

Project list prepared for possible U.S. aid

Coventry
Town officials have prepared a list of capital improvement requests for Coventry for which federal funding will be sought. The general government projects total $3,066,635, and the education projects stand at $1,021,285.

The list has been submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission for comment, and the Town Council may make some revisions before bringing the final proposal before a special town meeting.

The Parks and Recreation Commission is seeking $9,000 to fence in the playing field at Laidlaw Park. A similar request for revenue-sharing funds last year was vetoed by the council.

The commission also is asking $15,000 for lights at the Miller-Richardson Hallfield, $5,000 for lights at Laiske Beach, and $17,500 for power and lights at Laidlaw.

The council has put in a bid for $75,000 toward financing the acquisition of about 76 acres of Salvation Army property at the southern end of Coventry Lake if the purchase is okayed by residents. Another $60,000 is earmarked for purchase of the Keene property on the western side of the lake for open space and recreation.

The Highway Department requests $782,200 for equipment and machinery and $120,000 for central facilities. The current town garage was ordered closed by federal officials late last year because the roof was deemed unsafe.

The general road program for the town will need $336,405 plus $7,000 for Delay Road, $18,000 for the Pucker Street Bridge, and $38,530 for the Flinders River Road Bridge.

The Police Department seeks $6,000 for detention cells, $2,000 for a storage building, $7,500 for dispatcher's area, and $65,000 for communications. About $12,000 is being sought for a fence around the dog pound.

The North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department requests $100,000 for a tanker/pumper, re-evaluation will cost $75,000, the local cost for sewers if approved in a referendum would be $1,000,000, and $5,500 is needed for the Booth Dimock Library.

Among the education projects are $585,800 for buildings, $99,995 for replacement of instructional equipment, and $80,070 for replacement of noninstructional equipment. Another $9,400 would go for major repairs and refurbishing, $91,000 for energy retrofitting, and $175,000 for modifications to buildings.

Some of these requests will be funded through revenue-sharing, and some have already been applied for as grant applications.

Road project approved

Coventry
The Coventry Planning and Zoning Commission, acting as the town's Inland Wetlands Agency, has approved a permit to construct a storm drainage system on Daley Road as part of a major improvement of that road being planned by the state Department of Transportation.

The state will undertake the realignment of dangerous curves on Daley Road in the spring. It will also make drainage improvements to cut down on water runoff.

The approval of the permit facilitates the town's plans to obtain a drainage easement at the intersection of Daley Road and South Street from the Manchester Road and Gun Club. The approval stipulates that "all disturbed areas shall be immediately stabilized as per the provision of the Soil Conservation Service Sedimentation and Erosion Control Handbook."

Furthermore, sedimentation dams must remain in place until the entire disturbed area has been stabilized and permanent vegetation is functioning normally. Zoning Agent Ernest Wheeler said he has asked the state to plant for erosion control as the project proceeds.

In other business Town Planner Gregory Padick advised the commission to approve the site plan application for the Savings Bank of Tolland for a proposed branch on the southeast corner of Routes 31 and 4A. The approval would be contingent upon final curb cut and drainage acceptance by the state Highway Department.

Padick suggests that the pavement markings show internal traffic patterns and that the driveway junctions be labeled with pavement stop lines. He would also like to see hay bale check dams utilized in a proposed grass drainage swale to prevent erosion.

Students going to England

South Windsor
The day of the class trip to the beach of the amusement park is over. Today's youngsters go to Florida or Europe?

South Windsor High School officials have announced details for this year's trip to London.

Lucky students will sightsee through Shakespeare's Stratford-on-Avon, Bath and Stonehenge, Brighton and Arundel Castles, Windsor Castle and Hampton Court, St. Paul's Cathedral, Tower of London and Westminster — with a final farewell dinner at the Beefeater at the London Tower.

Cost for the trip is $629 and will include airfare, hotel for eight days and nights, meals, gratuities and breakfast and dinner.

William Chernik, guidance counselor at the high school has coordinated trips to all the major European countries since 1971.

Chernik said each trip has emphasized education and culture abroad. A minimum of 4 to 5 days of organized tours, which each student must participate in, are planned to include places of historical significance and provide exposure to customs and people.

Chernik said participation in the European trips has decreased each year since the 1973 trip to Munich, Germany because of the cost of the trip.

The major portion of the price increases is due to air fare, directly attributable to the cost of fuel and inflation.

The price of air fare alone for the trip to London is $330 — more than the cost for the entire trip to Madrid, Spain in 1971.

In 1976 the high school organized a trip to Florence, and Rome for $579. In 1977 a trip was scheduled to Belgium and Paris, France for $609.

Chernik said costs could be reduced by utilizing a non-scheduled airline, joining another tour group and not including as many events.

Named to board
Royal E. Cowles of South Windsor has been appointed by Governor Ella Grasso, to the state Board of Mediation and Arbitration. His term started March 1 and will run for one year. He is an additional alternate management member.

Mass resh-holiday
The memorial mass honoring deceased members of the South Windsor Knights of Columbus, originally scheduled for Feb. 25, has been changed to Saturday, March 18, at 7 p.m. at St. Francis of Assisi Church.

Among those most recently deceased to be remembered are Roland Aubin and John Madden.

Unemployed rate goes down again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.1 percent in February, the lowest level in more than three years, the Labor Department reported today.

The report said a record-high 58 percent of the nation's population was employed last month. Six of every 10 Americans held jobs.

The coal strike and bad weather had only marginal impact on employment, the department said. It estimated more than 100,000 people were hired last month, swelling the nation's job rolls to 93 million workers.

An estimated 6.1 million persons looked for work in February, but were unable to find it.

The jobs rate was 6.3 percent in January and averaged just under 7 percent all of 1977.

The February rate was the lowest since 5.9 percent in October, 1974 — the month that preceded massive factory layoffs as the nation moved into its worst recession in 40 years.

