MASQUERADE BALL

A big social event looming up in the immediate horizon is that of the masquerade ball and fancy drill to be given by the Degree Team Association of The Modern Woodmen of America of this place at the Armory Saturday evening, April 2nd, one week from tomorrow night. The Degree Team are putting in some faithful work in bringing their evolution up to a state of efficiency to make their portion of the entertainment very pleasing indeed. A number of new movements are being rehearsed and will be presented. The members of the Degree Team are enthusiastic as to the work and are lending their every energy to make the drill a very pleasing feature of the evening's pleasures.

They are making it an object for persons to put forth some efforts in the matter of costumes as valuable prizes are to be given, viz. a gold watch for the fairest dressed lady, and a gold watch for the most concealingly dressed gentleman. With reference to the prizes for the ladies' costumes it should be borne in mind that in determining this feature of the contest, special attention will be paid to having a costume that is home made. The purpose of this is to encourage the young women to exercise their skill, ingenuity, and good taste in the making of their costumes rather than in the paying out of large sums of money by having expensive and elaborate costumes. It is not matter some need that they get out because of lack of taste. Masquerade costumes may be made up in a very charming and attractive way of light and cheap material and can be made very attractive indeed without going to much money expended. The point to be achieved is to get something in good taste, skill in arrangement and in combination of materials and colorings that will have the desired effect and it is to encourage such as this that this feature of the contest is to be carefully looked after.

The prizes at present may be seen in Quinn's Drug Store on Main street, corner of Oak. The admission to the masquerade ball and fancy drill is only 25 cents each person. The Foresters orchestra will furnish music and Prof. C. Foley will prompt. It is quite likely that there will be a large attendance and all will be greatly entertained.

ALUMNI BALL

The annual Alumni ball in honor of the class of 1910, South Manchester High School will be held in Assembly hall next Monday evening. Hostess orchestra will furnish music for the concert and program. As that will be Easter Monday night the young people are looking forward to a large and brilliant gathering. These events given by the Alumni Association of the South Manchester High School are distinguished among the very best public social functions given in this town. That this one will be no exception without question. The arrangements are in charge of Prof. H. Anderson, Herbert B. Home and Miss Mies & Edna M. Silmer. Grace Callahan and Ethel Walsh. Tickets for the ball are $1.00 each.

ORANGE CORPORATION

The annual meeting of the Orange Corporation took place at Orange hall Monday evening and the following board of directors was chosen for the ensuing year: Isaiah Symington, David Mullen, Hamilton Metcalf Jr., Robert Brown, Joseph Little, Alexander McDonald, William J. SOME TROUB

Officer William J. Madden went fishing over the river yesterday early and returned with a string of seven trout weighing in all six and one-half pounds. Two of them weighed one and one-half pounds each. The string can be seen in the display window of Taylor's market, corner of Main and Charter Oak streets.

FULLY KNOWN STAINS

Mrs. Sarah Randall who lives with her daughter, Mrs. O. F. Toop, fell down stairs at the residence on East Center Street yesterday in raining and was more or less injured. Her right arm at the wrist is much swollen and very painful. Her physician's opinion is that it is broken or not. He intends to put on the X Ray machine and find out. Mrs. Randall is far advanced in years and but recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia.

ALBERT TAYLOR SERIOUSLY ILL

Albert Taylor of South Main street is very ill at the present time with a violent attack of the grippe, which has been distressing him for the past week and last night developed into pneumonia. It will be remembered that he had a severe attack of pneumonia six about a year ago which distressed him for a long period of time. Outside of that he had been a very rugged and hardy man all his life and rarely lost a day from his business.

GRADUATION WATCHES

Graduation is an event in every boy's or girl's life that will be remembered always. A gift from father and mother should be of such value as to mark this day forever.

Something that the son or daughter may refer to all their lives as father's and mother's graduation present. A new watch is the gift ideal for the purpose.

We are showing a complete line of watches purchased especially for graduation gifts. They represent the highest quality of workmanship both as to case and movement and are the "reliables" of the watch world.

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nerve, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefit."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS, Seabrook, N. H.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will return your money.

The Chantrelle vogue that has been raging in Paris since the first performance of Roastant's famous play was strongly shown in many of the new costumes that made their first appearance on Fifth Avenue, New York, Easter Sunday. Grace silks showing the fashionable peacock and oak brown and green, blue and green or bright red and green, entered into many of the most striking gowns. Frocks of dark blue cloth were given a Parisian note by touches of bright Chantrelle red on waist and skirt. Of course there were multitudes of flower-trimmed hats but conspicuous among these were various smart chapeaux trimmed with the rooks and pheasant's plumes.

