TOWN NEWS.

Owing to the heavy rain storm of last Saturday, the proposed game of base ball between the South Manchester and Naubuc nine did not take place, although the Naubuc came here and were ready to play. They enjoyed themselves in the Army for part of the afternoon playing basket ball and finally drove home. They had a covered "buss" and were amply protected from the rain.

Sixty six persons were confirmed in the Episcopal church last Friday evening, by Bishop Williams. There were seventy eight on the list. Some were out of town, others were sick, and for various reasons, did not present themselves for confirmation. The next and very little church was crowded to its fullest capacity and, as usual, looked very pretty and was fragrant with the perfume of flowers.

Rev. W. J. McGurk of Hartford will deliver a temperance address in St. Bridget's church Sunday evening May 27, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Admission is free. Father McGurk comes here under the auspices of the St. Mary's T. A. Society. He is said to be an eloquent speaker and earnest, temperance advocate, and no doubt, the little church will be well filled on the occasion named above.

LIGHTS ALL IN POSITION. The central chandelier of electric lamps has been placed in Cheney Hall this week, as has also the one in the west alcove, for the orchestra. This completes the electric lighting of the hall, and marks as good a piece of electrical engineering as can be found anywhere in New England, outside of the very largest cities.

GOOD READING. On page 5 of The News you will find a column that will well repay a careful perusal. The first article is headed "A Common Nuisance" and you all know who he is. This is followed by an excellent suggestion with the caption of "The School Bank," it is an article of much merit and the paragraph entitled "Support The Local Newspaper" is unquestionably well put and timely. Read them all.

RAIN IN ABUNDANCE. Everybody hereabouts is aware of the fact that we had a much needed rain last Saturday and Sunday and to believe it is safe to say that all rejoice that such was the fact. It was long coveted, came slow enough so that it could sink down deep into the dry earth, and was ample enough to moist all present needs. It was about as great a blessing as we could possibly receive at this time and will accomplish untold benefits and blessings to us all. We desire to gratefully acknowledge the good work.

LOOKING AHEAD. A gang of men is at work under the direction of George W. Irons, widening the banks on either side of the South Manchester railroad at points where this is necessary, in order to allow for snow drifts to be shoveled off the tracks conveniently, whenever it may become necessary, and at the same time grading off the sides and leveling them down to grade level, so as to keep the dust out of the cars and engines, thus making it much more pleasant for the traveling public and saving in wear and tear of the rolling stock of the company.

TO CHOOSE JURORS. New jurors will be chosen at the town hall on the first Monday in June, which occurs this year on the fourth day of the month. These persons are selected to serve for one year from Sept. 1st, 1894 and are named by a joint board consisting of the justices of the peace, selectmen, constables and grand jurors of the town. They are empowered to serve as jurymen in the superior, common pleas and district courts, and also in those before justices of the peace.

TELEGRAPHING ON SUNDAY. By a new order of the New York & New England Railroad Company, it will not be necessary for the station agent at Manchester to remain in the office all day Sundays hereafter. Therefore, persons wishing to send telegraphic dispatches on the Lord's Day, from the Manchester station, which by the way is the only place in town where this service is rendered on that day, can do so from nine to ten a. m. and from five to six p. m. Those interested will take dispatches thereof and govern themselves accordingly, as the new order of things goes into effect at once.

HORSEMEN TO MEET.

The rain of last Saturday prevented any gathering of horsemen at Woodland Park, but it is expected that there will be quite a number on hand tomorrow afternoon to test the track, which is now in most excellent condition, and as a matter of fact, one of the best half mile tracks in the state. It has been dressed over somewhat since the rain and is now in gilt edged order. An effort will be made to have some attractions at the Park, July 4, together with a meet, and these questions will be discussed tomorrow afternoon, so as to get some idea as to what the horsemen want, or are willing to do.

Y. W. C. T. U. SOCIABLE.

The Y. W. C. T. U. will hold its clothes and rosettes on in the town hall on Monday evening May 28. Ice cream and cake will be served. Admission ten cents. A special invitation is extended to members of the Y. W. C. T. U., and the general public is cordially invited. The "Y. T. U." will serve the ice cream and cake, and a very pleasant evening is anticipated.

