

Pope Paul Closes Historic Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, with a breeze whipping his white cope, formally closed the Vatican Ecumenical Council today and said he hoped its work would bring renewal to all the world, not to the Roman Catholic Church alone.

His final words closing the three-year council were "In peace" — go in peace.

The great clock on the facade of St. Peter's showed 1:28 p.m. as the end came to the assembly which the Pope declared was the greatest in the history of the Church.

More than 100,000 Romans and pilgrims thronged St. Peter's Square for the outdoor ceremonies ending the council which Pope John XXIII had opened on Oct. 11, 1962.

Princes, government heads, foreign ministers and other dignitaries from nearly 100 nations watched as the 2,300 bishops moved in procession from the Apostolic Palace across the square to the steps of St. Peter's Basilica.

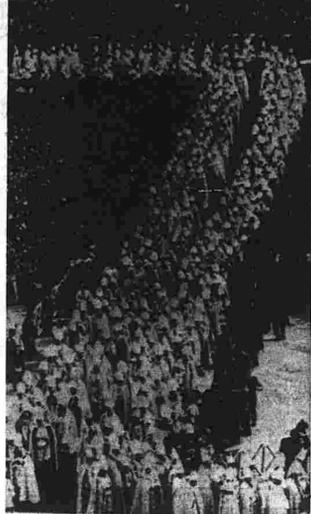

After them came Pope Paul on his portable throne.

The Vatican published a papal brief formally closing the council and declaring the greatest of the 21 general assemblies of the Church. It said all Roman Catholics were bound to accept its decisions, which ushered in a new era for the Church of reform within and improved contacts with the rest of the world.

The brief also declared invalid all arguments that had been raised against the council's decisions.

The Pope in an address during a special Mass said he hoped the council would bring about a renewal for the world, not the Church alone. Declaring his speech a greeting to the peoples of the world, he said he hoped the assembly "would be able to work in the Church and the world that renewal of thought, activity, customs and moral force and joy and hope that was the very scope" of the council.

Viet Ranger Unit Destroyed by Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A strong Viet Cong force encircled and virtually destroyed an elite South Vietnamese ranger unit today near the coastal town of Tam Ky, 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Communists struck from all sides, inflicting heavy casualties on the Vietnamese troops as well as their American advisers. Between 30 and 50 wounded Vietnamese rangers were lifted out of the battle area by helicopter.

Although security regulations prevented identification of the ranger unit, it was described as one of the best in the South Vietnamese army and had been a veteran of heavy combat. The battle erupted near Route 1, the vital north-south coastal highway.

A Vietnamese battalion usually numbers about 800 men.

U.S. air attacks continued unabated over North and South Viet Nam. Bridges and roads near Dien Bien Phu were attacked.

A U.S. Marine F4 Phantom jet was two men aboard was reported downed on an escort mission over North Viet Nam. The fate of the pilot and his observer was not known.

Some 20 F70 Thunderbolt jets hit Communist supply lines near Dien Bien Phu, scene of the great French defeat 11 years ago. In the south, other planes drove off an unknown number of black pajama-clad Viet Cong harassing a government outpost 15 miles northwest of Rach Gia, a town in southwest Viet Nam. Three guerrillas were reported killed.

U.S. military headquarters reported another decline in weekly American casualties with 19 Americans killed, 161 wounded and two missing in action in the seven-day period that ended last Saturday. The figures included the terrorist attack on an oilfield near the big battle involving the U.S. 1st Division Sunday.

The Vietnamese rangers were hit by Communists hidden in canefields about six miles west of Tam Ky, which lies in the 50-mile coastal strip between the major U.S. Marine bases at Chu Lai and Da Nang.

Friday Meat Ban Is Not Abolished

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI closed the ecumenical council today without the expected announcements that he would lift the ban on Roman Catholics eating meat on Fridays.

Sources here had been expecting that by today the Pope might announce a change in the regulations.

The sources said the pontiff was preparing a document taking the Friday abstinence from meat out of the area of Church discipline, and they had expected it either at Tuesday ceremonies for proclaiming the last four council decrees or at today's formal closing ceremony.

Pope Paul sounded out the views of his bishops on fast and abstinence last month, during sessions in council deliberations. There was no indication how soon papal action on the Friday meat ban might come.

Missing Prisoner Believed Murdered

HARTFORD (AP)—Did Rich and Ware escape from the state prison farm or was he slain and his body buried on the 1,600-acre institution at Enfield?

It had been thought that the 36-year-old prisoner from Hartford had slipped away from the farm Nov. 27, 1964.

But since late summer, state police have been digging for Ware's body on the theory that he was killed by a another prisoner and buried.

That was disclosed Tuesday by Maj. Samuel Rome, chief of state police detectives. Rome said he had details of the slaying, a suspect and a motive.

What's missing is the body. State police have used power shovels in their search and have dug up a new concrete foundation on the chance that it might be hiding a grave.

Rome said the slaying had "homosexual overtones." He said he has information from other inmates that the suspect, a trusty who since had been released, bragged about shooting Ware a year ago.

The report of a gun could have gone unheard by guards informed of developments.

Authorities have searched thoroughly for Ware, a black man whose only known relatives live in Brooklyn, N.Y. With no sign of him, Rome said Ware has become convinced Ware is dead.

Ware had been sentenced Nov. 1962 in Hartford Superior Court to a 2 to 4 year term for breaking and entering.

The detective said he hopes to obtain a warrant for the arrest of the suspect, but he said he doesn't yet have a corpus delicti.

"And also because of the legal entanglements facing us as a result of recent rulings and decisions by the courts in criminal cases of this nature."

A ruling last week by the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors had the effect of making it possible for a state court to issue a warrant for the arrest of a trusty who had been released.

State's Atty. John D. LaBelle said he has been advised of the report of a gun could have gone unheard by guards informed of developments.

BANK ROBBERY
The Wapping branch of the East Hartford Federal Savings Bank was robbed early this afternoon by an armed bandit who fled the scene in a credit and black Mercury hardtop.

The holdup took place about 1:45 p.m. The branch is at the Wapping Shopping Center on Oakland St., east of Wapping Center.

An early unconfirmed report indicated approximately $1,000 was taken.

State police were reported at the bank about five minutes after the alarm was turned in.

P&W Union Balloting on Pay Raise

EAST HARTFORD (AP) — Union workers at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corp. have been asked to settle for an immediate wage boost while allowing other terms of a new labor contract to remain unsettled in hopes of ending five-year-old litigation stemming from a 1960 strike.

Rank-and-file members of the International Association of Machinists were told in meetings today that there is no assurance an "honorable settlement" can be reached in the litigation.

But they were told sharp restrictions in union power proposed by the company for a new contract are totally unacceptable, and that the only alternative to extending the contract would be another strike.

Union leaders proposed accepting an immediate wage agreement calling for 8-14 cent hourly pay hikes, improved pensions, sick leave pay and vacation, but extending those parts of the contract dealing with working conditions and union rights until Jan. 7.

The extension would be automatically renewable thereafter for two-week periods unless either side decided to terminate.

The proposal, if approved in balloting today, would hold out hope of setting out of court a damage suit by the union seeking an estimated $10 to $40 million from the company, a $15 million counterclaim by the company against the union, and a series of union complaints to the National Labor Relations Board.

The proposal affects 17,000 to 18,000 workers at P&WA's East Hartford and Manchester plants, although the union represents only a fraction of the workers.

Borman, Lovell A-OK Still Long-Shot Chance For Launching Sunday

MANHATTAN SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. drove the Gemini 7 space ship on today toward a two-week endurance record, while a long-shot chance remained that the rendezvous with Gemini 6 could be attempted a day early.

At Cape Kennedy, Fla., a crucial ground rehearsal for the Gemini 6 launch was started shortly after noon, following the replacement of a troublesome computer.

It took five hours less time to install the new computer than the crew had calculated, and a space agency spokesman said there remained an outside chance Gemini 6 could be launched Sunday, a day earlier than originally planned.

If additional troubles develop, Gemini 6 could be launched as late as Friday, Dec. 17, for the effort to chase down and fly in formation with Gemini 7.

The 37-year-old Gemini 7 pilot, Air Force Lt. Col. Borman and Navy Cmdr. Lovell, neared the 15-million mark in their flight and were reported still in healthy moods despite the four days of cramped isolation in space. Their spacecraft continued to work like a charm.

They entered their 50th orbit at 11:11 a.m. EST.

When the space ship was flying over Houston during the 89th orbit, flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. asked Borman and Lovell:

"How are you making out after four days in space?"

"We're feeling pretty good," Borman replied. "It's amazing how the spacecraft seems to be getting bigger and bigger. Either we're losing weight or we're getting used to it."

Earlier, Borman and Lovell were given "the day's version of the Honey-See managed news."

Paul Hansy is the voice of mission control at Houston and astronaut Elliot M. Sze Jr. is acting as capsule communicator for the Gemini 7 flight.

The Gemini 6 astronauts, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas J. Stafford, will use their computer to calculate their inter-orbit-shifting maneuvers during the planned 100,000-mile pursuit of Gemini 7.

The two pairs of astronauts hope to fly in formation, perhaps only inches apart, for about six hours.

Borman and Lovell shifted Gemini 7's orbital course Thursday in a step toward a desired orbit for the rendezvous. Command pilot Borman fired jet thrusters to increase their speed by eight miles an hour and raised the low point of their path from 145 to 148 miles above the earth. The high point remained at 197 miles.

Later, they will alter course so both the high and low points are 185 miles. It is at this altitude the Gemini 6 hopes to complete its pursuit and move in close to Gemini 7.

No Meeting With LBJ

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has accused the United States of whipping up war tensions, arming West Germany against the Soviet Union and killing defenseless people in Viet Nam.

In a restatement of recent Soviet comments on foreign affairs, Kosygin said Soviet leaders could not meet with President Johnson so long as the war in Viet Nam continues.

"We do not want tension built up in any part of the world," Kosygin said. "We want to bend every effort in every part of the world to a restatement of recent Soviet comments on foreign affairs. Escalation of Viet War Seen in Red Arms Change

BAGNON, South Viet Nam North Viet Nam. Competent Cong and North Vietnamese (AP) — A striking change in the Communist arms and ammunition picture testifies to the escalation of the war in Viet Nam.

Building up their firepower, Communist forces depend more and more on standardized weapons from Red nations. Captured U.S. arms, ammunition and equipment — once a major factor in guerrilla fighting — are fading into relative insignificance.

U.S. weapons now are often left by the Communists on the battlefield. The Viet Cong used to supply themselves with captured equipment.

Captured American arms still play some part. So do arms dating to the days of the French Indochina fighting a dozen years ago. But small arms and ammunition is not interchangeable between weapons of U.S. manufacture and those made in Communist nations. The Communists need a source for ammunition if they are to use U.S. weapons.

There is little evidence of clandestine ammunition traffic between Viet Nam and Western countries. The main source has had to be captured material. Possibly there now is another source: ammunition manufactured for U.S. small arms in

Coventry Registrars Pick Polling Officials For District One

Election workers for the first district for the Dec. 14 referendum on the revised Constitution have been listed by Registrars of Coventry.

For those American weapons still in use, these authorities regulate use almost exclusively. For those American weapons captured by the Communists, the main source of ammunition is the battlefield. The Communist forces prefer equipment from the Communist bloc countries. One reason is that they may consider some of the U.S. material to be superior to the equivalent U.S. makes.

An Associated Press survey of allied capitals found officials skeptical of reports that arms and ammunition made in the United States are diverted to the Viet Cong.

Recent reports published in the United States have suggested that much of the ammunition for American weapons still used by Viet Cong units came from allies of the United States through direct or indirect sales.

Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, told a Washington report that to the best of his knowledge, most of the ammunition used by the Viet Cong was captured equipment.

