child appeared even more listiess than usual. Feeling rather anxious, I took her temperature, gave her some stimulating nourishment and asked her to get into my lap while I read to her.

Dorothy had the beautiful old-young manners in which the little children of the rich are drilled, and always treated me with careful consideration and politeness, regardless of her own wishes. Obediently she climbed into my lap, put her head against my shoulder, and I began to read aloud a wonderful Christmas tale. We are all of us shildren at Christmas and I found sujoyment in the story. Dorothy was very quiet, and as I turned a page I booked down to see if she had falses notices. To my constornation.

Tis the night before Christmas"—
I whisper the rhyme

And wander in fancy
To "once on a time."
I see the big fireplace,
The girls and the boys,
The long, heaped-up stockings,
The drums and the toys.

"Tis the night before Christmas"— So old, and so new! With all of its dreamings So good and so true. I see all the faces Suspenders to Match

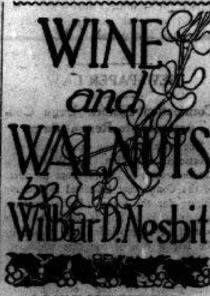

And out of the twilight
There murmurs a song.

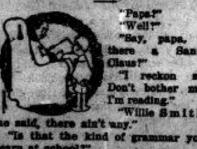

'Tis the night before Christmas"-And here, by my grate,
The past rises, glowing;
The years lose their weight
The boy-days come trooping
At memory's call,
And gleem in the embers

Tis the night before Christmas— Ah, could I but clutch

The gold of my fancies!
Twould go at my touch!
The shouts and the laughter

There need to be one."

And when Christmas came the two poor nephews were anxious to show the rich old uncle how much they thought of him.

Now the first poor nephew reasoned that he should impress his rich old uncle with the great affection he bore him by some tangible means. So he drew out his savings and purchased for his rich old uncle a magnificent gold watch, and had it neatly engraved. To it he attached a gorgoous chain, put the whole affair in a lavishly decorated box and sent it to his rich old uncle with his best wishes.

The second poor nephew figured

Facts Early In Life.

No matter how strong the digestion may be naturally, it is no very difficult matter to weaken it, and no matter how do something to strengthen it. The subject is, therefore, of interest to everyone, for it is a well-known fact that a vast amount of the comfort and the discomfort of life depends upon the pressure act of digestion.

A good digestion resembles many of the other biessings of life—it is often never really valued until it is lost.

The subject is the thick skin is hard to digest, and often causes intestinal troubles.

Food That Once Agreed With You—
It is a mistake to imagine that because certain kinds of food have agreed with you in the past, they are always going to do so. At different ages, the same foods have different effects, so that often what we cat when we were children does not agree with us when we grow older, and the food that agrees in middle age sometimes fails entirely to do so when we are old.