The department said 3.7 million persons have gained jobs since February a full year ago.

The report was good news for President Carter and it followed on the heels of a bad one from the Labor Department Thursday — wholesale prices rose 1.1 percent in February. It was their biggest jump in more than three years.

Improving job conditions and worsening inflation seem to indicate that the national economy has returned to textbook standards after three unprecedented years in which both inflation and employment worsened in tandem.

Traditionally, as employment improves, inflation rises because more dollars are in circulation. As employment worsens, inflation improves.

The jobs rate for blacks and adult women showed the biggest improvement last month, the department said. Black unemployment dropped a full 1 percent to 11.8 percent while the women's jobs rate

Panel trying to save pond

By SUSAN VAUGHN
Herald Reporter

The Manchester Conservation Commission Thursday night agreed to contact the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in hopes of delaying possible action to destroy the Hilliard Pond dam.

The commission wants the town to purchase the pond property for an open space recreation area and will tell the DEP water sources unit of their serious intentions to acquire it.

Jacqueline Aronson, a member of the commission, said she learned Thursday from DEP that Morris and Richard Bezzini, owners of the pond property, have decided to submit engineering plans to the state showing they would either remove the old dam or dig a drainage ditch around it.

Mrs. Aronson, who has been leading the acquisition attempts for the neighborhood around the pond for several years, said the news was very disappointing.

After an inspection by the DEP, the Bezzinis were told that they would either have to repair or remove the dam because of its unsafe condition that could result in flooding if a severe storm occurred. The Bezzinis previously notified the Conservation Commission that they want to sell the property.

However, Commission chairman Theresa Parla said the commission should inform Bezzini that it would not be interested in the property once the pond is gone.

Mrs. Aronson said that she felt the property might still be valuable with only the Bigelow Brook, which runs through it, remaining.

Commission member Dr. Frederick Spaulding recommended the immediate contact with DEP. He said, "If DEP found out the action is

Police probe method of merger petitioning

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

The Manchester Police Department is investigating a complaint that reportedly involves the illegal signing of consolidation petitions by the circulators.

Petitions were circulated last month in both the Eighth Utilities District and the nondistrict sections of town to obtain signatures for a referendum question on consolidation.

Enough signatures were obtained in both areas — 10 percent of the registered voters — and verified by the town clerk's office to force a referendum question on consolidation, which would combine the district with the Town of Manchester.

During the petitioning effort, which was conducted by the Committee for One Manchester, there were charges of improprieties made by district officials and residents.

They said that circulators of the petitions misled those who signed. About 200 of the signers later asked to have their names removed from the petitions and said that they had been misled.

The complaint apparently involves only a few pages of the hundreds submitted by the petitioners.

A couple of pages of the petitions was not the same person who circulated those pages. Each page of the petitions required a signature by the circulator to verify that he or she had witnessed the signings by the residents.

Chief Robert Lannan and Deputy Chief Richard Sartor both verified that there is an investigation of a complaint being conducted by the Manchester Police Department, but neither would say what the complaint is.

The complaint apparently involves only a few pages of the hundreds submitted by the petitioners.

Bar to study free legal aid

The Manchester Bar Association Wednesday voted to establish a committee that will study providing a more complete free legal service for needy residents.

The vote is another step in a series of actions that have been taken to establish an expanded legal aid service in town.

A total of $5,000 in federal Community Development funds was set aside last year to provide expanded legal aid. The Board of Directors tentatively approved the expenditure after a public hearing at which several residents spoke of the need for the increased service. But, the board said that it would not appropriate the funds until it received the final plan for the service.

The Manchester Bar Association has had a legal aid program for many years that has been staffed on a rotating basis by attorneys in town.

Some residents, however, said the service was not adequate for cases that required court appearances.

The local proposal was considered for the $5,000 set aside for the program.

It would have provided legal aid service in Manchester through the Hartford County Bar Association's legal aid office. The service in Manchester would have been on a part-time basis, probably one day a week.

The Manchester Bar Association, however, sought involvement in the plan.

It asked to place one of its members on the board of the Hartford County Legal Aid Society. This provision was agreed to by all parties.

The local attorneys also wanted to establish an advisory committee for the local legal aid office, an idea that apparently hit a snag when it was proposed.

Now, the local bar association will seek to develop a legal aid program of its own to meet the apparent needs of town residents.

"We don't think a need has been demonstrated to bring them in, Joseph Lessner of the Manchester Bar Association said of the Hartford County legal aid office.

"We're trying to do what we've been doing and just polish it up some," he said.

A committee was set up to seek local attorneys to serve on a panel which will be available to provide the legal aid service in town. Lessner said the committee, which also is expected to report on the administration of the proposed expanded legal aid service.

Some industry officials went to UMW headquarters Thursday for an informal meeting with union leaders.

The speedy resumption of talks came as U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson Jr. issued a temporary restraining order late Thursday telling 160,000 UMW miners to end the 56-day walkout at 7 a.m. local time today.

Economists say future looking good for state

HARTFORD (UPI) — Economists today predicted personal income will outpace inflation in Connecticut next year, which means more money for consumers and more money for the state through its sales tax.

Reports submitted to the Legislature's Finance Committee showed personal income, the amount of money an average resident earns, should grow by about 9 percent during 1978-79.

At the same time, economists from the Commerce Department and the Office of Policy and Management indicated inflation should rise by only 6 or 7 percent in Connecticut next year.

If the predictions hold up, this would mean Connecticut residents would have more money to spend on consumer goods. This, in turn, bodes well for the state, which would take in additional revenue from its sales tax.

Figures submitted by Policy and Management Commissioner Anthony V. Milano showed sales tax revenues increasing by 8.8 percent during 1978-79.

The department also predicted substantial increases in tax revenues from cigarettes, inheritances and the insurance industry. All told, the Office of Policy and Management predicted the state would take in an additional $90 million in various taxes next year.

Commerce Commissioner Edward Stockton painted a rosy forecast for Connecticut's unemployment rate.

