TELL ABOUT IT.
Talk to the world about your best self, the life of goods you carry, the style, peculiarities and adaptabilities in purchasing to with care, economy and being that goods will bought are half sold. Make careful selections, buy cheap and make the selling price reasonable. Tell the people what you will do, and do as you advertise every time. Spend your money every week. The people look it out and are disappointed if they see it and it is often the case after your own showing, the constant appeals of the people have caught the eye and drawn thitherward many a good customer you need had, who is now a patron of him who neglected not to tell where to go to get what he wanted, at reasonable prices. This is as it will be, and as it should be, in the long run. People talk and read the paper for a purpose, and insist to find out where they can get whatever want without spending a day hunting over town to find it. The merchant who appreciates this fact, in a judicious way, will be the one that catches the trade, builds up a lucrative business, and makes his calling a success.—EX.

IT COSTS MONEY
Every line in a newspaper costs the proprietor something. If it is printed for the direct financial benefit of a person, society or organization it should be paid for. If the proceeds were asked to contribute to pay for their own refunding, the cost of a newspaper must be paid for the free advertisement. It is a duty to do so, and it is one of the hardest things to be learned by many who are new to the business. NORWAY'S BILL OF FARE

Fish and Boiled Potatoes Served Day After Day
This was a delightful bill before the cheerful table, writes Caroline Thayer in a sagacious account of "A Motor Invasion of Norway" in the Century, "we indulged in mathematical calculations and found that we had eaten forty-two consecutive meals of fish, with potatoes never otherwise than boiled. One of the women of our party once cried from her soul at a sympathetic looking host, 'Why, oh, why, are there no chickens in Norway?'"

WASHINGTON'S PHYSICAL ILLS.

BY JOHN E. WALLACE.

WASHINGTON was present at the inauguration of President Taft in 1909. He had been ill several times. In 1790 he had what in our day we would call fall grip. During a ceremonial visit to Cambridge, Mass., the president came down with this ailment, which came to be called the "Washington influenza" in the vicinity of Boston, where it raged for some time. Washington described this attack thus: "Myself much disordered by a cold and inflammation in the left eye."

In New York some months later the president caught another bad cold, which developed into "a case of asthma so malignant as for several days to threaten mortification." His physician recommended consulting with him. One day Washington looked the doctor squarely in the face and requested his opinion as to the outcome of the disease. The doctor expressed both hope and fear, and Washington replied, "Whether tonight or twenty years hence, it makes no difference. One who visited the president at this time relates that his life was despaired of and every eye was full of tears.

For his long years of toil and sacrifice. But give them without money, without price. In these our times the process is reversed--Where he placed service of his country and took no wage, our patriots today. Omit the service and accept the pay.

The difference appears in other things: He freed the country from the rule of kings. While we have those, or so I have been told. Who foster trust kings worse than those of old. He drove the mercenaries from our shores. The leading arms facing on our shores. We have a far more fierce and ravenous--The army of the gaiters leads on.

Great Washington, who lacked the gift of speech. In deeds, not words, his lessons sought to teach. But we, with words of talk that know no bound. Draw our performance in a sea of sound. His wisdom lay in knowing his defect. Which gave a virtue seen in respect. Our statesman, who can speak no more than he. Are not restrained by his humility.

He signed a crown. We make of words a king And crown not man, but an increase thing. He sought retirement when his work was through. But certain statesmen of the modern crew. Who heed their own and not their country's call. Have us the nerve to wear a crown as well. He farmed his farm like a Cincinnatus old; They farm the people and the crop in gold.

They call him first in peace and first in war And first in his esteem his country bore. We have some statesmen first, I understand. In making peace with those who rob the land. First in the game of buying war supplies. He was the hero of those who were straight. Their countries and first to speculate On made news that they themselves create.

We need such contrasts to appreciate. How poorly, lily and nobly great Was this unselfish statesman, Washington. He grows in stature by comparison. He seems a king of another place. He served mankind, and so it is, I say. The nation needs some Washingtons today.

Facts About Washington.

