That is the great Lincoln legend that will live as long as the Republic lasts. And the doctrine of democracy is all included in it-the everlasting truth sung by Burns, that

"The rank is but the guinea's stamp; A man's a man for a' that. Thomas Lincoln married Nancy Hanks, in Washington County, Kentucky, June 12, 1806. It was an oldtime Kentucky wedding, and all the neighbors came to it-but not in broadcloth. There was a supper and a boisterous merry-making. The feast included bear meat, wild turkey and a sheep barbeened whole in a pit. There was good whisky, too, and the fun included a race for a big whisky

And when the wedding was over Thomas Lincoln took his bride, Naucy Hanks Lincoln, to a little log cabin in Elizabethtown, Ky. A few years later he moved his family to a similar log cabin fourteen miles away on the Big South Fork of Nolin Creek.

In that home Abraham, atterward President, was born, on February 12, 1809. It was a one-roomed cabin with a huge outside chimney, no windows and only a rude, home-made door. Thomas Lincoln worked hard at his

First of all, I charge the blame on careless, indifferent bank directors and boards having in charge great financial institutions. It ought not to be possible for a president or cashier or prominent officer of a banking institution to swindle it year after year without detection. I will undertake to say that if these frauds are carried on for two or three years without detection of a culpable neglect of duty for which God will hold them as responsible as He holds the acknowledged defrauders. What right have prominent business men to allow their names to be published as directors in a financial institution so that unsophisticated people are thereby induced to deposit their money in creations and basiness men to allow their names to be published as directors, are doing nother than the infam that unsophisticated people are thereby induced to deposit their money in creation to allow their names to be published directors, are doing nother the published directors, are doing nother than the infam that the property as well as you invest their property as well as you into the defusion which has rained so many men of thinking because a thing is in their property in the order property in the their property as well as you into the defusion which has rained in their property as well as you into the delusion which has rained in their property as well as you insect with another and saw spider and fly swept down with the same broom or seat-tered by the same wind. Alas that the world has so many designing spiders and victimized flies!

Insect with another and saw spider and fly speculation lose all, but I have a better warning than a worldly warning. From the place where men have perished—body, mind, soul—stand off, stand off! Abstract There has not been a time when the pulpit discussion must step aside on this There has not been a time when the atter and black irresponsibility of many men having the financial interests of others in charge has been more evident than in these last few years. The bank-ruptcy of banks and disappearance of administrators with the funds of large estates and the disordered accounts of United States officials have sometimes made a pestilence of crime that solemnizes every thoughtful of crime that solemnizes every thoughtful man and woman and lends every philanthropist and Christian to ask, What shall be done to stay the plague? There is ever and anon a monsoon of swindle abroad, a typhoon, a strocco. I sometimes ask mysolf if it would not be better for men making wills to bequeath the property directly to the executors and officers of the court and appoint the widows and orphans a committee to see that the former got all typhoon, a sirocco. I sometimes ask my-and appoint the widows and orphans a committee to see that the former got all that did not belong to them. The simple fact is that there are a large number of men salling yachts and driving fast horses and members of expensive clubhouses and controlling country seats who are not worth a dollar if they return to others their just rights. Under some sudden reverse they fail, and with affected air seem to retire from the world fand seem almost ready for monastic life, when in two or three years they blossom out again, having compromised with their creditors—that is, paid them nothing but regret, and the only difference between the second chapter of prospecity and the first is that their pictures are Murillos instead of Konsetts and their borses go a mile in twenty seconds less than their predecessors, and instead of one county seat they have three. I have watched and have noticed that nine out of ten of those who fall in what is called high life have more means after than before the failure, and in many of the cases failure is only a stratagem to escape the payment of honest debts and put the world of the track while they practice a large number of the Hebrews. "Willing in all things to live the Hebrews." The cotton belt was supposed origially to run only through the best ands of Virginia, Georgia and the two Carolinas, with the edges overapping parts of the contiguous States. Texas was not thought of, Arkansas was too far west and Missouri and Kansas were supposed to be good only for corn and cattle. The map of the cotton belt is entirely altered, and each successive year it must be enlarged to include new territory where cotton flourishes abundantly. Texas has forged ahead n cotton raising so rapidly that growers wonder where it will stop: Arkansas has more recently started upon a similar career; while the farmers of Kansas and Missouri are beginning to raise cotton on a large scale. cotton belt that promises great things for the future. The climate is, in some respects, better suited to cotton growing than the Atlantic scaboard States. The cotton plants demonstrate this better than any scientific theory. The bush grows higher and pears longer, while open, rainless falls make the harvesting easier and the injury from insects and weather less. It is estimated by the Department of Agriculture that cotton can be raised successfully in nearly one-third of the territory of the United States. At present the cotton belt covers 24 degrees of longitude and about 10 degrees of latitude, but only about onetwentieth of the land is actually used for cotton growing. Thus the 20,000,-000 acres of cotton plantations represent only a fraction of the vast empire of cotton soll that has never been

The fear that cotton growing has reached its zenith, and that it must soon decline, in view of tife low prices received for it, looms up every season when the new crop begins to come in. but like similar nightmares, it fails to produce any permanent results. The world has just begun to use cotton. Our invasion of the Japanese markets are so many new novelties in braid in climates where little protection is needed, but that protection must come without them only because they are not obtainable at prices within their means. The world's yield of cotton has trebled in twenty-five years, and it has nearly doubled itself in the last ten years. Our own product has renresented a large percentage of this increase, India, China and Egypt can ratie cotton on a large scale, too, but, with all their cheap labor, the Southern planter can raise and the American manufacturer can work up into salable goods our cotton and place it in Eastern markets at prices lower than the natives can ever hope to accomplish.-New York Sun.

 Father Leaves Him $60,000.

Thomas Palmer, of Priceburg, a small mining town, near Carbondale, Penn., inherits $60,000 by the death of his father, in Canada, a year ago. The father came to America many years ago and settled in Canada. His smily in England never heard from him, and it was generally believed that he was dead. His son came to Pennsylvania a few years ago and settled in Priceburg. Several months ago, in a casual talk with an acquaintance who had traveled in Canada, he learned that a man who he had reason to believe was his father lived in a small town near Toronto. Last summer THE SLAUGHTER young Palmer went to this town, and, while walking in front of the mansion where he was told his father lived, he met an old man who, seeing Palmer look closely about the place, inquired his business. It was soon told, and then there was a joyful meeting .-New York Press.