"The volume would indicate it comes from a third source," he said. "Either there is a massive leak in South Viet Nam or it is being shipped to North Viet Nam from a third nation. I can not find anybody in the State or Defense departments who will admit we have effective control over the end use of our supplies. I don't believe that we really know."

However, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate armed services committee, said he had heard no suggestion of shipments of U.S. made weapons or ammunition from NATO countries directly or indirectly to the Viet Nam Communist forces.

Stamps In the News

Groups in Britain reports a new set of stamps issued for the First African Games held in Leopoldville, March 31 - April 10, 1965. The stamps were Central African Republic, Congo-Brazzaville, Gabon, Togo and Congo Leopoldville. The stamps show basketball, 2 ft. football, 15 ft. volleyball ball, 15 ft. 10 ft. tennis ball. The same designs as the lower values.

Opening lead—Top of spades. Declarer took his four spade tricks, discarding a club from dummy. East discarded the deuce of hearts and the seven of club.

South next led a club to dummy's queen and then ran the third heart. South threw the ten of clubs next, and West discarded the jack of club.

Now South went astray for trying the finesse with the jack of diamonds. West took the queen of diamonds and the contract at the end by leading a club instead of playing the diamonds. West would have to take the ace of club and lead diamonds, thus giving South a free game.

West should make things more difficult for South by discarding a second diamond instead of the jack of club. South goes down if he leads a spade. South a free game. Declarer can make the contract if he leads the king and ace of spades, relying on the queen to be unguarded after West's two discards, but this sort of play is easier to talk about than to make at the table.

It is quite reasonable to hold a slam that depends on one successful finesse. You don't always have to take that finesse if an opponent declines obligingly.

Approval Likely For Defense Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a sliding the South Vietnamese to realist aggression "we are going to support whatever men will be needed for that effort."

Even before the new budget, President Johnson seems likely to get overwhelming approval for any defense figure he may propose next month in his new $1.7 billion already tacked on the current fiscal year's outlays because of mounting war costs.

The President is working on the military budget at six times the rate of the normal rate. He said Monday that in quest is less than $1 billion, but the limited warfare policy were lifted.

Senate Republican Leader Robert F. Taft said a 20 percent increase in the defense budget would be a "great deal of new information which will enable them to correct their remaining minor faults."

These members regard as significant the recent statement of Sen. John F. McClellan, Ariz., that he would support the President's proposal to increase the military budget by $1 billion.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Tuesday night "we cannot retreat from our position that Viet Nam policy is a political commitment in a program tagged on for foreign aid and such domestic programs."

He said "it will be the Republican party that will make it an issue."

Democrats said the United States cannot retreat from its position in Viet Nam. He asked, "What could we say to the world in response to Red China's charge that we are a paper tiger if we cannot defend our position in Viet Nam and forcing its surrender 'virtually overnight'?"

Butterflies native to Israel will appear on a new multi-colored stamp set from that country, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America. There are four stamps in the set. Since the stamps are multi-colored, tabs attached, the unusual feature of this set is that each bears a color photo of the larva of the respective butterfly.

At the same time, it was announced that the fifth of a series of 16 featuring the coats of arms of cities and towns in Israel has been issued. Depicted on this stamp is the emblem of Tel Aviv. Completion of this part sometime in 1966.

Austria has issued a new stamp honoring Pope John XXIII, Dec. 19 is being sponsored by the board of selectors. Invited to take part are the choir of the four local churches and the high school girls club. Further details will be announced.

Mother's Club
The Mothers' Club has its annual Christmas dinner party for members at 7 p.m. Monday at the Nathan Hale Community Center. Those attending are being asked to bring a dollar bag gift, and to make reservations by Thursday with one of the committee members in charge, who are Mrs. Kenneth Lemire, chairman, Mrs. John W. Allen, Mrs. Richard Breen, Mrs. George Dolores, Mrs. Herman "Jack" LeDort, or Mrs. Wilbur Chadwick.

North Fire Dept. Staff
The North Coventry Auxiliary of the North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department will have a holiday sale Dec. 12 and again Dec. 18 and 19 in the firehouse. Members donating items should have them at the firehouse no later than Dec. 12.

South Fire Dept. Party
A Christmas party for the children of the members of the Coventry Volunteer Fire Association Inc. and its auxiliary will be held at 2 p.m. Dec. 18 in the firehouse on Main St. Santa Claus will distribute gifts and light refreshments will be served.

Fire Call
The North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department was called to take part in a brush fire last night, about 10 p.m. off Skinner Hill Rd.

Square Dance
The Whirlwax Square Dance Club has an open club-level dance from 8 to 11 p.m. Friday at Coventry High School, on Ripley Hill Rd. Julius King will be general manager. In charge of refreshments will be Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Healey and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Knowles; and of door duty, Mr. and Mrs. Steven Ernest King and Mrs. Steven Ernest King.

The club is sponsoring its first New Year's Eve dance from 9 p.m. Dec. 31 to 1:30 a.m. Jan. 1 at Coventry Grammar School on Rt. 31. Jack Leonard and Don Atkinson will be calling. For tickets, Ernest Bissonette may be contacted.

L.H. Sale
The Andover-Coventry 4-H Dairy Club will have a Christmas food sale at 9 a.m. Dec. 18 at Allan's market on Rt. 14A. Available will be Christmas cookies, fruitcake, Christmas breads, red velvet cake and other seasonal foods. The red velvet cake is being sold on order only; orders may be placed with Diane Busaugh of Silver St.

AL Notes
Green-Chubb-Richardson Post American Legion and its auxiliary will have their annual Christmas party for members' children at 3 p.m. Dec. 18 in the Legion home on Wall St. Santa will present a gift to each child and refreshments will be served. Members without telephones may contact one of the committee members: Mrs. John Lacey, Mrs. Robert Ryching, or Mrs. Harold D. Fraser on Wall St.

The post and unit are making plans for an annual New Year's Eve dance and buffet to start at 9 p.m. Dec. 31. Dance music to be juke box music. Reservations should be made by Dec. 26 at the latest with Mrs. Lacey, Mrs. Elaine Hochkiss, or Mrs. Ryching.

The auxiliary has sent 66 gifts, plus cash and three trucks to veterans' hospitals for the Christmas Gift Shops.

K-9 Dogs Help Ambush Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Shortly before dawn, as another wounded, crawled into the undergrowth. The dog picked up the scent and led the Americans to him.

The incident typifies the increasing role played by scout dogs in the Vietnamese war. "Our scout dogs will alert on any strange scent outside of the patrol," said Sgt. I.C. Jesse Mendez, 3d San Antonio, Tex., a military adviser on dogs. "They have been instrumental in the discovery of mines, documents, weapons and ammunition."

Several hundred German Shepherds are in use. Most are sentry dogs on guard posts at U.S. installations. These are trained at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., in an eight-week course in which they are matched with volunteer handlers.

Both the Army and Marine Corps are using dogs more and more in the field.

The scout dogs, or "four-footed radar" as the GIs call them, also come from the United States but they are trained in Viet Nam and matched with Vietnamese handlers.

These handlers are experienced field soldiers. Often on patrols they are the first to take casualties because they walk with the dogs ahead of the patrol.

"By now," said one Vietnam trainer, "the dogs are accustomed to the odor of the American GI. The dog's alert is even stronger."

"The Viet Cong have been using dogs, too, but they haven't had the training our teams have had, so they're not nearly so effective."

It takes three to five days for the dog to become used to Viet Nam's heat and humidity. Each dog must be between 1 and 2 years old, weigh 60 pounds and stand 20 inches high at the shoulder.

Snakes rather than the Viet Cong have proved to be one of the dog's greatest enemies since the first arrivals in July. A few have taken fatal bites and alerted their masters before the snakes could bite them.

Last August, for example one of the dog's greatest enemies since the first arrivals in July. A few have taken fatal bites and alerted their masters before the snakes could bite them.

Trainers find one of their toughest jobs is teaching the dogs to arrest their natural instinct of seeking out animals — and to hunt humans instead. It doesn't always work that way. At Pleiku recently, an alert dog was barking at two U.S. installment as a sheepdog pointed toward an open field beyond the U.S. defense perimeter. Radar showed what looked like a half circle of men in the field.

U.S. troops dived for bunker positions and bullets whizzed for nearly an hour. When the firing stopped, the dog still was pointing, but the "half circle of men" turned out to be a creek bed. And out of the creek trotted a female dog.

From other general sources the town collected $33,771 in 1965; November and $121,462 for the year so far. And from educational sources the amount collected was $459,449 for the month and $564,549 for the year. The total revenue from all general fund sources was $588,172 for the month and $4,861,406 for the year so far, according to a report from Ernest Meechel, collector of revenue.

Here are the revenues by month and for the year from sources other than the general fund:

Water Fund, $37,994 and $196,489; Sewer Fund, $20,000 and $113,697; Fire District Fund, $6,000 and $370,368; Dog License Fund, $367 and $11,000; Special Taxing District Fund, $5, and $14,000.

The second payment on property taxes is due Jan. 1 and will be delinquent after Feb. 1. A penalty of one half of one per cent a month retroactive to July 1 will be charged on delinquent taxes.

Tax Collector Notes Income For November

The town collected about $500,000 in property taxes during November, bringing the total collected so far this fiscal year to $4,175,276 from that source.

Founders Bridge Is Hard To Find

It is high time for some unofficial delegation of Connecticut motorists, recognizing that this is their state, and that the public departments thereof should function in some relationship to the common sense needs and privileges of the people...

That, we think, is the longest sentence we have ever written. It is about as long as the route over the Bulkeley Bridge and through the rear end of the Hartford shopping district...

An unofficial committee of motorist experts has been trying, ever since the new East Hartford exchange complex opened, to figure out how to get to Founders Bridge from the East. It has progressed far enough to judge that there must be a way, since highway departments do not build blind alleys, but merely close them.

It stands to reason that the Highway Department, since it built it, knows which stretch of pavement goes to Founders Bridge, and which to Bulkeley Bridge. And it would seem that it would be a very civilized thing as well as a convenience to hundreds of motorists daily, to set it up in plain sight along the approaches to the River—some sign adding to the present confusion of route numbers, the simple direct confusion—solving information that Founders Bridge lies that way. It's a nice bridge. Why try to deny its existence? Why try to hide it?

Two Interviews

Two interviews with national spokesmen of major importance in the news on the same day, and they add together in telling us just how sad a fix this world is in if it is limited, in its search for a solution to its problems, to the public pose statements of its acknowledged leaders.

One interview was with Premier Alexei Kosygin of Russia. It was conducted by James Reston of the New York Times, and published by that newspaper after approval of the transcript by the Russian leader, and on the day it appeared Mr. Reston, in a separate column, deplored the "monstrous distortion" in the spoken views of the Russian. And, to illustrate the kind of thing man of reason must still hope for, in place of such distortion, in place of the Russian leader's easy and glib assignment of all evil to the United States, all virtue to Russia, Reston quoted an old hope "that in the words of the mind there were definite values, that a certain way of thinking, a certain general freedom of thought, a will to intellectual sincerity, an intellectual precision had somehow gained, once and for all, the confidence of all humanity."

A fair sample of the kind of Kosygin statement which so upset Mr. Reston might be this, taken from the published interview: "In South Vietnam, there is a national liberation war. These people do not want to be governed by United States puppets. If you continue to fight there, the people will go on rising up. The people will always fight against oppression for their freedom and independence."

Or a statement such as this might have helped drive Reston toward despair of understanding: "You can say that the United States is not killing innocent people in Vietnam, is not arming West Germany and turning it against the Soviet Union."

