Values Going Up.

REAL ESTATE values in Manchester in the vicinity of the Center are bound to go up. Now is the time to buy either for home or for speculation. There are a nice single tenement house with all the improvements in the best of condition which is being offered at a bargain. A two family house of six rooms each, lights, bath and all that can be bought for $3,200 right in the same neighborhood. Two family houses close to the mills that are bound to increase in value can also be found on my list. These are opportunities that should not be overlooked.

PUBLIC MEETING

Robert W. Chambers and Miss Rebecca Hewitt, daughter of Mark and Mrs. Hewitt of Hill street were married at the parsonage of the North Methodist church Fourth of July afternoon by Rev. W. F. Taylor. They were unattended. They are now on their honeymoon and are expected to return tomorrow. They will be based on Birch street for the present and later will take up housekeeping.

AUTO HITS GIRL

Herman Schultz of This Place Meets Unfortunate Accident
While driving his automobile on Central Row in Hartford early last evening Herman Schultz, the contractor and builder of Ridge street this place, struck Miss Clara Fleischer, a fourteen year old girl and sustained serious injuries. Mr. Schultz rendered all the assistance he could, and the girl was later taken to the Hartford hospital. Mr. Schultz was placed under arrest and later was released under a bond of $50 furnished by a Hartford party.

At the time of the accident Mr. Schultz was proceeding west on Central Row, after turning from American Row, where he had to stop his machine to allow a team to pass him. In the auto with him was his wife and two children, and Mrs. Henry C. Beckman, Mr. Schultz was driving across the street and sounded his horn. He steered his machine so that it would pass the girl in the rear. When the girl heard the horn and saw the machine coming instead of continuing across the street, she started back and Mr. Schultz could not stop his auto in time to avoid a collision. The little girl came from New York and was on a visit with her mother. Mr. Schultz was in the Hartford police court this morning and his case was adjourned to await the outcome of the girl's injuries.

ORGAN DEDICATED

St. Marys Church Has Fine New Instrument
The new organ which was recently installed in St. Marys church was dedicated last evening before a large gathering of the parishioners. The new organ was built by the Austin Organ Company of Hartford and costs about $3,300. The money for the organ was raised by donations and a special collection. Joseph W. Adams, the organist and choir director of the church, assisted by the choir, rendered the following program which was much enjoyed and which showed the capabilities of the organ in a fine manner. Prelude, "Danquise d'Amour," Lomata, Professional hymn 510.
(a) "At Evening," (Idylle) Buck,
(b) Pastoral Symphony from the Messiah.
(c) "Austrian Folk Songs," arranged by Joseph W. Adams.
Offertory, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," march from Athalia, Mendelssohn.
Recessional Hymn 520
Postlude, Grand March from "Queen of Sheba" Gounod.

Band Concerts Again

Through the kindness of the family of Mrs. Susan J. Cheney another series of band concerts has been arranged to be given in the Center park. The Military Band of Manchester will furnish the music for the concerts, the first of which will be given next Wednesday evening. Leader Arvid Weiman has arranged to increase the size of his band for these concerts and will render the newest music. The program for next Wednesday evening's concert follows:
March . . . National Guard . . . Mackie Overture . . . Echoes from the Opera . . . Meyer
Medley March . . . Steamboat Bill . . . Haest

Lieutenant Harry Bissell

At a special meeting of Company G held Wednesday evening, Sergeant Harry Bissell was elected to the second lieutenantcy of the company. He has already taken the examinations for the office and will receive his commission forthwith. Lieutenant Bissell has been a member of the company for the past four years and has a noticeable military bearing which he inherits from his father, the late Captain Charles L. Bissell, who was captain of Company G for a number of years.

Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT!

In the Ralston last every curve, every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say "Prove it." We'll welcome the opportunity.

Income Tax Turned Down.
Senate Refuses to Ratify by 20 to 8.
ASSEMBLY MAY ADJOURN SOON

Effort to Fix Date as July 27—Several Plans For Redistricting State—Sunday Law Reported—Taxation of Municipal Water Plant.