"While unemployment has gone down sharply in Connecticut and he said, 'employment has gone up just as sharply.'

He praised the Finance Committee for enacting tax cuts, tax incentives and support for manpower training programs. He said the legislative action has encouraged some industries to move to Connecticut and encouraged businesses already here to stay and expand.

"What you have done already has had a real impact," he said, adding that the best is yet to come.

Today's news summary

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A General Accounting Office report obtained by UPI said the Philadelphia U.S. Naval Hospital and other buildings in the sprawling 48-acre Naval Regional Medical Center complex pose "a severe life safety hazard."

The center, which serves a large area of the Northeast, is costly, grossly under-used, badly deteriorated and downright dangerous, according to the report, which said, "in view of the very poor condition of the center and its low use, continued operation is not in the public interest and is unsafe and expensive."

About 300 farmers blocked the border crossing into Mexico at Nogales, Ariz., for three hours Thursday backing up 150 trucks filled with Mexican produce, destined for U.S. markets, for a mile and a quarter. They say Mexican produce hurts them economically and endangers the health of consumers because some pesticides banned in the United States are used on Mexican crops.

The spokesman for the joint federal-state market news service in Westaco, Texas, downplayed the economic impact, but conceded the farmers have a valid point about the hazardous pesticides.

House debates songs; picks 'Yankee Doodle'

HARTFORD (UPI) — Battle lines were clearly drawn, but after the legislative skirmish was over the House of Representatives voted to make "Yankee Doodle" the state song.

The decision was hardly unanimous, however. There were catcalls, counter proposals, historical commentary, and even a parliamentary ruling.

There were some who wondered why anyone would want to adopt a tune the British wrote to mock Connecticut soldiers who marched into battle with chicken feathers in their hats.

House Majority Leader William O'Neill, D-East Hampton, kicked off the debate with a history lesson.

He related how "Col. Fitch," son of a colonial general, led a band of Norwalk "baysides and farmers" into battle against the British in the French and Indian Wars.

"They (the British) laughed and chuckled and they called them Yankee Doodles," O'Neill explained.

"It was an insult," O'Neill said. But O'Neill said later during the Revolutionary War, Connecticut soldiers began singing the song themselves after they drove their former allies, the British, "back to Boston with their red coats flapping."

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill began the search for a state song several years ago after he became tired of hearing Yale University's fight song "Boola, Boola" played at ceremonial dinners.

Meskill is a graduate of Trinity College in Hartford.

O'Neill echoed the former Republican governor's sentiments.

"With all due respect to those people who want to take fine university in New Haven, 'Bull Dog, Bull Dog, Eli, Eli, does not represent Connecticut," he said. "We're Connecticut Yankees and proud of it."

But not every one was happy with O'Neill's choice.

Rep. Dorothy Oiler, R-Greenwich, wondered aloud, "Why should we forever immortalize the dandies and the people wearing chicken feathers?"

Not surprisingly, she urged the House to vote instead for "The Song of Connecticut" — a melody written a few years back by composers in her district. She asked House Speaker James Kennedy, D-Hartford, if she could play a tape recording of the song to sway fellow lawmakers.

Manchester police report

Burglaries in both Methodist churches in Manchester were reported to police Thursday. The burglaries occurred sometime between Wednesday night and Thursday morning. Neither church showed signs of forced entry, police said.

An electric typewriter was stolen from the main office of South United Methodist Church 1126 Main St. Nothing else was touched.

A radio, a cash and a roll of stamps were stolen from the office of North United Methodist Church, 300 Parker St. Both churches had burglaries, or missing items, in the past few months, police reported.

Budget input hearing draws three citizens

A hearing seeking input from Manchester residents for the 1978-79 budget attracted three persons, all members of the PTA's budget committee.

The hearing was held Thursday night in the Municipal Building and also was attended by three town officials — Robert Weiss, town manager, Charles McCarthy, assistant manager, and Thomas Moore, controller.

The meeting was held to seek input before Weiss prepares his budget proposal to be submitted to the Board of Directors.

All three of the PTA budget committee members voiced their support for the proposed school budget.

Weiss will present his budget proposal later this month. A townwide public hearing on the budget will be held in early April at which residents can speak on the proposed budget and any changes that they would like to see.

The Board of Directors then will begin its budget work and has to have an approved budget by early May.

School plans open houses

Temple Beth Shalom Nursery School in Manchester will host three open houses. Interested parents are invited to visit the school on Wednesday, March 15; Friday, April 15; or Monday, May 15 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

After viewing the program, they will have a chance to talk with the teacher-director over coffee or tea.

The school accepts children of 3- and 4-years of age. The program is run by two teachers and adds traditional Jewish celebrations to the basic nursery school program of arts and crafts, nature, stories, music, cooking, and field trips, as well as exploration of letter and number concepts.

There are two day, three day and five day a week options plus an extended day lunch program for preschoolers. The classes are in session from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and two preschool child care and transportation are available.

The nursery school serves families in all surrounding towns, including Garfield High School in Seattle, Wash., in 1974 and attended Seattle (Wash.) Community College. She is employed at Celestial Seasoning in Boulder, Colo.

Her fiancé graduated from East Catholic High School in 1973 and attended Manchester Community College. He is also employed at Celestial Seasoning in Boulder, Colo.

City has three plans to rebuild coliseum

HARTFORD (UPI) — City officials are reviewing three designs for the reconstruction of the Hartford Civic Center coliseum roof — each far more traditional than the roof that collapsed Jan. 18.

The plans were disclosed Thursday at the first formal meeting between the City Council and architectural and construction management firms hired for the rebuilding project.

Each of the plans would permit expansion of the coliseum from its former 10,000 seat capacity to 15,000 seats.

Representatives of the Minnesota-based architectural firm Ellerbe and several hours after the plans were shown, Deputy Mayor Nicholas Carbone told a committee investigating the roof collapse the city issued a "fast-track" construction plan to beat inflationary increases when the civic center was first built.