This new organization is becoming quite popular. It was organized but recently with few members, and now has thirty-one on its roll.

NOW FOR BUSINESS.

Laban Adams has opened his ice cream parlors, corner of Sign and Pleasant streets, formerly Jerry Maher's stand, and is now prepared to serve patrons with all the popular flavors. He has removed the fish business to a building in the rear, so as not to disconcert his customers, and is expected to do a large business. He now carries a line of groceries which can be had at the store, or will be served on orders from his wagon. He is making a specialty of long and round cheese, live and hot butter for Saturdays, and will fill all orders for same promptly.

BUY IT FOR YOUR SELF.

Do not borrow. The News from your neighbor. He will think a great deal more of you if you buy it for yourself. He may not tell you this, but it is the truth nevertheless. The man who buys the paper, does so for his own use and that of his family, and does not expect a neighbor who will come in and borrow it from him, because the chances are that just at the time you borrow it, he or some member of his family will want to use it, and as they may not be at home, it will be gone for it, they certainly should have the use of it themselves. THE NEWS is issued every Friday morning and costs but One Dollar a year. Your subscription will be gladly received.

FJME CONCERT COMING.

Mr. Fritz Westbeck has very accomplished violinist, is planning to give a grand concert in Cheney Hall. He will be assisted by Mrs. Nella Beardon, Berzon, soprano and Mr. Merrit Alfroy, pianist. The concert will be one of very high grade and will be a rare treat to all lovers of music. Regarding the ability of Mr. Westbeck the following strong testimonials leave no doubt: "Herr Westbeck, who has only recently come to America, played a violin solo by Sarasate in a most masterful manner. His technique is excellent and he is sure to make a high reputation in musical circles." - New York Home Journal.

Fritz Westbeck, recently settled at the Royal Opera, Stockholm, Sweden, is a master of technique, but it is his delicate bowing that one most notices with excellence. He plays with most expression and his style is magnetic in quality. - Hartford Courier. Full particulars will appear later.

The Glenwood Range.

Contains many new features combined with those proven by experience to be very valuable. Every detail has been considered at great length by men who have had long experience in the business, and nothing has been left undone to make this a perfect range. The castings are of the best quality of iron, and their smoothness and fineness of texture are remarkable. This range should be critically examined to fully comprehend all its many points of excellence.

The manufacturers of this range started in business in 1877. They were a half dozen of practical workmen, who had grown tired of strikes, etc., and joined themselves into a company to manufacture these goods, which, solely on their merits, in open competition with others, have pushed themselves to the front, until to-day these people turn out more ranges than any concern in New England.

Stanley Waterloo, the newspaper man who is now devoting himself almost entirely to authorship, has recently beaten the record in a book for publication. A Chicago publisher, relates the Atlantic Constitution, sent for Mr. Waterloo and asked him whether he could have a book on the Coxy movement ready for press in four days. Mr. Waterloo being a well-equipped journalist, full of resources, and knowing not the word "fail," said he could.

On Monday morning, the publisher said "go ahead" and gave him carte blanche as to expenses. A staff of writers was organized, specialists were engaged for the historical part of the work, typographers took the field, photographers clicked day and night, and Mr. Waterloo himself hardly ate or slept. The result was that on the following Thursday night the "copy" for a book of over a hundred illustrations, with forty illustrations was in the hands of the printer.

