Silk Mill Notes
 The machinery is being moved into Cheney Brothers new dressing mill on Pine street and same is being operated.
 The work of getting the extra mill into operation is being pushed along with all possible expedition and soon
 all the machinery will have been transferred from the dressing mill on Elm street.

The grounds around the new dressing
 mill on Pine street corner of Cooper
 Hill are being graded and grassed down.
 By next season they will present a nice green sward even as may be found surrounding all the other mills of Cheney Brothers.

The concrete sidewalks that were torn up on Pine street to make room for placing the electric light wires underground and also for the other improvements made on Pine street are being restored.

The highway on Cooper Hill street extending west from Pine has been torn up for the purpose of placing various pipes, wires etc. underground.

For the past year the highways in the vicinity of Pine street, Hartford road and Cooper Hill street have been more or less broken by the placing of a storm sewer, of water pipes, of electric conducts, etc. all of which are now practically in order and the streets in that vicinity are being brought up to their normal condition.

Additional work is being built to the west mills on Pine street by putting in brick structures in the open courts separating the mills. Business in the vest department has been expanding steadily and the demand for increasing room because so urgent that it had to be supplied. These conditions are very favorable indeed and it is earnestly hoped that they may be continued.

New steam pipes with patented wood castings are being laid to supply steam to the various mills on Elm and Pine streets taking the place of the old system of pipes. These wooden castings are covered with tar, are made of joined boards and will last underground for an indefinite period, thereby doing much to economize the use of steam in heating the various mills.

The old furnace which has supplied heat to the Cooper Hill school has been removed and the new system of steam pipes with their wooden castings is now employed to convey steam to the school.
 The supply will come through the regular channels from the adjacent silk mills.

A Good Circus
 The Sautelle Circus played to good business on the Hollister lot here last Saturday afternoon and evening. Both performances were well attended. All the admission sitings were occupied and large numbers stood up during the performance rather than pay the additional fee for reserved sitings. Creditable performances were given both afternoon and evening which were well appreciated and heartily applauded by the spectators. This was the first visit of the Sautelle circus and should it chance to visit its tents here next year it is assured of increased attendance as its fame was greatly augmented on closer acquaintance.

Big Water Tower
 Cheney Brothers are erecting a large water tower near the southwest corner of the new dressing mill which has just been built on Pine street, corner of Cooper Hill. The tower will be taken on from the engine room on Forest street corner of Elm to be pumped up into this huge water tank; underground pipes for which have just been laid. It is estimated that there has been a wastage of approximately 90,000 gallons of water a day there, which was permitted to flow into Roaring brook near the East paper mill of the Rogers Paper Manufacturing Company. This excess of water is to be brought to the tower covers indicated above and will be used to flush the toilets in the adjacent silk and velvet mills. This will be an important addition to the water supply of this community and will be found
 very acceptable indeed.

PHILIPPINE VOLCANOS.
 Mayon is the Most Famous, and the Taal Comes Next.
 The most famous Philippine volcano and one of the finest volcanic cones in the world is that of Mayon. Its height is 8,970 feet, and the volcano is visible at a great distance. Since 1766 records have been kept of its eruptions. In that year many plantations and villages were buried under a stream of lava which flowed down its eastern slope. About 1,500 lives were lost in the eruption of 1814, which buried the country around a part of the base of Mayon under the outpourings of lava and dust. A similar calamity in 1825 destroyed the lives of about 1,500 persons. In the nineteenth century there were a number of severe eruptions, including one in 1863 which continued about nine months. An eruption in 1897 killed 300 persons and destroyed much property. Twenty-two violent eruptions of this volcano are on record.

Next to Mayon the Taal volcano is the most remarkable. It is on an island in the lake of Bombon, and the island, built up by its outpourings, has an area of 220 square miles. The volcano is incessantly ejecting dust and vapor from its crater. Taal as well as Mayon has been the center of numerous destructive earthquakes, but no very great eruption has occurred since 1894, when four villages around the mountain were completely destroyed.

LENGTHY VISITS.
 The Unattended Hospitality of Old Virginia.
 Virginia hospitality is a byword. The old time country house, says Mrs. Roger A. Fry in "My Day," was built of elastic material, capable of sheltering any number of guests, many of whom remained all summer. Indeed, this was expected of them.

