coach too difficult.

"I'm adjusting to coaching very poorly. It's impossible to do both jobs. I just don't see my family enough."

Former Pistons Dave Bing led the Celtics to 10 points while forward Cedric Maxwell had 13.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for six years to a man who has some kind of hold on me and I can't shake it. I loved him once, but all my love for him is gone now. I've left him 11 times but he always begs me to come back and says if I don't he'll commit suicide, so I go back to him. We have two kids who are practically being raised by my mother because my husband refuses to work steadily. He has a bad dry-lying problem, too. I can't count the places we've been kicked out of because we couldn't pay the rent; we can't get credit anymore.

When he met me I was really no good. I was a 18-year-old prostitute with a drug habit. He keeps reminding me that he took me out of the gutter so I owe him my life.

Can you help me?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: No. But you can help yourself. You need counseling, and so does your husband. There are mental health clinics in your area that offer excellent help, and it's free for those without funds. If your husband refuses to go, go without him. Don't let your past dictate your future. You need a better self-image, and the fact that you wrote to me indicates that you're looking for answers, which is half the battle, going and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Why is the bride expected to write all the thank-you notes for the wedding gifts?

Most of the gifts are for the home-to-be shared by the couple. So assuming the husband isn't illiterate, why shouldn't he write half the notes?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: Nowhere is it written that the bride should write all the thank-you notes for the wedding gifts. Acknowledging wedding gifts should be a joint venture (even though some may fear the joint part of the suggestion).

DEAR ABBY: I recently went to the hospital for some exploratory surgery as I was concerned about the possibility of cancer. Two neighbor women who I don't know very well, came to visit me there. They took turns asking prying questions as to the nature of my illness, whether more surgery would be necessary, etc. I tried to fend off these questions as best I could.

After they left, a member of a fraternal group to which I belong called on me. The same line of questioning was pursued. Only this person spent nearly an hour telling me about "similar cases" in which all the patients died - of cancer. I was depressed beyond words. Why do people visit the sick and leave them sicker?

DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Because common sense is so uncommon. My advice to bedside manners: Make your visit short, sweet and cheerful. Leave the couple and a life at home. Ask no questions. If you can't do that, stay away.

Ex-director admits CIA used journalists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former CIA Director William Colby said today the CIA has used journalists on intelligence missions but has taken pains not to influence what is published in the American press.

Colby testified at the start of hearings by a House intelligence subcommittee that is looking into the relationship between reporters and intelligence gathering.

He urged Congress not to establish "any blanket prohibition against any relationship whatsoever between American journalists and intelligence services." He said the CIA should be left free to work with journalists.

"If you accept that intelligence work is important to the protection of our country, and both our laws and presidential executive orders say that it is... then you must also give CIA the essential tools with which to do its work."

Relationships in the past "have included CIA employees on intelligence missions abroad who served as real or pretense journalists," he said.

"My agents and I had a clear understanding that they did their intelligence work for me, but that the reports they wrote were a matter between themselves and their editors, and not given prior clearance or direction by me," he said.

"The function of the CIA," Colby added, "is to work abroad, not to determine the content of American media."

While this has been "an understanding" within CIA in the past, Colby said, it now should be put into a specific regulation.

"I strongly recommend that we not establish any blanket prohibition against any relationship whatsoever between American journalists and intelligence services," he said. "I would particularly hope that we would not be so foolish as to forbid any relationship between American intelligence services and the journalists of foreign and even hostile powers."

Colby told news executives when he look over the CIA in 1973 that the agency had been using news correspondents overseas as paid and unpaid informers, and used names of some organizations as a cover.

But he said, "We want experienced intelligence officers to tell us what kinds of relations they consider harmful or unethical, and why."

But he said, "We want experienced intelligence officers to tell us what kinds of relations they consider harmful or unethical, and why."

And although the CIA insists it has stopped soliciting media help abroad, many questions remain.

They are being examined in publication by the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., at the prompting of Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the parent House Intelligence Committee.

The witness list runs the gamut of those who might shed light on the subject: reporters, intelligence agents, editors, CIA specialists, news executives, veteran diplomats.

In advance of the hearings, Aspin said his subcommittee "has no intention of pursuing a witch hunt. We do not intend to make exposures of the names of newsmen who might have had a close relationship with the CIA in another era when a different ethical and professional standard prevailed."

Many hospitals reported lax on safety and records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A medical accreditation group has found that 60 percent of the hospitals it checked in the past year fall short of standards for such things as fire safety and medical record keeping, it was reported today.

Findings of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals were reported in today's Washington Post.

The commission was jointly organized by the American Hospital Association, American College of Surgeons, American College of Physicians and American Medical Association.

Hospitals that fell short of its standards got only limited accreditation instead of the usual two-year accreditation, the report said.

Walter Reed Army Hospital, Bethesda Naval Hospital and Johns Hopkins were among the hospitals given only limited accreditation, the Post said.

Hospitals that repeatedly fall short face the threat of losing approval as a site for medical training, the Post account said.

