NEW SCULLING CHAMPIONS.

Star's Recent Victory a Surprise. Faulkner, Intermediate Champion.

Frank B. Greer of the East Boston A. A. is again the amateur sculling champion of America. Greer came into possession of the championship for the fourth time when he defeated Harry S. Bennett of the Springfield (Mass.) Boat Club recently.

Greer's win was of the decisive sort and left not the slightest room for argument as to the relative abilities of the men competing for the title. Greer has won the championship title four times, and he holds the record for the course with a turn and on still water. The performance took place on Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, in 1903, when he covered the three-quarter mile stretch both ways in 9 minutes 38.4 seconds and this is more than twenty seconds faster than the best time made by Titus in 1902. When Greer was the victor.

DIRECT PRIMARY

HAD INITIAL TRYOUT HERE LAST TUESDAY FOR FIRST TIME IN STATE OF CONNECTICUT.

Worked Well With Exception of Counting Ballots, which Took All Night—Counters and Election Officials Have Long and Worrying Task—But Many Errors in Voting New Form of Ballots.

For the first time in the history of the Town of Manchester and also in the State of Connecticut, the Direct Primary was tried out at the town hall last Tuesday. Voting began at nine o'clock in the morning and closed at eight o'clock at night.

There were 870 Republican ballots cast, of which 18 were rejected. In a few instances blank ballots were put in without markings for any candidate and consequently were rejected, as the law calls for an X to be placed in the hollow square at the left hand side of the name of the candidate whose the elector wishes to vote for.

Some of the ballots were placed in the wrong box, for example, a Republican ballot in the Democratic box, or vice versa, through the list. Some of the voters placed their X mark on the right hand side of the name of the candidate instead of in the hollow square at the left, and the ballots were rejected accordingly.

Some of the ballots were simply checked-marked instead of having the X called for by law, and the moderator permitted these to be counted. Some ballots had an X marked for a single candidate, and others for only two or three out of the long list of names.

There were 1385 voters registered for the caucus on the Republican list, 254 on the Democratic, and 47 on the Prohibitionist. The Prohibitionists cast 37 votes and had 5 rejected. The Democrats cast 50 and had 3 rejected.

At the close of the polls, counting the ballots was started immediately. The result of the vote on the Democratic and Prohibition lists was known within an hour after the counting started, but it took until 4.15 the following morning to finish the count of the Republican ballots.

There were contests only for selectmen, for assessors, for constables and for representatives. All the others had simply the number called for by law and consequently were noncontested.

During the evening interested persons waited in the town hall as in their custom to get the result of the count, but as the hours wore along the watchers became weary and gradually departed to their homes, as their patience was totally exhausted and they saw no reasonable means of reaching the result during the time at their disposal.

The counters plodded faithfully to the end, however, but long before the moderator was prepared to make his final announcement the officials of the Direct Primary were practically alone.

The result on representatives was known at 2.30, namely that Harry M. Burke and Aaron Johnson were nominated. At that time a faithful courier, whose supply of patience was ample to carry him to the finish, bore the good news to Harry M. Burke at the latter's home. Mr. Burke called upon Aaron Johnson to impart the information and the two successful nominees for representatives hid their heads in the town hall where they remained until the moderator made his final announcement.

Concluded on Page Eight.

President William E. Alvord opened the proceedings by asking the quartet of the Manchester Male Chorus to sing the opening ode. The quartet consisted of the following artists: C. Elmore Watkins, basso profundo; C. W. Fitch, first tenor; Don B. Parker, who also sings a little tenor; Fred J. Randall, who chants a little bass.

Among other original local topical songs, the Manchester Male Chorus Quartet sang the following songs which pleased the monster gathering to a degree and drew forth the attention of Vice-President Calvert Towseley of the Connecticut Company.

First it was the telegraph. Then it was the telephone. Then it was the electric light. That made us sigh and groan.

But at last we have the trolley. And we hope it's come to stay. But for many months we wondered. If the rails would rust away.

There are many at the Green. Who do down south to trade. But they do not like schedule. That the company has made.

If the day is fair and pleasant. Perhaps they'll not complain. But think of waiting fifteen minutes. Aught and chatted upon the green.

At the center in the rain. If brass and wood George Washington could visit us tonight. His stage coach on the turnpike. Would be funny a sight.

The electric lights and trolley cars. Would meet his wondrous eyes. With deep emotion he would say. This must be Paradise.

