BARBERS PLAY BALL.

The barbers from this place took a pilgrimage to Rockville yesterday afternoon for the purpose of shampooing the Rockville Knights of the Razor in a game of base ball on the Union street grounds, but instead of that the home team was in a position to lather them to the tune of 28 to 14. A large crowd witnessed the sport.

The regular train leaving the Elm street station of the bouth Manchester railroad will also connect at Manchester with the excursion train.

The management wish to impress up on the public the importance of securing tickets this evening, as in the contrast of the sport.

The Rockville barbers had pretty maron suits made for the occasion, with caps to match. The sweaters were embellished with a large letter "B" on each and the boys presented a nice appearance of the company of the present the company of the present the company of the present the company of t

ABOUT

Hartford City Directory.

GEER'S

The favorite motto of our late father was, "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well." So often has he impressed that saying upon us in the preparation of the Hartford City Directory in former years, that as we succeed annually to the compilation of the work which he established we put forth our utmost exertion to produce as nearly as may be a perfect directory, even though it takes more time to do so. We take great pleasure now in announcing to our public that the compilation of Geer's Directory for the present year was completed on Saturday. It will take nearly ten or more days to collect the odds and the ends that wall have to be gathered up and to finish the presswork and printing of the same. In the meanwhile let us impress upon your memory that the Errata is the last hopper that catches everything not in the alphabetical or numerical order. Now this Errata is printed, let us take you into our confidence and say, the very last thing, only forty-eight hours before the completed book is bound and delivered. Because of this arrangement we are thus enabled to bring the information down to the very latest moment. And in this connection during this present week our canvassers will once more, and for the last time, visit all the houses, stores and shops that have remained vacant since May 1, thus securing the names of the latest comers to town and the last removals from street to street.

We would urge upon every one, therefore, who feels an interest in this correctness, and who contemplates removing or changing his house address, or business connections and location, to send is word at once, not later than the end of this week, either by postal card or a personal call, and give us that late in-

That every business man feels he must have a copy of Geer's Directory in the shop or office goes without saying, even with those who borrow from their neighbor "for just a minute," and there are some who consider it judicious to withhold their order until some future time. Now this causes us anxiety, as you read ily will see. To such ones, let us say, just incidentally, that we are printing 100 more copies

this year than usual, and expect the good people will want to buy them, and I will tell you why. Now that your attention is called to this fact of our expectation will you be so good to yourself, so kind and generous to us, as to say: Yes, Geer, that is just what I have been intending to do, and I will at once, this very day send immediately an order by postal t deliver us a brand new copy of Geer's Hartford City Directory, No. 64, 1901, as soon as published. And while writing this order, let suggest to you, would it not be very generous to yourself and especially so to he family, the wife and the children, to add to the order an extra copy to be lelivered at the house. I assure you this would make the publishers have a broad grin and smile of satisfaction when that additional order comes in. The possestion of this house copy of the Directory would give a pleasure and a delight in the family by conveying more real intelligent information about people and things of this city than you have at the present time any conception of. We speak hus confidently because of those who having the Directory in their homes and family say so. The cost of the Directory is merely nominal, as you will see, and while it has grown and increased i expenses, two and three times as many names and pages in the last twenty-one

This price, let us say, "cuts no ice" really in your family expense account as sized up against its usefulness. Now, all such orders for copies as come to us in response to this reading notice or advertisement before the binding, will be, if so requested, bound up especially in full cloth, making a very nest and handsome binding for the center table and home. The fact that the binding will be done by the Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company is the guarantee of this assertion. I might add, also, as another inducement, that we shall have the flustrative feature of last year, which has been so well received and favorably commented upon, more fully amplified and with nearly double the number of half-tone photographs. regraphs.

The Department of Education will also be illustrated by half-tones of all those who stand at the head of their respective institutions and the principals of the institutions and the principals of the schools.

The product, as we would express it in a commercial sense, and which is so exceedingly difficult to measure and size up in a tangible form, of our common and public High schools, will be here given as and shown in a table or list of graduates. The name of each scholar will be identified with the name of his parent or guardian, together with the street and number of the residence. We feel very certain that this feature, which we first printed last year, of the school Department of our great city, will prove to be of immense historic value, and therefore referred to many times in the future, as well as the present.

There is one more item in which we take a lively interest; in fact, it is than backbone of the whole shooting match. We refer to the advertisements and the information contained therein. When this book is printed, and your advertisements book is printed, and you in all seriousness to stop a moment and consider. Have we done justice to ourselves in allowing such an unrivaled opportunity to pass by and not improve it? The classification in the business portion and the alphabetical arranging in the names, together with the reference in all places to the folio or pages, is what makes it such an unrivaled medium. Nothing can approach unto it. And consider, also, that by our system of exchanging directories with nearly 200 of the larger cities of these United States and also with the great cities of foreign countries that that information is diffused all over the world Are we not right in this statement? These exchange directories which we receive make a library of reference at your free disposal always, and then we send the old copy down to the Historical Society, who give it a place of honor upon their abelves, where it can be consulted in all future time by antiquarians, genealogists or historians.

And now there is one more surprise which we have in store for this year. It is this, Having had many requests in Lasy Man's Lasy Death.

Joseph A. Bingham, of Andover, is dead. He died as he had lived, the laziest man in the State. He stood in front of a train which promptly killed him, saving all exertion on his part. Bingham had never done a stroke of work, although fifty years old. His wealthy parents left him a legacy, which was doled out by the Selectmen. When his money was gone they provided him with a little house, but, it is said, he was too lazy to cut the wood furnished him, too lazy to draw water, too lazy to cook his own food, or even to lace his shoes or put on a collar.
