SOUTH MANCHESTER CONN. FRIDAY FEBRUARY 17 1911

THREE CENTS

A Point of Interest

To all members of lodges in Manchester is to see that their officers holding funds of the order are properly bonded. There are over forty different societies in town and of this number, less than half bond their treasurer or secretary. Is this business? I can offer through the Empire State Surety Co. a bond that will protect the society at a very small cost. Better see me about this.

BERMUDA AND WEST INDIES

Commencing January 1 a new schedule of fares goes into effect on Bermuda tours. The minimum rate is $20 for the round trip of twelve days. If interested drop me a line or call and secure literature explaining all.

LIST YOUR PROPERTY

Now is the time to list your property for the spring rush; I have calls for property in certain localities and it might be to your interest to let me handle your property if you intend to sell.

Board of Relief

Session of the Board of Relief will be held at the Hall of Records next Monday and also next Thursday from 4 to 6 p. m. on each of said days. The establishment of these sessions to nine o'clock in the evening proves very favorable to working people and gives them an opportunity of presenting their grievances without losing time from their work. Under the new re-valuation of properties made by the Board of Assessors there are some taxpayers who feel that their respective holdings have been burdened more than they should be. It could be expected that the very difficult task of making this re-valuation could in every instance suit everybody. The Board of Assessors had an estimate laid out for them. They went at it with a will and an endeavor to the best of their ability to arrive at a fair valuation of the properties; all things considered, that they may have erred in some cases it is to be supposed. All papers are on file in one thing from a same view point. They give evidence of their human nature in having erred. The wisdom of the fathers however, provided a Board of Relief where these irregularities may be righted. Persons having just reason for complaint may with confidence go before the Board of Relief and state their case.

Whist Party

A whist party was given at the home of Miss Florence Dunn Tuesday evening in honor of her cousin Miss Pearl Brink of Providence, R. I. formerly of this place. The first prizes were won by Harry Hissel and Agnes Hebbert and the consolation by Raymond Johnson and Eran Ran. After the whist a bountiful collation was served and guests enjoyed.

Hard Lines

John H. Bissell of Gardner strip has been having a sore trial with grip and diphtheritic sore throat and rheumatism for the past two weeks. He has not been out of doors in that period nor has he been even able to get down stairs to care for his furnace. He is slowly surmounting these difficulties however, and hopes to be soon able to resume his regular position with Cheney Brothers. He has been trying with all his might and main to get rid of the bad company that made him a burden to him of late.

K. OF C. BAZAR

TO RUN FOR FIVE NIGHTS AT ARMOY OPERA HOUSE THIS MONTH

Elaborate Decorations Promised. Laughable Entertainments and Dancing Each Evening. Good Music, Novel Stage Settings, Local Hits and Fun Galore.

Campbell Concert No. 978, Knights of Columbus are pushing the arrangements for their Bazar which opens at the Armoey Opera House, Tuesday Feb. 21st the eve of Washington's Birthday, and runs to and including Saturday the 26th.

The hall will be elaborately decorated by the New England Decorating Co. and judging from the plans which are to be carried out, the Armoey will be changed into a scene long to be remembered.

Side attractions will be introduced in unlimited numbers, so that everyone attending will find plenty of enjoyment to keep them going every minute.

A diamond ring is to be offered as one of the special prizes. It is surprising to see the great advance in the price of this particular article. It is a handsome stone and was purchased from Tiffany.

The entertainments will be under the feature of the bazar and are under the direction of Edward F. Taylor assisted by Miss Harriet A. Treat. There will be no mention made of the quality of the entertainments when these two persons have them in hand. Their recent success in this line are a guarantee that they will give something entirely new and will give a complete new bill each evening. It will require sixty people to stage the entertainments, all of which are by local talent.

The opening night, Tuesday, the entertainment will consist of a musical sketch, The Young Politician. This sketch requires a cast of fifty people and contains a large amount of good comedy.

Wednesday evening a one-act farce, The Mine That Panned Out, will be staged. This is a very laughable piece and should please the most critical. The cast is assisted by a chorus of Japanese girls who attend to the musical end of the sketch.

Thursday evening, the one-act Musical Comedy, Matrimony for Life will be staged for the first time. This comedy requires sixty people and introduces a large number of comic bits which will be presented in a very novel manner.