On the same day the New York Times published the Kosygin interview, and Mr. Reston's disillusion with it also published parts of an interview with Secretary of State Dean

France, conducted for American educational television. In this interview Secretary Reston revealed that even in 1948 and 1949 he himself had considered that the United States had a "vital interest" in Southeast Asia. He ruled out, as of now, any possibility for a compromise settlement of the war there, and made the following explanatory statement: "Our war aims have to do with peace in the area and the security of South Vietnam. Now it isn't easy to compromise that. In other words, Hanoi either leaves South Vietnam alone or does not. If they do not leave it alone, we're going to support South Vietnam; if they do leave it alone, peace can come very fast."

It must occur to any analyst that Mr. Reston, thus speaking for the angels, has nevertheless made history just as deceptively simple and one-sided as Premier Kosygin makes it when he speaks for the devil. In fact and truth, it is difficult to see that Mr. Reston comes closer to those standards of "intellectual sincerity, intellectual precision" Mr. Reston was demanding, than his Russian counterpart.

What we have, in such an international dialogue, is not a meeting or interchange or even a seeking out of each other between reason and logic, but a shouting match.

The Sins In The Mirror

Once more, other nations prove themselves capable of looking at the picture of France in a critical fashion without ever realizing how much of a mirror they are looking into.

The latest villainy on the part of de Gaulle France, it appears, the success by France in becoming the third nation to succeed in launching its own space satellite.

France's villainy has two correlated parts. First, by insisting on launching its own space satellite, just as it has insisted on developing its own atomic bomb, France has proved that its motivations are excessively nationalistic.

Second, in order to satisfy such nationalistic pride, France is dealing a set-back to the ideals and principles by which the world ought to be conducting itself both in the field of nuclear weaponry and that of space pioneering in the world, say France's critics, should be heading toward an international pooling and sharing and controlling of space rather than toward rivalry and duplication.

And who, please, is doing this all this criticizing of France? Mostly the United States, which once thought it had a nuclear monopoly for itself, and Russia, which has been taking all kinds of nationalistic satisfaction from the fact that it got to be first and foremost in space.

Neither the United States nor Russia has ever demonstrated any of the virtues they seem to think they should be demonstrating. They have never held back their individual, nationalistic development of nuclear weaponry or space prowess in order to satisfy such nationalistic pride. Inside Report by Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — Soon after Lyndon B. Johnson succeeded to the Presidency, he received this private advice from one of his most influential advisors: "No domestic problem will be tougher or than controlling Bill Martin. The full impact of this proposal fell last weekend like a sledge-hammer. The decision of the Federal Reserve Bank, under Chairman William McChesney Martin, to boost interest rates was President Johnson's worst political setback. Not only does further tightening of money threaten economic expansion, but the bold defiance of his wishes is a severe blow to the President's prestige."

This question then arises: Why could a President who tamed Congress, big labor, and big business not tame Martin? The answer: The cherished independence of the Federal Reserve Bank is all but unassailable. Moreover, Treasury Secretary Henry H. (Joe) Fowler's year-long strategy of appeasing Martin by avoiding an open rupture all these months was perhaps less successful than a frontal assault on the Fed.

The Federal Reserve Board, acting as the national banker's bank, is a deviation in an otherwise symmetrical American system. Martin, a non-politician with rightly orthodox economic views, need not heed the advice of the White House.

But Martin does have his own constituency: The nation's commercial bankers — or, more specifically, the New York banking community. Martin has privately informed Administration officials of the increasing pressure on him to tighten credit. Its source: Big bankers, obsessed with the bugaboo of inflation.

This banker mentality was aggressively articulated to Martin by Joseph P. Kamp, director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Financial insiders regard Kamp as a man of high integrity. He is a high-income man, is concerned first with banking, not the overall economic results of higher interest rates, such as a possible rise in unemployment.

The Manhattan bankers' influence over the Fed is direct control over Washington's decision affecting their own pocketbook. In the opinion of one LBJ adviser, this means the loans are guarding the heron.

Nevertheless, despite Martin's clear legal power, it may be argued that Administration strategy in dealing with Martin only emboldened him. From the time he took over the Treasury last March, Fowler took the soft approach. Last spring he tacitly acquiesced in Martin's reduction of bank "free reserves" — money held in excess of money supply. (This tightening of the money supply) Treasury officials privately told Democratic Senators they had no intention of intervening.

Not 'Chicken' But Youth Now Has No Hands

San Francisco (AP) — Terry Shilpa is 16. On Thanksgiving Eve, fortified by gin, he said his hands on a mirrored track had proved he wasn't "chicken." Now Terry has no hands.

A locomotive cut off Terry's left hand at the wrist, and left him only his thumb and forefinger on the right hand.

"You can't have to be careful what you ask me," he told a reporter Tuesday at Presbytery Medical Center. "I know about it."

"Look at this," he ordered, holding up his bandaged right hand and wiggling the thumb and forefinger. "I'm not a cripple. I'm going to make it," he said. He turned the pages of a comic book with his toes.

The boy said he hopes his tragedy will show other kids what can happen "messing around."

"This isn't the end of the world," he said. "I'm not discouraged."

The kid hopes to prove again he's not chicken.

MARCELL REALE AS "MICAELA": Connecticut Opera Association's "Carmen," At Bushnell December 3

Jimmy Breslin The Harlem Scene

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 — There are people in this world who, for the common good, should be kept happy. Foremost among these is Mr. Ellsworth Johnson. Mr. Johnson is from the Harlem section of New York City, but he is known in prison yards around the country as Bumpy. The other day, he said the Muslims were going to show up and he was afraid. So I told him, "just let me watch the seventh race, a couple of horses in it are friends of mine."

"I drive from the track to this church on Seventh Ave. where they were meeting. And here's a whole load of these Muslims and what not sitting in one side of the church hall. They all got up and line up; and they start coming up the aisle. I told them to sit down, they weren't going anywhere. They said something to me. Well, it's had luck to kill a man in church. So I told them all to come with me. We went up to this office and set down and they start talking about wanting to get a religion. They give you this 'shalam ah-ah' and next thing they sell dope."

"There was nothing wrong with the cleaning contract," Bumpy says. "The District Attorney has my books. I told him, take them. I'm not a graduate of Harvard business school. I'm a graduate of Alcatraz. But the books are in good enough order. I hired three ex-convicts. Give people a chance not to do something bad. The way it is now, you get all these ex-convicts standing around on the corner with nothing to eat and say, 'Brother, this is what the white man do to you.' They get members that way."

"These people have been pushing and all anybody does is whisper about them," he says. "One day I'm out at the race track and a minister comes all the way out there after me. There was some kind of a HARYOU-ACT meeting he was supposed to go, but he wouldn't go unless I went there. He said the Muslims were going to show up and he was afraid. So I told him, 'just let me watch the seventh race, a couple of horses in it are friends of mine.'"

A Thought for Today

"How About Him?" John 21: 21 "When Peter saw him, he said to Jesus, 'Lord, what about this man?' How often in our daily life we are challenged to participate in the work of the church as we react by asking why our neighbor isn't doing his share, or what he will do if we do a specific task. The Lord answered Peter in this instance to tell you that they try to tell you to worry so about the other fellow, but to do his job faithfully and let the Lord take care of the others. We are often too concerned about doing a little more than someone else, while we ought to be concerned in serving our Savior to our fullest ability for He gave Him- self totally for us. None of us are the same in our talents or our resources but every one of us can and ought to share what we have for the growth and progress of the Kingdom of God."

Negroes Improve in White Schools

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—A Harvard research psychologist says the school work of Negro children has improved substantially since their parents hired a bus a year ago to send them to a predominantly white school.

Dr. Robert Coles of the Harvard University Health Service has been riding on the bus and attending classes with the children.

And he is interviewing their parents and brothers and sisters in an attempt to learn the value of transporting children from predominantly Negro to predominantly white schools.

For five years before that, he said, "they have become brighter, more active, more alert, more eager to learn, more willing to work."

He called their daily 30-minute trip to the Peter Panell School a "journey to a new world. Many of them now attend the State House, City Hospital, the Public Gardens for the first time."

The bus ride itself expanded both their limited sense of geography and of history, he said.

Coles cited two children, Sandy and Mark Jack-Robary section, as being helped greatly by the program.

"Sandy was doing rather poorly in the school and in his own home," he said. "Mark, previously an average student, has now been taken out of the Panell School and is being sent to special classes for gifted children."

Those parents along with many others have waged a running battle with the School Committee over the quality of schools in predominantly Negro districts.

Despite a cost of several thousand dollars, the 30 parents were satisfied with their own bus program last year, and the example they set led to "Operation Exodus," another busing program out of Negro sections this year.

"Organize like we did and get out of your own, I must have told to a million people," one parent told Coles.

Now 337 Negro children in buses, cars or taxis are being transported to 16 schools at a

School Head Viet Ranger Unit Says Shelve Harvard Plan

Harvard School Superintendent Kenneth L. Meinke yesterday recommended shelving the Harvard Report plan for busing students from the city's poverty areas into suburban school systems in favor of a desegregation plan.

In what amounted to a virtual abandonment of the Harvard plan, Meinke advocated a 6-4 grade arrangement that would allow a student an optional two year program at the high school level.

Meinke continued that "there is a significant difference between racial balance and integration of the races. Racial balance alone offers no educational values."

The 6-4 plan has the merit for the children of Hartford, not only for today but for the next half century. It is also the plan which bears the curse of being new, perhaps strange.

Meinke also noted that non-white students might make up 80 per cent of the entire student population for that group in Hartford within eight years.

Representatives from both groups, including Mrs. Katherine Bourne and Gen. Manager Richard Martin, are scheduled to meet with Meinke and the Hartford Board of Education on Dec. 17 to discuss the Harvard and Meinke reports.

Seniors Hit Work Delay On Temple

A delegation of Senior Citizens Club members, led by Mrs. Della Raymond, its president, asked the board of directors last night to explain "why we are not yet in new classrooms."

Mrs. Raymond reminded the directors, "We were told in July that we would be able to use the classrooms around the Temple."

She said that the club had made plans for a Christmas party in its new building and, instead, is holding it tonight at the Army Club. She asked, "Are we really going to get the use of the old Temple Bath building, or is the answer is yes-when?"

General Manager Richard Martin told the club members that a $10,000 appropriation had been voted in November for activity expenses and announced that the work will be commenced shortly, but he admitted that he could not say the date of completion.

In other actions last night, approved unanimously by the board: 1. Appropriated an additional $10,000 to the town council's account for use in the settlement of claims against the town.

2. Appropriated, as a book-keeping item, $21,910 from the General Fund for use by the board of education in a Neighborhood Youth Corps project. The entire sum will be received from the federal government in January.

New Seal Adopted By Town Directors

The Town of Manchester has a new seal, to replace the one in use since 1823, the year of the town's incorporation. The new seal, authorized by the board of directors in a unanimous action last night, was designed by Edwin H. Hyde, artist member of the Town Seal Committee, appointed by the board in August.

The committee was composed of William E. Buckley, chairman; Mrs. Thomas F. Ferguson, secretary; Mrs. Austin Cheney and Town Clerk Edward J. Tomkalis.

The design, best described as a leaf tree, symbolizes the white mulberry tree, whose leaves are the food of the silkworm, and typify the silk industry, for which Manchester is the principal industry.

General Manager Richard Martin noted that the seal will be affixed to all bonds which the town will purchase, and quipped, "Perhaps we can call it a money tree."

Club Weighs Lease Offer

The board of directors of the Manchester Country Club last night considered a lease offer to extend its lease to March 1, 1976, until it determines whether it can receive a sufficient loan, under the proposal, to accomplish its renovation and improvement plans.

A committee, headed by Ray Warren, club president, was chosen to contact area banks on a proposed loan of at least $100,000, based on a 12-year lease.

When that is determined, the board will meet again to take action on the town's offer. The proposed new lease, which would add seven years to an existing lease, would be written under the same terms as the present one, including a $24,000 annual rental.

