STEALING FROM CARS

Offenders Brought Into Court and Will Be Severely Punished.

The home of John H. Smith of Apple place was searched Saturday afternoon by Chief of Police John P. Sheridan of this place accompanied by railroad detectives.

For some time past thefts have been committed on the freight trains running between Hartford and Providence, and railroad detectives have been on the trail endeavoring to run down the thieves.

Through these efforts suspicion rested upon Smith, hence the search of his premises with the results noted above.

As a part of this work, the detectives arrested James May of this place and George A. Braga of Barnstable. These men were charged with breaking into a car in Manchester on the night of February 10.

In this case Judge Bowers found guilty and Judge Bowers sentenced May to the superior court under bonds of $1,000.

As he was not able to furnish the necessary bonds Officer William J. Madole took him to the Hartford jail to await trial.

As to Braga he was released on $1,000 bail, and held over to the superior court under bonds of $1,000.

Some $500 worth of goods were found in the home of Harry Warren of East Hartford, who was brought before the police court in East Hartford on Monday, and held over to the superior court under bonds of $1,000.

Memorial Museum Marks the Kentucky Birthplace of the Martyr President—The Old Log Cabin Restored

At the time Mr. Collier bought "the little farm that raised a man" the historic rock spring from which it took its name had degenerated into a bog wallow, while the cabin in which Lincoln was born had been taken north for show purposes.

This was removed from the blight of commercialism, like the farm, and sent back from its wanderings to rest in honor in its own place.

The journey to Kentucky was one of triumph. The little one-room log cabin was escorted to its destination in greater state than most kings and conquerors. The railroads carried it free.

The Wauwanesee store in New York devoted the care, the governor of Kentucky detailed an officer and four militiamen to escort the old log cabin to its new home.

SELECTIONS WILL MEET

TO TAKE ACTION LOOKING TO REMOVAL OF NUISANCE AT ARDURS PLACE ON DEPOT SQUARE

Have Notified Him To Attend Meeting at Two O'clock and Show Cause Why Work On His Property Should Not Be Declared a Nuisance—If So Adjudged Legal Steps Will Be Taken For Removal.

The next regular meeting of the board of selectmen will be held at the Hall of Records Monday, March 8 at 2 p. m. The principal business to come before the meeting will be to consider the proposition to declare the ruins of the Andrus building on Depot square a nuisance and to vote upon their being abolished.

The board of selectmen have officially communicated with Mr. Andrus informing him that a written complaint had been made to that body declaring the ruins of the Andrus building on Depot square a nuisance and asking him to move same without further process of law.

Because of Mr. Andrus' physical infirmities the board of selectmen have made the committee of holding a meeting in the afternoon in order that he might be enabled personally to attend. They realize the fact that it is somewhat concluded on Page Five.

A hearing was held before the Judiciary Committee at the Capital in Hartford Wednesday afternoon on the question of the appointment of a judge for the town court of Manchester. The

BASE BALL

ANNUAL MEETING HELD WEDNESDAY EVENING—ADJOURNED UNTIL MARCH EIGHTH.

New Board of Directors Called for Both in Manchester and Rockville By Popular Request—Want Base Ball Reseved Between These Communities—Plan to Raise Funds By Popular Subscriptions.

The annual meeting of the Manchester Base Ball corporation was held at Odd Fellows hall Wednesday evening. There were between the 30 stockholders present and after considerable discussion of the situation the meeting was adjourned Monday evening, March 8, at the same hall.

It was brought out in the discussion that there was a strong sentiment in the community of Manchester and Rockville in favor of the resumption of games between the two communities, and furthermore that with the present boards of directors, both here and in Rockville, there seemed to be no possibility of coming to an agreement. That the sentiment in both Manchester and Rockville is that both boards of directors withdraw, that an entire new management be created and that some basis of agreement be reached whereby base ball negotiations can be resumed between Manchester and Rockville.

WILLING TO WITHDRAW. President Bowers speaking for himself and also for the board of directors that he was perfectly willing to withdraw and has nothing more to do with the management of base ball here after. He said that he understood that the other members of the board of directors harbored the same desire. There is an indebtedness upon the Manchester Base Ball Corporation for which the directors are responsible as their names are attached to the note which is held by the local bank, and upon which interest is being paid. The present board of directors require that any new board of directors who may be chosen, arrange to assume the responsibility of the corporation's obligations and relieve the present board of that indebtedness. President Bowers said he was perfectly willing to aid the new management in every way he could but had no desire to.