(Special Correspondence)
Hartford, July 5.—With the retirement of the vexed public utilities question from the spot light there is brought forward by Senator Judson the novel proposition that the Connecticut general assembly shall fix a date for its next adjournment and then adjourn at that time whether it has finished its business or not, and he intimates that the proper way to go about this is to handle the larger matters first. His resolution fixes July 27 for adjournment sine die of the senate, and the two houses have to adjourn together, so that if the senate passes the resolution, which it is to discuss and vote on this afternoon, the house will practically be obliged to take some action looking to the same thing.

To be sure, the house doesn't need to pass this date, but can pass any date should, and a committee of conference between the two bodies what date shall be that of final adjournment. But Senator Judson's move given rise to the hope that the termination of the session may be easier than has seemed to be the case. Under the usual methods of dilatory procedure, which have been fully as much in evidence this session as ever, there are easily three months' more work for the two houses—at three days a week. To get through by the 1st of August will mean rushing everything and undoubtedly leaving some matters unattended to.

May Recede Until Fall.
There has been a growing sentiment in favor of a recess until next fall, but last week the house voted this down by a vote of nearly two to one, so that would seem very difficult to get that body to consider such a thing, and the senators would rather finish without a recess if possible. When the house passes the date, however, it is possible that a different view of this phase of the question may be found to prevail. One great difficulty lies in the fact that members cannot draw their $300 until the end of the session, and the attaches of the two houses are not supposed to, though this can be fixed up.

One interesting matter which came to the front last week is redistricting the state so as to make five congressional districts, which Senator Barham's committee has been wrestling with. Several plans have been proposed, two or three by Republicans and at least one by Democratic members of the committee. Senator Platt Waterbury is a member of the committee and has a plan which is quite favored. It does not provide for five Republican districts, as has been stated, and this cannot be done by a reasonable division.

Senator Platt's plan puts Windham, New London, Middletown and Tolland counties into one district, most of Hartford county in another. New Haven city and enough of the rest of the county to make about 225,000 people, not including Waterbury, Meriden and a slice along the northern border of the county, in another; Waterbury, Meriden and some southern towns in Hartford county; some northern towns in Fairfield county, and Hitchfield county in another, and the rest of Fairfield county in the fifth. The New Haven and Fairfield county districts would be debatable ground. The others would be surely Republican unless there are important changes in the income.

Income Tax Badly Beaten.
Last week, Wednesday the senate disposed of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution, which was considered it got into the constitution. It has never been supposed to have any chance in the house, but there give the farmers a chance at last work done for it in the senate would cause its passage there, especially as there was a strong minority in the house. The senate has voted the amendment. Senator Judson led the fight against it, not because he opposed an income tax so much as that he believes, with many others, that it should be levied by the state if levied at all. Senator Brinsmade and Senator Mitchell opposed it at some length. Most of the Democrats voted against it, and it was defeated by a roll call vote of 20 to 8.

Something of a monetary sensation was caused when Senator Judson charged that the origin of the amendment was sinister and a part of the unholy coalition which have the foot of the act and Senator Veau jumped to his feet to ask if the senator from the Twenty-fifth charged that President Taft was a party to the bargain. Senator Judson said he did not, but intimated that he had knowledge of it.

On Thursday of last week Lieutenant Governor Blackwelder gave an exhibition of the ease with which well laid plans may go astray. Senators Veau and Spelacy were trying to get up for action under a suspension of the rules a measure abolishing the office of state building and loan commissioner, and Lieutenant Governor Blackwelder commented somewhat critically on the hasty methods of the senate, with the result that a bill concerning county homes for the aged and infirm, which would be to continue the present commission in office instead of giving Governor Baldwin a chance to appoint another commissioner in place of Major George E. Hall of New Haven, became the subject of a successful movement for recall from the house worked up by these two senators.

Major Hall is the lieutenant governor's son-in-law. When the senate got the bill back from the house it was tabled for printing, and later in the day Governor Baldwin, who is in the name of Dr. E. J. Maher of New Haven, a member of the original tuberculosis commission, in place of Major Hall. The lieutenant governor did not keep the secret proper of the bill when he commented on its hasty passage under suspension of the rules.

