RALPH CONE

MANCHESTER'S OLDEST CITIZEN CLOSED EARTHLY CAREER YESTERDAY

Ripe in Years and Rich in Respect of His Fellow Man—Exemplary Character. Keenly Alert to Public Affairs to End—Happy Old Age

Ralph Cone of Manchester Green died at his home yesterday evening at six o'clock from the general infirmities of old age as he was in his ninety-third year and the oldest man in town.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon at two o'clock with services at the residence, Rev. Dr. George W. Reynolds will officiate. Burial will be at the East Cemetery.

He was critically ill last fall and day after day the end was expected, but his remarkable vitality served him well and he rallied and was once more able to labor. Throughout life he had been a man of exemplary habits, methodical life and made the best possible use of his vital resources, which were indeed amply abundant.

Mr. Cone was a native of Manchester Green where he spent his entire life and where he came to be honored and respected of his fellowmen. He was born October 20, 1818 and was the son of Marvin and Mrs. Cone. In 1844 he married Miss Esther Wells Woodbridge, with whom he lived happily for 46 years, his beloved wife having passed over the bar nineteen years ago. One son was born to them, Arthur W. Cone of Manchester Green, who is now an ill for many years has been agent of the town depot and also superintendent of the East Cemetery. Also one daughter, Mrs. Mary Cone Jooney, widow of the late B. F. T. Jenney of Manchester Green.

Mr. Cone represented the town of Manchester in the state legislature for two terms, namely in 1865 and again in 1866. At that time the state legislators were elected for one year only. Mr. Cone's father also represented the town of Manchester in the state legislature, his term being in 1841. Mr. Cone was an ardent republican and kept well informed on things political. He was present at the making of considerable of the history of the United States and was keenly interested in all things that made for the welfare of his native land, of the State of Connecticut and of the Town of Manchester. He was a keen observer, was naturally well informed and was an interesting conversationalist. He kept closely in touch with passing events, was a faithful and constant reader of the newspapers and was able to read with interest and comprehension any newspaper or magazine or any other publication notwithstanding his great length of years.

Of all the men serving in the state legislature with Mr. Cone in 1866 but one is living today, namely, William Balesley of Berlin. P. T. Barrows, the world distinguished showman was a member of that body.

Mr. Cone learned the business of carriage builder under the tuition of his father who founded the Cone carriage shop at Manchester Green. Mr. Cone worked at his trade all his life. The Cone carriages acquired an enviable reputation and were known many miles away from the humble workshop in the pretty village of Manchester Green. Mechanical skill, honesty, efficiency, careful attention to the most minute details and ever keeping up with the times and best there was known in the craft were the distinguishing features of Cone built carriages.

The Cone shop also built harness and the first harness made here was constructed by the Cones. Daniel Waterworth, who for forty years was town clerk, became a partner of Mr. Cone at the death of Mr. Cone's father and continued to hold his interest there until he died.

The first house owned by the town was operated by the late W. H. Cheney, then proprietor of Cheney's store. The two were no undertakers here.

Watkins Brothers were the first undertakers to establish business here and the Cone shops made their home. Watkins Brothers had two hearses from the Cone shops. The second one was dismantled recently and the running gears are now in use by another public man in this town. The Cone shops also made the large furniture delivery wagon for Watkins Brothers 35 years ago. It is in use today and is in good order.

Mr. Cone joined the Center Congregational church in 1833 and retained membership therein up to the date of his death.

He never became a member of any of the fraternal societies. He was distinctly a home loving, church loving and God loving man and measured his life serenity by these standards and by the strictest application of the golden rule. Besides his son and daughter, as noted above, he is survived by three granddaughters: Mrs. Carrie Straw, wife of Arthur J. Straw of Lyndville, Miss Marion Cone and Miss Helen Cone. Mr. Cone was the brother-in-law of James McCaw, wife of Lieutenant James McCaw of Pine street. Miss Marion Cone lives with her sister, Helen. He also leaves one grandson, Ralph A. Cone of Manchester Green, and two great-grandchildren, Harry Straw and James McCaw, Jr.

St. Patrick's Day

The country of America is broad and free and great.

She takes unto her mighty heart the stranger at her gate; I hadel here a ragged boy, without a single groat.

Without a friend, without a place, without a Sunday coat. She fed me and she prospered me, she filled my pockets with a little home and money to the bank.

