

NEAR ONE NEW YEAR RESOLUTION.

Did I make any New Year resolutions? repeated the back-slash girl. "Yes, one. Want to know? Oh, well, I don't mind telling you. I've made up my mind to spend next Christmas differently."

"I intend to make an altogether different disposition of my presents hereafter. The presents that I have chosen shall know no more, and the whereabout, where no presents have ever been, is going to blossom with mine."

"You see, it is this way. When I sat down to think it all over—the work and fuss and the money I spent—I came to the conclusion that, outside of the nearest and dearest, I gave only three or four gifts that were really worth while—that is, that gave me any actual joy to give and brought real happiness to others."

BESTING THE BOASTER.

A little problem that floored the Lightning Calculator. "Now, gentlemen," concluded the lightning calculator, "I have demonstrated to you upon this blackboard the marvelous speed and accuracy insured by my great system of addition, subtraction, division and multiplication, and I trust that you are all satisfied with the results. Now, gentlemen, I have a little shilling puzzle to explain to my marvelous system."

"In the notes I shall convey my best love and my Christmas wishes. I shall also explain why I intend to send no presents this year—that I purpose making all my gifts to those who have only claim upon me in their need. I shall add that I am certain they will like the original meaning of presents, and that if they want to make me happy and to enjoy the joy of giving, they will give every gift as if it were their own, and will not expect anything in return."

HIS STURDY WATCH.

He Keeps It to Repair Himself. With the Aid of a Knife. "Some men, don't you know," said Mr. Grilkinton, "will stop of a curb, step down about a foot and break a leg, and then another man will fall off the top of a seven-story house and not even miss his clothes. And it's about the same way with watches."

"I dropped my watch the other day about six inches on to a thick plush carpet, and it cost me $10 for repairs. When I was out walking with my friend Swilkwillby this morning he dropped his watch on the sidewalk, and it didn't stop as stop it. It sounded when it came down like a safe falling out of a high window, and it was only a two dollar watch, and I expected, of course, to see Swilkwillby just like the fragments of a safe falling out of a high window, and he expected, of course, to see Swilkwillby know the watch better. He picked up the crystal, not even cracked, from where it had fallen, set on feet away, and put that in his pocket, and then he looked at the watch. "It was going all right, but somehow in the fall the long hand had got bent. He straightened out that bent hand with his pocket-knife, so that the two pointers wouldn't catch, and then he picked off the crystal rim of the watch and put the crystal back in place, and he snapped the rim back on the front of the watch again and dropped the watch in his pocket and started on, and 'As I was saying,' he said, 'just as if nothing had happened.'—Washington Post."

Excelsent Christmas shopping weather prevailed to the end Friday night, as it had all throughout Christmas week, the days being full of sunshine and the evenings brightly illuminated by a large moon.

Next Wednesday afternoon, January 3, at 4 o'clock, Miss Marion Williams, who is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and a practicing physician at Hartford will give a talk on "Egypite and the Value of Installing Nurses in Public Schools. The meeting will be held in the assembly room of the High School building and will be open to the public, who are cordially invited to attend."

United States Referee in Bankruptcy George D. Kellogg of Hartford has appointed Charles R. Hathaway of the trustees of the insolvent estate of Thomas D. Faulkner, O. F. Toop, George H. Howe and Rollin E. Howe were appointed appraisers. It will be remembered that Mr. Faulkner conducted a grocery store in the Rogers block on School street. The estate is involved for $2,866.16.

Miss Eliza B. Cobb, resident librarian at the South Manchester Free Library on Wells street is still unable to walk as the result of a broken ankle. She slipped and fell on the sidewalk in the library building several weeks ago, breaking her ankle, and recovery in her case appears to be gravitatingly slow.

When the French made a half-hearted attempt to invade Great Britain in 1797 a landing was made at Fishguard, Wales, but the soldiers of Napoleon were frightened off by the sight of a great number of Welsh girls and women, whom they mistook at a distance for soldiers on account of their red dresses and tall black hats. That is still the national costume of the Welsh women.

Watch Night services will be held at the Salvation Army Citadel this evening, beginning at 10.30 o'clock. Major and Mrs. Simonson of Hartford will lead the meeting. The regular services of the Army will begin at 7.30 o'clock this evening.

MILITARY BALL.

The thirty-eighth military ball to be given by Company G, First Infantry, C. N. G. will take place at Cheney hall Thursday evening, January 30th, 1931. The Boston & Beach orchestra of twelve pieces will furnish music for the dancing which will continue until 3 a. m. Prof. C. Foley will prompt. Tickets admitting gentlemen with lady are $1.00 each, and ladies' tickets 50c each. Those who are desirous to become members of the company after drill in the Army last Monday evening and were placed on sale at once. There will be a concert from 8 to 9. Special trolley cars will convey patrons to Hartford as the close of the ball. This is recognized as the leading public social function of this place and will doubtless be a usual attraction a large, fashionable gathering. It is expected that many outside guests military and otherwise will be present at this military ball.

