Two attracted particular attention, each drawn by three yoke of oxen. One represented the Cuba of yesterday—a woman standing with manacied heads, a broken wheelbarrow and other. The question on the amendment could be voted. Spanish employers in Cuba have recently made the condition of labor on the island more deplorable. The Chicago Hat Finishers' Association has sent a money donation to the idle shoe terday—a woman standing with manacied hands, a broken wheelbarrow and other signs of desolation at her feet; the other, the Cubs of to-day—a woman under a paim, smiling, and serrounded by many evidences of prosperity. The contrast was effective, and the floats received an ovation.

The question on the amendment was put and it was carried with a rousing cheer.

When the nays were called for there was an instant of complete silence, and then the House broke into renewed and continued applause. The amendment had been adopted without a single vote in option and pave the way for an ultimate settlement.
