THE SOUTH MANCHESTER NEWS, FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1895.

Great Britain spends $1,200,000 less on her army than in 1894.

It is calculated that in large ocean steamers more than 3,000 articles of glass and china are broken on every voyage.

Belgium, with its water front and with Antwerp, the oldest harbor in the world, is the one European country without a navy.

It is said that Athens, Greece, exports more daily papers than New York City and there are many newspapers in that city.

It is confidently predicted that the complete disappearance of steam both as a motive power and as an agent in the industrial arts is a question of a very short time.

It is estimated that in Oregon, Washington, Montana, Nevada and Idaho there are at present 2,000,000 of half-bred wild horses, for which no market can now be found.

A "German Navy Union" has been organized at Baden-Baden, with the object of collecting funds for the increase of the German navy.

England has plenty of money for investments, notes the Louisville Courier Journal. Tenders of $5,000,000, treasury bills were opened recently at the Bank of England, and the total amount applied for was not far short of $85,000,000.

The Manufacturers' Gazette says that over half the savills of the country could make more money selling their logs for wood-pulp than they do by burning them into lumber, a statement which illustrates the enormous increase of the circulation of newspapers in the United States.

That blindness is on the increase in the United States is shown by statistics, maintains the New York Post. In 1850 the number of blind was 28,000,000, the number of blind 9,000, about 400 to the million. In 1890, with a population of 62,000,000, the number of blind had increased to 50,000, or 800 to a million.

The railways of the United States in earnings passed the billion mark in 1893, but last year a decline of $122,000,000 in receipts sent them below the line. Expenses were reduced $82,000,000, but nevertheless the net earnings fell to the extent of $40,000,000. It is hoped that the remainder of the year will show a decided improvement on these figures.

Some very interesting and instructive statistics as to real estate conditions in the South are furnished by the Southern States, published at Baltimore. These statistics are based upon reports of real estate agents in different sections, made in reply to inquiries addressed to them by the publication in question. They show, among other things, that the number of acres of land in the South is about 1,000,000,000, and that the number of acres of land in the North is about 1,000,000,000.

Says the Marine Journal:—New York Harbor can no longer be considered as defenseless against assault from the sea. A battery of sixteen rifled mortars has been established, concealed in the sand hills at Sandy Hook, capable, as was demonstrated a few days ago, of throwing 800 pound shells at a distance of three miles and a half miles with perfect accuracy. The shells, fired from all the mortars, landed as aimed within an area less than the size of the deck of a battleship.

The Chicago Times Herald observes:—The fact that the War Department has actually advertised for bids on 70,000 yards of red tape is considered one of the best jokes of the season. This would be a much better idea, however, if it came from the Treasury Department, for of all departments of the government red tape is most apparent there. In some of the long-distance telephone offices it is now the practice to give a person a stop watch when he goes into the booth to talk. He starts it when he starts conversation, and keeps it when through, so that he knows his own time and never has occasion for a controversy over the time occupied.

It is believed by some students of music that the science of musical composition depends on the simple principles that govern the composition of primitive ballad verse. Thus, they say that the long lines of the standard ballad verse (as in Rossetti, "She held three lilies in her hand") exactly measure an octave when its syllables are pronounced in equal time, and that a like principle governs through-out primitive poetry and primitive music.

Growing Brighter. The world is growing brighter as it rolls and rolls around. White daisies blossom whiter—blue violets savor the ground. And we're thankful that we're living, since no blooming heaven deems. While the world is growing brighter as it rolls and rolls around.

The world is growing brighter as it rolls and rolls around. There's not a heart but's lighter and gives out a merrier sound. And we're thankful that we're living, since to us is perfect bliss. And we're thankful that we're living, since to us is perfect bliss.

Love Versus Ambition. Jack Dallas never was considered a handsome man, as handsome men go, but everybody, old and young, liked his bright blue eyes and sunny smile. He could not boast of much wealth, and the fact was one of his sensitive points.