ROSEMARY LACES

The Chantrelle idea is positively rampant in trimmings, buttons and laces and there are even vestings patterned with the familiar figure of the barnyard rooster. The most novel of the new silk trimmings have rooster designs or just the cock's head in brilliant red and green. The finest of Chantrelle laces show roosters or fighting cocks or groups of conventionalized feathers. These new laces are used to trim gowns of colored silk or satin, the bright color beneath the black bringing out the design perfectly. The newest buttons are set in metal rims, and show Chantrelle heads in bright red, blue and green.

THE NEWEST DRESS GOWNS

Among the silk and wool weaves that are preferred to all silk by many of our leading modistes, the H. & S. silk poplins are easily leading favorites. These have a lovely, lustrous silk surface and a soft pure wool filling that makes them unequalled in cleaning and draping qualities, while it prevents the unsightly wrinkling that spoils the effect of so many handsome costumes.

SLEEVES OF ALL LENGTHS

Now frocks continue to show the influence of the peasant blouse and although simple in effect, have a very clever arrangement of trimmings which includes veiled embroideries, cordings and pipings of silk and satin and rich lace insertions. Sleeves are of all lengths. The long sleeve is now considered appropriate for tailored skirts, waists and morning frocks and simple street gowns while dressier models usually have the three-quarter sleeve. The long close sleeve is a little out of fashion but there are many ways of adding fullness to it.

POKERE AND LINGERIE SUITS

Tailored suits of pokers and laces are beginning to make their appearance. The keynote of these costumes is a certain smart simplicity. The newest and most up-to-date of these suits are made with very short coats, some of them reaching only a couple of inches below the waist line. In these

Home Course In Domestic Science

XI.—The Process of Breadmaking.

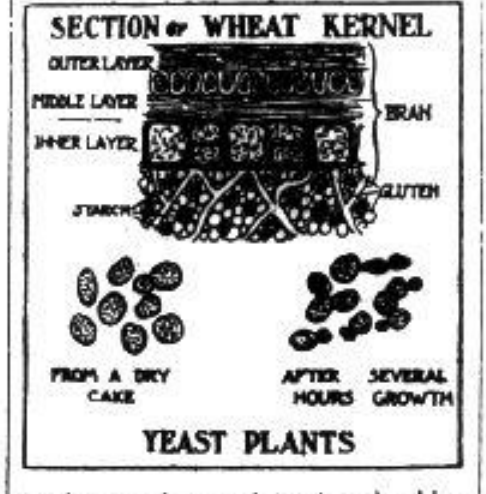

By EDITH G. CHARLTON, In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

NEXT to milk there is no food more generally used by civilized nations than bread. To the average housekeeper there is probably no part of the regular cooking more important or worthy of her best attention than breadmaking. To be able to make a well risen, good flavored, well baked loaf of wheat bread is the goal of the young aspirant for culinary fame. One has only to attend county fairs, farmers' institutes and meetings of other organizations where pastry stores and baked goods are entered in contest to see quickly that it is in the bread that the greatest interest centers. And all this is as it should be, for bread is one of our best staple foods. With the addition of a little butter or eaten with a glass of milk, it furnishes a nutritious, well balanced diet upon which one could subsist and maintain good health for an indefinite length of time, provided one did not weary of the sameness.

With a practical knowledge of certain principles governing alcoholic fermentation as practiced in breadmaking, also some knowledge of the difference in flours, and with careful attention to these points, breadmaking is really a very simple process. Without this knowledge or attention there is a lot of wasted time and money about it, and there will always be different results.

There are only four ingredients absolutely necessary for the making of a loaf of raised wheat bread. They are good bread flour, fresh yeast, liquid—either milk or water—and salt. Other ingredients are often used, but they are not necessary. For instance, shortening is sometimes added. This makes a richer loaf. Sugar, too, may be used in small quantity. This hastens the growth of the yeast plants. Potato water occasionally replaces the milk or water and makes a moist loaf, while potatoes and soy water form a mixture in which the yeast colonies are quickly started. But good bread can be made without the addition of any of these things.

SECTION OF WHEAT KERNEL

FROM A DRY CASE AFTER SEVERAL HOURS GROWTH

YEAST PLANTS

Flour Used in Breadmaking.