Friday evening a new bill, Prof. Outcasts' Studio will hold the boards. While this sketch does not require a large cast as some of the other entertainments, nevertheless it will speak well and give good music throughout. Persons who attend this Bazar will find that they have been well repaid for the time spent. A complete program will appear in The News Friday, Feb. 18th.

The public is cordially invited to attend the annual Free Will Offering meeting of the So. Manchester W. C. T. U. to be held in the South M. C. Church, Tuesday evening, February 14, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Effie M. Lambert, State Secretary of N. Y. Y. and national organizer and lecturer of a large number of comic bits which will be presented in a very novel manner.

Looking down, she saw that she was clasping the hand of the very little man, who seemed to be much confused and embarrassed. "No, you won't!" "Why won't you?" "My sister knows the young lady in question and she has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week." -Kansas City Journal

Petition Rejected

An unfavorable report was received in the House yesterday from the Committee on Education in relation to a petition presented by the Rev. William S. Hyde of this place asking for the incorporation of the Old Fello Building Association of Manchester. A. L. Halling of this place is the attorney for the petition. The petition was put under the direction of Albert T. Dwyer and is being handled in a very efficient manner. The petition is being handled in a very efficient manner.

The days are lengthening and the cold is strengthening in accordance with general usage, the grounding prediction of an early spring to the contrary notwithstanding.

South Manchester Tent No. 18 Knights of the Marches will hold their regular monthly social at Ferris Hall next Monday evening. The admission is but ten cents each per person. There has been a large advance sale of tickets, and a very favorable result is anticipated.

Charles H. Keeney of Hartford is spending a few days at the home of his brother Henry of Brainard place. He has been suffering with a severe grip cold and seeks to recuperate by taking a vacation here. Mr. Keeney operates a jewelry store here some years ago and is well and popularly known in this community. He has long been employed as a clerk in the men's furnishing department of G. Fox & Co., Hartford. He is being very cordially greeted by the many friends he has here.

A. L. Halling of Gladstone has been having a contest for the past several weeks fighting bills that resulted in establishing his headquarters in the back of his neck and head. Mr. Halling remonstrated against the invasion of private property and noted by a sign with a dozen pounds of faxes with which he bombarded them on a constantly day and night. While the end is yet Mr. Halling feels that he is on the wrong side and that he will drive the unwelcome visitors out not and bench very soon.

Notwithstanding the general inclemency of the weather and the biting cold of Monday morning a goodly number of persons assembled at the St. James church and attended the solemn funeral service for the late Thomas O'Gorman. Kind friends and neighbors mingled their prayers with those of the sorrowing relatives for his eternal rest. Rev. J. J. McGurk, celebrant, Rev. P. J. Murphy, deacon, and Rev. James J. Healy, sub-deacon. Miss E. Keating presided at the organ and directed the choir. Edward F. Taylor sang the "O Salutaris" at the offertory and "Calvary" as the body was slowly and solemnly borne from the church. The bearers were Frank Donahue, M. J. Maguire, Jerry Maher, Patrick Gorman, James J. Quinn and John F. Gorman. Messrs. Keith & Post, the undertakers, placed the body in the receiving vault at the St. James cemetery.

As Mr. O'Gorman was the first of the donors to die since the bell was placed in position in the belfry of the St. James church the unusual distinction was given of tolling the bell as the funeral procession was entering the church and again as it left the edifice. It was a gracious acknowledgment of the generous shown by Mr. O'Gorman in this particular. The services were but six persons who paid for the bell.

The death of Thomas O'Gorman came as a great surprise to many. It was not generally known that his case was so serious or that imminent danger was impending. Mr. O'Gorman was well known and his death is deeply regretted by a very large circle of friends by whom he was highly esteemed. He took a deep interest in public affairs although he never sought or accepted public office. He did not belong to any of the fraternities. He was a lover of his home and family and of late years was enjoying the fruits of his early frugality and good business management. He took much interest in educational matters and great pride in educating his children. It was the one great ambition of his life to place them in as high an intellectual plane as possible and to that end bent his energies with great determination.

The Public Free Him. He was a mild mannered little man, short, with gray and spectacles. It was noon on Washington street and, as usual, the crowds were showing and pushing to get somewhere. The little man was riding to work his way through the crowds.