The commission said it surveyed 2,750 hospitals in the past year and gave 60 percent of them the limited accreditation because of failings. Most of the shortcomings were in the area of safety, such as failure to have doors and partitions that would contain fires or prevent smoke from reaching patients' rooms. Other flaws included failure to have adequate quality assurance or self-evaluation procedures.

Dr. George Graham of the commission said the normal two-year accreditation normally outnumber the limited ones by three to one. However, a year ago, tougher inspections began and limited accreditation became a majority.

Parents seek bus for Sunset Ridge

By MAL BARLOW
East Hartford Reporter

Over 30 parents of Sunset Ridge Middle School students living in Mayberry Village have petitioned the East Hartford Board of Education for a school bus.

The board set next Tuesday night at Penney High School for a hearing on their petition.

The parents have little hope. They have petitioned singly before and lost each time.

"The only question the board asks is 'Have there been any mishaps?'" said Mrs. Rosemary Hartley of 238 Woodland Circle.

"The answer to that, so far, has been 'No.'"

"They're not going to do anything until there is a mishap."

Mayberry parents argue that their children in grades six, seven and eight must walk a dangerous route over busy roads to get to school. Dennis Hartley and his wife took their case to the state Board of Education in September.

The Hartleys argued their son Steven's route did not have usable sidewalks, especially after a snowfall, parts of the route did not have posted speed signs or stop signs, there were no buffer strips between the road and sidewalk at busy stretches, traffic lights on Forbes Street often do not work, and almost every part of the route is used as a throughway for commuter traffic.

Hearing Agent Ronald C. Harris of the state board upheld the town board's refusal to bus Steven. Harris said the sidewalks were OK. There were three crossing guards along the route, it did have speed signs, and police records show only two accidents took place on it in the last three years and neither one involved children walking to or from school.

Mrs. Betty Korgiebel of 111 Cannon Road said she looked through the town's list of school bus routes before school started trying to find her daughter's bus.

"I thought certainly she'd be bused over that route," she said.

But there was no bus. One bus does pass nearby but it picks up students in the Sunset Hills section because their streets do not have sidewalks of any kind.

She petitioned for a bus but the board hired her down this November. She then heard about the Hartleys. She met them and later joined their efforts for another, larger petition.

Mrs. Mary Ballesi of 10 Great Hill Road said her daughter Mary is now a seventh grader at Sunset Ridge. She drove her daughter to the school every bad weather day last year or she did not go. Often she would pick up other Mayberry students on the way.

"You tend to keep your child home longer during an illness," said Mrs. Korgiebel. "You know she shouldn't walk that long route in the cold until she is well enough."

The only difference Tuesday night will be that the petitioning parents will appear before the board as a group. They got each others' names through their children and talking to their neighbors. The school system would not give them the names of Mayberry children attending Sunset Ridge.

But the arguments will be the same. They say the route is unsafe. The board has said it is safe enough "even for kindergarten youngsters."

"I was told that if we lose again, we should hire a lawyer," said Hartley. "If I could afford a lawyer, I could have sent Steve to school in a cab every day."

One of the better sidewalks in Mayberry Village is this one beginning at the northwest corner of Woodland Circle and Great Hill Road. Parents claim commuter traffic from Burnside Avenue whips around the corner as kids walk to school.

Outside today
Partly cloudy tonight with lows 10 to 15. Variable cloudiness Thursday with high near 30. Outlook: fair Friday, increasing cloudiness Saturday with chance of snow. National weather map on page 6B.

Penney wins at home

By BILL McAVOY

Penney High School's boys varsity basketball team overcame a horrendous start by playing its best basketball so far this season in the second half of Tuesday night's game with the Glastonbury Tomahawks at Penney. Penney's Knights beat the non-CCL rival 54-39.

Lindsay James led all scorers for 4-1 Penney with 22 points, 16 coming in the second half. Kevin Grady added 10 and Mike Kononchik chipped in 8.

Todd Lincoln paced the 2-4 Tomahawks with 17.

The Knights took the opening tap with Grady putting in a layup for Penney's only lead of the first half. Glastonbury controlled the tempo for the opening 16 minutes with a disciplined, patterned offense. It ran many set plays which created openings for easy buckets.

Lincoln played the major role for the Tomahawks earning 15 of their 28 first half points for a 28-21 lead at the half.

When the squads opened the third quarter, it was the Knights who quickly gained the upper hand. They buried did not score until the 1:50 mark.

Mike Picard came off the bench in the stanza to team with Kononchik under the boards.

Penney outscored Glastonbury in the stanza 15-4 to take a 36-32 lead into the final eight minutes.

The fourth quarter was almost a rerun of the third, Penney playing well while the Tomahawks were off. Glastonbury failed to score until after the two-minute mark.

"We did not play good basketball in the first half," said Penney coach Bernie Dandley. "We were lethargic and did not move well."

After the half, Penney "came alive," he said.

"We played the way we are capable of and the way we should play all the time."

The Knights next game is Friday at home against Simsbury.