"My dear sir," said the genial master of Westover to a departing guest who had sought shelter from a rain storm, "my dear sir, do stay and pay us a visit."

"The guest replied business that for his home's compliance.

"Well, well," said Major Dewey, "if you can't pay us a visit come for two or three weeks at least."

"Week ends" were unknown in Virginia, and equally out of the question an invitation limited by the host to prescribed days and hours. Sometimes a happy guest would ignore time altogether and stay along from season to season. I cannot remember a parallel case to that of Isaac Watts, who, invited by Sir Thomas Abney to spend a night at Stoke Newington, accepted with great cheerfulness and stayed the rest of his life, nearly forty years, but I do remember that an invitation for one night brought to a member of our

Base Ball
 The St. Mary team defeated the Veedler team of Hartford on the Hallister grounds Labor Day morning in a close and interesting game by a score of 4 to 3. Both pitchers kept their hits well scattered. Bentley, the visiting pitcher fanned 11 of the Saints; and Lamproch, who twirled in McGonigal's place struck out eight of the visitors.

The Swatkins put it all over the Glass-hury team in the latter place last Saturday by a score of 10 to 1. The Giastromby tally came in the eighth inning, after two were down and it was made on a home run drive by Pollard. The Swatkins hammered Phillips out of the box and he was succeeded by Pollard who was not much of an improvement. The Giastromby team played a miserable fielding game, having 11 errors.

A daughter was born last Sunday to Conductor and Mrs. Charles Howard of Manchester Green.

Box Social
 A box social will be held at the Swedish Congregational church Wednesday, September 13, beginning at 7:45 o'clock, the proceeds of which are to be used for the purpose of purchasing coal for the church for the coming winter. Vocal and instrumental music will be rendered, recitations given and an address made by Rev. John Tinnel, who is substituting for Rev. F. E. Nordberg, the pastor. It will be remembered that Rev. Mr. Nordberg with his family went to Sweden several months ago and it is not known at this writing when they shall return.

Picturing the Face.
 "Why do you photographers always photograph the left side of the face by preference?"
 "Because it's the best looking," was the prompt reply. "The left side of the face is always the more regular, and it always shows least the marks of time."

"But," he continued, "if you want to bring out the real character of a face photograph the right side. There nature sets her print. There the lines are bold and unmistakable. There every defect, no less than every excellence, is stamped deep."

"The left side, where everything is softened down for beauty. The right side, where everything is well rubbed in, for character. Those are the portrait artist's two chief rules."—New York Tribune.

Her Importance.
 Herbert Spencer once told this story of a woman of his acquaintance: "Fate as well as vulgar minded, she professed to have a high admiration of Shakespeare and was partial to reading his plays aloud and considered that she declaimed the speeches extremely well. On one occasion, after enlarging upon her reverence for him, she ended by saying: 'Ah, I often wish that he were alive and that I had him here. How we would enjoy one another's conversation!'"

Sure to Know.
 "I understand that you have bought some remarkably expensive goods here in Paris."

"Yes, but what's the use? Few people know whether a gown is really expensive or not."

"Wait until you reach the customs inspectors."—Pittsburg Post.

MONTHLY MEETING

Board of Selectmen Held Tuesday Evening

The regular monthly meeting of the board of selectmen was held in the hall of Records Tuesday evening following the public hearing on the proposed highway...

De Fontaine picked it up with the intention of continuing the fight, but his second interposed, claiming that it was not now his part to fight.

Chairman Cheney explained that all the money appropriated for extra street lighting had been expended and that unless an extra appropriation was made at the annual to meet for lights there could be no additional lights installed.

Regarding sidewalks he said that the town would give them a grade by the curb and install the gutters but that it would be the property owners to maintain the sidewalks in front of their own premises.

Chairman Cheney said that the town had only been accepted by the town three years ago but during that time $100,000 had already been expended on improvements on that street.

Mr. Blinn said that the town wanted a lot of money on the streets when it attempted to make improvements there when the frost was in the ground.

It is probable that the residents of the town would like to see the improvement made for a Superintendent Ulrich said that the street was in need of attention but that it would be the property owners to maintain the sidewalks in front of their own premises.