In studying the statistics of manufactures just issued by the census bureau, it is interesting to note that the number of men employed, the amount of raw material used and the value of the product have been largely increased during the last ten years, but there has been no corresponding increase in the number of establishments, and in a great many cases the number is actually smaller than it was ten years ago. There were, for example, 1,943 factories making agricultural implements in 1880, while in 1890 there were only 900. The carpet mills decreased from 195 to 178, the chemical works from 592 to 563, the copper shops from 3,926 to 2,562, the cordage and rope works from 165 to 140, the cotton factories from 1,905 to 1,975, the flour mills from 24,338 to 20,400, the iron and steel mills from 1,005 to 645, the tanneries from 5,424 to 5,596, the distilleries from 844 to 440, the breweries from 2,191 to 2,448, the lumber mills from 25,708 to 21,011, the paper mills from 696 to 1,077, the shoe and boot works from 1,118 to 1,010, the soap and candle factories from 629 to 578, the tobacco factories from 427 to 395, the woolen mills from 2,066 to 1,454. At the same time the product of all these industries was very largely increased—in many cases two, three, four and five hundred per cent. Nor is the value of the product in 1890, as compared with the value in 1880, a fair criterion of measurement, for the reason that everything is cheaper now than it was ten years ago. There is scarcely an article produced in the United States that cannot be purchased at a lower price now than then. It is unfortunate that the census reports do not make their estimate by quantities instead of by values. It is also noticeable that while the productive capacities of the United States have increased more than 100 per cent during the last ten years, the population has increased only about 25 per cent.

Work has already been begun in France on the tapestries that are to be one of the features of the great exhibition of 1900. This seems to be a case of taking time by the forelock, but it is necessary because of the laborious character of the work, an expert worker being able to produce hardly more than a square yard of artistic tapestry in a year.

We wonder how the world got along before the discovery of America, for that meant the discovery of that essential tuber, the potato. Originally this was a small and unimportant root, but since it has been domesticated, it has become one of the most important articles of food. It is cultivated in all climates, and its tendency to produce varieties. Of these there are forty in the United States, eighteen in Germany, twenty-six in Great Britain, thirty-two in France, and Australia is said to have fifteen.

Many traps are proudly exhibited in New England as having been brought over in the Mayflower, and have proved to be frauds, avers the Argonaut. Tea was scarcely known in England up to 1660, when Samuel Pepys tasted it for the first time. It certainly had not been introduced into Europe in 1620. The folks, too, that came over in the Mayflower, had no tobacco, but also better to put away with the teapots, for the very earliest to be found in England are not older than the middle of the reign of Charles the Second. A few exist of the reign of George the First, and they are three-pronged. It was not until the time of George the Third that the four-pronged fork was used.

According to La Prensa, a Buenos Ayres newspaper, a new land has been discovered in the Antarctic Ocean. Three schooners having auxiliary steam machinery and floating the Norwegian flag, the Jason, Costar and Hertha, commanded respectively by Captain Lander, Peterson and Hurten, were sent to the coast of Victoria. The first of these, the Hertha, an Argentine war vessel, and the Norwegian schooner that they had discovered a new zone of land at Graham, on the west side of the coast already known. The three Norwegian schooners, which navigated through, had on board 5,000 tons of coal, and intended to continue their discoveries. One of these vessels had also on board 6,000 sea-wolves, from which a large quantity of oil was to be extracted.

New Hampshire is trying a forestry experiment, and the first annual report of the Forestry Commission of that state has just been published. Perhaps the most interesting—at all events the most original—part of the report deals with the practical forestry work that is being carried out by private co-operative companies. These, explains the San Francisco Examiner, are organized for the purpose of giving the more desirable trees the advantage, and planting where reforestation is necessary. Progress is likewise reported in another direction. The commission has found friends among some of the lumbermen, who had the sense to see that the forestry movement is not against them, but that it is merely preventing them from killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. The true principles of forestry need to be followed if a great part of the United States is not to become a barren waste, and no part of the country is so vitally interested in seeing these principles recognized and carried out as the western region, that depends on reforestation for its products.

RIOTING IN FULL SWAY.

STRIKERS SHOT DOWN BY PENNSYLVANIA DEPUTIES.

Fifty Men Were Arraigned Against a Mob of Two Thousand Excited Miners—Fought Started by a Deputy Who Fired Into the Air—Towns Terrible in Hilarity.

The bloodiest battle in the industrial history of Fayette County, Pennsylvania, occurred a few mornings ago, at Steele's Hollow. Four strikers were killed and many others were wounded. Two thousand strikers were pitted against seventy-five deputies, but the little band won the fight in a few minutes and captured a large number of the rioters.