However, he emphasized that "there were no short-cuts taken" to cut costs.

Children dress for future jobs

Children at the Beechwood Nursery School dressed up in occupational costumes one day this week for an "What I Think I Want To Be Day."

The children pretended to be on television and told what their jobs were.

Zeke Downey, in a carpenter's uniform, said, "Carpenters are very neat because they make people's houses."

Dressed as a doctor, Sonny Wilde said that if people fall out of a window, he fixes them.

Christian Drouin had recreation in a mind when he described his chosen occupation as a fireman.

"I like to climb ladders and save people's lives. But the thing I like best about being a fireman is playing pool."

Irish backs Ferguson

Wallace Irish Jr., a member of the Republican State Central Committee, has announced his support for Thomas Ferguson, Manchester's Republican town chairman who is seeking re-election.

Ferguson defeated Irish two years ago for the party chairmanship. He is being challenged this year by Scott Clendaniel, a town committee member who ran the successful campaign last year of GOP Director Carl Zimser.

"I personally believe that a major step in party reform and broadening the party base has been started in the last two years and I hope it continues," Irish said.

He said that he believes both Ferguson and Clendaniel are fine party workers, and he said that he does not feel the race for the party chairmanship should be done in the public.

"I feel that little good is performed by battling in public," he said.

Irish mentioned that he feels the 17 new town committee members will help provide fresh ideas and energy to the party.

"Tom Ferguson has taken the first steps at trying to rebuild Manchester's Republican Party, and I firmly believe he deserves support to continue this task," he said.

Heavyweights to blame?

Some of those cracks and chukholes you're seeing on the highways may be the result of overweight trucks rather than icy winter weather.

At least that's the contention of federal highway officials, who've threatened to cut off road planning funds to 16 states unless they start enforcing truck-weight limits more effectively.

The 16 states, ranging from Pennsylvania and Alabama to Wyoming and Oklahoma, have 45 days to show why federal funds should not be withheld. Eleven other states have been warned to improve their enforcement or face similar action.

An assistant secretary of transportation, Chester Davenport, recommended the other day that states be given federal money to buy scales and other expensive equipment and set up more weighing stations.

A better idea would be to require states to make more diligent use of existing weighing stations - some of which appear to be closed 90 percent of the time.

Thought

A photographer once said that there are few truly beautiful people in the world. It takes skill for the photographer to bring out attractive features.

The reason that we do not realize that our features are irregular is that when we look in a mirror we are always moving, combing our hair, shaving, brushing our teeth, etc. We never stand still long enough to analyze ourselves.

Our lives are also reflected in this way. We live in such a fast moving culture that rarely, if ever, do we stop long enough to look at ourselves. A railroad crossing sign would be a help to us. Stop. Look. Listen.

Take time to discover yourself and your needs. The book of James tells that to the man who looks in a mirror but forgets what he sees. James implies that this man is headed for disaster.

By Sen. GEORGE W. HANNON Jr.

D-Third District
Assistant Majority Leader

In recent months, I have made a close study of the proliferation of litter, this growing solid waste problem and of the need to conserve both energy and the environment of our beautiful state.

The result of my research, which included out-of-state visits to resource recovery facilities, manufacturing companies and power plants, was the introduction of the Litter Control and Recycling Act.

Recently discussed at a public hearing, the bill will come before the General Assembly this session.

The Act is based on the successful Model Litter Control Act in Washington State, but has been tailored specifically to Connecticut's organization, population, political organization, and economy. Similar legislation also has been enacted in California and Colorado.

In authorizing the Litter Control and Recycling Act, I had a number of aims. There should be an efficient, well-funded system to remove all types of litter from our roadsides, parks, beaches and other recreation areas.

A workable method must be found to accomplish recycling of all sorts of valuable materials, from glass and metal to rags, paper, motor oil, etc.

The legislation also should help reduce solid waste and the use of energy. An educational effort should be made to develop conservation and environmental awareness in our citizens, both young and old.

A funding method must be found that would avoid increased consumer costs and would not burden business. If possible, jobs should be created.

The Litter Control and Recycling Act, I believe, achieves all these goals. A look at the major provisions of the Act shows that it will:

Target all types of items - from cigarette butts to castoff auto parts as litter.

Ban the sale of flip-top beverage cans after Jan. 1, 1980.

Provide funds for both public and private run recycling centers.

Include enforcement lines against littering and permit the courts to sentence litterbugs to periods of four to eight hours picking up litter.

Provide some 300 jobs in a Youth Litter Corps.

Provide funds to individual towns and to the state for cleanup and maintenance of roadsides, parks and other public areas.

Include public education programs, anti-litter promotions, scientific research and may other provisions to make the public more conscious of our environment.

The money needed to fund the Litter Control and Recycling Act will come from these businesses and industries of whose products are known to contribute to the litter stream.

The goal is to raise about $3,000 through a small yearly assessment on these businesses. That is the equivalent of about 90 cents per resident of the state.

It is a small price to pay for a cleaner environment, particularly when compared with $10,000,000 in higher annual food costs for consumers and business costs of $30,000,000 or more attributed to a rival measure, the bottle bill.

Happily, individual business assessments in the Litter Control and Recycling Act are minimal and are not expected to add to the price of consumer goods.

A similar assessment system in Washington State has not increased prices, and has provided sufficient funding to accomplish its environmental aims in litter control and recycling.

I am asking my colleagues in the Senate and in the House to join me in seeking passage of the Litter Control and Recycling Act this session. This is legislation we all can live with. It meets the needs of our modern society, using existing technology to its best advantage, while providing the flexibility for change to deal with future problems.

Connecticut needs environmental programs which are forward-looking, not complicated systems from the past. We must act now to create a legacy for future generations by enacting legislation upon which they can build.

Connecticut needs the Litter Control and Recycling Act.