But once a year my soul goes back to places far away, And wanders o'er the bogs and brooks upon St. Patrick's Day.

I smell again the smoky peat upon the cabin hearth, I see the settle by the door—the dearest spot on earth.

I hear the music, glad and sweet, of New's silver voice, While up the wild and windy glen the peevish pipes rejoice.

And then the best and bravest lads that ever saw the sun Come marching by at early morn, both fall of fight and fun.

With emerald feathers in their hats, and silken asbest gey, A blackthorn stick in every fist upon St. Patrick's Day.

Old Erin's way is silence hangs upon a willow tree, Her sorrows scattered far and wide o'er auld land and sea.

Her mischievous leprechauns are dead as last year's rose, But close against her bosom still the little shamrock grows.

For while a bit of Irish sod is there its roots to bid, The shamrock star of Ireland will flourish and be hid.

And while an Irishman is left above the cauceryard clay He'll wear a shamrock on his breast upon St. Patrick's Day.

Miss Irving, in Leslie's, F. Guy Green is visiting friends in Brooklyn, N. Y.

A son has been born to Thomas and Mrs. Gleason of Spruce street.

Mrs. George F. Donthwaite and Mrs. Joseph F. Sadler of Hartford were guests yesterday of Mrs. Charles Stenberg of Eldridge street.

The little son of Arvid and Mrs. Gustafson of Maple street is afflicted with scarlet fever. The house was quarantined last Saturday evening.

The little son of Archie and Mrs. McCollum of Maple street is severely ill with diphtheria. This home is quarantined.

The Case Leatherboard Company of Hop River has been sold to Leopold Olesner of New York. Besides the large paper mill, the purchase includes six double tenement houses and forty acres of land. Mr. Olesner expects to enlarge the mill later on and add new machinery. He will manufacture binder board as well as leatherboard. The present factory will continue in charge of Foreman William O'Leary.

Patrick Ryan H. son of Hubbard Park is quite feeble in the present time and is unable to be at of bed. Because of the diseased condition of his stomach he is unable to retain solid food. His health is gradually losing its grasp upon life. Mr. Ryan is making a resolute struggle to regain the mastery however and if will power can overcome his present difficulty, namely cancer of the stomach, he is sure to come down the home stretch as a winner. He has plenty of Irish luck and is a determined fighter. Let us hope that he will make good.

Miss Mildred Anderson, daughter of Rev. W. F. and Mrs. Anderson of Church street has resumed her studies at Tufts college, Boston, Mass., after an interruption of three months. It will be recalled that she was taken with a severe attack of scarlet fever on her return home for the Christmas holiday vacation and was removed to the Hartford hospital where she remained for seven weeks. She has been recuperating here for the past five weeks.

Homekeepers about town are much interested in the free distribution of dinner sets being made at Robinson's Specialty Shop. Each Friday for 15 weeks a set of dishes will be awarded to some patron of the store. The nineteenth Friday the banquet full quartered oak china cabinet now on display in one of the store windows will be given away free also. Circulars and cards explaining the terms of this free distribution may be had at the store.

C. E. House and son, Herbert B. were in Boston, Mass. Wednesday attending the opening of another of the string of Kennedy stores for men's clothing and furnishings. Mr. House is interested in several of these stores. The syndicate have places of business at Hyde Park, Beverly, Brockton, Lynn and Worcester, Mass.

The annual meeting of the South Methodist Sunday school will be held at the church parlors next Monday evening.

Representative Johnson III is entering with an attack of acute indigestion and overwork serves as his excuse for his absence. He was in Hartford Wednesday, where Representative D. Knight of Lakeville administered temporary relief. Mr. Johnson was later brought to his home in an automobile and Dr. Wilson summoned to his aid. Word received from him this morning brings the information that he is very much relieved and hopes to be himself soon.

Mr. Johnson has been working very hard in behalf of the weight of 400 lbs. of the ten-cent trolley fare bill for Manchester and is further burdened with heavy duties on legislative committee of which he is a member. Whenever Mr. Johnson has any work of this sort cut out for him he goes to it with all the energy he possesses and does not spare himself in any way. He is a highly nervous temperament and is rather impulsive and matters such as are confronting him in the present legislature bear heavily upon him. He is a very earnest worker but his health at any moment may be exposed and gives the very best that is in him to the tasks assigned to him.