It seemed strange, too, that all girls in the world he should fall in love with Dorothy Hill. Not that she was anything but a beautiful, pretty and worthy his adoration, but she had been taken from her obscure home to grace the palatial one of a very wealthy aunt, and this aunt expected Dorothy to make a brilliant marriage, as a sort of return for all the preferred kindness.

That she would do was the firm conviction of all her friends, except Jack Dallas, who, notwithstanding the many warnings from Dorothy's rejected suitors, still believed that love was everything in this world, and that Dorothy would think the same as he, never reckoning upon a woman's ambition. He awoke from his dream with keenest pain.

It was the third week after the accident. Dorothy was sitting near the library window. Now and then she glanced at a letter lying upon her lap, and read some of its passages with content. "So sorry to hear of your sad accident," was one, and another: "Important business calls me to Paris. I shall be back in about six days. Don't worry about your will; I'll make it as you wish."

Every day Jack Dallas had inquired at the house, and with boyish eagerness left his father's side. Dorothy would not let him see her, and Dorothy could hardly wait for his coming. At last she heard his voice saying something merry to old Perkins. Then the door opened, and Jack, in his haste to reach her, upset everything in his way.

"To-day I have entered the firm of Dallas & Dallas. Uncle Dick has taken me into the firm. We are to have the house in Baxter square, and you are to furnish it just as you like and do with me just as you please. Only say yes, darling."

"Did you tell him my accident—Jack? Did you tell him I was ugly and no fit wife for you?" "For answer he kissed me on the lace where I might see her, and Dorothy could hardly wait for his coming. At last she heard his voice saying something merry to old Perkins. Then the door opened, and Jack, in his haste to reach her, upset everything in his way.

"I know what I am throwing away. A heart so full of ambition so marvellous that I shudder to think of it. But, Jack, if you know how I have lived in poverty, how I have hated it, you would have some pity for me. My aunt, after an appeal to her pocket-book, came down to investigate our true condition, and, seeing my face, thought it would be a pretty ornament for her drawing-room. I am expected to sell it to the highest bidder. Pardon me, but you are not the highest bidder."

"Dorothy, many women have married just as you are going to do, giving to the world a greater share of misery than I deserve. Don't do it, little one. I do not wish to prophesy any ill winds, but I do believe you will crave something more than mere wealth. You may not love me, but when you do love you will forget all about this ambition and be what God intended you—a lovely woman. You may think that too much money is everything, but when you grow old what is more beautiful, more precious, than to know there is one dear heart that has battled with the world for your sake and loves you to the end? Then, too, some accident might bring the beauty you are proud of and end forever your plans for a brilliant marriage—and yet, even then, my love could never change."

He was small and thin, and his eyes were bright and clear. He was a young man of about twenty, and he was dressed in a simple, but elegant, suit. He was looking at Dorothy with a steady gaze, and she was looking at him with a steady gaze. They were both silent for a moment, and then Dorothy spoke.

Deceived by a Duo. Samuel P. Schuckers is dead at Wooster, Ohio, aged fifty-eight years. He was a brother of J. W. Schuckers, private secretary of Salmon P. Chase, and brother-in-law of John H. Oberly, executive vice-president. An interesting incident is recalled by Schuckers' death which has never found its way in the newspapers. The incident occurred a number of years ago, and during the time of the sale of the Lake Shore railroad at Cleveland, Ohio, it happened that Schuckers and John McSwenny the great criminal lawyer met at the hotel. TOWN NEWS.
AT LAST WE HAVE THE TROLLEY.
The local trolley line was formally opened last Wednesday morning when car No. 10 was manned by Motorman S. W. Cone, Conductor Edward E. Fish and Superintendent John L. Hall.

VETERANS ASSOCIATION FORMED.
Twenty five ex members of Company G, 54th Infantry in Cheney hall last Tuesday evening and formed a veterans association with the following officers:

FIRST PASSENGERS.
Charles Sweetser was the first gentleman passenger on the tramway from South to North Manchester, and May Reynolds, Adelle Strickland, Belle Torrey and Mrs. Emma Hanson were the first lady passengers on the same. They all went together on the first car which left at 6 a. m. yesterday.