Editor: Fr. Steve Jacobson
A service of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches

My 8-year-old son has difficulty in school. The psychologist says he is hyperactive. Although my son has sessions with the psychologist at school, I find it hard to manage him at home. He fights constantly with his sister and cannot be calmed when angry. He refuses to sit at the supper table. How can I help him and also make life more peaceful in our home?

Answer:
Hyperactivity is to be thought of as an abnormal form of behavior characterized most simply by a degree of physical activity and emotional frustration that is considered in excess of normal. This syndrome (picture) is most commonly found in males, tends to run in families and may be associated with a learning disability.

When the diagnosis is finally made, usually at age five or six, the parents frequently can trace the beginnings of the hyperactivity back to early infancy.

As a baby, he (since the majority are males) will use the masculine pronoun may be colicky, necessitating multiple formula changes and even the use of colic drops to lessen his irritability, spitting and sleeplessness.

In the toddler stage, he may prefer to run aimlessly around the house creating general mayhem instead of sitting on his mother's lap being affectionate and listening with great interest to her reading a story.

By four years of age, he is constantly on the move dumping food on the floor, knocking over furniture, destroying toys and fighting with his siblings and neighbors. He is very frustrated with himself because nothing goes his way, his parents are always scolding him and he has no friends.

His kindergarten or first grade teacher usually becomes suspicious of the diagnosis of hyperactivity because she finds him different from his normally active classmates. He is unable to sit still in his chair for more than a very short period of time, is constantly talking out of turn or to himself and is frequently running to the window, the bathroom and the teacher's desk.

His short attention span prevents him concentrating upon his desk work, the need for instant gratification makes it impossible for him to wait his turn or share with others, and his impulsivity creates chaos because of his fighting with other students and frequent interruption of classroom routine.

His physical hyperactivity makes it difficult for him to attain much educational benefit from school and his anti-social personality makes his classmates shun him at recess and call him "stupid" and/or "bully."

Having gone through the same kind of experiences at home with his parents and siblings, the hyperactive child develops a very poor image of himself and feels lonely and rejected all of which tends to increase his frustration and hyperactivity.

The teacher then calls his parents to school for a conference telling them she is requesting the school psychologist test their son for hyperactivity and any possible learning disability (an inability to learn the way other children learn and therefore a source of great frustration for the child). After his examination is completed, the psychologist then reports his findings to the parents.

He may indeed find the child has a learning disability and recommend the child's attending the Learning Center or Resource Room in his own school several hours a week for special help from the Learning Disability teacher. He may find the child hyperactive and make suggestions to the parents and the child's teacher as to how to decrease his sense of frustration and physical hyperactivity at home and in school.

The psychologist may also recommend the parents consult with the child's personal physician concerning the child's health in general and the use of medication in particular.

After receiving reports from the psychologist and the teacher, the doctor, in conference with the parents, reviews the child's past and present medical problems as well as his situation in school and at home and may recommend a more up-to-date complete physical examination as well as, in rare instances, laboratory studies.

The doctor, with the parent's consent, may then place the child on a trial of medication designed to improve the child's attention span, decrease his physical hyperactivity and frustration, enable him to absorb more from his appropriately-designed schooling and better his self-image.

Open new window; come view 'Mame'

Broadway has been moved to MHS with the coming of the musical "Mame."

This year's musical has assembled a superb and able cast which is needed to handle such a complex play, a musical which is ordinarily not touched by high schools.

The part, Mame, has been played by some greats like Rosalyn Russell and Lucille Ball. This production brings to the stage lovely and talented Bettina Bronis. Last year we saw her as that hot-tempered female Adelaide in "Guys and Dolls."

This year we see her as a sophisticated and flamboyant Mame Dennis. The transition has been made smoothly and Bettina again shines in full light on stage.

The dazzling Vera Charles is being played by a newcomer to MHS, Fran Clemens. Her talent is remarkable and she does a most professional job bringing a beautiful touch to her character, playing it to its outermost boundaries.

Jerry Canley is a new recruit from Illing, where he appeared as the stern Baron Von Trapp in "The Sound of Music." He now takes a turn at playing the young and meek Patrick Dennis, bringing youth and vitality to the part.

The older Patrick Dennis is portrayed by the multi-talented Stephen Lalbam. One don't have to tell how talented he is: Steve's versatility will be known. His recent outing was that of a criminal in this past fall's "Sok & Buskin production 'The Hounds of the Baskervilles.'" Last year he played Nicely-Nicely Johnson, a rough New York gangster in the musical "Guys and Dolls."

Paul Munste plays Mame's Southern beau Beauregard Jackson, and his golden voice is brought out in its full beauty. Last year as Avridie Abernathy in "Guys and Dolls," Paul soother the audience with his crooning voice.

The naive and flighty Agnes Gooch is being played by the agile kid herself, Sandie Bellone. She has always tickled us with her cute performances, and this is no exception.

The play itself is based on the novel by Patrick Dennis about his true Auntie Mame. The script was written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, and the memorable songs were composed by Jerry Herman.

The play spans Mame's life from the time Patrick arrives in 1928 until she takes his young son to India in 1946. The play lets the audience experience all the ups and downs of Mame's life, thanks to the songs and lyrics of Mr. Herman.

The play is being directed, produced, and conducted by Miss Martha White and student director Sue Thulin. Miss White has put on ten Manchester High School musicals, all involving a cast of hundreds. She has put much energy and time into these performances and it shows in the many acclaims she has received over the years. Again this year, after working 34-hour shifts, we are in for another great one.

So come to Bailey Auditorium where you will experience a musical revelation, an experience that will always remain with you. The time is tonight at 8 - and on Saturday night at the same time. - Mike L'ko

Math team third in last meet

Manchester High's math team placed third in a recent meet, behind Hall High and Conard High. Manchester's team total was 73 points. Hall is now first overall, Manchester second, and Conard third.