STATE TAX The burning question before the taxpayers of Connecticut today is that of state expenses and receipts. A big deficit stares us in the face and the question is whether the state can be kept in the red.

So the House refused to be led or driven into voting for Friday sessions which the majority of its members would never attend.

That state tax may be and the same is imposed upon the several towns of this state equal to one-half mill on the dollar on the grand list of the several towns, respectively.

No Friday Sessions—Machine Practically Without Representation—Five-Cent Trolley Fares Quite Likely—Helped Governor out of Dilemma in Judge Wheeler Case.

Hartford, Feb. 25.—For the first time, I think in any session of the General Assembly of this state the Friday session was decisively beaten today on a straight line up for and against it the first time during the session when it came to a test.

It means two things, the action that was taken this morning. One is that the Friday session is a failure, acknowledged as such, and that the legislative session will be a long one.

Remarkable Illuminating Qualities of Acetylene—Revolution in Metal Working

An interesting phase of the subject is the remarkable use of what is known as the acetylene blow pipe. By burning acetylene in an atmosphere of pure oxygen, the highest temperature of 3,311 degrees is evolved.

Another curious phase of the subject is the fact that calcium carbide at certain temperatures has the power of fixing the nitrogen of the air and in this way will produce a fertilizer capable of the highest results.

The Board of Engineers of the National Board of Fire Underwriters have after a year's examination of the subject declared that Acetylene, when installed with approved apparatus, is safer than the illuminants which it replaces.

TUBERCULOSIS BILL

STRONGLY FAVORED BY MANY AT HEARING IN CAPITAL WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY AFTERNOON

Smaller County Means Urged Rather Than Large State Institutions—If Need Be State Tax for This Measure Work Favored Rather Than State Bonds—Men in Various Walks of Life Speak for Measure.

The committee on humane institutions gave a hearing in the hall of the house of representatives, Monday afternoon, on the bill recommended by the tuberculosis commission.

The bill recommends the appointment of a permanent commission of three on tuberculosis at salary of $2,000 for each member and expenses, and for the establishment of county homes for the treatment of tuberculosis patients, etc.

The members of the committee occupied seats on the speaker's platform. Senator W. L. Hays, chairman of the committee announced that another hearing will be held if it is necessary. The hearing was adjourned at 1 o'clock but it did not begin until 1:30.

Dr. John P. C. Foster of New Haven, chairman of the commission explained the report of the commission. He referred to the institutions for tuberculosis patients established in Massachusetts and other states. The state of Connecticut has no provision for the care of tuberculosis patients except those in whom the disease has so far advanced that they are beyond help.

He hoped that under no circumstances shall the institutions be called upon to receive the incurable. They will be homes for the reception of tuberculosis patients. He expected that there will be a private sanatorium established in Fairfield county and if there is the erection of sanatoria in the state will be expedient.

There will be comfortable, decent and respectable homes in each county. He deprecated the erection of expensive homes. If $50,000 is spent in a county it should provide 100 beds. The commission opposed anything like extravagant homes. He wanted the world to see that the great question of tuberculosis can be met without having a prohibitive cost.

He said that the bill is a measure of sympathy which he greatly needed. He advocated the appointment of a commission of three and he did not think the work should be put on the state board of health.

Representative Harry M. Burke of South Manchester said he wanted to go on record as favoring this bill. He said he has a son who is suffering from tuberculosis and he would be glad to see that the state should do something to help him.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, a member of the state commission on tuberculosis, said he had been appointed Governor Lilly has said he is his annual address that if present conditions persist 100,000 of the people now alive in Connecticut will die of tuberculosis.

It is because of the general and increasing distinctness of the disease, the fact that we have all united for the war against consumption. And we flatter ourselves that we have already won some victories. We like to think of ourselves as benefactors of our kind.

As a matter of fact, all that we have done heretofore has been to do the most selfish of motives, that of self-preservation. And all the applause with which the community has greeted the work and the suggestions of the commission, has been due to the same in spirit of self-preservation.

