To Hear Talk
About Tobacco

Mrs. Edward P. O'Conor of 120 Baldwin Rd. will speak on "Shade Tobacco Growing in Connecticut" at the afternoon session of the fall meeting of the Connecticut League of Historical Societies. The meeting will be held Sept. 27 at the Seaside Congregational Church in East Windsor.

Mrs. O'Conor is an instructor of fine arts and an administrative officer at the New Haven Manchester Community College, and a member of the Manchester Historical Society.

Delegates are expected from 129 state historical societies, but other members are welcome.

During the afternoon session, L. Ellsworth Stoughton of East Windsor will give a talk on local history and Mrs. V. Stewart of Cooperstown, N.Y., will speak on "It's About Time."

A workshop on museum policies and procedures for historical societies will be held Sept. 26.

For more information, contact the Connecticut Historical Society, vice president and educational chairman of the Connecticut League.

Miss Ostby has accepted a position as speech therapist with the Central Connecticut Rehabilitation Center in Meriden.

We keep telling people we have super sophisticated computers and they keep telling us we have a few tellers who don't smile.

So we decided to do something about it.

We've made smiles the subject of lesson number one in our teller's training course.

And that course, itself, is part of something we believe makes us stand out from other banks. Recently, in a separate building in downtown Hartford, we set up a full-scale training center for new CBT employees. We don't do any banking there. Just training.

You see, we're going all out to give our customers better service. Including the simple things . . . like smiles.

We're the bank that listens.

Smith Gets Senate Seat Dirksen Held

WASHINGTON (AP)—Acting Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said today Gov. Richard Ogilvie of Illinois has named Ralph Smith to fill the Illinois House as the state's new United States senator.

Scott said he had been advised from Illinois that Smith was to be named Sen. Everett M. Dirksen's successor.

Smith, a Republican from Alton, was the expected choice after Atty. Gen. William J. Scott who had been serving as acting rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., of Rockford, also was a strong contender to succeed Dirksen, who died Sept. 7 in Washington.

Ogilvie made the announcement in his office today, his wife, Mrs. Charles H. Perle, R-Ill., was present.

The governor said he told Ogilvie Tuesday to tell him of his decision.

"This difficult decision has been given most careful thought and consideration," Ogilvie said. "It is probably the most important decision I will make in four years as governor."

Bone Found At Loch Ness Worthless

BY STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

IVERNESS, Scotland (AP) — The scientific team hunting the Loch Ness Monster decided today that a find identified by the finders as "the thigh bone of an animal" and "not of scientific" is no help in the search.

Colin Simms, curator of the natural history department of York University, said the bone on television and identified it as the lower jaw bone of a whale, which until two weeks ago had been the rock star of London. He said the bone had been expelled from the museum years ago because it was worthless.

The two young Englishmen who claimed they found the bone said the Loch Ness monster may stick to them, although they refused to give their names to newsmen.

David French, leader of the British-American research expedition at Loch Ness, said: "The bone is of no interest to us."

Architectural Gambler Loses $20,000 Home

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Some neighbors don't think much of the new home which architect Brookhurst C. Justice built himself.

So he got a court order Tuesday telling Justice to tear down the house, a two-story starkly modern structure which cost him $20,000.

Judge Charles S. Russell ruled that the house is a "monstrosity" and the sum of money Justice spent on it is "a waste of his neighbors' money."

Five neighbors brought suit, citing a covenant attached to the deed when Justice bought the land in April. The covenant provides that no home shall be "monstrosity" with the neighboring houses.

An architectural review board set up to go over plans for homes in the neighborhood had never met, but the judge said Justice was "gambling" when he chose not to seek formal approval of his plan before building. Because he did not do so, Justice should know about restrictive covenants.

The judge granted a 60-to-90 day stay of his decree to lessen the hardship.

These Creations Take Pliers — Not Needles

NEW YORK (AP) — "If you've got a pair of pliers, you can do an awfully lot," said an assistant to jewelry designer Bill Smith as she held up a pair of pants made of 100% cotton.

