Thuy Says U.S. Spreads False Hopes of Peace

Spock Given Two Years, Will Appeal

PARIS (AP)—Ambassador Kuan Thuy, pressing for a quick end to all U.S. attacks on North Vietnam, accused American authorities of having "spread rumors" of progress in the Paris peace talks to serve their own political purposes.

Thuy, denying progress, told U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman that the search going on here for a way toward peace in Vietnam would fall unless the United States halts all attacks on the North at once.

He said he would not be surprised if the United States would "bear the full and entire responsibility" for the war.

Thuy made his latest attack on the U.S. position in the 12th session of the talks which began May 23. The meeting lasted about three hours.

Harriman contradicted Thuy. He told newsmen: "I still maintain there are straws in the wind despite what he says."

Thuy said he would not be surprised if the United States would "bear the full and entire responsibility" for the war.

Tydings to Press For Gun Licenses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., said today that he would press for gun license legislation he will carry the fight directly to the Senate.

Tydings said that if the committee defers action any longer, the only chance of passing a bill at this session would be to offer it as a rider to other legislation already on the Senate calendar.

Pompidou Sidelined by De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Georges Pompidou, premier of France for the longest period in modern times, resigned today in a government shuffle ordered by President Charles de Gaulle.

Pompidou, 57, turned in his resignation after a brief ceremony at the Elysee Palace. He was expected to be succeeded by Maurice Couve de Murville, the present finance minister.

Pompidou had been in power for 6 years, 2 months and 26 days. He was the youngest man to take the job in the 50-year history of the French Republic.

Bible instruction concerning the best way to fight juvenile delinquency will be given at a four-day Watchtower Convention at Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R.I., July 18 through 21.

Neither Dube nor a 22-year-old male passenger in the car was injured, police said. Dube will appear in court July 22.

Lloyd A. Davidson, 45, of 188 Tanner St. also drove his car into a utility pole and a tree as well while driving west on N. Main St. at 1:15 this morning.

Davidson told police he swerved left to avoid hitting a car parked on the right side of the road, and lost control, subsequently crashing into the pole.

That other vehicle sped away. Davidson said, he was neither injured nor charged as a result of the crash.

Hewitts Visit Air Force Son

Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Hewitt of 77 West St. recently returned from a 30-day visit with their son, Lt. Sgt. Christopher Hewitt and his family, in San Bernardino, Calif., where the aviator is stationed after a three-year tour of duty with the Air Force in Madrid, Spain.

Another son, Sgt. Albert G. Hewitt Jr., who recently returned from an 18-month tour of duty with the Air Force in Vietnam, Calif., where the aviator is stationed after a three-year tour of duty with the Air Force in Madrid, Spain.

Two Cars Hit Utility Poles

A 21-year-old Manchester youth was charged with failure to drive right, and issued a written warning for driving after drinking, at 5:50 p.m. yesterday after driving his car into a utility pole at Woodland and Regent Sts.

The youth, Stephen A. Dube of 14 Hudson St., according to police, lost control of his car after crossing railroad tracks and heading west on Woodland St. at a high rate of speed and while driving west on Woodland St. at 1:15 this morning.

Neither Dube nor a 22-year-old male passenger in the car was injured, police said. Dube will appear in court July 22.

Rockefeller Insists On Seeking Survey

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Louis and discussed it further in Nashville, Tenn. Nixon did not respond directly, but an aide said the polling plan would entail a "radical change" in the American political scene and predicted that the convention would be guided in its choice by the presidential primaries, in which Nixon fared well.

Bliss declined to participate in the plan on the ground that the national convention should maintain "complete neutrality" in the White House competition. Rockefeller aides conceded privately that they expected rejection from Nixon and Bliss.

Nixon plans a public reception and speech and a session with Gov. James A. Rhodes and members of the 60-vote Ohio delegation to the Republican National Convention today.

He said he would do no arm twisting, only ask that Ohio delegates consider at the Miami Beach convention what ticket would do the most to help elect him at home in the general election next November.

Nixon, through a spokesman, spurned the suggestion of rival campaigner Nelson A. Rockefeller that the Republican party commission a public opinion survey.

Elephants Trumpet Wind Fells Tent, 85 at Circus Hurt

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—Elephants trumpeted, the wind howled, the tent crashed. State police held up the tent and by 3:00 spectators at the circus Sunday night were injured, but none critically.

Some in the audience said the collapse was preceded by a loose pole under the gale of free members of the circus. Rockefeller aides conceded privately that they expected rejection from Nixon and Bliss.

Police said a lead screen blew away from under the tent, and others were freed when circus workers cut the canvas.

People were crawling on the tent, coughing from swallowed rain water. Circus workers said the tent was damaged to the extent that it could not be used.

Nixon Derides Polls And Delegate Counts

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Richard M. Nixon, scoffing at polls and counting on delegates, is conferring with Ohio Republican leaders in a bid to enhance his already commanding position in the race for the presidential nomination.

Slow Effect Seen From Open Housing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Housing experts anticipate only gradual movement of Negroes into white neighborhoods as a result of a recent Supreme Court decision and passage of the federal open housing law.

The source said the main reason is that most Negroes simply have not moved into the white areas.

Eugene F. Conner, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, agreed and added that moving is slowly and "it takes time for people to find a different location. It's a great inconvenience for people to move."

The open housing provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, passed in May, rule out discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin. It goes into effect in three stages and will cover 80 per cent of the nation's housing by 1970.

The Supreme Court decision, issued June 17, holds that all racial discrimination in sale or rental of housing is illegal. It would have permitted discrimination by an owner of his own home who sells or rents it without the aid of a broker.

How Polls Are Taken

By BRIAN SULLIVAN Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The poll-taker will have a map with an X on it, telling him where to start asking who should be present. But if the X is at a corner house, he'll skip it. The owner is likely to have a little more money than the rest and he might bias the poll.

This is probably sampling, gathering the raw material that is added up, analyzed, weighed and weighted to produce the public opinion poll, for example, what percentage of the American voting public favors Richard M. Nixon for president and what leans to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The importance of the polls has become a central issue in the Nixon-Rockefeller Republican contest and the Democratic fight between Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Hebron CD Survey Next Week

A Civil Defense survey will be held in Hebron beginning July 15 and ending on the 22nd of September. The survey will be a house-to-house survey of the potential of evaluating the potential of individuals for future shelters.

Interviewers will be appointed by the Federal Census Bureau and will be furnished with identification. Those credentials should be requested by house-to-house surveyors before they give out information.

The survey will be done outside the home and only when the family is present.

After they have been analyzed by computers, the results of the survey will be made available to the homeowner and the Civil Defense Director of the town.

No Filling of Pools

The Hebron Volunteer Fire Dept. has announced that it has discontinued the filling of swimming pools. The vote to discontinue this service was taken at the July meeting of the firemen.

As of July 1, the Hebron Volunteer Fire Dept. is located in Hebron Center and Company 2 is located in Lake. Nineteen former members of the Amston Department have joined the Hebron department.

School Board Meeting

The Hebron Board of Education will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Gildas Hill School. The meeting will be held in the kindergarten children will be discussed as will reports of various committees including that of the cafeteria committee.

Supp. of Schools

Announcements are expected to present the names of two teachers for approval of the Board of Education. The Board will also consider a number of vacancies including that of principal of the Hebron Elementary School.