A well dressed woman, accompanied by a small boy, was mired up in the crowd. She wanted to cross the street. The boy stopped to look in a window. The lady reached down and grasped a hand, saying, "Take my hand, dear." "Not right here on the public street," she was startled to hear some one reply.

The New and Old Geology. In its early history geology presented two schools—one insisting on a doctrine of "catastrophes" the other on a doctrine of "uniformity." The former regarded the changes which have manifested take place in our planet as having occurred at epochs abrupt, while the latter held that the changes were the result of the gradual operation of the laws of nature, insisted that affairs had always gone on in the same way as they do now. It is hardly necessary to say that the latter theory has driven the old theory of catastrophe completely from the field—New York Herald.

All Fixed. "I think I'll propose to the party tonight." "No, you won't!" "Why won't you?" "My sister knows the young lady in question and she has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week." -Kansas City Journal

Boy Scouts following were named as a temporary executive committee: N. E. Rice, Austin Cheney and George Lyman. The next meeting will be called by the executive committee as soon as they receive suitable advice etc. from headquarters. Notices will be sent out when enrollment can be made of persons wishing to become Boy Scouts.

Slowly Dring Word received this morning from Hiram G. Keeney of Keeney street brings the intelligence that he is slowly dying from the effects of a shock last Tuesday. He has not regained consciousness since nor has he taken any nourishment. It is therefore apparent that the end must be near and may arrive before this notice comes to the attention of our readers.

Hearing Next Tuesday

A hearing on the question of nominating a candidate for the office of judge of the Town Court of Manchester for two years from the first Monday in July 1911 will be held before the Judiciary Committee at the State Capitol in Hartford next Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The candidates for this office are Alexander Arnold, the present judge of the town court, and Harry M. Burke, the present prosecuting attorney of the town court. This question is interesting to the citizens of Manchester but is not among the amount of raucous and bitterness that was needlessly developed by this contest two years ago. This is as it should be. Any young man having the necessary qualifications to fill the office has a perfect right to aspire to it. His American citizenship entitles him to it. It is an honor worth achieving. Friends of the contestants do well to interest themselves in the man of their choice. By so doing there is no estrangement made nor friendships broken. Every young man with the right kind of material in his makeup has a strong desire to advance his own interests in this world and is justly entitled to do so. No words of censure or reproach are due the aspirants for this honor.

Coming Marriage

The marriage of William Rubisow of this place to Miss Mary Brodsky of New York will take place Sunday evening, February 19, 1911, at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, No. 1317 Washington avenue, Bronx. The bridegroom will start honeymooning here next week on Cooper street near the corner of West Center, where a cozy home is already furnished comfortably for the happy bride and groom. It is a very beautiful home and has never been occupied.

Store Closing

Next Wednesday will be Washington's Birthday and a legal holiday. The stores will close at one o'clock in the afternoon, but will open Tuesday evening as usual. The banks will be closed all day and the postoffice will observe holiday closing hours, namely close at one p. m. The letter carriers will make but one delivery and one collection of mails. The Ninth District schools will be in operation as usual.

Tonight

All roads will lead to Cheney hall this evening where the attraction will be The Typewriter Girl which is to be presented by local talent under the auspices of Manchester Gramme No. 31, Parents of the Typewriter. School children of this event appeared in this column last week and the week before. Mrs. Julia Keeney of Charter Oak street is a victim of the Grippe.

PUBLIC HEARING

Monday As To Centering Trolley Tracks On W. Center St. The people of the town generally are much interested in the matter of having the trolley tracks placed in the middle of West Center and Otcott streets and a hearing to consider the matter is to be held at the Hall of Records next Monday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Notices have been sent to property owners living on West Center and Otcott streets and on the streets adjoining thereto by the Board of Selectmen advising them of this hearing. Petitions have been presented to the Selectmen asking them to exercise their influence in the matter of securing the re-location of the trolley tracks along West Center and Otcott streets.

It is understood that The Connecticut Company are quite agreeable to this change in the interest of public safety and convenience. It is also quite likely that they will take necessary measures to lay double tracks when the time arrives for making the change. At the present time double tracks are in use between Burnside and Hartford and it certainly would be a matter of much public safety and convenience and satisfaction if the road was double-tracked all the way through South Manchester. Persons living along West Center and Otcott streets and the streets adjacent thereto will do well to attend the meeting next Monday evening for making the change. They may have some views to present concerning this proposed improvement.