Chairman Cheney read the resignation of John F. Sheridan as chief of the Manchester police department. Chief Sheridan asked that his resignation be dated October first and he thanked the board for its many courtesies to him and the fairness it had shown him during his term as a member of the police department.

A FISH STORY.

The Man Who Told It Said It Was Simply a True Narrative. A man who formerly was a waiter on a big restaurant here told this story the other day.

On a certain trip over I had at my table an irascible old gentleman who was a fish dealer. No matter what the weather he always insisted on having the porthole over the table open. It was no use to argue with him, but one day when the seas were very high and the ship pitching and rolling I ventured to remonstrate.

When a bear smelt the meat from afar he would climb up the tree and make his way to the bait. In doing so he would push the stone pendulum to one side. Just as he was about to fasten his teeth in the meat the stone would swing back and bang his head.

SENATORS RAP EACH OTHER

Filibuster on Connecticut River Fair Has Senate Tied Up Since Last Wednesday, While Business Bills Up—Details of President Taft's Visit

[Special Correspondence]
Hartford, Aug. 6.—The eternal question in the corridors of the state capitol has become, “When will the general assembly adjourn?” Nobody knows, and nobody wants to know. The house had only four matters left at present on which it can act, but there is a real filibuster on house business on the table in the senate, which has been accumulating all week Wednesday, when the filibuster on the proposed amendment to the charter of the Connecticut river began. The filibuster has been in operation ever since, and as soon as the Connecticut river cover to mention in the senate it is the recognized signal for roll call votes galore and speeches on every technical point that an opposition of less than a dozen senators can raise. Senator Peck, the leader of the filibuster, has said that he will talk until the fewer sides before he will let the Connecticut River company get what it wants, and there is good reason to believe that he will. There is also a filibuster on the proposed amendment to the charter of the Connecticut fair. This filibuster makes it impossible to reach any time next Tuesday perhaps if the senate does not adjourn on Thursday. The proposition, however, is not a safe one to depend upon.

Senate session in ill humor. There was an unmistakable display of ill humor when the senate reconvened for the week yesterday. The only thing that kept the members from going some of the factions that have gotten out of patience with each other was the adjournment at 1 o'clock, which has had the result of locking Senator Spilley's resolution to put the five minute rule on all speaking for the senate for the week. The adjournment was the result of a dispute over the adjournment, which was the result of a dispute over the adjournment. The adjournment was the result of a dispute over the adjournment.

McCulloch and Price occupy Springfield. Many new generals are named, among them Ulysses S. Grant. McClellan at Washington daily expresses attack on capital by Beauregard. Complains that old general Scott is chief obstacle to his plan of defense. Finally authorized to organize army of the Potomac.

A MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

When the Master of Creation Does the Cooking We May Hope to Part Forever With Our Indigestion—Pehaps.

By BYRON WILLIAMS.

AND who knows but from the generations yet to come may spring many wives who will kick vigorously at husbands because they do not make like father used to make?

In a city suburb recently forty husbands cooked a meal for forty wives—and not one spouse was mean enough to say that “too many cooks spoil the broth.” In fact, so well was the meal prepared and served that forty wives are seriously considering resigning their jobs as chefs that the heretofore modestly concealed abilities of their husbands and wives may have ample opportunity of demonstration.

Only a few of the more cautious ladies desire to wait to ascertain if it will be necessary to call in the doctor before the expected bridges behind them and tolling bulwark where to find the clover for the hiked hand and the dressing for the salad.

This reminds me of a time when I made a list that—this is a trimmed list, a list that if you please, yes, me. I trimmed a lady's hat and won a prize! It was at a party, and the ladies brought each man a list frame, a bundle of cloth, feathers and frills.

Washington Still Menaced.

There was now a renewed rumor that Johnson and Beauregard were about to attack Washington. McClellan had been expecting such an attack and had finally succeeded in convincing General Scott and others that there was actual danger. On Aug. 7, the president issued another proclamation, to the effect that all troops from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine and Michigan should be sent immediately to Washington.