Carl Brink and Mrs. Brink and their daughter, Miss Pearl Brink, arrived here on Christmas Eve from Providence, R. I. to spend the Christmas holidays with relatives in this place. Mr. Brink returned to Providence Tuesday, Miss Pearl Brink goes to her home today and Mrs. Brink will remain here until next week. They were all very cordially greeted by many of their friends in this place who chanced to meet them. It will be remembered that Mr. Brink for a goodly number of years was a conductor on the local trolley line where his acquaintance became very large indeed.

Lester Grimes and bride of Brooklyn, N. Y. spent the Christmas holidays here. He is to spend the holidays here with Mrs. Grimes of Wells street. Peter N. Larson and family of Charter Oak street left town Christmas morning for New York City where they spent several days visiting with relatives and friends. William and Mrs. McNeill of New York City spent the Christmas holidays with Mrs. McNeill's parents, E. T. and Mrs. Carrier of Charter Oak street.

Because of the Christmas rush of work it was necessary for the Adams Express company to close their offices during Christmas presents all day Christmas Day.

The post office employees here had a strenuous time handling the huge piles of Christmas mail matter, but by hard, steady and well-kept efforts took care of this branch of the public service in an expeditious, commendable and satisfactory manner.

We had what might be called a half and half Christmas here, that is to say, half snow and half sleet. In the forenoon we had bare ground, dusty streets and abundant skating. In the afternoon the snow put a stop to the skating, covered over the dust gently but effectively, and the sleighing and snow shoveling instead.

The trees on Sunday morning presented a very beautiful aspect being clad in a raincoat of snow, and making a scene quite appropriate for the jolly Christmas season and in keeping with the Santa Claus idea.

Milkmen found much difficulty in working their way through the snow drifts Sunday morning in the attempt to cover their routes. Some were on wheels and some were on sleighs. In either case it made hard going, and a great most of them were late in making their customary morning calls, and in completing their circuits.

Edward J. West of Charter Oak street returned Monday from Wakefield, R. I., where he spent the Christmas holidays with friends.

Local Paragraphs

INTERESTING ITEMS BOILED DOWN FOR BUSY READERS.

Mr. Michael Murray of Laurel street has been very ill for several weeks. He has been suffering from a cold, which has become a pneumonia. John Leo O'Gorman of Furham College, New York, is enjoying the two weeks holiday vacation at the home of his parents, Thomas and Mrs. O'Gorman of Charter Oak street.

According to the Telephone Directory for December, the total number of telephone stations in use in this town Nov. 30, 1930 was 888.

Mrs. Della Kromey of Charter Oak street spent Christmas with relatives in Charles Hills of Torrington was the guest of his parents, Edward F. and Mrs. Hills of Prospect street over Christmas.

Excelsent Christmas shopping weather prevailed to the end Friday night, as it had all throughout Christmas week, the days being full of sunshine and the evenings brightly illuminated by a large moon.

Next Wednesday afternoon, January 3, at 4 o'clock, Miss Marion Williams, who is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and a practicing physician at Hartford will give a talk on "Egypite and the Value of Installing Nurses in Public Schools. The meeting will be held in the assembly room of the High School building and will be open to the public, who are cordially invited to attend."

United States Referee in Bankruptcy George D. Kellogg of Hartford has appointed Charles R. Hathaway of the trustees of the insolvent estate of Thomas D. Faulkner, O. F. Toop, George H. Howe and Rollin E. Howe were appointed appraisers. It will be remembered that Mr. Faulkner conducted a grocery store in the Rogers block on School street. The estate is involved for $2,866.16.

Miss Eliza B. Cobb, resident librarian at the South Manchester Free Library on Wells street is still unable to walk as the result of a broken ankle. She slipped and fell on the sidewalk in the library building several weeks ago, breaking her ankle, and recovery in her case appears to be gravitatingly slow.

When the French made a half-hearted attempt to invade Great Britain in 1797 a landing was made at Fishguard, Wales, but the soldiers of Napoleon were frightened off by the sight of a great number of Welsh girls and women, whom they mistook at a distance for soldiers on account of their red dresses and tall black hats. That is still the national costume of the Welsh women.

Watch Night services will be held at the Salvation Army Citadel this evening, beginning at 10.30 o'clock. Major and Mrs. Simonson of Hartford will lead the meeting. The regular services of the Army will begin at 7.30 o'clock this evening.