Town Clerk's Vacation

Mrs. Gladys T. Mizer, town clerk, will take a week's vacation beginning July 15. Mrs. Edw. A. Smith, assistant town clerk, will be at the office during the usual hours.

Tax Payments

Mrs. Monica C. Post, tax collector, will be at the Town Office Building Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon to receive payments on taxes. Payments may be made daily at Mrs. Post's home on East St. or may be mailed to her.

Slow Effect Seen From Open Housing

Under the open housing law, individuals can file complaints with HUD. The agency then sends out its investigators.

If HUD finds discrimination, it will take some time to bring about full compliance.

And National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has decided to foster what its general counsel, Robert Carter, calls "a massive number of suits" to test both the court decision and the new law.

Rockefeller Insists On Seeking Survey

The Rockefeller men said they probably would settle on the latter plan which they acknowledged could be more favorable to them.

When asked by newsmen whether he was prepared to order a poll on his own, Rockefeller said Tuesday he would do so to the degree that he can raise the money to pay for it.

He said it would cost at least $5,000 per state, an average Rockefeller firm in Louisville has a turnover of $10 million.

Tolland County Superior Court

The case of a Manchester man charged with theft of a motor vehicle, breaking and entering with criminal intent, and tampering with a motor vehicle, was continued for remandation in Hartford Superior Court yesterday.

In any event, officials expect it will take some time to bring about full compliance.

Richard L. Ruddle, 29, whose last reported address was the Veterans Hospital in West Haven, has several cases pending against him in Hartford Superior Court, including one involving a charge of arson in connection with a $20,000 fire at Manchester Toot and Design Co. July 6, 1967.

In companion cases, Ernest W. Cox, 14, of Springfield, Mass., and John E. Hughes Jr., 17, of Holyoke, Mass., pleaded guilty to breaking and entering with criminal intent and over $250 but less than $2,000. Their cases were continued to Aug. 12 for a presentence investigation. A break at the Sport Shop in West Hartford.

Linda J. Blair, 16, of Wilburham, pleaded guilty to forgery. Charges of conspiracy and obtaining money by false pretenses were noted.

In a companion case, Susan J. Jones, 21, of Wilburham, pleaded guilty to obtaining money by false pretenses, and charges of forgery and conspiracy were noted. Both cases were continued to Aug. 12 for presentence investigation.

Also continued to Aug. 12 for presentence investigation was the case of James J. Hughes, 18, of Springfield, Mass., after he pleaded guilty to two counts of breaking and entering with criminal intent, and larceny less than $15, and a charge of larceny over $15 but less than $250.

The population of the city of Chicago is about 2,537,300.

Elephants Trumpet Wind Fells Tent, 85 at Circus Hurt

Flashed knives as they ripped at the canvas to free as many elephants as they could. Elephants followed in the background," he said.

"Glancing along the collapsed side of the tent one could see people constantly crawling from beneath the canvas....

"People reached out everywhere to lend a hand in getting out. Some helped others to their feet....

Jim Plugh, who was trapped beneath the circus tent for about five minutes after the collapse, said.

"I looked up and saw the center pole coming toward us and started to go out and I grabbed the child of a friend in my arms and started down....

"Then the pole was all the way out and swinging. We made it to the ground, dodging the swinging poles....

Controversies Nurture Civil Liberties Union

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A senator campaigning for a presidential nomination is slain, and the American Civil Liberties Union promptly goes to the aid of the accused.

A famed baby doctor is accused of conspiracy to counsel violation of the draft law. The ACLU involves itself.

A teacher is charged with violating a state law forbidding the teaching of evolution. The ACLU involves itself.

For 48 years, the ACLU has been embroiled itself as a self-appointed defender of the Bill of Rights.

Controversy has nurtured the organization which now claims a national membership of 125,000 and operates on an annual budget of $2.2 million.

Where is a headliner? The ACLU estimates its paid staff at 115,000. Directors of state affiliates range from less than $10,000 to $100,000 annually.

Many shades of political opinion are reflected in ACLU's membership who include businessmen, lawyers, teachers, legislators, clergymen, journalists, authors, white collar workers, trade unionists, housewives and students. Rittman estimates that the ACLU has 100,000 members and lobbying in state legislatures from coast to coast of thousands of miles. These range from anti-bureaucratic and right-to-life activists to the ACLU's support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

In what came as a surprise to some members and many outside the ACLU, directors this month employed federal gun control legislation on grounds that freedom to bear arms must be sacrificed "to the more important freedom of free and equal participation."

The vote was 100 to 20.

Another resolution proposed government subsidy for public broadcasting "to foster diversity of the airwaves." Another advocated "a guaranteed income as a matter of right."

Whether these recommendations become national policy rests with the nation's 80-member Board of Directors, which may adopt or reject conference actions, despite the fact this organization has battled for "one-man, one-vote" principle in the public realm.

In 1965, five years after its founding, the ACLU became involved in one of the most famous cases in American legal history: the Scopes Monkey Trial in Tennessee. Clarence Darrow was the ACLU's volunteer, unpaid counsel defending what the union claimed was an infringement on free speech.

John T. Scopes, a schoolteacher, was charged with violating a Tennessee law forbidding the teaching of evolution. Darrow lost to William Jennings Bryan, setting an special precedent. Scopes was fined $100, but the State Supreme Court reversed the verdict on a technicality.

The law, although often flouted, stood until its repeal by the 1967 Tennessee General Assembly.

Among the latest trials in which the ACLU has involved itself was that of Dr. Fred Lee Spock, pediatrician-author, and four others accused of conspiracy to counsel violation of the Selective Service Act. That, too, was lost in the lower courts, but is being appealed.

When Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was arrested in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., the counsel for ACLU's Southern California chapter, A. L. Wirth, went to Sirhan in which Wirth denounced as a move to safeguard Sirhan's rights and help him find a lawyer to represent him.

A few years ago within the space of 48 hours, ACLU attorneys were defending members of the Dr. Bites club, who registered as Communists from organization, and the constitutional rights of George Lincoln Rockwell, American Nazi Party leader who later was shot to death by one of his former assistants.

In the great majority of suits in which it imposes itself, the ACLU does so as a "friend of the court" and limits itself to the defense of the accused's constitutional rights.

The ACLU has been a participant in several landmark decisions coming from the Supreme Court in recent months.

Among those in which it was on the winning side:

- Federally funded aid cannot be denied dependent children on the grounds that a mother's illicit relations with their mother.
- That an 1868 civil rights act bars all racial discrimination in public as well as public, in the sale and rental of property.
- Lovers have included:
  - Establishment of a policeman's right to "stop and frisk"
  - The upholding of a New York law requiring public school students to lead bookends outside schools to lead bookends to children in parochial or other private schools.
  - While it has been generating controversy at an increased rate in recent years, the ACLU has been growing under the executive directorship of John S. Pomeroy, a 46-year-old Quaker lawyer from North Carolina, via the Harvard Law School and the State of Minnesota.

Group Opposes Hospital Plan In Bridgeport

NEW HAVEN (AP)—A proposed $200,000 obstetrical wing for Park City Hospital in Bridgeport would result in unnecessary duplication of services, the Connecticut Hospital Planning Commission has declared.

The commission said adequate obstetric facilities already exist in Bridgeport area hospitals. And, it said in a report Tuesday the number of births in the Bridgeport area is declining despite an increase in population.

The commission, with headquarters here, is a voluntary body composed of health, welfare, insurance and business leaders in Connecticut. It screens hospital-expansion proposals to help hospital development planning in the state.

