then this argument fails, but few people care to pay more than is

We buy direct and carry the leading manufacturers goods, but they are goods made up for other dealers who have failed to take them. This does not mean that they are last years goods. Orders for shoes are taken in the fall for the following spring and summer stock. Between the placing of the order and the spring delivery the goods are made up, but there are failures and changes which occur leaving the goods made up on the manuacturers hands. Styles change every season so that they cannot carry them over to another season and dispose of them at an underprice in large lumps. The shoes are not the worse for the change of customers, it is the manufacturers that are the losers ou are the gainers. THINK IT OVER.