Orford Park And Fairview

The Finest Sites for Home Builders or Speculators in South Manchester. Situated on the West side of the town, Water and other improvements. Right on line of the trolley. Further particulars of EDWARD J. HOLL Room 2 Cheney Block Phone 171-4 and 76-4 South Manchester.

This Week We Close Out All Holiday Goods at Cost

Many articles cut to below cost. PARLOR ROCKERS at 1/2 PRICE. $3.00 ROCKERS.....$1.50 $4.50 ROCKERS.....$2.25 $5.00 ROCKERS.....$2.50 2 doz. Oak Dining Chairs Reduced 1-3 $20 PARLOR CABINETS.....$10 $15 PARLOR CABINETS.....$7.50 $12 PARLOR CABINETS.....$6

SPECIAL Ladies, have Your Suits made to order by the well known Tailors. We will make you a suit of the best cloth, guaranteed $20.00 up. OPEN EVENINGS.

Steinhaus & Son Fashionable Ladies' Tailors

HARTFORD THEATER We Herewith

THE BATTLE Jefferson DeAngelis in "The Beauty Spot" E. H. Bohren and Julia Marlowe in "Antony and Cleopatra"

Wilson, The Plumber 105-3 Plumbing & Heating

South Manchester News

BIG HOUSE CLEANING SALE at WATKINS BROTHERS

Many articles cut to below cost. PARLOR ROCKERS at 1/2 PRICE. $3.00 ROCKERS.....$1.50 $4.50 ROCKERS.....$2.25 $5.00 ROCKERS.....$2.50 2 doz. Oak Dining Chairs Reduced 1-3 $20 PARLOR CABINETS.....$10 $15 PARLOR CABINETS.....$7.50 $12 PARLOR CABINETS.....$6

WATKINS BROTHERS Furniture and Pianos Glenwood and Crawford Cooking Ranges.

YOUR COAT ORDER?

Denise Wall of Cottage street, the well known blacksmith, is at the St. Francis hospital for treatment and is in critical condition. Grave fears are entertained that he may not survive. Because of the critical illness of Mr. Wall, it became necessary for him to give up the blacksmith shop which he has been conducting on Charter Oak street, but arrangements will be made to keep the shop in operation and so accommodate the public as heretofore. There will be a new proprietor, but arrangements for same are not completed at this writing. The shop will not be operated in Mr. Wall's name after tomorrow night. Robert Wall has given up working in the blacksmith shop of his father on Charter Oak street and is employed by Thomas M. Trotter the plumber and stove dealer on Main street.

At the Army tonight the Bristol Turtles will play a return game with the G team. The Turtles were defeated by the G boys earlier in the season, but they have strengthened their lineup since then and will be at the Army tonight looking for an easy change of fortune. Manager Curry announced the following local games for the month: January 14, Albion vs. Hartford; January 15, Independent vs. Middletown; January 22, Trinity college team of Hartford.

At the Army tonight the Bristol Turtles will play a return game with the G team. The Turtles were defeated by the G boys earlier in the season, but they have strengthened their lineup since then and will be at the Army tonight looking for an easy change of fortune. Manager Curry announced the following local games for the month: January 14, Albion vs. Hartford; January 15, Independent vs. Middletown; January 22, Trinity college team of Hartford.

ST. JAMES CHURCH SOUTH METHODIST CHURCH

ANNUAL REPORT READ AT ALL MASSES LAST SUNDAY BY REV. WILLIAM J. MCGURK, THE PASTOR

The annual report of the St. James church for the past year was read by Rev. William J. McGurk, the pastor, at all the masses last Sunday.

During the year there have been seventy-eight baptisms, twenty-two marriages and twenty-eight deaths in the parish. There are 542 families and 1800 souls. Of these, practically 377 families are English speaking people and 171 families foreign speaking. The English speaking families number 1,000 souls and the foreign speaking 800.

There are 726 volumes in the library; twelve have been added during the year. The total number of readers of books from the library is 100. The total number of volumes taken out during the year has been 833. These books are free for the use of all members of the parish. Miss Gertrude Collins is the librarian.

At the vesters in St. James church Sunday evening a surprise was given by the vocal solo of Marion Quinn, Thomas J. and Mrs. Quish of Maple street. Master Quish is one of the altar boys and a prominent member of the choir and soloist. He has a clear, resonant, musical soprano voice, excellent enunciation, a good mastery of the Latin, and acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner. The choir, consisting of the members of the choir choir in the responses to the "Beatus vic." The people on the way home from the vesper, which took place last Sunday at 7.30 p. m., were commended by very favorably upon the nice surprise which was given by the staging of Master Quish.