The pants, along with a matching vest, were one of a number of items at a show Tuesday night of Smith's latest jewelry.

The 34-year-old designer, one of the first Negroes in the business, creates dresses, hats, caps, belts, hatters and hats of rhinestones, pearls, black beads and metal chain.

Smith said her designs are "jewelry clothing. They are strong enough so they can be clothing in themselves."

A former seamstress, she worked in a jewelry factory when he first came to New York and finally decided he preferred jewelry said his designs "can be worn over clothing or instead of clothing."

The models Tuesday draped the jewels over simple jersey dresses by Jon Hartman, her body stockings and over bare skin.

Among the latest items were a long scarf of pearls trimmed with cloth tassels, a metal cap with "pearlized" cords, a floor-length skirt of roses, a jacket with a belt and vest of jet beads and a pearl cape.

There are about two dozen pieces in the collection for $100, retailing for between $85 and $250. The pearl scarf, for example, is $100.

Smith said that "not everyone can wear these things. There are many people, however, who will make sacrifices for beauty."

Among the disadvantages of the jewelry clothing is their weight. The pearls Smith uses are solid, she said, on a plastic base, but they still make a scarf pretty weighty.

Gaullists Must Walk Line To Keep the Franc Stable

BY STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Big and thick like a leather gauntlet, the leader of the Communist group in the French National Assembly leaned forward on his desk of his feet, the heels of his hands on the rocks.

He had thrust forward with obvious satisfaction to the hostile Gauls on the violet velvet benches.

"The disastrous situation in which we now find ourselves, may say is the result of internal factors," he said.

"You ask us for sacrifices," he said. "There is a far cry from the arrogant speech which we became accustomed during more than 10 years—the past 10 years when Charles de Gaulle and his friends provided."

"It sounded like a funeral oration for your predecessors," said Ballanger, recalling that in 1966 De Gaulle had said, "There is no currency exchange."

"It would be cruel for you," he said.

When he finished, the Gauls and their allies—who hold more than three fourths of the assembly's 487 seats, roared and banged the tops of their desks. The Communists applauded as Ballanger returned to his bench.

In the subsequent ballot on the government's request for a vote of confidence, the government won an easy 369-85 victory. But the government's problem is not the National Assembly.

Ballanger said with obvious satisfaction to the hostile Gauls on the violet velvet benches.

Manchester's Face ChangingApartments Pop UpStory by Terry D'Italia

Manchester, once a town of single family homes, is rapidly losing that characteristic, as multi-family dwellings are popping up around town.

Probably the main cause of this change is inflation. Inflation has raised the price of houses, has raised interest rates, and has raised savings to several thousand dollars. It takes a good down payment almost impossible for many families.

Because of these reasons, people have decided to rent, and to accommodate these people, many apartments have been built in Manchester.