Governor's Senate Nominations.
The senate on Thursday considered much of the matter on its calendar and the house did the same, though the latter did an especially important and somewhat important matter on the speaker's absence because of illness was provided against by the election of Representative Thomas of Waterbury speaker pro tem.

Governor Baldwin sent to the senate the nominations of William G. Caldwell of New Britain and Thomas F. Noone of Rockville as new members of the state commission on rivers and harbors and nominated Edward H. Warner of Hartford and Oliver Gildersleeve of Portland for four years each.

There came into the senate on this day from the special commission which has been investigating state department and commissions a number of measures providing for the abolition of the state dairy and food commission, the commissioner on domestic and foreign trade, and the commissioner on all on adverse reports. Some of these measures resulted from recommendations in the inaugural message of Governor Baldwin. All were made the order of the day for the senate for tomorrow at 11:30.

On Thursday the senate had up the resolution, which would take the appointment of justices of county courts from the high sheriffs of the county and give it to the county commissioners. This is the measure which caused so much commotion in the house and was finally indefinitely postponed because more than half the sheriffs are Democrats, while all of the county commissioners are Republicans. The senate debated it at some length and then concurred with the house action.

The house got back from the senate the measure concerning the taxation of land taken by municipalities for water supply and after some discussion voted to insist on its action in amending this so as to provide for its taxation of the streets or on the basis fixed by local authorities and ask for a committee of conference.

Messrs. Carey of Southington and Stages of Waterbury, who were appointed house conferees. The senate passed the measure as it came from the committee on finance, providing that this land be based on an average valuation for farming land in the town.

No Reduced Trolley Fares.
A dozen or fifteen measures reducing trolley fares in different parts of the state were reported unfavorably by the railroads committee, which has been holding them up to see what would become of the public utilities commission matter and were at length made the order of the day for today. The house also received a new Sunday law from the judiciary committee, which will permit sports and recreations which are lawful week days except where an admission fee is charged or a charge is made for participation in them. There is little change from the present Sunday law except in these particulars.

An effort was made to adjourn over from last week to next week Tuesday instead of meeting this week at all and thus give the farmers a chance at their saying and make it easier to stay through until the session can adjourn because it has actually completed its business, and it looked for a time as though this might pass, though the house got into something of a mix-up over it and was at one time in danger of meeting on the Fourth of July. This was finally lost, and adjournment was taken to this morning. The senate has voted a Friday session for this week.

How It Went.
Once upon a time there was a Rabbit that took a Drink of Whisky of the kind that is said to make a Rabbit fight a Bulldog. He did not like the first Bulldog he met and was promptly slain. The Bulldog had just taken a Drink of the same kind of Whisky.

Moral—From this we should learn that a Drink is only good, when it will go, and when we meet with a Fool we should be certain to have the Fool to fool with—Puck.

"FREEZE" AND "BURN."
These Two Words Had a Common Parent in One Aryan Root

We are likely to consider "freeze" and "burn" as two distinctly opposite effects, but if, for a simple experiment, you will touch your tongue to a bit of heated iron and to a bit of iron that is extremely cold the effects, as shown in the blisters produced and in the sensation of the contacts, will be found to be surprisingly alike.

It is doubtful if our Aryan ancestors when they were planting the seed of the English and its sister languages thought of the scientific relations of what we call heat and cold, but they gave us the root "prun" which they got out of the sensations produced by burning and freezing. As usual, Aryan roots beginning with the "p" sound change it to "f" on the tongues of the Teutons; so with these our more modern ancestors "prun" became "frun" and from it came our "freeze" and "frost." Again, as is usual, our Hindi brother in his Sanskrit usually preserves the Aryan "p" sound, so he has from this root "prun," meaning to burn.

This root of freeze became "frossa" in Anglo-Saxon, which is the source of "fross" in Icelandic; it became "frossa" in Swedish "frysa" and in Danish "fryse." In the Latin the original "p" sound is retained in "prunus," signifying a burning coal. Here we see uniting two apparently opposite effects, growing out of the old root "prunus." New York Herald.

COLOR BLINDNESS.
The Incident That Opened John Dalton's Eyes to His Affliction.

