SAND.

I observed a locomotive in the railroad yards on Monday.

It was waiting for the journey, it was coiled and fully ready.

It appears that locomotives cannot always get a grip.

On their hands and feet, they slip.

And when they reach a slippery spot their tactics are to slip.

DIED SUDDENLY.

MRS. MARY RICHMOND SMITH PASSES AWAY LAST SATURDAY FORENOON WITHOUT UTTERING A WORD OF COMPLAINT.

The End Came Just After She Had Come Down Stairs and in the Presence of Her Mother-in-Law and Her Sister-in-Law—Ready to Enter Her New Earthly Home When She Was Summoned to Her Eternal Home.

Mrs. Mary Richmond Smith, wife of Samuel Smith of East Center street near Main, entered into rest last Saturday morning without scarcely a moment's warning; at the age of 24 years. She had just come down stairs, and was followed by her sister-in-law, Miss Minnie Smith, who brought Mrs. Smith's infant child down stairs. Mrs. Smith felt faint as she came down stairs, and went over to the sofa to rest, when she suddenly and unexpectedly expired. Medical Examiner W. R. Tinker was summoned, and pronounced death as being due to infarction of the heart. Mrs. Smith had an infant daughter three weeks old, and had not fully recovered her strength since the little one was born. She complained of having a pain in her right shoulder on Tuesday when Doctor Tinker called on her. He then found her to be suffering slightly with neuralgia, but nothing serious was thought of.

Mr. Smith had just completed a handsome new cottage, southeast of his mother's residence, in the lane where Thomas Finnegans lives, and next to her former home. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Emily Smith, was also in the room when she died.

Mrs. Smith was ambitious to move into her new home and had done so, but she was beyond her strength to endure, when she was suddenly summoned to her eternal home. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Emily Smith, was also in the room when she died.

Samuel Smith and his family had been living with Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. Emily Smith, temporarily while his new residence was being built. He too was full of joyful anticipations of his happy life would be to him and his little family in their pretty new cottage. He has a little boy about 18 months old. This destroys all his plans and certainly depresses him very much. It demonstrates the ancient saying that "man proposes but God disposes."

The funeral took place from the residence of Mrs. Emily Smith Monday afternoon, Rev. J. A. Biddle officiating. Burial was in the East cemetery. The bearers were James Bohler, William and Samuel Hand, and William Hunniford. A large number of friends assembled at the obsequies and presented many lovely floral pieces.

Mrs. Smith was insured in the Prudential Insurance Company. She was the daughter of Henry and Mrs. Richmond, was well known and highly respected, as was abundantly attested by the large and sympathetic gathering which assembled at the funeral ceremonies and came forward to pay their last tribute of affection to her memory and to offer their condolences to the sorrowing relatives.

Besides her husband and two children, Mrs. Smith is survived by her parents, two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Luettgens, Warwick, and by a brother, Edward Whitney of Pittsburg, Pa. Mr. Whitney attended the funeral and is spending the week in town. It is expected that he will return to the city of much smoke tomorrow.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

The only new feature which has entered into the strike situation is the fact as far as known to us that the velvet mill fixers and twisters came out last Monday afternoon at about 5 o'clock. The men claim that they did so because the firm wanted them to sign a paper agreeing to do such work as the firm might ask them to do, regardless of whether the request be accessible to the union or not. The men say that they positively refused to enter into such a compact and some of them were then told to leave, whereupon they all went out. The firm state that the men were laid off because there was no work for them to do. The men acknowledged their intention to refuse to work with non-union velvet weavers, if called upon to do so, and stated, that while they did not authorize the published statements to this effect, these were their sentiments, and they proposed to stand by them. A large number of velvet weavers left town this week.

ISOLATED NEARLY NINE WEEKS.

These were lone days for Ethel M. Brainard and Doctor Keating, who have been at the Detention cottage since Sunday, June 28—nearly nine weeks. It is expected that they will be released next week, as Miss Brainard is almost well, and right glad they will be to mingle with their many friends once again. It has been a period of long and patient suffering for Miss Brainard, and of faithful attention to diet and self sacrifice on the part of Doctor Keating. Luckily all the cases have recovered, and out of 14 all no fatalities have occurred. The patients, as well as the doctor—not forgetting the capable nurse Miss Jennie Ryan—are to be sincerely congratulated upon the outcome of this unfortunate occurrence. It is apparent, however, that while the test has been severe and trying one, it might well have been much more. Life is very sweet, and in the midst of pain and ache and ill one clings tenaciously to the slender thread.

