E. M. HUNTJINGER,

A Half Dozen of Sheriff Smith's Officers Go to South Manchester. Sheriff Smith received a telephone cal

at the jail at a late hour Tuesday evening from Cheney Brothers in South Manchester. He was informed that his presence and that of some of his deputies would probably be needed there in the morning to keep order, and to protect men who wished to go to work in the silk mills. Wednesday morning at 6.30 o'clock the sheriff went over to South Manchester to look over the situation there. Sheriff Smith said Wednesday evening that he saw no disturbance at the silk mills. In response to a re quest from the selectmen, however, he sent six deputies to South Manchester.

To a "Courant" reporter Wednesday evening Sheriff Smith said: "I do not anticipate any trouble in South Man chester, but as a call has been properly made upon me by the Manchester select men I have sent the deputies over. have also informed the Manchester authorities that if more men should be wanted I would provide them. I have instructed the six deputies to keep order and to preserve property."

The deputy sheriffs now doing duty at the silk mitls are, George H. Hall of Manchester, J. M. Foote, W. G Morris and C. L. Heath of Hartford, F. H. Dibble of Granby, G. L. Wilson of Thompsonville and T. F. Eagan of Southington,-

You stand at the fork of two roads, one is a life of hard labor and small pay, while the other is a life of clean enjoyable employment in the office.

We've placed five students of last year's class in banking positions, and found numerous situations for others with insurance companies. You might as well be the merchant or banker as to work at the bench or loom all your life. We have the very bes of facilities to educate you for business in the shortest possible

We put you right into ACTUAL BUSINESS PRACTICE and give you careful individual instruction. We sincerely believe that we find more really DESIRABLE positions for our pupils than any other business college in Connecticut.

When once you have examined our equipment and courses, then seen others and compared, you will not have any hesitation in selecting this institution as being far in the lead in every way. We can give you either a full business or shorthand course or we can plan for you a combined course. Remember the cost at MORSE'S is all covered in the one price of $12,50 monthly.

We are now open day and evening to visitors. Catalogue and Journal mailed free. Fall term begins September 1.

According to a report that reaches me from over the water the skirts of all except evening gowns are worn by the Parisians only just to touch the ground; in fact, in some cases just to clear it. Many of the smartest plain alpaca and taffeta skirts are made in this ideal manner. In direct contrast the evening frocks are longer than ever before. Surely this is a wise fashion, and I am convinced that those of us who love the virtue that is next to godliness will welcome the dressy frock whose skirt does not collect dust and dirt with each time's wearing.

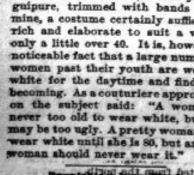

The most successful summer gowns are those that are the most individually distinct. A dress that is all frills and furbelows without any distinguishing mark is not the one most approved by Dame Fashion at the present moment.