Word was received here last evening that several of the cottages at Lake Wangamung were broken into last week and articles of value taken. Most of the cottages at Lake Wangamung are owned by Williamatic people were entered. It is not the fact that the Manchester cottages, which are at the north end of the lake, were entered, but several of the cottages are being investigated. The Williamatic owners have reported their loss to the state police.

Andrew and Mrs. Swanson of Arch street are rejoicing at the arrival of a new born son in their household.

ANGER. Our anger and our impatience often prove much more mischievous than the very things about which we become angry or impatient.—Marcus Aurelius.

One Year Ago

One year ago last week the grand opening of the House & Hale block for business took place and the J. W. Hale Co., and C. E. House & Son have since been open to the public and both welcome to inspect the largest merchandising project ever launched forth in South Manchester. Neither store will any goods on the opening night, it is a year-ago-ordinally-welcome occasion. An orchestra furnished and other entertainments and wreaths bedecked the two large stores electric lights in great profusion and the night was a most successful one. The store was crowded with the people and the night was a most successful one. The store was crowded with the people and the night was a most successful one.

Why We Are Called "Suckers"

In an early day when this section of Illinois was a vast open prairie there were hundreds of ponds which in the fall of the year "went dry" and these were all with crawfish which, as the water disappeared from the surface of the ground, dug after it, and when they became thirsty would procure a long straw or hollow weed, lie flat down and suck water through the straw from the crawfish holes. Thus very naturally we became known as "suckers."

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Value of Education. By DR. EDWARD L. TRUMBULL. The most and greatest need in the prevention of tuberculosis is the education of the people and through their education of the state. It is evident that if every man and woman in the world were familiar with the main facts relating to the disease in which tuberculosis is communicated and the simple measures necessary for their protection, not only might we reasonably expect as direct result of this knowledge a great diminution in the death rate of the disease, but the people would also demand and easily obtain effective legislation for its prevention and control. When a state has more educated and better informed citizens, it is more likely to have the best of laws and the best of government.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

A youth dashed into the florist's shop. "There was something wrong about the roses I bought for my wife on Lincoln avenue," he declared. "I'm sure they were sent," replied the florist. "I remember the order. You said you wanted the very cheapest ones, a dozen and a quarter. Here, Joe."

An Old Blunder

When a man is finally built the splendid naval barracks at Chatham it fitted up one of the largest rooms in the style for court martials and had "Court Martial" inscribed on a big brass plate on the door. When a report from the committee on federal relations, but it seemed to many members that it ought to have further discussion and the judiciary committee was the proper committee before which this should come. It was stated that there are many objections to the proposition in Connecticut and that extreme court desired to appear and speak against Connecticut's ratification of the amendment. The measure was finally referred to the judiciary committee, which will hold hearings on it later. The federal relations committee put up a great fight for it, but took by no means a long time to determine its attitude toward legislation concerning deer in Connecticut as it has on some matters of far less moment, chiefly, perhaps, because there was little sympathy for the bill brought in by the committee on fish and game providing for an open season of four days each year, the first in November, during which each hunter might kill one buck deer only with a shotgun, he to make prompt report to the state fish and game commission. The bill preserved the present law allowing the owner or lessee of land to kill deer found doing damage upon his property.

JULLMAN WINS IN THE SENATE

Judge Mathewson a Victor by Close Vote.

JUDGESHIPS HOLD ATTENTION.

Representative Bingham Stirrs Up the House Over Situation in Naugatuck. House Extends Close Season on Deer For Six Years—General Assembly Restricts With Deficiency Appropriations.—[Special Correspondence.]

Hartford, March 22.—Last Friday's session, the first real Friday session of the present year, seemed to have cleared the house out of most of its business, and there was very little doing yesterday. The most momentous matter was a bill providing for the wardens in the small towns and for the killing of dogs which kill sheep. Some of the farmers favored this, but there seems to have come to be a lack of desire to raise sheep in this state, and in general there was little enthusiasm for the measure. It was first rejected and then reconsidered and placed on the table.

The order of the day in the senate was the city court judgeships of Hartford and New Haven, the latter being an object of much more interest than the former, though the three senators from Hartford are opposed to the appointment of Judge Walter I. Clark, mainly on the ground that he is too puritanical in his opposition to the liberal Sunday. Two senators, Spillacy and Piasecki, are Democrats and one, Senator Hooker, whose defeat for a second term as mayor is largely laid at Judge Clark's door, is a Republican.