In October, while negotiations for a new lease were taking place, a letter was received by Mayor Frances Mahoney from John J. Hutchinson, a member of the Manchester Housing Authority, recommending that the town acquire the club by its 15 to 25 age group children.

The proposal was never discussed at any meeting of the board of directors and, until now, had not even made public.

Kosygin Accuses U.S. Of 'Stirring Up' War

Shadowing relations between Moscow and Washington. "In South Viet Nam there is a national liberation war," he said. "These people do not want to be governed by United States puppets."

"If you continue to fight here, the people will go on rising up against oppression, for their freedom and independence," he said.

Kosygin accused the United States of "luring up people and gunning them down." He added that he was not in a position to give a definite opinion of peace.

"I cannot agree that you have the right to kill defenseless people, that is the doctrine of the United States is trying to seek its ends by military means," he said.

States is lending its support to the colonialists, to the side of the oppressors, not the oppressed. Your policy of support for the colonialists is the policy to rise up against the United States. There is a growing feeling of being deceived by the policies because of your support for the colonialists and oppressors."

Review Planned Of Parking Ban A group of Center St. business men and property-owners, led by Charles Morrison, asked the board of directors last night for some relief from a month-old ban on parking on the south side of their street, from Olcott St. to Broad St.

As a result of the complaints—that business in the area is being seriously affected by the ban—the board, after a suggestion by Director Harlan Taylor, authorized General Manager Richard Martin, Police Chief James Heardon, and the Town Development Commission to review the situation and report back with an alternate proposal, to be submitted to the State Traffic Authority, which has jurisdiction over Center St.

Morrison reminded the board that, on July 26, he had presented it with a 40-signature petition, opposing the no-parking ban. He accused the board of taking no further action, other than sending the petition to state officials.

Morrison said that the state followed the recommendations of the local traffic authority, Chief Heardon, and he challenged Heardon's claim of a high accident rate in the area. He urged the board to prove its sincerity in its oft-repeated pledge to help local business, small as well as large.

Hoopston Gets Dog Catcher, Police to Stay

HOOPSTON, Ill. (AP) — A town of 7,700 will have a dog catcher again and its seven-man police force will have to make good to its threat to resign.

"We haven't had a dog catcher for eight months," said Police Chief Orville Kaag. "They let dogs run all over."

"The city expected the police to chase all those dogs," Kaag said. "I guess they were trying to save money, but did you ever try to wrestle a dog into a car? It gets your uniform all dirty and you are expected to pay your own cleaning bills."

"It just couldn't go on like that," the chief said, "so we gave them an ultimatum — no dog catcher, no police department."

City council voted Tuesday night to appoint a dog catcher.

Robert Goulet Hopes TV Will Prove He's an Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sometimes you wonder about actors. Take a fellow like Robert Goulet. The robust Canadian can put down a few hundred thousand a year merely by exercising his singing voice in night clubs, concerts and television. So why would he chuck it for the precariousness of a spy television series?

"For two reasons," he explained during a brief stopover here. "One is that a series will give me a chance to stay in one place for six months, something I haven't been able to do for the past three years."

"The other reason is that a television series might convince movie producers that I can act. They may be in doubt after my two first pictures."

His films were "Honey-moon Hotel" and "I'd Rather Be Rich." To put it kindly, they did not fulfill the promise he did play as Laurence with Richard Burton and Julie Andrews in "Camelot" on Broadway.

Goulet has canceled a flock of magnificent singing dates to begin production in Munich next week on "Blue Light," which will debut on ABC Jan. 12. He is in actual locales of Munich, Stockholm and other Hitler haunts. Then the company returns to Hollywood for more shooting.

The singer hopes the series will bring a more orderly family life, but it won't happen right away. His wife Carol Lawrence, mother of his 1-year-old son and expecting another child, is contemplating a film in Rome and North Africa.

"That means I will have to leave Munich a couple of days to spend Christmas with my wife and child in Tunisia," said Goulet. "But after we get home, I hope we can stay put for a while."

Mrs. Souder Chosen Head Of Art Group

Mrs. Priscilla Conroy Souder of Somers has been elected president of the Tolland County Art Association and Mrs. Ann Vincent of Rockville, vice president.

Other recently elected officers are: Mrs. Ruth Von Ewert, Rockville, treasurer; Mrs. Cecilia Nelson, Ellington, recording secretary; and Miss Emma Bata, Ellington, corresponding secretary.

The next meeting of the group will be Friday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Carlson, Brandy St. Bolton. A business meeting at 7:45 p.m. and will be followed by a Christmas party. Each member is to bring a dollar gift useful to an artist, and some item of food. William Garrell, a member of the Society of American Magicians, will be the guest entertainer.

Members should bring work for judging as picture of the month was done by Mrs. Vincent, and is a pastel titled "Landscape." It is on display at the Rockville Public Library.

Smog Comes on Strong As Rules Are Challenged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — quiring exhaust controls on new smog, after a decade of quiescence, is making a strong comeback in Southern California.

And, as the famed sunshine is dimmed and eyes start burning, the outcry to "do something" rings anew.

Exactly, however, the State Legislature voted down a bill requiring exhaust controls on pre-1968 automobiles, among the chief sources of smog.

Additionally a group of all producers and users in Los Angeles is challenging the right of counties to regulate air pollutants from industry, as authorized by the state's basic Air Pollution Act of 1947.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, in the wake of a sharp smog attack in Los Angeles in October, called a special session of the legislature for next February to study proposals for controlling pollution.

A timetable of smog alerts and warnings that pollution is approaching the danger level — tells the story of smog's resurgence.

Smog was at its worst in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Los Angeles and the State of California then pioneered control programs.

In 1962, first the local air pollution control district began monitoring pollutants, there were 15 first-stage alerts and warnings to smog-producing industries to shut down if smog got much worse.

Control measures — special equipment in factories and a ban on backyard refuse burning — improved matters and the following year there were but 10 alerts. Each year thereafter the number dropped until there were only one in 1962.

Then, as industries and autos multiplied, smog increased. There were three alerts each in 1963 and 1964 and so far this year there have been six.

During periods of no wind a vast mass of polluted air extends from the Mexican border to north of San Francisco and inland to Las Vegas, Nev.

Experts give this reason for the increase, despite control efforts that have cost industry $130 million: Every day there are 500 new people in Los Angeles County; every week 3,000 new cars; every year nearly 1,000 new industries.

Leading the agenda at the special legislative session in February will be the question of what to do about air pollution given off by older cars.

The state already demands crankcase vent controls on all outstanding vehicles when they are a student at Hillhouse High, quiring exhaust controls on new smog, after a decade of quiescence, is making a strong comeback in Southern California.

Bailey to Seek Solution to Hartford Revolt

HARTFORD (AP) — National Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey, faced with a revolt in his own back yard, was scheduled to confer tonight with the Hartford Democratic Town Committee.

Three of the city's five Democratic councilmen in effect thumbed their noses at Bailey Tuesday night by voting with the four Republicans.

The remaining Democrats, loyal to Bailey, were voted down as the coalition took away the mayor's power to appoint council committees and replaced the city's corporation council and the city auditors.

Work of the coalition came out Monday, prompting Democratic Town Chairman Robert agent for the city's 1,600 teachers to call an emergency meeting of the town committee.

The three dissident Democrats on the council are Deputy Mayor George J. Ritter, Thomas Corrigan and Francis DeLoaco. The town committee is still pro-Bailey and presumably will go along with any suggestions he makes tonight.

Grand Jury Attacks Barbary Coast Sin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A grand jury in San Francisco is again under fire, this time in a grand jury denunciation of sin, sex and "moral decay."

But the bright lights didn't even flicker in a city whose Barbary Coast past makes "amateur topless night" a ho-hum event and where moon-fish "Nude Model Strip Poker."

Even the Salvation Army gave up after an attempted revival and announced it wouldn't try that again on the North Beach night club strip.

The San Francisco grand jury, which makes reports of city activities one of its traditional functions, noted Tuesday what it called a marked increase in pornography literature and "open and notorious solicitation for prostitution."

Dirty books, prostitutes and semineude showgirls — and narcotics and homosexuals — are abundant in the areas frequented by San Francisco's estimated 2.5 million visitors this year, according to the grand jury report.

Of course, the visitor can pass the shady sights, and some of the night clubs are sharing sizeable in the $149 million-plus in Conventions Bureau says tourists spent in San Francisco this year. At any rate, officials debated among themselves who should be officially concerned now with the grand jury's findings of "rising crime rate and the apparent decay of the moral standards of the community."

The mayor's office thought the jury's findings fell under the district attorney's office. The DA's office said the report was addressed to the mayor.

Mayor John Shelley, who once named "the topless bathing suit" as the bottom of it all, issued a statement promising "never allow wantonness, vulgarity or sexual promiscuity to take root in this city."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who once named "the topless bathing suit" as the bottom of it all, issued a statement promising "never allow wantonness, vulgarity or sexual promiscuity to take root in this city."

Schooling Costs Grow

WASHINGTON — In 1899, American schools spent $13.33 per pupil per year. By the Depression, the per-pupil cost was $68.70 (1930). After World War II the average expenditure reached $208.83 (1950) and 10 years later it was $375.42.

SECRETARY DISMISSED

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Miss Helen Burbank, 66, the Vermont deputy secretary of state since 1927, said Tuesday she was dismissed by Secretary of State Harry H. Cooley. Miss Burbank is active in Democratic party affairs. Cooley, elected in 1964, is the first Democrat secretary of state in Vermont's history.

Big 3 Opposition Blocks Boycott on South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Most U.N. delegates agreed today that a move to impose an economic boycott on South Africa has virtually no chance because of opposition by the United States, Britain and France.

The U.N. special political committee voted overwhelmingly to condemn South Africa's apartheid policies Tuesday night and called for economic penalties against the white supremacist government.

The strongly worded resolution, which branded South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation a threat to international peace, was approved 78-13 with 35 abstentions. The United States, Britain and France abstained.

Portugal, whose colonial policies have been under bitter African attack, cast the lone no vote. South Africa boycotted the debate.

The United States rejected the contention that peace was threatened by South Africa's racial policies and said it would not support any move to impose economic sanctions.

Only the Security Council has the authority to order mandatory sanctions. It has refused in the past to vote such penalties against South Africa.

The Western Big Three all voted no in a separate ballot on the passage in the resolution calling for sanctions. This was approved 78-13, assuring it of the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption in the assembly.

The resolution, sponsored by 47 Asian and African nations, appealed to South Africa's "major trading partners" to halt commercial relations with the racist regime.

The resolution also renewed a request to all countries to stop shipping arms and other military equipment to South Africa.

During the earlier debate the U.S. representative on the com-

Court Approves Name Dropping

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ivy Baker Priest, 60, former treasurer of the United States, is a candidate for California state treasurer.

Mrs. Priest married Sidney Stevens in 1941. Her first husband, Roy Priest, died in 1955. Political observers expected the name change to assist her campaign and three fellow Republicans objected to the petition.

But Judge Burnett Wolfson said Tuesday: "I know of no law that compels a woman to adopt the name of her husband."

Delaware OK's 25th Amendment

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Delaware has become the 15th state to ratify the proposed 25th amendment to the U.S. Constitution. A total of 28 states must approve it to put it into effect.

The amendment provides for the vice president to assume the duties of the president in case the latter is incapacitated. It also provides for selection of a new vice president if that office becomes vacant.

Action Tuesday by the Delaware Senate was unanimous and came on the 17th anniversary of the state's ratification of the Constitution itself. On Dec. 7, 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the Constitution.

Insurance Co. Action Has Dec. 31 Deadline

HARTFORD (AP)—The Insurance City Life Co. has until Dec. 31 to carry out a reorganization.

Most of the directors of the Connecticut chartered company and its executive offices are in Chicago.

Current members of the board include Illinois Lt. Gov. Samuel S. Shapiro, a former governor of Indiana, Harold W. Handley, and Frank W. Chesnow, chairman of Chicago's Metropolitan Commission.

