THE HARTFORD THEATER

The book and lyrics are by Charles J Campbell and Ralph M. Skinner. The lyrics in particular are clever and plenty of them have been provided. It is the custom to speak of the plot of a musical attraction, otherwise the matter might be passed over in silence as is fitting in most instances. The plot of The Motor Girl is rather more complicated than the average, about as important and as cleverly hidden. Dorothy Dare, daughter of an automobile manufacturer, is in the Holland city of Saardasm, to see her brother compete in the great race which he is very anxious to win. He is detained, and she, in male attire, drives his car and wins the race but is kept from winning the cup through the rules of the course, as the brother arrives at an inopportune time and her disguise is disclosed.