George Washington never was struck of a speechmaker. Thomas Jefferson, who served with him in the Virginia house of burgesses, stated that Washington spoke for more than ten minutes at a time.

Washington had a high temper, but he usually kept it under excellent control. Several notable occasions are on record, however, when he became "raging mad."

Washington served on a grand jury after his retirement from the presidency. Before he became president he had been a first juror several times.

Cornwallis' Surrender.

Many thousands of Virginia citizens were gathered to watch the scene, all eager to get a glimpse of Lord Cornwallis. But they were disappointed in that, Cornwallis had accompanied and stayed in his quarters. He sent his report by one of his officers, General O'Hara, to be delivered to Washington. General O'Hara offered the sword to Washington, who directed him to General Lincoln, the officer who Washington had appointed to conduct the surrender. Lincoln took the sword from O'Hara's hand and then politely handed it back, so he returned to Cornwallis.

STYLISH JAPANESE WOMEN

Tokyo Belles Just as Particular to Be in Fashion as We Are.

Did it ever occur to you that the Japanese women who visit America look upon our costumes with curiosity quite as strong as that which we survey their apparel? They do, but they are too well bred to betray their curiosity. The garments of American women, of the women of what we term the western civilization, look extremely odd to the eyes of the Japanese ladies. Our hats and gowns and general frumpiness are laughable to them, and in the privacy of their homes these oriental ladies stammer and giggle when they discuss the skin and muscular tissue right to the bone, quickens the blood, relieves congestion, and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. JAMES C. LEWIS, of 100 1/2 St. St. N. Washington, D.C., writes: "Three years ago I fell from a scaffold and severely injured my back. I suffered terribly at times. From the small of my back I would come down with a cold. I could not get up without a plaster. I could get up with no other plaster than Sloan's Liniment, and I can now do so with little trouble and so my now is in the flesh, thanks to Sloan's Liniment."

An aching back is instantly relieved by an application of Sloan's Liniment.

This liniment takes the place of massage and is better than sticky plasters. It penetrates--without rubbing--through the skin and muscular tissue right to the bone, quickens the blood, relieves congestion, and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Sloan's Liniment

Dr. E. J. Evans, of St. Albans, Vt., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment, and I can say that it is the best remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints. Sloan's Liniment is the best remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints. Sloan's Liniment is the best remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints."

IV.--Vegetables In the Diet.

By EDITH G. CHARLTON, In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THESE are three main reasons for cooking--viz, (1) to develop flavor and make foods more palatable, (2) to make some foods more digestible and (3) to kill germs. As a rule, simple methods for preparing foods are preferable because they preserve the original flavor. Vegetables, which will form the principal subject of this article, are better cooked simply without the accompaniment of other ingredients.

It is important to note that the essential to success in this method is in method. Accuracy in measuring and combining ingredients with a knowledge of the effect of heat on different food materials, combined with interest in the task, can almost always be relied upon to insure a successful finished product. Indeed, it can be safely said that there is no such thing as luck in cooking. Success depends upon a knowledge of certain physical and chemical phenomena which always occur under certain conditions. It is ignorance of or lack of attention to these underlying principles which results in so many unsatisfactory and indigestible dishes being served on our tables.

Composition of Vegetables.

There are a variety of food materials which cannot be classed as nutrients, and yet they have a distinct value in the diet. For instance, fresh fruit and vegetables are not especially nourishing as far as making blood and muscle and giving heat and energy are concerned, but both should be given an important place in the daily bill of fare.

Recipe No. 1.

One cupful of cream, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, one egg yolk and four tablespoonfuls of cheese. Melt butter, blend with dry ingredients; add cream. Cook until mixture thickens and pour gradually over egg yolks. Add grated cheese and allow to melt.

Recipe No. 2.

Serve with one-quarter cupful of melted butter, one tablespoonful of lemon juice or vinegar, three teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce and one tablespoonful of chopped pimiento or red pepper.