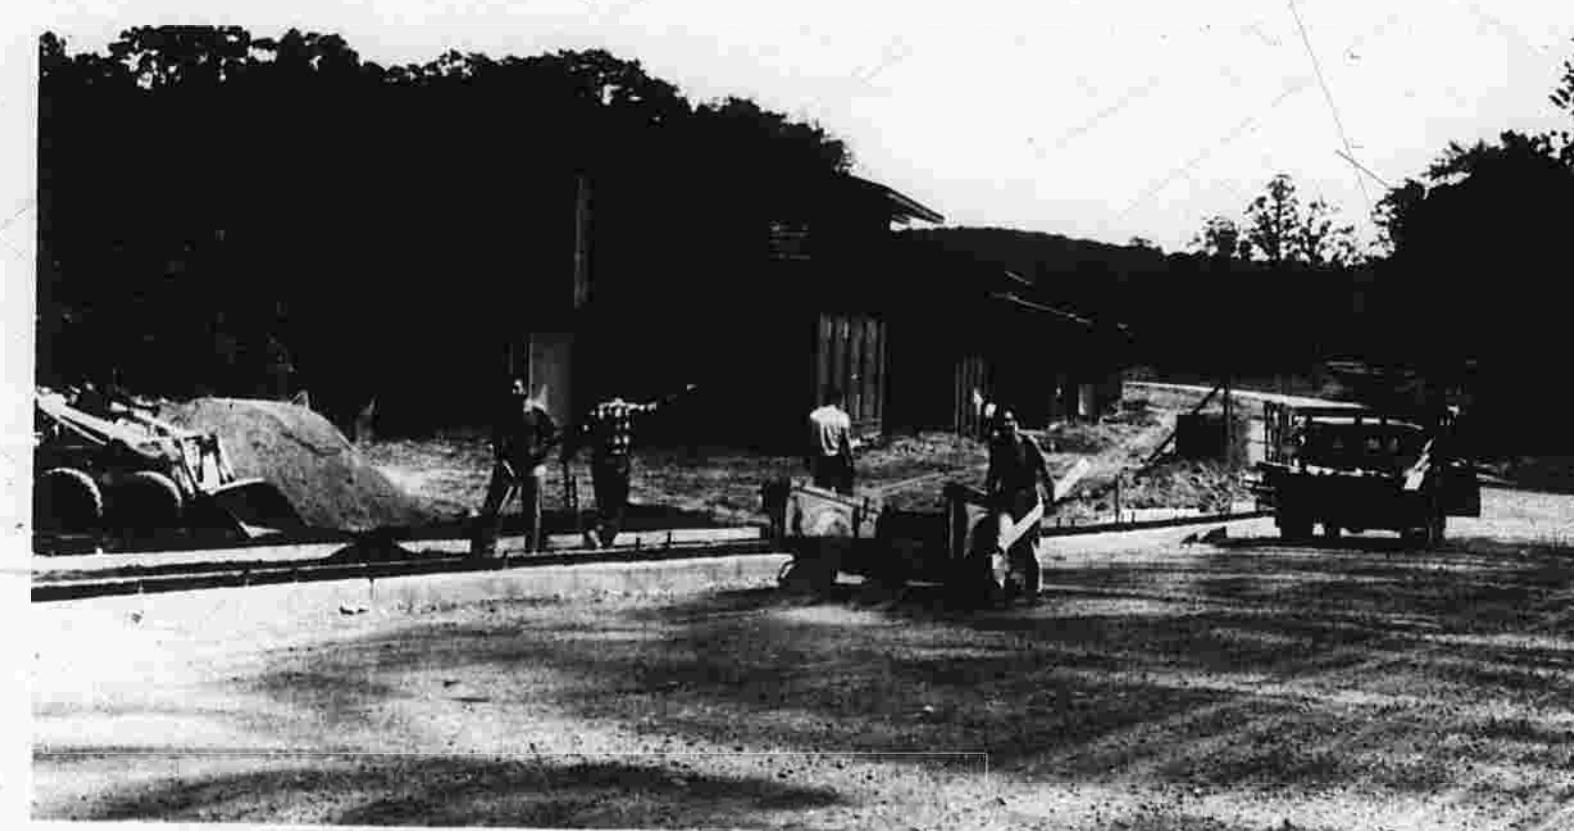

The building department, in its annual report for 1967-68, recorded 1968 apartment developments of 171 houses, both and 111 units. This year is any indication of things to come, Manchester may be under overdrive.

It says, "Modern high rise and high rise apartments and the commercial, educational, industrial and cultural buildings which accompany this amazing growth, seem to be very far in the future."

The photos on this page give a sampling of the many apartment developments now under construction in town. The first is the Royal Arms, located across Main St. from the KofC Hall.

CCD Chapter Sees Self as Lobby Group

The Manchester Chapter of the Liberal Council of Connecticut (CCD) met last night and reached the conclusion that there is really not that much to be concerned about locally.

About a dozen members of the group met at the Parkside Inn offices of Atty. Sanford Phillips.

CCD members discussed topics ranging from what is the nature of the local CCD and is it a "lobby" group to mounting an effort to oppose Sen. Thomas Dodd in the 1970 election.