The judiciary committee, however, reported in favor of Judge Clark for another term, and the sharp fight which resulted in the senate showed him a winner by a vote of 16 to 12. In the New Haven matter, which is largely one of politics, Associate Judge Tyler was reported for reappointment to the judiciary committee, which voted against the reappointment of Judge A. M. Mathewson by a majority of 8 to 3 and favored instead the appointment of Howard C. Webb. Judge Mathewson had the earnest support of Colonel L. M. Ullman, the city Republican leader, before the committee, and the efforts of the friends of the two were sufficient to give Judge Mathewson the victory today by the close vote of 17 to 10. Judge Tyler was favored for reappointment by the senate. Neither judgeship has been in the house as yet.

First Friday Session.

Though last week was the first of the present session in which the general assembly has met four days, there was little effect of this shown in the business done. The house on Thursday failed altogether to touch its calendar, largely because it carried out the reputation long since gained for the prostrate house and inclined to take the longest over the smallest matters of any in recent years, and on Wednesday clearing this off. The senate had agreed not to take up any matters of moment on Friday, and hence the quorum of its members were present that day. This state of affairs will hardly last long. The house had a quorum, but not much more, and it fails to have on Friday of this week there are members ready to adjourn it at the first possible moment for the lack of a quorum.

On Wednesday the Hartford city court judgeships were the subject of some discussion in the senate, Senator Spillacy urging that there was unnecessary spending of the money of the state in the Hartford judgeships, and that the state should have more educated and better informed citizens, it is more likely to have the best of laws and the best of government.

Deficiencies Up Again.

Deficiencies amounting to considerable attention of the house on Thursday when Judge Dochick of New Haven attacked a deficiency measure taken up at that instant by the House Chairman. Knight of the appropriations committee and carrying $84,500 for the state board of education. Mr. Hebl of Ansonia made a pertinent thing during this discussion when he told the house that these deficiency appropriations, larger in amount and more in number than any other recent ones, had been made, were due to the underestimates of the last general assembly and the debts they covered were not paid.

Income Tax Amendment.

In the house an amendment to the national constitution concerning a federal income tax was discussed at length. It had been made the order of the day in that body for March 22 on a report from the committee on federal relations, but it seemed to many members that it ought to have further discussion and the judiciary committee was the proper committee before which this should come. It was stated that there are many objections to the proposition in Connecticut and that extreme court desired to appear and speak against Connecticut's ratification of the amendment. The measure was finally referred to the judiciary committee, which will hold hearings on it later. The federal relations committee put up a great fight for it, but took by no means a long time to determine its attitude toward legislation concerning deer in Connecticut as it has on some matters of far less moment, chiefly, perhaps, because there was little sympathy for the bill brought in by the committee on fish and game providing for an open season of four days each year, the first in November, during which each hunter might kill one buck deer only with a shotgun, he to make prompt report to the state fish and game commission. ## Parsons Theater

SEVEN DAYS which will be given to night and twice tomorrow at the Parsons Theater has some of the funniest complications imaginable. First a regular treatise into a home on the eve of a dinner party, when he hides himself, as the guests assemble. Then the old maid aunt of the host appears to spoil the sport. To make matters still worse, the divorced wife of the host looks in, touched by a lingering regard for her former spouse. When these ill assorted characters and several others are assembled, an Irish policeman who has been visiting the cook in the lower regions, appears and announces that the house is quarantined on account of the illness of the butler. Then the mystifications begin. For seven days the burglar lurks unseen in various hiding places pursued by the suspicious policeman; the various characters all get across purposes through the medicine of the love and the divorced couple fall in love over again and are reunited. There are spirit manifestations, psychic controls and various weird experiences, caused by the unseen burglar, as well as many other comical happenings. The play was given at Parsons last November and made a hit.

BRIGHT EYES

On Monday and Tuesday evenings the new M. G. Gaiter production of Bright Eyes will be given at the Parsons Theater for the benefit of the Police Mutual Aid Association. It is by the same authors as Three Twines, Charles Dickson having written the book. Otto Hestreich the lyrics and Karl Hoskins the music. Mr. Gaiter has provided a most complete production for Bright Eyes. The scenery is unique, each of the three sets being a masterpiece of the same painter's art and the costumes are as elaborate as anything ever seen on the road. In addition to a very large chorus, every member of which can sing and dance well, there has been engaged for the play a large and competent cast of well known players headed by Cecil Hunt and Frances Halliwell, two of the best popular comedians on the American stage.