Linna Lodge

The fourth anniversary concert and ball to be given by Linna Lodge No. 7, Knights of Pythias was fittingly observed at Cheney Hall Wednesday evening. The intense cold kept many away who were expected to be present and an enjoyable time. Music was furnished by Johnson & Wetman's orchestra and Prof. C. Foley prompted. The feature of the evening was the very pretty drill given by the Kings of the Pythias, the Rev. Mr. E. P. of Hartford. There were sixteen men besides the officer of the guard and for a half hour they executed a number of pretty movements and groupings and formations that were well appreciated by the audience. The initial K. of P. and the Maltose Cross were nicely formed. A special trolley car carried the guests to Hartford after the ball.

On To Hartford

A special car will leave the south terminus this evening at 6:37 and will convey about sixty members of the two lodges of Knights of Pythias in this place, Memorial No. 38 and Linna No. 7 to Hartford where they will join other lodges of the state in the celebration of the forty seventh national and forty second state anniversary of the lodge. Among the features of this evening's work will be the empitication of the third rank on a class of one hundred candidates and a competitive drill between eight teams of the two lodges. It is expected that two members from Memorial lodge will take the third rank tonight.

Store Closing

Next Wednesday will be Washington's Birthday and a legal holiday. The stores will close at one o'clock in the afternoon, but will open Tuesday evening as usual. The banks will be closed all day and the postoffice will observe holiday closing hours, namely close at one p. m. The letter carriers will make but one delivery and one collection of mails. FRED W. MILLS

DIED OF BRONCHIAL PNEUMONIA AFTER ONLY FIVE DAYS ILLNESS

Prominent in Business and Fraternal Circles and Active Worker in All Was Strong Republican and Took Active Interest in Politics as Well.

Fred W. Mills of East Center street died about four o'clock Tuesday morning from an attack of bronchial pneumonia after an illness of but five days.

Funeral services were held at the home Thursday afternoon. Rev. Dr. George W. Reynolds officiating. The body was taken by special electric car to Rockville for burial.

The Tempo Quartet of Hartford sang at the funeral service in the home. Mr. Mills was very fond of music and had often listened with pleasure to these talented singers. Their selections were: The Lord Is My Shepherd, O Singing the Bar, Gathering Home.

Many beautiful floral tributes were presented, including those from the Manchester Business Men's Association, from the State Business Men's Association, from Orford Hose Co. No. 3, from King David Lodge of Odd Fellows, from the Heptaplasts, etc.

How No. 3 and How No. 1 sent large delegations to the funeral. The 1910 Fellows were officially represented. A goodly gathering of the local business men and also the directors of the State Business Men's Association were present.

A considerable number of friends from Rockville attended the services at the residence.

The interment was at the Mt. Hope cemetery. Mr. Mills was a native of Rockville, was 51 years old, was educated in the public schools of Rockville and took a business course at the Hanson Business College in Hartford.

He was subsequently employed at the New York Commission House of the Rock Mills. He married Miss Mattie M. Angell of Rockville in 1883.

Mr. Mills has resided in this town for the past twenty years, conducting a stationary toy and ice-cream store on the Park building on Main street.

He has also served as local agent for the Purnell property for a number of years past. Mr. Mills was treasurer of the State Business Men's Association, was secretary and treasurer of the Manchester Business Men's Association, and secretary and treasurer of Orford Hose Company No. 3, S. M. F. D., was a member of King David Lodge of Odd Fellows of South Manchester Camp Hudson Woods, of America, of Manchester Woods, of the Popular Entertainment Council of the Heptaplasts, of the Am. MIGHTY FACTOR

Advertising Strong Wants Forcing-Multiples Human Wants

Advertising is today the mightiest factor in the business world. It is a business builder. It is something more than a drummer knocking at the door of the consumer, something more than mere salesmanship on paper.

It is a positive creative force in business. It multiplies human wants and stimulates human desires. It furnishes excuse for numerous uses to possess the things which under former conditions they could get along without.