"Even without further bed additions in Bridgeport area hospitals the commission noted, the projected optimistic total of 7,075 births by 1980 and 7,816 births by the year 2000 will be well within the 1968 capabilities of Bridgeport Hospital and St. Vincent's Hospital.

The commission said it has discussed its findings with officials of Park City Hospital in an effort to discontinue the hospital from adding the wing.

Welcome To The Insecurity

While the "good guys" of the nuclear age nations like the United States, British and Soviet Russia — sign proliferation treaties and abide by previous treaty agreements...

It is wicked, this is horrible, this is to be condemned and regretted. But the sad truth is that some of the nuclear "good guys" have very much more to offer than France.

If any one of them were the position of France, the chances are almost total that they would do exactly what France is doing, but probably with much more aplomb and haste.

The United States, a long time ago, 22 years ago, in fact, had a momentary opportunity to make its own decision about what kind of a world it wanted the nuclear world to be.

It was in the summer of 1946 that, presumably still possessed of a world monopoly of atomic weapons and knowledge which it had demonstrated 10 months before at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the United States undertook its first extensive post-war series of atomic tests out in the Pacific.

It was not chosen to be bound by any particular formula or program. It will take us quite a time to get tired of just watching the monkeys and the birds.

Later on, we were offering to Russia, as the nation everyone could concede would be the nation most anxious to develop its own nuclear armaments, a one-way bargain of a type we would never have taken ourselves.

That is about as generous as the bargain we and Russia together, in more recent days, have been offering to France. If France and other nations will only agree to accept our present monopoly, we agree to see they are not denied the benefits of peaceful nuclear energy.

We have no moral position, then, Russia and we, from which to lecture France, or pressure France not to go ahead with its own complete drive to do what we would be doing if we were in France's position.

What we do have to offer France — and what is all we really do have to show France as a persuader toward wisdom — is the spectacle of our own trouble and unhappiness and insecurity in the status of full nuclear powers.

If France is trying to get where we are, then the most sobering thing that could happen to France is that it get a good look at us, just where we are, trembling and insecure and gull-laden under our own mushroom. Then France might be able to look forward toward the end of its scheduled series of tests and realize what a tremendous privilege it would be claiming for itself if it could possibly develop the power not to set off that hydrogen bomb which is supposed to provide the climax of France's self-conducted nuclear ritual.

But we ourselves have no right to sermonize to France. All we can say is welcome to the club, which since the war, welcome to the insecurity.

One Election We Won

We Americans may not know how we are ever going to get through our own election here next November, but we have just won an election anyway. The election which has been a success for us was held in Japan, and it was a success for us because the people of Japan, without the treatment of those candidates who were trying to capitalize on anti-Americanism.

Instead, with small increases of power for some fringe groups, the Japanese elections to the Senate offered a routine endorsement to Premier Bato, who is pro-American in most important matters.

None of the irritations present in the relationship between our two countries has been over our military presence, or our use of Japan as a way station for traffic to and from the war in Vietnam, or our refusal to turn Okinawa back to Japan — operated to produce enough votes against us to turn the election from its domestic focus.

When they refused to be persuaded to note against us, the Japanese people, were left with the rather pleasant and inviting alternative of voting for a regime which is identified with unprejudiced national property and and unprejudiced industrial development.

Peace, stability, and property are attractive enough to any electorate in any situation; they must seem doubly attractive as an island specialty in the turbulent world of today.

Our Future Siniavian Labor Force

We know better, by this time, than to discount reports such as that which says that an animal psychologist out in Anahaim may be only a few years away from impressing monkeys into the national labor force.

This, says Animal Psychologist Don Smith, would free us mortals for more intellectual pursuits.

"In 10 years or so," he says, "I intend to condition various monkeys and apes for use in industrial settings. They can easily be taught assembly techniques and inspection tasks. They also could be trained to harvest crops."

He also believes they can be trained to take pay for their work, and, indeed, regard the pay as an incentive. "More than 20 years ago," he says, "scientists discovered that monkeys can evaluate. You reward them with coins for doing what you want them to do. They learn to want the coins for something they want in turn — food and knickknacks that attract them."

If we are going to accept the inevitability of the proposal, there is one thing we should deny the other incidental possibility offered by the same Mr. Smith. Birds, too, says he, have a "potential" for taking over certain human functions.

So that too we believe, and expect to have come to pass.

As for the major problem involved, that of what human beings shall really do with ourselves when we have both the monkeys and the birds trained to do our work for us — the higher intellectual life is this Mr. Smith's formula for us — we would not choose to be bound by any particular formula or program. It will take us quite a time to get tired of just watching the monkeys and the birds.

Liquor Prices Stay Up

If repeal of Massachusetts' minimum-price law would save consumers $30 million a year as Gov. Volpe says, why would the House reject such a boon to the public by the narrow margin of 139 to 97?

The Massachusetts Consumers Council, established to protect the interests of the individual buyer, sponsored the bill to remove the pricing provisions that have, in effect, supported the price of bottled liquors sold at retail in the state ever since the law enacted in 1933 at the end of Prohibition.

So when the House turned down the bill this week, the powerful committee, as usual, suffered a blow and the politically potent liquor industry retained the benefits of peaceful nuclear energy.

We even promise that if some wicked nuclear power should attack them, we would attack the wicked one.

What we do have to offer France — and what is all we really do have to show France as a persuader toward wisdom — is the spectacle of our own trouble and unhappiness and insecurity in the status of full nuclear powers.

If France is trying to get where we are, then the most sobering thing that could happen to France is that it get a good look at us, just where we are, trembling and insecure and gull-laden under our own mushroom. If we are going to accept the inevitability of the proposal, there is one thing we should deny the other incidental possibility offered by the same Mr. Smith. Birds, too, says he, have a "potential" for taking over certain human functions.

So that too we believe, and expect to have come to pass.

As for the major problem involved, that of what human beings shall really do with ourselves when we have both the monkeys and the birds trained to do our work for us — the higher intellectual life is this Mr. Smith's formula for us — we would not choose to be bound by any particular formula or program. It will take us quite a time to get tired of just watching the monkeys and the birds.

Liquor Prices Stay Up

If repeal of Massachusetts' minimum-price law would save consumers $30 million a year as Gov. Volpe says, why would the House reject such a boon to the public by the narrow margin of 139 to 97?

The Massachusetts Consumers Council, established to protect the interests of the individual buyer, sponsored the bill to remove the pricing provisions that have, in effect, supported the price of bottled liquors sold at retail in the state ever since the law enacted in 1933 at the end of Prohibition.

So when the House turned down the bill this week, the powerful committee, as usual, suffered a blow and the politically potent liquor industry retained the benefits of peaceful nuclear energy.

We even promise that if some wicked nuclear power should attack them, we would attack the wicked one.

What we do have to offer France — and what is all we really do have to show France as a persuader toward wisdom — is the spectacle of our own trouble and unhappiness and insecurity in the status of full nuclear powers.

If France is trying to get where we are, then the most sobering thing that could happen to France is that it get a good look at us, just where we are, trembling and insecure and gull-laden under our own mushroom. Then France might be able to look forward toward the end of its scheduled series of tests and realize what a tremendous privilege it would be claiming for itself if it could possibly develop the power not to set off that hydrogen bomb which is supposed to provide the climax of France's self-conducted nuclear ritual.

