We found a lot of short lengths of cloth which the manufac turer was willing to make up at a concession.

The coats arrived today and they are splendid-just the kind to warm the heart and incidentally the body of the man who likes to face the elements at their stormiest. Great, big, full-cut coats of soft, warm and ever correct plaid-black and other Scotch cheviots. Made with improved adjustable co'lars which enable a man to look less out of place when the weather prophet stumbles, and the sun shines on a day that is scheduled "storm," Unnecessary to say what such coats sell at ordinarily or to even hint at the usual tailor's charge for a garment of the same style and quality- The mere statement of the price, $25 should bring, bright and early tomorrow, twice as many men as we have coats. We think we are to be congratulated on the seasonable timing of this extraordinary offering. The man who buys a coat now, gets 100 per cent, service from it this year and for years to come.

of the bride on Adams street, where relatives and friends assembled to the number of sixty and paid their respects and congratulations to the happy bride and groom and also enjoyed a bounteous wedding feast. The home decorations consisted of chrysanthemums, the color scheme being pink and white. The wedding reception lasted from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Guests were present from North and South Manchester, from Rockville, Hartford, Meriden, Essex, and from Westfield, Mass.

The groom's gift to the bride was a brooch, to the best man a signet ring, and to the ushers a scarf pin and a pair of cuff links, respectively. The bride's gift to the brideemald was a pair pearl rosary beads.

The bride and groom left during the afternoon for a wedding tour. The bride's going away gown was smoke broadcloth with white beaver hat and ostrich plumes. After a short honeymoon they will reside at 82 Spruce street, South Manchester, where apartments are comfortably furnished in adva: ce. They will be at home to their friends January 1st.

THE SECRET OF SUCCE:S

in Life's Struggles By J. Simms. M. D. There are certain mental qualities which, when assiduously cultivated, do most assuredly conduce to conquer life's difficulties. A sound and prac ical judgment, allied with knowledge as thorough as possible on all points likely to be serviceable in the lines to be judgment, however, must not be too prominently in evidence, but should be tempered by an obliging disposition; the latter quality, revertbeless, must always be marked by such a measure of honesty of purpose and sincerity as cannot fail to win the confidence of all h norable persons concerned. The foregoing important characteristics once attained, the would be successful man must be constantly imbued with a spl. it of cheerfulness, patience, avoidance of worry, unequivocal energy and indesinent perseve ence and retire and rise early.
