TUOHY-DUNN. Patrick J. Tuohy and Miss Mabel A. Dunn, daughter of Thomas H. Dunn, were united in marriage at the Catholic parsonage yesterday, by Rev. D. A. Haggerty.

John J. Tuohy, brother of the groom was best man and Miss Eliza Kearney of Wells street was bridesmaid.

The newly wedded couple went to Boston on a brief wedding tour.

CHLOE STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR. Ostron Walworth's little daughter was struck in the head by the running board of a Glastonbury trolley car in Hartford Monday Day. She was very badly hurt, but luckily no bones were broken.

She is at home now and seems to be improving. It is not known whether she has internal injuries or not. She was playing at the time and ran right into the car with the above result.

QUITE A POTATO. A potato was brought to our desk this week, grown on the Charter Oak street meadow lands of Frank Cheney and weighing three pounds. Well it was a big fellow, but was not all there at that, as a portion of it had burst through the ground and been eaten off by potato bugs.

NOT PROVEN. The adjourned trial of Alexander Shields took place in the town court Tuesday morning last and drew forth quite an attendance of interested spectators.

The state produced a number of witnesses, but they did not prove the charge of reputation, after August 15, against the accused, beyond a reasonable doubt and he was discharged. Lawyer Mildeberger was counsel for the defendant.

LONG SERVICE MEDALS. Major John Hickey is to receive one of the long service medals, that are being engraved for members of the Connecticut national guard, he having served fifteen years and Captain C. L. Biswell, Quartermaster Sergeant A. C. House and Musician James O'Brien of Company G, will each receive a medal for ten years' service.

MEN WHO WILL SHOOT. Captain C. L. Biswell, Lieut. J. P. Cheney, Sergt. McClain, House and Lord, Corporals Risley and Doolittle, and Private Tyler went to Hartford yesterday afternoon for rifle practice on the range where they are to enter the regimental contest tomorrow for the Barbour medal, they being the team selected to represent Company G. in the contest for that trophy.

PLENTY OF PRIZES. H. C. Fay covered himself with glory in the bicycle races at Middletown last Monday and came home with a diamond pin, a gold lined shaving cup and a pipe. He won first prize in the two mile race, second in the half mile and third in the five mile, but in this latter race he had a collision and broke his wheel, but mending the wheel of his competitor, finished the race and came in third. He is but 16 years of age and is making a good record as a wheelman.

MADE A DOUBLE PLAY. Officers Hall and Treat went from here to East Hartford last Sunday and made a raid on the "Bungalows," which is located on Park avenue near the railroad shops.

They seized two jugs and six bottles of volcano water and 890 bottles of lager beer, all of which they bore away in due and ancient form.

Not satisfied with this, they paid an official visit to Wm. J. King's boarding house, near the railroad crossing, and secured several bottles of beverages that are known to inebriate and all of which, Mr. King protested, were private stock. Well! They were right in it.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN." Chas. H. Hoyt's merriest comedy creation entitled "A Trip to Chinatown" will be the opening feature at the Armory tomorrow evening, with the original New York cast, scenery, properties, etc.

The remarkable run of this play of over 100 nights in New York has made its name a familiar one to thousands of theatergoers.

Mr. Hoyt has a fashion of getting together a group of choice actors and putting them in situations that would cause a corpse to crow with delight. Aided by a band of beautiful women and clever, catchy music, the play is credited with being a tremendous success.

Money is plentiful in New York that the other day $250,000 was loaned over night at the rate of three-fourths of one per cent per annum. The bank of America has called a meeting of its stockholders to vote upon a proposal to cut its capital stock of $3,000,000 in two because it finds it difficult to lend at a profit.

There died recently in Moscow, Russia, a man who in the last twenty years gave $5,000,000 to charity. He was State Comptroller Jermakoff, who came from a poor family. His first public act which attracted general attention was the purchase of the freedom of all the serfs living in his native village. This cost him $123,000.