Universally as potatoes are served, there is no one who will be more often sent to the table absolutely unfit to eat. When kept in a closely covered vessel or allowed to cook in unbroken skins they will become soggy and dark and have a rank flavor. If put on in cold water or allowed to cook slowly so as to become water-soaked the potatoes will be most unpalatable. Few vegetables are more popular or more delicious than a potato properly baked, while one that is heavy, watery or baked until the skin is thickened and toughened is sufficient to cause dissatisfaction in the family circle.

For baking select medium sized potatoes, scrub well and dry them. Bake in a shallow pan in a moderately hot oven until soft--about forty-five minutes. When soft press between the fingers to break the skin and allow the steam to escape.

Creamed Potatoes.

Wash, peel and cut in dice of uniform size two cupfuls of raw potatoes. Cook in boiling water until tender, adding salt last. Drain thoroughly. Drain, return uncovered to fire to dry off; then add one cupful of white sauce. Cold boiled potatoes may be used cut in dice and prepared in milk.

White Sauce.

Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of cheese, grated, and one tablespoonful of parsley. Melt butter, add flour and seasoning and when blended pour on milk gradually, stirring constantly until boiling.

Three cupfuls of cold boiled potatoes, four tablespoonfuls of oil, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one tablespoonful of onion, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, two hard cooked eggs. Blend carefully and allow to stand on ice for one-half hour. Combine with boiled dressing. Chop walnuts and grate yolks.

Potato Apples.

Two cupfuls of hot washed potatoes, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-third cupful of grated cheese, one-half teaspoonful of salt, few grains of cayenne, a little grated nutmeg, two tablespoonfuls of thick cream and yolks of two eggs. Mix ingredients in order given and beat thoroughly. Shape as small apples. Roll in flour, egg and crumbs. Fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper.

These are numerous ways of preparing all vegetables, but previously stated, the simplest methods are the best. The main point to remember is rapid cooking in constantly boiling water until tender.

COMPOSITION OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

A. Composition of potato. B. Composition of cabbage. C. Composition of carrot. D. Composition of turnip. E. Composition of apple. F. Composition of walnut.

There are also some food materials which, while very nutritious, require a considerable effort on the part of the digestive organs to make them available for the body. So it is clear that one must know something about the structure, composition and food value of any material before it can be handled intelligently. Now, what about the food which renders vegetables hard to digest and which necessitates cooking in order to soften it. Most vegetables contain a certain amount of fiber which gives them their characteristic favor. If the cooking is not properly performed the essential oils may change in their character and the original flavor of the vegetable be destroyed.

Vegetables are useful in the diet for three reasons:

First--The mineral salts are needed to keep the blood pure and to form the formation in the young. People who are denied fresh fruits and vegetables for any length of time are likely to develop certain skin diseases.

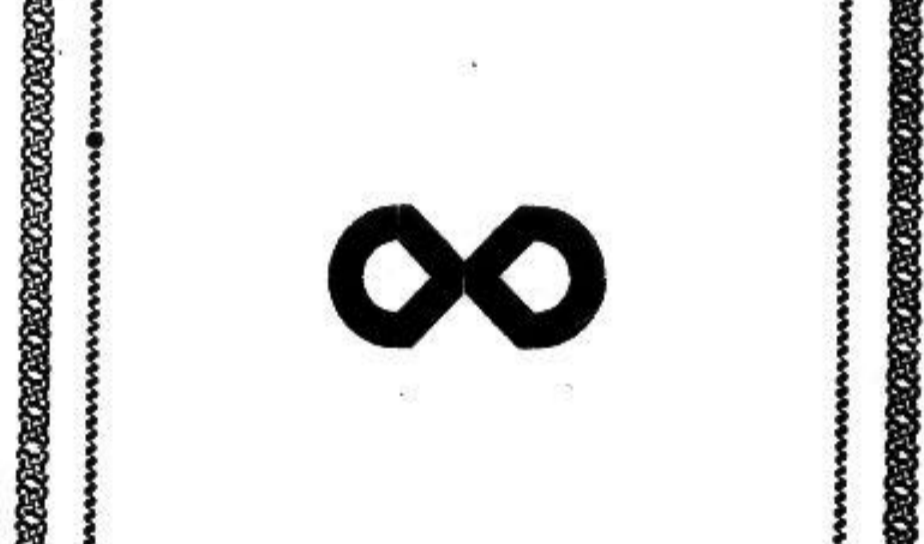

Second--The woody fiber, just because of its indigestibility, has a value in the diet. It furnishes waste matter