In order that we may have a well raised loaf it is necessary to use a flour containing a large per cent of gluten. This is the flour made from the so called "hard" wheats. Such flour has less water than the flour made from the "soft" wheat, therefore, mixed with a larger loaf, gives a larger loaf. Gluten is a grayish, rubber-like substance found in flour after the starch has been washed out. It is the "glue" obtained from chewing a handful of wheat, as known by most people who have spent their childhood in the country. This very character of gluten makes it necessary in breadmaking. It stretches and stretches, forming little pockets in which the gas retained in the loaf until it is baked. The heat of the oven hardens the gluten quickly before it has had time to relax, and so the loaf keeps its puffed shape.

Good bread flour should be white, with just a suggestion of yellow. After being pressed in the hand it should fall loosely apart. It keeps the impress of the palm or remains in lumps if it has too much moisture. When rubbed between the thumb and finger there should be a slight grittiness; it should not feel too smooth or powdery.

What is Yeast?

This useful agent in breadmaking is an old as the hills, and its action is better understood when one is familiar with it. Yeast is a microscopic plant, consisting of a single round or oval cell. The rapidly with which it grows and reproduces itself gives it much of its importance. It reproduces either by sending out buds which break off as new plants or by forming spores which will grow into new plants under favorable conditions.

Like all plants, yeast requires heat, moisture and food in order to grow. The degree of heat at which it grows best is from 75 to 90 degrees, and this is the temperature at which bread is best kept throughout the process of making. If it were not for the liquid used in breadmaking the yeast would not grow any more than it does in the dry cake.

The food of the yeast plant is sugar, and this is obtained by a chemical change being produced in the starch of the flour, changing part of it into sugar. This results in a fermentation the products of which are alcohol and carbon dioxide gas—the gas which makes the bread light. The average housekeeper is familiar with yeast or leaven in three forms—that which she makes herself by combining potatoes, flour, hop water and a "starter" left from a previous baking; also the dry and compressed yeasts. The last two are practically the same, the dry yeast having been mixed with more flour or cornmeal in order to preserve the plants for a longer time. The chief difference between these three forms of leaven is in the number and kind of yeast plants which they contain. The compressed yeast—small square cake which comes wrapped in tin foil—contains the largest number of plants and so is able to produce the greatest amount of gas in a given time, making it possible to finish the bread in fewer hours. The commercial yeasts are supposed to be what is known as a "pure culture"—in other words, they consist of plants—therefore is more uniform in strength and composition.

Yeast plants exist in the air, and it is upon these we depend in making "sift rising" bread. The flour and water with a little salt are mixed into a batter, then set aside in a warm place to ferment. It contains sufficient gas to make into dough when fall of holes or when like a sponge, and this fermentation has been caused by the action of the wild yeasts in the air.

The Process of Breadmaking.

This article is in no sense an explanation of all the scientific technicalities of breadmaking because the subject is too big and complicated to be thoroughly treated in a column or two. It is simply an attempt to outline some of the principles to be observed and followed in a practical way by the women who may not have a satisfactory method of their own. The following recipe is for bread made with compressed yeast, and when care is taken to maintain an even temperature, about 80 degrees, throughout the process the bread should be ready for the oven in about four hours from the time it is started. The special advantage of the compressed yeast is that it is more rapid, and when it is used bread need not be set overnight.

Compressed Yeast Bread.

Add two tablespoonfuls of shortening (butter or lard), one tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt and one cake of compressed yeast dissolved in three tablespoonfuls of cold water to one pint of scalded milk or one-half milk and one-half water. This is for four small dough balls enough to bread vigorously. Turn on molding board and knead until dough does not stick to the board, using more flour as necessary, a little at a time. Put in a well greased bowl and brush surface lightly with melted butter to keep from crustling over. Cover with towel and let rise again until double its size about three hours. At the end of that time mold into rolls or loaves and put into greased pan, brushing the surface with melted butter. Cover as before and set to rise until double its size; then bake.

Bread should be baked as soon as possible after the rising. The oven should be hot enough to brown flour in fifteen minutes, about 300 degrees. At this temperature ordinary sized loaves of bread should be browned all over. Bread should be turned from pan as soon as taken from oven and placed uncovered in such a position that all sides will be exposed to the air, thus allowing it to come in contact with anything which will give it an unpleasant odor or taste. When cold it should be put into a paper bag in which the air can leave access and be kept in a dry, cool place. This amount of yeast will raise three times as much flour as the yeast sufficient to make the one point is given for it to become light. One point in which many first class breadmakers often fail is in the baking. Bread to be thoroughly digested should be thoroughly baked. The ordinary sized loaf requires from one hour and a quarter to one hour and a half to bake sufficiently; and that this may be accomplished without burning, the oven should not be too hot in the beginning. The bread should not begin to brown until after the first ten minutes.