But we ourselves have no right to sermonize to France. All we can say is welcome to the club, which since the war, welcome to the insecurity.

Our Future Siniavian Labor Force

We know better, by this time, than to discount reports such as that which says that an animal psychologist out in Anahaim may be only a few years away from impressing monkeys into the national labor force.

This, says Animal Psychologist Don Smith, would free us mortals for more intellectual pursuits.

"In 10 years or so," he says, "I intend to condition various monkeys and apes for use in industrial settings. They can easily be taught assembly techniques and inspection tasks. They also could be trained to harvest crops."

He also believes they can be trained to take pay for their work, and, indeed, regard the pay as an incentive. "More than 20 years ago," he says, "scientists discovered that monkeys can evaluate. You reward them with coins for doing what you want them to do. They learn to want the coins for something they want in turn — food and knickknacks that attract them."

Manchester in Days Gone By

(Note: The following article is an abridgment of a paper on the Wyllys Copper Mine at Highland Park prepared by Dr. Charles Jacobson. This report is the result of the most extensive research ever done on the history of mining in Manchester. Copies of the full text have been filed with the Manchester Historical Society and the Connecticut Historical Society of Hartford.)

THE WYLLYS COPPER MINE

The presence of a copper mine in the Highland Park area of Manchester has been known for years, and many of the town's older citizens can recall exploring in the horizontal shaft which has its opening along the bank of the Birch Mountain Brook. It has been called the Wyllys Copper Mine because it is on the property held at one time by Ephraim Wyllys, who owned a considerable amount of land in the area, and for whom Wyllys is named. Ephraim Wyllys has been assumed to be a descendant of George Wyllys of Hartford, one of the early governors of Connecticut, but definite genealogical proof of this association has not been established.

Spies and Bidwell, in their history of Manchester, mention the Wyllys Copper mine in two places. The first is in the chapter on Indians, where reference is made "to a deed of the company mine." Unfortunately, a careful search of the town records of Hartford failed to reveal any mention of a deed to a copper mine, and the origin of this information is presently unknown. Apparently the mine was in a section south of Highland Park where three Yodanis Indian women sold land to Richard Burnham in 1873. In this connection it is interesting to note that the General Court at Hartford in 1860 had ordered that "no white man should buy any land of the Indians, in order to avoid misunderstandings." However, by such purchase the whites later became "speculators" and were taken into account in the distribution of lands in the "Five Mile Tract."

The second mention of the copper mine in the Spies-Bidwell history is in the chapter on Colonial Life in Orford Parish. "A copper mine at Highland Park had been in operation previous to the year 1782, Governor Thomas Pritch, in his letter to the Commissioners of Trade and Plantations dated September 7th of that year, writes: 'Some copper mines have been in diverse parts of the Colony opened, but after considerable expense and labor, proving unprofitable to those who have the temerity came wholly neglected.' There was another copper mine in Bolton, owned by the Rev. Timothy Woodbridge, which he mentions in his will. The copper mine at Highland Park and lands adjacent were reserved in the original distribution of land, and held as state property for many years."

In the year 1683 the Five Mile Tract, later to be known as Orford Parish (1770) and still later as Manchester (1823), was purchased from Chief Jostan, the third son of the Mohagan sachem Uncas, by Major Talcott of Hartford, acting for a group of Hartford and Windsor merchants. In 1682 the tract was deeded to the town of Hartford. Nothing is known of this land until 1731, when it was divided into five tiers and distributed to the proprietors. On a map in the Town Hall at Manchester, dated 1731, the mine lot is indicated by tier two, abutting the property of Mr. Holyoak and Samuel Boston. In a subsequent media- tion of the land in 1733 the place where the copper mine was to remain undivided "to lay for the general benefit of the proprietors."

It is apparent from the foregoing history of the Highland Park area of Manchester that the presence of copper ore was known in the late 17th century and that the ore was probably worked by some one unknown in the early 18th century. No records are in existence of any company organized for mining purposes in this area prior to the year 1848, despite the abundant evidence that mining efforts had been made before that date.

Interest in mining in New England dates back at least to 1661 when John Winthrop, Esquire, of Pequot (New London) wrote a letter encouraging the search for minerals and metals in the Connecticut Colony, and specifically mentioned the presence of lead near Lynn, Massachusetts, and of iron near Newbury.

The difficulty of mining in Manchester in the early seventeenth century may be appreciated by citing a bit of the history of the Simebury mine from Osborne's History of Connecticut:

"In 1707 the famous Simebury or Granby, then part of Simebury — copper mine was discovered and granted the first mining charter in America. It was worked for seventy years but with more adversity than success, in spite of the richness of the ore. Because of imperfect knowledge and machinery, lack of drainage and the cost of pumping which was carried hundred dollars a year for water power, rights of way and other surface rights, and to be indemnified for any unnecessary damage to his fences and crops.

A few months later, January 18, 1848, Isaac Barber assigned his lease to Augustus Whitlock and Frederick Hemmell of the city and state of New York, trustees of the Manchester Mining Company, to which corporation the Wyllys Copper Mine was transferred on September 28th, 1848. So far as can be ascertained, the Manchester Mining Company filed no financial reports and in 1860 it was liquidated for its failure to make such reports. There is no record of what the company did at its liquidation.

This article is one of the series prepared for publication by the public information committee of the Manchester Historical Society. The committee will welcome any further information on the subjects discussed in the articles, or suggestions for topics for later treatment. Communications should be addressed to the following: William E. Buckley, 560 E. Center St., or Arthur H. Hing, 153 Foster St.

A spokesman for Harold's Club said Tuesday Miss Clooney was scheduled to appear at that downtown Reno casino until July 8 but walked off stage during her performance Monday night.

A week ago Miss Clooney announced she would discontinue night club performances after the Harold's Club engagement but would continue to make records and television appearances.

IN THE SWIM GARY, Ind. (AP) — For eight days and two hours, 25 determined Gary high school and college students swam non-stop today to set a marathon swim mark. By taking one-hour turns, the youths completed more than 42,000 laps in an outdoor 26 1/2-foot heated pool, a distance of more than 225 miles.

This feat is a record set by 25 Redwood, Calif., youths who covered only 272 miles in the same time — 114 hours.

Bailey Says Party May Move Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Efforts to settle a telephone strike took on added urgency today after the first indication by the Democratic National Committee chairman that labor troubles may force the party's convention out of Chicago.

Negotiators said they were ready to resume talks with Mayor Richard J. Daley present in efforts to end a 64-day strike against Illinois Bell Telephone Co. by some 11,800 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

And there was a threatened nationwide strike by 24,000 Communications Workers of America long-line employees against American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Bell's parent corporation, which would curtail long-distance service and hamper interstate television transmission.

A secret vote on whether to strike was conducted by CWA locals across the nation Tuesday. The unofficial vote by 1,200 at Chicago was reported as 28 to 23 against strike action in New York Tuesday, a CWA spokesman said a national vote was running 3 to 1 in favor of asking the union's governing board to call a walkout.

John M. Bailey, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, indicated Tuesday for the first time that party leaders are considering moving the convention.

Bolton Drain Bid Awarded

Ernest Reed and Son of Bolton was the low bidder for construction of the curtain drain for the new elementary school. The construction of the drain was approved at the last town meeting. Work on the drain will start as soon as the land is surveyed and cleared.

The party has a contract with the city of Chicago and already spent large sums of money on the convention site, called Douglas Cheney, South Rd. after 9 p.m.