Talking about politics at the local level, the members said there were no "real burning issues" and that the CCD has not had much to do lately.

Plepler said, "We find it difficult to fight with Ted Cummings (the chairman of the Democratic Town Committee). He's not the worst democratic leader in the town."

The function of the local group was discussed last night, and the consensus of those present was that the CCD is in effect a "lobby" group.

Squarito characterized the local CCD in this manner, saying one of the main purposes of the group is to impact information to the Democratic Town Committee.

As one member put it, "We need to keep the information across to the public. If we can do that then we will have a reason to exist."

The members of the group were discussed and members agreed that the anti-Dodd effort is not a priority.

But Squarito and some of the others suggested that it would be better to have a "lobby" group, rather than a "lobby" group.

The CCD members decided to wait to see who would enter the contest before making any final decision.

However, everyone thought the choice would be between the Rev. Joseph J. Hickey and Congressman George D. Rogers.

The loose structure of the group was also brought into question. It was felt that the seat held by Dirdsen, a resident of Pekin in central Illinois, should go to a Downstate representative.

GOP Issues Its Platform For Election

The local GOP town committee has released copies of the planks for the party platform for the upcoming election.

Each candidate will begin house-to-house visits to introduce himself and outline his ideas for suggestions to improve the town policies.

Incorporating suggestions by candidates and the town committee, the platform states, "We recognize the need for a full-time first selectman—an experienced administrator who can devote his time necessary to do the best possible job."

"We will work toward holding the town in the highest possible level by seeking to establish an Industrial Development Committee through which the town can in the future encourage the buildup of tax-producing mercantile and industrial property and in ensuring that all necessary zoning laws and by-laws are giving closer supervision to all town facilities and expenditures."

"We recognize the historical and aesthetic nature of our town and will work to preserve the trees and to make every effort to save the trees and trees along the town green and to replace the trees that have been cut down to create a clean-up and maintenance program for Yeomans Hall."

"We recognize the need for protecting the homes from over-development and to have a local constable and to maintain an active local constabulary; to review the addition of an ordinance requiring the registration and registration with the town clerk of all commercial doors."

"We recognize the need for developing a plan of cooperation and the various town boards and we recognize the need for establishing and following our storm tax assessment procedures."

The Republicans also promised to work towards town-wide representation on all appropriate boards and to work towards expanding the membership of committees that would more completely represent the community needs and to support the establishment of a Board of Finance to oversee the budgetary preparation on expenditures of the town.

Japan Protests Nuclear Tests In Aleutians

TOYOKO (AP) — The Japanese government filed a protest with the United States today over the coming nuclear tests in the Aleutian Islands in the northern Pacific, the Foreign Ministry announced.

The United States has given notice that ocean traffic will be banned from within a radius of 60 miles of Amchitka Island between Sept. 25 and Oct. 6, when it will conduct underground tests.

Japan's protest said Tokyo reserved the right to seek proper compensation for any damages Japanese nationals might suffer from the testing.

The Japanese government said the action because the area is a rich fishing ground for Japan and is a regular route for shipping vessels and aircraft, the ministry said.

Trout Thrive In Treated Sewage Water

By JOHN CROSEY
Associated Press Writer

MARKELEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A unique lake teeming with rainbow trout on the eastern shore of the Sierra Nevada here is filled with treated sewage. The treated sewage water apparently is pure enough to drink.

Called Indian Creek Reservoir, the man-made lake is fed by a 22-inch pipeline snaking over a 7,000 foot mountain pass from the city of Markeleville, which is about 14 miles north of Lake Tahoe, 14 miles north.

"The plant is the only one of its kind in the world," says Bob Wakeman, manager of the South Tahoe Public Utility District, serving an area with about 15,000 residents. "The water it produces is 100 percent pure, health services drinking water standards."

The growth of trout and year-round communities around Lake Tahoe has caused pollution, killing and algae to mar Lake Tahoe's natural beauty. Wakeman says the 100-mile pipeline and 14-mile pipeline were built to help reverse the trend.