Only one of the dead men was an English-speaking miner. His name was Barney McKelvey, and he lived at Steele's Hollow, near the river. The other dead were Hungarians.

The scene of the battle was a farm owned by President George Washington. It was situated on the Monacauch and Thornburgh Rivers, twenty-one miles west of Harrisburg. The Washington Coal and Coke Company, operating the Steele's Hollow mine, had been the only mine in that part of the Pittsburgh district that was mining coal. The mine was worked by a large number of strikers who had been collected from various points all day and throughout the night. They were armed with clubs, stones, and other missiles. They kept up their intimidation all night long, and in the morning they were still there. They were ordered to leave the mine, but they refused to do so. They were then fired upon by the deputies, and many were killed.

The killing among the strikers was not done in a spirit of revenge, but in a spirit of self-defense. The strikers were being driven from their homes, and they were fighting for their lives. The deputies were acting in a brutal and unprovoked manner, and the strikers were forced to retaliate. The result was a bloodbath, and many lives were lost. The towns were in a state of hilarity, and the strikers were being celebrated as heroes. The incident has caused a great deal of excitement and has led to a great deal of discussion about the rights of strikers and the duties of deputies.

DARING BANK ROBBERY.

THE LONGVIEW, TEXAS, FIRST NATIONAL LOOTED.

A Gang Invaded the Institution and Stole $20,000—The Robbers Were Armed with Revolvers and Shotguns—The Bank Was Closed for Several Days.

At 9 p. m. a few days ago two rough-looking men walked into the First National Bank at Longview, Texas. One had a rifle concealed under his coat. He handed this note to President Clemens:

First National Bank, Longview, Texas. We have come to you for money and we are going to have it. We have a list of names of the people who have deposited money in your bank. We want you to give us the money of these people. If you do not do this, we will shoot you and all your family.

The President of the bank, Mr. Clemens, was a man of great courage and he refused to give the robbers the money. He called the police and they came to the bank. The robbers were shot and captured. They were taken to the jail and they are now being held there.

The robbery at Longview, Texas, was a daring and successful one. The robbers were armed with revolvers and shotguns and they were able to overpower the bank's guards. They stole a large amount of money and they escaped with it. The bank was closed for several days and the community was in a state of alarm.

The Longview, Texas, First National Bank was a well-known and successful institution. It had a large number of depositors and it was a source of pride for the community. The robbery was a great blow to the bank and to the community. It showed that the bank was not invulnerable and that the community was not safe from such attacks.

The robbery at Longview, Texas, was a reminder of the dangers of banking. It showed that banks are not always safe and that they can be vulnerable to such attacks. It also showed that the community is not always safe and that it can be vulnerable to such attacks. The robbery was a warning to banks and to the community to be more careful and to take more precautions.

TESTING A MAN'S STRENGTH. The best way of finding out what power a man is able to exert with his different muscles is to get him to do a variety of feats, each of which calls for a different kind of strength. The test is to be made by some single operation. If this is the case the best test is undoubtedly the one as follows: To a recording instrument should be fixed a roll which has a handle large enough to be grasped by both hands at about eighteen inches from the floor. If the person who is to be tested is to be tested, he should be asked to pull the roll in an upward direction as hard as he can, he will call almost every muscle into play. Those of the arms, chest and back are engaged in pulling the handle upward, while those of the legs give assistance by pressing downward with all their force. The Glenwood Range.

Contains many new features combined with those proven by experience to be very valuable. Every detail has been considered at great length by men who have had long experience in the business, and nothing has been left undone to make this a perfect range. The castings are of the best quality of iron, and their smoothness and fineness of texture are remarkable. This range should be critically examined to fully comprehend all its many points of excellence. The manufacturers of this range started in business in 1877. They were a half dozen of practical workmen, who had grown tired of strikes etc., and joined themselves into a company to manufacture these goods, which, solely on their merits, in open competition with others, have pushed themselves to the front, until to-day these people turn out more ranges than any concern in New England.