For "A" team, senior David Ostrom and junior Scott Freeman both ended with totals of 17. Senior Kim Noone had 15, junior Karen Johnson 12, and sophomore Jeff Lombardo 7.

The team's coach, Mrs. Roberta Thompson, still has high hopes of placing in the New England tournament, an overall finish of second place would accomplish that. Manchester will definitely go to the Connecticut meet, which matches the top ten teams from each league. Finishing first overall is doubtful because the team is now 21 points out of that position, but it is still within the realm of possibility.

Also decided at the meet were the "A" team students who are eligible for the Connecticut State team, which will complete June 2 and 3 at the Atlantic Regional Math Meet. To be held in Rutgers, N.J. David Ostrom, one of the four highest scoring students in the league, is now on the team. Other students from MHS who have qualified to take written tests which can then qualify them for the team are David Oshinsky, Sandie Bellone, Karen Johnson and Scott Freeman. The test is to be administered on March 13 at Bristol Central High.

Banquet planned MHS hockey beats East

COEP students have just planned something that is both traditional and nonconformative - and is still a banquet.

This event will take place on May 23, and will be an occasion for COEP students to take their employers to dinner. Also attending will be a representative from the state Department of Education, the superintendent of Manchester schools and the high school administration.

This shall be the ninth annual banquet and will be held at the Colony restaurant. Attendance of the banquet in the past has been close to 200. Entertainment will be provided by Rick McKieckle.

Awards will be given to first- and second-year students who have exceeded in performance in the classroom and on the job. This looks to be a very nice occasion and an excuse to get the matching coat and tie out of mothballs. - Jim Richardson

The game began 20 minutes before schedule, but it turned out to be worth the wait. Both teams (though admittedly mediocre in comparison to others) played hard and fast. Players who looked especially good for Manchester were diminutive Tom Roach and Kelly McSweeney. Mike Lassow also looked good, but he spent too much time in the penalty box - a problem that he has had all year.

Manchester had a very poor season this year (they won only four games) and prospects are not looking much better for next year. The Indians are graduating fast-skating captain Jack Getting, and that loss will be expensive. Manchester has many returning

Math team third in last meet

Manchester High's math team placed third in a recent meet, behind Hall High and Conard High. Manchester's team total was 73 points. Hall is now first overall, Manchester second, and Conard third.

For "A" team, senior David Ostrom and junior Scott Freeman both ended with totals of 17. Senior Kim Noone had 15, junior Karen Johnson 12, and sophomore Jeff Lombardo 7.

The team's coach, Mrs. Roberta Thompson, still has high hopes of placing in the New England tournament, an overall finish of second place would accomplish that. Manchester will definitely go to the Connecticut meet, which matches the top ten teams from each league. Finishing first overall is doubtful because the team is now 21 points out of that position, but it is still within the realm of possibility.

Also decided at the meet were the "A" team students who are eligible for the Connecticut State team, which will complete June 2 and 3 at the Atlantic Regional Math Meet. To be held in Rutgers, N.J. David Ostrom, one of the four highest scoring students in the league, is now on the team. Other students from MHS who have qualified to take written tests which can then qualify them for the team are David Oshinsky, Sandie Bellone, Karen Johnson and Scott Freeman. The test is to be administered on March 13 at Bristol Central High.

For "B" team at the last meet, senior Nhat Nguyen had 15 points and sophomore Steve Reich, 12. Junior Rob Saunders had 10, sophomore Patty Shier, 8, and sophomore Tim DeValve, seven. - Richard Walden

Banquet planned MHS hockey beats East

COEP students have just planned something that is both traditional and nonconformative - and is still a banquet.

USA goes one up on Gottfried win

Question of the day
Who was the Boston Red Sox left-fielder before Ted Williams arrived on the scene? Is a question posed from time to time by readers.

Jimmy Piersall

It's a good question along the same lines as who did Babe Ruth succeed in the New York Yankee outfield. Answer to the first part is Joe Vosmik while Sammy Joe Procchio took the job from Piersall. Ted Williams, wearing the pin stripes of the Yankees in 1919.

Will Australia win one point in the 1978 Aetna World Cup tennis tournament?

Onetime Australian boy wonder John Alexander was given the task of breaking the string of United States conquests last night at the New Haven Veteran's Memorial Coliseum but he could not counter with the all-around play of Brian Gottfried.

John Alexander

remaining singles matches and we should win the doubles, too," a confident Alexander expressed. "I felt that I was in tonight's match until the last point."

True, the tall Aussie was very much in the match and the highlight of the first set was game No. 5 with play deadlocked, 2-2.

Fourteen times the score was deuce before Gottfried won. Alexander held advantage seven times and Gottfried five times before he finished the longest point of the night with a hard backhand down the line.

Gottfried's backhand return both to the forehand and backhand kept Alexander off balance and was a vital factor in the success as well as effective drop shots.

Association trailed just once in each set, after game No. 1 in each. The pair was tied twice in the first set, 2-2 and 3-3, and twice in the second, 2-2 and 3-3.

"I was pleased with my return of serve. I volleyed well and my overhead game was good. I wasn't too pleased with my serve," Gottfried said. Each player had only one ace.

"A tennis match is one-on-one. You have to hit the shot to win. We have a coach but he can't hit the ball for you on the court."

"Dennis (Ralston, USA team captain) has helped me quite a bit. He doesn't say much but when he does, you listen. He really knows the game."

The big part of my game is my service return. I work on this and it paid off tonight," the winner added. Gottfried led 5-3 in both sets but had trouble putting the finishing touches to the agile Aussie.

Saturday afternoon, Alexander comes back against Connors. A doubles match will also be on the schedule.

"There is not any player on the circuit I feel I can't beat. I think I have a good chance against Connors," a confident Alexander said.

Exhibition match featuring Arthur Ashe and Ralston against Aussies Fred Stolle and Roy Emerson found the USA triumphing 6-2, 7-6 with $3,000 to the winners and $1,500 to the losers.