After treatment with lime to remove solids, the sewage water is passed through infiltration beds, channeled through five 30-foot-diameter tunnels containing 100,000 cubic feet of activated charcoal, then chlorinated. Lime and charcoal are later reclaimed.

The water arrives at Indian Creek Reservoir colorless, odorless, tasteless and stripped of harmful wastes.

"Everyone asks us why we don't just take the water back to Tahoe and save some money," says Wakeman. "The answer is we don't know. No one would know the difference, but the project is still experimental and its results are still being studied."

In one test shortly after the 27-acre reservoir opened in August, 8,000 rainbow trout were planted to see how well they will survive.

Three researchers sponsored by the utility district are monitoring the water weekly. One commented: "The water is pure enough to drink, if you can stomach the taste."

Osaka Police Raid School, Find No One

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Police staged a dawn raid today on a building of a city university here which had been occupied by radical students for more than six months. But no one was there.

About 800 policemen searched the building of Osaka City University's faculty of medicine where 100 students said to be in hiding with cache of weapons.

Police failed to find any trace of the students, police said, but discovered an unconfiscated 1,038 empty bottles, 200 bottles filled with gasoline and paint, and bricks and other objects which could be used in an uprising.

In Manpower Cutback Computers May Take Over At Countdown for Apollo 12

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — One of three launch pad working shifts is being eliminated and computers may take over some human chores during the Apollo 12 countdown in November.

NASA and contractors are reducing the moon-transport work force by 5,600, from 23,600 last July, to an estimated 18,000 by July of next year.

These are among the operational changes being worked out by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as a result of manpower cutbacks and a launching schedule slowdown following Apollo 11's lunar landing.

Future 5-Apollo launches are now planned at the rate of one every two months instead of one every three.

"We had three vehicles in process with two-month launch cycles," says John C. Cully, deputy director of launch operations management for NASA's Kennedy Space Center.

"With four-month intervals, we have two vehicles in flow instead of three."

To ease the strain on the launch team, project officials are employing computers to handle such tasks as "slew" or "go" conditions during the countdown — such as incorrect temperatures or pressure readings in fuel tanks — which previously were handled by men monitoring computers in the launch control center.

"We're now going to a single launch team, instead of two," said John C. Cully, deputy director of launch operations management for Boeing's Atlantic Test Center here. "We can cover peak loads with two vehicles, working two 12-month shifts back to back."

A change from three to two shifts on the launch pads and a five-day instead of a seven-day day.

One of the aristocracy: a Brahma cow.

A noble aspirant to a "best bull of the year" crown marches haughtily to the main arena.