And it is of course right that when the commission advise the state to expend large sums of money it should be given the right to do so. It is a question of public policy. It is a question of public policy. It is a question of public policy.

But there is another side to the question, a side which is very important. It is the side which is very important. It is the side which is very important. It is the side which is very important.

Because of our work, because of our interest in the tuberculosis commission, the question will be one of methods. The question will be one of methods. The question will be one of methods.

men interested in the anti-tuberculosis movement. They do not want large stone buildings, but comfortable county homes. While he would not limit the amount to be spent for the treatment of the disease, he thought the cost per patient should be limited. The state should maintain the homes for the sake of uniformity.

All of the same grade. If the home is to be maintained by the different counties, it is to be maintained by the different counties. It is to be maintained by the different counties. It is to be maintained by the different counties.

Some counties would not be as good as others. He said that in so far as possible the committee should recommend a fixed sum per work for each patient, in order that the legislature might be able to determine with some degree of accuracy the probable cost of the undertaking. He was glad to go on record as favoring the bill as presented by the committee with the exception noted above.

Mayor Hoyer said the question to be considered is the method recommended by the commission. There is a need for doing something for the eradication of tuberculosis, and perhaps the methods suggested are the correct methods. But there is the financial question which will be solved by the legislature on appropriation.

The state cannot afford to refrain from doing something for the treatment of the disease. People are asked for help. The commission has asked for help. The commission has asked for help. The commission has asked for help.

mass for raising funds to construct and maintain the proposed county sanatoria, he would be in favor of levying a tax for that specific purpose, rather than to issue bonds to meet the cost.

Horace B. Cheney, a member of the special commission which formulated the report which is before the legislature, spoke as follows: Gentlemen: Before making what remarks I have to make on the bill before you, I wish to make a statement to some of the points.

I understood that, without my consent or knowledge, my name is being used as a candidate for the position of one of the tuberculosis commissioners created by this bill. It would be impossible for me to accept such a position if I were offered.

My time is at present fully occupied with other duties, and in the opinion of the commission it will take not less than half of the time of the gentlemen appointed to this commission, for some years, to organize the great work which is to be undertaken, or rather which they recommended. I am, therefore, not a candidate for such a position.

Restored to Health by Vinol "I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cool liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and the results were most gratifying. After taking two bottles I regained my strength and am now feeling unusually well." Henry Cunningham, Elder Baptist Church, Kingston, N. C.

Vinol is not a patent medicine—but a preparation composed of the medicinal elements of cod liver, combined with a tonic iron and wine. Vinol creates a hearty appetite, tones up the organs of digestion and makes rich, red blood. In this natural manner, Vinol creates strength for the run-down, overworked and debilitated, and for delicate children and old people. For chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis Vinol is unequalled.

All such persons in this vicinity are asked to try Vinol on our offer to refund their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

MR. CHAFIN HERE

Spoke interestingly and instructively for forty-five minutes at Center Church.

Save Able, Forceful and Logical Historical Review of His Growth and Development of United States—Of Abolition of Legalized Lotteries, of Slavery and Predicted Same for Saloons.

EUGENE W. CHAFIN.

Local information relative to the discovery, rise, growth and development of the United States from the fifteenth century to the present time.

He harked back to the days of Gutenberg, Martin Luther and of Christopher Columbus. Mr. Chafin said that the printing press, the bible, and the discovery of America, the three agencies that have done more to enlighten, enrich and improve the world than any other agencies the world has ever produced.

He said that the foundation of all laws is found in the bible and that the making of our statutes is simply transference of the bible into the laws of the land. He held that the great strength of the United States of America is not to be found in its constitution but rather in its institutions. In ancient times when it became necessary to change rulers the method then in vogue was to cut off their heads. In the United States we change rulers by means of the ballot box when necessary and he declared this to be the best plan ever devised by man.

Speaking of the progress being made by the United States he mentioned the fact that in days gone by lotteries were recognized as being legal and permissible everywhere in this country, but that the church and schools had combined to educate the public mind for the changing of all this until today the legalized state lotteries are entirely prohibited in New York and even recently in California, and that nowhere under the United States flag is gambling now legalized.