THE HALL OF FAME

DAVID GLASGOW FARRAGUT—Celebrated admiral of civil war days. Born Cambridgeport, Mass., Sept. 7, 1810; died Portsmouth, N.H., Aug. 14, 1870. Ran the batteries at Yorktown June 28, up river, and again July 15, down river, returning to New Orleans, Aug. 5, 1864, supported by land force under General Gordon Granger. Farragut fought at entrance to Mobile bay and after a desperate struggle captured the Confederate ironclad Tennessee. This put an end to the blockade runner at Mobile.

Obituary

Alfred Munroe Thompson—Alfred M. Thompson died of heart failure and old age last Friday afternoon at his home, Highland Park. His funeral took place Monday afternoon, Rev. W. F. Davis, pastor of the South Methodist church officiating. Mr. Thompson was born at Stonington June 30, 1818, and was the youngest of seven children and survived them all. He learned the machinist trade, and at one time managed the cotton yarn with his brother, and afterwards followed his trade. He resided quite a long time in Norwich, Conn. and afterwards in Bridgeport where he worked as a machinist. About 37 years ago he came to Bolton and bought the farm where he lived for about 29 years. Wishing to be relieved of operating the farm as the labor of same was too much for him and his wife he sold the place to a New York man for a summer home and the place is now known as the "Villa Louise". He was a quiet and peaceable man, a lover of children, especially the young. To see a little child always brought a smile to his face. He joined the Methodist Episcopal church when 14 years of age and was a faithful attendant until his hearing became affected. He read much and kept posted on general affairs to a good degree requiring no glasses to read by. His father, Reubin Thompson, was a drummer when the British invaded New London. His wife was Margaret Cecilia Tryon. After leaving the farm they resided at Manchester Green for a short time. Since her death, a few years ago he has lived with his daughter, Mrs. E. C. Stanley. Two years ago the coming summer, he went to Martha's Vineyard with his daughter's family for a month and enjoyed it very much. After he had talked about the place with a guide two or three times, he acted as his own guide and went about the place as he liked to visit the church while there. The day he returned home from there happened to be his 91st birthday.

THE CYCLOPEAN EYE

It Exists Today in Rudimentary Form In Man's Brain. The Great secret, unutilized, very near an anatomical truth when they ascribed to certain monsters called cyclopes only one eye apiece, which was placed in the center of their foreheads. The cyclopaean eye exists today in the brains of men in a rudimentary form. In the pineal gland we find the last vestige of that which was once a third eye and which looked out into the world, if not from the center of the forehead, at least from very near that point. There is alive today a little creature which would put to shame the one-eyed arrogance and pride of Polyphemus and Argos and Brontes and Sisyphos and all the rest of the single-eyed gentry who, in the days of myth and myth makers, inhabited the "fair shlemmy vale." The animal in question is a small lizard called Cichla. Its well developed third eye is situated in the top of its head and can be easily seen through the middle of its forehead. This little animal is called the "sunlight scorpion" by the mountaineers. On the face of the third eye will be found lying beneath the skin. Many other invertebrates have this third eye, though it is not so fully organized as it is in the species just mentioned. A tree lizard which is to be found in the mountains of east Tennessee and Kentucky has placed them so low that they are almost level with the ground. CHAPTER XVIII. VALENTINE, as yet unaware of the presence of Rose Lane, leaped against the side of the vault, gaining for breath and endeavoring to gain firm control of himself.

As for Ned, on being confronted by Rose Lane he stopped short and gasped in alarm. "Then you saw us do it—you saw Valentine at work?"

"The girl cut him short with an upraised hand, 'Kitty, hurry, hurry!' she warned him in a low voice. 'Red continued on his way. 'Don't worry, miss. She'll be all right in a few minutes' he cried over his shoulder. The girl moved again toward the doorway whence she had retreated a moment before."

"Valentine, still oblivious to the presence of Rose, raised his hands along the edge of the vault door, his back toward the entrance leading to the room. 'I beat you! I beat you and saved the little girl from you!' he murmured. Up and down he pressed his hands against the enamelled metal. 'I beat you! I beat you!'