The next meeting of the PBC is scheduled for Monday.

No Plan Story

Dana Drapkin of Johnson Rd., isn't telling fish stories nationwide Workers of America long-line employees against American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Bell's parent corporation, which would curtail long-distance service and hamper interstate television transmission.

Nixon Derides Polls And Delegate Counts

convention vote in this column. It will take off to name the Republican nominee. Rockefeller, the AP tabulation showed, now has 193 delegates.

Rhodes and the delegation he is to lead as a favorite opponent of Nixon's.

Nixon said Congress should consider immediate legislation for such mandatory prison terms and the status should consider action along identical lines. "Such legislation—and it would have to be enacted at the state level to be truly effective—would be directed toward and would fall with decisive impact upon the estimated 115,000 professional criminals in this country, particularly the multiple offenders who are responsible for most of the crimes of violence and brutality," Nixon's statement said.

"The effect of these laws would be either to disarm them or to imprison them, leaving society safer," he said.

A family picnic for area McCarthy supporters will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Anderson's home on Long Hill Rd., Andover. The picnic is being sponsored by the Andover Democratic Town Committee, with proceeds being donated to the McCarthy campaign.

Reservations for the picnic should be made with Mrs. Dennis Keenan of Andover by tomorrow.

Gordon and Betty MacDonald, last night's performers at Eugene East, left from Andover. The picnic is being sponsored by their folk singing and artistic pursuits. The couple are professional muralists.

Hooley Chairman

Thomas E. Aborn of Mansfield, manager of the University of Connecticut Student Union, has been appointed as Mansfield Chairman of the Hooley for State Senator from the 36th District (Pittsford County).

The United States and China are the world's largest producers of soybeans.

County Politics Anderson Is Stand-in For Newman

Second Congressional District McCarthy for President leader, Gerald Anderson of Andover, has been appointed as Paul Newman's alternate to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago next month.

Anderson views his stand-in role for the actor with anticipation mixed with amusement.

The appointments were announced yesterday by State and National Chairman John Bailey. McCarthy forces garnered nine delegates and nine alternates to the convention, a compromise from the 13 they claimed they were entitled to, based on proportional representation.

Two meetings are scheduled for tonight at the office building. The Board of Finance and the Conservation Committee will both meet at 8.

Hebron members attending the tour are invited to bring lunch boxes for a picnic supper to be held after 5 p.m. in case of inclement weather which makes outdoor picnicking unfeasible. Lunches will be brought to Brit's Mill on Rt. 66 Hebron for an indoor picnic.

The tour is being held at the home of Mrs. Frank Hartzke, president of the Lebanon Historical Society, 10 St. St. is attending an Ecumenical Church Music Conference at the Craigville Inn Conference Center, United Church of Christ, in Craigville, Mass. near Hyannis.

Tydings to Press For Gun Licenses

The House Rules Committee Tuesday cleared for floor action a bill to prohibit the interstate mail-order sale of shotguns and rifles.

Before doing so, the committee won a promise from Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, to oppose any effort to add on registration and licensing provisions.

Tydings' bill is similar to President Johnson's proposal. The difference being Tydings' bill would require federal registration and licensing only in states that fail to enact substantially equivalent legislation.

The administration bill provides for federal registration of shotguns but the licensing of gun owners would be left to the states if they pass legislation meeting federal standards.

The bill cleared by the House Rules Committee, by a reported 185 vote, would extend to rifles and shotguns the restrictions on sales of handguns provided in the recently passed crime control measure.

Another provision would prohibit the over-the-counter sale of rifles and shotguns in a state to nonresidents unless the purchaser comes from a state with an adjoining border.

Thus, a resident of Iowa could buy a gun in Nebraska, but not in Colorado.

The bill also would ban interstate sales of ammunition and persons under 21. Under the original Johnson bill, handguns may not be sold to persons under 21, but the House is expected to take up the bill later in the week, under the rule permitting membership in the House to be allowed to delay action on outlawing interstate sales.

This is the measure first proposed by President Johnson. He later urged Congress to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of owners-but he said this proposal should be allowed to delay action on outlawing interstate sales.

Hebron Historians Plan Tour

The members of the Hebron Historical Society have been invited to tour historical Lebanon Green on Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. The tour will include Trumbull House, the War Office, Wadsworth Stables and the Congregational Church which is newly-restored after damage by hurricanes.

The invitation to make the tour was extended by Mrs. Frank Hartzke, president of the Lebanon Historical Society. The church has among its many unique features a raised pulpit and slave galleries. The Wadsworth Stables were moved to Lebanon from Hartford and reassembled exactly as they were when used by George Washington for stabling his horses and housing his carriages.

Hebron members attending the tour are invited to bring lunch boxes for a picnic supper to be held after 5 p.m. in case of inclement weather which makes outdoor picnicking unfeasible. Lunches will be brought to Brit's Mill on Rt. 66 Hebron for an indoor picnic.

Norell Styles Both Daring And Demure

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Demure by day. Daring by dark. That was the message from Norman Norell in his fall collection.

The black-tie audience applauded enthusiastically over the simple lines and good design of daytime coats and dress ensembles and suits, featuring capes or necked shawl collars, intricate waist, bolero, asymmetrical and turtle-neck jersey blouses.

But they eyed their appetites for the evening collection — be-jeweled and be-acquainted silks and satins, little black "nothing" dresses turned into "something" with rhinestones and lace mid-cropes.

Hemlines for day stayed just about two inches above the knee. Norell's experiment with the midi for his spring collection apparently was just that — an experiment.

Costs were double brained, fitted or belted, and trimmed with flap pockets. Buttons ran up the side of the sleeves — just like on a man's suit.

Taking the ever-popular cape and giving it a special Norell touch, the designer showed huge, circular collars, standing out over the shoulders and leaving the neck unbuttoned. Some of jersey blouses peep out.

Dresses were simple, but shaped to the figure. Several had self-belts, other extra wide or extra narrow. Other dresses had slightly raised, gathered waists — almost a medieval look.

For evening, Norell took pity on the budget-minded customer who felt that after they've bought one of his dresses — they run into four figures — they just don't want to spend on new gowns.

He put the jewels right on the dress, sewing rectangular stones of every color in the shape of Maltese crosses hung from mock ribbons on gowns of silk and satin.

Equally eye-catching were sequin-covered dresses of every style, including several with Coach-like shirts — high collared, loosely matched and fur-trimmed — looking long; all skirts.

But the real show stopper — a surprise coming from the usually conservative Norell — were the little black crepes.

One dress featured inverted triangles — and a little derriere décolletage.

Another, a two-piece dress, left the midriff — from the bottom of the bust to the top of the hipbones — completely bare. The jeweled touch here was a single jewel tucked into the model's hair in her navel. Unfortunately, the jewel popped out.

Ads Advise Ways to Cure Urban Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — "If you're short of help, try an exorcist."

"If you're looking for a new plant site, try the nearest ghetto."

"All the time you spend yacking about the 'youth problem' you could be doing something about it."

These are headlines to some of the advertisements soon to appear in newspapers and public notices throughout the country as part of a series of campaigns by the Advertising Council. The campaigns are aimed at encouraging citizens and corporate involvement in helping to solve the nation's racial and urban crisis.

One of the advertisements, sponsored by Urban America, Inc., tells how Lockheed Aircraft included persons with police records in its hiring and training program and helped solve its own labor problems.