John Dalton, the famous English chemist and natural philosopher, without whose discovery of the laws of chemical combination chemistry as an exact science could hardly exist, was wholly color blind. His knowledge of the fact came about by a happening of the sort which we call chance. On his mother's birthday, when he was a man of twenty-six, he took her a pair of stockings which he had seen in a shop window, labeled "blue," the newest fashion.

"These has bought me a pair of grand hose, John," said the mother, "but what made these fancy such a bright color? Why, I can never show myself at meeting in them."

John was much disconcerted, but he did not think of his affliction until he was told that he had been in a shop window, labeled "blue," the newest fashion.

"Why, they're as red as a cherry, John," was her astonished reply.

Neither he nor his brother Jonathan could see anything but dark in the stockings, and they retired in the belief that the good wife's eyes were out of order until she, having consulted various neighbors returned with the verdict, "Varrs fine stuff, but uncommon scarlet."

The sequence was that John Dalton became the first to direct the attention of the scientific world to the subject of color blindness.

THE DRINK CALLED COFFEE.
Here is the Way They Made It in the West

There are in existence in Great Britain a few copies of an ancient cookbook, published in 1662, that gives us the recipe for the first English recipe for coffee. The recipe reads:

"To make the drink that is now much used in the West Indies, take the coffee berries as they are bought at any Druggist, about seven shillings the pound. This what quantity you please, put in a clean earthen or iron old frying pan, keep them always stirring until they are quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth that it is black within as it is without, yet if you exceed, then do you waste the Oyl. If it is less, then will it not do. Live it up, and if you should content coffee fire till it be white it will then make no coffee, but only give you its salt. Beat and force through a lawn sieve.

"Take clear water and boil one-third full away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee and boil it gently one hour, and it will be ready for use. Put in one-quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it. It doth abate the fury and sharpness of the Arteries, which is the gender of the Diseases called Crickets."

Best the Bank's System.
The boy entered the Cleveland bank and laid a half dollar with his bank book on the receiving teller's window. "We don't receive deposits of less than a dollar," said the teller. The boy yielded reluctantly to the system and drew back. But he did not leave the bank. He crossed the corridor and seated himself on a settee. The teller noticed him sitting there and also noticed the reflection on his face. The boy waited for some time, thinking it over. Finally he arose and went to the paying teller's window. A dollar and a half he deposited with the teller. "I want to deposit this dollar and a half," he said. The teller noticed the boy had just drawn a dollar from his little bank and was using it as an entering wedge for the rejected half dollar. And so the system of the reflexive look on his face. AFRICAN LIONS.
They Often Hunt in Couples to Start and Capture Their Prey.

Lions in Africa go hunting often in couples and then capture their prey singly. When, for instance, a couple of lions have traced out a kael—that is to say, a place fenced by small trees or thorn trees, whose flocks of asses or oxen, goats or sheep are shut up for the night—the lionesses approach cautiously, watching every tree or bush and hide itself. At the same time the lion himself lies watching on the opposite side of the enclosure.

Now the lioness exerts herself to arouse the cattle—which is not difficult, as they become excited merely by the rustling of every tree or bush. The lioness appears and has her share of the meal. Very often they cannot get into the enclosure by any other means, they come back to the place where the remains are on the following or the second night.

The lion's favorite food is zebra, quagga (of which there are few left in Africa) and wild ass. The meat of these three kinds of animals is something alike in taste.

English Clay Pipes.
The clay pipe, which is vanishing from the Fleet street chophouse, was the only variety smoked in this country until quite recent times. The clay pipe made its appearance in England in the latter years of the sixteenth century. It was first made in the town of Staffordshire, which has been famous for its pipes and clay from the days of Elizabeth. "I was a Peun of the Sovereigns here," "Now all the clay of which white pipes are manufactured comes from Newton Abbot and Kingsbridge in Devonshire, and is sent to all parts of England and the world in rough lumps about the size of quarter loaves, and weighing some twenty-eight pounds each."—London Spectator.

DRUGS OF ANTIQUITY.

The Dozes That Menkind Swallowed Thousands of Years Ago. It is admitted that the oldest medical work known to the human race was discovered by Georg Ebers in his journey to Egypt in 1872. It is a scroll twenty yards long and a foot wide and has been studied and translated by Von Oefele and reviewed by Von Lippmann. It was written about 2500 B. C. through some of the material of which it is a compilation dates back to about 3700 B. C.

