WHEN MIDIA SINGS.

When Midia sings, for many a mile The feathered docks forsake the skies, And, stooping earthwards for awhile, Hush all their liquid harmonies; And lightly borne on Hissome wings, Listen and learn, when Midia sings.

and lulis the myriad murmurings

Of his old march, when Midia sings.

When Midia sings, the river stays His own inimitable song, And lollers down the watery ways, And larks and lists the reeds among,

When Millin sings, the glad gales hush No more they harp on reed and rush, o more they whisper through the woods, Sparrow's Nest. dle and mute their fronded strings. In branch and brake, when Midia sings.

When Midia sings, earth's every tongue But there be goodly songs unsung, And music lingers in a thriti: Therefore it is my dull heart rings, Most musical, when Midia sings.