Slowly he turned away, and as he raised his eyes he met the implacable, scornful gaze of George Doyle. 'Valentine started back. In the shadowy vault room he thought his eyes had played him false, that he saw only a vision conjured into a temporary existence by overwrought nerves and a correspondingly disordered brain. He pressed his hand to his forehead. Then the "vision" moved toward him. Yes, it was George Doyle.

The ex-convict stood transfixed, as though an unwilling witness of a terrible inspiring tragedy. And to him the denouement was all of that. Doyle stood, his hands clasped behind his back, waiting for the other to speak. Valentine was out by the strain of the day's events, was in no mood to continue the fight against the cool, calculating, time adding detective. of his "going straight." The detective shifted uneasily on his feet as Valentine turned to him. "Yes," he finally said, with a wry, forced smile on his drawn lips. "The jig is up. Isn't that about it?"

The detective moved closer to the human prey for whom he had so long and so patiently and, so far as the government was concerned, had so expectantly sought.

"Looks that way to me, Jimmy. But remember, back there in Albany, I told you I'd get you some day unless you would do me a favor or two. Always remember that I gave you a chance to keep out of the 'pen' and you turned it down."

Valentine hung his head. Yes, he would never cease to remember the alternative of becoming a "stool pigeon" that the detective had offered him the alternative of "peaching" on old Bill Avery and going scot free—free until Doyle should command him to "turn up" some other friend and companion.

"You mean you mean just what Doyle?" he exclaimed excitedly. "I mean that the lady needs you more than Massachusetts does. You had me going all right, for awhile there today, Jimmy. But just to retain your respect don't think that I fall for that double negative photograph. With an abrupt 'Good day,' the detective swung around and disappeared through the door by which Valentine had entered—went out forever from the life of Jimmy Valentine.

Hibernian Ball The thirty-fourth annual ball given by the local Division of Hibernians at Cheney hall last Friday evening, St. Patrick's Day, attracted one of the largest gatherings of the season in that beautiful place of amusement. Guests were present from Hartford, East Hartford, Glastonbury, Rockville and Southington. The weather was charming and a right merry event ensued. The stage was prettily decorated with palms and ferns and the large American and Irish sash banners of the Division were suspended across the stage, thus demonstrating the character of the occasion. Green carnations, green ribbons, green neckwear, and green badges were prominent throughout the hall. Many of the young ladies wore green ribbons in their hair as well as green carnations and many of the young men were decorated with green carnations, green badges, etc. in honor of the feast of the patron saint of the Emerald Isle. The wearing of the green was not limited to all of the persons of Irish nationality or parentage but was worn by most of those present. It was a pretty recognition of this popular feast which is coming to be observed more and more generally throughout the length and breadth of the land. The sons and daughters of Erin by their persistence in observing traditions have brought into great popularity the wearing of the green upon St. Patrick's Day.

A Curious Calculation Ask a friend to open a book at random and select and mark any word within the first ten lines and within the tenth word from the end of the line. Now let your companion do the figuring proceed to discover the word through "the magic of numbers." Ask him to double the number of the page and multiply "the sum by 5, and then add 50. Then to add the number of the line.

To subtract from this sum 250, and tell you the result. The remainder will indicate in the units column the number of the word, and the remaining figures the number of the page.

Though you may not be able to explain this curious calculation it will always come out correctly.—Ex.

Monuments Monuments

Some reasons why you should order monuments at once: You can buy cheaper and get better work. You will keep workmen busy during the usually quiet season, being better for all lines of business to have money in circulation, as well as for the workmen.

You will not be disappointed, as will those who order late for MEMORIAL DAY. For on that day your friends will have the pleasure of seeing your work completed in the most pleasing manner and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have the very best that can be produced and at the lowest price possible, and that you have not paid out one cent until work is completed.

Both of these sales were made last Saturday.