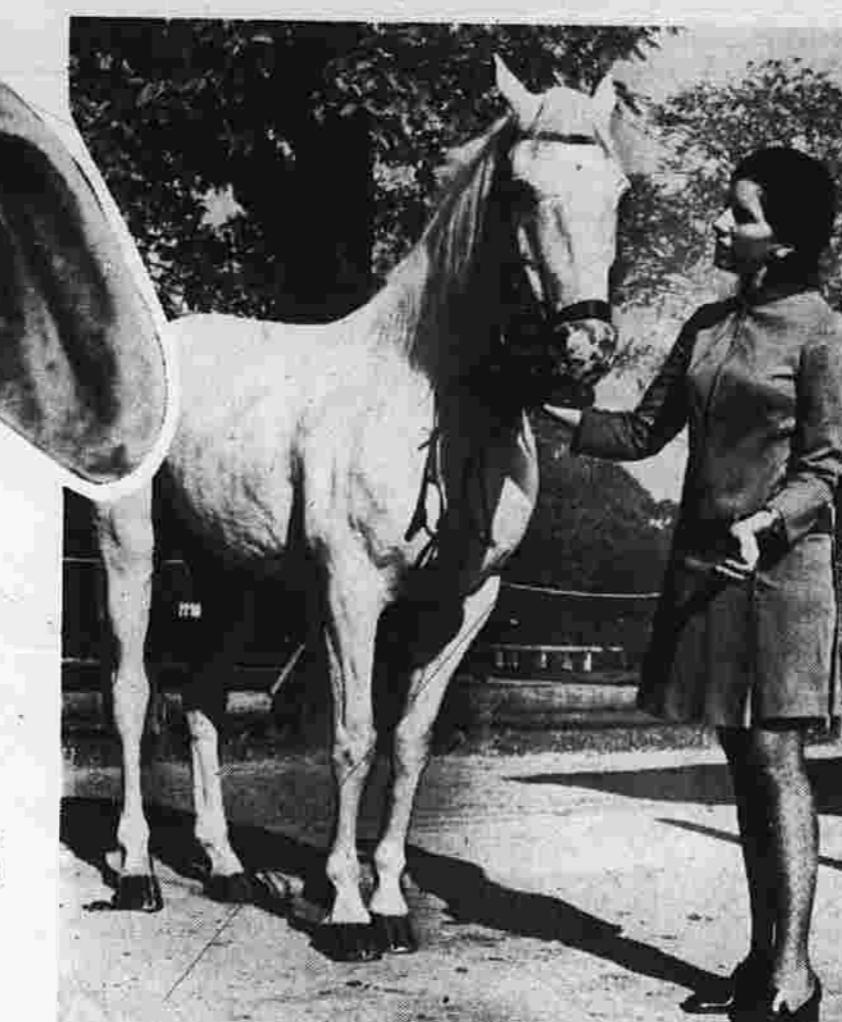

Proud owners, prospective buyers and curious crowds inspect competing animals kept in individual stalls in a huge, hangar-like barn during the show.

Gauchos and grooms make a hearty meal of Argentine beef and wine—"au naturel."

A champion merino ram, whose fine proportions are complemented by the beauty of his fleece and horns.

A 10-year-old, pure white Arab stallion is congratulated by his owner on winning the coveted thoroughbreds' blue ribbon.

A tourist quenches his thirst from a wineskin—a feat calling for some skill!

Student Loan Bill Passes in House, Sent to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The student loan bill—without provision for dealing with campus unrest—is on its way to the Senate after passing 332 to 60 in the House.

In the Senate, the measure, which allows stamps to be needed by students readily available through government-guaranteed interest subsidies—either can be paid in the form of a loan or sent to a conference committee. The House defeated an attempt to veto an antiflot provisions.

Another bill, also introduced by the House, was rejected by the Senate just before Congress took its three-week summer recess.

This left many students who planned to resume college this fall in the hope of a loan holding the line. Julianne, however, appealed to banks to grant the student loans anyhow, on the strength of the bill's passage when Congress recessed.

Under either measure, private banks would grant loans to students if the government would pay the interest until the student completed his schooling.

The government also guarantees repayment if the student's funds have an income of less than $15,000.

While the legal interest ceiling on student loans remains at 7 per cent, the measure provides for interest subsidies of up to 3 per cent to the banks.

Reston Relaxes The Rush Hour For Commuters

THE WASHINGTON POST RESTON, Va. — About 150 Reston residents have liked the rush-hour traffic tamer.

Six chartered express buses not only whisk Reston residents to and from their jobs in Washington and the suburbs, but "resters" occasionally serve coffee and doughnuts during the morning and evening rush hours.

Reston's unique transit system has not been tested formally by the Washington Center for Metropolitan Studies as a model of how citizen action can improve urban transportation.

In a survey taken by the center this week, the success of the town's system was attributed to "careful planning, intensive community participation management" by the Reston Community Association.

British Banks Raise Prime Lending Rate

LONDON (AP) — British commercial banks today raised their prime lending rate to 9 per cent, further tightening Britain's credit squeeze.

The increase followed similar action last week in Austria, West Germany and Sweden. U.S. commercial banks raised their prime rate on July 9 to 8.5 per cent, the highest ever. But because of the Federal Reserve's restrictions on lending, the prime rate actually works out at 10 per cent.