Such service is required of advertising man today demands preparation and equipment. There is a call for men who can exploit a city or state, men who can market the output of manufacturers, men who can plan and conduct a world-wide selling campaign.

The man who succeeds every day in his work, he seeks the advice of experienced men. The club is to him a source of instruction and inspiration. That is what we are trying to make it. Cooperation is the keynote of club success. We have placed our ideas high, now let us work toward them.

Advertising is a branch of our commercial life. It is new. No other group of men, except advertising men, has ever developed a more scientific and magnificent (in a short a time). Mistakes were inevitable. Reasonable and clear-headed men hastened to correct mistakes as soon as they were discovered.

We built and altered to meet conditions as we built so that the structure is present today to the demands of today—E. K.

Michael J. Fraher of No. 9 High street died at the Hartford Hospital at 4 o'clock Monday morning from an attack of blood poisoning.

The funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Fraher on Wednesday morning with a religious service at St. James church. The body was interred in the vault of the St. James cemetery.

Mr. Fraher was a native of Ireland, was 40 years old and lived in South Main street for the past twenty years, being in the employ of Cheney Brothers practically all of that time.

He married Miss Catherine Harrington in Ireland and two children were born to them, viz: Margaret and Paul, and one son, Michael.

The accident which caused Mr. Fraher's death was brought about by a fall in which his left hand was somewhat cut and led to blood poisoning.

Swedish Lutheran Church to Extend Call to Pastor. Rev. J. N. Everett of Manchester, N. H. preached at the Swedish Lutheran church in this place last Thursday evening and impressed the members of the church so favorably that they have practically decided to extend him a call to the pastorate of the church.

It is to be remembered that Cheney Brothers very generously contribute one dollar for every dollar subscribed by operatives or clerks by them as a result of any entertainments which they may give in behalf of this fund.

May it, hence the extension of time has been granted.

For sometime past the members of the Swedish Lutheran church here have been accumulating a building fund which at the present time amounts to some $3400. It is the purpose of the members to erect a new church as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made and this task will be transmitted as one of the burdens that rest upon the shoulders of the new pastor.

The local society has been organized nearly three years. During that period it has received as contributions by employees $9000.96; and as contributions from the Cheney Brothers and cash raised by entertainments, $7848.11; making the total receipts during the period $16849.07. For care of employees $3468.70; for care of dependents of employees $1177.10; for the treasury January 10, 1911 of $674.07.

In accordance with the by-laws of the Association when the cash on hand falls below $1000 a collection is to be taken up in order with the directions of the officers.

It will therefore be seen by the above that a collection is now due and payable and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made the officers of the Association will proceed to gather the funds required for the same.

A Fight on The Eaglet. Story of an American Privateer. By LOUISE LA ROSS. Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association.

The American privateer Eaglet, cruising off Nova Scotia captured a British merchantman, Ellen Boyne, but the crew of the British cruiser, decided to burn her.

When it became known what was to be done with them one of the Englishmen stepped up to the Eaglet's captain and said to him: "I would like to join your crew, captain. I don't care much what flag I strike, but I've been a soldier in the British army, but deserted to get rid of a sergeant's wife who wanted to get me tangled up with her."

"You don't look rugged enough to breast ocean storms," replied the captain, eyeing the youthful figure of the man who stepped up to him.

UNEXPLORED CANADA. There are vast areas in Canada which even the government has no definite knowledge of.

There are vast areas in Canada which even the government has no definite knowledge of. Practically all knowledge of the wild country has been secured again and again along a few chosen and well worn routes.

Imagine a dozen or so well beaten vehicle highways traversing a country one-fourth as large as Europe—narrow highways hewn in by impassable wilderness—and one may form some sort of idea of the little that is still known of the interior of the North American continent.

Along these routes nearly all "explorers" have gone. Along them are situated most of the fur posts, and beyond their narrow lines little is known.

SYNOPSIS.

Warden Handier of Sing Sing prison... Detective Glavin... Jimmy Valentine... Rose Lane... Bill Avery...

CHAPTER IX

SILENCE ensued. Valentine was plainly suffering from the blow. Then an expression of confidence came into Valentine's face.

CHAPTER IX

"What is it?" questioned Red. "It is the return of hope," answered Valentine, his emotion causing his voice to falter.

