According to the Pittsburgh Times, one hundred years ago yellow fever was more common in northern cities than it is now in tropical zones.

Black walnut is a scarce wood these days, but old farms about Philadelphia still afford to the cabinet maker noble specimens of the tree. It is said that a black walnut 100 years old will fetch in that region about $100.

It is a notable fact that in three states of the Union, New York, New Jersey and Illinois bills were before the Legislature to curtail the big tree tax. More power to the woman who says that the tree is the only one that she can't get along without.

The Trenton, N. J., American notes that the "Great American Desert" conspicuous on the maps of fifty years ago, and then occupying a considerable part of the region between the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range, has at last strunk mainly to three counties of Utah, although there are scraps of it in Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico.

A Minnesota court has given a judgment of $100,000 damages against a telegraph company for forwarding and delivering an insulting dispatch. The sender's name was not signed, and when the trouble began the company refused to identify him. It is a very proper award.

Not for publication but as evidence of good faith, and its neglect to do so should make it liable for shoudering his wrong-doing.

According to the latest report of the English Society of Psychical Research, 1,684 ghosts and mesany apparitions have been seen by correspondents of the association during the last year. This is the biggest aggregation of spooks yet tabulated.

While in most things England may be considered as afloat of the times, she is hopelessly to the rear as regards her laws, especially those relating to the laborer. The absurdity of the latter, as well as their degrading injustice, evoking of the fugal ages, was strikingly illustrated the other day when young Lord Grafton and his wife, who had just returned from a tour of inspection in the north of England, were favored with the supernatural visit.

The technical education board of Great Britain recently communicated with several representative employers on the subject of technical education and have received a number of interesting replies. William Morris is convinced that "it is by some form of apprenticeship only that is, working in a workshop and gradually learning a craft by doing bits of it—that crafts can be taught."

According to a census report just issued, there are in the United States, outside of the State of Vermont, 172,769 native Vermonters. In commenting on this interesting fact the Burlington Free Press says: "The Burlington Free Press is in Vermont to include a considerable proportion of children, while most of the 172,769 native Vermonters in other states must be adults, it is probable that there were in 1890 at least as many adult natives of Vermont outside of the state as in 1810. Go where you will, you will find the Vermonters, and yet holds the reports of the meetings of the Sons of Vermont in other states it need not be said that they are generally willing to acknowledge their birthplace."

Water Beant says there were 1,315 new novels, not including children's story books, published last year! Just imagine it—1,315 novels accepted by publishers and actually in the reading world. Who shall say now we do not love fiction? But in that immense number of new novels there are, indeed, they can be counted on one hand. It would be interesting to take the vote of this novel devouring world as to "the" novel which was most charmed it, for amid so much worthless trash there is many a book which, from a literary standpoint, is not worth the paper it is written on, yet holds the reader in its thrall who would be counted a successful writer. If one thinks for an instant how busy these authors must have been, how many hopes and fears they penned into these MSS, the satisfaction of having been "accepted" cannot be grasped. Not all these 1,315 novels were well paid for their trouble, and the rushing scene of a publisher's office is not a novel which tempted some to try will not be repeated again. Long is filled with these writers, and the class of society writes its novel as a hobby, not as a business.

It is nearly half the cost of the navy. While no ship has been more frequently discussed than the tramp steamer, the means of its suppression, there are no anti-tramp laws in existence in twenty-five of the forty-four American States, none west of the States west of the Mississippi, none in any Southern State excepting North Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi. The penalty under these laws varies from three days to five years in the State prison. The evil is patent, but no very effective remedy has been discovered. Professor McCook declared the labor colony, in the opinion of the authorities of many foreign countries, is one of the most successful means of curing the tramp steamer.

GREAT RUSH FOR BONDS.

Big Scramble for the New Four Per Cents in New York.

ALL TAKEN IN A FEW MINUTES.

The Pennsylvania railroad last year issued about 14,000 special rate orders for clerical men, and according to Assistant General Passenger Agent Boyd not a single case of misuse or abuse of the same has been reported. This is a remarkable showing.

The flipping pot seems to be the New Orleans favorite, and is coming to the front. A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to establish it in the state, and in Tennessee a bill has been introduced allowing juries to substitute whipping in lieu of imprisonment and fines for persons convicted of petty larceny.