GIBRALTAR

The "Key of the Mediterranean" Has Had a Stormy History. England has been in possession of the rocky promontory of Gibraltar since 1704. From that time to this it has been a crown colony under the administration of a governor. By reason of its important strategic position it is called the "key of the Mediterranean."

When Clark Alvord read the other petition, calling for double tracking the line from McKee switch to Love Lane, for the permission to construct a bridge over the Hookamann river and for a siding on West Center street, the opposition started. Warren P. Bristol who was present in the interest of the company stated that the petition was presented with a view of giving the public in this place a fifteen minute service. Most of the land required for double tracking was on land owned by the company. The track would be laid south of the present track.

E. L. G. Henthall said he was opposed to granting the petition as it called for laying the tracks on the side of the road, whereas they should be in the center of the street. He was in the center of the street. He was in the center of the street. He was in the center of the street.

At the time Dewey captured the Philippine Islands there was only one lighthouse in operation in the Philippines. It was situated on the island of Palawan and marking the entrance between the China sea and the Indian sea. As is the custom in time of war, the Spanish authorities had ordered all lighthouses to have their lights extinguished. It was discovered that an attack on Manila was threatened by the American army. It appears that Dewey's advance guard was at the lighthouse mentioned above, where the order was never received. The keeper of the light kept his light burning up to the time of the capture of the island.

Fourteen. Fourteen is a social system founded by Charles Fourier, born in France 1772, died 1843. Fourier advocated cooperative industrial, agricultural and domestic work. He proposed to organize into "phalanges" the phalange was to number about 1,000 persons, who were to live in a common building, with a certain portion of soil for cultivation. The staple industry was to be agriculture, but the phalange groups might devote themselves to such as were best suited to their tastes. Several attempts were made to carry out Fourier's theories, but the result in each case was failure. -New York American.

White and bold the company strictly to

Mr. Henthall said that while he knew that the selectmen could do as they pleased in the matter of the petition presented he hoped that they would consider the wishes of the people. He said that E. L. G. Henthall was to have a double track and it was to be in the center of the street. That was where it should be. The state was to spend several thousand dollars on a highway and the tracks should be in the center of the street and the company should help in the maintenance of the highway. Mr. Henthall said that if the selectmen were to do as he suggested he would be glad to do so. Mr. White was 30 years of age and is married by his husband and five children. Her mother also survives.

"My wife said that three of her girl friends are trying to play with my wife's hair. I saw a sight that made me think that the pack of cards was in my hand. I saw a Spanish cavalier."

HE WON THE HOUSE

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the Civil War. He had gone south with his company and, yielding some what to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray." The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous enterprise. Tony Hart was wearing the Confederate gray, so he hunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and with his cap marching down, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the home, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy, Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting for a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved. Harrigan, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to the young girl who seemed to be the fairest of the fair, and said, "You give the Yankee a hand?" He exclaimed: At once the house was lighted and all the fairest of the fair, and ever since was my life.

BLUNDER

Being a Tale of the Restoration of Charles II. It was the year that King Charles came over the water to take his rightful place on the throne of England. All was good cheer and merry-making for the people of London, who had long endured the pains of the Roundheads, were beside themselves with joy at the change. The day the king entered London, while his majesty was passing through the streets, a young girl, who had been watching him from a window, saw him and was so struck by his appearance that she went to the window and looked down at him. She saw a young girl who seemed to be the fairest of the fair, and ever since was my life.

RULE OF THE ROAD.

Decided Aboard by the Board and Here by the Gun. Several travelers were seated in the hotel lobby discussing the difference in customs of the various countries they had visited. "What struck me most peculiar abroad," said one, "is the custom of keeping to the left instead of the right, as we do here. Why is that?" "I can explain that," said a reserved looking man in the corner. "In medieval and later periods abroad men were in the custom of wearing swords. The sword was worn, as it is now, on the left side. Consequently the people were to keep to the right with the right hand, and to get quickly upon guard a man had to have his right side to his opponent; hence the custom of keeping to the left."

