Building Notes

Case & Marshall are building an addition to the east end of their paper mill at Woodland.

E. J. Holl has staked out a lot for the erection of another double tenement in Burdick along the tracks of the Valley line. He now has three such buildings there; two of which are occupied and the third is being completed as expeditiously as possible. The new structure is closed in and the interior work is going on rapidly.

E. J. Holl has started to build another double tenement on Main street directly north of the one he now owns just beyond the Pentecostal church. The cellar is now being put in. He is filling in at the west end of the lot in order to give more room for a yard than is available there at present. He is hauling the earth from the excavations he is making on the Main street front of the new tenement building.

The stone walls of the basement for E. J. Holl's group of stores on Main street near Central are being put in place this week and it is Mr. Holl's purpose to push the work along with all possible expedition. Although the stores will be but one story high they will be given a cross appearance by the pretty design which the architect has prepared. Instead of abruptly terminating with a flat roof, as seen from Main street they will be provided with attractive metal arched fronts that will change the appearance very much and add to the beauty of the structures.

The arches will rise several feet above the level of the roof. The fronts will be practically of plate glass, the columns separating the stores and will be of heavy brick. The group will add much to the architectural equipment of the business section of South Manchester.

The carpenter, electricians, lathers and plasterers are at work on the interior of the Grand Central Theater which Manager John F. Sheridan is having constructed on Main street next south of the Salvation Army Citadel. The stage is laid out in a partially plastered and the electricians are at work on the wiring. The gallery is being constructed and the section of the main auditorium has been plastered. The two dressing rooms at the rear of the stage are plastered. The two heaters are not yet set in position.

MOTORMAN KILLED

ALBION BRISBOS MEETS FRIGHTFUL DEATH IN HARTFORD LAST NIGHT

Car Leaves Switch on Bridge and Motorman Sets Brakes and Jumps to His Death—Body Pinned Beneath His Car. Young Wife Heartbroken
Albion Brisbos of Main street over North, a motorman for the Connecticut Company on the South Manchester line was killed under the wheels of his own car late last evening when it dived into the water at the junction of the bridge and Main street in Hartford, rushing wild for nearly seventy feet before it caught against the embankment on the south side of the bridge. Brisbos was wedged under the broken axle and rear truck of the car for nearly half an hour before he could be pulled out. He died two minutes after he had been carried to the Hartford hospital.

"Well, there's the sign," he said under the truck.

Brisbos was unaccustomed, and no one knew he was the motorman until his uniform was recognized. The conductor ran to the nearest telephone on Front street, and called the police station. The ambulance made a record run to the place but was almost powerless to help the man, as he was firmly wedged under the broken axle and the car rested against the curbstone on the down grade so that it could not be moved.

The car was a trailer following the regular car and was due at City Hall at 10:30 o'clock, and while it was running on time, was coming over the bridge at a good rate of speed. When it came to the switch, the front tracks of the big car kept on the west bound rails, toward Morgan street, and the smaller sprang itself then so that the rear wheels took the Booklevart tracks. In a second the whole car was clear of the rails, and racing across the broad asphalt roadway toward the curb, taking a diagonal course, on an angle of nearly ninety degrees, Brisbos jumped or was jolted from the front platform. The conductor, William Mason was standing on the rear platform and he was thrown to the street but was unharmed. There were seven passengers in the car and all were thrown from their seats when the car left the rails. Some of them were slightly bruised.

No one could be found who actually saw Brisbos go under the car. From the position the car was in and the manner in which he was caught underneath, it is believed that he jumped when the car was about fifteen or twenty feet from the curb. The brakes were firmly set and later had to be released before the car could be moved.

The man's right leg was cut almost off, the body from the right hip to a point near his left shoulder was ripped or crushed open, a left arm was broken, and there were cuts on his head and face.

Brisbos had been in the employ of the Company for the past two years working as passenger conductor and motorman. Three weeks ago he resigned to go to work in Maine, but the arrangements fell through and he re-entered the employ of the company again this week. He was 28 years of age and was born in Alton, Mass. He is survived by a widow, who was Miss Beatrice Reynolds of Manchester before her marriage, and also by his parents. The remains were turned over to Undertaker Wm. L. Inelund of Manchester this morning, but the funeral arrangements have not been completed as yet.