And now golf has had its fatal accident. A man playing near Edinburg was almost instantly killed by the ball rebounding at short range from some hard obstacle against which it had been driven with great force. Serious injuries to others by hard hit balls have been recorded before, but this is the first fatal case to be reported since the recent one at Edinburg.

A distinguished scholar who has followed the course of thought through the ages, declares that the belief in astrology and palmistry is more general than has been at any period during 1,000 years. He refers to the long lists of books that have recently been written on these subjects and to the many old ones that have been republished. In Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco are astrological and palmistry clubs, before whom lectures are given by professors of the arts, which they dignify by the name of sciences.

TOWN NEWS.

AT THE MOCK TRIAL.

The local division Sons of Temperance scored a fine success in the mock trial given in Cheney hall last Wednesday evening.

The managers had advertised the performance thoroughly, public interest was aroused and their efforts were abundantly rewarded by a large attendance.

The curtain arose at 8.15 and disclosed Court Crier John M. Shewry with a book in hand clearing up the arrangement of the furniture of the court room, and soon the attorneys, witnesses, clerk and judge filed in and took their respective positions on the stage.

Court opened by announcement of the case and a charge of the case against F. L. Dutton for taking a drink, and after a brief parley between opposing counsel, Hathaway and Bowers, Judge Wood imposed a fine of 20 cents.

The next charge was read against W. H. Schledge for over-exertion and owing to a dispute between the lawyers, the case was continued.

The important trial of the evening was then brought forth which was the charge of Watkins v. Wood, of the theft of a chicken, of the male persuasion.

Sheriff Geo. H. Hall brought the handcuffed culprit in on the stage, after a strong resistance he was impaled.

The following jury men were impaneled: Tom Thum, George W. Finlay, Dr. DeWitt, C. T. Tiffany, Bill Nye, E. S. Ela.

Dr. Partridge, A. H. Skinner, Wilson Bill, W. C. Cheney; McKinley Bill, Richard Manning; Mr. Bob, Louis N. Heebner; Josiah Allen, W. E. Hibbard; Senator Platt, James M. Burke; Anthony Costello, F. W. Mills; Senator Lewis, Amel C. Bassell; Mark T. Train, Frank Cheney, Jr.

Objections were immediately interposed against most of the jurymen, and the defense and testimony had to be added satisfactory to the court, that they were all worthy and well qualified to act in so important a matter, and this was done by a series of questions and answers which demonstrated beyond a doubt that they did not read the local papers and in short knew nothing during which the court found it incumbent upon him to inform of 10 cents upon each of the lawyers, and to use his gavel most vigorously to keep order.

Finally the jurymen were sworn in and the first witness called was F. Edgar Watkins who on being sworn "in due and ancient form," proceeded to tell the story of the theft of his rooster by one Rollin M. Wood, and in doing so revealed some state secrets about W. J. Cheney, Joseph W. Harkin, Thomas S. Cadman, Wm Ferguson and others.

He stated that W. Allen tried to buy the rooster, because of his age and lameness, so that he might serve him as the board of trade banner, and also that the publisher of The News wanted to buy the bird and place him at the top of his local column, so as to have at least one live item of news. That he found a bottle of "One Minute Cough Cure," which had been purchased by W. B. Cheney in Wood's post packet together with some letters, bills, etc., one of the latter being addressed to F. L. Dutton for a half beer. On cross examination he stated that Wood wore the alleged coat as a performance of the Black Crook, where he (Wood) occupied a front seat and the defendant (Watkins) was in the gallery where he could look down on the prisoner's bald head.

C. E. House was called next and testified that he saw the defendant on the night of Feb. 22 at the furniture store of Cheney's store, with a jug of whiskey in a bag, which he said belonged to Samuel Anderson, and that while they were talking about it, the rooster crowd inside the bag, but Wood explained this by saying that it was "Old Crow" whiskey.

Milo L. Russell then took the stand and gave his name as Obadiah "Iron Ash" that he had been in the brick wall where all the sports reside, that is, Pat Gorman's ward, that he knew the accused, went to school with him, (the reform school) and that he knew nothing of him etc.