CHAPTER IX

"What am I going to do?" asked Valentine. "I'm going with you," answered Red. "I'm going with you, Red. I'd do a bit for him I got to go if he asks it."

"Goodby, Jimmy. Goodby, Red," he cried, and he was gone.

"I tell you, Red," said Valentine, looking after him, "there isn't a crook you know who wouldn't go straight if he could."

"But you know what's inside of a man," said Red.

"I know what's inside of me, and I know what's inside of you."

CHAPTER X

ROSE greeted Valentine pleasantly, the blush in her fresh pink cheeks equalling the pink of the roses in her hat.

It was Mr. Lane who began to lead the conversation to a serious point.

"That is the name you gave her," said Mr. Lane.

"Well, Mr. Randall, I am not going to ask questions. I presume no one wishes to forget the past more than you. I am going to explain a situation to you and offer you employment."

"While I thank you I could not accept any position at your hands or your daughter's," answered Valentine.

"It is better that I started without assistance than to accept employment with total strangers."

"But, Mr. Randall," began the girl.

"The father continued: 'I think you are wrong, Mr. Randall. I understand perfectly the spirit which prompts you to take this stand. Still, I think you are wrong. Won't you let me explain fully?'"

"With pleasure, sir."

"First we know or think we know of the one thing against you. We believe, while knowing that you are an orphan in a crowded tenement on the east side of New York city at the age of thirteen, he had been taken care of by his uncle, a retired police captain, who operated a gambling house in Thirty-third street."

Four years later Red was placed in charge of the buffet in this establishment.

Hardly had Jimmy Valentine made his declaration of agate interest when with Red Flanagan and Bill Avery that a bellboy entered the parlor, pagging the name of "Mr. Valentine."

"Jimmy stopped for a moment, selected an envelope bearing his name which the boy carried and excitedly tore it open. He found a brief note written in feminine handwriting. He read these words, and the color surged to his cheeks:

"Please don't leave till I return. I inclose you a note Mrs. Webster asked me to give you. We saw her at the depot, where we went to request a signature for you."

"What is it?" asked Avery, drawing near. "Something from Doyle, I'll bet."

"Yes, what is it?" questioned Red. "It is the return of hope," answered Valentine, his emotion causing his voice to falter.

"You've weakened again?" sneered Red.

"No, I'm strong again."

"She is coming back, Red, and there's nothing on this earth or in hell that can make me go wrong. You said a minute ago that if you thought I had a chance you'd stick."

"I said it."

"Then I hold you to that."

"Good God!" exclaimed Avery. "You're not going to turn square, too, Red?"

"I'm going with Jimmy. If I'd do a bit for him I got to go if he asks it."

"What am I going to do?" asked Avery plaintively.

"I've got you a job, Bill, a good one," he announced.

"A job? Where?"

"The fashionable attire played the roulette, baccarat and poker."

"The lad's truthful testimony at the trial which followed so enraged his uncle that Red no longer found home with him. Cast on his own resources, he was attracted by the glittering promises of an expert poker and Faro dealer whom his uncle had employed. He joined with him in several trips on coasting steamers, 'sitting in' with the gambler in poker games with the passengers and exchanging signals with him concerning the cards they held. He learned the art of denting the corners of the ace, kings, queens and jacks with his thumb nails so that in dealing with fingers sandpapered or worn almost to the bleeding points, the cards would be known and to whom he was dealing the high cards. From this it was only a step to a partnership with the great Jimmy Valentine, the man who could 'cop a gopher' without any artificial aids."

All this was well known to Valentine. He himself had drifted into deal company in a manner somewhat similar. He could see in the lessons of his own experience that the man who deals were not entirely blameless on Red.

He was about to inform Red of his intention to aid him in a new career when he heard in the corridor the voice of Rose Lane addressing someone as being married. He felt that he had been discovered. He fled to the street, and there he met the man who had been his partner in crime. He was now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect.

"I shall look forward to seeing you," said Valentine, smiling.

"That is entirely satisfactory," said Rose.

"Rose and her father, who had been her partner in crime, were now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect."

"That is entirely satisfactory," said Rose.

"Goodby, Jimmy. Goodby, Red," he cried, and he was gone.

"I tell you, Red," said Valentine, looking after him, "there isn't a crook you know who wouldn't go straight if he could."