At the vesters in St. James church Sunday evening a surprise was given by the vocal solo of Marion Quinn, Thomas J. and Mrs. Quish of Maple street. Master Quish is one of the altar boys and a prominent member of the choir and soloist. He has a clear, resonant, musical soprano voice, excellent enunciation, a good mastery of the Latin, and acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner. The choir, consisting of the members of the choir choir in the responses to the "Beatus vic." The people on the way home from the vesper, which took place last Sunday at 7.30 p. m., were commended by very favorably upon the nice surprise which was given by the staging of Master Quish.

At the vesters in St. James church Sunday evening a surprise was given by the vocal solo of Marion Quinn, Thomas J. and Mrs. Quish of Maple street. Master Quish is one of the altar boys and a prominent member of the choir and soloist. He has a clear, resonant, musical soprano voice, excellent enunciation, a good mastery of the Latin, and acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner. The choir, consisting of the members of the choir choir in the responses to the "Beatus vic." The people on the way home from the vesper, which took place last Sunday at 7.30 p. m., were commended by very favorably upon the nice surprise which was given by the staging of Master Quish.

At the vesters in St. James church Sunday evening a surprise was given by the vocal solo of Marion Quinn, Thomas J. and Mrs. Quish of Maple street. Master Quish is one of the altar boys and a prominent member of the choir and soloist. He has a clear, resonant, musical soprano voice, excellent enunciation, a good mastery of the Latin, and acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner. The choir, consisting of the members of the choir choir in the responses to the "Beatus vic." The people on the way home from the vesper, which took place last Sunday at 7.30 p. m., were commended by very favorably upon the nice surprise which was given by the staging of Master Quish.

RUBINOW'S SPECIALTY

Between Bank and Post Office, South Manchester. THIRD ANNUAL GENERAL Clearance Sale! of LADIES' SUITS, SKIRTS, COATS and WAISTS. Infants' Wear, Boys' Suits, Ladies' Petticoats, Night Gowns, Neckwear, Umbrellas and general line of Ladies' Men's and Children's Furnishings. IT IS AN EVENT FAMOUS FOR VALUES. A NEW SHIPMENT OF FURS just received at prices that will prompt you to buy. As most of the goods on sale cannot be duplicated for their selling prices, we advise you to call early for the best.

Women's Warm Slippers to be Closed Out at Cost

Women's Fur Trimmed Slippers in all colors, $1 quality reduced to.....79c 85c quality reduced to.....69c Women's $1.25 Felt Shoes.....89c Misses' and Children's Fur Trimmed Slippers at.....49c to 69c

F. O. Elliott The Shoe Man

Parlor Heaters

We want to furnish everybody in town with a Parlor Heater and the sooner the public realize this fact and begin placing their orders with us for these very useful household utilities the better we will like it, and the better the customer will be provided. We have the goods in Large Variety. Attractive Styles, Superior Quality, and at prices ranging from $5 to $20.

Oil Heaters

It often happens that you want to heat a bath room, a bedroom, a parlor or a sitting room quickly and without the trouble of making a fire in your stove. For such an emergency there is nothing better than a Good Oil Heater. That's the kind we carry, the kind recommended and the kind we guarantee to do the work when called upon. Step in and let us tell you more about our Parlor Heaters and also about our Oil Heaters. Its and interesting story.

FORESTERS INSTALL

Fast Chief Rogers' Gold Signet Ring Presented to C. Foley. District Deputy Edward J. Murphy of Manchester installed the newly elected officers of Court Manchester at Foresters hall Tuesday evening. At the conclusion of the ritual exercises a smoker was enjoyed and a merry social hour ensued. The newly elected officers are headed by John Jensen as chief ranger, and purposes to give good account of their stewardship during the coming year. Court Manchester is doing an excellent work in its community.

Corinthian Foley was presented with a past chief ranger's emblem, a gold signet ring. Chief Ranger John Jensen made the presentation speech. Mr. Foley filed the position of chief ranger with credit, he had valuable experience while serving as principal officer of the local division of Elbertians, and this stood him well in hand when he assumed the toga of chief ranger of Court Manchester.

Colonel Edward Schultz of Hartford conducted the inspection of Company G, at the Army last Monday evening. Entire stocks at inventory sale cut. Stock except a very few unaltered restricted articles. Wins, Sam & Co., Hartford.—six

Quaker RANGES

The Quaker Cabinet, with Gas Stove attached, is the most complete, convenient and efficient range ever built.