Mr. Chafin said that this educated Christian conscience elected Abraham Lincoln as in time abolished slavery in the United States. He predicted that in the future this same Christian conscience would exterminate the saloon. Mr. Chafin was not in favor of simply town, or county, or state prohibition but wanted the liquor traffic totally destroyed everywhere beneath the American flag. He held that the church and the school and the educated Christian conscience would do this grand work and that every nation in the Union would join the states of the South and West that have already hoisted the prohibition flag over their capitals and prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor within their territories.

EASTER MONDAY DANCE

The Polka orchestra will furnish music and Prof. C. Foley will prompt. Cards of admission will be sold and may be found on sale at the stores of Felix Farr on Main street, of John Cervini on Oak street and of Fred Demas on Depot Square. The following committee has the arrangements in charge: Angelo Basso, John Cervini, John E. Demas, Demas, William Boggiati, Silvio Marchionni.

The purpose for which the Christopher Columbus Benevolent Society are organized are for mutual benefit to its members in time of sickness or distress, for general enlightenment and education and also for social intercourse. This young society made a fine showing of its benevolent purposes in the very general contribution it made to the relief of sufferers in the recent earthquake disaster in the afflicted districts of their native land. They displayed on this occasion a great deal of generosity and proved themselves willing to be of assistance to the distressed in Sonny Italy. It is their purpose to stamp by each other in time of need, to administer to the wants of the sick and distressed and to aid all they can for the uplifting of their race in this community.

These objects are certainly very commendable and should add doubtless will meet with the hearty encouragement of the people at large. The members are all working people and they look forward to the aid and support of their fellow workers of other nationalities. They are engaged in the very laudable undertaking of becoming themselves and of bringing up their children to be good American citizens. This undertaking should have the hearty support of all regardless of home or nationality or of social standing. It will be the purpose of this society to make matters very agreeable for all who will participate in their festivities during the joyous Easter period.

When Advertising Paid.

"That's what I call some package," cried Hoemer proudly as he held aloft a round metal package decorated with a smiling face which was sandwiched between the legend "You can smile—if you use Dentola."

"It is pretty," conceded the head of the firm as he took the can into his hands and inspected it more carefully. "Some actress, isn't it? Her face seems familiar."

"Actress nothing," was the contemptuous retort. Hoemer could afford to be flippant when he scored a success. "That's the little typewriter over in the shipping room. I caught her smiling like that one day, and it made a hit with me. I invented the powder to go with it. It's the old 'Saponica' look different. I feel you, Mr. Powers, in a week that Dentola girl will be known all over the country, and the sales will, I'll be around for a raise in salary in about five weeks."

Powers smiled and nodded. Hoemer had a regular scale of self-praise upon the city throng, and more than a life size she beamed at him as he trotted along the trunk lines. Vaughn, the head of the shipping department, was rather vexed over the incident. He had supposed that the picture was merely to be used to decorate the cans of powder.

It became something of a nuisance when visitors to the model factory seeing the original of "Miss Dentola" Vaughn, resentful of the admiring glances of the masculine visitors, protested to Hoemer.

"It's all a part of the campaign," declared the sales expert, with a laugh. "Miss Dentola is the best saleswoman that ever was. We sold more than a million boxes last month, and the orders are still piling in. I tell you, Hoemer, it pays to advertise when you advertise right."

"Sure," assented Vaughn, "but you're overdoing it. We wanted to sell the tooth powder, not to bring people to the factory to see Miss Dentola. There was a chap in yesterday who said he couldn't go back to Montana until he'd seen Miss Dentola. By the way he looked at her I guess he would have taken her back to Montana with him. He's only one. There's hundreds. It's all Miss Pryor can do to keep her work up."

"You get out of here," demanded Vaughn, half in friendliness and half very much in earnest. He had had Miss Pryor in his department for more than two years and had given her scarcely a look until Hoemer had made her nationally famous.

When men in Alaska began to send proposals of marriage to the girl, Vaughn began to realize that his assistant was decidedly pretty, and as this knowledge came to Hoemer about the same time there ensued a pretty race for favor. Miss Pryor, finding herself in demand for the first time, developed into a beauty. So long as she had been merely Miss Pryor, typist, she had gone her quiet way, but now Joseph Powers, president and practical owner of the corporation, insisted that she be given a royalty on the use of her picture, and, though this was but a fraction of a penny per box, the generous becomingly for the first time in her narrow life.

