LEFT ON EXCURSION BOAT.

Fred and Mrs. Schieldge and their two children went on the Odd Fellows excursion to Glen Island last Saturday and had their share of the enjoyment which was doled out so generously to all on board, but s little mishap on the return trip marred what otherwise would have been for them, as it was for about all others, a delightful trip.

It appears that Mrs. Schieldge became weary in the evening and repaired to her stateroom to rest and refresh herself. She there fell asleep, along with her younger child, while her husband kept moving about the boat with the older. When the landing was made at New Haven, Mr Schieldge believed that Mrs. Schieldge was in the surging throng which was so eager to push its way off the boat and get aboard the train. After the train got in motion he set out to find her but in this he was un-