A temporary injunction requested by Cotler had been issued Nov. 18. It prevented the company from doing business made receiver.

Doherty modified the temporary injunction Tuesday to allow Cotler to carry out certain transactions, such as meeting his payroll and making purchases and sales of investment.

In presenting the reorganization plan, Ribicoff said Insurance City was neither admitting nor denying Cotler's charges.

Boston's Gangland Slayings Stems from Fight on Beach

BOSTON (AP)—In Boston the hoodlums are playing so rough these days, says a top homicide detective, that they go out and kill on their lunch hour and get back to work or hang-out before the 1 p.m. whistle blows.

Greater Boston hoodlums and a dozen attempts in the past 20 months.

Not all the slayings were lunch-hour jobs but most of them were brazenly committed in the daytime and often before witnesses.

Yet, there have been only two convictions and only five slayings cases are pending in court. Police complain they are receiving no cooperation from the public.

"We've talked with dozens of people at murder scenes," said a top officer, "but nobody seems to see or hear anyone. This is not apathy, but obviously a general fear of retaliation," he added.

Lt. Edward Sherry, veteran Boston homicide detective, told The Associated Press: "That figure of 28 gangland-style killings is not the final count. We expect another half dozen or so more such killings.

"Vengeance is a big factor in this thing and we're handicapped by the lack of public cooperation. The telephone doesn't ring and the mail doesn't bring even anonymous tips on these slayings."

Sherry said "Practically all these slayings involve punks gone wild. There's no big overlord sitting on a throne. Nobody's trying to grab power or jurisdiction over any organized racket."

"The majority of these killings are among punks with no regard for human life," Sherry continues. "They are the result of a feud between two gang factions, one led by the three McLaughlin brothers of Charlestown and the other by James (Buddy) McLean of Somerville."

"And the feud," said Sherry, "apparently continues although McLean and two McLaughlins were killed and the third McLaughlin is under a death sentence for murder."

"We feel the other murders were the result of double-crosses in such rackets as counterfeiting, narcotics and shylocking—money lending at usurious rates."

Police Chief Thomas J. O'Brien said this to say about the slayings: "I felt that when the so-called groups from Somerville and Charlestown were pretty near depleted that it would be over, but they seem as if they're going to continue it. Evidently it is covering a vaster area than we first thought."

O'Brien pointed out that there's $2.5 million kicking around from the nation's two biggest cash robberies—the Brit's robbery in Boston in 1960 and the still-unsolved Plymouth mail truck robbery of 1962.

O'Brien said there's the possibility one group is trying to extract money from the men who have it and that a second group was hired to eliminate the stakeholder men.

Of the McLean-McLaughlin feud, Sherry said: "Sherry said last four years during a beach party at Salinas Beach, a favorite resort on the northern Massachusetts seacoast.

"George McLaughlin is supposed to have made an insulting pass at McLean's girl friend or wife. McLean gave McLaughlin the beating of his life, sending him to a hospital."

A few days later McLean spotted some men planting a five-kilobyte dynamite in a parked car. McLean fired a shot at the men and they fled a police.

Not long afterward, George's brother, Edward McLaughlin, 51, a reputed street-arm in the slayings, was shot in the neck, during the moon hour.

"Like all the other slayings," Sherry said, "we could never get any witnesses and we had to release McLean."

Edward J. (Punchy) McLaughlin, 45, was victim No. 24. He was shot Oct. 20 after two previous attempts on his life. On the second try, a gunman had shot him off his right hand.

Nine days later Buddy McLean became victim No. 28. Punchy McLaughlin was killed at a bus stop en route to the murder trial of his brother, George, 37.

Sherry said "Punchy was carrying a paper bag when he was shot. It was empty as he went to get rid of it."

"He took the precaution to get the gun off his person, but with his dying breath he wouldn't tell us who shot him."

The investigator said "Punchy knew for a long time he was going to make the 'hit' list. But like all the others like him he wouldn't help us, even though he once used the police as a shield against his associates."

"He was in a department store when he saw his would-be killers waiting for him outside. Punchy picked an item off a counter and stuffed it in his pocket. He was arrested for shoplifting and escorted out of the store by two police officers, just as he had planned."

Turmpike Crash Damages Autos

Two cars were damaged on W. Middle Turnpike yesterday afternoon when an oil truck struck one of them and pushed it into the other, according to a police report.

The truck was driven by Victor Plages, 30, of 472 Hartford St. The auto drivers, Alfred E. Bensenberg of Wapping and Margaret C. Scott of 250 Main St., were stopped on the turnpike waiting to turn left into the stop and shop parking lot near Broad St. when the accident occurred.

Plages told police he took his eyes off the road for a moment. The accident occurred about 3:20 p.m.

Shortly after 5 p.m. cars driven by Warren C. Walton, 46, of East Hartford, and Dorothy Lorraine Smith of Manchester Center were stopped on the turnpike when they were struck by the oil truck after drinking. He was summoned to appear in court at Manchester Dec. 20.

According to police, Walton, driving west on Center St., was struck by the truck, falling to the right. The truck was driving east on Center St. Mrs. Smith, unable to stop, hit the Walton car.

Mrs. Smith and a passenger, Carly Helen Edelen of Manchester, were treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital for minor injuries and released.

Covey on CD Board Cavagnaro Named Delegate to CRPA

State Representative Steve Cavagnaro last night was appointed by the board of directors to Manchester's delegation to the Capitol Region Planning Agency for a three-year term.

He replaces Mrs. Dorothy Jacobson, a Republican and a member of the CRPA since his inception, seven years ago.

Cavagnaro, a Democrat, will join Matt Moriarty to give local Democrats a majority on the delegation for the first time in its existence. The lone Republican member is Dr. Douglas H. Smith.

Cavagnaro, who was elected state representative in November 1962, is a former chairman of the Manchester Town Committee. He resigned that post in January 1961 and was succeeded by incumbent Ted Cummings.

The board of directors made another appointment, naming Charles H. Covey of 5 Francis Dr. to fill an unexpired term to November 1966 on the Civil Defense Advisory Council. The position was vacated when Leon Therp, council chairman, resigned. Covey, who was recommended by Civil Defense Director Edwin Edwards, is slated to succeed Therp as chairman.

Several other appointments were tabled for future action. The board also named Charles H. Covey to the Pension Board of Trustees, for four-year terms; to the Planning Commission Alternates, for a one-year term; and to the Board of Tax Review, for an existing term ending November 1967.

General Manager Richard Martin continued the board of directors, effective November 1967.

Hiring Director Delayed By Opportunity Department

The Community Council of the Town Economic Opportunity Department last night voted to postpone a decision to hire a project director in cooperation with the school department and the board of education on Dec. 10, discussing further the matter.

Chairman Jay Stager said he felt that hiring a full-time person to handle clerical and project work for the council was not possible at this time. The council postponed its approval to study the project further.

It was revealed that Joseph Dyer, state coordinator of the federal program, stated that the council should be broadened in its membership to include members directly from the groups it is supposed to aid.

Board Pays Tribute To Manager Martin

There was a strong feeling of nostalgia at last night's meeting of the board of directors, for it was the last regular session for General Manager Richard Martin, after 13 1/2 years as Manchester's administrative head.

A huge bouquet of red, pink and white carnations and chrysanthemums, a gift to Martin from the board of directors, greeted the conference table, and a moving resolution was read by veteran board member Harold A. Turkington.

The resolution, printed in an accompanying column, expresses appreciation to Martin, on behalf of all of the citizens of the town.

Martin will vacate his post on Jan. 1 and will be succeeded by Robert B. Weiss, currently town manager of Windsor.

On that date Martin will assume his part-time post of executive secretary of the Governor's Clean Water Task. He was appointed to that position by Gov. John Dempsey.

The board of directors adopted three other resolutions last night.

The first was addressed to the time of the late James A. Murray, expressing shock and sympathy on behalf of the Rec and Park Board at the death of his 11 days ago.

The two other resolutions were addressed to the Manchester High School football and soccer teams, congratulating them on their excellent accomplishments.

The soccer team finished the recent season as champions in the CCHL, while the football team shared the league title with Wethersfield.

Resolution Still Heads GOP DellaFera Resigns As Town Director

Republican Town Director Francis P. DellaFera last night resigned from the board of directors, effective immediately, citing the pressures of his work as the motivating reason.

DellaFera, who has been on the board since November 1960, submitted his resignation in the form of a letter, at the close of last night's four-hour session of the board.

He stated, "The increased demands on my time in the paragonical field, both on a local and state level, particularly with the impending implementation of Medicare, has made it virtually impossible for me to adequately contribute to the business of the board of directors."

"Therefore, it is with regret that I must resign from the board, to take effect as of this date."

He also is president of the Connecticut Convalescent Hospital Association, and two weeks ago was appointed to the first board of directors of the Connecticut Hospital Planning Commission.

He also is lieutenant colonel and executive officer of the 1st Army Garrison, in Hartford.

He said last night that he will continue to serve as chairman of the GOP Town Committee, a post he has held since May 11, 1964.

DellaFera's resignation came as a surprise, even to most town Republicans. Only last Friday the Republican Town Committee had given no hint of the impending action, which will have a vacancy which will be sorely missed."

Ability Counts Judges Chosen

Three judges for the high school "Ability Counts" Theme Contest have been named by the Manchester-Rockville Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Announcement of the appointments of Atty. Allan Thomas; John Jackson, research librarian at Mary Cheney Library; and Kendall Richardson, teacher, was made today by James DeLooco, chairman of the committee.

Theme of the contest, open to 11th and 12th grade high school students in Manchester and Rockville, is "What Handicapped Citizens are Contributing to My Community."

The judges will award a $25 merchandise certificate as first prize in the contest. Second and third prizes will also be given. The winning theme will then be entered in the state contest in which $1,000 in scholarships will be awarded. The winner of the state contest will then be entered in the national contest to compete for national awards totaling $2,500.

Entries must be postmarked no later than Jan. 15, 1966. The theme should be mailed to: Connecticut Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, 15 State Labor Department, Hartford 15, Conn.

Weiss Will Move To Town July 1

Robert B. Weiss, the town's new general manager, will not move to Manchester until about July 1, although he will assume his local post on Jan. 1.

The delay in moving here is to permit his sons, Peter, 10, and Jay, 7, to finish out their school years in Windsor, where Weiss is presently the town manager.

The Herald has learned that under arrangements agreed to by the board of directors, Weiss, on Jan. 1, will be assigned the use of a town vehicle, as is now the arrangement for Windsor. A used police cruiser will be withheld from trade-in; a new patrol car is purchased, and will be given to Weiss for his use, following the removal of police equipment. Gasoline mileage allowance will be granted also.

The town has already advertised for six new police cruisers, and its bid specifications provide for the trade-in of only one used vehicle. The bid was open on Dec. 27 in the Municipal Building.

The town charter permits the hiring of an out-of-town manager during the tenure of the manager's post, but requires that he moves to Manchester during the tenure of his office. No deadline is specified for that requirement.

Holiday Events Listed by VFW

The VFW will sponsor its annual Christmas Party Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Post Home. The program will include entertainment, gifts, candy and an accompanying column, expresses appreciation to Martin, on behalf of all of the citizens of the town.

Martin will vacate his post on Jan. 1 and will be succeeded by Robert B. Weiss, currently town manager of Windsor.

On that date Martin will assume his part-time post of executive secretary of the Governor's Clean Water Task. He was appointed to that position by Gov. John Dempsey.