Oh! the trolley cars are here. And we hope that they will run. They've been a long time coming. And now there's here, by gum!

Some folks they objected. That we think was just for fun. They've made a trial trip today. And now I guess they'll run.

Oh! now the cars are running. And I guess we'll have to see. If Henry Nettleton won't change. The running time, by gee!

Chairman William E. Alvord spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen: The day long looked forward to has arrived, and whether you are here to celebrate the opening of a line of transportation which connects this village of Manchester Green with the outside world, or to celebrate an event which connects the outside world with us, we bid you all welcome. We are glad to see so many of our friends who are interested in this long to be remembered occasion.

We are doubly pleased that you are able to come here by trolley and we hope to see your faces more often in the future. Time was when this place where we are holding this celebration was the business center of the Town of Manchester. If these grand old streets which some of you may be standing on had not been paved, what tales they might tell. They might say George Washington passed this way and stopped at your inn; also Lafayette and other great men. They could speak to you of the Woodbridges, Pitkins, Lyman, Copes, Williams and others.

Back in those times the stage coach with its four horses passed daily through this village leaving the mail at Manchester's only post office, located in this community. About sixty years ago came the steam cars. Then went the stage. We have been waiting ever since for the trolley to be built, and now we are here to see it. It is a day of bright sun and clear sky, and the trolley was filled with passengers.

CLANS IN THE WOODS

Local Sportsmen Have Second Annual Clambake and Shoot.

The Second Annual Clambake and Shoot given by the South Manchester Sportsmen's Association took place at the Chapman road grounds yesterday. There were an estimated fifteen birds shot. Henry Metcalf of Rockville won first prize, which was $5.00, and Dr. D. C. Y. Moore of South Manchester, second, $2.50. The shoot was known as amateur high gun shooting during the entire program. When it is remembered that Dr. Moore has not done his shooting for the past two years his achievement of yesterday in winning second prize is certainly notable. The events were shot off under the direction of Captain George A. Smith, who is also vice president of the association.

BOARD OF RELIEF.

William C. Cheney had been appointed as a committee to provide the marksmen with a clambake. A succulent and savory meal was served under the trees yesterday afternoon and most heartily enjoyed. Steamed clams in great abundance were provided, as well as green corn boiled with the husks.

WELL-KNOWN GOLF AND ACCQUITT

Henry Green was chief and acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner. Members of the marksmen association did the serving and all enjoyed the outdoor feast amazingly.

IT WAS A JOYFUL DEMOCRATIC GATHERING and one of the pleasant events of the summer season in this place. Thirty of the marksmen enjoyed the hospitalities of the occasion. Through the courtesy of B. O. Cheney, publishers of the local newspapers were guests of the sportsmen at the clambake.

A LAWYER'S SOMERSAULT.

Speaking of somersaults, the anecdote which Lord Eldon related of the eminent English lawyer, Lord Denning, afterward Lord Ashburton, will bear repeating. "I had," says Lord Eldon, "very early after I was called to the bar a brief as junior to Mr. Denning. He began the argument and appeared to me to be reasoning very powerfully against our client. Waiting till I was quite convinced that he had mistaken for what party he was retained, I then touched his arm, and upon his turning his head toward me I whispered to him that he must have misunderstood by whom he was employed, as he was reasoning against our client."

HE GAVE ME A VERY ROUGH AND RUDE REPRIMAND

for not having sooner set him right and then proceeded to state that what he had addressed to the court was all that could be stated against his client and that he had put the case as unfavorably as it were possible in order that the court might see how very satisfactory the case against him could be answered and accordingly very powerfully answered what he had before stated."

ONE DAY WHEN HE WAS ON BOARD A RHINE STEAMBOAT

he noticed a lady, evidently in great distress, trying by signs to explain to the officers some matter of importance. Fancying that she was a countrywoman of his own, he asked: "Do you speak English?"

THE GOOD LADY REALLY TOLD HER

and she could only stammer out, "Un peu"—that is, a little. Then Lord Bramwell continued the conversation in French, but it became evident that the lady understood scarcely a word. German and Italian gave equally bad results. Finally she muttered sadly to herself: "How I wish I were a sailor at home!" "But surely you do speak English," exclaimed the baron.

"I CAN'T SPEAK ANYTHING ELSE," SHE SOOLED.

"That's what makes me so helpless among these foreigners."

W. C. T. U.

The South Manchester W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. C. G. Watkins next Tuesday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock.
