

The Jersey Prison Ship of Revolutionary Days

This Old English Hulk Lies Imbedded in the Mud Beneath the New Connecticut.

REMARKABLE historical discovery was made at the Brooklyn navy yard when the workmen located the foundation for the great battleship, Connecticut.

After the struggle for American independence, this marine channel house was abandoned where she lay in Wallabout bay (the present Brooklyn navy yard), and slowly settling to the bottom, beyond the sight of men, continued to sink deep in the mud until all trace of her was gone, even in the memory of the last generation.

THE PRISON SHIP JERSEY.

searched in vain for the remains of the Jersey, and it seems like a fulfillment of a prophecy that upon her wooden skeleton a steel fighter is building—a warship of the infant country they sought to crush.

they were dead, so pitifully deceptive was the appearance of the vessel. This inhuman treatment was called to the attention of Gen. Washington, who addressed a protest and threat of retaliation to Lord Howe under date of January 12, 1777, and while it received no attention, it is to the credit of Washington and his men that they did not retaliate kind.

In 1865 an influential meeting of citizens resolved that the time had arrived when the cities of New York and Brooklyn cannot, without criminality, longer delay the necessary effort for raising the monument to the martyrs of the prison ships.

The following graphic description of the ship and reception to the unfortunate prisoners is taken from the report of the late Capt. Dring, who delivered a lot of 120 prison captives by H. M. S. Bellair to David Sprout, commissary of prisoners: "We at length doubled this point and came in view of the Wallabout, where had been on the black hull of the Old Jersey, with her sails, the three hospital ships, to which Sprout pointed in an excited manner, saying: 'There, rebels, there is the cage for you," as he spoke, my eyes turned to the bulk. A multitude of persons was moving on her upper deck. Some of them, seeing us approach, waved us away as if in warning. It was nearly sunset, and before we were alongside every man except the sentinels had disappeared. As we went up the gangplank the croaking voice of a wretched prisoner called to us from the iron-barred holes. It is lamentable that there were so many young men in full strength, in the flush of health about to enter this infernal abode. Death has no relish for such skeleton carcasses as we, but now he will feed fast on our rosy newcomers.

Light was not permitted at night, and the ship was so crowded that men could not move without stumbling over the others. Sleep was impossible amid the groans of the sick and the cries of those who went crazy, cursing their keepers. Often dying men fell over their sick companions, their jail until morning came with the death rattle searching for those who had passed away in the night. "Turn out your dead" was the familiar greeting from the sunlight into the railing and the wailing between decks. In observing this order it was often necessary to waken some of the sleepers to ask if

Miss Gertrude Hayes, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of baby blue silk with white to match, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. William D. Murray of Highland Park was best man. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, Patrick and Mrs. Hayes, which was attended only by relatives of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Post left in the afternoon for New York and New Jersey. Upon their return they will reside on Maple street and will be "at home" after December 1st.

FEEDING THE NATION

The biggest business in this country is the feeding of the nation. With the sizes up the enormous amount of milk, eggs, butter, cheese, meats, cereals, vegetables and fruits which are demanded by the American people he is surprised at the magnitude of the agricultural and horticultural interests of the country. And then we not only have to feed our people, but millions elsewhere. The young man who knows how to produce these commodities the cheapest and of the best quality, has the most knowledge which has a market value greater than that possessed by any lawyer, mechanic, parson or merchant, for the American people will have to eat whether they go to law or church or not.—Es.

HEAR YE THIS!

Every boy and girl should be disciplined thoroughly in the matter of living within one's means. The wanton part of business recalcitrance—embezzlement, cheating, stealing—is caused by living, or a desire to live, beyond one's income. It is not enough to live as we appear to live, but to be content with what we have. There are millions of people who get no joy out of life, because they are always sour and surly because they cannot live more extravagantly.

BOOM YOUR TOWN.

A Texas editor has hit the right spot when he says: "The sorriest fellow on earth is the fellow who will sit around and curse his own town. If I lived outside the town place, I would call it home and be ready to boost it up. If I couldn't say anything nice about it, I would say that my eye ball didn't come big. I would not stay in a town I can't see—while the world is as big as it is now."

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: "As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and put some on the dummy that the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child. This they did and brought relief and cured the baby." Dr. Store, South Manchester, and Balch & Brown's Drug Store, Manchester.

DARK ROOM FOR AMATEURS

Neat and Convenient Arrangement That Makes Photography a Pleasure to Women.

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

Women have taken to photography as a pastime in the many public competitions by illustrated journals and photographic societies. But to make photography a pleasure, care and practice should be observed in all its processes. As beginners soon find out, sins of neglect come home to roost in the shape of spotted and faded prints and stained prints.

A Refreshing Cuban Drink.

Almond milk is a beverage popular in Cuba. Blanch three dozen sweet almonds, crush thoroughly and boil with two quarts of water, adding vanilla for flavoring. Sweeten to taste and when cool strain through a fine sieve. Chill before serving.

Water Wafers or Crackers.

Work into a half-pound of flour a tablespoon of butter, a little salt and enough cold water to make a dough that can be rolled out. Roll very thin, cut out and roll again. Bake in a floured pan.

A PRETTY TEA COZY.

A tea-cozy is so English, you know, and certainly would please a French wit with a leaning toward Anglo-mania. It may safely be selected as a Christmas gift for the indulger in the cup that cannot carry one of the bulky bougats whom the cozy is intended, the color chosen should harmonize with the china.

USEFUL TEA COZY.

It is, to a large extent, possible to judge the photographer and her capabilities by the condition of her dark room, wherein are conducted some of the most important operations of photography. The dark-room may be a mere cupboard under the stairs, or a well-lighted and capacious chamber replete with conveniences; but in either case the owner leaves her mark upon it and its contents. Here, for instance, you see everything higgledy-piggledy—dishes, bottles, boxes, plates, and apparatus scattered about in confusion.

PUFF FOR A PURSE.

Sometimes the busy woman when walking wants to be burdened with nothing heavier than a small purse, but very seldom does she want to go abroad unadorned by the ubiquitous powder-puff. It stands to reason she cannot carry one of the bulky bougats in the limited compass of a purse, so a home-made contrivance here comes into play—and gives needed suggestion for a Christmas novelty.

The afternoon nap is beneficial to the nerves, and is a good habit.