Police Scuffle With Protesters In March Attempt

GREENVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A scuffle between police and racial demonstrators in Greenville followed an effort to stage a night march Tuesday night. City Atty. Blaise Poole said that three police officers had intercepted about 30 Negroes attempting to march to the Butler County courthouse and stopped the demonstrators. He said one of the leaders of the demonstration, the Rev. H. B. Wells, had been pushed down by the officers. However, he denied claims by spokesmen for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) that Wells had been clubbed to the ground twice. Poole said: "On the basis of what I've been able to learn, the officers used no undue force in stopping the march, especially in view of the fact that they were outnumbered 10 to 1." Poole, who said he had arrived on the scene after the night march had been stopped, alleged that police threw two tear-gas grenades in routing the marchers.

WASHINGTON — Although 14.8 million American workers were members of unions in 1964, this was a lower proportion of the labor force than in earlier surveys by the Labor Department. In 1956, for example, 32.4 per cent of non-farm employees were unionized. In 1964, 28.9 per cent were union members.

Industrial Gain Low GENEVA — Although the world's underdeveloped nations have boosted their industrial production faster than the developed countries since 1958, their share of the world's industrial output has increased only slightly — from 9 per cent to about 11.

A Handmade Advent Wreath at St. George's Church

Bruce and Brian Edgerton, acolytes at St. George's Episcopal Church in Bolton, light a pair of candles on a wooden Advent wreath constructed by church members Mr. and Mrs. George Ribahl, Bolton Center Rd. One of the four candles on the rim of the octagonal wreath is lit for each Sunday in Advent; the fifth is lit on Christmas Day. The wreath hangs above the chancel in St. George's, was made by the Ribahls from a number of separate blocks of redwood, matching the wood in the church building. The eight sides are jointed together with mortise and tenon; the tenons are visible at each of the eight corners. The Edgerton boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shorrock, Carpenter Rd. British Couple to Marry Using Ancient Witch Rites

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Beneath tonight's full moon, the principals in what they claim is Britain's first witch wedding in 200 years expect to make a public appearance as man and wife. They are Maxine Morris, blonde and 18, who proudly calls herself a witch; and Alexander Sanders, 29, the high priest of Three Covens, which are assemblies of witches. Initiating that he's a witch — not a warlock — Sanders said that in old England, witchcraft either a male or female. With Paul King, 22, a Coven member officiating, Maxine and Sanders were married Tuesday at the home of another witch. It was a very witchy wedding. Maxine wore a figure-clinging white silk robe — and said that was all. Income burned as the couple stepped into a white rose circle surrounded by gleaming black candles. They knelt before an altar in the living room. A pair of witches in hooded robes heard Maxine's and Alexander's vows together. King made small cuts in their arms — to mix their blood. After that, the bridegroom slipped a ring on the bride's finger. They were then toasted in red wine. Sanders said the witchcraft ceremony "is the oldest wedding ceremony in the world — far older than any church wedding." Asked about his witch activities, Sanders told reporters: "Our Covens operate in Manchester and North Cheshire. We perform all our ceremonies — when weather permits — naked, but there are no explicit rules. Maxine told newsmen: "We are very much in love. We don't need any additional blessings, but if we have a child we shall probably have a civil ceremony at 9.1 billion bushes, a 2 per cent decline.

Not Reporting 'Bruised' Pole Isn't Evading

CLINTON (AP) — A Circuit Court judge has ruled that "bruising" a utility pole and failing to report it is not evading responsibility. It isn't in the same class with a bruised driver or passenger, said Judge Martin Mostyn on Tuesday. He ordered the dropping of the charge of evading responsibility in the case of Charles E. Vincelotte, 27, of Ivoryton. Vincelotte said he had checked for damage after hitting the pole and, finding none except to his own car, had not reported the explanation of the term. "Did it need first aid?" asked the judge. Vincelotte said he had checked for damage after hitting the pole and, finding none except to his own car, had not reported the explanation of the term. Wheat Harvest Dips

NEW YORK — Hurt by hot and dry weather, Russia's 1965 wheat crop is expected to be down 15 to 20 per cent from the previous crop of 2.1 billion bushels. As a result, the 1965 but if we have a child we shall probably have a civil ceremony at 9.1 billion bushes, a 2 per cent decline.

Area Chamber Will Delay Vote on Hartford Affiliation

The Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce voted yesterday to delay a final vote on affiliation with the Hartford Chamber until at least the end of the fiscal year. The Hartford Chamber is set to hold its annual meeting on Sept. 10, 1966. Three months ago, members of the local organization stated that they were not ready to attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago last week. Kevin A. Loe of Broad Brook, a student in special classes in the Vernon school system and a pupil in the work-study program at Rockville High School, was one of three Hartford County 4-H youths who attended the meeting and voted in person with the other 30 voting by absentee ballot and some 110 members ignoring the issue completely. Seymour Lavitt, a member of the board who made the original affiliation motion, said yesterday: "We are going to make a mistake, we are going to stay local, and because of this the financial deficit will continue, and, more important, our deficit in our opportunities will continue."

Young Musician Ordered to Cut 'Beale' Hairdo

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court has ruled that George Leonard Jr.'s hair, grown well over his ears in Beale style, "could disrupt and impede" school education. Therefore, school officials have the right to order him to get a normal haircut. The Supreme Court acted Tuesday in the case of Leonard, an 18-year-old rock 'n' roll singer with the name "George Beale," who argued that his shaggy mop was an integral part of his musical act. Leonard was suspended when he wouldn't trim his locks. His parents appealed through the courts. The Supreme Court, in its ruling, said school officials must be free to suspend a student for good reason, otherwise they couldn't hope to cope with the "unpredictable activities" of large groups of children.

'Ambush' Is Most Hated War Word

NEW YORK (AP) — The most hated word in the war in Viet Nam is — ambush.

It is also the most controversial word.

It grates on the ears of U.S. military commanders over there. It grates on the ears of civilians here. But the word ambush will remain reluctantly active in our vocabulary as long as we are battling in places such as Southeast Asia.

There is no other word in the language that so precisely describes better the kind of warfare going on there, unless it be the term "ambush."

The dictionary defines ambush as "a trap in which concealed persons lie in wait to attack by surprise."

Military commanders hate to admit their troops have been ambushed because this implies to many they may have been derelict in their duty.

Recently, editors aren't supposed to enter enemy traps or be caught by surprise. The word has an innately derogatory ring to it — unless you are the one who has done the ambushing.

Then it sounds fine. This is an instance reported in recent news dispatches.

Last Sunday in a jungle battle at the edge of a rubber plantation 35 miles northwest of Saigon a battalion of the famous "Big Red One" of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division — killed 200 or more Viet Cong. The battalion suffered the heaviest casualties of the war.

A U.S. spokesman described the action as "a meeting engagement."

"It was a big ambush," said a young officer in the field. "Who was right? Both were. It's a question of semantics."

The American column was on what is called a "search and destroy" mission. Its men were looking for the enemy, trying to provoke them into the open.

The Viet Cong, dug in and well-camouflaged, fired first from positions along a jungle road.

Both sides got what they wanted, and each paid a price. The Viet Cong executed an ambush. We had a "meeting engagement." This probably will be the rough pattern of the war for some time to come.

Our purpose is to destroy the enemy in battle. If he won't come to us, inevitably we will have to go to him.

Ambushes have to be his main art and chief reliance. Heavily outnumbered and greatly outgunned, the Viet Cong dare not face our artillery and airplanes in open warfare. If they did so, they would be quickly over.

They have to hit and run, strike from the jungle in daring raids and retreat back into it when superior force is mobilized against them.

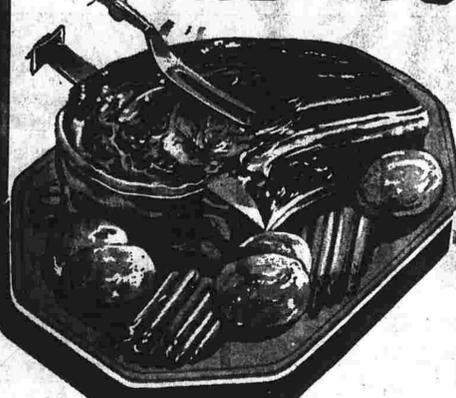

Their strategy isn't to smash us to pieces but to bleed us to death. Their hope is that in time we will weary of this piecemeal bloodshed, pack up our old kit bags and go home.

In the face of increasing American firmness, that hope on their part at present seems a forlorn one.

Linne Lodge Honors 50-Year Member

Edward J. Norén of 28 Roosevelt St. last night was presented with his 50-year jewel and Pythian diploma at a meeting of Linne Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and a Thanksgiving social at Orange Hall, Gustave Gull, secretary of Pythias, made the presentation. Norén is financial secretary of the lodge, an office he has held for six years. He is also a member of Emmanuel Lutheran Church, American Legion and Manchester Lodge of Masons. Before his retirement he was a grocer in Manchester and later a banker with the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., the former Manchester Trust Co. (Herald photo by Pinto.)

South Windsor Panel Debates, Discusses, Revised State Constitution

Pro and con views on Constitutional Convention proposal 2 were aired by Constitutional Convention delegates in a panel discussion last night sponsored by the South Windsor League of Women Voters. The state will vote on the revised state Constitution prepared by the convention, and on proposal 2, requiring the state to provide necessary to back eminent domain land taking, at a statewide referendum Tuesday.

Atty. John Boney, a Republican convention delegate from Hartford, termed the proposal "a codification of existing law."

The primary effect of the proposal, he said, would be to transfer the burden of proof, that land taken of public necessity is indeed necessary, from the owner of the land to the agency acquiring it.

Boney said, under the present law in order for a property owner to secure judicial determination, it is necessary to ask the courts for an injunction against the taker, or agency which requires the land.

Under the proposal, no vote is necessary for the taker or condemnor to prove its action to be in the public interest.

Atty. James Kennedy, a Democratic delegate from Hartford, agreed that the proposal contains nothing new or novel as a principal of law.

However, he said upon investigation, he found that only two other states, Wisconsin and Michigan, use the language "of necessity." One of the two has recently reversed the wording and substance, to place the burden of proof on the owner of the land.

Kennedy said he voted in favor of the proposal on the convention floor, but after further consideration and investigation, he deems it "too chancy," and will vote against it at the referendum.

Mrs. Richard Lartevier, moderator of the panel, noted that the convention is the first held in 63 years and the third in the history of the state.

Atty. Kennedy said the original constitution of the state was "a fundamental statement of principles," and that the revision has retained most of the old provisions yet updated sections as a modern life and circumstances require.

The five panels ran through the proposed changes, section by section.

Kennedy said a new section has been added to the declaration of rights, article one, which guarantees equal protection of the law and freedom from segregation or discrimination because of religion, race, color, ancestry or national origin.

Article two, distribution of powers, retains the division of legislative, judicial and executive branches, as in the original constitution.

Atty. Fred Conrad, delegate from West Hartford, discussed article three, which deals with the legislative department.

The provision for a bicameral legislature, meeting every two years, is retained in this article. A new provision calls for representation in both houses based on single-member districts.

Conrad, consistent with federal

Dick McGuire One Up On Former Teammates

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick McGuire is one up on a couple of old teammates and Red Auerbach is one down to another referee. But Auerbach's Boston Celtics still are 8½ up on McGuire's New York Knicks.

The Knicks edged Los Angeles 117-112 Tuesday night for McGuire's second coaching victory in three starts after the Celtics beat St. Louis 119-98 but lost Auerbach in the opener of a stormy National Basketball Association doubleheader.

McGuire has beaten two former Knicks teammates — Russell and Auerbach, who was ejected from the game in the third period after drawing the second technical foul of the evening in a tragic-comedy ruckus with official Norm Drucker.

The argument started over a technical foul called against the Celtics for making an illegal substitution. Mike Farmer, who handles the St. Louis bench while McGuire is playing, pointed out the infraction to the officials and when Auerbach demanded equal time for his substitutes, he was ejected.