KEITH & POST CO., South Manchester

WE ARE NOW TAKING ORDERS FOR MONUMENTAL WORK

To be erected next Spring. An order placed at this time will receive more careful attention than it is possible to give it at any other time of the year.

JAMES F. ROACH, 23 Bissell Street South Manchester, LOCAL AGENT.

Che Hartford Monumental Works

P. J. BREEN, Prop., 1066 Main Street Hartford, Conn.

A Treat-Indeed MARIE BREAD ENOUGH IS SAID! ASK YOUR GROCER

THE GOETZ BREAD COMPANY SOLE MFRS.

Business Man—Here's a shilling for you to go to the concert. Office Boy—Thank you, anything I can do for you? Business Man—Yes; I wish you would learn to whistle a new song for the office. I am a little tired of the old ones—London Telegraph.

The Elmsbury Ghost

It Appeared In Person to Mr. Ebenezer Pollock

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Going once! Going twice! Going three times and sold to Mr. Ebenezer Pollock for $1,000!"

The auctioneer's hammer fell with a resounding thud and nearly grazed the nose of the purchaser.

"Didn't mean to damage a good customer," chuckled the man of the hammer as he pulled down the netting.

"Very well," said Ebenezer gruffly. He watched the crowd of women tipping their heads and waiting until the last one had passed through the gate, each with a furtive glance at the man who was so busy with the netting.

There were years and years when the shutters had never been closed. Those were the days before old Simon Elmsbury's granddaughter had run away with the school teacher.

It was well known that Simon would have opposed his granddaughter's marriage to any man. He was selfish enough to wish to keep her at his side to wait upon him, for she was the only relative he had.

"Let us come and live with you, grandfather," Corneil had pleaded with her arms around his neck.

"After that Simon Elmsbury closed the main part of the house and lived in the east wing for ten years, and then he died without one relative word to Corneil. The Stones had never been heard from since the Foreign Missionary society, and now, five years after his death, he had put it up at auction, and Ebenezer had bought it at much below its real value.

"What made you bid? What did you do it for?" asked Ebenezer excitedly.

"My husband was poor. He died and left a little insurance money—just enough to buy my food and not enough to pay rent. My eyesight is so poor I cannot work, and so I thought I would come back here, and I was my own right hand."

"What was your little thing?" blurted Ebenezer playfully. "Stay here just as long as you like!" There was a long silence after that, while the little widow was thinking rapidly. "If you ever go away, ma'am," he said, with a little blush, "I'll be sure to bring you back here and"—He paused.

Habits of the Chipmunk.

A bright little creature you are almost sure to see in any walk along country roads is the chipmunk, or ground squirrel. It is one of the prettiest, most attractive of the rodents or gnawers.

The mouse is quite as busy and active as on the day he had bought it. Strangely enough, Ebenezer did not look at the little piano which stood open just as Corneil Elmsbury had left it so many years ago, with a zeal and about of music upon the roof.

The chipmunk belongs to the squirrel tribe, but prefers the ground to trees as a place of residence, although it is not above climbing a tree when it wants to. It gets its name of ground squirrel from the fact that it likes to live close to the ground.

It was then that the ghost came again—this time with groping fingers upon the ceiling, and a dim light shone upon the floor.

"Up away!" shouted Ebenezer wrathfully. "I am not afraid of a ghost, but I am not afraid of a ghost."

The lamp beside his bed gave forth an old log or stump and makes a suet nest. Sometimes it digs a hole in the earth among the roots of a tree.

The chipmunk knows, too, in some queer way just where ants are most abundant. If there are not many in a given spot, it will scarcely see a chipmunk, but if the supply is plentiful the woods will be full of them.

A Miniature Boomerang. The boomerang used by the native Australians in war and in the chase is a curved wooden missile. The skill with which the boomerang is made and thrown is great.

"Here—in this house!" How? demanded Ebenezer desolately. "In the big back attic," said Corneil, with a little smile. "It looks out on that corner where you know, and the short chimney comes out there. Grandfather hid the cellar full of coal and wood. I've got it out and I've got it out and I've got it out."

"What made you bid? What did you do it for?" asked Ebenezer excitedly.

"My husband was poor. He died and left a little insurance money—just enough to buy my food and not enough to pay rent. My eyesight is so poor I cannot work, and so I thought I would come back here, and I was my own right hand."

"What was your little thing?" blurted Ebenezer playfully. "Stay here just as long as you like!" There was a long silence after that, while the little widow was thinking rapidly.

"Here—in this house!" How? demanded Ebenezer desolately. "In the big back attic," said Corneil, with a little smile. "It looks out on that corner where you know, and the short chimney comes out there. Grandfather hid the cellar full of coal and wood. I've got it out and I've got it out and I've got it out."