One Good in Filmay Houses The Japanese have an earlier name than their counterparts in Europe. Crime in the land of the chrysanthemum is almost limited to theft and cases of beating, the result of street quarrels. It is used to impossible, the chief of the Tokyo police says, for a murder to be committed without some one being hit at the moment. This is due to the fact that the houses are composed of paper and bamboo, so any note in a house occupied by robbers or assassins would not fall to attract the attention of neighbors.—Dwight Advertiser.

completely made of posies, are seen. There are many beautiful blends of the colored straws. Nacre, Jumbo and Jap braids are seen in big array. With the many new styles of gowns that have been brought out this season there is of course a corresponding number of types of headgear, and no matter how a woman's fancy may run in suits or dresses she will not have the slightest difficulty in finding a hat that will harmonize with it in Wise, Smith & Co.'s showing. Every style and shape and color, from the dark little bonnets that fit so snugly about the head to the largest and most elaborate models produced by the foremost designers, may be seen displayed. The number of styles, in fact, seems to be endless. A walk through the spacious aisles of this big millinery department is certain to reveal just what any woman is looking for, no matter how her fancy runs, for all the styles are there.

Lace trimmings, feathers and butterfly effects are used much in the adornments of the hats. Marine is much in demand, and the ladies who are not favorable to marine, owing to its likelihood to fade quickly, will be interested in the new waterproof malletine shown by Wise, Smith & Co. This is the only kind of malletine now used at the millinery department. The trimmings, which are very attractively displayed include willow pumes, feathers, ostrich feathers, birds of paradise, all varieties of flowers and anything else that may be desired for trimming. The display of children's hats is unusually large. The little folk have not been forgotten, and the spring showings in this department of the millinery exhibit includes many pretty creations that will delight the children.

Decorations And Furnishings

Great strides are being made in the furnishing and decorating of average homes. Fitness is the keynote to good furnishing. The living room is superseding the more formal, and comparatively useless, company apartments, and even the casual guest has a share of the hospitality that lurks only where the household assemblies. Substantially replaces the fussy finimness of the old time reception room, and hominess rather than would be elegance characterizes

THE DUCHESSES OF ORLEANS

THE DUCHESSES OF ORLEANS, while his wife does not forget that she is a Frenchwoman, which means a member of the prodest royal house in Europe. An interesting feature of the Orleans house at Wood Norton is the gate which is opened only for the admission of royal personages. It was through this gate that ex-King Manuel of Portugal drove when he went to Wood Norton after he lost his throne. The Duke of Orleans is his uncle.

the new type of household furnishing. Fittings are carefully chosen to not only please the eye and accord with one another in color and style, but to stand wear, and minister to the comfort and ease of home living.

A Certain Spaciousness A certain spaciousness is possible even in a small apartment, where the furnishing is adapted to the rooms. The light colored wall hangings so much used now, increase the apparent size of a small house, especially if the same tone is continuously employed, as is customary in halls, or if varying tones of one color are secured by the furniture, draperies, upholstery and pictures. Grays and oyster white, and oatmeal, or brownish gray are all favorites though browns from tan to deeper tones are also much used for wall hangings.

Novelties Glass newel post tops are novel and where the house is supplied with electrically one of the new colonial style reading lamps that can be carried around at will is a much appreciated luxury.

RECENT ACCESSORIES FOR THE HAIR.