The new prime rate represents an increase of one-half per cent above the old rate of 8.5 per cent. The rate for ordinary customers rises from 9.5 to 10 per cent and in some cases 11 per cent.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge on lending to their biggest and best customers.

The British banks' action was taken "to reduce the current pressure on bank lending," including a ceiling imposed on their lending by the government in its drive toward solvency. That ceiling is 98 per cent of tax-free bank lending.

Some of the new rate increase was given during a meeting between Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins and commercial bank representatives. They agreed to raise their rates closer to those charged by other moneylenders.

Farmers' Union said the increase would raise agriculture and horticulture costs by $6 million a year.

John C. Doherty, president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce said: "Although the rate for the adjustment is clear, the government represents another turn of the screw for small firms who are very dependent on the banks for their working capital."

The increase brought the new prime rate to 9 per cent, above the old rate of 8.5 per cent. The rate for ordinary customers rises from 9.5 to 10 per cent and in some cases 11 per cent.

The British banks' action was taken "to reduce the current pressure on bank lending," including a ceiling imposed on their lending by the government in its drive toward solvency. That ceiling is 98 per cent of tax-free bank lending.

Some of the new rate increase was given during a meeting between Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins and commercial bank representatives. They agreed to raise their rates closer to those charged by other moneylenders.

Farmers' Union said the increase would raise agriculture and horticulture costs by $6 million a year.

John C. Doherty, president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce said: "Although the rate for the adjustment is clear, the government represents another turn of the screw for small firms who are very dependent on the banks for their working capital."

China that's young...exciting...different

China that's individually you! One that reflects your way of life. Elegantly different. Fine translucent china designed by the master craftsmen of Japan. Rim shape china so new

...so lovely, you'll want to show it off at company dinners. China so inexpensive, you can use it every day.

China with the fine touch of quality

Quality you can actually feel. And see! The beauty of the raised border patterns with a white on white overlay... touches of quality found only in much more expensive china. Like our silvery Moon Mist... delicate shaded gray pattern rimmed in platinum. Or Bell Flower... a graceful pattern of cool avocado green with just a hint of yellow... 22kt gold trim.

China for people with superb taste

China like this... to be collected, a piece at a time! Begin, right now with the big 10 1/4" dinner plate. Get two, or three, or more. Each only 29¢ with your $5 purchase (two with $10, three with $15, etc.). Add a different piece a week for five weeks. For elegant place settings at an incredibly low price.

Philosopher-Lawyer Serves Hell's Kitchen Poor — Free

Editor's Note: The federal antipoverty program pays 2,000 lawyers across the country to provide America's legal aid to the poor. Court than any other lawyer.

He admits this, then orders:

"I am I have to sound it."

Divorce, child custody, delinquency, these are the same lawyers dread like the harvest. They are Weis' specialties.

Yet there is talk within the lawyers' ranks that Weis' specialty is a "streamlining."

The yard involved is the same one that 70 lawyers, mostly railroad locomotive engineers, are

Vernon
Firehouse Use
For Meetings

Whether or not the town's firehouses will be used by other groups for meetings will be left up to the chiefs and the members of the departments, the Board of Representatives agreed Monday.

The decision was supported by some groups asking to use the meeting rooms in the firehouses, especially in rural Vernon. The members turned over to the Chief William Johnson for his recommendation.

Chief Johnson said he studied the various situations that could arise from the possible use of the firehouses. He stated that each building and the equipment it contains has an estimated value of $100,000. He suggested that all rentals would be under the supervision of the fire company.

He explained that access to the meeting rooms in the firehouses would be limited to the company's members. He said that though no interference with the equipment has been made he feels that supervision by a company member is essential.

Currently the State Motor Vehicle is using the C. I. building at 100 Main St. for meetings. Chief Johnson said, noting that it had been reported to him on various occasions that uninvited persons were in the building.

He explained that access to the meeting rooms in the firehouses would be limited to the company's members.

In each of the firehouses the company over its own furnished has as many as 100 chairs, desks, tables, equipment, and pool tables, and therefore, Johnson said, the company should have no trouble finding a place to meet.