Urban America, Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the social and physical environment in the nation's cities, also tells how IBM is bringing employment to the slums by converting an old warehouse in Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant district into a computer cable factory.

"Many other companies are doing the same. So can you," the advertisements say.

Advertisements sponsored by the President's Council on Youth Opportunity suggest how individuals can help by developing recreational activities and entertainment for youth and volunteering to teach new skills.

Robert J. Keim, president of the Advertising Council, said the four-pronged attack on the American domestic crisis is the most massive project ever mounted by his organization in its 26-year history.

The council is a nonprofit organization which conducts national advertising campaigns for the public good. Its operating budget of about $700,000 a year comes from funds supplied from companies in the advertising-communications industry.

Charges Dropped
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Authorities have discontinued one of two charges against a pe-dant from Voluntown, Conn., who was arrested after a scuffle with the police at last year's Newport Festival.
Lou Warriner, 26, had been charged with failing to move for a police officer and with assaulting a police officer. He was bound over to the grand jury on the second charge.
In district court here Tuesday, Judge Arthur J. Sullivan said he discontinued the first charge "because it was on too long and because they weren't moving either way on it." The case had been continued 22 times since last July 15.

Beauty Queen Tells Why She Entered

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —
The beauty contest business is just a better job than working as a bank cashier for 200 a week.

That's the reason Jennifer Summers of England gives for entering the contest that gave her a national title and a shot at the crown of Miss Universe 1968. Jennifer is a former cashier who earned seven pounds and 10 shillings weekly at her bank job.

She declines most getting up at 6 a.m. during the pageant week for endless rehearsals and interviews before Saturday night's selection of a winner.
But she does it because the winner of the Miss Universe title gets $100,000 in cash, a $10,000 service contract, a $7,500 fur coat and other prizes in addition to a world tour.

Jennifer said she once thought girls in beauty contests were stupid and she had a boyfriend who told her she wasn't pretty enough to win a contest.
"Once I got into it and started to make money I didn't care if they were stupid," Jennifer said in an interview at Miami Beach Auditorium where she and 84 other girls prepared for today's bathing suit semifinals and the award for best native contestant.

In England I've made more money than in everyday work through the personal appearance and such of the contests," said Jennifer. "But being nice all the time, being polite all the time. Nobody can do it all the time."
Jennifer, 22, is from Warrington, England. She is blonde and blue-eyed. Her 56-36-36 hourglass figure is draped on a 5-foot-7 frame. She weighs 130 pounds.

The pounds may come from food at the pageant. Arthur Teichner, caterer for the Miss Universe Pageant, said, "I don't know the reason but this year the girls are eating much more. Everybody is supposed to want to be thin but the plates in the United States were running on pneumatic tires, but almost all trucks were still using solid tires."

How Polls Are Taken

sample areas—city blocks or segments of townships—for conducting interviews. The sample areas, Gallup said, are chosen at random—"almost virtually drawn from a hat."

Each interviewer, one to a district, contacts about five to 10 interviewees. The Gallup people said, "approximates the adult civilian population."

"It doesn't matter if we use 5,000 30,000, 100,000 or 3 million," said Louis Harris, another major poll-taker. "A sample of 2,000 or 3,000 is as reliable as a sample many times that number."

The Harris poll taking is usually on about 2,000 which holds down to about 1,000 after screening, ending with about the same size sample as the Gallup operation.

Both Gallup and Harris plan two more national surveys on the relative Nixon and Rockefeller strength before the Aug. 5 GOP National Convention in Miami Beach. They will involve different samples of the population.

Gallup said he would not conduct a poll for the Republicans such as urged by Rockefeller. Harris said he hadn't been asked and would have to wait until he was before deciding. He said it could be viewed as a public service.

"Polls are inanimate, dead objects," Harris emphasized, "and talking about their effects on politics. They are reflective of the thinking of the people we interview."

"I've always regarded myself," Gallup said, "as a neutral scorekeeper and nothing more. The fact that polls are important points to the very obvious weaknesses in the whole election system. The American people would like to change the system by which we select and elect our leaders."

Columbia Two Score At Weekend Canoe Meet

Two of the best Canoe Club members, Beth Verpuskas and Peter Olson, brought back an impressive total of 19 points to the club after participating in a meet at the Fairview Basin Championships at Brookline last weekend.

Verpuskas won the 5,000 meter K1 for women and the 500 meter K1 women's open. Olson was first in the 500 meter K1 junior men and second in the K1 5,000 meter race.

Other local canoeists entered the fifth annual Nathan Hale Canoe Jamboe which features only standard and war canoes. The local club hosted the jamboe held at Mansfield Hollow Dam over the weekend.

Clubs were entered from Washington, D.C., Mount Vernon, Va., Cohasset, Mass., and Watford, Mass. They were ranked up the best score, 192 points.

Zoning Permits Permits amounting to $85,500 were issued by the agent for the zoning board during June. They went to Sam Pescatello, two houses on Yeomans Rd. and one on Rt. 66 and Johnson Rd. in East Hampton.

School Bias Claimed in Norwalk Suit

NEW HAVEN (AP)—In an effort to stop alleged policies of discrimination against low-income Negroes and Puerto Ricans, two organizations have filed suit against the Norwalk Board of Education.

The Norwalk chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and the Rooder Court Fair Rent Association have filed suit in U.S. District Court here, it was learned Tuesday.

The suit alleges that the board, "under the guise of being committed to conducting racially balanced and integrated schools," has established a double standard based solely on race and color, which provides a "neighborhood school" system in white neighborhoods.

According to the suit, the board's policy denies the plaintiffs the right to attend a neighborhood school and instead forces them to be transported to white "neighborhood schools" purported to racially balance and integrate them.

The plaintiffs claim to represent income black & Puerto Rican citizens of Norwalk whose

Blindness Averted

NEW YORK — In 1968, 25 per cent of all the children in schools for the blind had been needlessly afflicted—by birth or by opthalmia neonatorum, also called "lambert sore eyes." There it was learned that by putting silver nitrate drops in the newborn's eyes the blinding disease could be prevented.

SPAIN USING MORE MEAT MADRID—Spain's annual per capita consumption of meat has risen to about 60 pounds—more than 25 per cent higher than in 1967, it was learned Tuesday.

Comely MP Is 'Narker' To Watch

LONDON (AP) — Winifred Ewing was a noted narker in Glasgow before she became the only Scottish Nationalist in the House of Commons. "And now that I'm at Westminster," she says, "I mean to keep on narking."

In Britain, to nark is to nag, scold, annoy or irritate. Mrs. Ewing, a vivacious blonde, narks mostly about home rule for Scotland. She has managed to irritate some members of Parliament and her election victory annoyed Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party.

When Mrs. Ewing first appeared as a member of Commons, she and the speaker, Dr. Horace King, shook hands as a parliamentary protocol provides.

A good-humored chant came from some MPs: "Kim her, Kim her!"

"Order, order!" chided Dr. King amiably. "Honorable members have no right to be jealous."

There was no kissing. Later King gravely told Mrs. Ewing it looked as if she might have been guilty of a breach of parliamentary privilege.

For such an offense, akin to contempt of court, the Commons can send offenders to jail or detain them in the Commons Clock Tower until they petition for release.

In a letter to The Scotsman newspaper in Edinburgh, Mrs. Ewing had asserted that some MPs are more often in the bars of the Commons than engaged in active lawmaking.