Maurice Moriarty was next sworn and testified that he was born where the shamrock grows, that he crossed the sea in a wash tub, on the invitation of his friend Judge Wood, who was a man of much influence, landed here one day, got out his naturalization papers the next day and on the third day was made a member of the police force.

He gave some very damaging evidence against the prisoner and among other things charged him with having tried to bribe him with a fifty-dollar Cleveland bond, but that it was spurious and was accordingly turned down as was a homocentric party last fall.

Billy Williams (C. O. Treat) was next produced, much to the surprise of the manager, as this was not set down in the regular program, and his make-up as a dispirited, lathered, bottle-laden, merry, chicken-thieving, darky, was the hit of the evening.

His appearance set the whole house in a roar and his antics and scenic farley dialect and mannerisms kept the fun at fever heat.

He told about going to a surprise party with George E. Keith the postal clerk, who parts his hair in the middle and is death on the girls and about how he and Mack Cheney were under contract to furnish spring chickens to the teachers' boarding house, that Wood stole so many chickens it was impossible for a good honest darkey to get a chance at one of them that year, that at one dinner that once a year, that he was trying faithfully to fulfil his contract, he was arrested by Carl Brink, tried before Justice John Shewry and sent up for six months.

R. M. Wood was then placed in the hot seat and in endeavoring to prove an alibi, stated that on the night of Feb. 22 he attended a meeting of the furniture of the court room, and soon the attorneys, witnesses, clerk and judge filed in and took their respective positions on the stage.

On being cross examined he admitted having offered to let $10 that his rooster could outrun Fred. B. Hala.

The defense then placed Dr. W. R. Tinslor on the stand and his testimony went to show that all the witnesses on the prosecution were moonshiners on chickens.

Samuel Anderson followed next, gave his occupation as night watchman on a beer wagon, corroborated the testimony of the doctor, and let the cat out of the bag in reference to Robert Richmond's famous drive to the Tollard county fair last fall.

George F. Day testified that he was a merchant, a lively man, a carriage dealer, a lawyer and a painter, and on being questioned as to what he knew about law admitted that he had taken but two lessons from John M. Shewry, had claimed the title of painter from having gone to Waterbury, with Charlie Spencer to help him paint the town red.

The defense rested its case here, the judge read his charge to the jury, that august body retired, in a short time returned, and Foreman W. C. Cheney said that they had acquitted the prisoner, and found both lawyers guilty of the theft.

Judge Wood thereupon sentenced Attorney Hathaway to imprisonment in the Home for Old Women at Hartford for the term of 18 months and Counselor Bowers, on account of his youth, selfishness and this being his first offense, to incarceration in the Young Women's Home at Hartford, for the term of 7 minutes, and thus ended the great mock trial, which was very much enjoyed and the Sons of Temperance retired 4.30, from the entertainment.

A GOLD-HEADED CANE. Mr. Nebo lodge 1423 Knights of Honor celebrated its sixteenth anniversary in Cheney hall last evening. Some 25 members of the order were present and at the collation that followed, Representative W. C. Cheney and E. S. Ela were the guests of the order.

It also transpired that J. S. Cheney had just rounded out 15 years of service with the lodge as treasurer and his successor, W. H. Coates, was installed last evening.

When the cigars were lighted Dictator A. J. Spencer called upon J. D. Henderson to give an account of a recent trip to Helton to attend the funeral of Bro. C. W. Horton, which he did in an interesting manner.

The dictator then reminded the ex-treasurer of his 15 years of faithful service to the lodge, and in a few well chosen words presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane, on behalf of the order.

Mr. Cheney had not the slightest intimation of what was coming, and for a time could scarcely collect his thoughts to reply. He finally rallied in his customary unassuming way, accepted the gift with thanks and assured the brethren that he would always cherish it as a pleasant souvenir of the order.

TRAVELERS INSURANCE COMPANY. The thirty-first annual statement of the Travelers Insurance Company appears in another column, and is of the careful thought of our readers is directed.

This institution with its millions of dollars in assets goes on from year to year giving and paying life and accident insurance to people in all parts of the civilized world, and right in our own midst its good work is well and favorably known and above all things else, this is known to it that carries out with a faithful, honest, and conscientious obligation, promptly, honestly and cheerfully.