Ashe and Emerson and Company will be shooting for the $70,000 team award and many feel the USA is well on the way to making it three straight years of domination.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am the secretary for a businessman whose wife is getting on my nerves. When she phones him at the office, and I tell her that her husband is talking on the phone, she always asks, "How long do you think he will be?"

Abby, how do I know how long he will be? He could say goodbye in three seconds, or he could talk for half an hour. Please print this for a lot of other dummies who ask that question; a million secretaries will love you for it.

SOMEBODY'S SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Everybody can use a little more love, but I confess that on occasion I've been one of those "dummies."

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is all right to speak to my mother in the same tone she uses when she speaks to me? When she yells at me or gets sarcastic, and I answer her back in the same tone, she slaps me right in front of my friends. They're all afraid of her.

Before my friends come over, they ask if my mother is in a bad mood today. Please tell me how to get along with a person everybody is afraid of. I have four more years to go before I'm old enough to leave home, and I can hardly wait.

MOTHER TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: It's NOT all right to speak to your mother in the same tone she uses when she speaks to me. Have problems children know nothing of, and they sometimes take out their frustrations on those who are nearest and dearest to them. When mother is in a "bad mood," try being especially patient and understanding, because that's when she needs it the most.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 feet 11 and weigh 230 pounds. That's not all. I'm black, female, 22 and very lonely. I guess you can see why.

I try to lose weight, but I get upset about something and start eating again. Nothing seems to help. I sit around feeling sorry for myself, then I force myself to go out and meet people, but they always turn out to be the wrong kind of people.

If you know anyone who wants a big, tall, black girl to love, please let me know, because without love, there's no point in living.

LONELY IN GA.

DEAR LONELY: I don't put people in touch with people through my column, but perhaps I can help you. Being overweight is only part of your problem. I don't know if there's an Overeaters Anonymous chapter in your area, but if there isn't, it would be worth taking a trip to the nearest city that has one. And if you're not sure whether life is worth living, please call your Suicide Prevention hot line.

Write to me again and let me know if you've followed these leads. I care.

Several large operations may pop up this coming year, but they will mean much to you and your family. If everyone puts together, happy days are ahead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't jump to conclusions today, because you might hastily write something off that is potentially promising. Listening, not leading, is the answer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you thought to be out of your league may propose an interesting joint venture with you today. It could be a step up to the big time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You have the gift to make fortunate agreements today, provided you're prepared to give a little to get a lot. From the pump, necessary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Scorpions that are not profit yielding should not be permitted to enter into the time of those that are. Devote your energies to the money-makers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Luck has its limitations today. As long as you are aware of this, you will fare rather well. Press your luck too far and it will slip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Rather than depend upon co-operation regarding something you want to finalize today, you'll be better off sealing the deal by your lonesome.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) All work and no play will not be a sure formula for taking the zing out of life. Set your loola aside early today. Do something that's fun.

BANCER (June 21-July 21) In competitive situations, you are the underdog.

ace and another diamond before giving East a chance to get on lead. Few soups players found this defense and almost all diamond declarers made eight tricks.

The most common bidding was that shown in the box with South playing one no trump, taking the spade finesse and losing one spade, four diamonds, two clubs and 50 points.

There is a way to make one no trump. See if you can find it. Not many Souths did. Here's the play. South wins the second diamond and decides that East will be holding all the missing high cards.

Then he cashes the king and queen of hearts and throws East with a diamond. East takes his diamonds but must give declarer his seventh trick in a black suit.

A Florida reader wants to know what the "trivial" no trump convention is and who invented it.

We will answer the second part today. It was invented by one of the great bridge theorists and players. Second part tomorrow.

State protects woman with murder evidence

HARTFORD (UPI) — An unidentified woman who allegedly has new information about the slaying of Peter Reilly's mother, Barbara Gibbons, is in protective custody, state police said today.

The Hartford Courant reported in today's edition that the woman has confessed the slaying to her and says she now fears for her life.

A state police spokesman confirmed the girl has been placed under state police guard at an undisclosed location for her own protection, "as of yesterday" (Thursday), he said.

The newspaper said the woman has given a statement to Litchfield County State's Attorney Dennis Santore and other state authorities.

The woman had first gone to Reilly with the information and was referred to private detective James G. Conway of Vernon.

Conway worked on the controversial Reilly case, which drew nationwide attention and became the subject of two books and a movie, for the defense.

Conway said today he told the woman she should turn over her information to Santore.

The Courant says Santore has indicated he is checking out the woman's story about the murder of Reilly's mother.

Santore has also declined to elaborate on the report, but said he is checking out other leads in the case that surfaced after a movie on the Reilly case was televised nationally last week.

Governor urges help for cities

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso has issued an executive order directing state agencies to take positive steps to help Connecticut cities meet their problems.

"One of the most important tasks facing state government in Connecticut is to take positive steps to help revitalize our urban centers and to halt the spread of urban blight into surrounding areas," Mrs. Grasso said at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

The order puts Anthony V. Milano, secretary of the Office of Policy and Management, in charge of developing a plan to "assure that existing state policies and programs are used to revitalize our urban areas."

Mrs. Grasso said the order "is in no way designed to take away money from any place."

Lottery

The number drawn Thursday in the Connecticut daily lottery was 519.

Training session held for masseurs in town

A training session, sponsored by the Town of Manchester, was held this morning to instruct massage parlor owners and employees on the proper technique of massage.

The town's ordinance governing the parlor goes into effect Tuesday, and the training is one of the steps the town sought to take before that date.

Dr. Fran Tappan, a former assistant dean at the University of Connecticut's school of allied sciences and a retired physical therapist, conducted the training session, which was held in Woodcraft Hall at Center Congregational Church.

Representatives from one massage parlor in town — Cleopatra's — were present as were employees of the Town Health Department, including Dr. Alice Turek, director of health.

Dr. Tappan discussed the proper techniques involved in giving a massage. She also discussed cleanliness and dress standards that masseurs should meet.