He further noted that the parking lots were deemed to be used on a limited basis so additional rentals would have to be arranged by the group using the firehouse.

In making the motion that the board accept the recommendation of the fire chief, representative Abner Brooks said he felt the town has plenty of recreational buildings around without using the firehouses for meetings.

Sharks' Taste For His Pants Upset Verity

SAN SALVADOR, Bahamas (AP) — Bill Verity says one of the big annoyances of his solo sailboat crossing of the Atlantic is the tendency of sharks to strip an sailor's dry.

Verity also notes that a steady diet of dolphin, while nourishing, is likely to trim down the bantam sailor in his case, from 195 to 165 pounds.

Veriting on his 114-day voyage from Ireland in a 20-foot craft, the 35-year-old former boat builder of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., remarked:

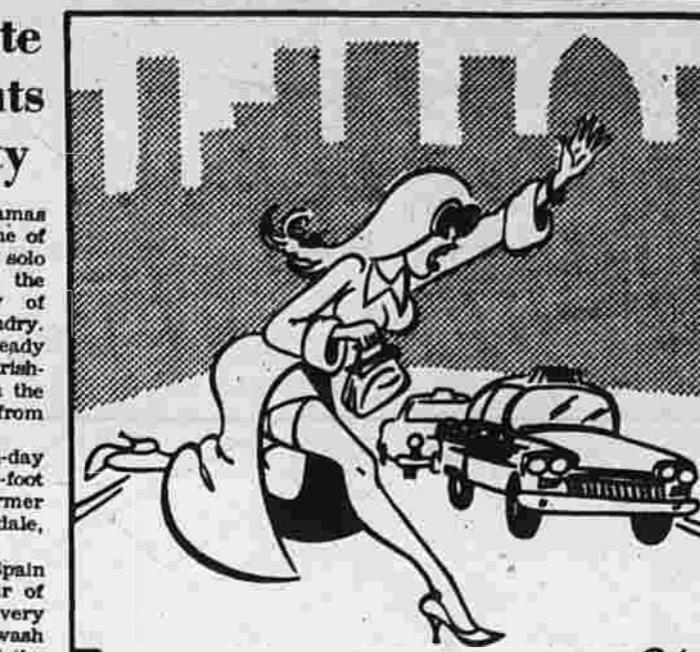

"I had the coast of Spain for the first time I lost a pair of trousers. It happened every time I took my clothes to wash them. Sharks ate them all the time."

Verity finished his crossing at the end of an oil tanker's tow at the port of Elizabethport, N.J., where he had made the trip to demonstrate that the small boat named Brendan the Bold could indeed sail the ocean after spending the winter in a cockpit, as he says he did.

The lone sailor said his world exploration trip was a success, despite a lightning bolt after lighting bolt striking the water. It was so close I could smell it," he said.

At one point his rudder failed as he cruised off Puerto Rico, so he had to use a U.S. Coast Guard cutter supplied and tools to replace it.

No date for the wedding has been announced.

Harrelson Big Hit In Fenway Finale

BOSTON (AP) — All year long, Ken Harrelson was waiting to hit a home run in Fenway Park, and when he finally connected, it took his last at-bat in a spot for it.

"This is just like old times," the flamboyant Cleveland slugger exulted Tuesday night after his 10th home run, which he shot snaped a 2-2 tie and lifted the Indians to a 3-2 victory over his old team, the Red Sox.

"If you want to score it, you can't have been better," he said to the reporters who crowded around him after his 10th home run, the 10th two having come in Cleveland.

Harrelson, who hit 35 homers and was a big hit with the Indians here, had a brief helping hand to the Indians in a controversial deal in April, received a standing ovation from the crowd of 16,597 as he circled the bases and was cheered loudly again as he went out to right field.

"It was a long time coming," he said afterwards. "This one really feels good."

Overawed by Harrelson's heroics, was the Fenway crowd, who cheered him when he shot a 2-2 tie and lifted the Indians to a 3-2 victory over his old team, the Red Sox.