In spite of a year of general depression the vitality and push of this institution is shown in the fact that it has in former years, besides holding most of the old, and has paid one hundred cents on the dollar for every just claim made upon it.

Its present assets are pushing towards eight millions of dollars and its surplus two and a half millions, which is an ample guarantee of its undoubted ability to pay every policy it now has, or may hereafter put on. Persons seeking either life or accident insurance will make no mistake by consulting with the Travelers.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominent merchant of Live Oak, Butler Co., Cal., was taken with a severe cold, the pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have a cough he invariably gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He has recommended it to all his friends in the market. For sale by Chenev's Drug Store, South Manchester, and Chas. H. Rose, Manchester, Druggists.

One feature of the meeting was especially commendable and worthy of mention and this was: A representative of the grand lodge of Nebraska was present and stated the suffering of the brethren in his state. A vote was taken denoting $2,000 of the charity fund to the relief of those people, and $146 was also raised by voluntary subscriptions among the delegates. There are still $4,900 remaining in the charity fund, and during the past year there has been but $100 called from the fund for the entire Massachusetts jurisdiction. This speaks well for the industry, frugality, and good management of New England people.

One feature of the meeting was especially commendable and worthy of mention and this was: A representative of the grand lodge of Nebraska was present and stated the suffering of the brethren in his state. A vote was taken denoting $2,000 of the charity fund to the relief of those people, and $146 was also raised by voluntary subscriptions among the delegates. There are still $4,900 remaining in the charity fund, and during the past year there has been but $100 called from the fund for the entire Massachusetts jurisdiction. This speaks well for the industry, frugality, and good management of New England people.

A URBAN MONUMENT. Messrs. Eldredge & Adams, the well known and popular Rockville monument builders, have the contract to build and place in position in the Rockville cemetery for Edward Gregson, Sr., a monument, the like of which cannot be found in this town at the present time.

It is known as a cottage monument, is made of Quincy granite and will be surpassed by a polished slab of the same material, that will weigh nearly two tons.

The design is a very one, was first shown at the World's Fair in Chicago, by the Quincy Granite Manufacturers and will attract considerable attention. It will be erected during the coming summer.

Among the guests was Mr. D. Cornabuc, an illustrious member of the Academy of Metaphysical Sciences...

At all once another cry was heard, a piercing shriek coming through the window of the night. It appeared to emanate from Miss Hawthorne's chamber.

But Dr. Cornabuc did not appear at the table. He left the chateau at an early hour, furious and without taking leave.

Since this episode he has never set foot at Kerdal, and he has never lost a feeling of deep antipathy to Mme. de Lartigue and Miss Hawthorne.

SCIENTIFIC SCRAPS.

Paradoxical as it may sound, there are several varieties of fish that cannot swim. Safety matches that can be used without a box are to be placed on the market by a German inventor.

Glossometers are complicated instruments which the French are using for measuring the tongues of bees. A Baltimore syndicate contemplates building a system of electric railways to connect a dozen of the largest towns in central West Virginia.

The Swiss Bundesrath is urging the construction of an electric railroad to the very summit of the famous Jungfrau. It is proposed to operate the line by power to be obtained from the Grindelwald glacier or from the water of the Tunnel River.

Medical men are making use of photography for the discovery of skin eruptions absolutely invisible to the naked eye. A paper suggests that such experiments made with actinism having all the light screened out of it, would very possibly yield some valuable results.

A plan has been adopted in Germany to avoid the propagation of contagious diseases by means of public telephones. The microscope of a transmitter is formed of a number of disks of paper. After each conversation a disk is torn off and a new surface left exposed for the next caller.

Summing up our present knowledge of the atmosphere of Mars, Percival Lowell finds that we have proof of its existence, and reason to believe that it is at the surface of the planet about half as this as ours is on the summit of the highest mountain on earth.

Provision for health and comfort to fill all who have seen them with astonishment. These newly discovered buildings contain thirty or forty immense spacious apartments on the first floor and as many on the second. The rooms looked out on a rotunda nearly forty feet long; courts supported by columns surrounded the bedrooms, which opened upon large, ornamental gardens with fountains.