A Chicago Tribune writer has been figuring out the number of wrecks at sea in January and February of the present year, and he finds the record unprecedented in the world's history. In these two months twenty-five vessels, including twenty-eight schooners, seventeen steamers, fourteen sloops, five barges, three bark, three brig, two barkentines, two ships and one pilot boat were wrecked, with a total loss of 1,150 lives. Over half these losses, or 629 lives, were occasioned by seven disasters, viz: Steamer Elbe, 332; steamer Port Nicholas, 110; ferryboat Teretors, 107; steamer Kingdon, 40; steamer Chicago, 26; steamer Inland, 26, and steamer Nordsee, 25.

The New York Post remarks: A considerable part of the deficiency in the revenue of the general government has been caused by the decreased income of the postoffice. Under our system the post is regularly operated at a loss, and during the last two years of bad business this loss became very heavy, amounting to about $9,000,000 during the year just closed. It is, therefore, very gratifying to see that the postal revenue is now materially increasing. During the quarter ending with July the receipts of the twenty largest postoffices rose to $6,794,000, gain of about $500,000 over the year, or more than 7 per cent. The next ten cities in point of receipts also make an excellent showing, so that the gain in these thirty cities amounts to about $550,000. As the expense of the postal service does not increase in anything like the same ratio as the receipts, the figures show that the Treasury is steadily working towards an easy condition.

Harper's weekly says: "The sugar plantations of Louisiana make about 25,000,000 gallons of molasses every year for which there is at present no market and no use. They might make use of it, but that takes too much capital, and the rum would be unobtainable after it was made. Last year an immense quantity of surplus molasses was dumped into the Mississippi river and there it did no harm, but much also ran into some of the bayous between Baton Rouge and New Orleans. These smaller and more sluggish streams it fermented and did much mischief, killing the fish and making pestiferous stench. The planters are very anxious to find some use for their molasses. Mixed with clay it makes good fire-brick; a limited amount of it can be fed to cattle and sheep, but to an inconvenient form of fuel. It is good to use on bread but the demand for that use in this country is insignificant in comparison with the supply. If the coasts of China and India could be taught to eat it on rice, it might make a market for it, but Chinese and Indian coals are not very good fuel, and are better at getting through luxuries than at cultivating them. Can any one advise a new use for molasses which will cure this waste?"

The arid region of the trans-Mississippi West measures north to south as far as from Montreal to Mobile and east to west further than from Boston to Omaha. When some cheap and practical means of irrigation is found it is expected that the population of this region will become greater than the present population of the United States.

Oregon people are raising a strong protest against the continuance of the horse-racing industry in that state. The New York Sun. They claim that they will injure the reputation of the State and of other racing industries. They don't want people to see or think "lead horse" when they see the brand "Oregon" on canned meats. The horse industry has started business, but little is known of its business yet.

Judge Miller of the Law Division of the Post Office Department, has delivered a decision concerning the remedy of mail matter by jail officials convicted in the world's history. In these two months twenty-five vessels, including twenty-eight schooners, seventeen steamers, fourteen sloops, five barges, three bark, three brig, two barkentines, two ships and one pilot boat were wrecked, with a total loss of 1,150 lives. Recent statistics, carefully gathered, show that 11,000 men are engaged in the fruit business in New York City. This immense army is of quite recent growth. Not so many years ago most of the fruit was of the variety known as the "California fruit," which was brought to this country from Italy and Spain. Now two new fruit markets, the western and eastern, flourish, the latter controlling the foreign, West Indian, and southern products. Last year's imports of fruits are computed at $12,000,000. The growth of the California fruit trade has been rapid. These are placed on one stand of the kitchen table—the other end was covered with rags or into narrow strips for a new rug.