Those were exceedingly busy days for General McClellan. His letters fairly breathe of haste, anxiety and excitement. On Aug. 8 he writes: “I have scarcely slept one moment for the last three nights, knowing well that the enemy intend some move—ment and fully recognizing our own weakness. If Beauregard does not attack tonight I shall look upon it as a dispensation of Providence. He ought to do it. Every day strengthens me in my feeling nothing sadder to increase our force; but the old general (Scott) always comes in the way. He understands nothing, appreciates nothing.”

Even on Sunday “Little Mac” was in the saddle from 10 to 5 and was “persecuted” (as I afterward seeing the president, called it) by the others of the common people. Yet, busy as he was, McClellan had time to see much of Prince Napoleon, of whom he speaks often in his letters and whom he finds an “intelligent man.”

“Scott the Great Obstacle.”

These letters throw a revealing light on the inner nature of McClellan, his strength and weakness. He is an unselfish man in one thing, and is in the army with his own eyes. On Aug. 9 he writes: “I have had a busy day. Started from here at 7 a.m. for the mountains. In the saddle until about 9 this evening, rode over the advanced position on the other side of the river, was soundly drizzled in a good rain, but I have never ever since my return. Things are improving daily. General Scott is the great obstacle. He will not comprehend the danger. Over the entire country I dropped a lady veil—and tried to forget it. But when the hats were compared the ladies had made a nice little individual gooseberry pie as a reward: Now, some of you ladies may not think that a nice little gooseberry pie is much of a head prize to win. That is because you have not the inward hankering for gooseberry pie that I have. Presently, I will state that such a slight reward or should the people suddenly imagine that they owe me a debt of gratitude, I sincerely trust I shall be paid in individual gooseberry pies! A miser may imbibe up gold pieces in a money cellar, where he can count over and over his clinking gold. He may feel his miserly old heart palpitate and grow young again at the sight of a million dollars hooped in the coal bin, but think of a pie miser with a million individual gooseberry pies!

Does it make your mouth water? And I recall another time when I constructed a waltz album at a social function. But I made a mess of it by overreaching myself. I ordered Herold Herold, so to speak. I tried to make one of these ruffly, fringed album, but the fingers who along hash in the city restaurants, one of those filmy affairs that seem to be taken as light as the white of an egg when beaten, or the down from a thistle when freed to the autumn breeze. The ruffles as manufactured by me perished in picking. They were worse than a young woman in love for the first time. Every time I looked at them they ruckled—and sometimes when my back was turned. Then, too, I was unfortunate enough to cut the strings on the bias, and they rubbed until they were long enough to stake out Jones' call. In my excitement I sewed the strings on the outside so that the act of concealment was obviously ludicrous. In fact, the apron looked like the other side of a piece of patch work and came near being regarded as the heaviest case off and had not along very well with these improved safety devices.

GENERAL ULYSSES S. GRANT AND SCENE OF HIS ENCAMPMENT IN ARCADIA VALLEY, Ironton, Mo., where he received his commission as brigadier general in August, 1861. While engaged here Grant drew up his plan to open the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers by reducing Forts Donelson and Henry.

be filed at the November election. The Union men dominated the convention, as they did the state. General Fremont, in command at St. Louis, had designated General John Pope to lead in northern Missouri. Following the battle of Wilson's Creek Major Sturgis had withdrawn to Springfield, where he was joined by Colonel Sigel, who then took command and retired to Rolla, at which point he soon had reinforcements from Fremont. General McCulloch and Price did not attempt to follow up their opponents, though they did advance to Springfield. Here McCulloch issued orders that the number of brigades be appointed at Wilson's Creek, and he and Price did not agree, but McCulloch soon after withdrew from the state.

St. Louis Under Martial Law.

If Wilson's Creek had the effect of heartening the Union men in the state at large it produced an opposite result in St. Louis. There the southern sympathizers and men opposed to the Union became so jubilant and unruly that on Aug. 22 General Fremont placed the city under martial law. There were a few skirmishes in Missouri at this time. On the night of Oct. 4, 1861, at Ford's Bend, a force of thirty Confederates were reported to have been killed. There were also battles at Georgetown, on Aug. 11, Fredericktown, Aug. 22, and Charlestown Aug. 28, at which number of Confederate prisoners were taken. There were likewise a few actions of minor importance in the east. The Confederates General Magruder's army of 1,500 men was defeated by the Union force led by General Scott at the battle of Forts Monroe, where a Union force had been stationed at the eleven states forming the Confederacy were in insurrection against the government, that all commercial relations with them were suspended and that all goods taken in passing between the two sections and vehicles conveying the same were forfeited.