PULTRY ASSOCIATION

Interesting Discourse on Poultry Raising
By Henry Morgan

An interesting meeting of the Manchester Poultry Association was held at the Town Hall last Monday evening. The principal feature of the meeting was a discourse on practical poultry raising by Henry Morgan. Mr. Morgan gave some very valuable advice on the subject of poultry raising and particularly with reference to having been lay during the winter season when the prices of eggs are highest. Mr. Morgan recently received a prize of $10 from the Farm Journal for having sent in the best paper upon the subject of producing winter layers. Mr. Morgan went into details regarding this and told how he came to win it.

Ned Nelson resigned as secretary of the Association and Harris Minikin was chosen as his successor, while Mr. Nelson takes the place of secretary, formerly held by Mr. Minikin. It is simply a transposition of offices and offices.

SANITARY PRECAUTION

The officials of the Ninth District school have put in a sterilizing plant for the towels that are used in the pupils in bathing. The towels are placed in a steam boiler and subjected to very high temperature from live steam. The degree of heat is so great that no form of life can exist therein. This is in keeping with the general policy of sanitation which is being applied so carefully, thoroughly and scientifically at the Ninth District school. This policy is unquestionably rebounding to the better health of the community as a whole and all efforts for general sanitation among school children are to be highly commended. Continuing faith in this policy is being steadily being put into the Ninth District schools, is being installed into the young minds by the teachers and will accompany the boys and girls through life.

There will be meetings at the Pentecostal church of the Nazarenes on Washington St. on Sunday, Feb. 14, at 10, 11, 12 and 7 p. m. All are heartily welcome.

CENSUS ENUMERATION

Postmaster W. B. Cheney held an examination of candidates for the position of census enumerators for the Town of Manchester at the High School building last Saturday morning. OKARD TO GO.

The big oak tree which stood near the watering trough at the Center was cut down last Monday. It had practically served its usefulness, entered into senility and was slowly but surely passing away by piece-meal. The City Papas thought it best to remove it in mass rather than have it dumped here and there by the howling gales which sweep so merrily about the Center in time of stress of weather.

HONORED BURNS.

The 151st anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, the famous Scottish poet was observed in the grammar grades of the Ninth District school last Monday morning. Superintendent F. A. Verplanck gave a highly interesting and instructive discourse upon the life of Burns and read four of his poems. A number of Scottish melodies were sung and an enjoyable Scotch program presented.

THE BEST MAN.

At One Time He Was More Useful Than Ornaments.

Do you know how "the best man," who plays so important a part in marriages that have any pretense to be fashionable, once upon a time in Sweden occupied a position that was as useful as well as ornamental?

In olden days the Swedish bridegroom found it desirable, in fact, to have several "best men" to defend him from the assaults of rivals and prevent them from carrying away his bride. These Scandinavian warriors of ancient times was far too lofty in his ideas to condescend to plead for a maiden's hand. So he patiently waited until some man in that who was more gallant had obtained the fair one's consent.

Then when all the details had been nicely arranged the proud warrior, with a body of well trained retainers, dashed down on the wedding party and, if strong enough, carried away the bride.

The "best man" (and it was very essential that he should be the best man in those days) therefore became necessary fixtures to marriage ceremonies, and they were so well esteemed and their popularity became so permanent that when the reason for their existence was in course of time removed they were still retained.—Parson's Weekly.

A HARD WORKER.

His Soiled Appearance Brought Him a Rise in Salary.

The eccentric proprietor of a large newspaper in London had a way of appearing in the composing and press rooms that caused much uneasiness and as his visits often resulted in a general shakedown of the printing forces of the paper they were greeted with threats and tremblings by the employees.