"A gross libel," fumed Scottish Laborite William Hanson, a noted narker. He proposed parliamentary action against Mrs. Ewing. She apologized and the matter was dropped.

Unquestionably, the slim and charming Winifred Ewing, a lawyer by profession and the mother of three children, has made enemies as well as friends at Westminster.

To many members, she is a refreshing, witty personality who knows how to wear smart clothes and knows how to speak. London Scots recently chose her as narker of the year.

To others, notably to quite a few Scottish Labor members, Mrs. Ewing is a woman like an onion of doom.

Her astonishing victory in the Labor stronghold of Hamilton in last November's special by-election means that no Scottish Labor seat is safe from the Nationalist at the next general election. And the Labor government depends on those Scottish Labor seats.

At the next election the Scottish Nationalist will contest the 12 seats in Scotland," says Mrs. Ewing. "We need to win only 36, which I am sure we can do, and that will be an overwhelming mandate for Scottish freedom."

William Ross, the four secretary of state for Scotland, and other critics of the Scottish Nationalist contend an independent Scotland doesn't make sense.

"Willi Ross is the Scottish Nationalist party's finest recruiting sergeant," says Mrs. Ewing. "He calls us the Scottish Nark party."

In Commons and on the radio Mrs. Ewing argues that the Scots have fewer jobs and get lower pay than English workers and points to "the dreadful scandal" that 45,000 of our best Scottish citizens emigrate every year.

"The tables more questionable than any other member of Commons. One day she asked 89 Her aim is to elicit official answers that she claims will prove the Scots would be better off running their own affairs.

Her hectic life as an MP has its drawbacks. "My law business is certainly neglected and I am afraid my family to some extent is too," she said.

Stewart Ewing, her husband, is an accountant and university lecturer. "He is absolutely behind what I am trying to do," she adds.

They have two boys, age 10 and 4 and a daughter, 7.

"To some extent father has had to be mother," she said. "But he seems to be making a very good job of it."

"I tell him that his character has improved enormously since I became an MP."

Early Repairs Save Money

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A good house detective can save a considerable amount of money.

For example, two elderly sisters were puzzled by strange looking puffed-up pipes on their cellar walls. One day, one sister said, "I'm either going off my rocker or this side of the house is sagging."

She wasn't losing her senses. When she called in an expert, he said one frightening word: "termites."

The repairs were expensive and extensive. It was too bad that the sisters hadn't recognized the termite symptoms before the ceiling sagged.

One couple returned home from a long trip to find a flooded cellar.

"They had repaired leaks in cellar pipes from time to time and they knew the pipes were old but they didn't want to spend the money for new pipes. The flood did more damage than what it would have originally cost them for new pipes."

Another family spent a considerable sum on oil heat each year without investigating why the bill was so large. It never occurred to them that perhaps a new furnace would save money.

A heading expert pointed out the fact that their house was equipped with an old coal furnace that had been converted to oil. In a few years, the money saved on oil heat would easily pay for a new furnace.

Many old houses have small chimneys that originally served flues from kitchen coal stoves, and many homeowners are tempted to make these old chimneys useful.

One family removed the stove and its flue but decided to continue to use the area as an indoor barbecue. It was fortunate they had such an idea. An expert examining the outdoor chimney that had been unused for years found the bricks to be dangerously loose. He advised them that a severe accident might have occurred if strong breezes had sent bricks flying to the patio below.

Anyone with a dug well should be alert to any building going on in their area. One family reported that their water was beginning to taste bad. When it was tested, it was found to be contaminated. An investigation disclosed that one builder had laid some septic tank runs from houses built on higher land. The runs, which were in the direction of the old houses below their dug wells, had to be diverted.

The lack of drain pipes or corroded pipes can cause lots of damage.

Anyone who has persistent leaks should check the source of the leak. It isn't enough just to stuff up the hole. A leak may do quite a bit of damage over a long period of time. It is better to open a section of a wall where there have been leaks and patch leaks and plaster than to ruin a new paint job or wall covering when the section eventually causes the wall to crack.

Police Get Quick Data By Computer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Police Department unveiled today what it called the nation's most advanced computer-based police information system.

Chief Clarence M. Kelley said the automated law enforcement response system—ALERT—will eliminate many man-hours of work and could save an officer from going unharmed into a dangerous situation.

The network will keep records and relay in a few seconds information on stolen vehicles, wanted persons, aliases used by criminals, current lists of fugitives, crime reporting statistics, as well as handle police department personnel records and inventory control.

Officials cited this instance of how the system will work:

A patrolman radios the license number of a car under observation. The police dispatcher feeds the automobile's license number into the computer which replies in seconds the car's registration, whether the owner is wanted by police or considered dangerous, or if the car is stolen.

The dispatcher radios the information to the officer, including a warning if a potentially dangerous person is involved.

The patrolman then is prepared in case of trouble.

"Advance, timely information can mean the difference between life and death for an officer in the field," said Chief Kelley.

"A patrolman using his radio or a telephone can use ALERT to determine whether he is dealing with a potentially lethal situation," he said.

The chief said the computer system will enable an officer to check out up to 25 vehicles in the time it formerly took to check one by a manual search of records.

Kelley said the Kansas City computer is compatible with the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington, and local police hope to add a direct link between the two systems to further speed flow of information.

"Law enforcement," said the chief, "is becoming more businesslike every day."

Three Million Silver Dollars Posing Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stashed away in a sealed vault in the basement of the Treasury Department is one of the most unusual problems ever faced by the nation's money men—what to do with three million silver dollars.

The Treasury has wrestled with the problem since 1964 when it stopped feeding silver dollars into circulation because all the remaining ones were worth much more than $1 as collector items.

One Treasury official estimated the value in the coin collection market at roughly $75 million.

The Joint Commission on the Coinage—the group of Treasury officials, members of Congress and private citizens who periodically review coinage policy—plans to discuss the silver dollar headache in detail at its next meeting Monday.

But some officials don't look for a quick solution. The commission has discussed the problem on and off since its first meeting in May, 1967.

It now has before it, however, the first hard suggestion from a Treasury official.

Robert A. Wallace, assistant secretary of the Treasury, has suggested sale of the silver dollars by the department at the collection-market value.

More than 26 million of the dollars now in Treasury hands were made at the Carson City, Nev., mint in the late 1800s. No silver dollars have been minted since 1900 and there are no plans at this time to mint any more.

Place the dollars in circulation and they will just disappear in the hands of coin collectors and the country won't get what the coins are really worth, the Treasury reasons.

Congress in 1966 considered bills to permit the Treasury to sell the coins for $1 each to the Treasury.

Congress in 1966 considered bills to permit the Treasury to sell the coins for $1 each to the Treasury.

But the Treasury contended such a plan discriminated against other groups just as worthy and insisted any profits should go to the public, not to a private group.

The silver in the coins is now worth much more than their face value because of the sharp jump in the price of silver to more than $2 an ounce the past year.

At a price of $1.29 an ounce, the silver content of the dollars is worth $1.

Melting of the coins is barred by the Treasury, however, which intends to keep the ban in effect indefinitely.

'Mechanics' Helped Build California

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The name is barely known outside the membership. It sounds like some kind of union or school. Not, certainly, anything to conjure visions of empire building.

Yet, the 118-year-old Mechanics Institute of San Francisco helped do just that—build the California empire.

Through its huge private library, fairs, lectures and special events, the venerable "Mechanics" brought the knowledge and culture of the world to the muddy doorstep of the rowdiest real estate in the hamlet.