The Celtics, however, remain on top in the Eastern Division with 47½ points in 18 games ahead of the Hawks despite the absence of big Bill Russell, scoring ace Sam Jones, and Auerbach, who was ejected from the game in the third period after drawing the second technical foul of the evening in a tragic-comedy ruckus with official Norm Drucker.

Single Star System Not True with Celts

NEW YORK (AP) — Guys can play defense, can shoot, can do everything, and more than that, we've got spirit. Whatever the Celtics have this year, it is not health.

Assorted injuries and sicknesses had hit everybody except Mel Counts and Larry Seligson.

Trainer Buddy LaRoux has hopes of getting Russell back in the lineup tonight. But LaRoux doesn't think Jones can be ready until Saturday's tilt with San Francisco at Boston Garden.

Meanwhile, Tom Sanders (21 points) and McGehee (21 points) led for most of the game behind steady play. Auerbach's only excitement was supplied by coach Red Auerbach. He got ejected for drawing two technical fouls.

The Celtics, limping and cranking, whipped St. Louis Tuesday night 119-98 in the first game of a doubleheader. New York defeated Los Angeles in the second game 121-127.

The victory kept the Celtics on top of the Eastern Division over the Philadelphia 76ers, Boston and the Cincinnati Royals. Boston goes against Los Angeles in the second round of doubleheaders tonight while New York takes on St. Louis.

Jones was on the bench again last night, joining defensive specialist Bill Russell who has pulled muscle. Jones had some high praise for the bench even though he doesn't like being on it.

Pro Basketball Has Changed, Now Game Between Foul Lanes

NEW YORK (NEA) — Paul Seymour and the game of professional basketball grew up together.

It was right after the war and during those early years there were stops at Rochester, N. Y., Port Wayne, Ind., Sheboygan, Wis., Waterloo, Iowa.

And there were players like Bob Davies, Bobby Wanzer, Red Holzman, Slater Martin and Al Cervi.

Maybe the uniforms weren't as fashionable then as they are now. And maybe the overnight bus trips weren't so comfortable. And maybe the old arenas didn't always have heat in the dressing rooms.

Then, straight-faced, he launched one of the shortest half-time speeches on record: "O.K., fellows. You've got your averages now. The second half should be some ball game."

The jokes, however, are a facade because Seymour was a great ballplayer — one of the best backcourtmen in NBA history — and the complete change in the game.

For example, the night that Dick McGuire replaced Harry Gallatin as coach of the New York Knicks, the Knicks beat St. Louis, 128-119.

After the game, second-year backcourtman Howard Komive was ecstatic about the coaching change which gave the Knicks a chance to free lance on the court.

"We didn't even run a play all night," he exclaimed.

Paul Seymour cringed. "You die a little every game," he said, "but what can you do? You have to live with the times."

"But there was basketball every night—the kind of basketball that depended on finesse, playmaking and defense."

"The game wasn't just played between the foul lines like it is now," Seymour said. "It was played by grabbing a rebound, throwing the ball up court and shooting the first second you get your hands on it."

"The game then was essentially one of outmaneuvering the other team."

"Everyone knows it's not like that today. There is no such thing any more as setting up an offense."

"And it will stay that way as long as we have the 24-second rule. It has totally changed the game. Did you ever wonder why our games have so much trouble holding interest on television? Because it's like a hockey game—up and down, up and down, with little variations."

Basketball people might have expected opinions like that from Seymour during the last few years when he was out of the game, but now he's the coach of the Baltimore Bullets and he's dazed before.

"As far as I know, there's no movement under way to get rid of the 24-second rule," he said. "Do you think the owners are going to ruin a good thing? Look what kind of crowds, New Irish girls in Madison Square Garden with a last-place team."

"What they've done is to take the little man right out of the game. Even when a little guy has a good year and you go in to the front office to get him a raise, it's almost impossible because everyone wants to keep the big guys happy. Well, I don't believe in that. I believe in keeping all your players happy."

Seymour is an intense guy, but with this intensity there is so is a balancing sense of humor.

One night the score at half time of a Bullets game was 72-70 and he entered the locker room, shut the door and looked solemnly from man to man.

Sports Captains at Harvard Led List of Senior Marshals

BOSTON (AP) — The captain of the basketball team and the quarterback of the football team led the list of senior marshals at Harvard this year.

The university announced that Harry L. Williams (basketball) and John A. McCaskey (football) were named first and second marshals by their classmates.

Marshals lead the graduation march and serve as liaison between the class and school officials. Williams and McCaskey are the first Negroes to serve in the posts.

"I look down it from one end to the other," he said, "and I see nothing but strength. We got it."

Six Out of Eight Top Scorers On NBA List Are Small Men

The myth of big man domination in the N.B.A. is refuted, San Francisco Warriors has rather convincingly, in the first round of the playoffs.

The individual scoring leader in the first round of the playoffs is a 6-foot-2-inch guard, Jerry West, who has averaged 38.4 points a game.

The Warriors' roster is small, with only two of the top eight scorers being big men.

Changes Made In Insurance

Town employees, effective Dec. 1, 1965, are now permitted to include under major medical benefits, unmarried children between the ages of 10 and 23, provided that the child is regularly attending school and depends solely on the parent for support. The amendments made by General Manager Richard Martin, states that the dependent child is eligible at the time of a hospital during the 31 days prior to the Dec. 1 date. If the child has been confined during that period, coverage will begin at the end of a 31-day waiting period, commencing from the date of no hospital or other confinement. The arrangements for the added coverage were made by the town's Insurance Advisory Committee.

Annual Session Set for Debaters

Rhodesia Split Widens Queen's Role

LONDON (AP)—Britain's tug of war with Rhodesia's rebel government is projecting Queen Elizabeth II into a major political controversy for the first time in her 19-year reign.

Her involvement is inevitable. Both the British and the Rhodesians claim the queen as their rightful symbol. As the struggle intensifies, each side can be expected to use the queen's name to justify its cause.

Some British Conservatives who favor the Rhodesian rebels have begun accusing Prime Minister Harold Wilson of using the queen for political ends. Nevertheless, the queen has More Conservatives also are already taken one personal indisputable by the increasingly Rhodisian's constitution and not break ties with Britain.

She awarded a knighthood to Sir Humphrey Gibbs, her Rhodesian governor and last remaining symbol of British power in Rhodesia.

Wilson had recommended a written as this was.

Under Britain's unwritten constitution, the modern monarch has only three traditional rights—to be consulted, to encourage, and to warn.

Royal initiatives are not known in this century, but they are rare enough to rate a mention in the history books.

The queen's grandfather, George V, helped open the way to a settlement of the Irish rebellion of the 1920s by urging an end to Britain's policy of counterterrorism. A.J.P. Taylor, one of Britain's leading historians, has written: "His initiative was perhaps the greatest service performed by a British monarch in modern times."

Wilson has pictured the queen in a more active role than she is usually believed to perform. In a speech appealing to London's financial community for support on Rhodesia, Wilson said: "Any instruction or command issued by Her Majesty's ministers in the name of the queen could not and would not in any circumstances be issued without the specific authority and approval of Her Majesty herself."

If the queen's actions during the Rhodesian crisis are any indication, the former economist professor who now runs the British government appears to have succeeded in explaining to his monarch a complicated and inflamed political situation in clear cut terms. She has followed by exercising some of the prerogatives still left to the British monarchy today.

Consumer Credit Can Go Either Way from Rate Hike

NEW YORK (AP)—Credit is a way of life with many American families and most businessmen. And if it does, will this dim the ardor of many families for new gadgets bought on time, cause many firms to trim borrowing plans—or to raise prices to offset rising operating costs?

But by how much? And how will they react? Those are the questions now that the Federal Reserve Board has raised the basic interest rate. It now borrows from it instead of the 4 per cent as of last week. This led many commercial banks to raise their own prime, or basic, rate for loans to business from the previous 4 1/2 per cent to 5 per cent.

The question is whether this will spiral into higher borrowing costs for consumers and for most businessmen. And if it does, will this dim the ardor of many families for new gadgets bought on time, cause many firms to trim borrowing plans—or to raise prices to offset rising operating costs?

Those who think the effects of the Fed's action may be slight argue this way:

—Few business loans of late have been made at the old prime rate of 4 1/2 per cent. Most firms have been paying 5 per cent or more to get funds. The big demand for credit may push the borrowing costs for the least favorable risks a bit higher. But few customers are likely to be driven away.

—Interest is tax deductible. That is, it is part of operating costs to be charged off before paying the corporate income tax. This is still near 60 per cent, so businessmen figure that, in effect, the Treasury will be paying about half of any increase in borrowing costs.

—Consumers pay little attention to interest rates, according to lenders. What they want to know is the amount of the monthly payment and how it fits their paycheck. A rise of a few cents due to higher interest costs may mean little in today's affluent society.

But many critics of the Federal Reserve's tighter money policy fear the worst. And here are some of the dire possibilities they foresee:

—Costlier borrowing and tighter annual interest cost has risen to the $13-billion level.

—Building and sale of new homes has been in the doldrums of late. If mortgage costs rise, it could be still harder to find buyers.

—Dearer money will make it more expensive for business- men to carry inventories, thus either trimming their buying from producers, or tempting them to raise prices to their customers—losing a few, if not many, of them.

—Bond offerings to finance state and local building of schools, roads, waterworks and the like will be harder to float and costlier to the taxpayers who ultimately foot the interest charges.

—The U.S. Treasury must borrow more money to finance a growing deficit—and already CONCORD, N. H. (AP)—Angels, pick-up trucks providing sand, salt, shovels and extra gasoline to those trapped on the roads.

The service started in 1958, an idea developed by highway workers in the rugged North Country.

The winter night patrols covering about half of the 3,500 miles that are plowed by maintenance crews during the snow season. Each patrol works a 100-150-mile section.

The trucks had blue light uniforms helping more than 250 stranded motorists each year.

Air Traffic Control Three Dimension Radar Eventual Goal of FAA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency is moving to equip the nation's major airports with a three-dimensional radar technique designed to prevent accidents such as Saturday's collision of an airplane over New York's Washington County. An FAA official said the technique has been satisfactorily developed during the past five years in a program to establish a national air space system. But he said the highly sophisticated, computerized system costing in the millions of dollars automatically flashes the information from the airline to the tower radar screen. The system eliminates considerable voice communication, including the FAA's "But generally happens faulty altitude readings, speaking this is the type accident between the pilot and the tower. The system is designed to prevent such accidents." FAA and Civil Aeronautics Board officials declined to speculate whether the alpha-numeric systems have been successfully tested in recent months at Indianapolis and Atlanta airports at a cost of $1 million each. In perhaps five years in FAA hopes to have the system in all 52 major terminals and many of the smaller ones.

Under the technique, the radar blips of an approaching aircraft are electronically tagged with luminous letters and numbers. The prop-driven Constellation crashed near North Salem, N.Y., after clipping the wing of the TWA jet. Amazingly, only four of the 88 persons aboard were killed. The jet made it to the ground in a controlled manner. The FAA's identification, altitude and location in distance and direction. "Until we get a finding on the cause, it's too early to say the

800-Pound Blonde Beauty Is Making a Hog of Herself

HOLBROOK, Mass. (AP) — Sandra, an 800-pound natural blonde, loves 19 1/2 pounds of cake, 10 pounds of choice cake, and a long life secure from toothaches. Sandra is a sow, a housebroken pet hog of the Chester white breed who has enjoyed call-collectors from local hospitals. Ruggiero was printing her for his own freezer. But when her number was called—200 pounds—Padula begged his partner to spare her. And Ruggiero gave in. Since then, 3,000 pigs have made the one way trip to a slaughter house in Rhode Island. Sandra remains in her own private pen where she spends most of her day snoring, half submerged in comfortable seaweed, and wood shavings. Her cake diet is unusual surplus returned to baking companies after one or two days on the shelves. Sandra, now three years old, still comes when her owners call her by name. But she's too heavy to chase after their truck anymore. "We'd need a derrick to pick her up now," Padula said. Ruggiero says Sandra could reach 3,000 pounds and both partners are worried she might have a heart attack. "We may have to get her on a diet," Padula said. "She's getting to be a real hog."

and they would have to hoist her aboard. Once the two men were working on a roof and Sandra stood below and snorted because they wouldn't help her up the ladder. Sandra didn't know it, but she was getting the best garbage to eat—collections from local hospitals. Ruggiero was printing her for his own freezer. Ky, Political Tyro, Outlasting the Pros

BALCON, South Viet Nam (AP) — In a country where good government has come to mean any government that can survive for more than just a few weeks, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has made something of a mark.