"What made you bid? What did you do it for?" asked Ebenezer excitedly.

Habits of the Chipmunk.

A bright little creature you are almost sure to see in any walk along country roads is the chipmunk, or ground squirrel. It is one of the prettiest, most attractive of the rodents or gnawers.

The mouse is quite as busy and active as on the day he had bought it. Strangely enough, Ebenezer did not look at the little piano which stood open just as Corneil Elmsbury had left it so many years ago, with a zeal and about of music upon the roof.

The chipmunk belongs to the squirrel tribe, but prefers the ground to trees as a place of residence, although it is not above climbing a tree when it wants to. It gets its name of ground squirrel from the fact that it likes to live close to the ground.

It was then that the ghost came again—this time with groping fingers upon the ceiling, and a dim light shone upon the floor.

"Up away!" shouted Ebenezer wrathfully. "I am not afraid of a ghost, but I am not afraid of a ghost."

The lamp beside his bed gave forth an old log or stump and makes a suet nest. Sometimes it digs a hole in the earth among the roots of a tree.

The chipmunk knows, too, in some queer way just where ants are most abundant. If there are not many in a given spot, it will scarcely see a chipmunk, but if the supply is plentiful the woods will be full of them.

A Miniature Boomerang. The boomerang used by the native Australians in war and in the chase is a curved wooden missile. The skill with which the boomerang is made and thrown is great.

"Here—in this house!" How? demanded Ebenezer desolately. "In the big back attic," said Corneil, with a little smile. "It looks out on that corner where you know, and the short chimney comes out there. Grandfather hid the cellar full of coal and wood. I've got it out and I've got it out and I've got it out."

"What made you bid? What did you do it for?" asked Ebenezer excitedly.

"My husband was poor. He died and left a little insurance money—just enough to buy my food and not enough to pay rent. My eyesight is so poor I cannot work, and so I thought I would come back here, and I was my own right hand."

"What was your little thing?" blurted Ebenezer playfully. "Stay here just as long as you like!" There was a long silence after that, while the little widow was thinking rapidly.

"Here—in this house!" How? demanded Ebenezer desolately. "In the big back attic," said Corneil, with a little smile. "It looks out on that corner where you know, and the short chimney comes out there. Grandfather hid the cellar full of coal and wood. I've got it out and I've got it out and I've got it out."

"What made you bid? What did you do it for?" asked Ebenezer excitedly.

GRADUATES

and put pencils placed in paying situation in the 187 months and two weeks ending January, 1910.

First train young people and their helps learn get a start in life.

Correct English—How to use it

A Monthly Magazine Devoted to the Use of English

PARTIAL CONTENTS

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

GENTS WANTED

HEATING CONTRACTS

A CORROBORATION

OF INTEREST TO MANCHESTER READERS.

FOR MONTHS MANCHESTER citizens have been in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, by residents of this locality.

THE MATH.

ABOVE THE WICK

SCHOOL A PLACE OF LEISURE.

WHERE SWallows ARE SWALLOWED.

NOTICE OF SELECTION

PUBLIC MEETING

THE MANUFACTURERS SAMPLE SHOE STORE

107 State St. Two doors west of S. Railway Car House, Hartford, OPEN EVENINGS

The Neal, Goff & Inglis Co.

Green Trading Stamps With Every Cash Purchase. May Mantons Patterns 10c Each.

Our January White Sale

NOW IN PROGRESS BRINGS YOU INCOMPARABLE VALUES IN THE PRETTIEST AND MOST DESIRABLE UNDERMUSLINS

You can see for yourself how well we have provided for your wants in this sale. The splendid assortments, the excellent qualities and the low prices will offer unanswerable reasons why you should not buy freely.

GOWNS

DRAWERS

COMBINATIONS

10 to 50 Per Cent. Discount on FURNITURE

10 to 25 Per Cent. Discount on Carpets, Rugs, Draperies, Wall Papers, Etc.

The greatest values of the year are now to be had in these departments. A glance at the articles and prices tell of the wonderful savings to be had.

Particular attention is directed to the prices of Furniture bearing the 10% Discount Tags. This really is a saving of 20% as the prices offered are patterns that are to be continued by the makers, who have increased the prices 10% thus making a saving of 20% to the purchaser.

January Clearance Sale of FOOTWEAR!

AT OUR WELL KNOWN LOW PRICES

We invite the readers of The News to call on us and take advantage of the bargains we offer at this sale. We can only quote a few prices but will be pleased to give you our SALE PRICES on Men's, Women's and Children's Footwear of any grade or style you may desire.