Extremely Ill
Word received from the bedside of Dr. E. C. Moriarty of Park street shortly before noon today brings the information that he is extremely ill with double pneumonia. He has been struggling valiantly for his life during the past week. Consultations of doctors are being held and every known aid is being invoked. Medical skill and tender care are employed in his behalf. The crisis due sometime today and nothing more can be done at present than await the issue and see if nature can win the side at hand, bringing him safely through. The doctor is young and naturally of a strong constitution and he is there is hope that nature will triumph over disease and bring him safely out of his perilous position. His father and sisters are here from Yonkers, N. Y. and there fore every possible care and attention are his.

Quiet Thanksgiving
The Thanksgiving holiday was spent in the usual quiet manner. There were a large number of people who had returned to their homes for the Thanksgiving feast and who renewed acquaintances in town. There was nothing to mar the pleasure of the day. The weather man was unusually generous and provided an ideal day for the holiday. Many people who did not care to observe the day in town went to Hartford where there were more attractions offered and enjoyed the hospitality of the hotels, restaurants and play-places. All of the mails were delivered as usual on the day and banks. The afternoon closed at ten o'clock in the afternoon. The letter carriers had but one delivery to make for the day. The letter carriers had but one delivery to make for the day. Service of the day was held in a number of the churches and were well attended.

CHAPTER XII
DISCOUNT

It was the tallest of the city's skyscrapers. In the highest story of said building, were, as the letters on the ground glass door announced, the law offices of Paul Remington. The term "law offices" was perhaps a misnomer, for upon Paul had fallen the distrust which the business public often feels for the political lawyer, and the bulk of his practice consisted principally in caring for the legal ends of the great trusts and corporations. Paul strode to Bob's side and placed his hand affectionately on the latter's shoulder. Now sit down and we'll discuss this thing rationally. Paul looked at Bob's teeth and said: "Well, he's worth a good deal. All that Democrat bawl follow him like sheep. An the Seventh is a Democrat ward."

"Then you think he's really important?" "Oh, yes," Bob answered. "I know your reason. If you're not careful that woman will marry you." "If only she could be persuaded to do it. How did you guess?" "A blind man can read it. You have all the symptoms of a man sickening."

"You go to congress—what happens? You'll find yourself snatched over your head, bound, manacled, I can imagine no sadder fate for you than to be manacled." "Go on," Paul exclaimed impatiently. "The only thing in the world worth having—real power."

"Real power—?" Paul laughed almost bitterly. "What power have I? How do people think of me? What have I been? One of your own underlings, your puppet?" "Stop!" Bob was so near to anger that Paul was startled. "That's enough of this old woman's chatter. You're not coming to the convention, Mr. McAdoo?" he began eagerly.

"Bob chuckled. "I see. I really think you'd better quit that business of coming to the convention, Mr. McAdoo," he began with nervous vehemence. "I didn't!" "Bob came sharply upright in his chair. "Before God, Malaisey," he said harshly, "you did. You were to go into the Democratic nominating committee and help get me their endorsement. But you didn't!"

"It's a lie, whoever says it," Malaisey cried. "I voted for you, and the record'll prove it." "Yes, you voted for me when the committee was safely against me. You took a flier in double dealing, Malaisey. It has netted you a thousand dollars, and that's all. The mayor expects your resignation at once. Good morning, Malaisey!"

An hour later Paul came in and threw himself wearily on one of Bob's uncomfortable chairs. "Well," he said moodily, "you lost that trick." "I'm not infatigable," Bob returned calmly. "And they payed this hand better than the last one."

Paul sprang to his feet and began to pace up and down nervously. "They'll break him. They're relentless—and they're in a princely combination. Good God, Bob, what an enemy you are fighting! You're a big man, but you're a pigmy beside them."

Hats for Matrons

There is something about fringe which adapts it to military design for older women particularly well. It is made of rich materials, as lace, chenille, satin and silk, and is carefully and compactly put together. Now that it is so fashionable, many hats are trimmed with the narrow silk fringe.

There are so many bonnet-like shapes this season that are worn by young and old alike, that there is a wider choice than heretofore for older women. These shapes are unusually softening and becoming and a very agreeable change from tarban and toque shapes which have been worn for so many years. Older women should consider them with favor. They are small, with roomy and comfortable head sizes. They fit well down over the crown of the head and stay in place without difficulty. Women with a face veil, they are very neat, so there is no chance for the hair to show about. There is a very great variety of these shapes, their main differences being in the backs. Some of them turn down, some are trimmed at the back and others turn smartly upward, allowing room for a low collar.