DID NOT GO TO HOSPITAL.

Mrs. William Wet is suffering with appendicitis, and on Wednesday afternoon Dr. Gilliam recommended that she be taken to the Hartford hospital for an operation. Plans were in progress for that purpose, but Mrs. Wet, by a sudden change of mind, decided to stand against this course and means were employed which brought Mrs. Wet relief. It is believed now that an operation may be averted and that she may get well.

WON ANOTHER PRIZE.

Marion Maffee of this place won second prize in the 30-mile race at the Volodrome track in Hartford last night. There are 120 laps to the mile. The best was 12 moving points. Maffee won 116 and took a gold hunting case, Waltham watch. It is a beauty case.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to hereby express our gratitude to the many kind friends and neighbors who served as so cheerfully during the fatal illness and at the death of our dear daughter Florence, and in the midst of pain and ache and ill one clings tenaciously to the slender thread.

Charles and Mrs. Benson,

FIRST SERIOUS BREAK.

WILE ATTEMPTING TO ESCORT HENRY LEISTER TO THE MILLS LAST TUESDAY MORNING A GENERAL MIX-UP ENSUED IN WHICH SEVERAL OF THE CHENEYS WERE ROUGHLY HANDED.

Leister's Running Qualities Saved Him From Further Harm—He Broke Loose From the General Scramble and Ran into the Velvet Mill Where He Was Seized—Deputy Sheriffs Guard the Mills by Day and Constables Perform Similar Tasks by Night.

The strike situation assumed a serious phase here last Tuesday morning and reached the first acute violence of that kind in the history of the town. The velvet weavers are angered very much because Henry Leister and others remain at work while they are out, and all manner of threats had been leveled about town, as to personal injury likely to be done Leister in particular. He was chased Saturday evening on his return from work, but found refuge in the residence of a friend. On Monday the police force and constabulary of the town were placed on guard at the mills as trouble was anticipated. The strikers were out in force but no harm was done. Leister was escorted to the mill by Superintendent R. J. Mommers, and entered safely. Earl Kraus, Thomas Plerson and Frank Sumner, who are also working in the velvet department, entered unmolested.

On Tuesday morning millers did not go along so smoothly. The strikers were assembled at the mill after seven o'clock and nothing unusual happened, other than that a large number of velvet weavers were in the vicinity of the mill. Leister was escorted to the mill by Superintendent R. J. Mommers, Charles and Clifford Cheney, followed by a crowd of weavers. The strikers met on Elm street near Hartford road by a larger body gathered there, and several members of the Cheney families, together with office help entered the crowd. Soon a row arose, and Leister, who was being escorted to the mill, was being knocked down in endless confusion in all directions, including several of his children. In the midst of the confusion Leister made his escape and rushed into the velvet mill, where he was securely locked in. This seemed to end the disturbance, as it was Leister whom the weavers wanted to see. Call at once at

This patrol will also have charge of the furniture, etc. when removed, until suitable arrangements can be made for bestowing same in a place of safety.

At a meeting of Orford Hose No. 3 held last evening the following persons were appointed to act as such patrol hereafter, same to go into effect immediately: E. M. Ogden, George W. Flinlay and E. B. Egan.

Orford Hose No. 3 also made the following assignments last evening: Laddermen, Thomas Trotter and Harry Farnell; hydrantmen, J. W. Hale and Joseph Joyce; hosemen, Dr. W. S. Gilliam, Paul G. Ferris and William K. Foley; compilers, Philip Johnson, J. W. Goske and Leroy Hale; auxiliaries, E. T. Ferris, Daniel Faggerty, John Trouton, George Joyce, Patrick Calhoun, C. E. Honer, F. W. Mills and Dr. W. P. S. Keating; tender, Henry Black.

Hose No. 3 also gave a talk on chemical engines before the Orford Hose Company last evening.

A practice drill by Orford Hose No. 3 has been ordered by Chief O. J. Atwood for next Monday evening. Let every member respond to the call.

Owing to the fact that C. S. McHale the regularly appointed delegate cannot attend the State Firemen's convention at Sarin Rock next week, J. W. Goske, the alternate will go instead. If the strike of the New Haven trolley men be not adjusted by that time, the alternate Goske may have to walk from the New Haven depot down to the Rock. However, a sturdy fireman would not flinch at even such a task as that, when duty calls.