For instance, anyone giving a massage should not wear jewelry that might bother the person being massaged.

The town ordinance goes into effect Tuesday, and any massage parlor and its employees will have to have applied for a license by 4:30 p.m. that day, Dr. Turek said.

The ordinance sets a $50 fee for the establishments and a $25 fee for each employee. If a parlor has not filed an application with payment by Tuesday, an arrest warrant will be served on the establishment Wednesday, she said.

Another requirement of the ordinance is that masseurs have proper schooling on massage techniques or can pass a test given by the town.

Testing is expected to start Wednesday, Dr. Turek said. She said that today's session gave the massage parlor employees an opportunity to prepare for the tests.

She also said that today's session was taken by the town with an eye toward future legal action against the ordinance.

Massage parlor owners previously had sought an injunction of ordinances in Manchester and Hartford that govern their establishments. The injunction was denied, but another court case, challenging the constitutionality of the ordinances, is expected.

McDonald's developers are targets of vandals

By MAL BARLOW
Herald Reporter
Someone threw mayonnaise jars filled with bright paint at the home of Roxie Leone of 20 Holland Lane sometime Wednesday evening while Leone appeared before the East Hartford Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC).

Police said the paint was black, red, orange, and blue. Most of it struck the garage doors. Some of it splashed on the Mercedes Benz parked in the drive and owned by Leone's daughter, Sharon Leone.

Total damage was estimated at about $2,000, police said. The Leones discovered the paint on their return home from the Town Hall at about 12:30 a.m. Thursday. Although the PZC meeting was over by 11:30 p.m., the Leones were delayed from leaving the parking lot due to someone's puncturing the tires on several of the Leone family's personal cars, police said.

The 1978 Cadillac owned by Angelo J. Leone, one of Roxie's brothers, had both the tires punctured and the paint scratched, police said. The 1977 Lincoln of Fred W. Leone, another brother, also suffered the same fate in the town lot.

The three men are principals with their brother, Gordon Leone, and their sister, Mrs. Joan Machi, in Leone Enterprises Inc. The firm has proposed building a McDonald's restaurant with 118 seats and 103 parking stalls on 1.8 acres of land at 755 and 765 Silver Lane.

They appeared before the PZC Wednesday night seeking a zone change and a special use permit to allow the restaurant. After their attorney, Paul Sullivan of Hartford, made a lengthy presentation which included a traffic expert and a land appraiser, people opposed to the plan spoke.

Atty. Sam Teller spoke against the plan on behalf of William Grant, owner of Augie & Ray's Drive-In at 708 Silver Lane, and four other property owners in the area of the proposed restaurant site.

Teller said Thursday, "I condemn any action like that," referring to the attacks of vandals.

Warren Sullivan, director of the Department of Development, said he, too, was shocked at the incidents. He sat with the PZC during the hearing Wednesday night as an advisor.

"They can't say we're asking them to do something that's impossible," Dr. Turek said of the testing requirement. "If the training session is to help them and show we're not being unreasonable," she said.

McDonald's developers are targets of vandals. The PZC hearing is their right, they said. Paquette's charges Joseph Paquette, East Hartford Democrat now seeking his party's nomination for the Third Senatorial District seat in the fall elections, said something else is wrong with the restaurant plans.

Paquette wrote the PZC chairman Thursday about the real estate deal behind the proposed restaurant.

Paquette said he wanted to bring "certain facts" to the attention of the PZC members. He wrote, "Certain political figures in town with powerful influence have been behind most large zone changes and have benefited personally through a vehicle know as a real estate license."

"It's been brought to my attention that an aide of Congressman (William) Cotto is involved in this transaction and it's my understanding that two other influential politicians are to share in this bounty."

He said the aide is Joseph Dentamaro of Riverside Realty. Dentamaro said Wednesday night at the PZC hearing that he does have an interest in seeing the change go through. He sat through the whole proceeding although he took no active part.

The other figures involved, Paquette said, are Eugene Paquette and George Hamon, the current holder of the Senate seat Paquette is seeking.

"I feel it would be proper for the PZC commission to seek all the details of the financial arrangements with different real estate brokers who are involved in the shadows of this application," he wrote Forrest.

Forrest said he was not personally taking Paquette's letter seriously. But he said he would read it to the PZC at the Wednesday meeting.

Shopping For That New Home

One way to find out what houses are available is to shop the newspapers. The big house displays usually appear in the weekend papers. Study these advertisements to find out the kinds of houses on sale and how much they cost. Look at the classified sections of "homes for sale" too.

Also, you may want to talk with people in the real estate business. When you know what you want, they can often find it for you. As a rule these firms do not advertise every house they have for sale.

Another way is to get the word around to your friends that you are in the market for a house. This may lead to a good buy. Watch for "open house" signs. A sign in the most unlikely spot may produce exactly what you want for your family.

'Price Plus' continues

Mott's Shop-Rite Supermarkets have announced plans to continue its "Price Plus" merchandising concept, which Stanford Cohen, president of the corporation, termed a great success in its first year in operation.

Cohen said the Mott's Supermarkets have just completed the most successful year in the company's history. Cohen attributed the success of the price plus concept to its simplicity. "We put the right price on the item the first time (as opposed to a price which often includes stamps, gifts, games and gimmicks) and if it is an everyday staple such as tomato soup, we sell it at little or no profit."

Other items which are purchased by the consumer only once a month or so bring a 10 to 15 percent profit, and if bought less often bring a profit of 20 percent or more.

The profit mix, net profit after expenses and taxes, comes to less than one percent, or a quarter on a $30 order, Cohen said. Shop-Rite, in its advertising, consumer relation and with its employee cooperation, intends to feature Price Plus through 1978 and beyond.

Headquarters for Shop-Rite is at 65 Leggett St., East Hartford. Stores in Manchester are located at 567 E. Middle Turnpike and 214 Spencer St.