"Probably few people who have read the contents of the average tin can of shark, the 'bandit of the sea,' as he has been called, know that he is a very useful creature for man. A writer in the Revue Scientifique enumerates the uses to which the different parts of the shark are put as follows: The liver is found to contain an oil of a beautiful color, and is becoming a valuable and valuable medicinal quality; the skin, after being dried, makes the polish and hardness of mother-of-pearl, and is being marbled bases a resemblance to fossil coral, so that it is employed by the jewellers for the manufacture of fancy objects by means of making streams it fermented and did much mischief, killing the fish and making pestiferous stench. The planters are very anxious to find some use for their molasses. Mixed with clay it makes good fire-brick; a limited amount of it can be fed to cattle and sheep, but to an inconvenient form of fuel. Two kinds of People. There are two kinds of people on earth today. Just two kinds of people, no more, no less. Not the sterner and saint, for 'tis well understood. The good are half bad and the bad are half good.

Not the rich and the poor, for to count a man's wealth, You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

Not the humble or proud, for in his little span Who on earth is not a sinner.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.

No, the two kinds of people on earth I mean Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world's masses Are always divided in just these two classes. And only those who find, not I, mean, There is only one life to every man, In which class are you? Are you casting the load Of overcast fifters who tell down the road?

Or are you the leader who lets others care? For portions of labor and worry and care? BY WALTER WALKER.

THE PASTURE KNOLL.

BY ADALBERT P. CALDWELL.

It was a dreary afternoon, and the light was waning. A timid ray, struggling through the west window, yet lingered in Nancy Allen's kitchen as she sat at the window, waiting for William Allen.

"Why, Mother," replied Mary, looking up from her dishes; "I don't see as it will make very much difference. We don't want to sell the old place and, if we ever do, nobody would want to buy it very much more."

"You don't understand it," sobbed Mrs. Wilson. "We've always been like sisters, and to think that she would hurt my feelings as purpose. I told her yesterday, when I was setting up there, that the other place was just as good, and she said she would like to have the two houses, but she would not sell the old place."

"What belongs to me, belongs to you," Sarah often declared to Mrs. Allen; while she in turn, always replied: "If I have anything you want, Sarah, an' you don't mind me at home, you just walk right in an' get it—you know where the key is."

"I don't see what Nancy Allen can be thinking of," declared Mrs. Wilson, excitedly, the day after Mr. Allen's death, "to be making a graveyard right in front of our house."

"Why, Mother, you're not afraid?" began Mary.

"Afraid! course not," interrupted Mrs. Wilson. "I don't mind it so much for myself, but 'tis the property I'm thinking of. 'Twill spoil the sale of it, an' Nancy Allen knows it. Who'd want to buy a farm with a graveyard right in the front door? If she treats us so, I'll never have nothing more to do with her—never!"

As though the graveyard were other folk's buried hair's good enough for William Allen.

"Why, Mother," replied Mary, looking up from her dishes; "I don't see as it will make very much difference. We don't want to sell the old place and, if we ever do, nobody would want to buy it very much more."

where she is. I thought it wouldn't be quite so loonesome for her, being near you—an' William.

"I love you well's ever."

"I'll slip it right under the door, on Sarah'll find it in the morning."

The next afternoon Nancy noticed two men digging on the pasture knoll.

"Sarah'll be reconciled now," she said, eagerly—"Sarah'll be reconciled now!"

But all that day Sarah never appeared, nor Nancy, nor William.

"She'll come some time," she faltered.

"That night after the funeral Nancy felt so loonesome that she started for the pasture knoll. Some one was kneeling by the new grave.

Her head was bowed, and she was talking to herself. Nancy was sitting so badly that we suppose he's afraid to face the music.

The Nearer View. What though I see not the end, This little pathway of my days, The lights or clouds that o'er it bend, In its own course a thousand ways? What though I cannot surely tell, What dreariness may sugar well? What burning impulses come to-day? Enough, if to my watchful eye Appears one thing I could do; And so content with serving I, Walk step by step the journey through.