Many changes take place in bread during the baking. The yeast plants are killed by the high temperature, the gas expands, making the loaf still lighter, the fermentation is stopped, the alcohol is driven off and a large amount of the moisture is evaporated. Also the browning of the crust increases the ease with which the loaf is digested, and the action of the yeast gas is also supposed to aid its digestion.

Whole Wheat Bread.

Grind a cupful of milk, take from the scale and add a heaping teaspoonful of yeast and one teaspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of shortening. Add a cupful of cold water to the scalded milk and when the mixture is lukewarm add one-half yeast cake that has been dissolved in one-half cupful of lukewarm water. Beat in enough whole wheat flour to make a rather thin batter; beat well, cover and set aside until light. Then stir in as much more whole wheat flour as you can beat in with a spoon. It must be stiff. Beat well, turn into greased tin, let rise until light, then bake an hour in a moderate oven.

Diabetic Bread.

Take one quart of sweet milk, one heaping teaspoonful of good yeast, one-eighth of a cake of compressed yeast, beaten up with a little water and two small hard-boiled potatoes, cut up into a soft dough is formed. Knead as in ordinary bread, put in pans to rise and when light bake in hot oven.

Quaker RANGES

You can depend upon the Quaker Oven Indicator to accurately give you the correct temperature for all kinds of baking. With the large evenly heated Quaker Oven and this reliable indicator, the most inexperienced cook will have no difficulty in successfully baking pies, cake, bread, etc.

FATAL ACCIDENT

F. F. MORRIS OF HARTFORD FELL FROM CHRYSLER AUTO TRUCK HERE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Was Giving Demonstration of New Fire Fighting Apparatus For Information of Gentlemen From Passaic, N. J.—Expert Hartford Driver At Litter—No One To Blame—Shocks Community

Ferdinand F. Norris, head of the public service department of the Pope Manufacturing Company of Hartford, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock by being thrown from the new chemical automobile fire truck of the Pope Company No. 3 of the South Manchester Fire Department. The accident occurred on Hartford road nearly opposite the main office of Cheney Brothers silk mills.

A committee from the fire department of Passaic, N. J., arrived in Hartford earlier in the day and witnessed one of the fire trucks with it was maintained by the Pope company. This being the nearest place where one is in service the party was taken here to one of the automobiles owned by the company. Permit slip is demonstrated the new truck was secured from Frank Cheney Jr., president of the South Manchester Fire District and the party left the house at 2:40. Major Spencer of Passaic, N. J., Arthur Spencer, Chief R. H. Bowler of the Passaic fire department and M. B. Matthews of Truck No. 1 of the truck. The car was being run by J. M. O'Malley, head of the testing department of the Pope Company, an experienced driver. The local men on the truck were J. Watson Gales, M. R. Richards and Archie Hayes of Oxford, Hose Company No. 3.

Mr. Norris was riding on the running board on the right hand side of the car and N. B. Richards on the left. Mr. Norris spoke to the strangers if resting their attention to the old Ralph Cheney homestead on their right as they drew near. Those were the last words he ever spoke. The main office of Cheney Brothers on the left was pointed out by another of the party and all eyes were turned in that direction and thus away from Mr. Norris. Mr. Richards saw a derby hat go into the street and called to driver O'Malley that some one of the party took a hat. Looking backward Mr. Richards saw a woman body lying in the street and shouted to the driver to stop at once, which he did. Mr. Richards ran back to pick up the prostrate form and when he took hold of the hand to raise it up felt that the skull was fractured and that the head was limp, loose and apparently lifeless.

L. N. Heister chanced to be coming up in his auto at the moment and he and Mr. Richards dashed up street for a doctor. They found Dr. Sloan at home and hurried him to the scene of the accident on Page Five.

STATE NORMAL SENIORS

The State Normal School seniors who have been training in the Ninth District schools of this place for the past six months closed their term here today and will return to New Britain. There were forty in all. They will be succeeded here at the opening of the summer term Tuesday, April 19, by another class of seniors from the same institution. One of the seniors who closed her work here today is Miss Hilda Nya of Bangkok, Siam. It seems rather queer to us to see a pretty and delicate little Siamese maiden teaching one of our kindergarten classes.