Conquering the Atlantic.
Whether the ocean traveler is rich or poor, he can no more realize the contrast between his experience and that of the first men who crossed the Atlantic than the tourist gliding over a storm swept moor in a closed motor-car can feel the misery of a tramp staggering over it in open rags. The Atlantic is as cruel as ever a treacherous, gloomy and violent sea—but so smoothly ridden over, that the old sailor, hardly conscious of its being there, half inclined to think its character softened. What higher praise can be accorded to modern shipbuilders?—London Times.

Dr. Johnson's Appearance.
Dr. Johnson, who was extremely excited at his personal appearance, called at the house of a friend on the night to induce him to call with him on Goldsmith. The philosopher was so angry dressed, as next in every way any one could wish, and his friend, Shilton and Danbury charter was a long and bitter one and was finally concluded by turning down the petition for it.

WILL YOU MR. VOTER DEFEND YOURSELF AT DIRECT PRIMARY HERE NEXT TUESDAY?

Selectmen Who Ignored Your Remonstrance Against Double Tracking and Laying Tracks On Side of Streets Are Now Looking for Your Votes.

One does not need to have his ear very close to the ground to find out that there is considerable resentment felt in town because of the recent action of the board of selectmen in going directly in opposition to the clearly and forcibly expressed will of the people in the matter of granting concessions to the Connecticut Company. Hearings were held for the alleged purpose of ascertaining the public will in the matter of granting the petition of the Connecticut Company to lay double tracks within the borders of the town of Manchester. The people assembled in goodly numbers in response to the invitation of the board of selectmen. They voiced their opposition to granting the petition unless the Connecticut Company granted a ten-cent trolley fare between this place and Hartford. Our people have been contending for this just demand for several years. They have employed every reasonable method within their control to bring about this important consideration. They felt that it was within their power to exert some pressure to secure their demands for a ten-cent trolley fare. They also had certain conditions in the granting of the petition of the company for privilege to lay double tracks. They were also opposed almost unanimously to permitting the Connecticut Company to place any more tracks on the side of the highways. They told the board of selectmen that if tracks were to be laid in the highways of the town of Manchester, they should be laid in the center of the street.

These two conditions they requested: First, that the petition of the Connecticut Company be not granted unless the request of the public for a ten-cent fare between this place and Hartford be granted. Second, that even if the ten-cent fare were granted and the permission given the company to lay double track on the line that double track be conditioned upon having the tracks placed in the middle of the highways.

The board of selectmen saw fit in their wisdom to go directly against the clearly expressed wishes of their constituents. They granted the petition of the Connecticut Company without insisting upon the request of the public upon the point just stated above. They totally ignored the desire of their constituency. They did not even make any explanation of their action or tell the people why they had yielded to the pressure of the most unscrupulous lobbyist who has ever been known in this town. They were not given by the selectmen at the hearing that the requests of the people would be ignored. No reasons were advanced by the selectmen to show that the remonstrance need in fact, unreasonable or unlawful. If any of these reasons existed it was the duty of the board of selectmen to make them known to the public at the time known to the public at the time of the press or by calling a public meeting to show cause why the will of the people should be cast aside. This too was done by the public before the petition was granted.

What was the use of having the hearings if it was understood in advance by the board of selectmen that the requests of the people would be ignored and that they would be rejected whether they were right or wrong. Now, freed of these same gentlemen come before the voters and offer them as candidates for reelection as selectmen of the town of Manchester. Just how much the public were in earnest in their demands for a ten-cent trolley fare and for direct tracks in the middle of the streets as has just been done remains to be determined at the direct primary next Tuesday. If the people are really forth next Tuesday and give the only forcible and effective expression of their desire which they possess by their vote, they will have the honor of electing this action is next Tuesday and not at the annual town meeting.

If the voters fail to give concrete expression to the result which has been set forth in the official list prepared by the Town Clerk showing the candidates to be voted upon for the several offices. Voters entitled on the enrollment lists of the Republican, Democratic and