Men's $2.50 and $3 Shoes now.....$1 87

Men's $3.50 and $4 Shoes now..... 2 47

Men's $4.50 and $5 Shoes now..... 2 67

Large assortment Ladies' Shoes at..... 1 17

Ladies' $2 and $2.50 Shoes now..... 1 47

Ladies' $3 and $3.50 Shoes now..... 1 87

Ladies' $4 Shoes now..... 2 27

FIELD OF WOMAN

Philadelphia Society Bud Wears Man's Garb at Horse Shows. Poet's Bird Tells of Romance. Woman Works Farm.

D. MARY WALKER, who has worn trousers for forty years, is not the only pebble on the beach of contrary apparel. It has become quite the thing now in certain "bores" circles for society girls to wear men's clothing at a horse show or a racing meet in the quiet old Quaker City. Miss Kitty Smith, one of Philadelphia's society belles, appears regularly at such events dressed just like a man. Other girls of her set also wear the masculine attire when, according to their notions, the occasion requires it. It will be observed that the society girls who wear men's trousers—riding trousers—a long overcoat and a derby hat. Her boots are of the pattern worn by male riders. Her collar and cravat are such as the "gentle" furnishing goods stores supply.

Woman With the Silver Tongue.

Some women do original things, and last August Miss Maureen Spring of Dublin, who is in Ireland, married a poet. She is an American now on whom she calls her wedding journey, and her name is Mrs. William Watson. Miss Spring met the foremost living British poet only two weeks before their marriage. It was a commonplace romance in one respect, being the result of a summer seaside meeting. The young Irishwoman met the English poet of middle age while she was rustling at the beach. The man of middle age was woolgathering was ardent, considering the brief time that elapsed between the meeting and the marriage. After Mrs. Watson landed on the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was almost obliged to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's virtues. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the question to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seem to deny that her husband was a whirlwind, but she remembers our being introduced and our being married; was the way she spoke of it. She said she landed upon the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the

The Prefect Of Police

A Story of a Stolen Necklace in Valparaiso

By GEORGE CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was on board the steamer Atlantic, sailing from New York to Atlantic America, that we first became acquainted with Jim O'Rourke, a young fellow twenty-five, who had just enough blarney and brouge in his talk to be true to his name.

"What's the trouble, Jim?" I called to O'Rourke. The prefect tried to keep him from replying, but Jim cried: "He stole the necklace. It's in his pocket."

"Hold on there!" he called as the waiters tried to drag Jim away. "There must be some mistake, prefect. I know Mr. O'Rourke quite well, and I doubt we can settle this affair in a moment."

"I have little time of my own," said the consul, rising, and excusing himself, he left the room.

"Through a nearby window the evening air came in with delightful coolness after the heat of the afternoon."

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

"We stopped in the doorway, and as a waiter approached O'Rourke motioned toward the screen and asked, 'Who is the lady at the first table?'"

It was late. The prefect remembered a stiletto he had bought as a souvenir and went up to his room to get it.

A few minutes later a disturbance came from within. A woman screamed, and a man's voice called out in Spanish.

Hargrave and I rushed in with the other guests that had heard the noise, and at the foot of the stairs a strange sight met our eyes.

"What's the trouble, Jim?" I called to O'Rourke. The prefect tried to keep him from replying, but Jim cried: "He stole the necklace. It's in his pocket."

"Hold on there!" he called as the waiters tried to drag Jim away. "There must be some mistake, prefect. I know Mr. O'Rourke quite well, and I doubt we can settle this affair in a moment."

"I have little time of my own," said the consul, rising, and excusing himself, he left the room.

"Through a nearby window the evening air came in with delightful coolness after the heat of the afternoon."

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

"We stopped in the doorway, and as a waiter approached O'Rourke motioned toward the screen and asked, 'Who is the lady at the first table?'"

THEY TOOK HIM IN.

A Surprise That Ruffled an Absent-minded Scientist.

A certain foreign scientist who lectured in this country was, to say the least, careless about dress.

The prefect tried to keep him from replying, but Jim cried: "He stole the necklace. It's in his pocket."

"Hold on there!" he called as the waiters tried to drag Jim away. "There must be some mistake, prefect. I know Mr. O'Rourke quite well, and I doubt we can settle this affair in a moment."

"I have little time of my own," said the consul, rising, and excusing himself, he left the room.

"Through a nearby window the evening air came in with delightful coolness after the heat of the afternoon."

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

"We stopped in the doorway, and as a waiter approached O'Rourke motioned toward the screen and asked, 'Who is the lady at the first table?'"

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

NIGHT TELEPHONE RATES

The 10 P. M. to 6 A. M. Reduction. The Southern New England Telephone Company has abolished the reduced night rate charged for messages sent over its line between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m.