By mid-December he will have held power for six months. Few expected this when he took over the government in mid-June as the front man for the group of "Young Turks" generals who wield the real power in South Viet Nam.

The civilian government that preceded Ky collapsed under the weight of political rivalry and bickering.

of premier he can have it — as long as he doesn't step on their toes.

Ky, in a series of public speeches and decrees, has attempted to force industry and honesty upon his war-weary and politically disillusioned nation.

Early in his reign he proclaimed austerity measures, broke off diplomatic relations with France and officially declared war on the Viet Cong.

But after six months, it is his record time in office, rather than what he has done, that has not been to get a democratic government. That wish can be realized only far in the future.

The main problem was to get an effective government. Ky has these actions to his credit so far:

He has gathered around him a group of young ministers and aides who talk unambiguously about South Viet Nam's future, and who are prepared to listen to American "elder statesman" advice about government, notably from U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Ky is not a military dictator. He is chief spokesman and executive leader of a nine-man national leadership committee of the top generals. This group has presented a united military front for the first time, stilling religious and student opposition to central authority. Ky does not intend to suffer the fate of the former strongman, Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who was destroyed because civilian opposition penetrated the chains of the armor by traveling and by sending his attractive wife, Mai, to charity functions and hospitals. But Ky has found that popularity is elusive. To Vietnamese living outside the cities, Ky is just another of these measures will counteract the impact of morale from recent Communist attacks, reasons to be seen.

Ky has attempted to come to grips with the problems of rural pacification by introducing a land reform program, and training cadres to work among villagers. The reform program has hardly gotten off the ground because much of the land he is giving away is in the hands of the Viet Cong. And Ky is finding it as difficult as his predecessors to get people interested enough in working in the villages on pacification projects.

Ky has attempted to improve his image at home and abroad by traveling and by sending his attractive wife, Mai, to charity functions and hospitals. But Ky has found that popularity is elusive. To Vietnamese living outside the cities, Ky is just another

Ford's Peace Mission Remembered

NEW YORK (AP) — "We're going to try to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

So saying, Henry Ford called off for Europe with no other allies than 20 years ago — on Dec. 4, 1915 — in the Scandinavian-American liner Oscar II. His ambitious goal was to stop World War I.

Now, at a time when protesters against U.S. military involvement in Viet Nam march across the land, few members of the Ford peace mission still are alive.

They rejected any suggestion of a parallel between their peace campaign and the drive to get the United States out of Viet Nam.

Ford and his followers hoped to end World War I before the United States could be pulled into it.

Their chosen instrument was something they called the Neutral Conference for Continuation of Mediation which they set up in Stockholm in neutral Sweden.

Unlike the get-out-of-Viet Nam agitators, they had no quarrel with the nation's foreign policy.

But they had hopes that a private initiative might speed the day when peace negotiations would halt the carnage in Europe.

They were largely ridiculed by the press of America and the world and almost wholly ignored by the belligerents.

"Great war ends Christmas Day," Ford said in a typically apocalyptic headline in the New York Tribune.

The New York World called the voyage of the Oscar II "an impossible effort to establish an opportune peace."

The crusading do-gooders struggled on for 14 fruitless months.

Finally, on Feb. 7, 1917, Ford washed his hands of the project, picked up a bill for $468,000 and remarked:

"Well, we got a million dollars worth of advertising out of it, and a hell of a lot of experience."

A survivor of the little band in Louis Lochner, a peace-monger of the day who later became a Pulitzer Prize-winning Associated Press foreign correspondent.

"Well, the peace ship was a stunt but the welfare of humanity was in our thoughts. We felt that somebody ought to do something to end the war, and we did our best."

Maybe it all came to nothing in the end, but who knows? Perhaps the Neutral Conference for Continuation of Mediation germinated the idea which grew long after into the United Nations.

"The Viet Nam protests? There is no comparison between them and the Ford peace mission. The circumstances were so completely different."

Another survivor is Earl W. Tucker, 75, a retired banker of Syracuse, N.Y. He was one of 38 university students — 29 boys and seven girls — who comprised the young intellectual group aboard the Oscar II.

"The Ford expedition," said Tucker, "was not in any way the type of so-called peace demonstration we are seeing in connection with Viet Nam today, and had nothing in common with it."

"The present day demonstrations are aimed at criticising our government's policy and company. Edison just smiled and shook his head."

Accepting U.S. Medals of Honor, the delegates on the Ford expedition were desperately sick of a cease-fire arranged in World War I before our military involvement became necessary.

"But when the United States was cast, many of us who look back on this expedition as a general in the U.S. Army."

The conception of a neutral mediation conference was a consensus of a number of groups with visionary plans for stopping the war.

One main group was headed by Rosika Schwimmer, a Hungarian pacifist and feminist, and another by David Starr Jordan and Lochner.

The permanent council of mediation was established in Stockholm, with delegates from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and the United States. Most of the peace ship people then returned to America.

Lochner, who had remained on the scene, was recalled to America by Ford in January of 1917. He saw President Woodrow Wilson twice and conferred with the motor magnate several times.

Within a few weeks, Wilson made his historic speech urging the belligerents to reach a "peace without victory."

Soon after, Ford told Lochner the private crusade in Europe should stop. He apparently felt that Wilson was doing as much for peace as could be expected of America, either governmentally or privately.

"He withdrew support from his peace mission under the influence of his business associates," said Lochner. "Ford was a man of genius, but like many another genius exceeding by unrelaxable."

Author Mark Sullivan, writing of the peace mission in the position "Our Times," declared: "After its failure, dying down to an echo of gigantic and exhausted laughter, it deprived every other peace movement in the country of force and conviction."

On April 6, 1917, the United States declared war on Germany.

Civilization Measured By Its Tea

NEW YORK (AP) — It used to be easier in America to get a decent cup of tea in a public place.

Things are looking up now. You can almost get a decent cup of tea in a bank while waiting for a check to be cashed — but it takes so much for one today.

One of the signs of maturity in a civilization is its ability to muster the services of a drinkable tea.

Although America is regarded as a youthful land, it is now 245 years from that distant day when the Pilgrims first stepped ashore here in 1620.

Ever since then we have tried to perfect a proper cup of tea, and it seems to me that we've almost got the problem licked.

Essentially, the solution is simple. You put tea leaves in a porcelain enclosure that has a spout. Then you pour absolutely boiling water over it, pause and recite from memory the counties of Ireland including the six still under British rule, and pour.

Then you sugar to taste, put in a little warm milk, and drink. You have all the liquid happiness that can be found under heaven.

Furtiva may insist upon refinements of this technique. They may say, for example, that good tea can only be made from free tea leaves, and they may criticize tea bags.

One of their bewilderment jokes: "We mailed some tea bags to our cousins in County Mayo and, not knowing what else to do with them, they hung them at decorations on their Christmas tree."

Actually, of course, all you need to do to make good tea is the mutual association of boiling water, tea leaves — bagged or free — and porcelain.

Waitresses now know this in Damascus, Hong Kong, Gilsburg and Dubuque.

There is a variant known as instant tea made with cold water. It is not new. It was invented in Boston Harbor nearly two centuries ago by a number of unruly colonials dressed as Indians.

Tea is responsible for one of America's most firmly fixed habits.

During World War II our military tourists in Britain were annoyed because the English, even in the throes of battle, would pause at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. to brew tea.

Our Jews have faded. Now no honest workman in our own land can continue on the job without pausing about the same hours for what we call "the coffee break."

There is a difference between tea and coffee beyond the mere matter of taste.

Coffee is for eager heavers who wake up with a guilt complex. They gulp down a cup of murky java and it says to them like a four-alarm bell: "Go, Joe, go! Go go, go!"

Tea is for the philosophers of purpose. Slowly imbibed in the morning, preferably served in bed by a dutiful wife, tea reaches down and pats the turbulent stomach and says in a warm, quiet voice: "Everything's going to be all right. Let us put on our socks one at a time — and don't be rushed into anything. What is eternity, after all, except one day after another?"

Getting a decent cup of tea used to be a complex problem in America. Now it isn't. A good cup of tea tastes the same anywhere. It is cosmopolitan.

Today coffee is complex. Making it is a rite and a mystery. It has become parochial, takes a man half a lifetime to find a place that serves decent coffee, and if he adventures more than 100 miles in any direction he grumbles: "What's the matter with this place? How can they be happy drinking warm mud?"

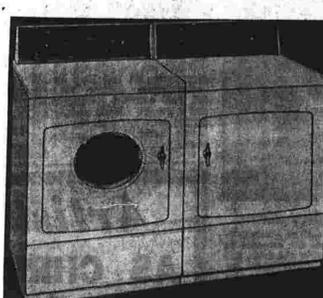

ABANDONED TREES
EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Evergreen trees will be 18,000 pounds of cargo dropped to 13 isolated arctic outposts this week from Royal Canadian Air Force planes. It will be the eighth year the RCAF squadron stationed at Naino has parachuted mail and Christmas presents to the tiny communities.

Toiletries Sale to Benefit Salvation Army Band
Mrs. Ernest V. Payton of The Salvation Army packages articles to be sold in a neighborhood drive scheduled for Friday night. The Salvation Army Band will use the proceeds to purchase new instruments. Robert Richardson, bandmaster and chairman of the drive, has announced that leaflets will be distributed Thursday night in the neighborhoods where the kits will be sold. On Friday night, the Citadel Band will play while other band members canvass the neighborhood offering the kit, which contains a varied assortment of toiletry articles, for a small donation. Richardson has also announced that many neighborhoods will not be contacted during the one-night campaign. He stated that anyone wishing to obtain a kit that is not reached on Friday may contact Capt. Ernest V. Payton, officer in charge, at the Citadel. (Herald photo by Ottara)

Red Military Spending Hike Seen Blow to Disarmament
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet increase of 600 million rubles to step on rubles—$60 million at the government announced it was up military spending about a official exchange rate—over cutting military costs by 266 million, in December 1964. Pre-West disarmament hopes—the figure falls far short of American hopes in military outlays announced a cut of $55 million in the Kremlin's military budget for 1965. Figures for the Soviet budget, however, cannot be compared to U.S. budgets because funds may be allocated to some segment which actually is for something else.

10,000 Names On Yule Cards To Viet Soldiers

TORRINGTON (AP)—Christmas cards with more than 10,000 signatures apiece will soon be on their way to Torrington servicemen stationed in Viet Nam. The idea of getting thousands of messages originated with the local Eagles Lodge. The project has been dubbed "Remember Our GIs in Viet Nam of Christmas."

Sheets of signatures were collected at schools, factories and office buildings throughout the city in recent days. When spliced together, they make a scroll more than 500 feet long. Thanks to duplicating machines in the city clerk's office, one of these whopper scrolls will be made for each Torrington man serving in Viet Nam. About 15 local men are known to be stationed there, a spokesman said today.

$35,000 Authorized
WASHINGTON—Congress has authorized a $35,000 salary for the new secretary of housing and urban development, who will run the 110 cabinet department. He will have an undersecretary earning $28,500, four assistant secretaries and a general counsel making $27,000 each, and a $26,000 assistant secretary for administration.