Romance of a Shadow.

It is hard to believe that a shadow is probably the origin of all astronomical, geometrical and geographical science. The first man who tried his staff perpendicularly in the ground and measured its shadow was the earliest computer of time, and the Arab who measured the length of the shadow of a gnomon is the founder of trigonometry. In this case the gnomon is a human stick supported on forked uprights and points north or south. East and west are the points of the shadow. Men With Green Hair.

"Copper is scarce," said a broker, "and there is still enough of it left to turn the copper worker's hair green." "His hair green?" "Precisely. In those copper districts where the ore is of a low grade it is roasted in open furnaces to refine it and make it more marketable. A gas emanates from the furnaces that turns the firemen's hair a bright green, this green gas is called 'green gas' and when I should have advanced with me so speedily, especially since there was no opposition to our fancy, for notwithstanding that my hair had turned into its natural color, my hair had not been contacted, and I was just coming of age to inherit them. I had never before seen a man with green hair on my head, and I was so struck by the sight that I took it into my head to try it myself. I had never before seen a man with green hair on my head, and I was so struck by the sight that I took it into my head to try it myself."

A Request.

"I shall never forget," says the eminent man of wealth during the course of his little speech on "How to Become a Millionaire," "the day when I saved my first hundred dollars." At this juncture a weary individual in the audience, who has heard this story many times and has read it many times more, interrupts: "Well, if you can't forget it, for heaven's sake give the rest of us a chance too." -Chicago Post.

A Friendly Tip.

Sapiently - "Would you advise me to - er - marry a beautiful girl or a sensible girl? Hammersley - 'm afraid you'll never be able to marry either. Old man Sapiently - 'Why not? Hammersley - 'Well, a beautiful girl could do better and a sensible girl would know better." -Exchange.

All They Could Find.

"What's all that noise in the next room?" "My wife said that three of her girl friends are trying to play with my wife's hair. I saw a sight that made me think that the pack of cards was in my hand. I saw a Spanish cavalier."

Wedding Anniversary

August and Mrs. Weiman of 378 South Main street celebrated their wedding anniversary recently. The event being attended by upwards of 100 of their old Swedish friends. It was arranged in the form of a surprise party. The event had been deferred because of the recent illness of Mrs. Weiman but nevertheless was the more heartily enjoyed by the large attendance. They brought along a beautiful supply of good things to eat and served a royal feast. Weiman and Brooker furnished brass, string and vocal music. Mr. Weiman himself had been a choir leader for twenty years and he entertained the company with a number of old time vocal selections. As a kind remembrance of the joyous event Mr. and Mrs. Weiman were presented with a silver tea set, each piece of which had their initials engraved thereon. They were also presented with a beautiful parlor clock and a dozen solid silver spoons. The presentation address was made by Ernest Lundin who also read a poem and the crowd did not run behind the bride and groom. A whole passed off very joyfully, and was heartily appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Weiman. Japanese lanterns were hastily put into commission and the music of old time vocal selections was quite attractive looking.

Trolley Cars Collide

Two trolley cars were in collision in Woodland Sunday evening. The cars were well filled with passengers at the time, but only one passenger was seriously hurt. He was Howard Hayes of Hartford. His left leg was broken and he was hurt about the back. He also had several cuts and bruises. An order of the Connecticut company requires all west bound cars to come to a complete stop before crossing the railroad tracks at Woodland. The first car was stopped, but the second car which was in charge of a Hartford crew, came down the hill at a good clip and before the first car could be started sufficiently the trailer bumped into it. Mr. Hayes was lying in the front seat of the trailer and was thrown out on the street. The other passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. The first car was not damaged very much but the trailer was put out of commission.

WHISTLER WAS INDIGNANT.

The idea of buying his pictures and then demanding possession. A certain lady, who is the proud possessor of a fine picture, the artist of which was Whistler's genius, who admitted Whistler's genius to the extent of purchasing several of his pictures, was once in possession of her property. One day she drove to the studio in her victoria. "Dear lady," returned Whistler, "you ask the impossible. I will send it to you when I have it again, but it is not here. You have been misinformed." And so forth, and so forth, to the same effect, and the lady drove off without her picture.