"But you know what's inside of a man," said Red.

"I know what's inside of me, and I know what's inside of you."

CHAPTER X

ROSE greeted Valentine pleasantly, the blush in her fresh pink cheeks equalling the pink of the roses in her hat.

It was Mr. Lane who began to lead the conversation to a serious point.

"That is the name you gave her," said Mr. Lane.

"Well, Mr. Randall, I am not going to ask questions. I presume no one wishes to forget the past more than you. I am going to explain a situation to you and offer you employment."

"While I thank you I could not accept any position at your hands or your daughter's," answered Valentine.

"It is better that I started without assistance than to accept employment with total strangers."

"But, Mr. Randall," began the girl.

"The father continued: 'I think you are wrong, Mr. Randall. I understand perfectly the spirit which prompts you to take this stand. Still, I think you are wrong. Won't you let me explain fully?'"

"With pleasure, sir."

"First we know or think we know of the one thing against you. We believe, while knowing that you are an orphan in a crowded tenement on the east side of New York city at the age of thirteen, he had been taken care of by his uncle, a retired police captain, who operated a gambling house in Thirty-third street."

Four years later Red was placed in charge of the buffet in this establishment.

Hardly had Jimmy Valentine made his declaration of agate interest when with Red Flanagan and Bill Avery that a bellboy entered the parlor, pagging the name of "Mr. Valentine."

"Jimmy stopped for a moment, selected an envelope bearing his name which the boy carried and excitedly tore it open. He found a brief note written in feminine handwriting. He read these words, and the color surged to his cheeks:

"Please don't leave till I return. I inclose you a note Mrs. Webster asked me to give you. We saw her at the depot, where we went to request a signature for you."

"What is it?" asked Avery, drawing near. "Something from Doyle, I'll bet."

"Yes, what is it?" questioned Red. "It is the return of hope," answered Valentine, his emotion causing his voice to falter.

"You've weakened again?" sneered Red.

"No, I'm strong again."

"She is coming back, Red, and there's nothing on this earth or in hell that can make me go wrong. You said a minute ago that if you thought I had a chance you'd stick."

"I said it."

"Then I hold you to that."

"Good God!" exclaimed Avery. "You're not going to turn square, too, Red?"

"I'm going with Jimmy. If I'd do a bit for him I got to go if he asks it."

"What am I going to do?" asked Avery plaintively.

"I've got you a job, Bill, a good one," he announced.

"A job? Where?"

"The fashionable attire played the roulette, baccarat and poker."

"The lad's truthful testimony at the trial which followed so enraged his uncle that Red no longer found home with him. Cast on his own resources, he was attracted by the glittering promises of an expert poker and Faro dealer whom his uncle had employed. He joined with him in several trips on coasting steamers, 'sitting in' with the gambler in poker games with the passengers and exchanging signals with him concerning the cards they held. He learned the art of denting the corners of the ace, kings, queens and jacks with his thumb nails so that in dealing with fingers sandpapered or worn almost to the bleeding points, the cards would be known and to whom he was dealing the high cards. From this it was only a step to a partnership with the great Jimmy Valentine, the man who could 'cop a gopher' without any artificial aids."

All this was well known to Valentine. He himself had drifted into deal company in a manner somewhat similar. He could see in the lessons of his own experience that the man who deals were not entirely blameless on Red.

He was about to inform Red of his intention to aid him in a new career when he heard in the corridor the voice of Rose Lane addressing someone as being married. He felt that he had been discovered. He fled to the street, and there he met the man who had been his partner in crime. He was now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect. He was now a man of honor and respect."

"I shall look forward to seeing you," said Valentine, smiling.

Medical Research. Romance of the Discovery of the Cause of Malaria.

In the history of research are many romances. Of the discovery that malaria was caused by mosquitoes, it is related how Dr. Low and Dr. Rossan lived in the malarious Roman Campagna without getting it. They retired at sunset to a mosquito proof hut, with double doors and windows of wire net, and they did not leave until sunrise. The fact that they remained immune, while the attendants, sleeping outside, contracted malaria, confirmed the belief that the mosquitoes were responsible.