Early in the campaign Powers had suggested that the liberal use of her face had rendered the girl rather conspicuous, so the company paid for a carriage that took her to and from her work.

At first Hoemer had approved the suggestion, but now he went to the other extreme. There was no chance to walk home with Miss Pryor, and his request for permission to call was met with a polite negative.

Hoemer could only fight it out during office hours, and when Vaughn objected to Hoemer's continued presence in the shipping department and asked Powers to give Hoemer a hint to that effect the sales expert retaliated by again referring to his suggestion that Miss Pryor should be transferred to the sales office.

The constant bickering could have but one effect. From seriousness they passed to open warfare, and at last they brought the matter to the head of the firm.

Each pleaded his case, and then they stood waiting the decision with an anxiety that showed plainly in their faces. Each felt that a victory with the chief would aid his fight, and the moments that passed after the case had been stated were painful to them both.

Powers glanced slowly from one to the other, and his face broke into a smile. "You both say that you have the right to Miss Pryor's services," he began slowly. "I'm afraid that you will both have to hire other typists. Miss Pryor tells me that you both are—rather cordial to her. It seems that you, Vaughn, have suddenly discovered that you need Miss Pryor. Only a little while before the advertising campaign was started you told me that you should have to put on another girl, as Miss Pryor was willing, but slow. I fancy that the way out of this will be to get another Dentola girl and another typist for the shipping department."

"There is no reason for such drastic action," cried Hoemer, but Powers only smiled again. "There is an excellent reason," he said slowly. "I am to marry Miss Pryor. She did me the honor to accept me, and as soon as the Dentola case is forgotten we will be married. Meanwhile she has her royalty from the use of her picture, and she will not need her position. She would have told you this, Vaughn, had you waited until this afternoon."

Vaughn, too dazed to speak, turned and left the office, and Hoemer was about to follow when Powers detained him with a word. "You said that you would win a raise on Dentola, and you have," he said kindly. "It pays to advertise, Paul."

"Yes, when you have something to sell," agreed the expert, "but I was trying to sell Dentola, not Miss Dentola. The next time I get out a good article I'm going to marry the original first and advertise afterward."

"Miss Pryor and myself are very grateful to you," said Powers, with a cordial hand clasp. "And I hope that you find another Dentola, Paul."

"And I bet I won't lose her to any other man," was Hoemer's grim reply.

Some of the greatest scholars have used their learning more as a weapon than a means of illumination. Professor Lewis Campbell's gentleness and courtesy may be illustrated by the following true story: Some years ago he was in the chair at a meeting of the Hellenic society when Dr. Arthur Evans described the results of some of his first excavations in Crete. Among his finds were a number of seals and other relics showing traces of affinity with early Egyptian art. Discussion followed, in the course of which a venerable admiral, who had been present at the battle of Navarino, rose and said that he did not know whether he was in order, but he would like to state that in the year 1824, when he was cruising in the Levant, he saw a herd of seals off the coast of Crete—a sight which he had never seen before or since. The situation was delicate, but it was saved by the chairman, who rose immediately to express the thanks of the meeting to the admiral for his interesting remark. "Here," he said, "we have another link with Egypt, for all of us must remember the story in the Odyssey of Proteus and his herd of seals on the island near the mouth of the Nile."—London Spectator.

Sick Folk's Fancies. "Isn't it funny?" said the brown-eyed woman, "how important some things are to you when you are sick and how trivial they seem when you get well? When I was ill with you I could not take any water to drink, although I nearly died of thirst. But late every night the nurse would bring me a small glass of cracked ice. Oh, how I anticipated that thing through long and painful hours, and when I could bear her cracking in the ice the sound was the most beautiful thing in the world. When I was sitting in if one little scrap got lost in the bedclothes I almost wept, so precious it was. And now that I am well and have the icebox at my command I wouldn't eat a piece for anything."

"A friend of mine, a strong man, told me that when he was recovering from typhoid and couldn't eat anything he would lie for hours composing menus. He would call out his orders in a loud voice and then nearly burst into tears when no waiter appeared with loaded tray. Sick people certainly are funny, though they can't always see it at the time."—New York Times.