Its influence in the state has pretty well vanished through the years. But an incident involving the attention of many people who didn't know it existed.

The incident was the resignation of Theodore R. Meyer as chairman of the board of regents of the University of California.

Meyer, who left the board July 5, was a regent because of his association with the institute.

The fact gave UC's Berkeley campus leaders an idea. A number of students considered for a time buying a regents membership by joining the institute and electing its president, who would then exercise some formidable student control over the university.

Theoretically, a regent membership could be bought. After all, institute membership is only $1 with quarterly dues of $1.50.

The ex-officio status of some regents was attacked in the legislature last year, but the old system was defended as praiseworthy—particularly regarding Mayor. The old way prevailed.

The institute's constitution, written in 1850 by a group of mechanics who could look only to themselves for help set objectives for the "establishment of a library and reading room, the collection of scientific apparatus, works of art and other scientific purposes."

For the next 40 years, the institute collected 200,000 books, conducted fairs, sponsored lectures, adult-education classes, hosted theatrical, sporting and literary events. Its collection of four-story room was founded the country's oldest chess club.

The institute was a trusted intellectual force in the city. It formed accurate "town crier" spread legislative acts, personalities in the form of posters, meetings and pamphlets. A grateful public issued non-interest loans to retire debts and gave outright money gifts.

The institute grew prosperous, mainly through its annual fairs, where products of the state's industrial and agricultural efforts were gathered under one roof.

The institute's progress was the envy of the city.

The oldest continuously operating cable car system in the world—San Francisco's beloved叮叮车—was the invention of an institute president, Andrew S. Hallidee.

As the century drew to an end, the institute offered new classes in geometrical drawing, machine drawing, industrial design and electricity.

On the night of April 17, 1906, the institute had 4,150 members and one of the world's most magnificent private libraries.

Books, buildings, fixtures—almost everything the institute owned—were destroyed the next morning in the great earthquake and fire. No time was spent in mourning the tremendous loss.

Within six years, a new institute home had been built. A new library was begun.

Today, the institute's oak-paneled room house 170,000 general, technical and historical books for the use of 8,300 members, as well as periodicals, endless technical papers and a special repository for U.S. government documents.

But there are no more lectures and classes. The fairs have long been discontinued. The institute's most exciting outside activity is sponsorship of clip-art, foreign charter flights.

Still, you can go up to the chess room most any time of day and find an old fellow waiting to give you a game.

It Won't Really Change Shabby Fleet Street To Get Face Lifting

LONDON (AP)—Fleet Street has never seen any town planning prices and everybody seems to like it the way it is, unpretentious, antiquated and a little grubby in places.

But the center of London's profile newspaper industry is going to get a face lift such as has not been since they opened the 12-story, red, white and blue Daily Mirror Building in 1961.

Plans have been drawn for an international Press Centre—18 stories high with air-conditioning, landscaped courtyards, a banquet room for a 24-hour grill room and coffee lounge and all the modern communication fittings, plus underground parking.

It sounds pretty enough to make the proprietors of such ancient establishments as Ye Old Cheshire Cheese smug with antiquarian content.

The Fleet Street area has a tremendous business in fish and chips and sandwiches to go out.

Perhaps the most distinguished of the buildings is certainly the best known to tourists, is Ye Old Cheshire Cheese, a house which has been the office of the Evening Standard comes forth each day.

Fleet Street runs through the middle of this crowded and deceptively leafy neighborhood.

Every weekday some 17½ million newspapers are sent out of Fleet Street to London, less than a mile square. On Sundays, 34 million papers are sent out to the towns, large and small, near and seasonal.

It isn't only the big, national daily and Sunday newspapers which call Fleet Street and its tributary streets and alleys home. Almost every British monthly, weekly or daily publication, like to crowd in among the big presses with some kind of an office, from the "Punch" to the "Daily Express" to the "Brighton & Hove Gazette."

The street itself runs from Temple Bar to Ludgate Circus and is only a quarter of a mile long. But it is packed on both sides by a bewildering jumble of old buildings, courts and passages known only to people who work, eat or get their hair cut there.

Temple Bar is the point where the city ends and Westminster begins. In older days they used to hang the heads and quarters of executed felons there. Ludgate Circus is at the bottom of the hill leading up to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Claiming kinship with Fleet Street are such obscure byways as Wine Office Court, White Friars Street, Popple Court, Magpie Alley, Glasshouse Alley and Shoe Lane.

Zahner Woodworking Voted As Buyer of Park Parcel

Approximately 45 residents attending last night's town meeting unanimously approved the sale of the first parcel of land in the town-owned Industrial Park to John Zahner Woodworking Co. at a cost of $7,500.

Also approved was the acceptance of $25,778 in state aid for improved roads and $17,449 in state aid for unimproved roads.

The new woodworking company is an outgrowth of the Rockville Woodworking Co. developed by the several months ago in Rockville.

The two owners split after the first parcel of land was sold, according to Industrial Development Chairman William Summers, with both relocating in Tollard.

Martin Luginbuhl formed the Rockville Woodworking Co., which leasing space in the Woodco Center on Kingsbury Ave.

The proposed building to be built by Zahner will total 400 square feet, of which 400 square feet will be office space and the balance of 400 square feet will be for the plant.

New equipment will be purchased, which is expected to be valued at about $50,000 to $75,000, Summers stated.

The proposed plant will be located across from Kingsbury at the rear of the industrial park. The meeting approved an ex-

Bach Named Dog Warden

The Board of Selectmen met last night, reappointing Louis Bach as dog warden, and signing a large number of checks, many of which were held over by various boards until the start of the new fiscal year, July 1.

The Republican Women's Club will sponsor two teen-age dances this summer, including record hops slated for July 19 and Aug. 30. Both dances will be held at the high school for Tollard residents and their guests. A donation of 75 cents will be asked.

Mrs. Mary Weston has been elected vice president of the Republican Women's Club, filling a vacancy.

Memorial Fund Established A Memorial Fund for Brian Burke, the two-year-old boy struck and killed by an oncoming car Saturday, has been started at the University of Missouri, Springfield, Trenton, Kansas City, Booneville and Carroll.

Using long-distance telephone lines, electrical impulses from a patient's heart are transmitted to a computer at the University Medical Center here.

The computer analyzes the electrocardiogram signals and replies by news printer through the heart action is normal.

The locations will add about two miles of improved roads to the town's total, improved mileage of 9.14. The town presently has an additional 17.56 miles of town accepted dirt roads.

Vik warned that allocations for road aid are expected to decrease further next year.

About $43,000 of the improved road aid funds will be used for maintenance of existing roads, while $10,276 will be used for town aid and winter maintenance. Vik stated.

An outfit and repair program priority will be established for the State Highway Department.

Two of the town roads that need the most urgently, Vik stated.

In approving the expenditures last night, those attending passed the list in discussion with the British to Turn Over Singapore Naval Base

LONDON (AP)—The British government announced today it will turn over one of its last major military footholds in the Far East, the big Singapore naval base, to the government of that island nation by the end of this year.

In a new white paper on defense policy, the Labor government said it would release the base—complete with dockyards, drydocks and other repair and storage installations—so the Singapore government can begin converting it to commercial use.

The white paper reported the government's progress in its re-deployment program. The white paper spelled out details of the plan announced earlier this year to pull most of British military forces from bases east of Suez by 1971.