Fig. 1 is a very attractive shape in shown which may be had in felt, velvet or any of the materials used for winter hats. Velvet loops and chenille fringe headed by a band of roses, form the trimming. This shape is worn both by young and elderly women, with equal appropriateness. More particularly designed for older women, the hat in Fig. 2 follows the lines of a bonnet. The crown is a soft job of velvet and the trimming a plume effect made of fringe applied to quills and a fringed comb. This is a very new model, rich and dignified in effect. It is made in the darker shades of the rich colors which characterize this season's millinery.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY

There are many hats in the window at back is arranged to form a deep V, that is filled in to match the veil.

Materials required: Five yards of fabric, one yard of velvet for trimming, 1/2 yard tulle net.

LITTLE POINTS TO REMEMBER

Matters of Etiquette That Never Should be Forgotten in the Memory.

When the luncheon guests are ladies exclusively the hostess leads the way to the dining room, where places are chosen at will or are fixed by dainty plate favors with the names inscribed on side.

Many hostesses prepare for an informal musical and literary program following luncheon.

The hostess driving with another woman in a closed carriage allows her guest to take the choice of seats by giving her precedence in entering the carriage.

Only the most delicate scent is allowed on a lady's stationery, and it is better to dispense with perfume in this altogether. If used a sachet is introduced into the box in which the stationery is kept, the sachet being the same as that affected by the owner.

Black borders of equal width on stationery cards are used by the widow as long as she wears mourning.

Postal cards are only proper for announcing meetings at the most impersonal messages.

White Serge for Winter.

For early winter wear white serge of cloth, corduroy or heavy ribbed serge are very smart. The coats are cut on Empire lines, with a seam just above the waist line, and immense revers and large flap pockets give the suit a youthful appearance. To be worn with one of these smart suits, recently ordered for a miss of fifteen, a large soft hat of white silk beaver, with a fetching flat tailored bow of Persian lamb as its trimming, was chosen. The handsome bill of lace that faced the front of the coat was caught by another bill of Persian lamb.

Flash anesthetizer is used for this very effective dress. The skirt just escapes the ground all round, and has a tunic simulated by a band of soft silk embroidery about five inches wide, sewn on by the upper edge only. The sides of the bodice are cut Magyar, and open in front to show a vest that is of finely tucked net at the top, and the material from net to waist; lace inserts trim the lower edge of net, and embroidery of the top of material. The water fall revers are trimmed with embroidered.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THIS world which clouds the soul with doubt is but a mere fiction. It is when we view those shores and seas. We know not what the whole intends: So when the spirit like a lone hot dish of soup, cream soups are appropriate for this meal and they are legion, so that all tastes may be gratified.

Cream Soup.—This is one that is so perfectly delicious that the trouble of preparation will be swallowed with the first taste. Cook two pounds of veal bones in two quarts of water put over the fire. When reduced to one quart add the great meat (or meat put through a meat chopper) of one pound of the chicken until fine as meal and add the milk of the nut and a pint of cream. Reheat and thicken with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter cooked together. Season with salt, pepper and a little onion juice and just as ready to serve, pour over a slightly beaten egg.

Queen Victoria's Favorite Soup.—Remove the fat from one quart of water in which a fowl has been cooked. Season with salt, pepper, onion juice and celery salt. Mash the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, mix with a cup of bread crumbs soaked in a little milk until soft. Chop the white meat of the chicken until fine as meal and stir into the egg and bread paste. Add a pint of hot cream slowly, then add the chicken liquor. Boil five minutes, add more salt and if too thick, more cream; if too thin, add more crumbs. It should be a puree.

A fine soup may be made of the wing tips and bones of a turkey left from dinner.

When the main meal is taken at noon there is no dish at night that does the spot like a nice hot dish of soup. Cream soups are appropriate for this meal and they are legion, so that all tastes may be gratified.

HIS ESTIMATE.

"I bought a little lawn for the girl's dress today," said Mrs. Spendit, "and here is the bill for it."

"Lawn?" shouted Mr. Spendit, looking at the bill. "Lawn? Why, woman, you must have bought a whole farm!"

One of War's Horrors.

"We are so quiet that Italy is acting very prettily," the strolling Turkey said. "She wants to gobble Tripoli."

Says Mr. Meddlergrass.