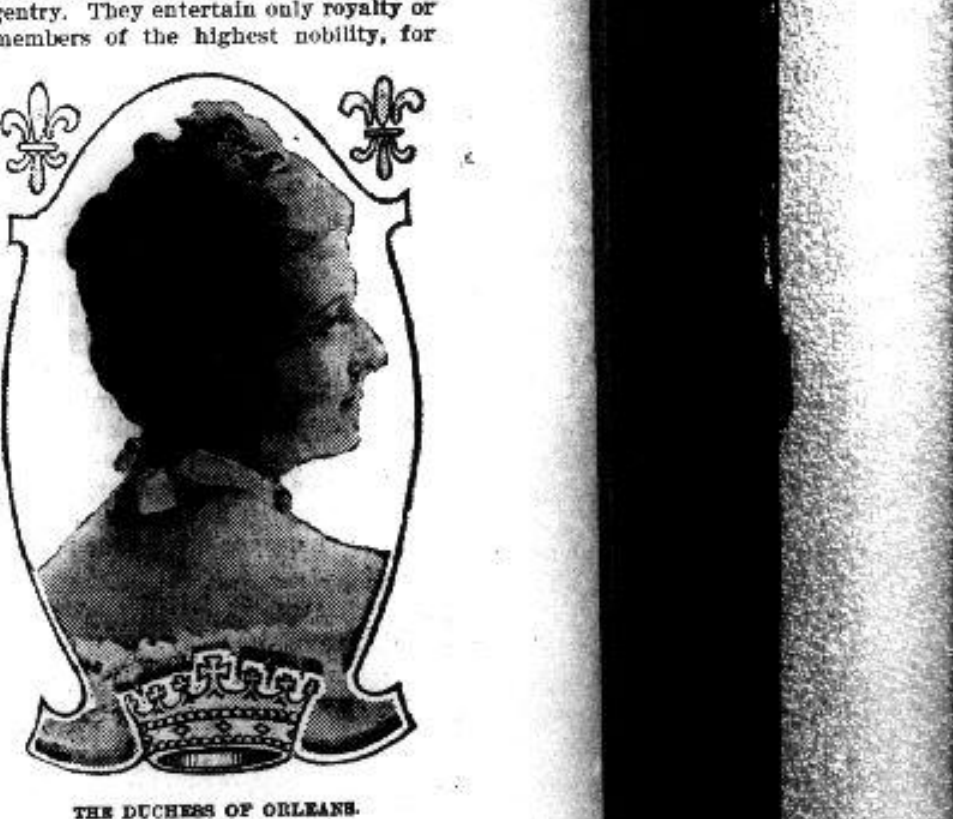

WHILE fashion continues to sanction the use of switches and transformations and puffs and rolls and other "revelations" made of one's own hair—or some one else's—to stimulate the effect of an abundant supply of hair in its natural place, pins of various sorts to hold the hair in place are needed. There are styles in these pins as well as in the hair which are intended to restrain as well as adorn. The styles

A Bull For a God. The ancient Egyptians believed that the spirit of their greatest god, Osiris, dwelt among them in the form of a pure white bull marked by a certain sign. Herodotus mentions two of these signs—a black eagle on the back and black forehead with a square of white in its center. These creatures when found were worshipped during life and mummified after death.

SHE IS RIGHTFUL QUEEN OF FRANCE

At Least That Is What the Royalists Consider the Duchess of Orleans—Mrs. Maud Oser of the World's Peace Leaders. If the French were to decide suddenly that forty years of republican government in an unbroken stretch were all they cared for (this year will occur the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of the third French republic) and wanted to call back to the throne the Bourbons, of whom they tired more than once, the lady who would reign on the throne of Marie Antoinette would be Mary Drouhot, now Duchess of Orleans. She is the wife of the Orleanist pretender to the throne and is an Austrian archduchess, or princess of the Imperial Austrian house, by birth. She is a second or third cousin of the aged Emperor Francis Joseph.

The Duke of Orleans and his wife make their home in a beautiful country mansion in Worcestershire, England. They maintain a semiregular state and mingle very little with the county gentry. The Orleans family only rarely or members of the highest nobility, for

So Care For the Worthy Helpless. A private association of wealthy and well known women of New York, with Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Miss Dorothy Whitney at their head, has been organized to care for and protect little girls of the Protestant faith who are likely to become public wards of the city.

Instead of sending them to public institutions and similar charitable places, they are treated as a collection of humanity. These women philanthropists will try to keep as many of the girls as possible in the better surroundings of home life, provide them with clothing and food and afford them an equal chance with their more fortunate sisters to get at least a primary education.

To keep the poverty stricken but worthy family with young daughters from being separated and the home broken up will be one of the first aims of this private benevolence. In the case of a worthy widow or of parents where the husband, because of illness, may not be able to support his home and young daughters such aid will be given as to enable them to keep up the family ties, their little home and keep their girls under their personal care.

Mrs. M. W. Evans, formerly a professional officer for the Children's society in the children's court, has resigned her position to take charge of the new welfare work for girls. Miss Lucia Ames Mead of Boston is one of the people's leading peace advocates. She says war, so far from producing a survival of the fittest, produces a survival of the unfit. She grants that some have been removed by tyrants and injustice, have freed slaves and advanced civilization, but had the more less immature these results could have been achieved by other methods, she says, especially by economic compulsion.

A Real "Little Woman." Probably one of the smallest people in the world is Mrs. Maud Oser, who recently went from Hungary to England for the purpose of buying her trousseau. She is twenty-six years old and twenty-six inches high. She is perfectly proportioned and dresses beautifully. She is extremely accomplished, and besides her own language, Hungarian, can speak English, French and German.