The prefect tried to keep him from replying, but Jim cried: "He stole the necklace. It's in his pocket."

"Hold on there!" he called as the waiters tried to drag Jim away. "There must be some mistake, prefect. I know Mr. O'Rourke quite well, and I doubt we can settle this affair in a moment."

"I have little time of my own," said the consul, rising, and excusing himself, he left the room.

"Through a nearby window the evening air came in with delightful coolness after the heat of the afternoon."

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

"We stopped in the doorway, and as a waiter approached O'Rourke motioned toward the screen and asked, 'Who is the lady at the first table?'"

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

"I got only a glimpse of it," said O'Rourke, "but it was a beauty."

FATHER 80-MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by Vinol.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

J. H. Quinn & Co., Druggists, S. Manchester

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

try winter neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of.

BOSTON STORE

Trimmed Hats $2.49

Our former $5.00 and $6.00 Hats. Our entire millinery stock composed of trimmed hats and shapes is now on sale at HALF PRICE or LESS.

Great Inventory Sale

BOSTON STORE J. W. HALE

Watkins Brothers the Oldest Agency but one, in Existence for the Famous New Home Sewing Machines

During the past third of a century hundreds of New Homes have been placed by us in the homes of this vicinity.

Watkins Brothers Furniture and Piano Dealers Undertakers

OUR TWO SPECIALS

Next Sunday morning a collection will be taken in the South Manchester church for the aid of the people who are stricken by the terrible calamity of earthquake, fire and flood in Southern Italy.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION

BY SOUTH MANCHESTER CAMP NO. 9890, WOODMEN OF AMERICA AT CHENEY HALL LAST NIGHT.

Large gathering seen at Cheney Hall last evening. The officers of the camp were present and the installation was a most successful one.

Next Tuesday morning we start our Great Inventory Sale

Watkins Brothers the Oldest Agency but one, in Existence for the Famous New Home Sewing Machines

During the past third of a century hundreds of New Homes have been placed by us in the homes of this vicinity.

Watkins Brothers Furniture and Piano Dealers Undertakers

OUR TWO SPECIALS

Next Sunday morning a collection will be taken in the South Manchester church for the aid of the people who are stricken by the terrible calamity of earthquake, fire and flood in Southern Italy.

Next Sunday morning a collection will be taken in the South Manchester church for the aid of the people who are stricken by the terrible calamity of earthquake, fire and flood in Southern Italy.

MILITARY BALL

BY COMPANY G FIRST INFANTRY, C. N. G. AT CHENEY HALL THURSDAY EVENING, JAN. 21

Large gathering seen at Cheney Hall last evening. The officers of the camp were present and the installation was a most successful one.

Next Tuesday morning we start our Great Inventory Sale

Watkins Brothers the Oldest Agency but one, in Existence for the Famous New Home Sewing Machines

During the past third of a century hundreds of New Homes have been placed by us in the homes of this vicinity.

Watkins Brothers Furniture and Piano Dealers Undertakers

OUR TWO SPECIALS

Next Sunday morning a collection will be taken in the South Manchester church for the aid of the people who are stricken by the terrible calamity of earthquake, fire and flood in Southern Italy.

Next Sunday morning a collection will be taken in the South Manchester church for the aid of the people who are stricken by the terrible calamity of earthquake, fire and flood in Southern Italy.

RUBINOW'S SPECIALTY SHOP

Biggest Bargains ever offered in infants and children's coats.

Infants' fancy Bedford Cord Coats, warmly lined, $1.50 value, clearance sale price, $1.00.

Children's Plush Coats, only sizes 3 and 4 left, were $5.98 now $2.98.

Blankets and Comfortables at 25% to 35% price reductions during our Clearance Sale.

Parlor Stoves at Cost

Thomas M. Trotter

Inventory Sale

Boston Shoe Store

The Greatest Mark Down Sale Manchester Ever Saw!

Men's Suits and Overcoats Boys' Suits and Overcoats Furnishing Goods

ORFORD PARK AND FAIRVIEW

The finest sites for home builders or speculators in South Manchester.

Edward J. Holl

Real Estate

A. H. Skinner

Special

Steinhaus & Son

Again We Say

Bank Bldg. Barber Shop

Train Withdrawn

OBITUARY

ROBERT H. DOYLE

Robert H. Doyle of Oak Street died suddenly of heart disease New Year's day.

A. H. Skinner

Mrs. CORNELIA E. ANDREWS

Mrs. CHRISTINE CHARLOTTE OLSON

Mrs. MARY WHITE

Train Withdrawn

Bank Bldg. Barber Shop

Train Withdrawn