"As near as I can make out this here classic fiddle playin'," observed Mr. Meddlergrass, "it consists largely in physical exercise of a violent kind, in which the fiddler doesn't understand what he is playin' at as the audience doesn't understand it either, 'n' keeps wishin' he'd cut loose on some of the old time shake the foot lines, but has to look wise 'n' tell one another it's just grand. No, sir, this here classic music business is all right to talk to, but no great shakes to listen to."

Experience Teaches.

"I can't goose that lark the golden-eyes," observed the boyard bird to the eagle hunter who was approaching him in an air of confidence. "I can't goose that lark the golden-eyes," observed the boyard bird to the eagle hunter who was approaching him in an air of confidence.

Selectmen Meet

Minor Matters Disposed of—More Light Petitions

The selectmen held a special session at the Hall of Records last Monday afternoon when several matters were disposed of. Superintendent Ulrich informed the board that all the meters on West Center and Olcott streets have been set and also the fences on the south side of Olcott street have been re-located to conform with the proposed highway improvements along that section. Mr. Ulrich reported progress in regard to the curb line on the east side of Main street, south of the Center. He informed the board that practically all the property owners were ready to sign an agreement for the new curb line as soon as same could be drawn. Regarding the permanent boundaries of the town Mr. Ulrich said he was ready to begin the task now. The work will be started from the Vernon line and continued in a westerly direction. He said that the Bolton authorities had not as yet agreed to pay a portion of the cost of setting the stones along the east line and Selectman Alvord was appointed to confer with the Bolton authorities in regard to this matter. It was agreed that Bolton would not be asked to pay anything toward the cost of triangulation.

Complaint has reached the board that an encroachment on the highway had been made on Parker street and also that a property owner on Middle street had set his fence in the highway. The road sup.intendent was instructed to investigate both cases and report to the board.

The selectmen decided to have a map made of Spruce street and Mr. Ulrich was instructed to prepare same.

Selectman Cowles presented a petition signed by residents in the northwest section of the town asking to have the road between Buckland and Wapping repaired. There is considerable heavy traveling over this road between Buckland and Wapping and as the highway is in very poor condition. The board decided to make the necessary improvements. Superintendent Ulrich was instructed to purchase 2,400 feet of obsidian plank from E. O. Walker, of Manchester Green. Mr. Walker gave the board a very favorable figure with the provision that the town do the hauling, which will be done.

The board voted to install a telephone in the house of Chief of Police Sumner. The board also voted to have Hamlin street and Selectman Howe was appointed a committee to investigate the placing of telephones for town officials and see if a discount could be arranged with the telephone company.

At the request of Chief Gordon a new lock will be placed on the liquor cabinet in the police station. The liquor cabinet is used for storage purposes when liquor has been confiscated and it has been brought to the attention of the officers that some persons have access to the cabinet. The board therefore voted to have a new lock placed on same and the keys will be kept by the police officials and by the selectmen.

An electric light petition was received from residents of Roosevelt and Bridgewood streets for one light at the junction of these two highways. There is already a light on each street but no light at the corner.

A petition was received which was signed by forty-seven residents of Mather, Woodbridge, Parker and Lydall streets, asking for lights on Mather street, from Woodbridge to Parker, north on Parker street to the railroad crossing and on Lydall street from Parker to Vernon street, to the railroad crossing and on Lydall street from Parker to Vernon street, at Lydallville. Selectman Cowles who presented the petition, said the signers wanted to be heard on this matter and it was decided to give them the opportunity at the next meeting of the board, Monday evening, December 11th.

Settled With Proctor

The board of selectmen have effected a satisfactory settlement with John Proctor the recently deceased property owner on Olcott street. The settlement involved no expense to the town and besides securing the necessary land for widening the street to 60 feet, the town received the right to use all the gravel it needs during the coming year from Mr. Proctor's gravel pit. Mr. Proctor was opposed to giving a portion of his land for the widening of the highway to the proposed six-foot width, but he now withdraws his objection and the proposed improvements can go forward.

Basket Ball Tonight

The G basket ball team will open its local season at the Army Opera house this evening when it will have the Meriden quintet as opponents. The Meriden men are rated as fast players and are expected to give the G team, last year's state champion, a good go for first honors. The preliminary game will be between the Braves of this place and the Meriden team of West Hartford. Following the game dancing will be enjoyed, for which the Dan O'Rourke will furnish the music.
