A Good Rule of Life. It would be well if more housekeepers looked upon life in as philosophical a way as an old lady of 80 years living in New Hampshire, who says: "I never allow my-self to fret over things I cannot help. I take a nap, and sometimes two, every day of my life. I never take my washing, iron ing or baking to bed with me, and I try to oil all the various wheels of a busy life with an implicit belief that there are a brain and a heart to this great universe, and that I can trust them both." We should hear less of nervous prostration, shouldn't we!-

An Ideal State of Affairs. What an ideal state of affairs for the housekeeper when there is a culinary depot in every neighborhood and a menu for the day is sent round in the morning and orders |taken, just as the fishmongers now send round their lists! That is what a writer on domestic service desires, who holds that the present system is played out and old fashoned, and that it is time to reorganise household affairs on a co-operative basis.