TRAMWAY TIME TABLE.
On the accompanying time table the hours of the cars are marked in red.
LEAVE MANCHESTER: 12:30 Manchester, 1:00 Hartford, 1:30 Hartford, 2:00 Hartford, 2:30 Hartford, 3:00 Hartford, 3:30 Hartford, 4:00 Hartford, 4:30 Hartford, 5:00 Hartford, 5:30 Hartford, 6:00 Hartford, 6:30 Hartford, 7:00 Hartford, 7:30 Hartford, 8:00 Hartford, 8:30 Hartford, 9:00 Hartford, 9:30 Hartford, 10:00 Hartford, 10:30 Hartford, 11:00 Hartford, 11:30 Hartford, 12:00 Hartford.

THAT IS THE QUESTION.
To ride on the trolley cars or not to ride, that is the question. Whether it is in the mind to plod along on foot in mud, and dust, and heat, and cold, and rain, and storm, and sleet, or to millily move in the conductor to stop the car rather than to be in the beam of the fathers as it were for a paltry pittance of free silver or nickel, must give us pause, and rather than bear the ill we have borne in the past we should prefer to the recently discovered Laurel Park to whose bourn many travelers will gleefully return, to the trolley beauties that heretofore they knew not of.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE ON THE DRAMA.
There are 24 theaters in New York city now open. In 18 of these theaters regular performances of plays are given. In eight diversified or continuous performances make up the bill. The current attractions at the regular theaters are made up almost exclusively of light operatic or farcical plays and comedies of manners and fashion, plays appealing particularly to the favor of women. At three theaters only, theaters of the cheaper class, are melodramas or sentimental dramas a tragedy on the bill. At one house is a comedy written by a woman. There has been in late years a visible change in the standard of public entertainments. Some theater goes, in discussing the alleged evils of the "theater" has an opinion proposed to abate them, declare that it almost seems as if a majority of the audience were women. They are, this applies especially to the high priced orchestra or balcony seats. So long as it was against the prevailing custom for a woman to go to a theater to see a social event, more predominant, but since the fashion in this respect has changed it is no uncommon thing for two women to go to a theater together.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE ON THE DRAMA.
The increased number of women in audiences and the relatively decreased number of men theatergoers, has been reflected in the changed standard of taste in these theaters in New York. The boldness and blood curdling melodramas of other days, with duels, abductions, combats and surprises, have given way to gentler plays, studies of conventional life, and comedies, permitting the introduction of elegant furniture, fashionable gowns and fine accessories. Patriotic plays, plays receding in popularity, are being called on to sacrifice comfort for a seat. The general shape is that of a neat, modern, comfortable theater, being called on to sacrifice comfort for a seat. Some theater goes, in discussing the alleged evils of the "theater" has an opinion proposed to abate them, declare that it almost seems as if a majority of the audience were women. They are, this applies especially to the high priced orchestra or balcony seats. So long as it was against the prevailing custom for a woman to go to a theater to see a social event, more predominant, but since the fashion in this respect has changed it is no uncommon thing for two women to go to a theater together.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE ON THE DRAMA.
The increased number of women in audiences and the relatively decreased number of men theatergoers, has been reflected in the changed standard of taste in these theaters in New York. The boldness and blood curdling melodramas of other days, with duels, abductions, combats and surprises, have given way to gentler plays, studies of conventional life, and comedies, permitting the introduction of elegant furniture, fashionable gowns and fine accessories. Patriotic plays, plays receding in popularity, are being called on to sacrifice comfort for a seat. The general shape is that of a neat, modern, comfortable theater, being called on to sacrifice comfort for a seat.

At three theaters only, theaters of the cheaper class, are melodramas or sentimental dramas a tragedy on the bill. At one house is a comedy written by a woman.