One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who had been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, had a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse he should offer if the proprietor should find out about the incident. He had been set on an ink roller and dabbed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the proprietor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on every detail and looking very sharply at every workman.

When about to leave he suddenly pointed to the ink pressed man and said, "What is that man's name?"

The man pointed to him and said, "I want you to give that man 5 shillings a week more wages. He is the only man in the room who looks as if he had been working."—London Telegraph.

BIRD'S SENSE OF DIRECTION.

The migratory instinct in birds is combined with another equally mysterious, that of the sense of direction. A gentleman engaged in scientific research work for the fishery board on board the movement streamer Golden Seaker recorded a very interesting observation he made of this characteristic of migratory birds. An orator catcher that was being lured by bread wind in its eastern flight across the North sea toward the continental shore, alighted on the boat. It took a long time to attention paid to as long as the boat kept its westerly course, but when the course of the boat was altered a few points to the northward the bird immediately showed signs of uneasiness and after an apparent consideration of its bearings flew into the darkness of the night when the compass was examined.

Norway's Many Meals.

Among the well to do in Norway the frequency of meals and lighter refreshment is something startling. At least to the average American—break fast at 8, dinner at 3, coffee at 3:30, regular tea, with fortified, in English, at 4:30, supper at 7, and at 11 nature is finally fortified with further refreshment for the long, radiant night. These long, radiant nights, by the way, are a constant peril to Christians. They encourage many forms of dissipation and immorality, such as the corresponding darkness of the long winter brings in its train a certain social depression, both mental and physical.—Caroline Thatcher in Century.

IN BUSINESS TWENTY-TWO YEARS.

Charles Ratsburg who conducts a blacksmith shop on Main street near Middle turnpike has rounded out 22 years in business at that stand. It may be remembered that his large shop was destroyed by fire August 24, 1908.

With characteristic enterprise Mr. Ratsburg had a temporary shed erected at the following day and carried on his business practically without interruption. As soon as the necessary arrangements could be made he caused to be built on the site of the mine shop present large and up-to-date shop which he now operates. His business includes horse-shoeing, general jobbing, wagon building, both wood and iron work being done in the same place, and a paint shop. Mr. Ratsburg has an electric motor to run his bellows, drills, etc., and has very necessary equipment to be found in a modern up-to-date blacksmith shop. He is doing the largest business in his long career and is to be congratulated upon the success which has attended his efforts. He applies himself with great skill, diligence and industry to his work and has been blessed with abundant good health and sticks very loyally to his avocations and work bench.

Wrong Method.

He breathed his vow, yet still she regarded him as a poseur.

"Where did you go to school that you breathe fire and smoke, rather than from your diaphragm?" she demanded severely.—Puck.

Success.

Some men set upon the principle that in order to be successful in business it is necessary to compel another person to wait in the anteroom.—Exchange.

TALK ON BANKING

R. LAMOTTE RUSSELL TREASURER OF LOCAL BANK GIVES PRACTICAL AND VALUABLE INFORMATION

Discusses Some Features of Subject and Illustrates Many Phases that Many Were and Are Shrouded in Mystery and Obscurity—Broad Subject to Handle in Single Discourse.

At the meeting of The Manchester Business Men's Association held in the parlors of the new home house of Home Company No. 2 at the Center last evening, R. Lamotte Russell, treasurer of the Manchester Trust and safe Deposit Company, gave an interesting and informative talk on "Ways To Use A Bank."

The subject is a broad one, covers a very large range, and consequently Mr. Russell had to briefly consider the various phases. Among these are the organization and functions of a modern bank, which Mr. Russell explained in some detail, showing what these functions are, indicating how they are performed, and how they are conducted in business methods, how they may be employed to great advantage by patrons of a bank, the general tendency of which makes for credit on the part of individuals. He also pointed out the importance of banks in the modern world, and the safe deposit department. He also pointed out the importance of banks in the modern world, and the safe deposit department.
