Nothing indicative of American authority remains in Honolulu save Minister Stevens and Commissioner James H. Blount.

Commissioner Bienat held a long secret conference with President Dole and the Ministry at which he notified them of his intention to declare off the protectorate established by Minister Stevens, February I.

It is understood that he gave as his reason therefor that the Washington Administration regarded the protector ate unnecessary, and thought it incompatible with diplomatic negotiations that might be arranged between the two countries.

The United States, however, would brook no interference in Hawaiian affairs by any foreign power. The Provisional Government somewhat reluctantly acquiesced in the Commissioner's decision.

Rumors of this determination were soon spread, and on the morning of the 1st several thousand people were gathered about the Government building.

It had been rumored also as soon as the Stars and Stripes were lowered the colors of some other power would be hoisted, while another popular theory, based on rumors, was that the ex-Queen would at one demand the restoration of her power, and would back up the demand by arms.

The provisional leaders placed enough credence in this latter report to muster their forces to the number of four hundred and kept them under arms all night and the next day.

Lieutenant Draper, of the Marine Corps, attached to the Boston, had to perform the duty of lowering his country's flag. At one minute past 11 the halyards moved slowly and the red, white and blue went down.

Instantly the Hawaiian colors fluttered to the top. There was hardly a muratur from the crowd.

Silence prevailed as the Ameri-LADY ABERDEEN a few days ago made an excursion by moonlight to Blarney, and there, by candle light, kissed the "Blarney stone" in order to qualify herself before going out to the Irish village at the Chicago exhibition, where she is to be "at home" most of the time in a cottage.

The operator said that twenty-five people were killed. Robinsonville is in Funion County, Mississippi, twenty-nine miles south of Memphis, on the Louisville and New Crleans Rallroad.

It was destroyed by the tornado in the afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The ruins caught fire and but one house was left standing. Mrs. Lusk, wife of a telegraph operator, was killed, and J. B. Dubbers, a merchant, was seriously injured. A number of colored people were killed and many maimed, waile hundreds of people were left shelterless, exposed to the pitiless storm. A colored schoolbouse near Robinsonville was blown down and twenty-five people killed.

Rain and wind storms also prevailed over West Tennessee, Eastern Arkansas and Northern Mississippi, but so far as learned Robinsonville and vicinity alone suffered from the storm.

head, no coat for your back, no shoes for your feet. Bettee travel on toward eternity bare headed and bare footed, and houseless and homeless, and frindless, than go through life without religion.

Did religion make Raleigh any less of a satatsman, or Havelock any less of a coldier, or Grinnell any less of a morehant, or West any less of a painter? Religion is the best security in every bargain, it is the sweetest note in every account. No time to be religious! Why, you will have to take time to be stek, to be troubled, to die. Our world is only the wharf from which we are to embark for heaven. No time to secure of which are decomposed and to embark for heaven. No time to secure the friendship of Christ. No time to buy a think we had time for nothing else.

Other persons acologiza for not entering the Christian life because it is time enough yet. That is very like those persons who send their regrets and say: "I will come in perhaps at 1 or 12 o'clock. I will not be there at the opening of the banquet, but I will be there at the close." Not yet! Not dyspeptic. The greater convenience, yet!

Now, I do not give any doleful view of this life. There is nothing in my nature, nothing in the grace of God, that tends toward a foloful view of human life. I have not much sympathy with Addison's description of the "Vision of Mirza," where he represents human life is being a bridge of a resents human life as being a bridge of a hundred arches, and both ends of the bridge covered with clouds, and the race coming on, the most of them falling down through the first corn.

the Spanish proverb which says, "The sky is good, and the earth is good—that which

But while we Christian people are bound to take a cheerful view of life we must also confess that life is a great uncertainty, and that man who says, "I can't become a Christian because there is time enough yet," is running a risk infinite. You do not perhaps realize the fact that this descending grade of sin gats steeper and steeper, and that you are gathering up a rush and valueity which after awhile may not answer to go on in sin and worldliness, but after awhile I will repent, and then it will be as though I will repent, and then it will be as though I had come at the very start." That is a delusion. No one ever gets fully over procrastination. If you give your soul to God, some other time than this, you will enter beaven with only half the capacity for enjoyment and knowledge you might have had. There will be beights of blessedness you might have attained, you will never reach; thrones of glory on which you might have been seated, but which you will never climb. We will never get over pro-crastination, neither in time nor in eterwith the vast eternity! I was thinking of this while coming down over the Alleghany Mountains at noon, by that wonderful place which you have all heard described as the Horsehoe—a depression in the side of the mountain where the train almost jturns backs