But how did they carry the disease? At first it was thought to be by water. To settle the question live mosquitoes which had bitten infected persons were sent home and two members of the school submitted to the final proof was a series of careful experiments, ending with the slicing of the mosquito's proboscis. Now this is finer than fine hair. It is necessary to stop to think. For it is easier to imagine the triumph of the proof than the delicate operation that produced it - London Standard.

HER HOMEMADE HAT. It Brought a Proposal That She Promptly Turned Down.

The homemaker was making merry in the dim lit studio discussing the latest novel that one of their number was trying to write, the brutal editor who had refused the best article ever written, masterpiece of the best-meaning, the nonintelligible of the art critic, executing the necessary theatrical manager and utterly repudiating the general public - the vast host of the Philistines. By way of diversion the painter of pastel portraits said to the becheur maid:

"That's charming that you have on. Who else would know enough to combine turquoise and old rose? You have a genius for color. What a pity you only write!"

"And you like my hat, anyway. I made it myself. I trust it will only enhance its merit in your eyes to know that it cost me but 50 cents."

"Impossible!" exclaimed all the bachelors with one breath, ceasing their arguments in order to take notice of the vastly becoming creation which capped the becheur maid's brown hair.

"The thing will be a great one, only relays being invited. They will be attended by Miss Eva Wartley as bridesmaid and Harold Walsh, brother of the bride, will act as best man. They will reside in Stamford where the groom is employed by the International Correspondence Schools.

BIG BAZAR. K. OF C. HOLDS FULL SWAY AT ARMORY TONIGHT AND TOMORROW NIGHT Enthusiastic Throngs Assemble Each Evening - Unusually Pleasing and Pretty Stage Pictures Presented - Good Vocal Solos - Gorgeous Costumes The big social event of the week is the K. of C. bazar which is attracting such large throngs at the Armory this week and which will continue tonight and tomorrow night. The largest gathering of the week assembled there last evening. The stage entertainment for this evening is entitled "A Professor Out of His Office." The cast of characters was published in these columns last week. The bazar will come to a close tomorrow evening with the distribution of awards. The Knights have been favored with charming winter weather for their five nights carnival and present indications are that it will be a financial success. It can safely be said that the public are being well entertained each evening. The bazar has been very elaborately decorated with evergreens and colored lights. W. C. Chesney served as toastmaster. The district officers and the foremen of the other local companies were among the guests of the evening. The speakers were Rev. N. P. Carey of Norwich, Robert P. Butler and Fire Commissioner Horace B. Clark of Hartford. At the conclusion of the post prandial exercises the party were taken over to the home house which was inspected. Bowling cards and general sociability occupied the attention of the merry party for the remainder of the evening.

Rubinow-Brodsky William Rubinow and Miss Mary Brodsky were married Sunday evening at six o'clock at the home of the bride, No. 1517 Washington avenue, Bronx, New York City. Rev. Dr. Reichert of Temple Hand-in-hand presented the nuptial ceremony which was witnessed by about fifty relatives and friends of the bride and groom. A wedding feast was served and the festivities continued until late in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Rubinow left New York City by train early Monday morning for Hartford, where Mr. Rubinow had his auto at a garage and carried his young bride to her home in South Manchester. They are residing on Cooper street near West Center.

Death of Frank P. Connelly Word was received here Monday of the death at Wales, Wisconsin, of Frank P. Connelly, formerly of this place. Mr. Connelly had been in the west for the past ten years. He was 31 years of age. The wedding ceremony was held at St. Joseph church this morning with a requiem high mass. The remains were brought to Manchester on the noon train today and interment was in the family lot in St. Bridget's cemetery. His brother, Thomas F. Connelly is his only surviving relative.

A Point of Interest To all members of lodges in Manchester is to see that their officers holding funds of the order are properly bonded. There are over forty different societies in town and of this number less than half hold their treasurer or secretary. Is this business? I can offer through the Empire State Surety Co. a bond that will protect the society at a very small cost. Better see me about this. BERMUDA AND WEST INDIES Commencing January 1 a new schedule of fares goes into effect on Bermuda tours. The minimum rate is $20 for the round trip of twelve days. If interested drop me a line or call and secure literature explaining all. LIST YOUR PROPERTY Now is the time to list your property for the spring rush; I have calls for property in certain localities and it might be to your interest to let me handle your property if you intend to sell.