Why shouldn't there be a third party? It is true they disturb the smooth running of the regular system and sometimes overturn elections, but what is political splendor, comfort, health and ease founded on merit? As for instance, among the most wonderful things that have been known to the world, is the fact that the cure so promptly and surely. There is no cringing from truth when the old remedy is used. It imparts new life and strength and the pain vanishes. Truly it is Popular.

Accept None of the Pretended Substitutes for ROYAL Baking Powder.

Because inferior and cheaper made baking preparations are bought at wholesale at a price so much lower than ROYAL, some grocers are urging consumers to use them in place of the ROYAL at the same retail price.

Extremes Meet. Mrs. Simley—How delightful that you have a bicycle, too. I go every morning because doctor says I will certainly grow stouter.

Perfectly lovely, dear. We'll go together. I go because doctor tells me it will decrease my weight. —Infer-Ooman.

Something Had Been Lacking. Timid Youth—Miss Maudie, perhaps my coming here so often may seem to you to smack of undue persistency.

Demure Maiden—George, your coming here has—has never smacked of anything yet.—Boston Beacon.

STEEL FINGERS.

What Science Has Done For Man With Artificial Hands. He Writes Stories and Eats Up Using a Pocketful of Tobacco.

The manufacture of artificial hands has reached a point where an amputee or legless man can do almost as many things as he could if he were completely equipped by nature. This is in part due to the fact that the hands of the amputee are now being fitted with artificial hands made of metal and wood.

When the safety bicycle reached a degree of perfection that made it a practical road vehicle a formidable rival of the horse appeared. The bicycle does not require a stable, is not subject to ailments which demand a veterinary surgeon, and does not run away. The expense in the beginning to be available for ordinary use, these machines have steadily grown cheaper as they have been improved, until today they are within the reach of most of the people of this country.

The widespread introduction of tricycle lines in the cities of the Union has led to a demand for a new kind of bicycle. The demand for this innovation, however, has had far less effect than the general use of the bicycle. Americans are fast becoming a nation of wheelmen, and the horse is taking a secondary place in public esteem.

Cooled by Chips From a Glacier. The suggestion of towing an iceberg down from the Arctic regions to New York in summer to afford a cheap and abundant supply of ice is occasionally made by humorists; but one may see the ground which the Swiss have laid a similar idea carried out in practice.

Bill has been introduced in the legislature of New York, New Jersey and Missouri, fixing the penalty of ejection and a $10 fine for any one appearing in a theatre to two hindrances deterring or annoying the theater's patrons, presumably by the wearing of hats so high and big as to obstruct a view of the performance.

Daniel Logan of Tolland township is said at this writing, to be in a dying condition. He is afflicted with dropsy and is in a terrible state, his limbs being greatly swollen and ulcerated. He has not been able to lie down for a long time.

Every member of Deputy Sheriff Charles O. Treat's family have had to acknowledge the supremacy of the grip, and that factious himself found it incumbent upon him to use crutches temporarily, in order to get about. All are better now however.

George Johnson of Elbridge street was taken with a sore throat last week Thursday, and Dr. Bradley has been attending him. The case became so serious that Dr. Tinker was called in for consultation. Mr. Johnson is in a dangerous situation.

While M. J. Maguire was serving his customers on Center street with milk last Saturday morning, the sleigh tipped over and 120 quarts of milk were spilled. MORE ABOUT SCARLET FEVER.
Health Officer Bradley has discovered that Peter Anderson of 39 Hackmatack street, son of Andrew P. Anderson, had scarlet fever lately, no doctor was called in, and the boy was sent to the South school while "peeling" from the disease.
He has been promptly quarantined and it is reported that there has been, or is still, another case in that locality.
This explains, probably, how Emory Benton contracted the disease. All other children in the school have been exposed as well.

GRIFFIN-WALSH.
John Griffin of Manchester Green and Miss Mary Walsh of East Hampton were united in marriage by Rev. R. C. Gragan last Tuesday morning. The ceremony took place in St. Bridget's church and was quite informal. Michael Walsh was best man and Miss Nellie Griffin bridesmaid.
